Lady Tweedsmuir Speaks To Women's Institute

Chesterville Honoured Yesterday With Vsit From Her Excellency Who Was Guest of Honour at Luncheon Given by Local Branch of Institute. —Talk on Poetry Was Inspiring to Members and Guests.—Welcomed By Council and President of Chesterville Organizaton in Community Hall.

AUDITORIUM BEAUTIFUL WITH FLAGS, FERNS AND FLOWERS

Chesterville was honoured yesterday afternoon with a visit from Her Excellency, the Lady Tweedsmuir, who graced a luncheon of the Women's Institute in the Community Hall and spoke on "Books and Reading." Arriving at one o'clock from Ottawa, Her Excellency, accompanied by Mrs. George Pape, Lady-in-waiting, was welcomed with addresses by Councillor Geo. H. Barkley on behalf of the Municipal Council and Mrs. Melvin Durant, president of the Chesterville Branch of the Women's Institute.

The guests were received by Mrs. Jas. Hanna, Mrs. Geo. W. Reaburn, Mrs. A. B. Clayton and Mrs. Mary Hughes, and the hall was filled with members of the W.I. and friends from Chesterville, Morrisburg, Brinston, Iroquois, Williamsburg, Winchester, Ottawa and Morewood.

Seated at the head table with Her Excellency were Mrs. Pape, Lady-in-waiting; Mrs. M. Durant, president of the Institute; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Barkley, Miss E. McGee, secretary-treasurer of the Institute; Rev. R. C. and Mrs. Tait, Rev. G. O. Davies and Miss Betty Davies, and Rev. George Extence.

The auditorium presented a beautiful sight decorated with flags, ferns, palms, and potted plants. The head table was centred with a silver basket of rose-coloured snapdragons and boutonnieres of sweet peas, and sweet peas also centred each of the 45 small tables.

Following the luncheon, Councillor Geo. H. Barkley, in the absence of Reeve W. H. Casselman, read the address of welcome to Her Excellency from the Municipal Council, and Mrs. Melvin Durant then introduced the guest speaker to the gathering on behalf of the Institute.

Her Excellency graciously thanked the two speakers for their kind words of welcome and stated her pleasure at receiving the address of welcome which she would show to His Excellency. She spoke then to the members of the Institute, giving them a message from the Institutes of England and Wales, and especially from her home county of Oxfordshire. If any members cared to correspond with Institute members in Oxfordshire, she would count it a great pleasure to forward their names.

Turning to her address, Her Excellency announced that, although she had promised to speak on books, she was really going to talk on poetry. While she admired the older poets, Lady Tweedsmuir said the newer writers have an appeal and a stern bracing quality that the old class lacked, and quoted extracts to explain her choice. Literature of to-day she found pleasing.

Audrey Alexander Brown she considered the greatest of present-day Canadian poets. The Great War produced literature of high quality, especially that inspired by what the Emperor of Germany is said to have referred to as the "Contemptible little army of Britain that enlisted for their pay only," and "To the Mercenary Army" was the finest example of literature Her Excellency had yet seen.

Nearly everyone likes poetry of a lighter vein and two epitaphs quoted were what the speaker termed "glorified nursery rhymes," but pleasing. The modern ballad was also explained. The newest poets do not seem to care a whit for rhyme, metre or music, as they write in terms of factories, machine guns and unemployed, and a poem speaking of these unemployed men at the street corners was a good example of this class. The lack

ADDRESS OF WELCOME TO HER EXCELLENCY LADY TWEEDSMUIR

Read by Councillor George H. Barkley at the Women's Institute luncheon yesterday afternoon.

Your Excellency,—

Permit me, on behalf of the citizens of this district, to extend to you a hearty welcome to our village at this time.

Because of your manifold duties as the wife of His Excellency, the Governor-General, we know that this visit has entailed a considerable sacrifice on your part, and so we desire to convey to you our full appreciation of your goodness in giving us of your valuable time to-day.

Knowing, as we do, that you are deeply interested in the activities and problems of all Canadian communities, large and small, we have not hesitated to ask you for the grace of your presence on this occasion.

We know that your visit here will be of great benefit and profit to our citizens and we trust that it will be most pleasant to yourself.

Iit is our desire that you shall carry away with you full assurance of our undivided devotion and loyalty to the person of the sovereign whom you and your illustrious husband represent in this Dominion, a Dominion which we hope may always remain an integral part of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Signed on behalf of the Village Council.

Former Berwick Man, 84, Meets Death While Fishing

Aged Man Went Over Dam While Fishing From Flat-Bottom Boat Monday Morning.

George Meldrum, 84 years of age, a former well-known farmer of Berwick, was killed when he went over the dam in the Nation river at Crysler Monday morning while on an early fishing trip. Fishing up-stream for some time from a flat bottom boat it is believed he did not realize that his boat was nearing the dam until it was caught in the heavy current and hurled to the rocks below, where Mr. Meldrum landed on his head. Dr. J. Gormley, who was quickly on the scene after the body had been taken from the water about a half mile down from the dam by Lionel Gelinault and Romeo Carrier, said death was due to heart failure, as there was no water in the lungs, and that an inquest would not be necessary.

Thomas Butler, who was on the bank, saw the boat pass beyond the control of Meldrum as he tried ineffectively to paddle to safety, but could not render assistance.

Mr. Meldrum was a native of Cambridge, where he lived with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Meldrum. Some 65 years ago he settled at Berwick where he lived until his retirement to Crysler about 20 years ago.

Besides his wife, the former Margaret Fleming, there survive one sister, Mrs. Allen Merkley, of Calgary; three daughters, Mrs. C. W. Hollingsworth, of Marmora, Ont.; Mrs. A. H. Riddell, of Brownlee, Sask., and Mrs. H. R. Fitzpatrick, of Crossfield, Alta.; and five sons, Melvin, at home; Thomas, at Perth; Rupert, at Ottawa, and Ivan and Ethan, of Buffalo, N.Y He also leaves 21 grandchiildren.

Mrs. A. Timmins, Winchester, Is 101 Years Old To-Day

One Step Past Century Mark, But is Still in Good Health. — Spending Day Quietly at Home.

Mrs. Andrew Timmins, of Winchester, marks the 101st anniversary of her birth to-day, spending the day quietly at home surrounded by members of her family and receiving her friends during this afternoon.

Winchester's grand old lady has had no serious illness since last year when she was feted by members of the town and countryside, and when special services were conducted in the United church, where a tablet to mark the occasion of her 100th birthday was unveiled.

She makes her usual trips to the stores and still does some housework in her home, where she is taken care of by her granddaughter, Mrs. Mabel Allison. For more than half a century she has been a devoted member of the Methodist and United churches, and is a life member of the W.M.S. She rarely misses the Sunday morning service at her church.

Mrs. Timmins was the former Catharine Suffell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Suffell, who came to Canada from England. She was born in the vicinity of Prescott, lived at Bowmanville and Inkerman prior to taking up land at The Boyne near Winchester, in 1876. At the age of 20, she married Andrew Timmins, who died 17 years ago. She has been a resident of Winchester for the past 33 years and is the mother of 11 children. Living are, Chester B. Timmins, of Winchester; Stanley Timmins, Calgary, Alta., and Henry Timmins, Toronto.

Fiery Crosses Seen Near Winchester Accident Scene

Thought Practical Jokers at Work in Trying to Giving Residents Case Of Nerves.

With the burning of the second cross on Highway 31 at Winchester within the past week, a practical joker is evidently set on giving Winchester folks a case of the jitters. Just why the crosses are burned is not known, no tell-tale evidence having been found after either incident. Early on Thursday morning of last week the first cross was set fire to in the vicinity where the fatal motor wreck happened recently, and the other early Wednesday morning almost opposite the gate to the quarry a short distance south of the railway. The latest one to burn was said to have been made out of considerably heavier lumber than the first which was a rather small affair.

Presbyterian W. M. Societies Convened at Morrisburg

73rd Meeting of Brockville Presbyterial Held in Knox Church With Over 100 Present.

More than 100 delegates and others attended the 73rd annual meeting of Brockville W.M.S. Presbyterial, held in Knox Presbyterian church, Morrisburg, Thursday last. Miss Ellen Douglas, missionary, home on furlough from Jabott, India, was the principal speaker, and Dr. N. McLeod, the moderator, was present.

Delegates were met in the Knox church auditorium by Mrs. Jenkins Burkholder, Mrs. W. D. Halliday and Mrs. George Meikle. Mrs. Riddell presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. W. D. Turner, of Winchester, and was assisted by Mrs. W. S. Feeley of Morewood, and Mrs. James Brodie, of Morrisburg.

Reports were given by Mrs. Earl Munro, of Winchester Springs; Mrs. Harry Lapierre, of Brockville; Mrs. Gfl Toshak, of Prescott; Mrs. Brodie, Mrs. W. J. Armstrong, of Iroquois; Miss Jean Kellock, of Prescott; Mrs. W. S. Feeley, Mrs. J. Hodge, of Cardinal, and Mrs. R. I. Davidson, Iroquois. Luncheon was served by the Y.M.C. of Knox church.

The Kemptville Auxiliary led in devotional exercises and the Morrisburg churches were represented by Mrs. S. L. Casselman, Luthern; Mrs. R. D. Smith, United, and Mrs. J. F. Myers, Anglican. Reports read from sectional executives included. Mrs. B. Stringer, of Lansdowne; Mrs. C. Stewart, of Brinston; Mrs. D. M. Morrison, of Kemptville, and Miss P. McIntosh, of Winchester Springs.

The work of the Life Membership section was reviewed by Miss Helen Jamieson, of Chesterville, who presented Reg. Workman, of Winchester, with a book. Mission Band Work was reviewed by Mrs. Charles Robinson, of Kemptville.

Mrs. Stringer introduced the special speaker, Miss Douglas.

An "In Memoriam" service followed conducted by Mrs. J. Hodge, of Cardinal, and elections resulted in the following appointments:

Honourary president, Mrs. J. M. Gill, of Brockville; president, Mrs. B. Stringer, of Lansdowne; vice presidents, Mrs. D. M. Morrison, Kemptville; Mrs. C. Stewart, of Brinston; Miss P. McIntosh, of Winchester Springs; recording secretary, Mrs. T. Coulthart, of Morewood; corresponding, Mrs. R. I. Davidson, of Iroquois; treasurer, Mrs. R. H. Lindsay, Brockville; home helpers, Miss Carlyle, of Kemptville; young women, Mrs. Gray of Spencerville; girls' work, Miss M. ### APPLE EXPORT FIGURES.

In spite of an unusually large crop of good quality apples in Great Britain in 1936, and a consequent large pack of gallon apples, the export of apples from Canada to the British market was greater than in 1935 by nearly 20,000 cases, the exact figures being 205,415 cases in 1936 and 188,050 cases in 1935.

STRAW AS AN ABSORBENT.

Straw when used as bedding for live stock will absorb from two to three times its weight of liquid, and when finely cut will soak up about three times as much liquid as when uncut. Further, the absorptive capacity of dry sawdust and fine shavings is from two to four times that of ordinary straw.

Horses of not more than $150 in value imported into the United States from Canada are dutiable at $20 per head; horses over $150 in value are subject to a duty of 20 per cent ad valorem. Prior to January, 1936, the duty on horses of not more than $150 in value was $30 per head. From 1931 to 1935 there was a slow but steady increase in the number of Canadian horses imported into the United States and in 1936 the imports rose to 17,156 head for the not more than $150 classification and to 326 head for horses over the $150 figure.

EARLY TOMATO PRODUCTION.

The best prices for tomatoes are paid for early, ripe fruit, but the grower must not make the mistake of having the plants cost more than is reasonable.

The Dominion Horticulturist recommends early sowing coupled with the use of early maturing, good varieties. The sowing should be made just early enough to have stocky well grown plants in bloom and ready for planting out at the sign of settled weather.

Soils unduly rich in nitrogen tend to promote rank wood growth and a small amount of fruit. Low nitrogen high phosphoris acid and a medium amount of potash are essential to good results.

HELP TO MAKE CANADA MORE BEAUTIFUL.

The unlovely things and unattractive places in Canada that displease the eye are made by man. It is time he set out to undo some of the damage that has been done. There are primrose paths for all who care to make them. An amazing amount of worry can be spaded under along these paths in a bright spring afternoon. Since Adam tilled the first garden, many pastimes have come to claim their thousands but have passed out of the picture while gardening has stood the centuries. There must be something in it. Buy some flower seeds, plant some flowers or shrubs this spring. Help to make Canada more beautiful.

CURRENT CROP REPORT.

According to reports received from many points in Ontario, fall wheat appears to have come through the winter in very good condition and recent rains have helped it wonderfully. While in some districts fall wheat is very brown on top, it is still green at the crown, and fields that had a good top and root system are coming through splendidly. Work on the land has commenced in many parts of Southern Ontario and some seed has been sown. Fruit farmers are busy spraying their orchards. Grey County reports an auctioneer selling a three-year-old calf for $181. At another sale cows sold as high as $69, with their calves at foot selling for another $10. At another sale the total sales amounted to over $2,100, of which $1,800 was paid in cash. Wellington County also reports numerous auction sales, and similar reports come from other counties. In many cases, sheep and cattle are bringing good prices, while seed grain generally brings a little premium. The run of sap is light in Dundas County, with maple syrup selling at $1 50 to $2.25 per gallon. Grenville and Prescott and Russell also report a very poor season for maple syrup. In Renfrew County, five machines for treatment of grain for smut and other seed-borne diseases have been installed, all of them doing considerable business.

VERMIN IN POULTRY.

It seems impossible to get growth in chicks or satisfactory production from the laying flock if vermin is present. The hen doesn't seem to be able to eat enough feed to keep vermin alive and at the same time keep up normal production. The hen and chick must depend upon the poultryman to keep down the pests which cut into the profits. If the birds have good dry dust in which to work, body lice are fairly well kept in check. The birds may be dusted with an insect powder, or nicotine applied to the roosts shortly before the birds go on the roosts is effective.

The nests sometimes become infested and for this reason all nests should be frequently cleaned and dusted with insect powder, then fresh chaff or straw put in the nests. One should avoid using in the nest a disinfectant with a strong odour or straw that is musty. It is well known that eggs absorb odours. There is really no excuse to have the poultry plant over-run with vermin, but it multiplies fast in warm weather, and if preventive or control measures are not used the hens will soon be tormented and production will drop.

SEED TREATMENT.

Farmers are now busy making preparations for spring seeding. Good crops and heavy yields are directly associated with the use of clean healthy seed of the best quality. The annual losses, due to the ravages of seed-borne bacterial and fungus parasites, are much greater than the average farmer realizes. For this reason, all seed should be treated before it is sown, regardless of its quality.

Seed treatment of wheat, oats and barley has been greatly simplified in recent years with the appearance on the market of organic mercury dusts. These dusts, when properly applied, effectively control the smuts of oats, covered smut of barley, bunt or stinking smut of wheat and the other seed borne fungi and bacteria that are responsible for the blights and root rots commonly found in our cereal crops. to the seed, care should be exercised to follow instructions as outlined on the container. The amount of dust recommended should be evenly distributed over the seed coat. Insufficient dust will be ineffective in control, and an excess will injure germination. Grain, after being treated with mercury dust, should not be fed to live Due to their easy application, effectiveness and stimulation to germination, they are rapidly replacing formalin and copper carbonate. They are not, however, recommended as a control for the loose smuts of wheat and barley. These smuts are not affected by the use of the ordinary seed treatments, but can be controlled by the hot water treatment.

In applying organic mercury dusts stock or poultry, or used for human consumption. It can, however, be kept over under suitable storage conditions and used as seed the following year.

A simple Highland shepherd lad, named Donald, was an obecieint son and a shy lover. "Mother," he said one evening, "can I get oot tae see ma lass?"

"Of course, Donald," replied his mother, readily.

Later, on his return, she asked:

"Well, Donald, did ye see Jean?"

'Aye, mither," he replied, "and if I hadna bobbed doon behind the shed she'd hae seen me!"

Cow Has Share of Highway As Well as Automobile

Judge Rules Animal Is Entitled to Eight Feet of Roadway, in Montreal Court Hearing.

A cow is entitled to eight feet of highway just as much as an automobile is, Mr. Justice Forest ruled in a Montreal court Saturday in dismissing an action by a motorist against the animal's owner for $167.75 damages sustained by the auto when it struck the cow.

The accident happened June 24th, 1935, on the highway near Lery, in Chateauguay county. The cow, which was killed in the collision, with another, was being led across the highway to pasture.

The defendant, John T. Goodfellow, claimed one of his employees had looked in both directions along the road, seen no traffic and returned to open the barrier and lead the cows across. The farm hand later noticed the car of the plaintiff Gaspard Crepin, of Montreal, coming toward him at a high rate of speed, and motioned for it to slow up, he said. However, the vehicle continued, and crashed into one of the animals.

The plaintiff contended he was travelling between 30 and 35 miles an hour, and claimed the accident was due to the fault and negligence of the farm hand in not being sure the way was clear before leading the cows onto the highway.

Independent witnesses, the Court found, had testified the car was going at least 50 miles an hour. Besides, the road was very slippery.

The road laws, His Lordship continued, obliged a motorist to keep to his right except when passing another vehicle or an animal, when he must turn out. The highway at the point of the collision was 20 feet wide, If the cow which was struck took up eight feet, there was still 12 feet left for the motorist, which should have been sufficient.

The defendant's employee had been prudent in his manner of taking the cows across the road, the Court found whereas the plaintiff had been travelling at an illegal rate of speed, and did not have his car under control as required by law. For these reasons, the action was dismissed.

QUINTUPLETS WILL APPEAR ON TWO-A-DAY SCHEDULE

Callander, Ont.—The Dionne quintuplets will be on view daily from 9.30 a.m. to 10 a.m. and from 2.30 to 3p.m., Dr. A. R. Dafoe, their physician announces. During the winter the famous babies could be seen only once daily.

Dr. Dafoe reported the quints in excellent health. "They were certainly making lots of racket when I saw them this morning," he said.

Regarding summer showing of the quints, Dr. Dafoe said they would not be on view during inclement weather. "If it's raining or unpleasant, the children don't go out," he said. "Towards the end of May the times during which they may be seen will be lengthened."

Hollinger, McIntyre Mines To Close If Men Strike

Gold Compaies' Presidents Issue Ultimatum Against Lewis Organization.—3,300 Men Employed.

Warning that the McIntyre-Porcupine and Hollinger gold mines would be "indefinitely shut down" if strikes were called at either of their properties was given this week by the presidents of the mines.

In separate statements, John P. Bickell, president of McIntyre, and J. R. Timmins, president of Hollinger-Consolidated, declared their opposition to the John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization which has started organizing mine workers in Northern Ontario.

"When I say 'Sut down' I mean 'Shut Down,'" Mr. Bickell declared. "If my men don't want to work for me they don't have to. We won't suspend operations merely to negotiate; we'll shut down until the men are ready to go back to their jobs."

"I have," he continued, "unbounded admiration for the stand and courage shown by the Prime Minister of Ontaro." (Referring to Premier Hepburn's stand against the C.I.O. in the Oshawa strike.) "All thinking people must recognize and realize to-day that industrialists in the majority have the interest of their employees at heart, and will willingly and gladly confer with them as employees.

"But to have paid agitators from foreign countries endeavour to disturb the peaceful relationship at present existing throughout industrial Canada is something which cannot be condoned."

Neither Mr. Bickell nor Mr. Timmins "expected trouble," but each said they were taking careful stock of the situation and were co-operating with Premier Hepburn and the Ontario Government to meet any emergency which might develop in the Porcupine area.

In the event of shut-downs, 1,300 men would be affected in the McIntyre workings, while 3,000 would be laid off at Hollinger-Consolidated.

Morewood

Mr. Walter Mattice visited for some time with friends in Newington.

UNITED W.M.S. ENTERTAINED BY MRS. A. B. ALLISON

The theme of the worship service of the April meeting of Morewood United W.M.S., which convened at the home of Mrs. A. B. Allison was "Jesus and the Joy of Service," with the president, Mrs. Walter Coulthart, presiding. Mrs. Bezanson was pianist.

Mrs. Ab. Dillabough, Mrs. Adam Carlyle and Mrs. A. W. Reveler assisted in the worship service. Mrs. Bezanson took charge of the programme of which she was the convenor. A report which was very encouraging of the Mission Band was given by the leader, Mrs. Jas. McMillan. The treasurer, Mrs. A. Dillabough, gave her quarterly report, and the Temperance secretary, Mrs. F. Jervis, spoke on "Temperance," deploring the fact that the visible results of all efforts seem meagre.

Miss Alta Loucks and Mrs. Bezanson sang a duet, "Let Their Be Light." Mrs. Allison gave a synopsis of the chapter of the study book relating the experience of missionaries and business men in foreign lands. The minutes and the roll call were given by the secretary, Miss Ellice Smith. The roll call for the May meeting is to be responded to with "some good received from the Presbyterial, May 6th, at South Mountain."

Mrs. F. Jervis and Mrs. A. Carlyle are the delegates appointed to the Presbyterial. The sick calls were registered by the secretary, Mrs. Jacob Swerdfeger. Mrs. A. W. Reveler read a letter from the Christian Stewardship Secretary, Mrs. R. H. Earle, of Carleys, Ont. Mrs. A. B. McConnell will have charge of the programme for the May meeting which will be held at the parsonage.

DUCKS DIVE 125 FEET, TO FEED, FISHERMEN SAY

Just to what depth of water do ducks dive? This is a question Point Traverse fishermen near Kingston, are asking themselves. Last week they lifted their nets and to their surprise found entangled in their nets great numbers of non-edible ducks known as Old Wives, Queens, or Pin Tails. The nets were hauled from a depth of from over 125 feet, and it is apparent that these ducks dive to this depth seeking food from the bottom of the lake, became entagled in the nets, and drowned.

ADVERTISES FOR A WIFE; IS DELUGED WITH REPLIES

Port Rowan, Ont.—George Lossing, 59-year-old district farmhand who advertised for a wife, has received almost 60 replies. Answers to his 50-cent want ad in a Simcoe paper were received from all over Ontario, Quebec, and points in the United States. Some were typewritten, others pencilled or crayoned. His choice, however, has not replied to his written proposal.

15 Months in Reformatory For Robbing Service Station

Cornwall Youth Assaulted Plucky Attendant.—Captured Later by City Police.—Has Long Record.

Cornwall.—Norman Martin, 22, who is alleged to have looted the till of a local service station on April 9th and fought his way free of the tackle of George Meyer, station attendant who caught him in the act, was sentenced by Magistrate P. C. Bergeron, Monday, to fifteen months in the Ontario Reformatory. A concurrent term of three months was imposed for the assault on Meyer. Martin's police record, read in court, showed several previous convictions on theft charges dating back to 1928.

Accordnig to the story told in court Martin slipped into the station and scooped a handful of change from the till, while the attendant was engaged outside. Meyer, hearing the bell of the cash register, was just in time to bring Martin down with a flying tackle, but the bigger and heavier man was able to fight his way clear. Martin was arrested by city police several days later.

LAMB WITH FIVE LEGS.

Lambs — black or white, twins or triplets, are not news at this time of year, but James Kelly, 12th concession, Huntley, had an addition to his flock the other day that is quite out of the ordinary. The lamb has five legs, the fifth coming from the right front knee. It is thriving and is one of the healthiest of the lot.—Almonte Gazette.

"And now, Farmer Jurgins, how do you manage to get on in these hard times?"

Farmer: "Oh, last year we lived upon faith, this year we are living on hope, and next year, if all goes well, we'll be living on charity."

31 Crows in 3 Shots.

Aged Chesterville Man Keeps On With His Relentless War On Pests in the Town.

The wily crow is considered one of the hardest birds to shoot, but he is easy meat for Mr. John C. Fulton, of Chesterville, who boasts of 31 crows in three shots with his 18-guage shot gun. John has been playing the part of the Pied Piper here for years in his fight against rats, crows, starlings and other pests, and so valuable is his work considered the municipal council sees to it he has a special license for carrying firearms.

This particular feat was accomplished at Fisher and Smith's slaughter house north of town, while snow was on the ground, and is corroborated by Wm. Nash, Jr., of town. Noticing a large flock of crows east of town, Mr. Fulton decided they were heading for the slaughter house and hastened there to prepare his trap. The muzzle of the gun was poked through a convenient crack in a wall, and a trench a few inches wide and seven feet long was scooped in the snow in line with the gun. Here scraps were placed and the two men hid to watch for the crows.

Shortly the black thieves flocked in and spied the trench. As they were lined up on either side of the tidbits and beginning to feast, John fired, and took a toll of 11 birds. A second shot killed another 11, and the third charge brought nine for a total of 31.

Despite his advanced years, Mr. Fulton's sight is quite keen, as attested by the fact that up to Monday he had accounted for 279 starlings since January of this year, as well as a number of rats, crows, and sparrows.

So persistent is he in his war on the starlings, Mr. Fulton says he believes the pests are becoming wise to the fact he is one to be feared. He says he has seen others pass near the birds but when he drew near the starlings became alarmed and flew away. Patient watching of the nesting places in the early morning does the trick as the old birds come and go from their broods.

Lady Tweedsmuir

of rhyme and metre made reading of it difficult but the sincereness appealed to Her Excellency.

Closing her address, Lady Tweedsmuir spoke on the closing chapters of the biography of Queen Victoria in which the writer tried to visualize the thoughts running through the mind of the great Queen as she lay dying, and portrayed personages in lines of poetry as they moved through scenes of her life.

Lady Tweedsmuir said it was once stated as she was being introduced that she should be a good person to speak on books as she was of a family of writers in whose veins flowed ink instead of blood. She has had some amusing incidents in speaking about books in various parts of the country and related how at a meeting in the Niagara Peninsula she had stepped out into the night for a breath of cool air when a lady emerged from the darkness begging an autograph in flattering terms. Of course no writer, good or bad, could resist this, so the autograph was granted. The lady was profuse in thanking Her Excellency for the signature and also "for writing Green Mantel which I enjoyed so much," and then disappeared without being made any wiser as to the author of the book.

Another lady asked Her Excellency for a copy of one of her books and on receiving the gift added patronizingly, "and I believe your husband writes also."

Miss Elizabeth McGee thanked Her Excellency for her address and for gracing such a village gathering. The ladies, she said, were proud to belong to an organization aided by such illustrious persons and in which Her Majesty the Queen Mother is so interested. The ladies felt they were really acquainted with "John Buchan" as his books had been so thoroughly read. She hoped Her Excellency had enjoyed her brief visit and assured Lady Tweedsmuir her address would be an inspiration for more reading and a better understanding of poetry.

Little Miss Kathryn Durant, five-year-old granddaughter of the Institute president, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Haldane Durant, presented Her Excellency with a bouquet of pink Premier roses as she made a charming curtsy for which Lady Tweedsmuir rewarded her with a word of thanks and a kiss.

A brief programme of music followed with vocal solos by Miss Marion Casselman who sang "Not Understood" and "Morning," and Mr. Hubert Lloyd contributed "In the Garden of To-morrow" and "Smiling Through." Mrs. P. J. Gilroy accompanied both soloists.

During the luncheon hour music was supplied by an orchestra comprised of Miss Marcia Hughes, pianist; Mrs. Geo. G. Merkley and Miss Marjorie Hanna, violinists; Miss Vivian LaSalle, guitar; Harold Williamson, trumpet, and Jack Fulton, saxophone.

The large staff of waitresses, young ladies from town, were kept busy with the very large crowd of guests, but performed their duties very efficiently. The catering was by the members of the Institute.

Lady Tweedsmuir remained a short time after the luncheon to meet members of the Institute, and then left for Ottawa. Both coming to Chesterville and leaving, the vice-regal car was escorted from and to Winchester by Officer Eugene Rose of the Provincial Highway Police and Constable Garnet R. McLean, of town.

Crites---Fetterly

Miss Jessie Eva Fetterly Wed To John W. Crites, of Aultsville, at Grantley.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Monday last at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joshua G. Fetterly, at Grantley, when their daughter, Jessie Eva, was united in marriage to John Wilbert Crites of Aultsville, Rev. Hector M. Beach, of Finch, officiating.

The bride was becomingly attired in blue flat crêpe with accessories to match, and carried a bouquet of primroses. The couple were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Harold McIntosh of Aultsville, cousins of the bride.

The ceremony was performed under an arch of evergreens luxuriously banked with flowers. The wedding march was played by Mrs. James Cunningham.

The wedding dinner was served to about 35 guests, and amid the best wishes of their many friends, Mr. and Mrs. Crites left for a motor trip to Natural Bridge, Paris, Syracuse and other points in the United States. The bride travelled in a suit of grey tweed with hat and shoes to match.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold compact, to the best man, a gold stick pin, and to the organist a china dish. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Crites will reside in Aultsville.

FLAG POLE ERECTED

The new flag pole was erected on the Community Hall grounds at the week end, and the big Union Jack flown yesterday by the Scouts for the first time on the occasion of the visit of Lady Tweedsmuir, wife of the Governor-General of Canada, to Chesterville. The pole has been erected at the rear of the hall in such a position as to be visible on all streets leading into town.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends and neighbours for their many acts of sympathy and kindness during our recent bereavement, also to express to Rev. R. C. Tait and Rev. G. Extence our appreciation for their services.
—Mrs. Chas. McLean and family, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McLean and family.

Dear Old Soul: "But, doctor, if this is going to make me ten years younger, how do I stand about my old age pension?"

—o—

Mistress: "I don't think you have had enough experience."

Maid: "I've had thirteen places in the last six months."

THURSDAY, APRIL [illegible]ND 1937.

[illegible] FACTS ABOUT [illegible] OF OURS.

[illegible] of the [illegible]r faces [illegible]rs for [illegible]ince as

[illegible]me [illegible]onze. [illegible]e finest a high de-

safety razor has [illegible]ular, but the old-[illegible]ight affair with the [illegible]e has still a large army of [illegible]s. We do not make these [illegible]; all of them are imported. The imports of [illegible] razors of all kinds run to a value of between $200,000 to $275,000 in a year, coming mainly from the United Kingdom.

However, most of the safety razor blades sold in Canada, as well as the safety razors and strops, are made in the Dominion. The output of blades is about 35 million in the year, while we import between five and six million. Over three million of these blades come from the United States, one million and a half from the United Kingdom, over one-quarter of a million each from Spain and Germany, and smaller amounts from Austria, France, Sweden and Switzerland. Our exports, which go to all the leading countries of the world, have a value of over $60,000.

THE WEEKLY NEWSPAPER.

Christian Science Monitor.

TURNING from the city exchanges to the small town press exchanges that come to the editor's desk is like stepping from the slums, full of vice, into an old fashioned garden sweet with lavender and thyme, and the scent of perennial flowers. The pages of the big dailies are full of murder, thievery, immorality and selfishness that the better news is obscured by glaring shatterings of the Decalogue. One puts the papers aside with a feeling of depression and heartache that the world is so full of terrible and unhappy things.

Then picking up the papers that record the happenings of the little towns around us, one gains renewed faith in life. Here are set forth only that which uplifts a community—the activities of the business men, the church items, the happy social gatherings of the people, the marriages, the births and deaths, farmers' items, and all the thousand and one daily occurrences that make up the simple annals of the great common people, who are really the foundation of this broad country of ours.

Scandals are rarely published in the country newspapers, but if it so happens that decency demands it, the uglier details are omitted, or given a kindly touch that is widely different from the unfeeling publicity of the city press. The offenders may be our neighbours or people we have rubbed elbows with all our lives. They are real human beings to their town people, while to the great city dailies they are merely grains of a sort that are ground out hourly in their news mills.

Sometimes people speak lightly of the country newspaper, but it is one of the most potent and uplifting factors in our national existence.

HIGH FINANCING.

Trenton Quinte Sun.

IN commenting editorially on the increase of raffles around Athens, The Athens Reporter has this to say about a raffling scheme: "The ingenious scheme of a London clerk to increase his money by raffling is the oddest we have heard of in some time. His employers were amazed at his high standard of living — he was earning $25 a week and spending at least $75. With no private income he ran an expensive car, had a luxurious flat. The staff manager was asked to call the clerk to his office, when he asked a few tactful questions.

"Look here," he said, "you are earning $25 a week and spending at least $75; how can you do it?"

"Simple," replied the clerk without the slightest embarrassment. There are 300 employees in the building. I raffle my salary among them every week. Each pays 25 cents per ticket and the winner gets my salary. Sometimes I sell 250 tickets, sometimes 350 tickets." We wonder if they fired that clerk or raised his salary.

NEW FAMILY MOVES IN.

Of the many peculiar things which have drifted into Leamington from time to time from parts unknown, the latest, and least wanted, is a family of skunks which it is reported have taken up residence beneath a house occupied by Mrs. Mary Shaw, Talbot street west. Mrs. Shaw brought the matter to the attention of Chief John Lamarsh, who is in somewhat of a quandry as to what action he should take in the matter. He is of the opinion that two courses are open to him, the first to notify the local Sportsmen's Association, while the second, which the chief feels might be more effective would be to cable to Europe for a certain dictator to come and live beside the animals, in which case the chief feels certain they would at once vacate the building.—Leamington Post and News.

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

NOSE BLEEDS.

STOP those repeated nose bleeds before you lose your job. Business to-day demands a great deal if you are to keep your head above the tide and you cannot do this when your health is undermined by frequent hæmorrhages from the nose. Often the cause and remedy are so simple, too. A small blood vessel towards the front of the nose bursts its wall and bleeds for a while. Soon it stops, but before it is completely healed it breaks again, and this may occur a number of times. Your doctor can cure these nose bleeds by sealing off the offending blood vessel with some form of cauterization. It takes but a short time and is usually painless.

When you are faced with the alarming picture of blood pouring from the nose, what are you to do? Well, first of all, do not plug the nose with anything, as this merely causes further injury to the broken wall of the bleeding vessel. Tight pressure with the finger on the outside of the nostril which is bleeding will usually control the hæmorrhage in about five minutes.

All nose bleeds, of course, are not due to bleeding vessels at the front of the nose. Common causes in children are adenoids and foreign bodies, such as beads and button. These usually cannot be discovered except by your doctor, who also can remove the cause and stop the bleeding.

Some adults suffer from high blood pressure which indirectly may be the source of the repeated nose bleeds. Here the blood from the nose is a warning that other trouble is present and the sign should not be neglected. In older people growth in the nose cause irregular bleeding and the sooner the tumour is discovered and treatment begun, the greater is the chance of cure.

So it is very important that all persons suffering from repeated nose bleeds should be examined by their doctor in order to find out the cause and to commence treatment before too much damage is done.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

AMY JOHNSON MOLLISON TO FLY FILMS TO VANCOUVER

London.—Reports that Amy Johnson Mollison plans to fly films of the Coronation, May 12th, from England to Vancouver, B.C., by way of Montreal, were described by her father as "likely correct."

"I understand your husband is something of an after-dinner speaker."

"Yes," answered young Mrs. Torkins. "What Charlie is liable to say after dinner is the reason we can't keep a cook."

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

PENNANT GOES TO BEAVERS.

The Honour Patrol flag has moved over from the Whippoor-wills' corner to the Beavers' where it will lodge for the next six weeks, and perhaps longer. The Beavers wound up the contest with a total of 226½ points, away out in front of their closest rivals, the defending Whips who had 181, and the Wolves 172¼.

Ambulance Route I; Crippled Scout's Map Test.

A map of the route over which he passed in an ambulance was one of the "Pathfinder" tests passed by Scout Frank McCarley, of the Robert Louis Stevenson Scout Troop of the Thistletown, Ont., Sick Children's Hospital, in completing his qualifications as a First Class Scout. Frank, who hails from Fort Erie, Ont., was the fourth member of this Scout troop of handicapped boys to successfully complete the Scout's First Class tests. Fire making and cooking tests are passed at day "camps" held on the grounds of the institution.

Scouts and Coronation Programmes.

As a special Coronation service of loyalty, combined with a good turn, the Boy Scouts of Canada, with their brother Scouts throughout the Empire have taken on the task of selling a special edition of the Coronation Programme throughout the Dominion. The service of loyalty is ensuring that every person possible, in whatever out-of-the-way place, may secure a copy of this loyal souvenir, and the good turn is involved in the fact that the financial returnn from this special edition sale throughout the Empire goes to the "King George V. Jubilee Trust Fund," a fund launched in connection with the Silver Jubilee of the late King George V., and now perpetuated as a Memorial Fund for the advancement of youth organizations of all kinds, and especially to help these organizations equip leaders. A circular of instructions sent out from Dominion Headquarters makes it quite clear that the Scout sale of Coronation Programmes "is not competing with anybody," but is to be a distribution in the nature of a "mopping up sale," to those who otherwise would not be reached, or who otherwise might overlook securing a copy. The programmes are now being distributed by Provincial Scout Headquarters. An order restricting Scout sale to May 12th and later has now been amended to permit Scouts to sell programmes, within the limits above indicated, after April 23rd.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT BRAKING DISTANCES?

THE following statement, taken from the Motor Vehicle Accident Bulletin issued by the Ontario Department of Highways, will be of interest to all drivers of automobiles.

Of 64 drivers who appeared for a hearing before the Accident Recording Division of the Motor Vehicles Branch, with one exception—an automobile mechanic — all drivers failed to appreciate the important fact that brakes do not take hold until after the driver's foot applies them, and that before this takes place there is an interval — the braking reaction time — in which the mind must make a decison which must, in turn, be carried out by the muscles, and that the distance travelled during this interval accounts for a large part of the total stopping distance.

One operator, who claimed twelve years' driving experience, expressed the conviction that from speeds of 20, 30 and 50 miles an hour he could stop in 3, 7 and 30 feet respectively. By actual test it was found that he required 42 feet to stop from a speed of 20 miles an hour. The test car used was a 1937 model, equipped with four-wheel brakes and tires in good condition.

STOLEN AUTO IS STRIPPED.

Ottawa and district police are searching for the year's meanest thief. He stole an automobile Saturday night and left it on a country road, stripped of every movable part, including wheels, tires, battery, lights, rumble seat, distributor, gear shift, cushions and top.

The owner had just made his final payment on the machine and it was not insured, as he was negotiating to trade it in on another. In order to tow the car off the road, police had to borrow wheels off a car owned by a nearby farmer.

CREAM PIES.

DURING the time when fresh fruits for pies and desserts are unobtainable, there are many tasty cream fillings to take their place. I have listed a few of these for you to try out and keep your family satisfied on this question.

COCOANUT CREAM PIE.

2 cups hot milk
3 tablespoons cornstarch
½ teaspoon salt
1-3 cup sugar
¼ cup cold milk
2 eggs
2 teaspoons butter
¾ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup cocoanut

Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt with cold milk. Add gradually to hot milk; stir and cook over boiling water until thick; cover and cook until there is no taste of raw starch. Add yolks of eggs, well beaten, cook three minutes longer. Remove from heat, add butter, vanilla and cocoanut; pour into a baked shell. Top with a meringue made from the egg whites; return to slow oven to brown the meringue.

BUTTERSCOTCH PIE.

4 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
3 egg yolks
3 teaspoons caramel

Cream the butter; add cornstarch, salt and sugar mixed. Add hot milk slowly; place over hot water; stir and cook until thick and there is no taste of raw starch. Stir occasionally. Add egg yolks and cook until thick. Remove from heat, add caramel. Pour into a baked pie shell. Just before serving, top the pie with sweetened whipped cream.

TASTY RAISIN PIE.

1 cup boiling water
2 cups seedless raisins
½ cup brown sugar
1-3 cup corn syrup
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1-3 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind

Add boiling water to raisins and bring to the boil; simmer gently for five minutes. Add corn syrup. Mix brown sugar and cornstarch together thoroughly. Stir in hot mixture slowly to prevent lumping. Return to heat and stir until the filling thickens and starch is cooked. Remove from heat and add salt. Stir in butter, lemon juice and rind. Cool slightly. Turn into an unbaked crust. Adjust upper crust and bake in a hot oven until pastry is cooked.

CHOCOLATE CUSTARD PIE.

2 egg yolks
1 egg
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons cocoa
1½ cups hot milk
1-3 teaspoon vanilla

Beat egg yolks and the whole egg, add sugar, salt and cocoa. Add hot milk gradually; strain, cool and add vanilla. Pour into a pastry lined pie tin. Begin cooking in a hot oven which will cook the pastry, then reduce the heat to a low temperature for the custard. Bake until the custard is firm.

A meringue made from the egg whites may be spread on top of the pie and then browned in a slow oven.

RHUBARB JAM.

4 cups finely cut rhubarb
7½ cups sugar
¾ cup water
1 bottle certo (commercial pectin)

Add sugar to the rhubarb and water. Boil briskly for three minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from the heat; add certo and seal at once in sterilized jars.

CARAMEL FLAVOURING.

Make a quantity of caramel flavouring at one time and keep it on hand. It will be much handier than to make it in small amounts every time you use it.

1 cup sugar
1 cup boiling water

Melt sugar in a frying pan and brown slightly. Stir constantly during melting to prevent burning. When all is melted, add boiling water very slowly, almost drop by drop at first, stirring vigourously the while. When all the water has been added, cook until the consistency of syrup.

Care must be taken to prevent sugar from becoming too brown before the addition of water as if this happens, the caramel will have a bitter, disagreeable flavour.

Custards usually separate or curdle because they are cooked at too high a temperature or for too long a period. Milk that is a little sour will also cause a custard to curdle.

* * * *

To prevent curdling of custards, regulate time and temperature and cook over or surrounded by water kept at a temperature slightly below boiling point.

* * * *

If a custard curdles, remove immediately from the heat. Cool quickly by placing in a pan of cold water and beat vigourously with a dover beater to recombine the separated particles.

* * * *

To test a firm custard, insert the blade of a knife in the centre. If the blade comes out clean the custard is well done.

* * * *

To test a soft custard, insert a silver spoon and if the mixture coats the spoon it is done.

The Getchell Record

THE GETCHELLS were having what Rodney called a tug-of-war discussion. Nineteen-year-old Sue might have protested against the unfairness with which they had taken sides. She was alone on the affirmative; her mother, her father and her brother Rodney were on the negative, and all were arguing strenuously.

It was father that showed the first sign of capitulating: "I think it's a poor plan of course, but if Sue is determined—" he began a bit doubtfully.

"She isn't determined; she can't be," interrupted Rodney. "She only thinks she is! And since the Getchells have the name of sticking to a thing once they begin, let's keep it! Sue will make a fizzle of this job if she takes it. You just see if she doesn't!"

"Don't you worry about my dropping a thing because it's too hard!" Sue suddenly straightened in her chair, twisted to the right, and with crimson cheeks looked at her brother squarely. "I won a scholarship at the institute, and I won one at college ten days ago, didn't I? If I were afraid of hard work, both of those scholarships would have gone to the others. I may not be brilliant, but I know how to work!"

"But, Sue."—her mother's tone was plaintive,—"this is altogether different. If there were the slightest need of your taking the position at Ormand's, we would never utter a single protest. What makes you so stubbon?

"Oh, mother, have we got to go over that again? If you would only try to see my side. Of the six girls in our wing of the dormitory, Betty Haines and Lou Albert have to work their way through college. At the thought of having to give up every minute of their summer vacation to work they decided to give up the course. The rest of us protested; and Lou said we four others ought to take a position and find out what working your way really meant. She said that if we four would keep a job through the summer. she and Betty would promise to finish the course.

"Hester Morton declared that we'd do it. Of course the rest of us agreed. Last week Hester went to Northeast Harbour as a waitress; nothing else offered. Two days ago Minnie Masters went to the beach with the Armstrongs as governess to the two younger girls. Viola Watson is doing subscription work for a magazine agency. And I have just got my place at Ormand's general merchandise store to begin to-morrow morning. I shall have to report, now that I have accepted the position, shan't I, father?" Sue's glance was beseeching.

"There's nothin else for you to do," said her father. Then he looked at her mother and Rodney. "We might as well make it as easy for her as we can. She is going to find it hard enough at the store. Ormand makes his salesgirl earn her money. He has had four different ones since the beginning of the year."

"Well, I am going to say one thing." Rodney stretched to the dignity of his full height. "If you begin, you want to stick it out for the whole nine weeks. Try to remember that there is such a thing as the Getchell—"

"That will do, Rodney!" Father's tone was quiet, but it carried authority. He picked up the evening paper to signify that the discussion was at an end.

Sue took the opportunity to slip away. Upstairs in her dainty blue-and-silver room she reread the letter she had received that morning from Hester Morton. She was heartily glad that her mother had not asked to see it. "Whatever kind of work you get, don't be a waitress!" wrote Hester. "The seven days that I have been here have been dreadful. Yet I shall be glad all my life for the experience. By the end of August I shall be able to appreciate an education and the price that Lou and Betty are paying for theirs. Besides, I shall understand just what our maids have to struggle with right in my own home."

"If Hester can stand that, I guess that I shan't have much to complain of at Ormand's," murmured Sue with an encouraged little nod at her reflection in the mirror. "They all say that Mr. Ormand is just, even if he is irritable and exacting. Rodney needn't fear for the Getchell record."

The next morning Sue was waiting at the store when Mr. Ormand parked his car and stepped briskly out. He returned her bright good morning with a curt little nod and, unlocking the door, stalked silently in. Sue followed meekly, wondering why her knees seemed suddenly incapable of supporting her slim weight.

The hour that followed was a dizzying whirl of receiving orders, dusting counters, and trying to memorize the price tags and the exact position of goods. Something had evidently upset Mr. Ormand before his arrival, and the girl's nerves were on edge long before a customer paused at her counter and she sold her first order of goods.

Between asking Mr. Ormond for needed information, searching out the goods and waiting on customers the forenoon wore away. At one o'clock Sue was too tired to walk even the short distance home. She crossed to the lunch room on the opposite side of the street and slowly sipped a glass of milk while she rested her weary back and aching feet.

Fortunately the girl's memory was good. Mr. Ormand never had to tell her the same thing twice. Sue was quick and obliging as well as attractive, and her being in the store drew a number of new customers there. It looked as if her experiment were going to be a success; that is, until the middle of the fourth week when Mr. Ormand made a bad bargain on a large lot of ginghams. To dispose of the goods he decided to mark them to sell below cost. On the morning of the sale, Sue awoke with a nervous headache. Thoughts of Mr. Ormand's irascibility over the loss in money added to her nervousness, and everything went wrong. For the first time since beginning work she arrived at the store a little late.

"I should have thought you would have planned to be on time this morning if you never were again!" said Mr. Ormand sharply, glancing up from the ginghams that he was piling on the counter near the door. "Take every bolt of gingham from the shelf down there by the window and bring them up here with this lot!"

She pulled off her hat and reached for the ginghams. As she took down a bolt of black-and-white-checked she paused and stared at it uncertainly. Why that was the fifty-nine cent quality, and Mr. Ormand had told her to put it with the bargain lot! A customer entered before Sue could call her employer's attention to the mistake. She pushed the bolt back on the shelf and carried the sale lot forward. By that time customers were following one another into the store with a regularity that kept both Mr. Ormand and Sue working at top speed to fill the orders. There was not a second in which Sue could mention the mistake that she had discovered. And then while the floor space around the bargain counter was crowded a woman edged her way up to Mr. Ormand and asked for black-and-white in quarter-inch checks.

"We have a bolt of that style in this quality, I'm sure we have," he said, throwing over a huge pile of ginghams with nervous speed. Finally, he glanced the length of the store and spied the bolt that Sue had returned to the shelf that he had ordered cleared. "I thought I told you to bring that black-and-white gingham over here," he said. "Be good enough to get it now, and don't waste any time!"

Sue's cheeks flamed; she felt the glances of the customers upon her, some curious, some pitying. She swallowed a choking lump of pride that swelled in her throat and answered quietly: "That bolt of gingham doesn't belong in this lot—"

"It belongs wherever I put it," he interrupted her. "Show it to Mrs. Myers immediately!" He waved his hand imperatively.

With her head high and her eyes scintillating, Sue turned and walked down the store. To save the girl further embarrassment, Mrs. Myers followed. She pulled the goods from the shelf and place them on the counter in front of her customer.

Mrs. Myers reached out and took a fold of the cloth between her fingers. "Only nineteen cents a yard?" she asked scarcely above a whisper. "What a bargain!"

"It ought to be a bargain; it is the regular fifty-nine-cent quality." The words seemed to tremble on the tip of Sue's tongue, but the memory of the humiliation to which she had been subjected stifled them. Choking back her emotion, she asked in as quiet a tone as she could command: "How many yards did you want?"

"Why, my dear, I think I'll take the whole bolt. I can use it for presents and, oh, lots of things! I may never get another such a bargain. How many yards are there?"

Sue looked at the tag. "Fifty. That will be nine dollars and fifty cents."

"How fortunate I brought a ten with me!" Mrs. Myers was obviously much pleased with her bargain. "You get it ready and I'll send the chauffeur for it." She passed Sue a bill, and, receiving back fifty cents in change, went out of the side door, where her chauffeur was waiting. A few minutes later the man came in and carried the bulky parcel out to the waiting car.

There was not another call for black-an-white-checked gingham until late in the afternoon. Then one of Mrs Myers' friends came in to get a duplicate of the bargain."

"But this isn't the same quality you sold Mrs. Myers for nineteen cents a yard," the woman objected as Mr. Ormand showed her a piece of goods. "This ordinarily would not be more than twenty-five cents a yard, and hers is exactly the same quality that you have been selling for fifty-nine."

"The quality of the entire lot is the same." explained Mr. Ormand. "If Mrs. Myers purchased a better quality than we have here on this counter, she paid the regular price. You may be sure of that."

The discussion was plainly audible to Sue, who was measuring fifteen yards of glaring plaid. She caught her lip between her teeth. If he only wouldn't appeal to her before the store full of customers! But her hope fled instantly at the woman's next words.

"Oh, no, Mrs. Myers didn't! She paid just nineteen cents a yard, and she bought fifty yards. Ask your salesgirl there! She waited on her."

There was no use of Sue's pretending that she did not hear Mr. Ormand's stern question. She folded the gingham and replied in an unsteady voice: "Mrs. Myers purchased the bolt of black-and-white quarter-inch check that I had left on the sheif and that you told me to show to her."

"Out of this stock?" Mr. Ormond frowned and waited for Sue's reply.

"No, it was the fifty-nine-cent quality. I found the mistake this morning and put the cloth back on the shelf." Sue's head went up, and her voice became steadier. "I tried to explain, but you refused to listen. Mrs. Myers thought you knew the quality I was showing you, but I was sure that you didn't."

There was a breathless silence for a moment; then Mr. Ormand spoke with quiet deliberation: "And because I was hurried and spoke impatiently you sold the gingham at a loss of twenty dollars. It looks as if you had evened matters up."

He turned from Sue to the customer. "I am sorry not to be able to give you so good a bargain as Mrs. Myers got, but in the circumstances you will understand why I cannot do it. The bolts of gingham must have got mixed yesterday when I changed the goods about. Yes, I remember now. If you will look on that shelf two counters down," he said to Sue without his usual crispness, "you will find the black-and-white that belongs to this grade. It is a rare bargain at nineteen cents."

During the rest of the afternoon as Sue rushed from one end of the store to the other one thing was uppermost in her thoughts: she had failed dismally in keeping the Getchell record up to its high mark! Of course Mr. Ormond would dismiss her that night. The wonder was that he had not done so in front of the customers two hours before. And it was only the fourth week! Well, she couldn't remain if he wouldn't have her. But, oh, dear, she was the only one of the four girls to make a failure of the summer! And she had made it because she was too angry to insist on Mr. Ormand's listening to her explanation. What would Rodney say? And father?

If there were only some way to make amends! Sue thought of and rejected a dozen different plans. Then as six o'clock came and the crowd began to thin out she made a swift resolve. Giving her courage no time to cool, she walked across the store to where Mr. Ormand was sitting at his desk. Her lips and cheeks were white, but she kept her voice under control as she began abruptly: "Mr. Ormand, you are going to tell me that my work here finishes to-night, I suppose. You are justified in doing so, but I want to say this before you discharge me. I was wholly wrong in selling the goods to Mrs. Myers when I knew you had made a mistake in placing the gingham there. I am more sorry than I can say, and am quite willing to repay the twenty dollars' loss out of my wages. I'd like you to give me another trial. It will mean more than you know."

Then, without having intended doing anything of the kind, she tumbled out the story of the four girls' taking positions just to encourage two others to stay at college and of her brother's fear that she would find the work too hard and would fail to stick to it with the usual Getchell's tenacity. "I should have insisted on your listening to what I had to say about the gingham's being left on the shelf," she added, "or else I should have explained the whole matter to Mrs. Myers. She would have passed on the explanation to you In not doing so I failed the Getchells every bit as much as I failed you."

"You did not fail me!" exclaimed Mr. Ormand, bringing his clenched fist down on the desk with a resounding bang. "You taught me the most valuable lesson I ever learned. I have never discharged a salesgirl when I was the one in fault. It is worth every penny of twenty dollars if I have learned to control that beastly temper of mine, and I think I have. Go home and tell your brother that if he has one fourth the persistence of his sister, the record of the Getchells is due for a boom." He paused and looked at her quizzically. Then, "And you, young lady, you see that you are here on time to-morrow morning!"

Rex Battle, Famous Musician

One of Canada's best known musicians is seen here at Canada's leading hotel, the Royal York, in downtown Toronto. He is Rex Battle, leader of the Royal York Hotel concert orchestra, which plays daily at the hotel and is heard on regular coast-to-coast radio broadcasts. The picture of Mr. Battle is from a portrait recently done by Allan Barr, and shows the maestro concentrating on a difficult piano passage. At the Royal York Hotel, which is the largest hostelry in the British Empire, Rex Battle's orchestra is a favorite among the guests, who gather in large numbers at his concerts or tune him in on the individual radios in bedrooms throughout the hotel. The orchestra has spread its fame by playing for conventions that gather at the hotel from all over the continent. The Royal York's fine facilities for this type of hotel trade attracted 75 conventions, totalling 6,000 delegates, up to the middle of March, while 45 others are scheduled to bring 11,000 delegates to the hotel from all over the country later in the year.

SUGGESTS DIRE PENALTY FOR DEFECTIVE CAR BRAKES

Ottawa.—Report of the City Solicitor to council that the corporation has no authoritiy to establish speed limits in the city caused Alderman McCann to give notice that he would move at the next meeting for passage by a bylaw to provide that vehicles found with defective brakes be barred from the use of city streets for a period of six months.

Several other aldermen indicated their approval of Aldeman McCann's stand and Alderman McDonald suggested that three months' imprisonment of the driver in addition be imposed.

Mayor Lewis reminded council he would like to see the motion include a penalty for any person, charged with a traffic offence, approaching members of council to have the charge quashed.

"Pretty? Say, when she gets on a street car the advertising is a total loss."

The teacher had been giving a lesson on modern inventions to his class.

" Can any of you boys," he said, "tell me of anything of importance which did not exist fifty years ago?"

"Me," exclaimed one of them.

Father: "Where's that young man who was calling on you?"

Daughter: "Oh, he left in a huff."

Father: "A huff? A huff? They are getting so many new cars on the market now a fellow simply can't keep track of them."

On her way to bed the maid looked into her mistress' room.

"The master's locked up for the night, ma'am," she said.

Her mistress looked puzzled.

"Really, Jane," she said, "he must have been very quiet. I didn't even hear him come in."

"He hasn't, ma'am," exclaimed Jane. "The police station have just 'phoned."
