D. D. G. M. VISITS HENDERSON LODGE

SPLENDID GATHERING OF MASONS ON FRIDAY NIGHT LAST

Masons from Ottawa, Russell, Chesterville, Morrisburg, South Mountain, Osgoode, Kemptville, Iroquois and Winchester assembled in large numbers at the local Masonic Hall on Friday evening last The occasion was the official visit of Rt. Wor. Bro. H. B. Tindall, of Morrisburg, District Deputy Grand Master of Eastern District No. 21, to Henderson Lodge No. 383, A. F. & A. M. A unique honour was conferred upon the lodge on this occasion when it was found that eight grand lodge officials were present at the gathering.

The regular lodge proceedings were presided over by the local Master, Wor. Bro. Leonard Porteous, who was assisted by Wor. Bro. Harry Flora, P. M., and Rt. Wor. Bro. Aaron Sweet, P.D.D.G.M. At the conclusion of the lodge session a most enjoyable social hour was held in the lodge rooms. Refreshments were served by a committee under the convenorship of Bro. H. G. Graham, after which a program of impromptu speeches and music was presented.. Wor. Bro. Leonard Porteous acted as chairman.

The Masonic Quartette made its inaugural appearance and rendered several numbers which were heartily received. Those comprising the quartette were Wor. Bros. Chester Timmins, J. D. Stewart and W. A. Rowat and Bro. W. H. Agnew.

The chairman then called upon Rt. Wor. Bro. H. B. Tindall, who had previously been introduced to the gathering by Rt. Wor. Bro. Aaron Sweet. The speaker opened his remarks by expessing his pleasure at being present and continued by discussing certain matters pertaining to Grand Lodge, which were intensely interesting to members of the craft.

Other speakers who brought greetings from sister lodges through the medium of short addresses included: Rt. Wor. Bro. Col. D. C. Marriott, D.D.G.M. of Ottawa district; Rt. Wor. Bro. Karl B. Conger, P.D.D.G.M., of Civil Service Lodge, No. 148, Ottawa; Rt. Wor. Bro. J. H. Putman, P.D.D.G.M., of Doric Lodge, No. 58, Ottawa; Rt. Wor. Bro. J. A. Ross, P.D.D.G.M., of Builders' Lodge, No. 177, of Ottawa; Rt. Wor. Bro. W. J. Scobie, P.D.D.G.M., of Corinthian Lodge, No. 476, North Gower; Rt. Wor. Bro. W. C. Davy, P.D.D.G.M., of Excelsior Lodge, No. 142, Morrisburg; Wor. Bros. Geo. H. Challies and Wm. Weegar, of Morrisburg; Wor. Bro. Roy Fetterly, Chesterville; Wor. Bro. C. H. Stewart, Russell, and Rt. Wor. Bro. Aaron Sweet, P.D.D. G.M. and Bro. G. O. Davies, of Winchester.

Rt. Wor. Bro. J. H. Putman provided one of the highlights of the evening, when he gave a very vivid description of his visits to Masonic Lodges in London and Edinborough. His remarks were listened to with marked interest and were thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

Adding much to the event, the address of Rt. Wor. Bro. Col. Marriott was well received. His thoughts on the background and traditions of Masonry were timely and splendidly portrayed.

The delightful gathering was brought to a close with a second number by the singing of the National Anthem.

Lorne Cassidy Fatally Burned

A tragic accident occurred on Sunday morning last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cassidy, three miles east of Winchester, when their 8-year-old son, Lorne, was so terribly burned about the body that he succumbed to his injuries a few hours later.

The unfortunate boy was endeavouring to build a fire in the kitchen stove, while his parents were employed in the back yard. Undoubtedly having seen others pour coal oil upon the wood in order to make it burn more quickly, he procured the can and proceeded to spray the fresh material liberally with oil. Hot coals in the bottom of the stove caused it to ignite suddenly. The flames followed the stream of oil to the can which exploded in the little lad's arms, showering him with its burning contents.

Screaming in agony and tearing at his flaming clothting, the boy dashed from the house, while his father rushed to his aid. After ripping the clothes practically from his son's body, the flames were extinguished.

Dr. J. J. McKendry, of Winchester, was hastily summoned and rendered medical aid to the young victim. His condition was considered so grave, that his removal to a hospital was impossible. Most of the boy's body was blackened with the burns which were intensified by the fact that his clothing had been saturated by coal oil. Only the calves of his legs and his feet escaped the flames. He passed away about six o'clock on Monday morning.

In the kitchen at the time of the accident were his brother and sister, Elizabeth and Earl, 5-year-old twins, while an older sister, Wilda, 17, was upstairs. On hearing the explosion and the cries of her brother, she dashed to the kitchen, which was also enveloped in flames, and rescued her brother and sister. She then returned to the house and extinguished the fire, which had not gained much headway, although nearly every object in the room was scorched from the heat. She escaped injury.

The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon from the residence. Rev. Mr. Tate, of Chesterville, conducted the service. Interment was made at Maple Ridge Cemetery.

Besides his parents, the deceased is survived by three sisters, Wilda, Hilda and Elizabeth, and three brothers, John, James and Earl, all at home.

NOTED SINGERS TO VISIT WINCHESTER

WILL PRESENT PROGRAM IN THE UNITED CHURCH AUDITORIUM ON NOVEMBER 14th.

At the United Church Official Board meeting held on Monday evening plans were made for a visit of the famous Virginia Jubilee Singers on Wednesday evening, November 14th. There are eight members in the company and Winchester for the first time in many years will have an opportunity of hearing the religious music of the colored race in a whole evening's program. The first part of the programme will include all the better known spirituals sung as only negro folk can render them. The second part will depict a gathering of the negro fieldhands for a Camp Meeting when many of the unusual hymns and tunes of the colored folk will be heard. The following tributes and recommendations have been received by the Board: "The program was par-excellence—a veritable treat. They are highly cultured College Graduates. The best ever heard here. We must have them again."—Rev. D. H. Cameron, Presbyterian Church, Strathroy. "Their concert was superb from beginning to end. I have great pleasure in recommending these singers to any of our churches."—Rev. H. W. Avison, M.A., B.D., High Park United Church, Toronto.

The singers will appear in the United Church Auditorium and a strong committee was appointed to make arrangements for a crowded house. Winchester would do well to reserve the date, November 14th, 1934.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALLERS SCORE VICTORY

Winchester High School football squad demonstrated their superiority over the Chesterville High team on Saturday afternoon last, when they pounded their way through to a 15-5 victory in the initial game of the Dundas County League. Working smoothly and showing the results of good coaching, the locals set about subduing their opposition in handy fashion.

Shortly after the opening whistle, Weir took the ball on an extended end run and galloped 25 yards for a touchdows. The convert was made when Dixon smeared Boyd's forward behind behind Chesterville's touch-line. Winchester, 6; Chesterville, 0.

Swinging into action once more, the locals drove long punts from the toe of Nairn Boyd, deep into the Chesterville territory. The locals had a decided edge in the play and before half time had nailed three more points on rouges, to bring the score to 9-0.

Disaster nearly overtook the Purple and Gold team when Boyd fumbled a long punt on his own 10 yard line. The ball dribbled behind the touchline where Chesterville recovered for a touch. It was unconverted. Winchester, 9; Chesterville, 5. Minutes later, Winchester gained possession on Chesterville's 20-yard line and a victory was assured when Weir crashed through the opposing line for twenty yards and a second touch, Boyd making the convert. Final score, Winchester, 15; Chesterville, 5.

The teams were as follows:

Winchester—Flying wing, Elliott; halves, L. Dixon, Boyd and W. Summers; quarter, Weir; snap, Coons; insides, G. Holmes and Quart; middles, Ball and D. Dixon; outsides, Rowat and Wilson; subs. Dawley, Stewart, Ault, Cass, Peterson and E Holmes.

Chesterville—Flying wing, Harper; halves, Lloyd, Alfred and Fulton; quarter, Hanna; snap, Thompson; insides, McMillan and Casselman; middles, D. Kearney and M. Kearney; outsides, Marcellus and Hummell; subs., Munro, Campbell, Cross, Coyne and Williamson.

Referee: Wm. Servage, Winchester; umpire, A. Laforet, Chesterville; head linesman, E. J. Spinks, Winchester.

PERSONALITIES OF LOCAL INTEREST

WILLIAM DICKSON

When a man reaches the age of nearly four score years, is actively engaged about his business every day, walks with as sprightly a step as most men in their fifties, is interested not only in local affairs, but in the current topics of the day, you know pretty well the background of that man. His has been a life of clean and wholesome living, a life lived much in the open, and a mind active and alert, and enough physical exercise to keep the body in a healthy condition.

Mr. William Dickson, whose comfortable home and extensive gardens or farm is situated at the north end of Gladstone Street, was born in Denny, Scotland, in 1857, and came to Canada, an infant in arms, the same year, with his mother and two brothers, in a sailing vessel. In these modern times, when the Atlantic is crossed in a few days on a steamship that affords more luxurious means than most homes, that voyage of Mrs. Dickson and her three sons reads almost like ancient history. It took the ship three weeks to make the voyage, and one can well imagine the courage of that mother. They settled in Lancaster Township, Glengarry county, and early in life Mr. Dickson showed a special interest in bees and flowers, and has made a specialty of keeping bees for over fifty years. In 1881 he married Margaret Munroe, of Maxville, Glengarry County, and to them were born five girls, three of whom are living. In 1888 Mr Dickson moved to Winchester and here he has remained ever since, a useful, enterprising, and successful citizen, whose activities as a member of the Municipal Council for four years, an active and very valuable member of the Horticultural Society since it was organized and for many years a director of the Agricultural Society, have been a great asset to the community. In religion, Mr. Dickson is a Presbyterian and has been an elder of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Winchester, for nineteen years. He was also for many years active in the work of the Sunday School, and its superintendent for nine years. In every respect his life has been consistent with his profession. For the past ten or more years he has devoted his time almost entirely to the cultivation of garden vegetables and flowers, making a specialty of gladioli, dahlias, and Roses, and his comfortable home is completely surrounded in summer by a mass of blooms of almost every description. Everything about his place shows special care and attention, and Mr. Dickson is never too busy to extend visitors a hearty welcome and show them about his place. In fact it may be said that Mr. Dickson's flowers are one of the attractions in Winchester, and while the growing of flowers, vegetables, fruits and the keeping of bees may be said to be his business, it is also his hobby, and the results of his labor show that he is an expert as well as an authority on the subjects mentioned.

He is the type of citizen who can always be depended upon when asked to help in any public enterprise, and his good judgement has been found of great assistance in many a committee meeting. The Winchester Press is pleased to pay this tribute to one of its best citizens.

INSTITUTE KARNIVAL

One of the pleasing social events of this season was held in the Town Hall, Monday afternoon and evening. It was sponsored by the Women's Institute under the leadership of their president, Mrs. J. E. Singleton.

Attractive booths were seen in every nook. These were in charge of the following ladies: "Towels—Mesdames McFarlane, H. Nesbitt and R. Crowder; Candy—Mesdames W. J. Stewart, E. Fennell, A. Johnston; Aprons—Mesdames N. Hutt and J. Utman; Fortune-telling—Mrs. J. Stewart; Famous Paintings—Mrs. D. Bruce; Fish-pond—Mesdames Kellogg, Kinkaid, H. Singleton and Walter Barkley. A cafeteria with up to date service was in charge of Mesdames Scott, Wilson, Worthen, Curtis, Ellis and J. Nesbitt. Entertaining music was furnished by three young lads, Dixon Hutt, Wilfred Lannin and David Melvin. Cards were enjoyed by many during the evening. A very interesting guessing contest as to how much money of various denominations was contained in a bottle, was won by Mrs. Austin McFarlane.

A children's door-prize of a pen and pencil set was captured by Earl Empey, the winner of the second prize, a pencil, being Velma Johnston. Mrs. Harry Flora held the lucky ticket of the adult door prize which was a boudoir lamp.

This venture of the Institute to make some money for community work was quite successful and the social time spent by those present was very enjoyable.

Old Home Association Winds Up Business

DOOR TO DOOR CANVASSING

Thousands of citizens of Canada have lost millions of dollars as the result of high pressure salesmen going from door to door soliciting the unsuspecting public to invest their money in all sorts of wild cat schemes, promising wonderful profits, collecting the money and slipping away to other green pastures. In an Act passed by the Bennett government, there is a clause in the Dominion Companies Act making it illegal for a stock salesman to go from door to door canvassing, and the government of the day deserves great credit for the action taken. In 1923, when the King Government was in power, thousands of hard working citizens lost vast sums of money, but not a step did the then Premier, Mr. King, take to protect the people. Mr. Bennett was only in power a short time when he had the Act passed, with the result that the people are now protected from the unscrupulous stock salesman. A short time ago two bright looking, well dressed young men, and driving a car in the millionaire's class, struck Perth, and began a canvass of factories and home. In one factory they induced an employee to buy stock in a gold mine, but the owner of the factory became aware what had been done, went to the bank and stopped payment of the cheque tendered in exchange for the stock. Outside the door of the bank were the two bright young men awaiting the opening of the doors, all set on cashing the little piece of paper, but what was their surprise when the irate proprietor bid them good morning, enquired how they were progressing and finally gave them notice that they had just ten minutes to get out of town or he would see what effect the law of the land would have on them. They got, and did not stand on the ceremony of their going. Later it was found that the mine was a dud. The dressing down the proprietor gave these two salesment would make good advertising matter for the Bennett Act and at the same time go a long way to put the fear of the law in the hearts of the fly-by-night stock super-salesmen. This Act is only one of the many good ones passed by the Bennett Government since 1930.—Perth Expositor.

ANNUAL BOYS' CONFERENCE HELD

The annual Boys' Conference of the Dundas-Grenville Presbytery was held at Hallville on Friday, Saturday and Sunday last, with a large number of boys present from all over the Presbytery. The theme of the conference was "Living Adventurously Today."

The leaders of the gathering were: Rev. D. I. Forsythe, B. A., B. D., of Montreal; Don. Toppin, Spencerville; Ray Gilder, Iroquois; Mervin Peters, Spencerville, assisted by all the ministers of the Presbytery.

Following the registration and billetting on Friday evening, the opening session took place. The service of worship was led by the Hallville boys and was very impressive. The election of officers then took place as follows: Grand Practor, Roy Gelder, Iroquois; deputy practor Jack Johnston, South Mountain; Grand Scriptor, Roy Merkley, Iroquois; Grand Comptor, Lloyd Wornell, Spencerville.

When the new officers had been installed and the committees appointed, the messages of welcome were heard, at the close of which, Rev. Mr. Forsythe, of Montreal, delivered the opening challenge. He pointed out the way in which the boys of today could strive towards better citizenship and become real influences for good in the town and community.

On Saturday morning a leaders' prayer meeting and worship service was conducted, after which the organization of discussion groups took place. Lively debates followed with the subjects and leaders being: "Our Theme and Our Intellects," Rev. K. Woodwark; "Our Theme and the Physical Side of Life," Rev. H. L. Morrison; "Our Theme and Social Life," Rev. W. R. Johnston; "Our Theme and the Spiritual Life," Rev. R. C. Tait.

The afternoon session was introduced by some wholehearted singing on the part of the boys, led by Rev. T. Knowles. Discussion groups then formed on the following subjects: "Our Theme and the Home," Rev. W. P. Wornell; "Our Theme and the School," Rev. H. M. Beach; "Our Theme and the Church," Rev. Charles Adey; "Our Theme and the Community," Rev. E. C. Lacey.

At the conclusion, an open forum was conducted at which the findings of the various groups were analysed and discussed further. This ended with a real recreational period led by Rev. D. Morrison, in which everyone entered most heartily.

At 6 p. m. the ladies of Hallville were hostesses at a splendid banquet to which the boys did ample justice and which closed the sessions of the day.

On Sunday morning the boys attended St. Andrew's Church with their hostesses and were treated to a splendid address by Rev. Mr. Forsythe. In the afternoon, Rev. D. Morrison brought the closing message of the conference, leaving many wholesome thoughts in the minds of the boys as they departed for their homes. It was a splendid conference and one which will bear fruit in future days, for those boys in attendance entered with spirit into the various activities of the three days and returned to their homes refreshed and invigorated in mind and body.

Splendid Meeting At Pleasant Valley

SECTIONAL MEETING DUNDAS-GRENVILLE PRESBYTERIAL

On Tuesday, October 11th, the Sectional Meeting was held in the Pleasant Valley church. The morning session opened at 9.30 a.m. with a hymn "Jesus Shall Reign," followed by prayer by the president, Mrs. Patterson. The Vancamp auxiliary then took charge of the devotions An address of welcome was given by Mrs. Earl Gilmer. Mrs. H. McQuaigg replied in a few well chosen words. Hymn "Take My Life And Let It Be," was then sung, followed by the roll call of auxiliaries, circles and bands. A member from each auxiliary in a few words told of how their auxiliary had been carried on, in this way a good many took home with them some new thoughts Mrs. Collison of Brinston said they had "A Group System" which worked out very well. First, the group leaders were appointed, then each group leader chose a lady from the congregation. This gets more of the ladies interested. Each group is then responsible for one meeting at the end of the year, and the leader who has the largest attendance is served a banquet

Two auxiliaries, Hulbert and Brinston, met their allocation last year. A duet, "Pilot Me, O Gracious Saviour," was delightfully rendered by Mrs. T. J. Keyes and Mrs. E. Brown, of Inkerman.

The presbyterial president, Mrs. A. B. Allison, Morewood, addressed the meeting ,speaking from Corinthians and pointed out that Christianity is more than being good, that it was "Fellowship with Jesus Christ." Mrs. Morrison, of Hallville, took the closing moments. She asked "Are we living humble, graceful, loving lives in our homes? Does it radiate in our lives?" If Christ and His Word are dwelling in our life we never fail for words.. The Word of God will not return void. Each have one life, are we making the most of it? Let us search our hearts. Closing with: Take time to be holy; The world rushes on; Spend much time in secret; With Jesus alone; By looking to Jesus; Like Him thou shalt be; Thy friends in His conduct His likeness shall see.

Dinner was served by the ladies of Pleasant Valley and Hainesville churches.

The afternoon session opened with hymn "All Praise to our Redeeming Lord" Reid's Mills auxiliary took the devotions.

The Rev. Mr. Sommerville of Heckston brought greetings from his church. He congratulated the ladies on having such a good attendance and encouraged them on their splendid work that was being done.

Mrs. J. I. Murdock, vice president of the Dominion Board, used a chart showing how the Mission Bands, Circles, C. G. I. T. Groups were joined up with the W. M. S. and the the Kingdom of God Movement has to come through us.

There are eleven auxiliaries in Mountain township, one lady from each auxiliary had a letter from the word "Stewardship," and gave a three minute talk on as follows: Service—Iroquois; Talent—Reid's Mills; Energy—Inkerman Willingness—Brinston; Ability—South Mountain; Righteousness—Hulbert; Days—Mountain; Silver—Hainesville; Humility-Hallville; Influence—Vancamp, Prayer—Pleasant Valley.

Mrs. Nash, Iroquois, reported on Dept. of the Stranger. She said "A stranger may be one who is lonely." Miss Jessie Cleland read a paper on "Young People's Work." Problems and solutions of the Mission Band was given by Mrs. D. Hanson. Mrs. M. Foster, Mountain, spoke briefly on the Literature of the Society and its value in the work. A duet was then given by Mrs. Collison and Mrs. Brinston, "Read the Missionary Monthly," Hymn "Lead On, O King Eternal," was then sung.

The Branch Officer, Mrs. Cleland, gave an interesting talk on Temperance. Another duet was then rendered "Out of the Depths He Lifted Me," by Mrs. L. Monteith and Rev. Mrs. Johnston,, of South Mountain. Mrs. A. B. Allison, of Morewood, led a discussion period, when many questions were discussed which were of much benefit to the listeners

Hallville Auxiliary named to send the delegate to the Branch Meeting. Iroquois extended an invitation for the Sectional Meeting to be held there next year This was moved by Mrs. (Rev.) Morrison of Hallville and seconded by Mrs. (Rev.) McConnell of Inkerman. The closing moments were taken by Mrs. T. J. Keyes. She asked what would our attitude be if Jesus Christ came and sat down in our meeting. She read of a minister who, while preparing his sermon, fell asleep in his study and dreamed that Jesus came into his church, and he wondered what Jesus thought of his sermon, and the choir, and his rented pews, and it made a change in his life, and in that church. What a change it makes when we really let Him come into our lives. She left the challenge "Are we willing to let Jesus take our lives and use them." Mr. Robt. Ellis of Iroquois, closed with prayer.

MINISTERIAL MEETING

An interesting meeting of the Dundas-Grenville Ministerial Association was held at South Mountain on Monday afternoon with Rev. D. R. Morrison, of Hallville, in the Chair. Rev. G. O. Davies, and Rev. W. D. Turner of Winchester, conducted devotions. Two vocal solos by Rev. R. G. Katsunoff, of the Church of All Nations," Montreal, were very much enjoyed.

The special speaker was Dr. T. W. L. McDermott, National Secretary of the Canadian Legion of Nations Society who gave an illuminating address on the work of the League and the outlook in international relations. According to the speaker, War must be re-defined in the present day, so that we can see what it really is. When the false glamour surrounding warfare is dispelled one could define it as really the use of force by one or more nations in order to coerce other powers The peace that we hope for could similarly be defined a system of international relationships in which force will be reduced to a minimum, so that if force is used at all it will be used by the whole society against those members of the society who break the rules agreed upon by the society. Armies and Navies would not be national but international forming a world police force against which recalcitrant nations would be powerless Viewing this idea from the individual point of view one might say that the safety we enjoy on the streets of any city or town is possible because there are general laws which operate in behalf of the entire group of citizens without regard to their social or economic scale of living. When regulations in a similar manner on a large scale become international backed up by the various states acting collectively the long desired age of peace will come to stay

The speaker emphasized the progress of the "will to peace" during the last few years 900 groups of people who come together to study in their groups the who question of war, are to be found in Canada affiliated with the League of Nations Society There is on a general scale among the rank and file of the people an unusual peace consciousness. The ordinary man who in the event of war has to do the fighting, is doing some real thinking regarding this whole matter, and this is a new factor in Canadian politics. This factor which is noticable not only in Canada but all over the world must be reckoned with by the war-makers of the future.

A more meaningful use of Remembrance Day was urged. It is in great danger of becoming an instrument for the engendering of the war spirit rather than a Day of Remembrance of valiant sacrifices by brave men and a day when their surviving relatives might receive comfort from the fact that the cause of world peace for which they died is becoming a reality.

PRESENTATION MADE

On Thursday evening, September 27th, a number of members of St. Andrew's United Church, Hallville, surprised Mr. and Mrs. Carson Kerr at their comfortable home in Mountain. They came quietly and unexpectedly, presenting them with a beautifully finished mantle clock, on behalf of the congregation.

Rev. Donald Morrison read the following address:

"We, your friends, representing as we do, a church whose people rejoice over the union of two such as your are. You are young, you are alike in attitude, ideals and desire to improve your lot, and build up for yourselves a home and business which will maintain your home and its comforts. The Church rejoices over your prospects for a very happy and prosperous career. You have youth and your career is in the making. Your success will depend very largely, if not wholly, upon the nature of the foundation on which you begin to build up your corporals and home life.

Marriage was not made for happiness alone, but for discipline and development of character, the continuance of family life, and the welfare of human society.

Love, though natural and spontaneous in its origin, must not be regarded as a thing to be left to itself. Constant thought and care are indispensable to its higher perfection and beauty. Keep strict watch over yourselves; exact not too much one from the other; study to control and subdue whatever tends in your respective tempers and dispositions to disturb your mutual love and peace, and to hinder your progress in the Christian Life.

Give to your love its full nobility; guard it against self-seeking, let it be to you, not narrowing, but enlarging; not secluding you in a selfish paradise, but taking you always, in truer, tenderer, larger sympathies, with other souls and other lives. Together you will have serious duties, but you will be able to fulfill them if you live near to the source of all strength.

Like others, you will have your share of trials and troubles, but if you meet and bear them in the right spirit, it will yield you the blessing of fortitude, patience, self control, wisdom, sympathy, thoughtfulness and faith. In sorrow as in joy, you will be in your Father's hands, learning obedience by the things you suffer. And if you make your home the place of highest affection, the noblest discipline, the most consecrated joys, the most transfigured sorrows, the sincerest religion, then it will be to you a shelter from the storm, and a shadow from the heat of life and a foretaste of, and training for, that higher and fairer world where joy is perfect, and unceasing, and to which we can give no better name than home.

St. Andrew's congregation wishes both of you much happiness and good health and prosperity. St. Andrew's interest in you seeks to express itself in so many ways. This small gift, which we present in the name of St. Andrew's Church, is a meager, but be well assured, a tangible expression of her interest in your welfare.

Accept this time teller as a token of interest and friendship. By its strikes go to bed, rise up in the morning, go to work and to church as it commands you both. May it keep good time, and as you wind it every Saturday night, may you be remembered of this happy fellowship, and of the historic church which will ever pray for your success. In the name of St. Andrew's Church, Hallville, it gives me great pleasure to present you with this clock. "May you always have the correct time."

Carson, in his reply, assured St. Andrew's Church that he and his wife would do their utmost to maintain the work the church is attempting to do, and expressed his appreciation of the thoughtfulness of the congregation in remembering them on the happy occasion of their matrimonial adventure.

The group spent a very pleasant social evening, after which refreshments were served by a number of the ladies, when the happy evening was brought to a close with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

UNITED CHURCH W. M. S.

The October meeting of the Winchester United Church Women's Missionary Society was held in the Sunday School Rooms on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 11th, with the president, Mrs. K. Helmer, and secretary, Mrs. R. Crowder, in the chairs. After a season of silent prayer, in which all the sick and shut-ins were remembered, Mrs. Geo. Earle and Mrs. K. Helmer led in prayer. Plans were discussed about the Thankoffering Service to be held Sunday morning in the United Church, November 4th. Mrs. A. B. Allison, Morewood Presbyterial President, is to bring the message. Mrs. K. Helmer read a letter asking the churches and the various organizations to co-operate in sending relief to the dried-out areas of the West which is the worst yet in five years of drought. A committee was appointed to look after this work.

Mrs. N. W. Beach gave a reading, "The God Who Speaks," written by Rev. Richard Roberts, D.D., and the temperance note was read by Mrs. S. Christie, "Not only must we be abstainers, but we must fight this evil."

Mrs. R. D. Preston, convenor of the program, took charge and Mrs. J. W. Ault read the devotional leaflet, "The Circle of Friendship," written by Mrs. W. H. Graham. A service of praise for Thanksgiving was given responsively, interspersed with hymns. Mrs. C. Annable and Mrs. R. Dukelow lead in prayer. At the end of this inspiring service Mrs. George Earle and Mrs. R. Crowder lead in prayer and the doxology was repeated in unison.

LATE JAMES B. CAMERON

On Thursday last, in the afternoon, there passed away from our midst, an aged and much respected neighbour in the person of James B. Cameron, of Cannamore.

Mr. Cameron was born in the Township of Finch, on his father's farm, adjoining the village to the west, on November 18th, 1852, the son of the late Jas. Cameron and his wife, the late Christina McGinnis. His father was taken away when the family were yet young, and the farm only slightly cleared. James and his mother assumed the task of keeping the home fires burning, and the younger members of the family nobly assisted, together with the eldest sister, Janet, who became a school teacher and taught during her whole life, while health permitted.

Later, when James could be spared from home, he took up and learned the trade of carpenter, which trade he followed the remainder of his life. In 1878 he was married to Miss Charlotte Merkley of Chesterville. To this union four children were born, all of whom died while of tender years, and in 1895, Mrs. Cameron also died.

In 1898 he married Anne Jane Coleman, widow of James Loughridge, formerly of the Township of Finch. They took up residence in Cannamore where they have resided ever since.

Besides his widow, only one sister, Christie, wife of Mr. Henry Smirle, of Morewood, remains to mourn the loss of a kind and loving husband and brother. There are four nieces, daughters of the late Angus Cameron who, with their husbands, were very kind and attentive, and rendered what assistance they could during his last illness.

The funeral took place Saturday, the 13th inst., services being held in the Morewood United Church of which the deceased was an elder. The sermon was delivered by his pastor, the Rev. G. H. Smith, assisted by the Rev. Alex Nimmo, of the Presbyterian Church, Morewood. The text was taken from Hebrews, 5th chapter, 9th verse.

Interment was made in his family plot in Maple Ridge Cemetery. The pallbearers were, Messrs. Hector Carruthers, Angus Smirle, Thos. Feeley, Alex Byers, Ira Barrington and Robt. Steven.

REMEMBRANCE DAY WILL BE OBSERVED ON SUNDAY ONLY

Remembrance Day falls this year on a Sunday (November 11), so far as the Department of Secretary of State is concerned. In the case of statutory holidays falling on Sunday the provision is made that the following Monday will be observed for business purposes. Remembrance Day does not fall into that category. The incidence of its falling on Sunday does not detract but rather adds, in the opinion of State Department officials, to the fitness of the day for such observance. Any departure from the provisions in order to provide a business holiday on the following Monday will be a matter for local ruling.

A new opening on Broadway: Merrily We Roll Along. Starts in 1934 with a group of characters successful, or once so, but embittered. And through the second and third acts it pries back into their lives to 1927, 1924, 1923 and finally 1918 when they are all shown with ideals and ambitions. Decreasing interest is inevitable, yet one critic says, "This play will surely make history."

The Pulitzer Prize Play Committee has declined to serve as the play jury this year. They picked "Mary of Scotland" last year, but the award was made to "Men in White," because the rules require an American setting as well as an American author. "A prize play about Adam and Eve," says one member, "would have to be disregarded because the setting would have to be in the Garden of Eden, wherever that may have been."

A TRUE FISH STORY

He had hard luck fishing, and on his way home entered the fish market and said to the dealer:

"Just stand over there and throw me five of the biggest of those trout!"

"Throw 'em? What for?" asked the dealer in amazement.

"So I can tell my friends I caught 'em. I may be a poor fisherman, but I'm no liar."

PLAYING SAFE

A small boy had been vaccinated and the doctor started to bandage his sore arm, but the boy objected.

"Put it on the other arm, doctor,"

"Why, no," said the doctor. "I want to put the bandage on your sore arm so the boys at school won't hurt it."

"Put it on the other arm, doctor," said the small boy. "You don't know the fellows at our school."

PICKING YOUR FRIENDS

The millions who make up the population of this country of ours include all kinds, the good and the bad, the wise and the unwise, the noble and the ignoble. No one place has a monopoly on any one sort, either. You will find as many stupid, uncouth people, proportionately, in the big cities as in the small towns, and the proportion of people worth knowing does not vary greatly as you go from place to place.

Do not let yourself fancy you must go to some larger place to find desirable friends. There are fine young people within easy reach, young men and young women who are ambitious for the highest achievements. In the small places, however, as in the larger ones, you must pick your company. One of the tragedies of life is that every day young people are passing over potential friends who would help them to be their best selves, in favor of those whose influence is harmful.

Do not work up an intimacy with the young people who happen to be your neighbours if there is nothing else in their favor. You will never need your brains more than when you are picking your friends.

PARENTS ARE BLAMED

Parents who allow their 'teen age sons to roam the streets in the early hours of the morning have aroused the ire of Magistrate Strike, of Ottawa, who in court blamed late hours and lack of supervision for most of the trouble into which youths get themselves.

"I don't know what parents are thinking about to let young fellows like you stay out until three o'clock in the morning. That's the time you get yourselves into trouble," the magistrate said after several young men said they had been playing cards and were taking a walk before going home.

ORIGIN OF THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving Day had its origin in New England and the holiday was imported to Canada, from the United States and is a purely North American institution, unknown in Great Britain and Europe. It is observed annually. The date is set by proclamation of the governor-general-in-council and varies every year. In the country of its origin Thanksgiving Day is by statute on the fourth Thursday in November. The date is alway set by proclamation of the president and the governors of the individual states. The day there is observed in the churches and in Puritan New England particularly it is a time of family re-unions. The Pilgrims set apart a day of Thanksgiving at Plymouth after their first harvest in 1621. The splendid custom spread throughout the New World. It was President Lincoln who permanently appointed the fourth Thursday in November, this being in 1864, and since that time each president has annually followed his example.

SEDATIVE DRUGS

A good general knowledge of sedative drugs is always desirable; for, it has seemed to me that half the world is engaged in hawking "dope" of some kind or other, alleged to relieve pain, or, produce "sound, refreshing sleep." These things sell—tons of them—and usually at enormous profits. However, the advice I want to give in this little talk is, to be extremely cautious in pain-relievers and sleep-producers that are offered for your use, by the horde of nostrum-vendors that beset you on every hand.

Opium is the king of pain-relievers; but it is a dangerous habit-former. A very wise law protects the public, and you cannot get opiates without a prescription from a licensed physician. This is as it should be. My favorite opiate is codeine, as a sedative for harassing coughs.

The vast majority of modern sedatives are based on a drug known as "barbital." This is capable of doing much good, but as is always the case, it had better be given under the advice of a capable physician. I would beware of the medicine-peddler. Certain vegetable drugs have long been utilized as nerve-sedatives and tranquilizers for nervous patients. I refer to hyoscyamus, passiflora, pulsatilla, and such like. All have merit in suitable cases.

Then, the older sedatives,—the "coal-tars." The head of this group is acetanelide. Those things act very decidedly on the circulation, and may be postively dangerous for weak or failing hearts. Shun, as a rule, the commercialized pain-killing tablets which are hawked to all who will listen.

The revolver is a weapon for which the average Canadian has no particular use, and the sooner it is outlawed altogether the safer it will be for merchants, bankers and private individuals. An odd little footnote to the automobile age was furnished the other day when a man bought a used car for $5, drove it out on the highway, and a few hours later got into a traffic accident that did $100 worth of damage. FOOD SAFE IN OPEN CANS

A delusion held by many housewives for years was exploded last week, as the United States Bureau of Home Economics decided it is perfectly safe to leave food in tin cans after opening. Food is perfectly safe, spoils no faster and no slower in the open can than in other containers. Some acid foods like fruit and tomatoes tend to dissolve iron, when stored in an open can. This may give the food a slightly metallic taste that is not harmful. If the label on the can advises removing the contents as soon as the can is opened, it is because the canners think that an open can, partly filled with food, is not attractive in appearance.

TEETERING NO GOOD

Some people fancy they are open-minded because they never take sides. When there is any danger of their coming to a definite conclusion, they always see an argument in favor of the other side; not enough to lead them to espouse that side, but enough to keep them from accepting the other. So they wabble like a teeter board, now up, now down, but never getting anywhere. These people, instead of being broad-minded, are simply irresolute. Seeing both sides is a reason for choosing one. The people who can never decide where to give their loyality, nor what cause to support, have no reason to congratulate themselves. Teetering may be all right as a pastime for small children, but as a life policy it is a dismal failure.

HOW SAFE IS HOME

There's no place like home—for accidents. Airplanes and automobiles, factories and railroads, floods and fires and our old enemy the lightning may do their worst, but it still holds true that the great bulk of the injuries of life and limb happen in the home. The main reason of course is that most people spend most of their time at home. But another reason is that by long habit people assume that home is a place of safety and are more careless than they are outside.

The health commissioner of New York has issued a "home safety code for adults" whih makes these reasonable suggestions:

Have every room and all stairs well lighted.

Keep the floors clear of grease, toys and such things.

Use a rubber mat in the bathroom.

Keep the stairs free of all incumbrances.

Use a step-ladder when working above the floor.

Use noninflammable cleaning fluids.

Keep wet hands off electrical appliances.

Look where you're going and go where you look.

Turn off gas cocks when not in use.

Read the label before taking any medicine.

Keep drying clothes away from the stove.

Extinguish all cigarette and cigar butts.

Use common sense, do not rush, be careful.

At first glance one is inclined to dismiss these auctions as elementary and obvious. But think itover how many of them did you yourself violate last week? And how many accidents would never occur if they were not violated?

AFFECTATION IS A GIVE-AWAY

Affectation is one of the proofs of inferiority. One who tries to appear something he is not, does so because he feels that he is less than he should be. Affectation is a give-away. It is a confession of self distrust. People who have been privileged to meet men of distinction are astonished to find them simple and natural. They are not pompous. They do not put on airs. They are easier to talk to than many obscure persons who feel it necessary to impress every one who comes near them with a sense of their importance. That is only to be expected. Little people assume affectations in the hope of adding to their seeming nature. Of course it does not, but that is what they believe. The great feel no need of trying to appear other than that which they are.

BLOOD-CLOTS ON EGG YOLKS AND HOW THEY FORM

Blood clots on the yolks of eggs result from the clot becoming attached to the yolk when it passes through the oviduct. Later it is surrounded by albumen. It most often occurs when pullets are starting to lay or during the spring, when production is heavy. Flocks that are heavily forced with concentrated feeds are apt to produce the largest per cent. of eggs with blood clots on the yolk.

The only remedy is to candle the eggs if they are being shipped to a high-class trade. Then all the eggs with the clots can be removed and used at home or sold to a trade that will pay less money per per dozen but not discriminate against the clots. When the clots are removed, of course, the eggs appear normal and are all right to use. The most unfortunate factor in this trouble is the fact that inexperienced buyers may think they are receiving partly hatched eggs when the poultryman is not to blame for this condition.

HINTS FOR QUILTING

Quilting is no more nor less than running stitches, joining two layers of material together usually with an interlining of outting-flannel or cotton wading. Though a number of old quilts were put together in very elaborate designs the idea of quilting is to hold the various layers of material together, and not allow the interlining, particularly of cotton wading, to slip and form in bunches. Even the very simplest form of quilting, such as diagonal lines, is very decorative, and many simple and effective designs may be worked out with a compass and ruler. When cotton wadding is used as an interlining, the rows of stitches should not be more than an inch apart in order to carry out the original purpose. When quilting a cushion or anything of which both sides do not show the finished article, the design may be stamped on the wrong side and worked from that side. The oldtime quilting patterns were drawn on in lead pencil, and by the time the work was finished very little trace of this marking remained. Stale bread rubbed over the surface easily removes any pencil lines that are still visible. If you do not wish to pencil-line your material the paper pattern may be basted to it and the quilting done right through the paper and all. The paper is easily torn away when the work is finished.

HOW WE REGARD FAILURE

To some people failure is a knock-down blow; to others a spur. To some, it means the end of trying; to others it stands for the intensification of effort. Since everyone is limited in knowledge and ability, everyone is bound to fail. Much depends, however, on how we regard that failure.

PREPARE SOIL FOR BULBS

If the soil for bulbs is not properly prepared the first season of bloom will be only effective display until good garden conditions are furnished. The bloom for the following year is already formed in the heart of the bulb when it is planted in the fall. Formation of buds and bulbs for the following year depends upon good growing conditions. In the first place, dig the soil deeply and pulverize it well. Decayed vegetable compost, (not manure), is suitable for digging in. About the only fertilizer that may be safely used is bone meal. Drop a little of this in the soil beneath the bulb. It is very slow acting and will not get into action until next spring, when the bulb needs it. After the bulbs are planted, a potash fertilizer such as muriate or sulphate or wood ashes scattered over the bed is beneficial.

Shade is excellent for tulips and daffodils. The flowers last longer and the colors are brighter and do not fade. This does not mean complete shade, such as the immediate north side of a building, but a position where they get a little sun and plenty of light.

Above everything else a bulb bed should have good drainage. Tulip beds beds should be raised above the ground level is there is any questions as to the adequate of drainage. They will not endure water standing upon the bed or about the bulbs.

USE OF ENGLISH

Is English likely to become the universal language. In the past four or five decades there has been a great increase in the use of English. The English language, it is estimated, today is spoken by 160,000,000 people and understood by another 60,000,000 who do not regard it as their mother tongue. The number of people speaking other prominent European tongues is roughly stated as follows:

German	90,000,000
Russian	90,000,000
Spanish	55,000,000
French	45,000,000
Italian	45,000,000
Portuguese	30,000,000

As Great Britain, the United States and the British Dominions are great industrial nations it is perhaps natural that English should become the language of commerce of the world. Since the war the Scandinavian nations have turned to English as the secondary language of the schools. Before the war it was German. In the Orient, also, English is rapidly becoming the language of commerce.

A HAPPY ENDING

The statement published in this issue of the Press showing the financial results of the "Old Home Week," is surely a very happy ending to what is still remembered as the crowning celebration held in Winchester, and the memories of which are still so fresh and pleasing that hardly a week passes that this office is not asked to supply a copy of the edition giving a full account of the proceedings. That the success of the undertaking was due to careful organization and faithful, untiring work on the part of the several committees appointed, is beyond question. There was no discord, no interfering, but a whole-hearted community support that is so indispensible to such an enterprise. That the executive were able, after paying all the expenses, to show a surplus of over $500 is a tribute to a carefully planned and well carried out program committee. It may be explained that the $150 voted the 100 Club was not only in recognition of the splendid work which that organization is doing in the community, but also an acknowledgement of the fact that the organization decided to cancel its own local entertainment plan, and join with the O. H. A. in its celebration. The directors of the Skating Rink were remembered, not only because the rink is considered a community enterprise, but because of the generosity of the directors in placing the Arena at the disposal of the O. H. A. at any time during the week of the Celebration, should it be desired. The donation to the Public Library was a most deserving one, and we think needs no justification. No one would want to see the Public Library closed, and at the present time the Library Board has been saved that necessity by the timely help it has received. That the Women's Institute will make good use of its funds no one doubts, and their work in this community is too well known to require special mention The "nest egg" will come in very handy when proper occasion requires. It is indeed a very happy ending to a most delightful community celebration and re-union.

POLITICAL PATRONAGE

Does it pay to be independent in politics, Financially, no. When the Ferguson Government was in power the Winchester Press was in the black list of the patronage committee because it opposed the liquor policy of that Administration. Hon. Geo. Henry was then Minister of Highways, and he did considerable advertising. Every weekly in Dundas published those advertisements except the Winchester Press. When we wrote to Mr. Henry and asked why, the reply was "economy," and that is all we ever got out of it. After the Henry Government was formed, and Dundas had a representative who looked after and attended to his parliamentary duties, the Press was graciously remembered when advertising was handed out by the Government, and we got our rightful share. So did every other paper in the County. No special favours were handed the Winchester Press.

Since the Hepburn Government came into power, the Press has again been put in the black list, for we see that while the Minister of Agriculture favors all other County papers with his patronage in the way of advertising, the Press is not remembered. We refer to the advertisement in connection with the Kemptville Agricultural College. The Winchester Press has not only the largest circulation of any weekly in the County of Dundas, but is also the largest paper.

And yet, so deep rooted is partyism, so prejudiced have become the minds of too many politicians, that unless you become a slave to a political party, or submit to the greater humiliation of being a "nothing" as a newspaper, and keeping your mouth shut because it pays to do so, you are blacklisted by the party in power

Fortunately, the Press does not have to depend on such patronage, and it is a tribute to the intelligence of this County, and particularly this northern section, that we can truthfully say that in the twenty years as publisher of this paper we have not lost one dozen subscribers because we have dared to express our convictions, and our general business has not suffered.

AUTOMOBILES AND CHURCH ATTENDANCE

It is rather unsafe, and often leads to trouble, when a newspaper ventures to criticize the church, or any denomination, or the clergy. It is alright, however, for the clergy to denounce this, that or the other thing, or what they consider is inimical to a proper devotion and loyalty to their respective church or denomination. Last week, at the Montreal and Ottawa Synod, held at Smiths Falls, the statement made that "the money spent on gasoline and oil on Sunday would finance the church," is reported to have met with great applause from the assembled clergymen. No doubt the statement is quite true, and the same may be said of the money spent on Sunday clothes; or the rouge that the ladies use to-day so lavishly to make themselves attractive; of the special extras that are provided for the Sunday dinner tables, and a dozen or more causes that need not here be enumerated.

As the Winchester Press expressed it a few weeks ago, it is somewhat singular that the clergymen seem to have a weakness in the direction of scolding the faithful because of the faults of the many who do not hear their voices. If church pews are becoming empty it is time for those most concerned, and especially the clergy, to make careful inquiry into the cause, and see if they cannot remedy it The automobile has undoubtedly made a great change in church attendance, and the telephone is its accessory. Friends or relatives in neighbouring towns telephone that they intend making a visit on Sunday next. That means that not only the visitors, but the host and hostess, and probably the whole family, will remain at home to receive and entertain their visitors.

It is a condition that has grown up with the times and must be accepted, and instead of denouncing it, the church had better get busy to counteract or meet it.

And while on this subject, the Winchester Press would venture the criticism that the clergy lack the necessary "punch," not only in their Sunday discourses, but in their everyday attitude toward evils that seem to so insidiously grow up in our everyday life.

The politician who is a fluent speaker, and has something to say, will fill a hall in any community two or three nights a week, and not offer a light supper to draw the crowd either. Why? Because the people are interested in what he has to say, and the earnestness with which he says it. He puts a "punch" in his address, and drives convictions home.

One of the troubles of the church of to-day is that those who do attend are the ones everlastingly "scolded" because the schemes of the church are not being properly supported.

But what is the use? It is a many-sided question, and human nature being what it is, will have to be dealt with as the wise may decide. In the meantime, our churches will not gain in attendance by the clergy denouncing the Sunday automobile visiting any more than it would if they told the ladies to save the extra price they pay for high-heeled shoes, or the powder they put on their noses, and give it to the church.

AMBITIONS KILLED CAESAR

During the past three months the Hepburn Administration has involved itself in numerous controversies with public servants that have not cast much credit upon the parties concerned. In fact, nearly all of them lead one to believe, that the new ministers glory in their sudden rise to power and prominence, and intend to demonstrate it on every possible occasion.

To be more specific, shortly after assuming office we find Premier Hepburn crossing swords with the mayor of Toronto over the little matter of allowing the "hunger marchers" to parade the streets of the city. During that brief exchange we note that Mayor Stewart diplomatically, but firmly, made such remarks as to inform Premier Hepburn that, while the Liberal administration might be in control of the province, Mayor Stewart was the "big gun" in the capital city.

We next find Premier Hepburn turning his eyes longingly upon the office of Lieutenant-Governor, and making such recommendations concerning the abolition of that office as he felt to be necessary. Upon this occasion, it was the Prime Minister of Canada, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, who reminded Mr. Hepburn that such a move could not be made without revising the constitution as laid down by the British North America Act, and that such action therefore came under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government and not the Liberal administration in Ontario. It is just possible that this fact had momentarily slipped from the mind of the Ontario premier.

Since that time however, Mr. Hepburn's colleagues have turned their attention to matters which have placed them in the lime-light, and temporarily cast their leader into the shadows. Attorney-General Roebuck considered it advisable to dismiss Col. Drew from the office of Securities Commissioner, and was met with rather stiff opposition on the part of the said official. The controversy which raged for days through the public press made interesting reading for approximately three million people throughout the province and proved to be somewhat embarrassing for the Attorney-General as it is felt that the "Colonel" had a slight edge in the encounter, or as is said in sporting circles—"won the decision on points." An order-in-council meanwhile, accomplished the Attorney-General's purpose and Col. Drew was relieved of his responsibilities as commissioner. Cessation of hostilities occurred on Thanksgiving day, which, as a contemporary points out, is something for all of us to be thankful about as it was becoming somewhat tiresome.

Working, apparently, on the principle that once a ball is put into motion it is best to keep it moving, we now find Mr. T. S. Lyon, chairman of the Hydro Electric Commission, a recent appointee of the Hepburn Government, engaged in a duel with Mr. P. D. Ross, for eighteen years a leading force on the Ottawa Electric Commission. One word has led to another until Mr. Lyon feels that, in pursuance of a certain understanding, of which Mr. Ross claims to have no knowledge, it would be desirable for Mr. Ross to resign from the Ottawa Commission.

At this point it is interesting to note that Mayor Nolan of Ottawa whipped himself into action, and diplomatically called the attention of Mr. Lyon to the fact that, "Mr. Ross has the confidence and respect of the people of Ottawa in this regard and any interference will be looked upon as most regrettable."

In dealing with the subject editorially, the Ottawa Citizen, an independent newspaper with Liberal sympathies, states most emphatically, "Dismissal of Mr. Ross is a step which every consideration (aside from vindictive politics) argues is unjustified and wrong." Continuing, the Citizen remarks: "In these circumstances, what genuine shred of excuse is there for demanding Mr. Ross' resignation? He is not a politician, nor a paid official. He is a public-spirited citizen who through various agencies has sought sincerely to serve his fellow townsmen. And the local hydro is the greatest monument to his devoted service along these lines. He is a generous benefactor and a highly esteemed figure in Ottawa public life. The dismissal seems wanton." and closes by saying: "It is small wonder, then, that people hereabouts are now apprehensive lest their interests be jeopordized. Politically, the step proposed will do incalculable harm to the Liberal Party in Ottawa and Ontario."

There is an ancient saying that, "ambition killed Caesar," and it might be well for Premier Hepburn and his ministers to curb their lofty ambitions, to replace esteemed and trust-worthy public servants by political friends and associates, otherwise history may repeat itself as it has been known to do, only, in a political sense.

The above controversies, it is true, have done the Liberal cause in this province no good and before four years have elapsed Premier Hepburn and his administration may find that the said clashes have done them irreparable damage.

A Press Subscriber Who Does Believe In A Devil, Hell And Future Punishment

Dear Editor:

A short time ago an editorial appeared in The Press discussing the evident lack of power in the modern church and a later issue quoted statistics to show a widely prevalent lack of belief in a devil or a burning hell.

If one does not believe in the existence of a devil, the question of a burning hell ceases to become a burning question since we can safely assume that those who deny the existence of a devil will also deny the existence of future punishment of any kind.

Space will not permit a discussion of these vital questions here but it occurred to the writer that the last editorial mentioned is an answer to the first. The church is losing power today simply because so many of its leaders do not accept the Word of God at its face value and are continually substituting human ideas, opinions and reasoning for the plain statements made by God himself in his own inspired Word.

In the first chapter of Colossians we learn that Jesus Christ is the Son of God and the image of the invisible God. All things were created by Him and for Him. He is before all things, by Him all things consist and in all things he must have the pre-eminence. Surely the testimony of so eminent a person should have more weight than our poor human gropings after truth and we should take notice when His Word expressly declares that the scripture cannot be broken; that not one of his words will fail; that His Word is quick and powerful and that it liveth and abideth forever. He spoke more about hell than he did about heaven. He plainly stated that there is a devil with whom he had numerous conflicts and who is the father of a numerous family which he designated as liars and false teachers. In spite of this we have the pitiful condition indicated by your statistics; colleges and churches filled with leaders who will not endure sound doctrine; spoiled through philosophy and vain deceit; filled with profane and vain babblings; denying God's Word and the efficacy of the atoning work of Jesus Christ on the Cross of Calvary.

The church can have power only when its members have power. If power comes from bazaars, banquets, budgets or big collections there would be no shortage. Unfortunately, it never did nor never will. Power comes, not from reorganization but from regeneration; not from programs but from prayer; not from christian activities but from real christian experience which has been defined as not something going on around, but inside, the individual

What is the source of all power and how is it obtained? God's Word is the only safe authority on these questions. "Tarry ye.....until ye be imbued with power from on high. All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you" It is quite clear that power comes only from above. From other references it is just as clear that it comes only through prayer. The first great revival came after a ten day prayer meeting. Since that, no revival has ever started, or ever will start, in any other way. Three thousand souls were converted at that time through one sermon. Now, it seems to take three thousand sermons to convert one soul. We have educated ministers, classical music, fine churches and smooth running organizations—everything a church should have except conversions. This condition is the result of our having failed to realize that there is only one source of power and one transmission line and that we have to get down on our knees to turn on the switch

We should also note that power is given for only one purpose; not to entertain the congregation but to glorify God through the preaching of the gospel. Not to give good advice to saints but to show the way of salvation to sinners. The gospel is not lessons from the life of Christ but life through the death of Christ—the good news of salvation for lost sinners through the blood that was shed on Calvary. Much of the so-called gospel preaching of today tells us to take Christ as our example but says nothing about how or why we should first take him as our Saviour. The sermon referred to by Peter was made up mostly of scripture quotations (The Word of God is quick and powerful) and converted three thousand. Most modern preaching is made up of quotations from poets and philosophers and never converts anyone. Peter "tarried" till imbued from on high; the modern preacher "hurries" up and down the land with endless councils and conferences, meetings and movements, resolutions and recommendations. Peter tarried and got souls into the kingdom; the modern preacher hurries and only gets members into the church.

The modern church seeks power through popularity. Instead of flaying the world she flirts with it. We follow the line of least resistance and arrive at the goal of least resources. We substitute compromise with sin for condemnation of evil. Instead of preaching to men about self sacrifice we praise them till they are self satisfied. We offer the crown without the cross. Well groomed "secretaries" travel up and down talking enthusiastically and inspiringly to our young people about the Jesus Way forgetting to tell them that that way led to Calvary.

God is the same yesterday, today and forever. He has as much power as ever and it is still available for our use but the church lacks power simply because she will not pay the price.

PRESENTATION AT HARMONY

A very happy event took place on Friday evening last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Cinnamon, Harmony, when about sixty of their friends gathered as a surprise party, in honour of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage, and to bestow upon them their best wishes for many more years of happy wedded life.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Cinnamon were asked to take chairs in the centre of the room, when the following address was read by Mr. Thomas Reed, asking them to accept a number of gifts which included a beautiful silver tea service, a large silver platter, a set of individual salad forks and a pyrex pie plate and casserole. Mr. Cinnamon replied in a few well chosen words on behalf of his wife, thanking their many friends for the beautiful gifts, partly revealing a still deeper appreciation which lay concealed and unspoken in the hearts of both he and his wife, assuring them that as the years go by and they use the gifts they will ever recall kind memories of those who gave them. All joined in singing, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," after which refreshments were served by the ladies and the remainder of the evening spent in games, music and other amusements, until midnight when they all returned to their various homes, feeling that they had spent an enjoyable evening together. The address was as follows:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Cinnamon—We have met here tonight to express to you our heartiest congratulations and good wishes on this, the twenty-fifth anniversary of your marriage.

In twenty-five years there has been a great many changes, and a great many ups and downs in life, but it is a pleasure to-night to meet with you and your family on this occasion.

It is the sincere wish of every one of us, that you may enjoy many more years together, and that the future may be laden with happiness and prosperity. As a token of our friendliness and esteem we ask you to accept these gifts, and may they ever be a rememberance of this occasion.

Signed on behalf of your friends.

PROTECTING THE PUBLIC

(Gananoque Reporter)

Whatever the merits of the voluminous discussion now going on in the Toronto press between Attorney-General Roebuck and Col. Drew, late Securities Commissioner, it is quite clear that the public has been and still is being fleeced by high pressure "securities" salesmen. Millions of dollars of worthless stock and bonds are being sold each year to the people of Ontario. Hundreds of these gentry have been bundled back to the United States, and hundreds of others, natives as well as imported, have been refused licenses. Yet the game gos on. These men obtain "sucker lists" of people with money to invest, and the "dynamiters" as they are called by stock racketeers, proceed to make a clean-up. They work fast and unload their useless stocks on a gullible public. The following warning has been given:

If you are in receipt of unsolicited literature, wires or phone calls from self-styled "investment bankers," "investment counsellors" or just plain "brokers," with high sounding names, who were previously unknown to you, and who offer to analyze your present holdings and make recommendations, all free, gratis and for nothing, don't throw out the old chest and congratulate yourself that your standing in the community and your worth are being appreciated—because you are only another "mooch" on somebody's "sucker list."

"Sucker lists" are obtained and compiled in a variety of ways which space does not permit us to deal with fully. Suffice it to say that such lists are available at so much a name and are usually on cards, which are, in themselves, miniature biographies. Each particular "sucker" is carefully classified as to his or her investment preferences in the past, with latest available information as to present holdings. In some cases, cards even contain information as to religious beliefs political affiliation and the best method of approach to be used in offering the "bait." The warning concludes with the sound advice: "Before you invest—investigate."

"STIFF NECK" PROVES TO BE FRACTURED SPINE

His spine fractured at the base of the neck, Thomas Stewart, 56-year-old Cornwall township farmer, is a patient at the Cornwall General hospital with what surgeons describe as a fighting chance for his life.

Stewart was a passenger in a car driven by a neighbour, Leonard McDougall, when it overturned in the ditch on highway No. 2 west of Cornwall. He got out of the wrecked car unaided, assisted three other occupants to escape and insisted that he was all right. Even when his friends noticed that his head was cocked at a peculiar angle, Stewart said that he "only had a stiff neck." He was taken to the hospital, where it was found that his spine was fractured.

LOOKING FOR A JOB

When looking for a job, be sure that nothing in your appearance is against you. A soiled collar or muddy shoes will outweigh the letters you carry, testifying to your ability and uprightness. In fact, the chances are that your carelessness about personal appearance will prevent those letters from ever being read. Money spent in having a suit cleaned and pressed, and in getting a hair-cut, is a good investment if you are looking for a job.

Cultivate a cheerful appearance. You are not asking for charity, and so there is no need to be doleful Speak up. Look people in the eye. Have a smile ready. The beggar whines to show how miserable he is, but it is a question if that is not a mistake. The world likes courage, and sometimes it takes a lot of courage to be cheerful.

Take along your resolution when you are looking for a job. Unless you are abnormally lucky, a great many doors will shut in your face. You will hear plenty of refusals, some of them kindly some of them snappishly spoken; but take them with a smile and a lifted chin. Remember that if you get one yes, the fifty no's that preceded it do not count.

Remember always that the difficult and discouraging periods when you are seeking work may give you much valuable knowledge. Perhaps in the long run they will prove as profitable as though there were a salary attached.

HEALTH SELDOM COMES BY CHANCE TO PERSONS OVER THIRTY

Good health cannot be taken for granted any more than a good income can. So for persons over thirty it is just as smart and business-like to plan to enjoy good health as it is to plan to enjoy a good income. And it's just as much a matter of plain common sense to check up on yourself.

In health, your shortcomings are, at first, likely to be those annoying, not-exactly-well feelings. At such times, if your blood were tested, it would most likely be found "low in count". This means a shortage of red corpuscles and the corpuscles themselves short of haemoglobin. Make up this double shortage, and you'll come up to normal health again. Neglect it and serious results may follow.

Observing, in his practice, the importance of keeping the vitality of the blood up to normal, a Canadian authority originated a blood-building preparation which has been helping run-down people back to health for nearly half a century. This preparation, now known the world over as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, definitely increases the blood "count" in the majority of cases, thereby restoring vitality, steadying nerves, imparting strength and toning up the whole system. So the person over thirty who finds good health slipping, is well advised to take at least a 30-day treatment of this excellent remedy. The element of chance has been practically eliminated in such a treatment, because tests recently made by an authority in a clinic of 40 people, proved conclusively by individual blood "count" that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills certainly improve the health by enriching the blood. BRIEF HISTORY OF THE SHOE

Leather was first made by the ancient Egyptians and its lore reveals the quaint styles of foot-wear through the centuries. For example, the English Parliament in 1463 passed an act prohibiting shoes with pikes more than two inches in length, under penalty to maker and wearer, and those who would not comply were excommunicated Even at a late period shoes were often twice the length of the foot In 1090, in the reign of William Rufus, the great dandy Robert was called the "horned" because he wore shoes with long points, tuffed, turned up and twisted like horns. The shoes became fashionable, and the toes continued to increase in extent until in the time of Richard II in 1390 they had attained such an enormous length as to be fastened to the garter by a chain of silver or gold. St. Crispin was a Christian martyr, born of a noble Roman family. About the middle of the third century, under the reign of Diocletian, he with his brother Crispianus fled from Rome into Gaul, where he worked as a shoemaker in the town which is now called Soissons Here he distinguished himself by his exertions for the spread of Christianity St. Crispin had a tender heart for the poor and needy and, according to one of the legends of him, "his benevolence was so great that he even stole leather to make shoes for the poor." From this legend, charity done at the expense of others has ever since been called "Chrispinades."

Scrap Book Items That You Should Keep
Cut Them Out Each Week

WHAT COUNTS

(By Edgar Guest)

It isn't the money you're making;
It isn't the clothes you wear;
And it isn't the skill of your good right hand,
Which makes folks really care.
Its the smile on your face
And the light of your eyes
And the burdens that you bear.
It how do you live and neighbour,
And how do you work and play;
It's how do you say "Good Morning"
To the people along the way.
And it's how do you face your troubles
Whenever the skies are gray.

THE REAL BOY

Show me the boy who never threw
A stone at someone's cat;
Oh never hurled a snowball swift
At someone's high silk hat.
Who never ran away from school,
To seek the swiming hole;
Or slyly from a neighbour's yard
Green apples never stole.

Show me the boy who never broke
A pane of window glass;
Who never disobeyed the sign
That says "Keep off the grass."
Who never did a thousand things,
That grieve us sore to tell;
And I'll show you a little boy
Who must be far from well.

HE HATH SAID

Though thy way be lone and cheerless,
And the road be steep and rough,
He hath said—and He is faithful—
Is His promise not enough?

He hath said He will be with thee—
Shall He leave thee then alone?
He hath said that thou shalt triumph—
Shalt thou then be overthrown?

He hath said He careth for thee—
Shall He not thy need supply?
He hath said He loveth ever—
Shall He slight thy faintest sigh?

Oh, His Word abideth faithful—
Changeless ever shall endure;
Yesterday, to-day, forever,
All His promises are sure!

Weary soul, be not downhearted!
Courage take and faith renew,
For His promise faileth never—
He hath said—and He will do!

REST CURE

(By Edgar A. Guest)

Get out into a cabin where the woods are cool and sweet
Let your appetite remind you when it's time again to eat.
Leave your tyrant watch behind you.
There's a great disk overhead.
That will tell you when its morning and the time to go to bed.
Forget the strain and hurry of this scheduled life of ours,
Get out and be a brother to the song birds and the flowers.
Get a spade and dig a garden; get an axe and split some wood.
Know the calm of mere existence; it will do your spirit good.
Here's the cure for nerves that tingle: get acquainted if you can,
With cold and thirst and hunger—those three friendly foes of man.
Learn the peace of wanting little; claim the joy of muscles strong,
And let earth provide your dinner and birds provide your song.

TO DEFEAT INSOMNIA JUST STOP THINKING

A sure cure for insomnia is to stop thinking.

And to stop thinking, according to Lilias MacKinnon, a well-known British educationist, it only needs a little practice.

"With practice, one can learn to stop thinking altogether," Lilias MacKinnon said. "The way to do is to relax the muscles of the face, including the muscles of the eyes, and gradually all thought will drift away.

"You will have a feeling of delightful drowsiness and you will be able to fall asleep at will and at any time. This is a certain cure for insomnia."

"THE HICK TOWN"

A "hick town" you say? Now that is where I live,
An' where we raise taters, an' ride in a "fliv."
Instead of streamline, new-fangled bus,
And what you may call us we don't care a cuss,
The hick town's the place where fertile brains grow,
Where Edisons flourish, and Lincolns you know;
Where most of the premiers learn their A.B.C.'s,
Where many immortals grew up, if you please.
A "hick town?" Why sure, but maybe a "hick"
From one of these towns shall wield the big stick;
For history proves such things come to pass,
The fun-poking snob then will look like an ass.

DULY SAID

A lady, about to entertain a duchess for the first time, gave very careful instructions to the maid who was to open the door, about the way in which the duchess was to be received.

"Now, Mary," she said, "remember whenever you address the duchess you must say "Your Grace."

When the great day arrived and the maid opened the door to the duchess, and the latter inquired if Mrs.— was at home, the maid answered, "Yes, ma'am, she is, and may the Lord make us truly thankful for what we are about to receive."

I have destroyed more men than all the wars of the nations.

I am more deadly than bullets, and I have wrecked more homes than the mightiest siege guns.

I spare no one, and I find my victims among the rich and poor alike, the young and old, the strong and weak. Widows and orphans know me.

I loom up to such proportions that I cast my shadow over every field of labor, from the turning of the grindstone to the moving of every railroad train.

I massacre thousands upon thousands of wage-earners in a year.

I lurk in unseen places, and do most of my work silently; You are warned against me but you heed not.

I am relentless.

I am everywhere—in the house, on the street, in the factory, at railroad crossings, and on the sea.

I bring sickness, degradation and death, and yet few seek to avoid me.

I destroy, crush and maim; I give nothing, but take all.

I am your worst enemy.

I am carelessness.

A PRECIOUS BOATLOAD

WE have already considered the writing of the four gospels. The date of the first of them, Mark, is about 61, and Paul reached Corinth ten years earlier, in 51. Up to that time the story of the life of Jesus had been told orally. No one felt the need of a written biography; no one felt qualified to write it. So it was not with the gospels that the actual writing of the New Testament began, but with the letter which Paul in Corinth wrote to his old church in Thessalonica, the Epistle to the Thessalonians. You will be interested in the story.

Bruce Barton

Go back to the period before Paul's arrival in Corinth, to his crossing from old Troy to Europe. He had seen a vision of a man of Macedonia inviting him into Europe, and he went. The little boat that carried him and his three companions, Timothy, Silas and Luke, bore the most precious freight that ever landed on the western shore of the Mediterranean. But Paul did not meet the man of Macedonia. For a good while he had a hard time. As we have already noted, he was beaten and imprisoned in Philippi, mobbed in Thessalonica, driven out of town from Berea, and flouted in Athens. "Our flesh had no rest," he wrote about those days. "Without were fightings and within were fears." When he arrived in Corinth he was alone, having left Silas at Berea, and Timothy at Thessalonica.

The weeks while he waited for them to come to him were a period in which Paul was very near to nervous prostration. If it had not been for Priscilla's good cooking and the companionship which he found with her and her husband he might have broken down entirely. His whole work since coming to Europe seemed a total failure; it had brought only hardship and humiliation.

He was afraid Timothy and Silas would never come. He was afraid they would be mobbed to death. And if they came he feared they would say: "It's no use. These people just will not hear the good news. In Philippi they say that if they had us back in jail we would never get out. In Berea they are ready to quote the Jewish law against us and say that Jesus did not measure up to the prophecies. In Thessalonica we dared not go on the streets in daylight. In Athens your sermon is a joke."

So in his lonesomeness he conjectured and was tortured by his imagination. But one day two dusty travelers arrived in Corinth, found the Ghetto, and there inquired if a man was boarding somewhere in town, a small, wiry, nervous man of defective sight, named Paul. To their joy they learned that he was staying with Aquila and Priscilla; they hunted him up, and there was a glad reunion. Timothy and Silas had rejoined Paul.

THE UNITED CHURCH

Earnest, thoughtful sermons were given last Sunday by Rev. David Smith, of Lancaster, who spoke Sunday morning on: "The Silence of Jesus Christ," from texts found in Matt. 15:23 and 26:63

Jesus was a man of few words. Most of us say far too much when silence would be the better part of wisdom. Three general ideas suggested by the silence of Jesus were given, 1. A challenge to faith; 2. A condemnation; 3. Resignation. There will come to us all the hour of suffering. We must find strength in the upward look and trust and keep silence before God.

Matt. 8:2 & 3 was the evening text. In the time of our Lord, leprosy was one of the most terrible of diseases It is a type of sin. We see in this story the wonderful love of Jesus for the leper. This leper had to ask for healing. The conditions of blessing have not changed. Jesus said: "Ye have not because ye ask not." Sympathy unlocks the door of the heart. So Jesus can heal and cleanse every sinner. His touch has still its ancient power. Let no man hesitate. Salvation is free. It is ours for the asking.

Messrs. E. Shaver, J. D. Stewart and Geo. Crawley sang "Remember Me, O Mighty One," at the morning service, and Mr. J. D. Stewart kindly contributed a solo in the evening.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS—By John Hix

For further proof address the author inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Accounts of the English Exchequer used to be kept straight by the use of notched and split sticks—a method which has some points in common with ultra-modern accounting systems.

The exchequer tallies were sticks of seasoned wood. Receipt of a sum of money paid to the Government was acknowledged by writing the sum on one side of the stick, and writing the same sum on the other side, together with the payer's name. Notches were then cut in the stick to identify it as representing a transaction of a given classification. The stick was split down the centre; half going to the payer and the other half remaining with the exchequer.

When the payer presented his stick for payment it was identified by matching it with the half retained by the government. This precluded the possibility of counterfeit—for nobody can counterfeit the grain of a piece of wood he never saw.

This system of keeping accounts is not so unrelated to modern methods as it may seem. The United States postal money orders are protected from being raised by the irregular way they are torn out of the book. The use of notches in the old exchequer tallies for purposes of classification is not greatly different from the modern use of holes punched in cards for the same purpose.

THE EVILS OF TOBACCO, ESPECIALLY TO GIRLS

A scathing condemnation of lady nicotine recently appeared in the Toronto Globe from the pen of Dr. W. J. McCormick, of Toronto. He quotes educationalists, athletic trainers, school principals, etc., in substantiation of his claim that tobacco users never attain the heights of success. The effect of smoking upon young girls is especially pointed out. He quotes from a paper read by Dr. C. L. Barber, of Lansing, Mich., before the American Association for Medico-Physical Research: "A baby born of a cigarette-smoking mother is sick. It is poisoned, and may die within two weeks of birth. The postmortem shows degeneration of the liver ,heart and other organs. Sixty per cent. of all babies born of mothers who are habitual smokers die before they are two years old." The correspondent sees, as a result of th prevalent use of tobacco by both sexes, a coming race of men and women much inferior to the present.

The expense of the tobacco habit is also discussed, Canada's annual bill has more than doubled during the last decade, and now approximately the vast sum of $100,000,000—more than the entire cost of education in all its branches—and this does not take into account the indirect outlay due to impaired health, medical attention, hospital services and funerals, in addition to the loss of life and property by fires caused by smokers' carelessness. It has been estimated that fully twenty per cent. of all fires are caused by the thoughtless dropping of lighted cigarettes.

PARENTS MAKE USELESS SACRIFICE

One of the fatal mistakes which parents so often commit is the tremendous but useless sacrifices for their children.

In order that their sons and daughters may possess every advantage, the good fathers and mothers deprive themselves of every necessity, deny themselves of every comfort, and exhaust all their resources.

Despite all these general exertions on parents part, the children seldom if ever reciprocate They contract worthless marriages; they fritter away their time in school; they indulge in all sorts of senseless extravagances; with undisguised contempt, they disregard the the authority of their elders.

The parents' only compensation is base ingratitude.

Parents, instead of performing these acts of heroic but mistaken devotion, should inculcate in their sons and daughters the virtue of self-reliance.

If John and Mary clamor for new clothes, automobiles or a college education, they should be told to acquire these things for themselves; they should be informed that they can have anything in life they desire, but that they must work for it.

Life is too short to be little. Life is meant to be experienced in all its fullness and beauty. Parents, why do you not enjoy it?

TO THOSE WHO SPREAD GOSSIP

Are you a tale-carrier or a scandalmonger? It is surprising the number of people who seem to get pleasure from spreading gossip or condemning a fellow-citizen, and at the same time the tale-bearer's character is anything but above reproach. One of the community greatest enemies is one who spreads slanderous "tales" about a fellow-citizen. If the slogan "people who live in glass houses should not throw stones," were taken to heart by such tale-tellers, perhaps they would stop and think before going into action to spread their little tales which become exaggerated as they are passed along.

In early childhood we learned to dislike the lad who "carried tales" and he was shunned by his play-mates. It was seldom he fought his open battles, and there was never a real boy who passed through school without an occasioal argument. Later, as youth approacher, the tale-carrier" was easily distinguishable. He had that sheepish look which accompanies an uncertainty of purpose. He had few friends because he could not be depended upon. He failed to play the game. He rapidly developed a complex. Thrown upon the world, only partly educated, because after all education is more than letters, the child "tale carrier" has not learned to stand squarely on both feet and take his knocks with the compensating pleasures of life, and the complex grows with his stature. His "backbone," however, fails to keep up with the rest of his physical development, and his brain, having little or no support, seems to settle down at the rear, leaving an expanse of frontal features, most prominent of which is an opening from whence issues infamous and frequently libelous words, the sole expression of his cowardly, undeveloped intellect.

We sincerely hope that there are really few "tale carriers," in this wonderful world in which we live The inclination of the child more often than not is corrected before it becomes a handicap to him, but when the efforts of parents and teachers, fail, and the child becomes an adult, still imbued with the idea that the world is against him, in order to make himself appear intellectual in the eyes of an unsuspecting populace, he again fails to fight his own battles and still "carries tales" deaggerated tales, false tales, any tale, defeating his own purpose, and is more to be pitied than condemned Nevertheless, he is a menace to community life, and as such should be checked.—Smiths Falls Record News.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

Wash the corduroys carefully then rinse until the water is clear. Do not squeeze out the water at last rinsing, but throw the garment over the line in a shady place while dripping wet. This keeps the material soft and fluffy.

When baking green peppers, apples, or tomatoes, put them in muffin pans. They are easy to remove and will keep their shape better than if cooked close together in a baking tin.

W. C. T. U.

The October meeting was held last Friday afternoon at the home of Dr and Mrs. McKendry. The president, Mrs. Levi Levere, took charge, asking for the co-operation of the members in this task she has undertaken. Impressive devotions were conducted by Mrs. McKendry who spoke on "Be not drunk with wine but be filled with the Spirit." She said too much emphasis was placed upon the first clause, to the neglect of the second. If our hearts are emptied of self and filled with God's Holy Spirit, He can use us to do His will here on earth. Only the love of God in the hearts of our young people can save them in these perilous times.

Mrs. P. Durant sang very pleasantly: "A Million Boys are Needed." This was a very touching Temperance song. Mrs. McKendry was accompanist. After the reading of the minutes by the Secretary, Mrs N W Beach, committees were appointed for the parlor meeting which will be held on Friday, Nov 4th, at the home of Mrs. McKendry.

Mrs. Wm. Johnston conducted the Clip Sheet which was on Liquor Advertisements. The Scripture read was Eph. 4:1 to 8, also verses 13 & 14. The writer of the clip sheet said: "Many people are glad that the recently elected Premier of Ontario has decided that it is as well for community welfare that the ban against advertising of alcoholic beverages be not lifted, and in spite of the increase in revenue that regular wine and beer advertising would mean to the daily and weekly papers, it is to the credit of those newspapers who have declared that they are not in favor of liquor advertisements being allowed in Ontario. Three of the four Toronto dailies would not accept liquor advertising if it were legalized. Nor would The Hamilton Spectator, The Ottawa Citizen, The Brantford Expositor, The St. Catharines Standard, The Stratford Beacon-Herald, The Niagara Falls Review, The Oshawa Times, and The Port Hope Guide. At least two dozen weekly newspapers have said that they will not accept liquor advertising, among these is The Winchester Press. A word of appreciation was here given to the Editor of The Press for this worthy resolve, and also it was stated that he willingly gave free space for all Temperance items, and frequently there were good editorials on this subject in the columns of the Press. This is all the more noteworthy since liquor advertising is not prohibited in any other Province nor in the United States since Repeal of the 18th Amendment.

Before the meeting closed Miss Jean Wyatt told of how the power of God's love in her heart gave her victory over the many evils that lie in the pathway of youth to-day.

The president thanked those who helped make this meeting so successful and urged that each woman present try to arouse the interest of others in this good work. Mrs. Wm. Johnston closed with prayer.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Rev Charles E. Dunn

The Christian at Prayer
Lesson for October 21st.
Matt. 6:5-15.
Golden Text: Romans 12:12.

It is perfectly clear that to multitudes of people prayer has become unreal. The main reason for this is the temper of our day. Our age of speed and secular emphasis is not favorable to the practice of prayer. We belong, says an editorial writer, "to a generation that believes, first, in nothing, and, second, in Self." Lyman Abbott wrote this parody of that model prayer of Jesus included in our lesson: "Our brethren who are upon the earth, hallowed be our name; our kingdom come; our will be done on earth; for there is no heaven." Well, if prayer is no more than self-communion, it loses a great deal of its reality and value. It becomes almost as absurd as the girl who, in her agerness to be popular, "sat on the sand, and held her own hand."

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

There are, however, encouraging signs that people still believe in God, and still pray to Him, using the Lord's Prayer in the original form of our lesson text. "Time spent on the knees in prayer," said the late George David Stewart, an eminent surgeon, "will do more to remedy heart strain and nerve worry than anything else." And Dr. Elwood Worcester, so gifted in the cure of souls, testifies that when the pressure of his work has seemed beyond endurance, "reliance on spiritual forces has brought new and deeper understanding of difficult problems.

People, then, are still praying. Let us take comfort in that fact. Moreover we need not take too seriously the widespread opinion that there is no God who hears prayer.

Therefore pray. Pray every day. Pray every hour. "Pray without ceasing," as Paul says. Pray as a happy privilege. Pray in secret as our Lord, in the lesson passage, advises. And remember that prayer is not a monologue, but a conversation. God talks to us in true prayer.

4-H CLUB NEWS

CLUB EARNS $500 TRIP

The Tavener 4-H Club, of Fort Bend County, Texas, numbering 32 members, raised nearly $500 to send a delegation of five of its members and its leader to the World Fair in Chicago last summer.

The trip was conceived by their energetic leader, Mrs. Sadie Buls, who had made the group the outstanding club in the county in the four years she had led it. They started to earn the money nearly a year before, after the boy president of the club returned from the exposition with glowing accounts of what he had seen. Determined to keep up the record of her club in the county, Mrs. Buls calculated the chance of making the trip would be the greatest incentive she could offer the members to make the best possible showing in their projects.

At first this plucky leader met with little encouragement. "You'll all get lost," said one. "You never can earn the money," said another. Others as much as said it was a wild dream. Mrs. Buls was used to meeting obstacles. She saw a chance of making money by taking charge of the food concession at the American Legion barbecues which were held at intervals in a park near her rural community. She got the job and organized it on a business basis. Her club members were to supply as much of the "eats" as possible, and take pay in tickets for barbecue plates.

An enterprising merchant saw the chance of helping the club and himself by agreeing to supply all the coffee free. Twice a big cattleman gave the club a plump young steer for the barbecue. Other times the club supplied chickens, and once lamb. The eats were the best the Legion ever had, and attracted so large an attendance that as many as 300 to 400 plates were sold. The price varied with the meat and season, but usually ran around 30 to 40 cents.

Another scheme was to take from 15 to 20 food boxes to a large town and sell them for $1.00 each. The Houston Light and Power Company gave the club the use of a front office to sell the boxes. Special care was taken to fill the boxes with only select food and prepare it attractively. When all but a small amount was earned, friends of the club made up the difference.

WEDDING

JOHNSTON-ANNABLE

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Annable was the scene of a very quiet but pretty wedding on Saturday, Oct. 13th, when their second daughter, Janet Eleanor, was united in marriage to Alexander Douglas, only son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Johnston, of Mountain township.

Rev. John McKay of the United church officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was becomingly attired in a gown of pink crepe with insets of lace and faggotting. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Ethel Annable, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, while B. B. McEwen M. D., of Maxville, cousin of the groom, performed the duties of best man.

The bridesmaid wore a blue crepe gown with shoulder knot of pink roses.

Miss Doris Payne, of Kemptville, cousin of the bride, played the wedding march.

After the ceremony, dinner was served to the guests by Mrs. Ewart Carkner, Mrs. Floyd Gibson, Miss Maud Edgerton, Miss Doris Payne and Mrs. Donald Edgerton.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston left by motor for Quebec and Eastern Points, the bride wearing a navy suit with accessories to match and a beautiful brown fox fur, the gift of the groom. On their return the happy couple will reside in Mountain.

"Ruth," a dramatic presentation, was staged by members of St. Giles Presbyterian Church Choir, Ottawa, in the town hall, Friday evening last.

It was directed by Mr. Angus Orr and was held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, of which Mrs. Chester Robinson is president. There were about 35 members in the cast. A good crowd was in attendance. Mrs. Angus Orr, who for so many years was leader of a Winchester church choir, was the accompanist. The various characters were well taken and the audience was most appreciative of the excellent cast, and Mr. and Mrs. Orr received congratulations. Members of the cast were entertained at luncheon in the Sunday School hall of the church. Rev. W. D. FAREWELL PARTY HELD

About ninety friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mrs. James Brown, Mountain Township, last evening, at a farewell party, prior to her departure for Winchester, where she will reside in future with her daughter, Miss Tena Brown.

The evening was spent in music and other forms of entertainment during which an address was read by Mrs. Leonard Bell and the presentation of two beautiful chairs and a purse made to Mrs. Brown by Messrs. Roy Empey and Leonard Bell. The address was as follows:

Dear Mrs. Brown and Girls:—

We, your friends and neighbours, have learned with much regret of your intended departure from among us. Words fail to express how much we shall miss you in time to come, as your door was always open to both old and young, and surely all of us enjoyed spending many a cheery evening in your home.

You have shared our joys and our sorrows and was always a willig helper, ready with outstretched hands to do your part for the benefit of the community.

While we still regret your leaving, we know the distance will not be too great but that you will at times be able to join us.

As a token of our respect and love, and for the good times spent together, we ask you to please accept these gifts, and as you use them, may you still feel we shall number you all amongst us as neighoburs and friends. May God's richest blessings accompany you to your new home.

Signed on behalf of neighbours and friends, Wm. Walker, Roy Empey, Leonard Bell.

Those present then took their departure, after again wishing Mrs. Brown much happiness in her new home.

Mrs. Brown was quite overcome by the suddenness and surprise surrounding the presentation and was not able to adequately express her gratitude to her many friends She therefore wishes to take this opportunity, through the columns of the Press, of thanking those friends and neighbors for their thoughtfulness in making the presentation and the kindly feeling of friendship which accompanied the same.
