Rare Competitive Market For Ontario Hogs In July -- McInnis

A rare competitive market for Ontario hogs developed during July, Charles McInnis, president of the Ontario Hog Producers Association, stated last week.

"This unusually competitive situation, which pushed hog prices from $33 to a high of $38 resulted from a combination of flow of 20% of Ontario hogs through 10 open markets operated by the Ontario Hog Producers Marketing Agency," Mr. McInnis said.

"Government figures indicate an increased hog crop. This will boost offerings later this year," Mr. McInnis predicted. "Once offerings increase, competitions will drop back to its old pattern, and unfortunately the influence of the Marketing Agency's 20% open-marketing operations upon competition will be lessened. Full competition will be in action in Ontario only when the Marketing Agency moves 100% of Ontario's hogs through the Agency's ten open markets."

"The marketing legislation which the Marketing Board of the Ontario Hog Producers requires before directing 100% of Ontario hogs through open markets for competitive bidding is about ready for enforcement," Mr. McInnis said.

"The Board's regulations under the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Act have been approved, and we now only require the approval of the extension of these regulations by the Federal Government under the Agricultural Products Marketing Act. Given a fair opportunity to utilize this legislation for a reasonable period of time, we are confident that we will be able to restore full competition to Ontario's hog industry," Mr. McInnis said.

MacIntosh Clan Annual Picnic To Be Held August 17 At Johnstown

An event that is gaining in magnitude each year—the MacIntosh Clan annual picnic and sports day—will be held on Saturday, August 17 on the grounds of the summer residence of Dr. Pember A. MacIntosh, at Johnstown on the St. Lawrence River, three miles east of Prescott. It is situated just west of the junction of Highways 2 and 16.

People whose name is MacIntosh or who have MacIntosh blood in their veins, come from far distant points in Canada and the United States, to hear speeches by prominent men, have their babies baptized, and take part in a sports program that includes caber tossing and shot putting.

Dr. MacIntosh, of Spencerville, self-styled head of the MacIntosh clan in Eastern Canada, organizes the show each year and sends out invitations to people from coast to coast. This will be the 18th annual basket picnic Dr. MacIntosh has organized.

Prominent Speakers

Speakers this year include F. M. Cass, QC MPP; W. Floyd Gilleland, MLA for Peace River, Alta.; Solon Low, MP, Peace River, Alta., and Lee McKnight.

Rev. John Hurst, of Dalkeith, will conduct the baptismal service of infants.

Bagpipe music and Highland dancing will be provided by Jas. MacIntosh Kellog-Clarke, Buffalo N. Y., and a local pipe band.

The sports races include boys and girls races, a fat man's race, a tug-of-war, tossing the caber and putting the shot.

Dr. J. W. Clarke Preaching At Half Moon Bay

Well known to Winchester and district citizens, Dr. James W. Clarke, D.D., Professor of Homiletics at Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N. J. will be the guest speaker at the well known Half Moon Bay Vesper Services near Gananoque in the Thousand Islands for the next three Sundays.

Dr. Clarke started his series last Sunday evening and his four-week engagement marks the first time in the history of the Half Moon Bay services that a minister has been engaged to speak more than one Sunday.

DR. JAMES W. CLARKE

He will reside in a cottage on Bostwick Island during the month of August.

For his series Dr. Clarke has taken a leaf from the book of the great mystery writer Earle Stanley Gardener, who entitled many of his intriguing tales "The Case Of . . .". Dr. Clarke believes that the New Testament offers many fascinating cases, so his series will be prefixed with "The Case Of . . ." His opening address last Sunday was captioned "The Case of the Cry at [illegible]." He will follow this Sunday with The Crooked Dwarf and continue on the last two Sundays with The Scurvy Beggar and The Clutching Hand.

Dr. Clarke is at present Interim minister of the famous Plymouth Church of the Pilgrims, Brooklyn. He is also guest preacher for the Lenten Season on each Thursday evening in the National Presbyterian Church at Washington and Holy Week preacher in Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago.

Dr. Clarke who started his ministry in Hallville, is to-day one of the North American continent's leading clergymen. He is also well known as radio and television speaker, lecturer, writer and social worker.

George Rupert Shoots Hole In-One On Ninth At Cornwall Golf Club

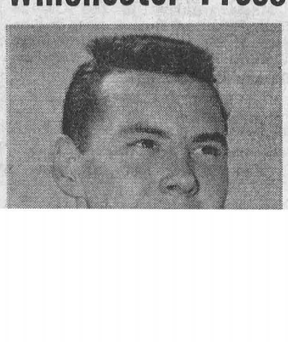

Odds in getting a hole-in-one in a game of golf are so slim that even the most ardent golfer just dreams about the day it may happen. Seldom it does, and when this sporting miracle does happen it becomes national news. Just recently likeable George Rupert, of Finch, well known in Winchester and district and a popular bowler at Flora's Lanes, accomplished the impossible when he shot a hole-in-one at Cornwall Golf and Country Club.

Needless to add, it was the greatest sporting thrill of George's lifetime and a week after it happened he was still justly beaming with pride. It happened like this. George was playing in a foursome with Len Winchester, Bob McCay and Willard Stephenson. On the eighth (two under) for, it [illegible] stood, the boys had a little ante on the game. So it was decided that the pay would be double for an eagle.

The par 3 ninth hole at Cornwall is 140 yards long. The green slopes slightly to the tee. Using a 5 iron George hit a perfect strike as his ball landed just beyond the hole and carried backward with the slope dropping directly into the cup. It was the first hole-in-one at Cornwall this year and one of the few which will be shot anywhere during the current golf season.

George is playing a pretty mean game these days. His total for the nine in the above mentioned round was a very good 38. Par is 36 for the nine holes at Cornwall.

Patronize The Blood Bank

A good habit of most serious thinking individuals is to drop around to the bank every once in awhile to make a deposit in the Savings account. This is a good practice and one we heartily endorse if the where-with-all is available.

Most of us have more blood than money for deposit, but it's surprising how little the Blood Bank, an equally important bank of savings accounts, is used. Savings in this case refers to life, for our blood may one day, if donated to a Blood Bank, be used to save the life of an unfortunate accident victim or someone seriously ill.

The District Memorial Hospital has such a Blood Bank. Like most other blood banks it is constantly on the lookout for more and more depositors to keep its capital (blood) high enough to look after practically all needs.

Every type of blood is needed and the only way the Blood Bank can operate is to have a frequent supply of donors. In this way blood transfusion costs are kept at an absolute minmum and the access to all types of blood is readily available right here. Before, it was necessary to transport this precious stuff from Ottawa.

Interest in saving lives is a highly commendable project. Why not drop around to the family physician, have a check-up to determine whether you can donate blood. If you can, visit the Winchester District Memorial Hospital Blood Bank where you will be most welcome, and where your excess blood will be put to a most important use.

The Wild Women

The custom, started some time ago, of listing each year's Atlantic hurricanes by girls' names in alphabetical order, is convenient for meteorologists and newspapers but has its inconveniences for young parents looking for suitable names for female offspring. One can imagine that Audrey, after this year, will be regarded as a name of ill omen in the southern states. Hazel, a few years ago, established a reputation for wildness from the Gulf of Mexico to well into Canada, says The Printed Word.

Parents, for the time being at least, are are fairly safe in choosing names for their daughters from the second half of the alphabet. As a rule, the annual hurricane season is ended before Monica, Nora and Olive get a chance at the headlines. Roberta, Sally and Theodora are virtually immune. Remembering the Empress Theodora, one may regard this as unfair, for she was a hurricane of a woman if there ever was one.

Feminists have already protested about the naming system, contending that men should be given a share of the odium attaching to tropical storms. Their complaint is fairly safe in that it would be unfair to the fair sex to name a storm after a man. Besides, the storms are usually named after the women who are driving the men crazy.

OF MANY THINGS . . . .

GOOD MEDICINE

(By Ambrose Hills)

I was at a convention—a fish out of water—and tired from travelling. On top of that I had a virus accompanied by dizzy spells. Then it all cleared up in an instant, because a gruff old chap sitting beside me administered two quick shots of medicine. Potent medicine, too, which ought to be used oftener, so I'm passing along the prescription.

"You're Ambrose Hills, aren't you?" he said, nudging me so hard I felt another dizzy spell coming on. I nodded, and he gave me the first injection. "I like your stuff. Not fancy, but straight from the shoulder. You write well."

From this man—an established writer of real merit—this was a morale-booster I badly needed at the time. I stuttered my thanks, and then we listened to the speakers on the panel which had just begun. It was a panel on the subject of writing, and the men were all experts.

When it was over and a recess announced, the old fellow plucked my sleeve. "Will you have a coffee with me? I've been wanting to meet you."

Well, enemies, friends and relations, my virus, my dizzy spells and my fatigue were gone. I was chipper through the whole convention, and I'm still feeling the the glow.

I know he laid it on. I think he may have noticed that I was looking poorly and he went out of his way to give me the treatment. But it would have been easy for him to have muttered a few kind words and stopped there. Instead, there was that invitation to coffee. There was his interest in getting acquainted. And now, home from the convention, there is a note from him, saying how pleased he was that we'd met.

I suppose, at this very moment, famous scientists are struggling hard to come up with new wonder drugs or tranquillizers and I wish them well . . . but at the same time, I'd like to warn them they've a rival. There's that gruff old Canadian writer who sat beside me dispensing wonder drugs far more beneficial than any they'll find in a test tube!

And take note of this. He hasn't put a patent on the medicine, either. You and I are free to dispense it whenever we see a suffering soul who needs a shot or two.

MEDITATIONS . . . . .

(By Cecil W. Tuininga)

I Corinthians, 6:20—"For ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body."

"Did you watch the fight last night?" Undoubtedly this question was heard on almost every part of this continent the morning after the Patterson-Jackson world heavyweight championship fight. Undoubtedly too, that most of the population on this continent watched on TV or listened over the radio to this exciting contest. I suppose that it would be safe to say that professional fighters command a larger audience than any other man or men in entertainment, politics, or religion.

Why should we have such an interest in such fighting? When killed. Yet the sweetheart or wife of either boxer tensely awaits the outcome of another fight because John or Bill may receive permanent physical injury, with possible permanent mental injury.

It is not simply a matter of a fear for bodily injury that must make us have a repulsiveness for such prize-fighting. Is not simply a matter of an aversion for the brutality of such a fight either that we must find it disgusting. It is rather that we realize that two men, both of them image-bearers of the Living God, are using their God-given bodies for purposes contrary to God's will, while subjecting these bodies to real danger.

Living ... sweetheart or ance. Of the body the apostle Paul writes: "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?"—(I Cor. :19). It is therefore a matter of real importance just how we use our bodies. It is just because God demands our service both with body and soul that we must be careful with our bodies, both as to how we use them and how we care for them.

Listening to God's Word concerning the importance and use of our bodies, one wonders how professional fighting has gained such popularity in two countries which both boast of being Christian. There certainly ought to be some pretty strong resent- ... the ignition switch off and on

The 7th Column

Civic Holiday week-end has come and gone, but with it went 92 Canadian lives. Of the 92 holiday fatalities 52 were caused on the nation's highways. It seems like a shameful waste of humanity when one realizes that all of these highway deaths were caused by carelessness and could have been prevented. Maybe the horse and buggy days weren't so bad after all!

No wonder there are more women drivers every day. Look at all the cars being won at bingos.

Royal Bank staff members here were some of the few who did not have time off this year to enjoy the annual Civic Holiday. In years gone by a Proclamation appeared in The Press proclaiming the first Monday in August as a Civic Holiday in Winchester. In order that Bank staff members may take the holiday it must be proclaimed by the municipality. This year it was not proclaimed and the whole matter was an innocent affair and just one of those things that happen from time to time.

Over the week-end we watched a well handled bulldozer complete a basement digging job that in days gone by would have taken a couple of men with shovel, pick, horse and scoop, many, many days. The bulldozer, powerful and agile, picked up the hard pan under the top soil like fragile toys and in a matter of hours two good size basements had been cleanly dug. Just a little home grown proof of the importance of modern machinery in to-day's living and the even more importance of the operator's skill. For the bulldozer would be useless without the operator behind the controls.

Most of their single transactions may be less than 5 cents, but there's no doubt that the 300 men who are meeting in Ottawa this month run the biggest business in the world.

It pays to START them right . .

Purina Chick Startena is so well known and so widely used that it scarcely needs an introduction! Year by year, Purina Research keeps on stepping up its efficiency, until now the results in vigor, feathering, growth and feed economy are really remarkable. Feed 2 lbs. Startena for light breeds, 3 lbs. for heavies, and they're off to a good flying start, ready to make good use of the Purina growing ration that fits your situation.

Purina Calf Startena saves you time and work, and raises mighty good calves—big and strong, but not coarse. You feed it dry, free choice, from the 4th day through the 4th month—cut off milk or gruel at the end of the first month.

. . . and KEEP them coming!

Rough your young stuff through the spring and summer and they'll rough you through the fall, and the winter, too, in the case of heifers and pullets. Quite often the poultry raiser makes or breaks his flock between 5 weeks and 5 months.

Good grass is a great help, but it's 84% water. So even on good grass, see that your growing stock of all kinds gets a good growing ration, and gets it regularly.

Purina Pig Startena is a real "find" for the hog man. Creep-feed the little fellows Baby Pig Chow, beginning at one week old . . . then when the litter has eaten 50 lbs. of the Chow fill up the trough with Pig Startena, and watch them come! This combination gets them going on solid feed early and lifts them over weaning without a setback. Try it, it really works!
