EGGS

The Market continues strong with a further advance of two cents per dozen during the last week. We strongly advise to market your eggs when fresh—not to sell them as seconds, when they should have gone extras; there is a big premium on good fresh eggs.

Millfeed

The Millfeed situation is acute—very little Middlings to be had, and no prospect of coming down until wheat reaches such a level as to enable Europe to buy flour.

With VALSPAR on your floors, the living room, dining room, bed rooms, kitchen—every room in the house—will always look bright and fresh. You can wash them as often as you like, for soap and water, either hot or cold, will never harm Valspar. No polishing oils are necessary.

Wet shoes and dripping umbrellas will leave no mark on the Valspar in your hall.

Wherever you have Linoleum, Congoleum or Oilcloth in your home, varnish it with VALSPAR after it has been on the floor three or four months. The Valspar will not only brighten it, but will make it last a great deal longer because Valspar will protect the surface from wear and absolutely prevent the penetration of moisture.

Outside, on your door and porch, Valspar laughs at rain, anow and sun.

Beyond all question, Valspar is the most efficient household varnish in the world. Don't rest content merely with reading about Valspar. Use it. See what it will do in your home.

VALSPAR costs a little more than cheap varnish, but Oh My. It looks so much better, and wears so long. It is really much cheaper in the end. Have you tried it?

MEMORIAL SERVICE TO MR. AND MRS. ANDREW JOSEPH LAFLAMME

A company that filled the Baptist Parsonage, Winchester, gathered on Saturday evening, Sept. 3rd, to meet Rev. Herbert F. Laflamme, New York, Mrs. A. A. Smith, of Cornwall, and Mrs. John P. Gormley, Morrisburg, and to dedicate a library to the memory of their parents, the late Andrew Joseph Laflamme and his wife Elizabeth Cummings. Messages of regret were received from the other two children of the family, Mrs. C. F. Smith, of St. Mary's, Ont., and Mrs. A. D. McArthur, Rocky Mountain House, Alberta, who are also donors of the library. Rev. Ernest Butcher and Mrs. Butcher were the hosts of the evening and represented the Baptist Church of this place and South Gower. The reception committee were the following, Mrs. W. Johnston, Mrs. M. Bell, Mrs. Bolton and Mrs. J. J. McKendry.

Mr. Butcher, who presided at the dedication ceremony, read a letter from Mr. Joshua P. Frith of Winnipeg, Man., conveying his appreciation of the fine service rendered to the Baptist Church by Mr. and Mrs. Laflamme, and congratulating the Church on being the recipient of such a worthy gift as a library for the use of the minister. He recalled the incident which led to the conversion of Mr. Andrew Laflamme and his membership to the Baptist Church. This took place at the funeral of Mr. Frith's father, who was a charter member of the Church at its organization in the Melvin Settlement, four miles east of Winchester in 1859, and at the time of his premature death at the age of 30 was an officer in the Church and its chief support. As Andrew Laflamme then in his twenties, looked into the open grave and wondered who would take the place of this useful man's death in the Church, the conviction occurred to him that he was his successor.

Rev. H. F. Laflamme was then introduced. He presented the library of 317 books in three sectional cases to the Baptist Church, for the use of it as a memorial to their father and mother. He said that the library composed of books that had come to his sister Mary, Mrs. McArthur, when his mother died in Morrisburg in 1920. To these he added books purchased at that time from Rev. Cameron, then retiring from the Presbyterian Church's active work, who had been the minister of the Church attended by Mr. Laflamme, from the time they moved to Morrisburg from Winchester up to their death. To this the speaker had added books from his own library and a large number presented to him by the 23rd Street Branch of the Y.M.C.A. of New York City, when they discontinued the library a few years ago. He promised that this was only a beginning and that the family hoped to complete the gift by adding a number of new and recent books. He suggested that others might add similar gifts.

He paid a tribute to the discriminating intellectual taste of his parents as reflected in the character of the reading matter they had made available to their children and to the size of the home library which was unusual under the circumstances. No tribute to their memory could be more pleasing to them than the enrichment of the intellectual life of the ministers of the Church in Winchester by placing at their disposal a good library in addition to their own private books.—Winchester Press.

BOY SEVERELY INJURED

Last Saturday afternoon the six year-old son of Mr. William Allan, living near Fruid's School, north of the village, was knocked down and severely injured by an automobile driven by Mr. William Bouck of Morewood. The little fellow was playing on the road and in crossing ran in front of the car which could not be stopped in time to prevent the accident, a wheel passing over his head. He was rushed to Cornwall hospital where he is still alive.

ALL VEHICLES TO DISPLAY LIGHTS

Beginning October 1, all vehicles using the highways at night must carry lights and all cars equipped with four-wheel brakes must display in the rear a small triangular brake sign. That has been approved by the department of highways.

There should be no difficulty in enforcing the latter amendment But in solving the problem of lights on horse-drawn vehicles the department may experience difficulty.

The danger of carrying a lighted lamp on the back of a load of hay is obvious. Provision was made in the amendment to exercise discretion It may allow the use of reflectors.

Hon. George S. Henry has announced that the law will be enforced promptly.

BOYS FROM CHESTERVILLE MAKE GOOD SHOWING

At the Ontario School Boys' track meet in Toronto last week, Chesterville's representatives, Bill Tate and Bill Brown made a very credible showing when the former took third place in the senior boys' mile, the winner being forced to break the record to win. Brown won second in the junior low hurdles.

BUSH—CLEAVER

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Saturday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr and Mrs. E. H. Cleaver, Burlington, when their eldest daughter, Hazel Jessine, became the wife of Prof. John Nash Douglas Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dexter C. Bush. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked very charming in a delicately lovely frock of white silk net and georgette over shell pink. She wore a tulle veil arranged under a bandeau of fine lace, and carried a shower bouquet of Sweetheart Roses and Lilly of the Valley. Her uncle, the Rev. S. Cleaver of Toronto, officiated. Miss Ida Pearson played the wedding music. The bride's parents received the guests in rooms made bright with fall flowers. Following the wedding supper Prof. and Mrs. Bush left for the United States. They will make their home in Minneapolis.

CHILD-LIKE ENVIRONMMENT ESSENTIAL FOR CHILDREN

Elsie F. Kartack.

I was paying a week-end visit to an old classmate. I had looked eagerly forward to this visit as I had not seen my friend since her marriage and had never seen her little five-year-old daughter.

Immediately upon my arrival, the conversation turned upon Betty.

"Oh, I am so anxious for you to see her," said the fond mother. "She is playing in the sand now. I'll call her in a few minutes. I like to keep her out-of-doors when I am working, so that she is out of the way."

I glanced out of the window, and saw a little figure bending over a sand pile.

Her mother went on. "You know Betty is a queer child, not at all like other children. I have quite a time disciplining her. She doesn't eat normally, and she never seems quite happy and contented."

"Does she have anyone to play with?" I asked.

"No, the other children of the neighborhood all go to kindergarten."

"And doesn't Betty go?" I asked..

I was shocked at her reply. "No, I haven't sent her yet and I'm not going to send her next year and perhaps not the next. She is all I have and I want her for companionship.."

I groaned inwardly at such self-confessed selfishness as this. "But," I remonstrated, "do you realize of what you are depriving your child? Do you know how much the companionship of children during these years will mean to her?"

The lunch was ready. Betty's mother went to the door and called. No response from the little figure bending over the sand. She called a second and a third time. Then Betty raised her head. An annoyed look crossed her face, but she came. At her mother's reproof she answered a bit resentfully, "My pie was almost finished. I was just putting the raisins in."

"Well, never mind the pie now. Lunch is ready. Wash your hands. My, how dirty you have gotten yourself. How many times must I tell you to be careful?"

Betty opened her mouth to remonstrate but her mother silenced her.

The lunch was simple and appetizing. Betty had a plate and mug all covered with fluffy yellow chicks and a small knife, fork and spoon lay beside them. Everything was arranged to appeal to a child's taste and yet Betty sat idly playing with her food. Her mother coaxed, scolded and finally brought a ruler to the table and threatened to whip her if she did not eat. Even then Betty ate very little.

After lunch I suggested that she take me up to her play room and show me her toys. Here was a great wonderful house, lighted with real electric lights. There was a real bath room with all the fixtures and a kitchen with a gas stove and sink. Everything was as complete as in the best modern home. Betty demonstrated the lights and showed me all the things. Then she sat back and folded her hands.

"Why don't you play with your house?" I asked.

"Oh, it isn't to play with; it's just to look at, Mother says."

"Would you like to make one that you can play with? If you will bring me an old shoe box and a pair of scissors, I'll show you how to make one."

Betty ran delightedly to her mother but came back crestfallen. "Mother says she doesn't want me to cut because I get scraps around."

Then I suggested that we play house and undress the doll and put it to bed, but this, too, Betty said, could not be done. Mother had washed the doll's clothes and dressed it to go on a trip the next day with Betty and it must be kept clean and tidy..

And so I went on from one thing to another(trying to find something that the child could really do for herself, but without success. There must be nothing to make the house or the child look untidy. If she did become interested for a moment in a picture book, her mother broke the thread of her thought by calling her to wash her hands. No wonder she was unnatural, hard to govern and did not eat. The companionship of children, activity directed into natural, child-like channels, and less adult interference would have done much toward making Betty a happy, contented and obedient child.

Paris Fashions

Ideas Imported From Style Center the Basis of Our Selection of Modish Gowns

Reports from more than 100 leading stores in Canada and the United States say that the mode is becoming more and more static. That makes it increasingly important for you to choose exactly the right clothes. The dress you buy this season will not be out of fashion next season if you have used judgment and taste and availed yourself of the expert fashion knowledge that is yours to use in magazines, newspapers and shops. Intelligent and practical women are well dressed and they choose the smart fashions that are also intelligent and practical. They choose their clothes, these reports indicate, in the accepted mode of this year, knowing they will have a smart foundation for next year's wardrobe.

The Vionnet neckline is an excellent example of the long and continued service a really good fashion will give. This is the beginning of the fourth year that it has been used on blouses, frocks and tunics, and though no longer novel, it is still so smart and intelligent a fashion that it does not even know a season, but it appears in the spring and summer in light colors and in the fall and winter in dark ones.

The vogue for gold jewelry has been accepted in every part of the country, as there is a reason for every smart fashion that is accepted. Gold jewelry is the only sort that is really correct for wear with sport clothes. It is the only kind that is informal and sturdy enough. This explains the great rush for gold in necklaces, bracelets, pins and earrings that is rivaling the one of '49.

The two-piece frock is another example of a smart fashion that has worn well. The important stores tell us that this is one of the most popular ones. It is easy to see why. It has smart lines, a skirt that is box-pleated where the fullness is needed and plain across the back where the pleats would be crushed. The belt is held in place by straps that are also extremely decorative. The frock is found in contrasting fabrics or contrasting colors—the blouse in one color and the skirt in a darker shade or the blouse of silk crepe and the skirt of fine wool.

Belts are worn on one-piece dresses and on two-piece dresses, on daytime clothes and on evening clothes. They are made of leather, of fabric and of metal mesh. But they are present almost without exception. The stores have found the narrow belt of suede, and the wider one of a combination of leathers, alligator and kid, for example, to be two of the best-liked types.

Leading stores report a frock adapted to the smartest teas and bridge parties, that has a flaring skirt and long, sweeping revers. These revers and the deep vest are in a light tone that gives a seasonable touch to the frock for immediate wear. White on black is an often-repeated combination. So is flesh and black. If the frock is in a color, a lighter shade of the same color is found. Crepe satin and chiffon velvet or georgette velvet are fabrics in which it is most often developed.

Every slip-over sweater has its cardigan, matching, contrasting, harmonizing or accenting. Generally a plain cardigan is worn with a patterned pullover and a patterned cardigan with a plain pull-over. The combination most often seen is a pull-over sweater striped horizontally in two colors or shades with a cardigan in one of the colors. The reports from the important stores in all the large cities show that well-dressed women are continuing to wear this chic, comfortable and practical fashion.

For final proof of the long life enjoyed by a good fashion, take the straight coat without fur, to whose importance the reports from the leading stores bear witness. It is not true that every well-dressed woman has one. She has a half dozen. She has white and pastel flannels for the country; black, navy and beige kashas for town; silk crepes for more formal wear, and just as often as not her evening wrap is a straight chiffon velvet or lame coat. A particularly good one has a graceful collar that is as flattering as any fur and raglan sleeves that taper to a slim, clean shoulder line.

A frock that is chosen for the office, the street and for travel is man-tailored with the clean, well-groomed lines of a man's double-breasted suit. It is one of the dresses that the smart stores find best liked in the fine tweeds and wool crepes that are so smart. In black with a silver fox, in beige with a cross fox, it is seen again with a small felt, low-cut oxfords or opera or strap pumps, and a smart bag.

Not Level Headed Enough.

Flies—"It would make a dandy dance floor if it were only a little more level."

A New Use for Gloves

Failing to find a piece of vesting of the right color to match a piece of material, an almost discouraged shopper discovered a way out of the seeming predicament.

As she stood before a glove counter while a friend made a purchase, she noticed some long silk gloves on sale for $1.50. Being out of season, they had been marked down from $3 for quick disposal. A pair of light tan ones, beautifully embroidered in rich colors, attracted her attention.

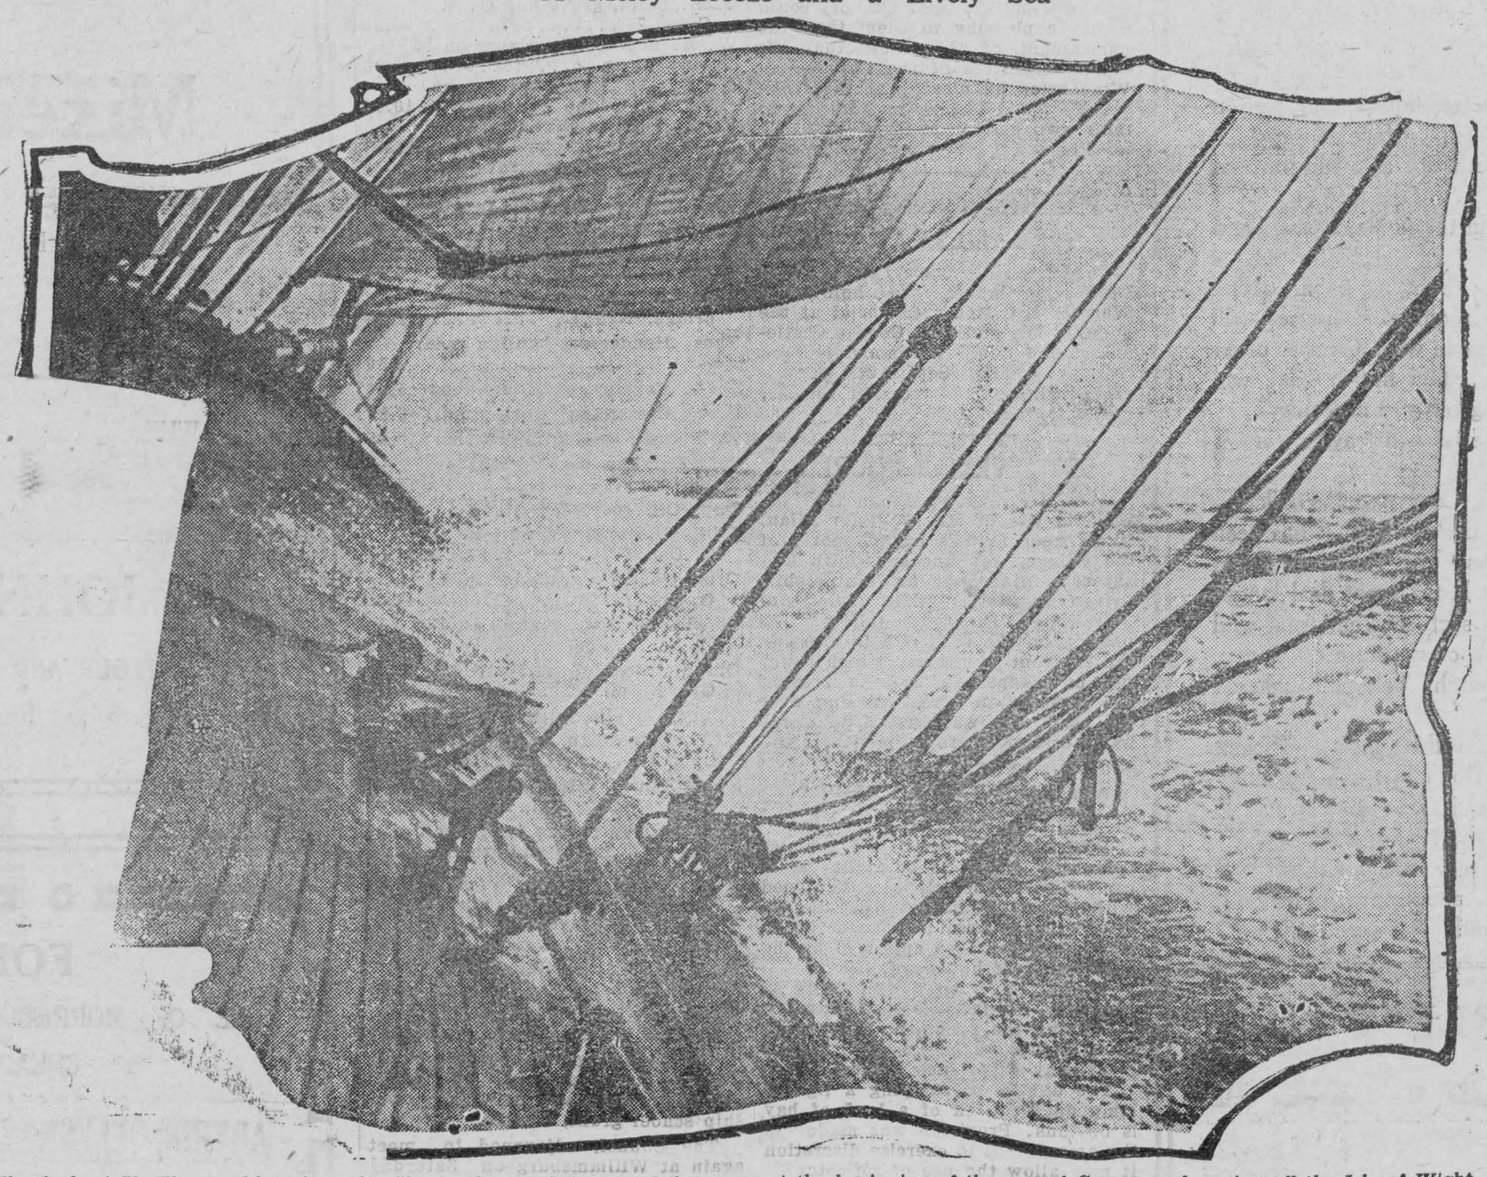

She brought them and cutting them off at the wrist, hemmed them down and used them for street gloves. Then, ripping the seams of the arms, she made her vest of one arm and a collar of the other. The set was much more satisfactory than the one she had originally planned.

Cabbage and Nasturtium Salad

This is a somewhat unusual salad, but a delicious one. To one cupful of chopped raw cabbage add 3 fresh medium-sized nasturtium leaves, also chopped fine. Mix together, add salt, pepper, and any preferred salad dressing.

It is a pretty idea to decorate the edge of the salad dish with a few nasturtium blossoms.

A Merry Breeze and a Lively Sea

The deck of Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht, Shamrock awash in one of the races at the beginning of the annual Cowes week racing off the Isle of Wight.

German Sweets

Four-Fruit Jam

This is one of the nicest preserves imaginable. Take 1 pound each of stoned black-heart cherries, raspberries, strawberries and bilberries and 3½ pounds of white sugar. Melt the sugar in a preserving pan with just enough water to prevent it from burning. When the sugar is quite clear, put in the cherries and boil them very gently for 20 minutes, then add the remaining fruit. Simmer the jam gently for 1 hour and put it into glasses in the usual way.

Cranberry Compote

This compote will keep good for a long time if the instructions are closely followed. Wash 10 pounds of fresh cranberries and pick them over carefully. Put over the fire 6 pounds of white sugar, with just sufficient water to cover the bottom of the pan. When the sugar is melted, put in the berries and let them boil up several times, stirring with a wooden spoon, then pour them into a large bowl and stir without ceasing until the compote is cold. It can then be filled into large glass jars and tied down.

Rhenish Apple Jelly

Twelve pounds of ripe, juicy apples should be well washed and cut into slices without peeling or coring. Place them in a preserving pan with one pint of cold water; bring to the boil and continue boiling gently until the apples are quite soft. Then strain the fruit through a jelly bag and simmer the juice with a very little sugar, stirring constantly with a wooden spoon, until it becomes thick. The quantity of sugar must depend upon the sweetness of the apples and upon individual taste. The jelly must be only slightly sweetened.

Strawberries or Raspberries and Cream

The fruit must be perfectly fresh and if it is found necessary to wash it, use ice-cold water and dip the fruit in very quickly, so that the aroma may be retained. Drain the berries and place them in a glass dish, just covering them with powdered sugar. Leave the fruit for a couple of hours in a cold place and serve whipped cream with it in a separate dish.

Apple Mush

A dozen fine apples, peeled, cored and quartered, should be simmered until tender with very little water and sugar to taste and then put through a fine sieve. When cold mix lightly with the mush the stiffly-beaten whites of two fresh eggs; turn into a glass dish and decorate with little pieces of currant jelly or preserver cherries. Set the dish on ice until served. If the flavor of cinnamon is liked, a little may be boiled with the apples.

Cheese and Nut Salad

To each 2 cupfuls of cottage cheese allow ¼ of a pound of chopped and blanched almonds and ½ of a pint of whipped cream. Mix all together lightly, heap loosely on beds of lettuce and serve very cold. Pour over a little mayonnaise before serving and garnish with sliced candied cherries.

Cottage Cheese Surprise

Linecups or other small molds with cottage cheese, then fill with a salad madeof celery, nuts and almost any kind of fruit or vegetable on hand, all chopped together and moistened with mayonnaise. Put on the ice to chill. Serve unmolded on individual beds of lettuce and with mayonnaise dressing poured over each portion.

Ways to Use Cottage Cheese or Sour Milk

During hot weather sour milk is plentiful, so cottage cheese is most reasonable in price. In itself it is an appetizing dish, but some people like it better with a pot of chopped onion or green pepper for flavoring, and others add caraway seed, sugar or chives. To many, no other ways of using this food are known, and yet it is the foundation of many a delicious dish.

Prize Cheese Mold

Soak for 10 minutes 2 tablespoonfuls of gelatine in ½ of a cupful of cold water, then dissolve it over hot water. To this add 2 cupfuls of cottag cheese, ½ of a cupful each of evaporated milk and chopped stuffed olives, 2 teaspoonfuls of salt and 1/8 of a teaspoonful of pepper. Pour into a cold wet mold and set into the refrigerator until firm. Serve unmolded on a bed of lettuce and garnished with tiny lettuce hearts and strips of pimento. Pour French dressing over all.

Instead of the chopped olives, ½ of a cupful of pimento or green pepper, cut fine, may be used. One teaspoonful of chopped onion added gives just the zest that some people like, too.

Pineapple and Cheese Salad

On beds of lettuce on individual salad plates arrange slices of canned pineapple that have been slit almost to the middle so they may easily be cut apart with the fork. Rub fresh cottage cheese through a sieve or a fruit press so it falls in delicate flakes on the fruit, then press a little hard-boiled yolk of egg through in the same way. In the hole in the pineapple put a teaspoonful of currant jelly. Sprinkle over all a French dressing in which lemon juice has been used instead of vinegar. The flavor in this combination blend deliciously.

Pimola and Cheese Salad

Mix together: 1 pound of cottage cheese, 1½ tablespoonfuls of thick cream, 1 teaspoonful of salt, 2 tablespoonfuls of minced stuffed olives and 4 tablespoonfulsof chopped nutmeats. Rinse a loaf mold in cold water, then linewith waxed paper on the bottom, so the paper extends a few inches out on each side of the mold. Pack the cheese mixture in 3 layers, putting chopped pimentoes between them. Set away thoroughly to chill. At serving time turn the mold upside down over a platter, remove the paper and garnish the loaf with wafer-thin slices of stuffed olives. Garnish with lettuce hearts at the base of the mound and pour over it a little whipped cream flavored to taste with mayonnaise dressing. Pass more of the dressing as the salad is cut into slices at the table.

Tutti-Frutti Cheese

To each ½ pound of cottage cheese allow 1 canned apricot, 1 dozen seeded raisins, 6 candied cherries, 1 tablespoonful of chopped citron, 2 tablespoonfuls of grated canned pineapple well drained from the juice, and ½ of a cupful of whipped cream, or thick cream. Chop the fruit together, add 1 teaspoonful each of grated lemon peel and sugar, then the cottage cheese and the cream. Mold in a shallow pan and set side to chill. Serve in slices on beds of lettuce with mayonnaise poured over each portion. Butterd toast goes well with this.

Cottage Cheese Sausages

Mix together 1 cupful each of cottage cheese and dry bread crumbs, ¼ of a teaspoonful of powdered sage, ½ of a cupful of choppd peanuts and ¼ of a teaspoonful each of salt and paprika. Blend 1 tablespoonful of chopped onion with ¼ of a cupful of peanut butter and work this into the dry mixture. Shape into sausages, dip in slightly-beaten egg diluted with water and set aside to dry. At serving time, fry to a golden brown and garnish with parsley or lemon slices. Serve hot.

Tomato Cheese Slices

Season cottage cheese to taste with chopped green pepper and chopped onion, add chopped nut-meats, salt as suits, and cream to bind the mixture together well. Use this as a stuffing for tomato shells and set the molds on ice to chill. Serve cut in slices about ½-inch thick and pour over each portion mayonnaise dressing diluted with whipped cream.

Cottage Cheese Sandwich Filling

One-half of a cupful of shredded pineapple, drained from the juice, added to the same amount of cottage cheese, with salt to taste and lemon juice to bind together makes an excellent combination.

Chop together: 1 small onion, 10 pitted olives, 1 sweet green pepper and a small sour pickle. Mix with 1 cupful of cottage cheese, add salt to taste and sufficient mayonnaise dressing to form a paste that will spread well.

Spread one slice of buttered bread with currant jelly and the other with cottage cheese mixed with mayonnaise so it spreads. Put together with a few nut-meats between.

Mix together: ½ of a cupful of minced celery, 1 cupful of cottage cheese, 1 teaspoonful of minced parsley and 4 tablespoonfuls of chopped nut-meats. Add salt to taste and enough mayonnaise to hold the filling together. This is especially good spread between buttered slices of brown bread. Plenty of butter must be used with moist fillings or they will soak the bread.

LIFE WAS A BURDEN

Restored to Health Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"It is a pleasure," says Mrs. Ross Boulter, of Victoria, P.E.I., "to tell you of the new health and strength I got through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before taking the pills life was a burden to me. I was so badly run down that I did not know what to do. My blood seemed to have turned to water, I was very pale, constantly tired, and was losing flesh. It was a trial to attempt housework. Added to this I had a bad cough and my husband and friends thought I was going into consumption. The medical treatment I was taking did not appear to do me any good, and I had about given up hope when a friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I got six boxes and found so much benefit from them that I got six more boxes. Before these were all taken I was a new woman restored again to good health. I gained in weight, the cough left me, my appetite returned and I once more had a good color. Better still, I was able to do my housework without fatigue. Needless to say I always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to ailing friends, and I hope this will be the means of pointing the road to good health to some other sufferer."

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness. Take them as a tonic if you are not in the best physical condition and cultivate a resistance that will keep you well and strong.

If you will send us your name and address a little book, "Building Up the Blood," will be mailed you prepaid. This book contains many useful health hints.

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Catbird

"Yow, e-yow! squawk!"

Such a grating, unmusical cat-call! Surely the sound did not come from that graceful, dark gray bird there in the shrubbery? Watch a moment.

There he sits, beautifully formed, bright-eyed, black-capped, blacktailed, his only enlivening color being the patch of bright chestnut under the tail coverts. His wings, some 2 inches shorter than his tail, are folded. His head is small and sleek.

Hark! what song is that? A thrush, a mockingbird? No, it is our gray bird in the syringa, who a few moments ago sounded true to his name, catbird. Now his song swells forth gloriously.

A pause—a short flight to the cedar hedge. There he slumps, head and tail drooping. "Me-ow! row!" he croaks dismally.

The catbird is a most interesting neighbor. He imitates many of the other birds, and it is hard to tell what song, if any, is really his own. He belongs to the mockingbird family and is sometimes called the black-capped thrush.

The catbird pays more attention to his personal appearance than most birds, spending much time in preening and primping. He is about nine inches long, slightly shorter than the robin, and not as plump.

He is frequently seen in shrubbery near houses, and builds his nest, sometimes in hedges or shrubs in the dooryard, sometimes in wild berry bushes or thickets.

Catbirds are not in the least particular as to what building material they use, and scraps of anything available go into the carelessly woven nest—bits of paper blowing about the lawn, roots, threads, grass—but fine black rootlets seem the favored material for lining. The four or five eggs are dark greenish blue.

The catbird has a fondness for the small cultivated fruits, and in consequence is considered something of a pest by those who raise them. But once hear him sing at his best and you will not grudge him what he takes.. He eats insects, also; grasshoppers, ants, crickets and beetles.

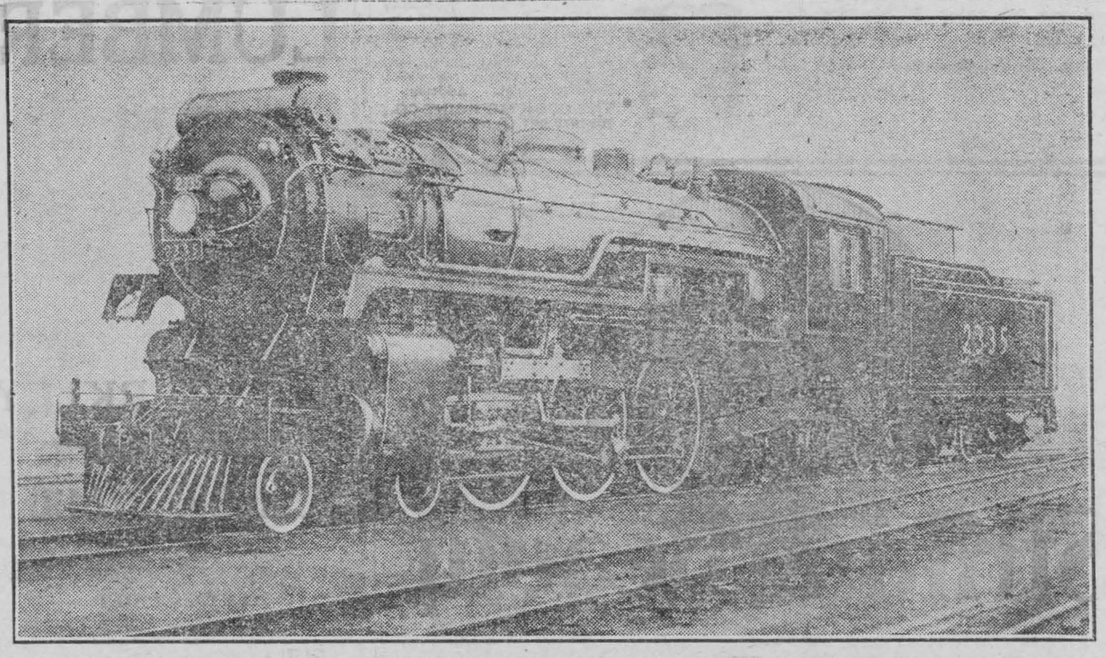

He has a broad range over the United States and well up into Canada, being, however, somewhat rare west of the Rockies. Winters he spends in the Gulf States, Cuba and Central America..

Good Advertising.

Good advertising is a combination of attractive physical appearance, printing; of words, composition; and of spirit, wholesome personality.

The agent or agency who commands all of these—find him, trust him, stay with him.

We can quite sympathize with the salesman who was asked by the old lady if she could have one of those wireless fans she had heard about, because her room was so stuffy in summer.

Americans Interested in Canadian Locomotives

Interest taken by American railway officials in the advance of Canadian locomotive construction is emprasized by the fact that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company have been asked to send their finest passenger engine to Baltimore to be placed on exhibition at the coming Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Centenary Exhibition and Pageant to be held September 24 to October 8. President Coolidge has intimated that he will be present at the opening day.

Canadian Pacific officials have sent word to Baltimore that they will be represented there by the latest type of their "2300" class passenger locomotives. The compact design of this engine is one of its striking features. In construction the weight was kept to a minimum even though an increase of 50 pounds per square inch was attained, bringing the boiler pressure developed up to 250 pounds per square inch. This was accomplished by the use of a special nickel steel boiler plate, the first of its kind used in boiler construction on the American continent.

The coming Baltimore Centenary Exhibition is expected to be the most complete outdoor and indoor exhibition of transportation ever collected, including the earliest and latest types of locomotive from the North American as well as the European Continents and the British Isles.

OWL-LAFFS

BY O. W. L. (On With Laughter)

A highbrow magazine is one which contains an article by someone everybody has heard of, about somebody nobody has ever heard of.

"Daddy, mamma loves the men in politics."

"How do you know?"

"To-day when she voted she put kisses after their names."

"My husband declares he married for beauty and brains."

"Oh, then, you're not his first wife."

Vain Talk.

My brain is fagged, my nerves are tense,
I'm in a punk condition,
From listening to arguments
Concerning prohibition.

Girls of the present generation have cured themselves of some habits their mothers had. One woman confesses: "When I was a school girl I used to wipe my pen on my stockings."

Customer—"Are you quite sure this suit won't shrink if it gets wet on me?"

Ikey—"Min friendt, effery fire company in the city has squirted water on dot suit."

Nature sometimes does her work too well, and the woman who wants to get plump gets fat, and the one who wants to get slender gets skinny.

New fashions would be more comfortable if the weather wasn't so old-fashioned.

First Stage Hand—"What was all the trouble out front?"

Second Stage Hand—"That crazy new actress who is taking the part of the nursemaid got excited and brought the baby on the stage in the first act, when it wasn't due until three years later in the last act."

Friends are not necessary. The English sparrow hasn't a friend in the world and look how he gets along.

Many a charitable woman allows her husband to have his own way.

Where there's a will there's a sway.

"I never saw but one man," said Uncle Bill Bottletop, "that I thought had a chance foolin' with bootleg liquor. He was a sword-swallower and his wife was a snake charmer."

Men will quit gawking about the same time that women become wholly unconscious of the fact their skirts are too short.

When a girl is in love and in debt, the chances are that she is in misery, too.

Harold Ivory and Flora Dense have just been married in Muscatine, Ia. The dumbbell crop ought to look up soon.

Jane—"Since Jim and I are engaged he says he's in the seventh heaven."

Dot—"Yes, he's been engaged to six other girls, hasn't he?"

The charity that begins at home is usually so short-winded it never gets much further.

Bride—"He's awful, mother! He doesn't believe in bridge, dancing, or any amusement."

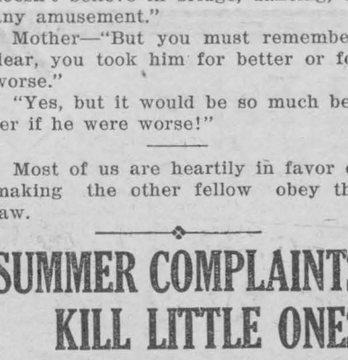

Mother—"But you must remember, dear, you took him for better or for worse."

"Yes, but it would be so much better if he were worse!"

Most of us are heartily in favor of making the other fellow obey the law.

SUMMER COMPLAINTS KILL LITTLE ONES

At the first sign of illness during the hot weather give the little ones Baby's Own Tablets or in a few hours he may be beyond aid. These Tablets will prevent summer complaint if given occasionally to the well child, and will promptly relieve these troubles if they come on suddenly. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in every home where there are young children. There is no other medicine as good and the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that they are absolutely safe. They are sold by all druggists or will be mailed on receipt of price, 25 cents per box, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. A little booklet, "Care of the Baby in Health and Sickness," will be sent free to any member on request.

Fresh Milk.

Lady — "Is that milk perfectly fresh?"

Grocer—"Fine, just as fresh as that you got here yesterday."

Lady—"Well, in that case, give me a pint of vinegar, please."

The good old pastime of archery is being revived. At the Exmouth butts the target is distant 75 yards. Robin Hood's record, we understand from the old ballad, was a mile and an inch. Both he and his chronicler seem to have been experts at drawing the longbow.

Minard's Liniment relieves backache.

In his advice to Americans against "entangling alliances," can it be that Washington foresaw some of these tennis invasions and a possible danger to the Davis Cup?

The Modernized Motorcycle

The "modernized motorcycle" is the description given the 1928 Harley-Davidson, by Walter Andrews, Toronto, Ont., agent for that line of motorcycles. In pointing out the many new features on the 1928 models, Mr. Andrews is particularly enthusiastic about the fore-wheel brake, which is of the internal expanding type. This additional breaking surface when used in conjunction with the present rear-wheel brake, affords the ultimate in safety for all road and traffic conditions. Another improvement of importance is the all-speed oiler which is controlled from the throttle. As the speed is increased through opening the throttle, the oil pump is caused to feed more oil to the motor. The 1928 models are on display at Walter Andrews, Ltd., 346 Yonge St., Toronto, and should be seen when visiting the Exhibition.

British Families to Get Canadian Farms

London.—Five hundred British families are to be given farms in New Brunswick in the next six years, under the Anglo-Canadian agreement just made public. Advances up to £300 will be given to each family by the British Government ,repayable together with the land cost over 25 years.

The New Brunswick Government co-operates in this agreement, which officials here hope may be the beginning of a big movement for attracting suitable British immigrants to the maritime provinces of Canada.

Ottawa.—Co-operation between the British Government, the Canadian Government and the Government of New Brunswick is shown in a plan announced by the Department of Immigration and Colonization for locating British settlers on farms in New Brunswick. This marks the first concrete step toward combined Dominion and Provincial action in co-operation with the British Government toward providing farms for the placement of British settlers in Canada and is one of several settlement schemes arranged by Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration and Colonization, when he was recently in Great Britain.

Arrangements which have just been signed on behalf of the respective governments provide for the placement of 500 British settlers and their families on improved farms in New Brunswick during the period from March 1, 1928, to March 31, 1934. The plan follows the general scheme of the 3,000 Brtish families settlement plan which has already met with so much success, except that in this case the Canadian co-operation will be given by the province and the Dominion working together instead of exclusively by the Dominion Government.

The Dominion Government, through its Department of Immigration and Colonization, will recruit and select the settlers in the British Isles and, co-operating with the Government of New Brunswick, will locate the settlers in that province and extend settlement service through its Land Settlement Branch. The Government of New Brunswick will acquire the necessary farms and will sell them to the settler on terms calling for 25 annual payments with interest amortized at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum The British Government will provide funds for acquiring stock and equipment, and for seed, feed and initial payments on farms, which sums will be payable on the same terms as the price of the land.

Settlers under this agreement will have the advantage of the special £2 rate of transportation from the British Isles to Halifax or St. John arranged by the Department of Immigration for selected British settlers, and including free transportation for children under seventeen. A man, his wife, and several children may therefore make the journey from a British port to Halifax or St. John at a cost of less than $20.

Geographic Society Will Co-Operate With Byrd's Expedition

Washington.—Full co-operation will be extended by the National Geographical Society to Commander Richard E. Byrd in his proposed Antarctic flight and a contribution of $25,00 from the society's exploration fund will be donated toward the scientific equipment of the expedition.

In making this announcement recently it was said the society's trustees believed that a thorough exploration of the Antarctic regions offered a rich field for collection of scientific data as conditions in the south territory were in marked contrast to those of the Arctic.

For his work in the Arctic, Commander Byrd already has receved the Hubbard Gold Medal, the society's highest award, which is held only by eight men.

"Among the important problems to be worked out by Commander Byrd," the society said, "are those relating to the meteorology of the southern continent and its effect on world weather, especially that of the Southern Hemisphere. Observations have been taken on the ground along the Shackleton, Scott and Amundsen routes, but nothing is known of conditions on the other side of the Pole or in the air above the continent."

Help to Weed Out

THE INCOMPETENT MOTOR DRIVERS

By securing your Motor Vehicle Operator's License now.

NO matter how cautious you are in the handling of your car, the safety of yourself and your passengers is dependent largely on the other drivers on the road.

To prevent incompetent persons endangering your family and yourself, each driver in Ontario, not already licensed as a chauffeur, must possess a Motor Vehicle Operator's License.

Secure your application form today. You can get it from any garage or issuer of motor car licenses in the Province. The fee for a License is $1.

Traffic Patrol Officers may call for the production of Operator's Licenses both on city streets and country highways. If you cannot produce your License you will be subject to a penalty under The Highways Traffic Act.

New drivers, and those suffering from physical disability, have the opportunity to pass an examination by Inspectors of the Department. These Inspectors are located at convenient points throughout the Province. Your garage will tell you of the one nearest to you. The examination fee is $1.

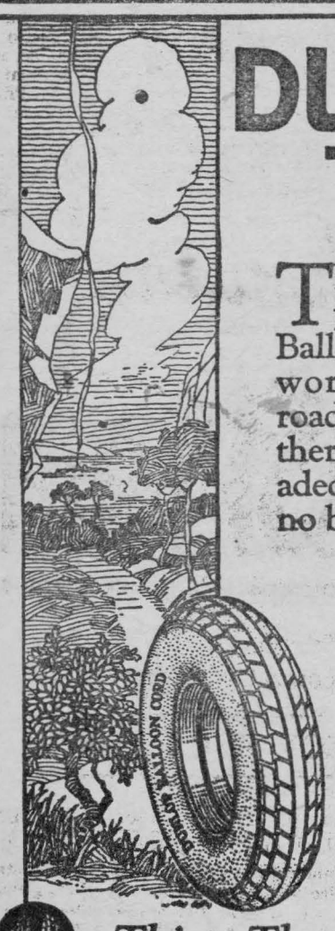

Ontario Operator's Licenses are recognized in every Province and every State. Wherever Operator's Licenses are required, an Ontario Operator's License is necessary for everyone in charge of an Ontario car. Do not attempt to leave the Province without your Motor Vehicle Operator's License.

A satisfactory measure of support by the great majority of motorists has been accorded the Department in its past efforts to maintain the safety of the highways. The higher speed limit and an abnormal increase in traffic now render this additional measure necessary. The Department therefore sincerely hopes you will indicate your support of safe highway travel by securing your Operator's License without delay.

Attend Fall Fairs you never saw before

Go about and see how people in other Counties manage their affairs

Use the good roads to see communities outside your own immediate neighborhood. Get acquainted.

Take in Fall Fairs you never saw before. Inspect the best that different localities produce. Or attend a district ploughing match. Ontario has plenty of interesting events every autumn.

Improved highways take you almost everywhere you want to go. You are contributing towards the cost and upkeep. Use them—but use them in a common sense manner. The Department asks the co-operation of every motor car driver in keeping the highways safe.

Avoid excessive speed. Even when within the present speed limit, slow down at curves and intersections with railways or other highways, near schools and at all points of possible danger.

Watch your brakes. Your life or the lives of others may depend upon the efficiency of your brakes.

See that your headlights do not glare. Glaring headlights are illegal. They are a positive menace. Have your headlights tested or send for simple instructions which the Department supplies free.

BE COURTEOUS to others on the road. Though you may be within your legal rights, do not insist if others are inconvenienced or endangered.

Be sure you always have your Motor Vehicle Operator's License with you.

If you drive moderately, and well within the law, your autumn trips through Ontario will be never-forgotten enjoyments.

A Lady Wins Long Service Emblem

Long service records in modern industrial life are usually held by men. But Miss M. I. Phillips of Quebec City is not far behind the service record-holders of the telephone business. When the first long distance line was completed between Quebec and Montreal, Miss Phillips was the operator who "set-up" the first call. For close upon forty years she has been at the service of the telephone users of the ancient Capital, and has seen the city's system grow from less than 500 telephones to the present 20,000. Quebec's telephone using public, now served from two imposing exchange buildings—one of them housing "Automatic" equipment—appreciate the kindly, helpful service which it has been the life-work of Miss Phillips to provide. She was recently the recipient of a Service Emblem from her company symbolizing her long and exemplary record.

Afloat Sea

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Death strikes Garrett Folsom while swimming at Ocean Town, N.J. After being perfunctorily examined by a doctor, the body is brought to the Hotel Majusaca, where an inquiry is started.

Folsom's bathing companions had been Roger Neville, Mrs. Helen Barnaby, and Carmelita Valdon. It is established that Folsom, just before his death, had been standing next to Ned Barron, knkokwn as the copper king.

Then the startling announcement is made that Folsom had been stabbed to death in the water. Ross, his valet, is questioned, as are Barron and his wife, but no light is shed on the mystery.

Anastasia Folsom, eccentric and masterful sister of the dead man, arrives and takes command. At the inquest it is established that the death weapon was a pichaq, an Oriental knife, and that it and its scabbard had been purchased on the boardwalk.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVI.

"Then," said the coroner, "our next step is to find out who did buy this particular weapon. What is the address of the shop, Mr. Meeker?"

"It isn't exactly a shop, it is an auction room. A place where auctions are held of various stocks or consignments carried there for that purpose."

"Yes, I understand. Well, doubtless, the proprietors can give us the information we want. Jepson, you'd better go there yourself, and now, and learn all you can of the matter."

The detective went off at once, and the coroner, with a sigh, returned to his investigation.

"I am in rather a strange predicament," he said, frankly. "Never before have I had to conduct an inquiry with so little evidence to work upon. The question before us is how did Mr. Folsom come to his death? What weapon was used? and who used it? Those are the only matters that affect us. With the private life of the gentleman we have no concern, unless it can be shown that it has to do with his tragic death.

"There is nobody under suspicion in the case, but it is undoubtedly murder, and was apparently committed with premeditated intent. There is little question of motive or opportunity, which are usually the first matters to be taken up. But, as you can readily see, everyone in the ocean at the time of Mr. Folsom's death may be said to have had opportunity, and so far as we have been able to learn, nobody has shown any evidence of having had a motive." This makes the affair most mysterious, for men are not murdered without motive. And so, gentlemen of the jury, I will call on those who knew Mr. Folsom personally, and you may gather what knowledge you may from their depositions."

Hubbard was naturally a little verbose and stilted of diction, but in this case he was more so, by reason of his own uncertainty how to proceed. It seemed absurd to call on the people who knew Garrett Folsom, for they were the ones most interested in learning the truth, and the ones least likely to be implicated in the crime.

However, it was the only thing to be done, and Miss Folsom, as the nearest relative of the dead man, was called next.

Her testimony was, of course, only to the effect that she had been summoned to Ocean Town by the telegram announcing her brother's death. This message had been sent to her Chicago home, but as she was in New York, it had been forwarded to her there and she had immediately started for the seashore resort.

She answered readily the coroner's questions as to her brother's business and habits of life, but nothing she could tell had any bearing on the subject of his death. In addition to the informatio nrequired of her, she reiterated her determination to bring the murderer to justice, and declared herself willing to spend as much of her fortune as might be necessary in order to succeed in her quest.

There was something about Anastasia Folsom that made her hearers respect her, though none of them would have cared to make any effort to become better acquainted with her. She was not attractive, she rather repelled people, yet none could say she was not sincere and determined in her effort to solve the mystery of her brother's death.

The next witness was Ross, the dead man's valet.

But he had no more of importance to communicate than had Miss Folsom.

"You have been with Mr. Folsom some time?" Hubbard asked, a bit perfunctorily.

"Four years, sir," replied Ross.

"He was a good master?"

"In every way, sir. He was kind always, thought to please him everything had to be in strict accordance with his orders."

"And you came here with him when?"

"Day before yesterday—that is to say, Thursday, sir. We arrived in the afternoon and went to the Hotel Majusaca."

"And what did Mr. Folsom do on Thursday after reaching here?"

"As soon as we arrived, he left me to put away his clothing and belongings, and he went out for a stroll on the boardwalk. I didn't see him again until he came in to dress for dinner. After he was dressed, he told me I could have the evening to myself. He advised me to go for a stroll on the boardwalk or to take a ride in the chairs or to go to a movie show."

"Which did you do?"

"I did all three. The gay scenes were most interesting and I had a pleasant evening."

"You're wasting time talking to Ross," Miss Folsom put in with an annoyed shake of her head. "I've known the man for years; he was my brother's trusted assistant. Get what he can tell of Garrett's doings the morning he died, and then get at some more important witnesses."

Coroner Hubbard was not accustomed to receiving advices from his audience as to how to proceed, but Miss Folsom's suggestion was sensible and he showed no resentment.

"Tell us, then, Ross," he said, "what Mr. Folsom did the morning that he met his death. Tell the story of the day."

"He rose early, as he always does, sir. I mean about eight o'clock, earlier than most men on holiday. He went downstairs and breakfasted in the dining room. Mr. Folsom was never one to have meals in his room. Then he came back to his rooms about, maybe, two o'clock, and told me to get out his bathing suit and the bag of toilet things that he always carried with him to the bath house.

"I did this, and very soon he picked up the bag and started off. He turned back to tell me that I could go for an ocean dip while he was gone, but to be back by one o'clock, as he would return about that time.

"And you went in the ocean, then?"

"Yes, sir, for a short time. I didn't stay in long because I wanted to be sure to be back in Mr. Folsom's rooms by one o'clock."

"And were you?"

"Oh, yes, some time before one. By half-past twelve or thereabouts."

"You saw or heard nothing of the commotion caused by Mr. Folsom's death while you were in the water or on the beach?"

"Oh, no. I was told Mr. Folsom was—was hurt at about half-past twelve o'clock. At that time I was in his rooms, or just going there."

"Your own room is on the same floor with Mr. Folsom's?"

"Yes, at the back of the house. Mr. Folsom's rooms are on the ocean front."

"Yes. Now, Ross, think carefully. Do you know of anybody who could have any reason or any intent to wish for Mr. Folsom's death?"

"No, sir. Not anybody."

"Who will benefit by his decease?"

"Benefit, sir?"

"Yes, financially, I mean."

"I'm sure I don't know, sir."

"Don't ask those questions of Ross, Mr. Hubbard," interrupated Miss Folsom with asperity. "I will tell you of my brother's business affairs. Though I don't see what they have to do with the inquiry into his death."

"They might have a great deal to do with it, Miss Folsom. Who, then, will receive the bulk of Mr. Folsom's fortune?"

"That I can tell you in a general way. The will of my brother leaves some minor bequests, but the main part of his estate is divided approximately into thirds, one of which will be my portion, another will go to a nephew of mine and the other to Mr. Roger Neville, my brother's friend and business associate."

"Who is this nephew? Where is he?"

"NOW ROSS, DO YOU KNOW OF ANYBODY WHO COULD HAVE ANY REASON TO WISH FOR MR. FOLSOM'S DEATH?"

Sixty Years a Dominion

London Spectator—The descendants of the French and English settlers have long since agreed to work together for the good of their common country, Canada. . . . However Canada's' relations with Great Britain and the rest of the Empire may be modified, no attempt will be made to alter the privileged position of Quebec in the Dominion. The French Canadians are in a minority, but their rights are secure. The disappearance of the ancient feud has confirmed in the fullest measure the expectations of the framers of the constitution.

The Light of the World

Singapore Free Press—America has set herself up to an extent as the apostle of righteousness and she has forced her disarmament proposals to the front in the face of the conference on the subject which the League is to hold in November. She has therefore put herself in a position of some superiority of principle and moral as regards the rest of the world. That may or may not have been pleasing to the rest of the world but it having been done it carries with it the necessity of maintaining those high ideals and it can hardly be said that the mere desire to have as powerful a Navy—regardles sof the need for that Navy—as any other country in the world is a very high ideal although it may be very practical politics. In short an impression is growing that all the fine words of world disarmament and universal peace are simply a cloak to an aspiration to be the greatest naval power in the world. There is nothing to quarrel with in that per se, but it ought to be stated openly so that everyone would know what was really intended.

VIERKOETTER OF GERMANY WINS MARATHON SWIM

German, Human Fish, Makes a Spectacular Finish After a Wonderful Race

FRENCHMAN SECOND

George Young Forced to Retire Early in the Long Pull for $30,000

The early bird may catch the worm but the early riser did not necessarily get an unimpeded view of the great Toronto Marathon Swim. Every available vantage point was taken early when Premier Ferguson fired the starting gun which sent over 150 swimmers in with a splash to contend for the big money purses held out by Wm. Wrigley, Jr., and the Canadian National Exhibition.

GEORGE YOUNG'S PERFORMANCE.

George Young, Canada's hope, set the pace for the first five miles, then Ernst Vierkoetter, Germany's entrant, went into the lead and Young collapsed in trying to re-establish his premier position and passed out of the picture. Young's withdrawal took a lot of interest out of the race for the Canadian fans.

THE WINNER.

Vierkoetter, the one-eyed German baker, kept his killing pace throughout the course. He finished so strong that the last fifty yards he actually sprinted—a wonderful performance.

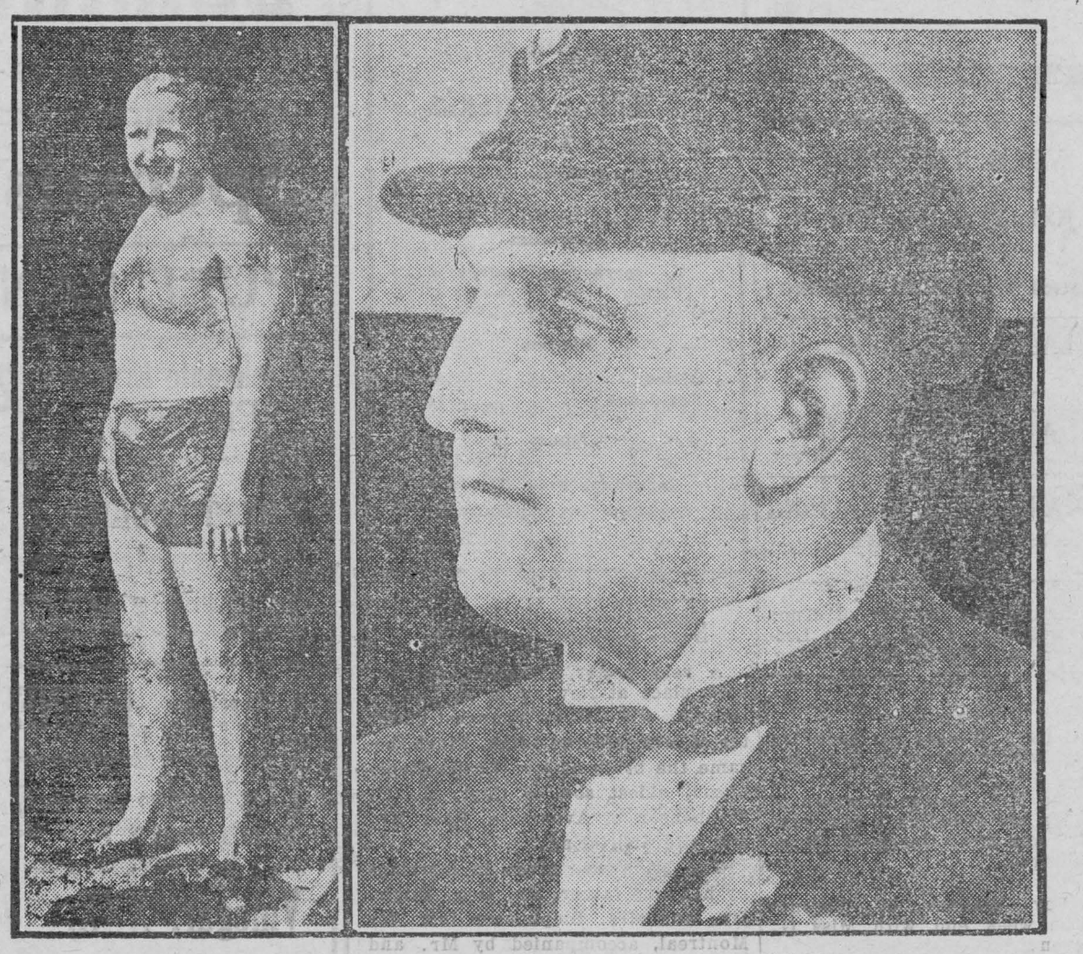

THE SECOND PLACE.

Michel of France, who, like Vierkoetter, came to the C.N.E. with English Channel laurels, finished second some four hours after Vierkoetter, and Erickson "floated" in over seven hours after the winner. Only three of the many starters completed the course. No women lasted the route.

THE AWARDS.

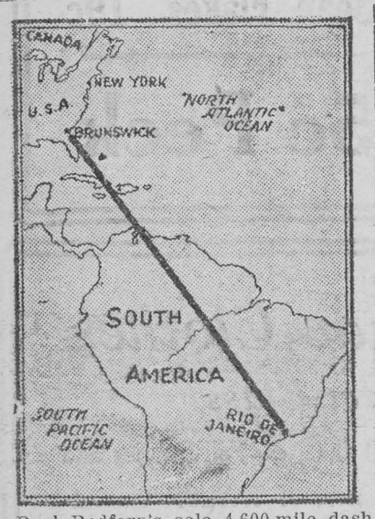

The winner received $30,000; Michel, second, $7,500, and Erickson, $2,500. As these were the only finishers, the Exhibition authorities and Allan Ross, Canadian representative of Wm. Wrigley, Jr., decided to divide up the remaining $10,000 among the women entrants. Lottie Schoemmel, who swam 17 miles, received $3,500; Ethel Hertel, who was the fastest woman swimmer, received $3,000. Edith Heden, the Finnish resident of Toronto, who swam a splendid race till attacked by a lamprey eel, received $2,000, and Martha Stager, who was the longest in the water of the women, $1,500.

Champion Swimmer of the World

ERNST VIERKOETTER, OF GERMANY, WINS $30,000 PRIZE

Plowing through the chilly waters of Lake Ontario for 21 miles in 11 hours, 42 minutes, 8 2-5 seconds, this human fish established for himself the title of "Champion Marathon Swimmer of the World."

Paul Redfern's solo 4,600-mile dash from Brunswick, Ga., marked an effort to break the existing long distance non-stop record, made by Clarence Chamberlin in his flight from New York to Germany. From the take-off point at Brunswick, Georgia, to the coast of South America it is 4,575 miles. To reach Rio Janeiro [illegible] the east coast of the southern [illegible] Redfern had 3,700 miles on fly. It wouldappear he is another loss to aviation pioneering, as no word of him has reached us.

Mr. Baldwin Returns Home

Sympathetic Reference is Made to First Visit of a British Premier Overseas

London, Aug. 23.—Stanley Baldwin, Prime Minister, returned this afternoon and was received at Waterloo Station by the members of his Cabinet still in London. The Premier's three weeks' visit to Canada was the first paid by any Prime Minister of England while in office to any overseas Dominions, and his home-coming afforded an occasion of much sympathetic reviewing of Commonwealth relations. It is felt that the equality of political status now shared by the Dominions with Great Britain renders imperative more frequent personal contact between the chief ministers of the state.

The Times says: "It is almost a corollary of the new imperial system that while the Government of Whitehall conducts the major share of the Empire's relations with the other powers, every opportunity should be given the peoples overseas to realize that it is being conducted by men whose aims for the Empire are worthy o ftheir trust."

The Daily News says: "Mr. Baldwin has done good service abroad."

The Geneva Fiasco

London Truth (Ind. Lib.): I should call the recent proceedings at Geneva one of the most lamentable exhibitions of political folly that have been seen in the last fifty years. . . . The Conference was by its constitution the worst possible medium for arriving at agreement. How can you expect the professional fighting men of different countries, naval and military, to agree between themselves about the limits to be put on their own services, except under definite instructions from their political superiors? Fighting is their business: in fact their raison d'etre. An admiral or a general charged to negotiate with the admirals and generals of rival armed nations, can no more give away points to the other side in negotiations than he can in war. If his Government has left open for discussion any fundamental difference of opinion, his business is to look at it as a fighting man, not as a pacifist. Governments have no business to put their admirals and generals into such a position.

British Grants Aid Migration

Imperial Assistance Stimulates Affortestation in South Australia

Adelaide, S. Aust.—An imperial grant of £358,250 to South Australia as a nucleus for starting afforestation on a larger scale was recently announced by the State Premier, Richard L. Butler. Representatives of the British Government have had an eye on the southeast for a long time. It is here that they expect an opportunity to be able to place migrants from England. In addition, the Scottish societies of this area are now drawing up a scheme for the importation of families from Scotland. Several estates have been offered to the Government for purchase and subdivision into farms, and a substantial income is assured from these lands, where onions, potatoes and cereals grow to perfection.

In accordance with the terms of the above grant, a minimum of 50,000 acres is to be planted over a period of 10 years, and paper pulp works will also be started. It will be necessary for the state to secure a further 100,-

Wright Motor Maker Assails Pacific Race

Bay Shore, L.I.—Charles L. Lawrence, inventor of the Wright Whirlwind motor used on the transatlantic and California-Hawaii transatlantic flights recently, condemned as "idiotic" the offering of prize money for the airplane race to Hawaii. The time is not yet ripe, he said, for races where various planes start at a certain time regardless of their condition for such extended flights.

Good political timber is often developed on the stump.

Vital Statistics

Births Again Decline in England and Wales; Rate for 1926 Approaches 1918 Low Record

London. — The spectre of "race suicide" has crept across the English Channel to haunt British social statisticians. The English and Welsh birth rate for 1926 again has shown a decline, following the descending curve which has obtained since 1920, according to figures published by the Registrar-General. The rate for the calendar year was 17.8 per 100,000 of population.

Against this the official report shows that the death rate of infants less than a year old was the lowest on record. Scotland experienced a higher birth rate as well as a higher infant death rate than England and Wales.

The 1926 birth rate tied that of 1917 and was barely higher than the 1918 rate of 17.7, the lowest on record for England and Wales. In France, where the low birth rate for years has presented what is regarded as a grave national problem, the proportion for 1926 was 18.8 for each 100,000.

Cancer, heart disease and tuberculosis of the respiratory system led the list as causes of death in England and Wales.

Women, the Registrar-General's report indicates, were far more agile in dodging motor vehicles and in avoiding fatal accidents generally than were men. Also, the number of women who committed suicide was less than half the number of men who met death by their own hands. The suicide figures were: Males, 3,099; females, 1,350. Accidental deaths: Males, 9,531; females, 4,274.

HISTORY MAKING IN AVIATION

Four Flights on the Wing Establishing New Records, As Weather Man Promises Success. More Coming

CROSSING BOTH WAYS

Levine Clown of the Air Causes Laugh in Europe

Schlee and Brock, after crossing the North Atlantic safely, are winging their successful passage toward India in their ship Pride of Detroit. Princess Lowenstein Werttein and her pilots, Hamilton and Menchin, are lost somewhere between Upavon, England, and Ottawa, Canada. Tully and Medcalf, in the "Sir John Carling," and Duke Schiller and Phil Wood in the Royal Windsor while on their way from London and Windsor, Ontario, to London and Windsor, England, had to land, the first at Cariboo, Maine, and the latter in Quebec. Both look for an early resumption of their flights. Truly an epoch-making week in aviation.

Paul Redfern, a lone flier who took off Thursday from the Georgia coast on a non-stop flight to Rio De Janeiro, had not arrived and it was considered a certainty that he was down, somewhere long his long and hazardous course. There was one report that a plane had been seen over the Orinoco Delta flying south Saturday a week ago.

On the Pacific determined searchers were still raking the seas for the seven persons missing since the recent Dole air derby from the west coast to Hawaii.

EUROPEAN FLIERS WAITING.

In Europe several aspirants for transatlantic honors bided the weather and a touch of humor was injected into the general feeling of tension when Charles A. Levine, who has flown the eastward ocean passage and hopes to fly the westward, made a mystery flight from Paris. He left without the knowledge of his French pilot, and suspicion that Levine intended to fly the return journey alone was dissipated when he bumped down onto the field at Croydon. He is now claimed to have selected a British pilot for the trip, thus adding another laugh to his extraordinary and erratic behavior.

While we are all looking forward to the arrival in this country shortly of the Farman Blue Bird, scheduled to be piloted by Leon Givon. This ship is a biplane in contrast to the popular monoplane type of ship used in the transoceanic flights which have originated on this continent. A very unusual bit of practice is a tandem motor and propeller arrangement, one propeller being of the "tractor" type and the other of the "pusher" variety.

This ship has been undergoing extensive tests and careful preparation will precede this flight.

The two German planes are "standing by" for an immediate departure as soon as weather permits.

Offside Hockey Rules Revised

More Forward Passing to Be Allowed—Penalty Shot Devised

Several important moves were made recently by the Canadian-American Hockey League at its meeting at the Boston Athletic Association, the foremost of which was a revision in the rules which will allow forward passing by an attacking force up to its own blue line, while the center no-offside district or mid-ice remains the same. This change in the rules is expected to speed up the game and to eliminate much of the unnecessary stopping of the game for offsides by a team in its own territory. The puck cannot be forward passed over any of the blue lines, but may be carried over a team's own line.

There is another change in the rules which is quite drastic and whose usefulness will need considerable testing out before proper judgment can be passend on it. Whenever a stick is thrown to prevent a player who is in scoring position from scoring, or a player who has broken through the defense is tripped, a free shot at the goal will be awarded the player interfered with. The shot will be made from a circle directly in front of the goal, but some 10 or 15 yards away and only the goalie may attempt to stop the puck.

New Penalty Shot

This penalty shot was in vogue in the old Pacific Coast Hockey League, having been inaugurated there sometime ago by the Patrick brothers, Lester and Frank. Boston had a chance to see it in operation two years ago when the Portland Rosebuds played two games against the Boston Bruins.

Although no announcement of these rule revisions has been made by the National Hockel League, it is understood that they have been adopted by that body or are expected to be at its next meeting September 23 in Chicago.

Although nothing definite can be announced at this time indications are that Philadelphia and possibly Hartford, will be added to the C.-A. H. L. although the latter is not as certain as the former. Philadelphia, according to reports, will be ready, and definite announcement may be made at anytime. Hartford backers state that they will be ready December 1.

Schedule to Be Longer

The C.-A. H. L. schedule of last year was made up of 32 games for each team; but this season it will be increased to at least 40 and perhaps 50. This means the season will open earlier and end later. The referee question also came up for discussion and efforts will be made to improve the system this coming season.

Germany Must Forego Idea of Austrian Union

Price Is Set by France for the Early Evacuation of Rhineland

Paris.—France is prepared to accede to the German request for complete evacuation of troops from the Rhineland prier to the official withdrawal's date of 1935. So much is stated for what is believed to be the first time in the local press. A price is mentionted, however, for such evacuation. Germany must guarantee the eastern frontiers contiguous to Poland and Czechoslovakia, and at the same time renounce formally the idea of proceeding with Austro-German union.

Such widely different newspapers as the semi-official Temps and the Socialist organ Quotidien declare the above-mentioned French thesis for a Franco-German accord. Quotidien says: "The Rhineland evacuation will show the Reich once more the pacific intentions of France," and admits at the same time that a part of French opinion desires this evacuation. Le Temps states that German willingness to share in an eastern European Locarno and give up the thought of Austro-German union would place evacuation on a totally different basis.

It is worth noticing that this proposal was made only after an Anglo-French agreement had been arrived at on the immediate reduction of Rhineland effectives from 70,000 to 60,000. However, a great effort may be seen to dovetail the Anglo-French viewpoints on the various political problems arising from time to time, and the conviction is deepening here that Anglo-French friendship must be the starting point for any endeavors to carry the Locarno peace policy further afield in Europe.

Trees to Border Road to Canberra

Sydney, N.S.W. — The Australian Forest League has set itself the task of creating an avenue of native trees along the main road from Sydney to Canberra, the federal capital, situated in the federal territory cut out of New South Wales, and about 200 miles distant.

The president of the New South Wales branch of the forest league is engaged in a personal geological and botanical examination of the route with a view to planting the native trees most suitable in the various areas. The local governing bodies will be encouraged to carry out the planting scheme in their territories.

Skin Is Now Clear Had Disfiguring Eczema

Two letters which tell how Dr. Chase's Ointment has cleared the skin of Eczema.

It is not unusual for people to use pleasant smelling salves and lotions for diseases of the skin with the idea that they have medicinal value. This is of course a mistake.

Dr. Chase's Ointment is a medicinal preparation which is composed of the most effective ingredients known to science. For this reason it is looked upon as the standard treatment for eczema and similar skin troubles.

Mrs. Sadie Waid, Lennoxville, Que., writes:—

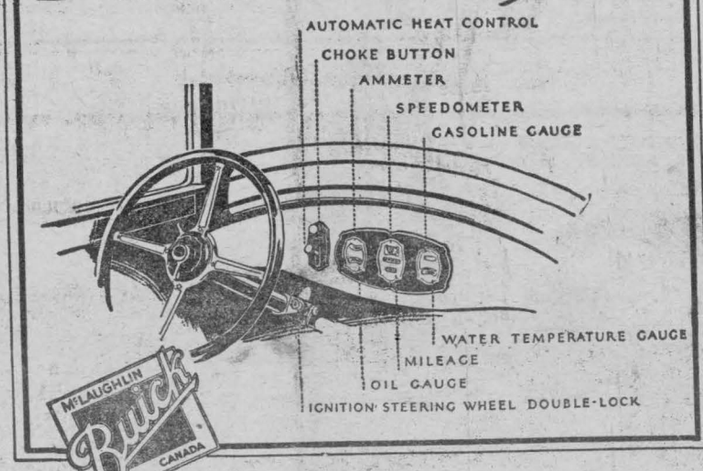

"My little sister's face was all covered with eczema, which even spread to her ears and was just a mass of running sores. We tried several kinds of salve, but without success, until we saw in Dr. Chase's Almanac several testimonials upholding your Ointment as a relief for eczema. After using a couple of boxes, she was entirely free from sores and thanks to the Ointment, her face is left without any disfiguring scars."

Miss Clara Yates, Bolton Centre, Que., writes:—

"I had very stubborn little sores on my face, for which I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, when the sores entirely disappeared. Dr. Chase's Ointment is the only ointment I would dare to recommend. I have also used the K. & L. Pills, which I found very beneficial."
