Church Steeple Struck Tuesday Severe Electrical Storm Experienced

Tuesday morning a severe electrical storm hit this district about 5.30 Very little rain accompanied the disturbance. Damage was done to electrical transformers of the village hydro system, disrupting power for a while and the Anglican Church steeple was badly damaged by a bolt of lightning.

The thunder storm reached its peak at about 5.30 in the morning. Without rain the thunder and lightning flashes seemed exceptionally intense and the artillery-roll of thunder that shook windows and buildings soon had most of the householders out of bed. When the village lines picked up the power surge that blew the transformers, most of the power in the village failed. An ear-splitting crack announced the damage to the Anglican Church steeple. Fortunately, it did not catch fire. The lightning tore bushels of slate shingles from the tower, ripped out roof boards wholesale and finally grounded at the east side of the tower after cracking the bricks in its passage.

The storm also disrupted power in the district with Limerick Road off the line until the middle of the morning due to a blown transformer.

Busy Summer at Hospital Auxiliary Members Hear At Winchester Meeting

The Winchester and District Memorial Hospital Auxiliary held its first meeting after a summer recess in the Winchester Town Hall on September 2nd, 1954.

Mrs. R. D. Ledgerwood, president, welcomed five delegates from Morrisburg who are interested in forming an Auxiliary unit. Ten units answered the roll with thirty-three members present.

Tickets on a nest of walnut tables, donated by the Hon. Geo. Challies to the Hospital Auxiliary, were distributed to the directors of each unit. At Mr. Challies' request, these tickets are to be sold to Auxiliary members only. The draw for the tables will take place at the annual meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary on October 7th.

A brief report on the meeting of Region IX of the Ontario Hospital Auxilary Association held at the Ottawa Civic Hospital on June 24th was given by Mrs . Keith Carkner.

Large Number Births

Miss H. C. Wilson reported a very busy July and August at the hospital—births for July were 47 surpassed by a record-breaking 56 in August. The average number of patients per day for August was 40.77 which broke the record in the 6-year history of the hospital. The kitchen staff has been kept very busy pickling and canning the generous donations of fresh vegetables.

Miss N. Elliott gave a detailed report on the Garden Party for which net receipts were $1,562.25.

Mrs. G. B. Mulloy reported for the purchasing committee that linens to the value of $445 have been received to date at the hospital. The floor mop discussed at the May meeting proved unsatisfactory and was returned.

Directors for the new term are to be appointed before the annual meeting on October 7th. Cloverdale and Harmony unit was appointed convener of refreshments for the annual meeting.

The meeting adjourned with the singing of the National Anthem. Mrs. George Elliott presided at the piano.

Hydro Pole Cracked By Auto

Wednesday evening at the supper hour an automobile driven by Ronald Droppo, of town, slid into a hydro pole and snapped it off. Damage to the car was not extenisve.

Mr. Droppo and his companion were travelling north on Main Street and turned left into Joseph when the accident occurred. The driver stated the steering of the car seemed to fail as he attempted to straighten out after making the sharp turn. The car continued a bit too much to the left and connected with the base of the large hydro pole on the McLeod property, breaking it almost completely off. The automobile carried collision insurance.

CHESTERVILLE IN LINE FOR CALDWELL TROPHY

On the basis of their two-game win over Brockville, it appears that the local Bowling Club will win top place in the St. Lawrence Lawn Bowling League for the 1954 season, as well as winning the Caldwell Trophy.

The trophy is competed for each year by the league's six clubs, and while some of the clubs have yet to play postponede games, the results will not change the final standing.

The Chesterivlle club, which won over Brockville by scores of 19 to 18 and 14 to 9. collected a total of 45 points during the season. Brockville was next in line with 31 points.

Berwick Man Remanded On 12 Counts

A Berwick man was remanded in custody Friday for sentence tomorrow on 12 charges of theft, forgery and false pretences involving more than $1,500.

Roland J. Leroux, 34-year-old former farm implement salesman, pleaded guilty before Magistrate P. C. Bergeron on all counts. He was represented in court by J. A. McMahon.

Evidence of Cpl. J. P. Laperriere, head of Lancaster OPP detachment, showed that Leroux, a former salesman with Lawrence Supplies Ltd., Ottawa, had forwarded forged cheques in the names of customers to the company's head office.

Forgeries Admitted

In the meantime, he converted the real cheques to his own use while receiving 10 per cent commission on the forgeries. Operating in Dundas, Stormont and the western part of Glengarry, the confessed confidence-man admitted six forgeries, five thefts by conversion and one charge of false pretences.

The forgeries involved sums ranging from $200 to $394. Leroux also admitted obtaining $90 from Avonmore district farmer Elzie Alguire by false prtences. Other victims were farmers at Maxville, Berwick, Finch, and other United Counties communities.

Cpl. Laperriere said Alguire gave Leroux $90 on account for two milking machines. After receiving a cheque for more than $200 from the victim, Leroux sent a forged cheque to Ottawa and received $28 commission, the police officer testified.

Leroux had been discharged from his position last July 17th. The offenses stretched over a period of months before July.

Patrol Car Added to Policing Here Delegation and Council Discuss By-law

Tuesday night Chesterville added to the public services of the municipality by contracting for an Ontario Provincial Police car to be placed in the hands of the village constable. The decision was unanimous on the part of the reeve and councillors. Costs for the trial period, one month, had amounted to $26.70. Fines and fees on the constable's report for the corresponding period had demonstrated the car had been put to excellent use. All members reported a decided abatement in the number of reports of traffic abuse, particularly at nighttime. Clerk H. C. Hummel was ordered to notify the OPP Cornwall office of council's decision.

Councillor Mrs. B. W. Campbell, still on the convalescent list, was the only member of council absent when that body met Tuesday evening for the September meeting. Reeve Chas. McMillan was in the chair.

Delegation Waits on Council

A delegation of merchants of the village waited on council. Their views on the proposed parking and traffic by-laws were heard at length and thoroughly discussed. Apprehension was expressed that some of the amendments were going too far and instead of helping the traffic problems would be instrumental in driving business away from the village. As the discussion continued, it emerged that some confusion prevailed as to the scope of the proposed amendments. It seemed the impression was that many streets of the town were to be made into single side parking thoroughfares. Council pointed out that this was not the intention but only to regulate parking by means of zone lines to protect corners and driveways. The limited parking on Water Street was on the proposed amendment, but subject to change if opinion showed it would work hardship. The debate at times reached an argumentive level, as might be expected on so touchy a subject, but good sense and a desire to restrain partisan opinions prevailed .

Council had hoped the municipal parking lot would prove more useful than it has in practice, and demonstrated the new regulations would result in very little less parking on the main streets but a greater measure of traffic control. The bothersome Water Street question was promised their earnest consideration and the delegation departed.

Water Street was unanimously struck off the proposed amendments and further control of that avenue will await next year's council.

The accounts for the month noted an amount of $4,050 had been paid to Roads Resurfacing Co. for repairs to the village streets. This sum brings expenditures to date considerably above that budgeted for roads and bridges. A supplementary estimate was passed to allow for increased grants on the extra sums. It was noted the roads for the municipality are in better shape than they have been for years. The extra money was well spent.

Lost Dog Returned

A startling note was injected into the meeting by the clerk when he announced he had received a communication from the SPCA of Toronto. The Humane Society had written him to say they had picked up a stray dog in Toronto with a Chesterville dog tag and would the village kindly notify the owner. Sure enough, Al Butcher had lost his pup in Toronto, he was notified and said dog returned sound in wind and limb.

An application was received favourably from James Campbell for a licence to operate a billiard parlour.

Township Councillor Eric Barclay presented Chesterville council with a list of names of persons who will have authority to call out Chesterville Brigade in the event of fire in the township. Some discussion followed the presentation, and the list was orederd given the fire chief with instructions as to its use.

South Street Construction

James Sullivan, president of Sullivan Bros. Construction (Chesterville), asked members of council for a directive regarding the laying out of a roadway on property facing South Street. He explained his company was to begin construction immediately of two new houses in the area just west of the Allen corner at Highway 43 on South Street. The first house to be completed for occupancy by April is being built for William Fulton, of Chesterivlle, and the other for himself. The company wished to know the regulations regarding the width of a projected street to run south to Mary Street and how and when the municipality would assume ownership of the new street and maintain it.

Council explained the procedure that is normally followed in the acquisition and maintenance of new streets. Upon completion of the grade ,the property would be turned over to the village for maintenance upon agreement between the interested parties for a stated sum and the deed would show the street as part of the town's property and subject to their maintenance. Hydro service was promised the contractor as soon as he needed it.

Daylight saving is to cease on September 25th at midnight. A notice to that effect was to be placed in the Record.

Schools Busting Out All Over With Pupils

Nearly three hundred and twenty pupils have gone to school this week in Chesterville's three schools. This is the highest enrolment listed for many years in the town. St. Mary's Separate School has 44, Chesterville Public School lists 150 and Chesterville High School 123.

The Public School, with 150 on the rolls, tops the list for total attendance. The lower grades are most numerous with Grade Two being divided between two classrooms to take care of the surplus. There are only a couple of Grade Eight pupils this year and Mr. R. C. Dillabough, principal, will take in Grade Six along with Seven and Eight. His staff includes Mrs. Bert Gillard, Mrs .E. I. Smith and Mr. Hosea Droppo.

St. Mary's Separate School has an enrolment of 44. Sister Mary Jane Frances is the teacher for Grades Five, Six, Seven and Eight. Miss Helen McKenna, formerly of Wolfe Island,, is the teacher for Grades One, Two, Three and Four.

Rooms Redecorated

The High School has counted 120 noses to date registered. The returning students will note some changes in the school. Two rooms and the office have been completely redecorated during the summer and Grade Nine sports 40 new desks.

Grade Nine, under Mrs. Lillian Pedley, has the largest number of pupils with 44. Due to its size, Principal James Cunningham is considering dividing the class to make it more manageable.

Grade Ten, under Mr. Connerty, lists 30, Grade Eleven, Miss Senecal, has 20, Grade Twelve, with Mr. Milhousen as form teacher, has 17 and the 11 pupils in Grade Thirteen under Mr. Kavanaugh, mark the highest that grade has reached for a long time.

Mr. Charles King, commercial teacher, will have between 10 and 15 pupils. Mr. King is the commercial teacher also for Winchester High School.

Miss Gisele Senecal will have 21 pupils in her Home Economics classes.

HARMONY HARBOUR—Atlantic waves rolling in on a Nova Scotia beach, followed by the Eileen Cameron poem which opens "We give you ships and tides and men Anchors Aweigh and wind-filled sails; We give you back the sea again in sailor's song and rousing tale . . ." —these sounds have introduced "Harmony Harbour" to listeners of the CBC Trans-Canada network for some years now. On the regular Sunday show, soon to begin its eighth season, tales of the sea are told, giving listeners an insight to the great days of Canadian maritime history; sea shanties varying in sentiment from rollicking pirate's songs to sailor's vesper hymns are also offered, featuring the Arcadian Male Quartet (above). The programme originates from the heart of Canada's eastern seaboard, at Halifax.

Grantley W.A. Meets At Parsonage, Finch

The Grantley W. A. met on Thursday afternoon at the home of Rev. Mr. Beach and Mrs. Beach, the meeting having been postponed one day because of the date set for Chesterville Fair. Thirteen members attended. Mrs. Donald Gordon was in charge, with Mrs. Wm. Fulton at the piano.

The hymn, "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee" and the creed opened the worship service with Mrs. Donald Carr and Miss Bessie Shaver reading the scripture and lesson. All joine din prayer.

Lively Discussion

A lively discussion on the September topic, "The work of our hands," was followed by an interesting paper on the meaning and use of the word "Mizpah" by Mrs. Glenn McMillan.

Mrs. Beckstead, the secretary, passed around samples of new Christmas cards, a reminder of the swift passing of summer.

Several bills were paid and the excellent work done on the Parsonage floors and steps were inspected and admired by the ladies.

Readings by Mrs. Darling, "A Summer Morning;" Mrs. M. O. Robinson, "Fishing;" Miss Bessie Shaver, "The Hometown Paper," and a contest on words won by Mrs. Beach brought to a close the programme prepared by Mrs. Jas. O. McMillan.

After lunch, Mr. and Mrs. Beach were thanked for their kindness and congratulated on the marriage of their son, Hugh, on Saturday.

OPINIONS . . .

Ours and Others

Words of Appreciation

In an adjoining column we have printed an interesting letter from a friend of Chesterville. The writer has seen fit to note the appearance of our town and in a flattering way. It makes us feel good and also makes us a little shamefaced that we have overlooked championing our neatness and new paint through these columns.

Chesterville residents have spent a lot of money and time on paint, painting and repairing this last summer. The lush growth brought on by the 'English' weather has kept up the green of lawns and shrubs to a remarkable degree. Our letter-writer has pointed up in public what most of us have noted sub-consciously but just did not put into words.

Fire Call Problems in the Township

Winchester Township Council at their meeting this week took steps to control any tendency on the part of irresponsible persons to make unauthorized calls for the Chesterville Fire Brigade in the event of fire. The problem is a knotty one and council drew up a list of names that are to be called in the event of fire in the township and they alone are the ones to notify the fire chief of the need of the equipment.

The matter has not been finalized yet to the extent of notifying the public who the persons are to call. Before that is done, we think a few angles need to be considered further.

Fire on a farm is a devastating thing. When it starts in a barn there is not much that can be done, other than save stock and machinery, if there is time, and try to save adjoining buildings. There might be time to make one, two or more calls down the list, depending on the busy-ness of the party line. As it stands now, that precious call must be made to one of the names on the list, who then calls the fire department. If a barn is on fire, the time element is not quite so important and no doubt the proper phoning order can be followed. But, and a most worrisome but, what is the procedure if the desperate homeowner is making the call from his burning residence and his shirttail is nearly on fire? In a house fire, minutes count with present-day fire equipment and the sooner the tanker arrives the greater chance to beat down the flames.

The present arrangement leaves Chesterville Fire Brigade and its parent, Chesterville Council, in an unenviable position. Their moral responsibility is great to provide fire fighting service to the surrounding community if the equipment is available. It will be on their shoulders the onus will fall if a fire call is refused when that call is not made by an authorized person. At the time of a fire the telephones of the community start to buzz, and the dial system does not allow one call precedence over another. When the call does come through to the fire chief he will have the difficult task of deciding whether the brigade should answer the call or not if it is not made by one of the list of names. A farm fire and all its implications leaves little time for cool thinking. As the matter looks now, some unhappy decisions will be made in the event of fire that will not be pleasant to review in the aftermath.

The principle of direction that will be given to the community by the use of a list of names is good but it will need an addition of something like "or any responsible person" on the end of it to be of complete satisfaction.

A few hot whiffs of smoke from the spare bedroom can generate a great deal of responsibility in a very short time.

Patrol Car Added to Town Services

Last week-end the squeals and squeaks of tortured tires were heard on the streets again during the evening hours. The OPP patrol car had been withdrawn to Cornwall after its trial of one month. It was amazing how the music of fun and games arose in the village when the knowledge got abroad that the "Holstein" auto would not be on hand to curb the frisky drivers.

This week at the monthly council session members of council looked at the reports of the month as turned in by Constable Hunsburger and found credit entries all along the line. They unanimously agreed the police car was more than worth its cost to the town and notified headquarters the town will contract for a car for the balance of the year.

Council is to be congratulated on their action. The car has much in its favour, both in traffic control and greater mobility for the constable. We feel sure there will not be quite so many fractured telephone and hydro poles in the municipality for a while as a result of careless driving.

REVERSE RAINBOW

A giant reverse rainbow ring appeared around the sun one morning recently, startling many Ohio residents.

The U.S. weather bureau reported the ring was a halo caused by the mirrored reflection from ice crystalsat abiut 30,000 feet altitude. The mirror reflection made the rainbow colours appear in the reverse of their normal order—running from violet to red instead of from red to violet.

It is said that a halo is rare in midday, that such phenomena usually appear shortly after sunrise or shortly before sunset.

Letters to the Editor

Editor,
The Record,
Chesterville, Ontario.

As I drove through town on my way out the other day I remarked to my hostess on the beauty of Chesterville. I have been a fairly regular visitor and have seen the town under many conditions. The impression I received on this visit impelled me to write this letter to congratulate the townspeople on their successful efforts to beautify their town. The newly painted houses contrasted pleasingly with the neatly trimmed lawns and colourful flower beds. The lush growth of the many trees and shrubs added an effective background to the renovations caried out by the householders. Pride of ownership was evident on all sides.

The neatly cared for park is a tribute to the public spirited citizens of the community. I'm sure a glow of pride must burn in each townsman's heart as he drives into Chesterville from the south past the Park corner. The Community Hall is beautifully located on the river and its well trimmed lawns and bright flower beds are a further indication of civic pride.

As the noise and smell of city traffic assuaults the ear and nose I recall with pleasure the town the shores of the quiet river with its mirror-like reflections of trees and sky. May I commend the people of Chesterville for planning and carrying out the scheme of of renovations and beautification which produced a picture I shall recall with pleasure for a long time.

A Vistior from Western Ontario.

All questions submitted are answered anonymously by members of the medical advisory board or special technical sections of the HEALTH LEAGUE.

There are times when all doctors in general practice are obliged to prescribe doses or regimens for individual patients which they would feel called upon to deplore as a general rule. The reason for this is that certain emergency situations call for strong measures; a qualified doctor can assess such situations properly and determine just how strong are the remedial measures that should be taken. If a doctor, for example, prescribed dosages of a laxative in much greater quantities than recommended on the bottle, it can be assumed that he knows what he is doing and why he is doing it. On the other hand, a layman who goes beyond the recommended limits on the theory that "if a little is good, a lot is better," may be taking his life in his hands and inviting serious stomach trouble. The public should keep in mind that the recommended dosages printed on the labels of medically-approved proprietary medicines are not to be taken lightly. They are there for a good reason, and if a doctor sees fit to "break" the rules, it is because he is thoroughly familiar with the rules and is qualified to make his own rules when circumstances make it necessary. Very few laymen are so qualified.

QUESTION:

"My 8-year-old niece had a high fever with 'flu last spring and the doctor put her on 15 aspirin tablets a day for two days until the fever broke. Isn't that much aspirin dangerous for a child of 8? If not, why shouldn't we put her on the same dose every time she gets a fever without having to pay a doctor for his advice? And why shouldn't it say on the bottle that that much is okay if it really is?"

ANSWER:

The doctor certainly would not have prescribed such a dosage of aspirin if he had found any indication that it might for any reason be dangerous to the child. It is sometimes necessary to move quickly and decisively to bring down a high fever, and if the dosage prescribed by the doctor did the trick then he is justified in prescribing it. It would be inadvisable for a layman, without professional advice, to give such a dosage on his own initiative.

Ted Lesko popped a high fly in a pony league game at Olean, N.Y., recently and got a birdie! The ball struck a nighthawk and they fell together.

THE WINNER

Ray Duval, the defending champion, was late at arriving at a Manitowoc, Wis., beer drinking contest and did not hear the instructions.

When he arrived he went to the end of the line. Another contestant failed to show up but the extra half-gallon container filled with beer, was at the table.

At the starting signal, Duval poured down his half-gallon in 22 seconds, and without hesitation, reached for the mug at the vacant spot next to him. That one took 24 seconds but Duval finished a full 10 seconds ahead of the nearest competitor, who had drunk only the regulation half-gallon.

Why was Duval late? He was in the barroom "having a beer.'

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

By Lillian Allison

According to the mimeographed map I'd been given at the station the Avon River was only about a block from the down-town section of Stratford. I was glad of it too. I'd been walking ever since I had arrived on the train before noon.

First, I'd gone to the Shakespearean Festival office to get a ticket for the matinee only to find that there wasn't any matinee on Friday. Then I'd had lunch. done some window shopping, browsed arcund a few gift stores, attended an exhibition of art and sculpture work and an exhibit which showed the history of the Theatre from early Greek days.

My feet were aching worse than if I'd worked all day. So the thought of the Avon River with its park and benches being only one block away was like heaven to a weary walker.

Now I've never seen Stratford-on-Avon in England but if it is any more beautiful than its namesake in Ontario it would really be worth seeing indeed. The block I had to walk went down a hill to a roadway. Across the road big graceful trees shaded the green grass that stretched on to the water's edge. I slowed my pace to take in this peaceful, quiet scene.

There wasn't a ripple in the water. It was just lying there, resting. The far shore was lined with willow trees. Their leafy branches seemed to dip right into the water in several places. Between them clipped green lawns joined the river's edge to the big, beautiful homes nearby. More willow trees shaded the houses and fanned out into the sky as far as I could see.

Downstream was a bridge connecting the two halves of the town. Not an odinary bridge either, but a stone structure built with two arches. It looked as if it might have been built by the Romans about 25 B.C. It made the scene look very English.

Below the bridge was the Shakespearean Garden. Another bit of old England. Here formal flower beds, rose borders, rockeries edged with pyramidal cedars and shaded by those ever-present willows followed the river for several hundred feet. A rustic bridge connected the garden with a tiny island which was a picture indeed.

The centre of interest in the garden was a chimney which is all that is left of an old factory. It was quite attractive with its pointed roof and looked a bit like a lighthouse. In the garden too on an appropriate pedestal was a bust of William Shakespeare in whose memory the garden was created.

Near the spot where I stood was the dam which held back the quiet, peaceful water. Actually the Avon River wasn't any larger than our own Nation and was merely a muddy, little stream when the Parks Board was appointed in 1904. It was the dam which made Victoria Lake that was really responsible for the beauty of the Park.

"This is really a beautiful place," I remarked to a lady as I sat down on the park bench beside her."

"Yes, it is," she agreed. " I always come down here and sit when I've finished my shopping. You know," she went on, "I've done a lot of travelling and I think there are few places that are much more beautiful than the parks here at Stratford."

And as I walked along the edge of Victoria Lake later that afternoon I realized that the lady was right. A winding path followed close to the water under the willows for more than a mile. Suddenly as I rounded a bend I saw Stratford's swans. Eight big, white beauties coasted effortlessly in the quiet water. People stopped to give them crusts and food and they came so near you could almost touch them.

More islands and more rustic bridges dotted the surface of the lake and weary as I was I couldn't resist crossing over to see the flowers and evergreens on each tiny island.

Around another bend was the big tent which covers the Festival Theatre. I climbed the hill to its front door. And there more park stretched out for acres and acres. There were dozens of picnic tables and I could picture the activity there on hot, Sunday afternoons.

Great, old maples shaded almost every square foot of this scetion of the parklands. Black-top roads ran in every direction and cars glided along always respecting the signs which said "Speed Limit 15 Miles."

But I couln't keep my eyes from the view at the bottom of the hill. And I watched as the setting sun turned the acres of mowed grass into rich, green broadloom which stretched on and on to the very edge of Victoria Lake. There the occasional canoe floated easily on its still waters. There the graceful willows dipped their leaves into its cool depths on every side. There was peace, quiet and rest.

And I thought this scenery was worth going to Stratford to see even if there hadn't been a Shakespearean Festival.

Ever Tried Dewberry Cream Pie?

No! Well, brother, you just ain't lived yet. Right now the dewberries, some folks call them blackberries are ripening on the vine. You can find them growing in rocky, marshy soil where they can find water to swell the long luscious berries and fully ripen when the birds begin to steal them. We first got to making dewberry or blackberry cream pies, when we were living out on the west coast, although the recipe we use, and I'm going to pass it along, originated somewheres back here in the east. Blackberry picking called for a family outing and one not without an element of excitement. We were then living about seven hundred feet up the slopes of Hollyburn Mountain, in West Vancouver. Walk out our front door, which faced the mountain and within a distance equivalent to two city blocks and we passed the last house, from there on you went straight up knowing there was just nothing for some six hundred miles back into the mountains. Birds aren't the only form of wildlife that feed on sun-ripened blackberries. Black bears are very partial to these berries and out there on the coast are just as likely to be out berry hunting when you are too.

Did You Ever Smell a Bear?

We'd sally forth as a family armed with tin pails, the boys were quite small then, and although we never came face to face with a bear, we must have come awfully close on several occasions. Poking around in the berry bushes, each member of the family right down to the smallest busy filling their pail, we'd come on fresh bear sign, or of a sudden there would be that bear scent, which is every bit as strong as skunk and sometimes, the combination of both, and we knew darn well that "old bruin" was pretty close by or had passed by that way a few minutes before, with trampled berry bushes further evidence that we were not alone on the mountainside.

What About That Pie!

Well, back here we don't have to worry about the bears and the kids for the past week have been going out around the house and harvesting blackberries to the point where Mom is busy making up our favourite pie again and here it is:

Time and space are both short so I'm going to assume you homemakers can fix up a pastry shell without too much trouble. The real secret of this pie is in the fixing of the fruit, here's how to go about it and no great trick when you know how. Supposing you've got about one standard fruit box of blackberries. Measure off one cup of the fruit, wash thoroughly and put in a pot with one cup of sugar and one cup of water. Allow these to boil for fifteen minutes (a slow boil), then strain through a wire sieve, crushing the berries with a spoon. When all the juice

Hydro Shows Plans At Osnabruck Centre For New Community

Residents of the four villages in Oshabruck Township doomed by Hydro's St. Lawrence Power Project had a look at the models for their new community Tuesday night.

They reacted much the same as the majority of their cousins along the riverfront to the plans for their future—they are anxious to cooperate with Hydro in developing a plan to fit the needs and traditions of the area. But the yfeel some features of Hydro's rehabilitation plans are not acceptable and require revision.

Most of the 300 persons who attended the display in the Osnabruck Township Hall Tuesday evening agreed that Hydro's models and plans were interesting and well made, but could not quite take them seriously.

Hydro's plans for the four new communities in Seaway Valley were moved to the hall Tuesday and the display opened Tuesday night. They were also on display Wednesday.

The lop streets, the suggested designs for houses, the distance the village would be from the water front, and the fear that marshes would cover much of the flooded area were some of the points in the plan which did not meet approval.

Hydro would replace Farran's Point, Wales, Dickinson's Landing and Aultsville with a completely new comunity now known as New Town No. 1. It would be situated about three-quarters of a mile north-east of the present Farran's Point.

Describing the display as "Hydro's circus," Reeve W. G. Maginnis told those attending the exhibit that he was not altogether satisfied, and possibly somewhat disappointed, with Hydro's plans.

Mr. Maginnis said he thought the plans would be more in line with what residents had visualized for the area. The reeve was among civic leaders who were shown the plans in Toronto two weeks ago.

"Osnabruck Township will be the hardest hit of any section of the valley," he said. "We will have the greatest loss of assessment, the greatest area flooded and will lose a great deal of our best farm land."

The reeve asked "is there anything to assure us that sections of land will not be left with a covering of only a few inches of water, which will turn into marshes and bogs and become breeding places for pests and diseases?"

Mr. Maginnis said he knew of no provisions to be made for water front property owners.

Hyrdo's new community would have all buildings at least the distance of two blocks from the water front. None of the homes face the water.

"In these plans our new community would have only one railway siding. We now have three," Mr. Maginnis told the group.

H. D. Rothwell, Hydro's St. Lawrence project liason engineer, later told the group that the CNR tracks as indicated on the plans is "more or less definite."

Mr. Rothwell advised the area residents that plans on exhibit were by no means the final exhibit.

"There are thousands of questions to which we must bring up the answers so people can be thoroughly acquainted with the problems and their solutions," he said.

The answers will be resolved at meetings between members of the municipal councils and members of the Ontario Hydro Commission, Mr. Rothwell said.

He also stated that a parkway system similar to that at Niagara Falls will be established in the area.

Hydro has indicated places on the plans were deep water harbours may be established in each new community. Mr. Rothwell said these harbours will be developed if there is business to warrant it.

"The growth of this area has ben curtailed for many years, but with the model towns, the new railway and highway, with oil, and later, Alberta gas piped past your door, this is where industry will come," he said.

Professor Kent Barkley of the architectural department of the University of Toronto, who is working with Hydro in the planning for the area, said planning has now reached the second phase.

The first phase of planning was done out of contact with the people and was done mainly on assumptions, he said.

Now, Prof. Barkley said, planning is going ahead in direct reference to the needs and wants of the people of the area.

He asked Seaway Valley residents to discount rumours about plans until they see them themselves. He particularly stressed that the plans for the houses are only a sampling.

Hydro's plans are set up in the Township Hall against light-blue, curtained backdrops. A public address system, spot lights and banners advertising Ontario Hydro have been installed.

One end of the hall is taken up with a huge aerial photograph of the entire valley, showing every building.

Wouldn't Feed "Bunch of Canadians"

More than 500 Canadian mayors and their wives nearly missed dinner last Wednesday night.

A scheduled civic banquet for them came off only when a group of private residents, headed by L. C. Mariani, president of the Detroit common council, dug into their pockets for $2,000 to finance the dinner.

Delegates to the annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, being held at Windsor, were invited to tour Detroit ending up with a civic dinner. The invitation was accepted.

A Detroit citizen's group, called the Home Owners Civic Aassociation, protested the expenditure of $2,000 to feed "a bunch of Canadian mayors."

The group based its protest on a recent series of Michigan Supreme Court decisions which prevented the expenditure of funds on the entertainment of visiting dignitaries. The group threatened to sue the city since, under Michigan law, citizens can recover from the individuals responsible illegal expenditures of municipal funds.

Winchester Enrolment Sets Record

Winchester schools have a record enrolment this year, Principal Harry Potter reported.

There is one more teacher and one more room in the public school to accommodate the increased number of pupils.

The high school's former crowded condition will be improved with the South Carleton High School taking the Metcalfe and Vernon district pupils.

The public school staff consists of Harry Potter, principal, his assistant, Kay Morgatroyd; Olive Hughes, Maude Edgerton, Mrs. Arthur Thom and Allan Kerr.

Principal J. Howard Willard and his assistant, Wm. A. Servage, will head the high school staff. Other teachers are Miss Jean Benning, Miss Eileen Runions, Mrs. E. Slingerland, W. E. Bradley, C. H. King, W. Park and A. Wililams.

STEEL CELLS FORM CORE OF COFFERDAM

It has been announced at Massena that steel cells, 48 and 60 feet in diameter, will be used as the core of the two cofferdams which will link Long Sault Island wit h the mainland.

The Dravo Corp. has begun work on this phase of the project, the first step in the giant St. Lawrence River Power project undertaking.

Water between the two cofferdams will be drained off to permit 1,000 feet construction of the Long Sault control dam.

Sixty-foot steel cells will be driven into the river bottom. They will be placed in a series from the mainland to the island. Each cell will be filled with earth. Sand and gravel will be dumped on either side to form the cofferdam. Each cell will be joined by sheet piling.

The first dam, just west of Polley's Bay, will be approximately 500 feet long.

Before the river can be blocked off at this point, a channel must be dug across the island to divert the south channel water to the north.

Dravo Corp., a Pittsburgh firm, has two giant bulldozers at the site, crane, construction shacks and other equipment.

Land has been cleared and a rough road bulldozed from the St. Lawrence River Rd., to the edge of the river. Work is well underway on this phase of the construction.

Three shifts of workers will be maintained on the job, including piledrivers, carpenters and labourers. Fifteen to 20 men will be needed in each of three shifts.

Milk Producers Ask for More Daylight

The Ontario Milk Producers Association Thursday last urged the provincial governement "or other responsible bodies" to take steps to get one more hour of daylight for dairy farmers.

Delegates at a semi-annual meeting at Toronto passed a resolution saying "the present system of so-called daylight saving time" robs the farmer of the best hour of the day for haying and harvesting and replaces it with one when crops are covered with morning dew and cannot be harvested.

Ontario's Agriculture Minister Fletcher Thomas told the milk producers that the Milk Industry Act, soon to become law, will give more control to the dairy producer. Ontario's four main dairy groups would then operate toegther under one all-inclusive law rather than separately.

Donald Goodwille of the Federal Department of Agriculture said concentrated dairy products are not doing well on the foreign markets because export markets for such products have been greatly reduced.

That's Why

Adam and Eve were naming the animals of the earth when along came a rhinoceros.

"What shall we call that one?" asked Adam.

"Let's call it a rhinoceros."

"But why rhinoceros?"

"Well, because it looks more like a rhinoceros than anything we've named yet."

Committee's Proposals Sensible, Realistic

(The Cornwall Standard-Freeholder)

The Ontario Legislatures select committee on highway safety seems to be acting realistically and in the best interests of the motoring public in its decision to recommend a maximum 60-mile-per-hour speed limit on super highways throughout the province. This proposal should not come as a surprise in view of the fact that most motorists normally drive their cars at this rate of speed on these highways, provided conditions are suitable. But the law, as it stands at present, sets 50 m.p.h. as the maximum speed on all Ontario highways.

The select committee's recomendation comes after long and exhaustive study of the highway speed limit situation. No doubt the fact that a 60 m.p.h. limit on American turnpike roads has not increased the accident rate had a lot to do with the committee's decision to recommend a similar maximum limit on Ontario super highways. The 50 m.p.h. limit for all other provincial roads will remain in effect, however. This, we think, is a wise decision considering that few, if any, of our standard highways possess the physical features that would permit any increase of the maximum speed limit. We would hate to think of the outcoe, for instance, if authorities saw fit to boost the speed limit on No. 2 Highway in the Morrisburg-Cornwall area. Although other provincial highways do not possess the hazardous characteristics of notorious "No. 2," the fact is that most of them simply are not built to allow any greater maximum speed than 50 m.p.h.

The select committee, which has been at work for some months, has other interesting proposals which it will submit to the Legislature for approval. Among these are that drivers entering a highway from a side road should not have the right of way even when approaching from the right; that school buses should have a distinctive colour; that railway crossings should be floodlit at night;and that there should be stiffer penalties for those convicted of driving while intoxicated. These recommendations, along with the proposal to boost the speed limit on super highways are definitely realistic and sensible in every way and take into account modern traffic conditions. It is essential that out-dated laws be amended to keep in step with changed conditions which bring new hazards. The Legislature would do well to adopt these recommendations.

English Tramps Emigrating to France

Finding the welfare state oppressively attentive to them, Britains tramps are beginning to emigrate to Europe.

Ernest Henson, a bearded gentleman with 30 years' experience of the road, said at a recent press conference that reports from France have been so promising that at least half-a-dozen colleagues have decided in one week to shake Britain's dust from their dispirited feet.

Mr. Henson believes the rot set in in 1948, when the Labour government, zealous for welfare, officially classed Britain's tramps as "persons without a settled way of life."

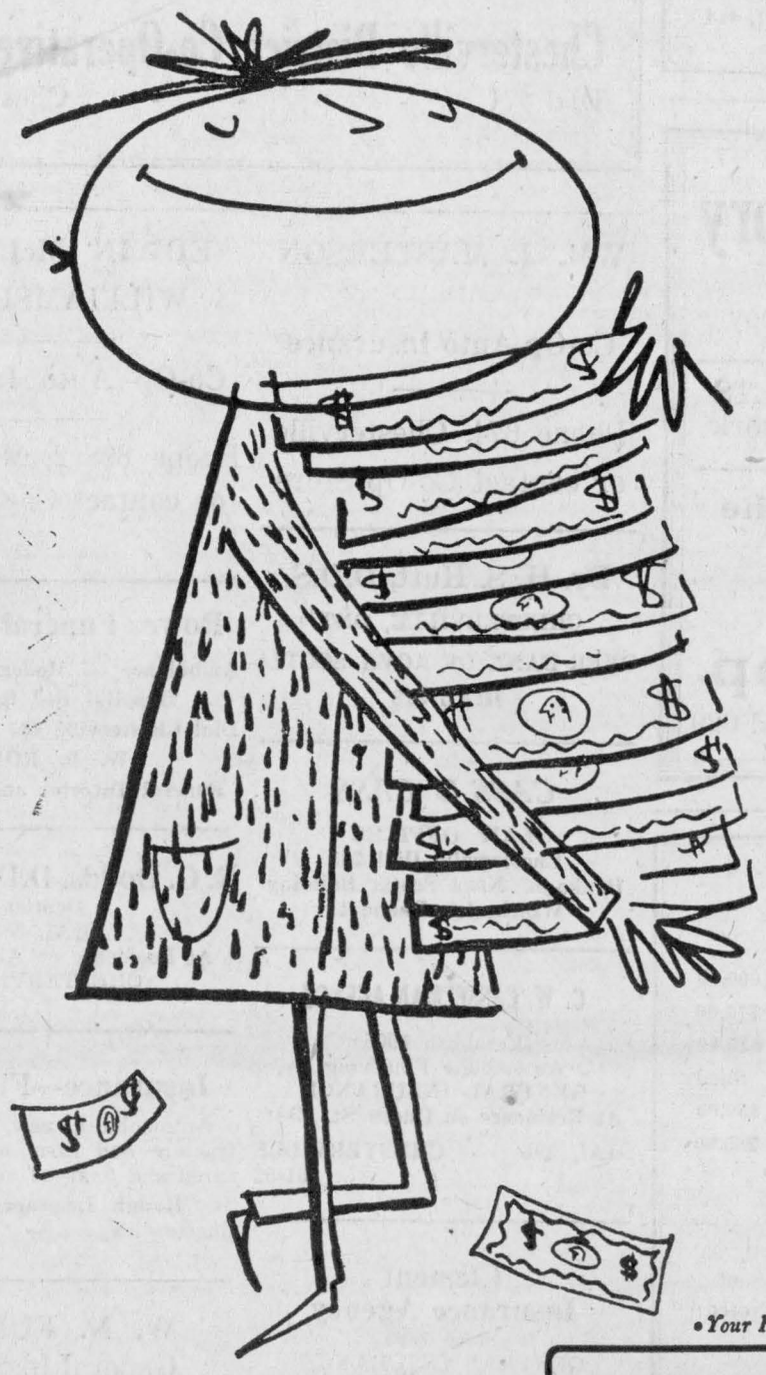

Since then, he says, "we have been docketed, checked, lugged into new-fangled reception stations instead of casual wards, persuaded to give up our way of life and take regular jobs, bathed, quizzed and generally treated as prehistoric freaks . . ."

"Worst of all, instead of allowing us to kip down in a hayrick and giving us breakfast in return for an odd job or two, farmers now refer us to the nearest hostel."

"All this has just smashed tramping as a way of life."

Canadians roughly ate four pounds more bakers' bread each in 1952 than they did in 1951.

Canada is the best customer the United States has.

"Then I came upon a PSP booklet, on the counter at The Bank of Nova Scotia. It looked good. Had a word about it with folk at the Bank. PSP turned out to be just the kind of plan that might do a little miracle for my wife and me."

"What I like about PSP is that it forces me to save. I signed a contract pledging myself to put a small monthly instalment into my PSP account. I'm not going to touch that PSP money. It's there to pile up for 50 months until I reach the savings-goal I've chosen."

"I can get the money anytime, but what's keeping me sold on the PSP rules is the guarantee that if I were to die suddenly—I'm not planning on it, mind you—my wife would get the full amount of my savings-goal. Even if I had only put in a fraction of it. She'd get everything I would have saved at the end of 50 months."

"It's the most painless way to save—and get interest—I know of. You should see my bank book now."

Nine-year-old Morrisburg Boy Drowns in Canal Sailors Provide Lead for Recovery of Body

Sailors on a St. Lawrence River freighter provided the lead by which the body of nine-year-old Harry Clayton "Jake" Prunner was discovered Sunday in the Williamsburg Canal at Lock No. 23 at Morrisburg.

It is believed the boy, a non-swimmer, fell into the canal while riding his bicycle on the lock wall. The body was recovered at 9.15 p.m. in 20 feet of water, just six feet from where his bicycle was found at the canal bottom 10 minutes earlier.

This ended a day-long search for the boy throughout the district by Const. Clare Van Allen of Morrisburg town police and friends and members of the boy's family.

It was 9.30 a.m. Sunday when men on a freighter making its way through the canal noticed that a lad who had been on the lock wall had suddenly disappeared. They reported this to the lock superintendent. Together they went to the spot, but saw nothing, and thought they must have been mistaken.

Reported Missing

The youngster was reported missing by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ruben Prunner, of Morrisburg, at 11 a.m. After fruitless search during the afternoon the town fire siren was sounded. The Prunner boy was in the habit of following fire trucks on his bicycle and it was hoped he might show up at the fire hall.

Const. Van Allen did not learn of the sailor's story until early evening when he was approached by the canal superintendent. On investigating the scene he noticed the barely visible tracks of the bicycle leading to the edge of the stone wall. There is a drop of about six feet to the water.

Grappling hooks caught hold on the lad's bicycle only five minutes after dragging operations begun. Const. Van Allen was assisted by OPP Constables Earl McDougall, Raymond Dow and Herbert Myers.

"Jake," as the boy was popularly known, attended Morrisburg Public School and was a member of the town Cub Pack. He did gardening work for neighbours and ran messages on the "bike" which had been given him by the family four months ago by a family friend.

He leaves his parents and two sisters, Donna, 8, and Shannon, 3.

The funeral was held on Wednesday in the Morrisburg United Church.

Birtwistle—McLatchie

Standards and baskets of multicoloured gladioli decorated the altar of St. Paul's United Church, Cornwall, when Enid Lorene McLatchie, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. W. L. McLatchie, Cornwall, became the bride of Donald Henry Birtwistle. Mount Forest, Ont., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Birtwistle, Toronto. Rev. Harold N. Burgess officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ankle-length gown of white eyelet organza. The full skirt was made of three tiers with three net underskirts. The fitted lace jacket with long sleeves ending in points at the hands topped a strapless bodice. A pearl-studded tiara held her shoulder length veil of tulle illusion. She carried a nosegay of white baby roses.

The brides' sister, Miss Elaine McLatchie, was maid of honour. Donald Lyon, Ottawa, was best man. Ushers were Thomas Magee, Morrisburg, and Burns McIntyre, Avonmore.

A reception was held in the lower hall of St. Pauls' Church which was decorated with gladioli, dahlias and white wedding bells. Later the couple left on a wedding trip to Quebec City ,the bride travelling in a navy and white polka dot strapless dress, under sheer navy net, white hat, navy accessories and a corsage of white shredded carnations.

They will reside in Mount Forest, Ont., where both are on the staff of Mount Forest High School.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Jean Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Graham McPherson, of Chesterville Miss Luella McPherson, Williamsburg; Mr .and Mrs. Hugh Smith, Maxville.

Refinish Old Furniture It Pays!

The comfort and appearance of furniture affects the comfort and appearance —and safety — of a home to a large degree. Much worn furniture can be repaired and refinished to make it as useful and attractive as when it was before refinishing, however, make sure the furniture is worth the time and cost involved, advises Caroline Judson, Home Designing Specialist, Alberta Department of Agriculture. Then make all repairs such as fixing legs, tightening joints and replacing rungs. The old glue should be removed from each part by scraping and rubbing with sandpaper. Animal glue is preferred for gluing the rungs and joints in place again, but casein and synthetic glue have good strength and plastic wood is quite satisfactory.

Before removing the old finish completely , it is wise to decide on the type of new finish desired. Painted surfaces should have a good quality paint which dries to a hard finish. Several thin coats of paint well brushed into the wood are better than one thick coat.

Varnish is a hard finish. It is easily cleaned but like paint it scratches easily. Choose a varnish which dries to a hard finish and is moisture and heat resistant. A good clear lacquer has the advantage of being quite waterproof. It is extremely tough and resistant to mars and cratches. A penetrating wood seal is a somewhat newer type of finish for furniture. It penetrates the wood, protects it and does not spot and leaves no hard surface to scratch. It can be easily cleaned and patched.

A commercial paint and varnish remover is usually more efficient and safer to use to remove the old finish than a home-made type. It is highly inflammable and should be used in a well ventilated room. Apply remover with a paint brush, allow to stand until the finish is softened and then scrape off with a putty knife, the last layer with steel wool. Once the old finish is removed and the surface smoothed you are ready to apply the new finish.

All provinces reported increases in turkey population, ranging from 2 per cent in Saskatchewan to 21 per cent in Quebec.

Now Be Quiet

Mrs. Y: "Well, I must go now. I promised to visit my mother."

Mrs. Z.: "Why, you don't mean to say you have a mother living?"

Mrs. Y.: "Oh, yes, and believe me, she doesn't look a day older than you do!"

Relax

"I'm a bit worried about my wife," said Brown. "She was talking in her sleep, and said "No, Frank, no Frank."

"Well, what are you worrying about?" demanded his friend. "She said 'No,' didn't she?"

Grooming Brings A Gleam to Leather

Leather accessories, from shoes and gloves to belts, wallets, bags and compacts ,are smart and attractive. But to be at their flexible, gleaming best, they require fastidious grooming.

Saddle soap and shoe polish are not cleaners, you know. They are merely preservative agents which renew the oil supply that should be in all leather.

There is no cleaner like mild soap rubbed over the surface of the item to be cleaned with a damp, soft nap cloth. For a sparkling shine use floor wax. Rub it on with a damp cloth, then buy hard. Car wax is excellent too, but in this case don't use water. Rub the wax on just as it comes out of the can in heavy paste form; then buff well for fine lustre. Not only does it give leather things a handsome shine, but it protects them against scuffing and scratching. It's a good idea to wax new leather purse accessories before putting them to use. Leather handbags should always be gleaming and fresh.

Care should be taken in cleaning coloured leathers. Just as in fabrics, not all colours in leather are fast. Test first with a damp cloth and if a great deal of colour comes off, the only cleaning recommended is with a damp cloth and soap, rubbed gently but evenly over the soiled surface.

If stitching has become loose, don't try to sew it yourself. The mended spot will only stick out like a sore thumb. Take it to a luggage store for a professional job.

If your leather wallet or key case has got wet, place it between two clean blotters under some heavy object such as a book. When the excess water has been blotted out, expose it to the air and let it dry naturally away from radiators or other artificial drying devices. Then go at it with saddle soap and wax.

If the ugly stains remain, apply a thick coat of lemon oil and repeat this procedure for two or three days, or until the entire surface of the stained article has darkened to the shade of the spots.

Daffynitions

Inflation: Instead of not having the money you haven't, you have twice as much but it is worth only half of what you haven't now.

Motorist: A person who, after seeing a wreck, drives carefully for several blocks.

Filing System: Method of misplacing things systematically.

Mason-Dixon Line: Boundary between you-all and youse.

King Cobra Foils Murder Attempt

A would-be murderer was killed in the jungles of Hyderabad State in India while he prepared to fell his sister withan axe.

Reports reaching Bombay said the girl had refused to part with some gold, her share in family property. As her brother raised the axe, it brushed against a bush, rousing the snake which stung him fatally.

A search party found he man's body with the snake coiled around it and the girl lying in a faint nearby.

BUY THE BEST WHEN BUYING UTENSILS

The lucky bride presented with a set of kitchen utensils has no choice and no decisions to make in the purchase of her cooking equipment. She takes what is given to her with a "thank you" and it's likely to be the best, anyway.

But if you have missed out in this line and are going to be spending money for pots and pans, you should give the problem serious study. It's thriftier to spend a little more on sturdy utensils than on less well made ones. The better the utensil is constructed the longer it will last and the better job it will do.

Construction features to check include handles and lids, shape and weight. Handle-joining should be firm and smooth. Riveted handles should be tightly fastened to the pan. Wooden handles stay cool to the touch but may char if left too close to flames. Plastic handles are less likely to char, but may chip or break.

The pan shaped with smooth, flat bottom, wide corners and rounded edges is easier to clean than one that has sharp corners and decorative grooves or crevices.

Heavy or medium weight utensils hold heat better than light weight ones and are less apt to warp or buckle. Polished metal does not absorb heat as readily as duller finishes. For that reason the bottom of utensils should have a dull finish.

In Lafayette, Ind., thieves broke into a haberdashery store and stole $18 worth of boys' shirts, each embroidered with the legend: "I'm a Little Stinker."

A St. Norbert College professor reported to Green Bay, Wis., police that 350 "highly trained cockroaches," valued at $500 and used in an experiment were stolen from the back seat of his car.

Care for Those Floors

If you decide to choose a smooth floor covering to put down in your living room instead of a rug, you are not being old-fashioned. In fact, you're quite up-to-date on this business of having a home that's easy to care for and yet pretty.

Smooth floor coverings have become much more practical in recent years, according to Irene Crouch, home management agent of the North Dakota Extension Service. The one-storey, open-plan arrangement for homes, coupled with newer heating methods, has prompted this trend toward use o f hard floor coverings in many rooms of the house.

Inlaid linoleum comes in different weights in which the colour penetrates through to the backing. A new process, now being used, builds the colcur from the botton up rather than working from the surface down. If you choose inlaid linoleum be sure you lay it over an even floor, cautions Miss Crouch.

Felt base linoleum is relatively inexpensive. Designs are printed on the surface and are, therefore, not too permanent.

Asphalt tile is another low-cost flooring. It is very serviceable and can be installed over almost any type of sub-floor or in basements. It is not bothered by alkalies, but is harmed by grease, fats and oils. For kitchens or home workshops, grease-proof asphalt tile is best.

If you decide on rubber tile, get the soft-surface tile. It is designed for home use for it is springy and easy to walk on. If you use rubber tile in the kitchen, protect it well with self-polishing wax. Oils and grease bother it.

Ceramic tile, cork, vinyl plastic, quarry tile and brick are other hard floor coverings to investigate. Each has a definite use. All such floor coverings are easy to care for —a help in this day of busy living.

MAKE A FINE TRAY FROM PICTURE FRAME

A picture frame makes a fine tray.

An attractive bottom can be formed in various ways. One is a clear glass pane secured by thin molding on the back. Or a colourful picture can be used under the glass. By using a backing of tempered cardboard you can lay colourful tiles or a sheet of marbelized plastic for the bottom—plastic laminate of the kitchen counter type.

Gordon Obrig, industrial designer, suggests using an unfinished modern frame of oak or ash in required size. His instructions for finishing a frame follow:

Sand the bare wood smooth with fine production paper and dust thoroughly. For a pickled finish, apply a coat of white shellac enamel, dip a rag in alcohol and rub off the surplus, leaving the pigment in the pores of the wood.

When this has dried, rub it lightly with fine steel wool and dust it again. Then apply two coats of 5-pound pure white shellac, cut half and half with alcohol. Let the last coat dry overnight.

This finish is then sanded lightly with very fine production paper and dusted. A thin coat of good paste wax is then put on and let dry for at least an hour. Then buff and you have a professional-looking finish.

DICK MACDOUGAL — Dick has always been a "character"; his friends knew this from 'way back. The public, however, took longer to find out.Jazz fans were the first to get to know MacDougal from his work on popular music shows. With the advent of television, all this changed. His appearances as host on CBC's "Jazz with Jackson" drew raves from TV critics and producers. In short order he was booked as a regular personality on CBC-TV's "Tabloid." His easy going, relaxed manner set the pace for the show, and, with Percy Saltzman and Elaine Grand, it is easily Canadian television's most popular show. MacDougal hasn't foresaken jazz; he still carries on with "Jazz Unlimited" on the CBC Dominion network, and recently was heralded, by Downbeat Magazine, as "Canada's number one jazz authority."

Growing Tea in Canada

Canadians may yet see the day when both their tea and toast are home-grown. Arthur Wm. Jarvis hopes it won't be long before British Columbia can supply all the nation's tea.

Eighty years old and a retired magistrate, Mr. Jarvis started experimenting with tea growing at his big farm near Victoria, B.C., and last year he grew, processed and packaged 1,000 pounds of it. He plants his own shrubs, harvests the leaf crop eight to ten times each season and sures and packages the product at home. Mr. Jarvis was stipendiary magistrate for many years.

He found that imported tea plants from India do not thrive in Canada's cooler climate, so the five varieties of Jarvis tea are made entirely from leaves of trees native to British Columbia. He has found Canadian black walnut best for a fine tasting tea.

"My B.C.-grown tea is fully as good as any imported tea," he says. "I had trouble for a time with what people described as a slightly green taste, but I've beaten that now."

He has sold his product to two department stores, but is seeking markets in the United States and expects to incorporate a company shortly.

New Style Plates For Ontario Cars

New-style licence plates are to be carried by Ontario vehicles in 1955, Highways Minister Doucett announced recently.

No letters will appear on the first 999,999 passenger car plates and from then on, one letter will be used for each 100,000.

Mr. Doucett said a registration plate is only as legible as its smallest figure or letter and there had been considerable confusion in attemptingto distinguish between such letters as V and Y, N and M, C and G.

Although the figures on the new plates will be half an inch shorter than those now usd, the legibility of the plate will be increased by omitting the three-inch letters, officials said.

Ontario is co-operating with Canadian provinces and the U.S. in adopting a standard size plate, six inches by twelve inches, with all figures and letters 3½ inches high. This is at the request of the automobile manufacturers who are planning better means of attachment and illumination, partcularly of rear registration plates in 1956 models.

Inner Tubes On the Way Out

The inner tube may be on its way out as the air container for vehicle tires.

Just about every tire manufacturer now is making or planning to make tubeless tires for passenger automobiles. Some rubber companies are going even farther, they plan tubeless casing for all forms of vehicles using tires. This includes air-craft and off-the-road vehicles.

Most manufacturers are expected to offer the tubeless casings as standard equipment on 1955 model cars. Packard already has announced that tubeless tires will be available at no extra cost on its forthcoming new models.

Companies offering the tubeless tires will have the conventional tire and tube combination as "optional" equipment for motorists who prefer the traditional unit.

The tubeless units will become standard equipment because tire makers have succeeded in producing them to sell at the same price as the casing and tube combination.

For the tire makers, the principal saving in building tubeless rather than conventional tires is in the rubber required for the inner tube. This now is generally the butyl, or synthetic, rubber developed and perfected during and following the Second World War.

Some rubber industry spokesmen say the tubeless tire will replace the casing and tube combination generally within another five years. The progress made with tubeless casings in reecnt years seems to justify this prediction.

Most of the tubeless casings being offered as original equipment to the car makers are of the "puncture protection," rather than puncture proof" type. Some of the latter are being made in so-called "premium" tires.

With the puncture proof type the sealant fills up the hole when the puncture-causing object is removed. In the puncture protection version, tests show nails and other objects entering the casing normally remain in the casing and permit no air to escape until they are removed.

Make it a hard and fast rule never to touch electrictl appliances with wet hands. Before cleaning any such appliances, be sure they are unplugged.

Stir vigorously while adding until the mixture again comes to the boil; then allow to simmer very slowly until it is a thick, heavy syrup. While the syrup is cooking, fix up he balance of the blackberries by washing and removing stems, then when the syrup is thick, pour over the fresh blackberries. Stir and put them away to chill thoroughly.

To Serve This Mouth-watering Dessert

Whip a half pint of farm-fresh cream and fill your pastry shell with the whipped cream, spreading until level. Then on top of the whipped cream, place the cold blackberries and heavy syrup. Folks, believe me, this pie is fabulous eating—just try it.

Albert Lavigne Elected Liberal Candidate To Contest By-election to be Held in Stormont

Albert Lavigne, deputy-reeve of Cornwall Township, Tuesday night was elected Liberal candidate to contest the by-election to be held in Stormont, probably October 25.

Mr. Lavigne was one of six men nominated at the Stormont Liberal Association's convention held in Finch Arena. All but two of the nominees withdrew their names from nomination.

The successful candidate for the nomination was opposed by William Legault, Moose Creek. Mr. Lavigne won the nomination on the first ballot by a count of 170 to 51.

Two delegates from each of the 120 polls in the federal riding were entitled to a vote. Almost 1,000 persons attended the convention.

The by-election is necessary due the recent resignation of Stormont MP and Transport Minister, Lionel Chevrier. Mr. Chevrier is now president of the Seaway Authority.

Others nominated were: Stormont MPP Peter Manley, Berwick; Dr. J. Bruno Rouleau, of Cornwall; Clement Pariesien, Cornwall; B. C. MacIntosh, Berwick.

While addressing the convention, Finance Minister Walter Harris paid tribute to Mr. Chevrier. He said that since the former transport minister had served Stormont and Canada so exceptionally well he would be difficult to replace as Stormont MP.

"But don't let anyone conduct this campaign on the basis that he can't be replaced. Mr. Chevrier would be the first to tell you that Liberal successes in this riding have been due to a firm foundation of Liberalism and much hard work by members of the party association," the cabinet minister said.

Referring to Progressive-Conservative national party president George Hees' statement that the federal government has sold out Canada on the St. Lawrence Seaway, Mr. Harris said he fully expected to someday attend the official opening of an all-Candian Seaway.

He explained that the Liberal government has said a 27-foot canal will be constructed on this side of the St. Lawrence when it is warranted by the volume of traffic.

Speaking of the state of business in Canada, the finance minister said the state of depression forecast for Canada by the government's political enemies has not materialized.

Mr. Harris said there are from 70,000 to 80,000 more unemployed persons in Canada now than at this time last year, but that his governement will, if necessary, take direct steps to prevent a return to conditions of 1930-35. He reminded the convention the Conservative party was in power at that time.

"We do not intend to permit a return to the depression state experienced once before in this country," he said.

The apparent recent decline in national revenue, he said, is due to a decline in the sale of Canadian wheat. The western wheat harvest will be considerably smaller this year by as much as 250,000,000 bushels, an dit may well be that the carry over from last year may be needed.

"I am not even slightly pessimistic. In a short time Canada's standard of living will equal and even surpass that of the U.S. This will come about through an increase in production and consumption because Canada is going to expand," Mr. Harris said.

When nominating Mr. Lavigne, William Stiles, Cornwall, said he had been president of the Stormont Liberal Association for five years, that he had been a member of the council of Ontario's second largest township for six years and one as deputy-reeve, that he is a member of the board of directors of St. Lawrence Sanitorium, a member of the United Counties council and a prominent Cornwall businessman.

The nomination was seconded by Joseph H. Aube, Moose Creek.

Mr. Manley said he felt it was his duty to decline the nomination since the people of Stormont had elected him to represent them in the Ontario legislature. His acceptance ,he said, would mean he would have to resign as Stormont MPP, causing another by-election and additional expense to taxpayers.

He pledged his support to Mr. Lavigne and said he would work to keep Stormont a Liberal stronghold.

"I know I can win," Mr. Lavigne said, "but this will not be an easy task and can only be done with the help and hard work of all members of the association."

If elected, Mr. Lavigne promised to do his best to serve the riding as it was served by Mr. Chevrier for the past 19 years.
