NEVER WERE THEIR MEMORIES SO SWEET AND PRECIOUS

Boys Who Have Gone To Their Homes In The Glorious Beyond

Their lives, their deeds, and their pure aspirations are the monuments that will keep their names burning in their homes, and in the hearts of every true Canadian, while the flying moments are diming in the future

The heroes, whose pictures are reproduced on this page, is but a small percentage of those who have given their lives from this district. We will gladly publish any additional photos, if relatives will forward to us a suitable photograph. Other precious names which are fresh in our memory are Ptes. Carl Stata and Chas. Lewis, who were among the first to give up their lives, but whose photos we were unable to secure in time for press.

It was on the 28th of June 1914, that a Serb youth, on the streets of Sarajevo, Capital of Botnia, fired the shot that set Europe at war and assassinated the Arch Duke Francis Ferdinaud, heir to the Austria-Hungarian throne, and the Arch Duke's wife. Thirty-nine days later, the whole of the great powers of Europe were at war and on the eleventh hour, the eleventh day, the eleventh month of Nineteen Hundred and Eighteen, Germany having signed the armistice, the greatest massacre of humanity the World has ever known, came to an end. This was undoubtedly, the most momentous moment of our times. This very important message, coming as it did, not unexpectedly, for the World with its ear to the wire, marked time, during Foch's 72 hour limit, awaiting the final decision of a Nation which must either be wiped off the Globe, or put the "Black Cap" on its "Brute." This word was passed along at 3 a.m. Monday morning, Morrisburg having retired unprepared to receive it, was deep in its slumber, while other wire centres rejoiced over the anxiously looked-for End of the War. As the early risers put in their appearance, word was quietly passed along that the war was over, but the premature report passed out to 'the preferred list on Thursday last which set the Village ablaze, put a damper on the merry-making element, when the official word was received.

At nine o'clock, Mr. I. Hilliard, M.P.P., and Reeve Casselman, surrounded by a number of citizens eager to hear the official announcement, addressed the gathering from the steps of the Molsons Bank, and after singing the National Anthem, the Reeve proclaimed a civic holiday. The kiddies then took possession of things, and to their credit, formulated the impression upon their own minds that the history of the greatest period of their lives had begun.

In the evening the Music Hall was packed to the doors with citizens eager to return thanks to God, to whom all praise is due for the great achievement of the Allies. On the platform were seated, the Clergy, including, Revs. Hugh Cameron, C. O. Carson, Father Meehan, and W. E. Reynolds, Reeve M. J. Casselman, (chairman); Mr. I. Hilliard, K.C., M.P.P. Principal T. E. Elliott, M.A., and Dr. Will C. Davy Rev. Bermon was not present, owing to his absence from town. Lieut. Cameron did not answer when called owing to the fact that he was making preparations to leave early Tuesday morning to report in England. Words of prayer of Thanksgiving were recited by Rev. Hugh Cameron, after which, the other Clergymen, also Messrs Hilliard and Elliott delivered masterly addresses on the cause of the war, the benefits to be derived from it, and the necessity of preparing for the future developments of our country. In words inspiring and uplifting to those present who have made the supreme sacrifice, the speakers voiced their appreciation of the deeds of valor performed by the silent voices, whose vacant places in their homes cannot be refilled.

The choirs rendered a number of hymns, under the leadership of Dr. Will C. Davy, accompanied by Miss Clara Summers.

TERMS OF THE ARMISTICE

Evacuation of all the invaded territory, including Alsace-Lorraine, reparation for all damage done, occupation by allied forces of principal gateways to Germany, hand ng over of the principal units of the German high seas fleet surrender of enough war material to practically disarm the German forces, and the occupation by American and allied forces of strategic gateways to Germany to enforce the fulfillment of terms are the principal features.

Complete destruction of the German military machine which brought on the war is provided for, and the way paved for reparation for the damage it wrought.

Germany must get out of Russia entirely and leave territory now occupied open to the Allies. The map of Europe, during discussion of peace terms, will be restored to the lines of 1914. Germany must return the thousands of unfortunates she deported into slavery from France, Belgium and the other invaded countries; she must return the gold taken from Russia Rumania and Belgium; she must make good for the property removed by her troops.

The treaty of Brest-Litovsk, which delivered Russia into Germany's hands, is to be abandoned; the "peace" dictated at Bucharest which prostrated Rumania is likewise to be abandoned.

American and Allied prisoners of war are to be repatriated without reciprocal action; what German forces remain in East Africa are to be surrendered unconditionally.

Guns, airplanes, and other engines of war, numbered by the thousands, are to be turned over to the associated powers with their accoutrements. No further destruction must be wrought by the retreating German hordes, and vast supplies of coal, iron and other war-making materials in the territories they occupy must be handed over undamaged.

Germany is to pay for the maintenance of the troops the associated Governments will place at strategic points in the Rhineland to assure that her promises shall not be a scrap of paper. German merchant ships are to be handed over undamaged, that they may be put into the humane work of relieving the distress of her civil population, which the victorious Allies will at once undertake in a spirit of mercy.

In the Black Sea as well as in the Baltic, the tentacles of the German military machine are to be clipped by the surrender of forts and ships.

Thanksgiving For Victory And Peace

Monday evening at 7.30, a special Thanksgiving Service was held in St. Marys Church. The ceremony opened with the singing of "God Save the King" then followed the recital of the Litany of the Saints, Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, the Devine Praises, the "Te Deum", and the closing hymn "Holy God We Praise Thy Name." At the conclusion of the Service, Father Meehan announced the Community Thanksgiving Meeting, called by Reeve Casselman, to be held in the Music Hall, and invited the members of the Congregation to attend, and assist in making this event a fitting and appropriate celebration of the coming Peace.

HOG RAISING WITH HOGO

Since the war began the world's stock of Hogs has decreased 32,425,000 head. These estimates do not include the Central Empires and Russia. The outlook for the Hog business is bright for many years to come.

WITH HOGO—a preparation put out by the Wodehouse Company, Ltd., you can raise Pigs cheaper than with any other feed.

Follow These Directions

Put 25 lbs. Hogo in barrel containing 40 gallons of water, mix thoroughly, have sufficient number of barrels to make up two weeks supply of feed, allowing three gallons per day for full grown Hog or Sow. Let the barrels stand for four days to thicken before starting to feed. Finish feeding first barrel before starting on second. After feeding first week's supply, put in new mix and let stand till balance of feed is used. One barrel will feed two full grown pigs, or sows, one week, that is three gallons per day per pig; for younger pigs reduce according to age. Pigs, newly weaned should be fed one quart at each meal three times a day.

No Other Feed Required When Feeding Hogo

Especially adapted to feeding to sows before and after they farrow; insures a splendid flow of milk.

SPLENDID LARGE COOKING ONIONS

CHAPTER XXVI.

"Great! Great!" Patrick Maguire would exclaim, slapping his knee. "Say, Mrs. Corcoran, won't you give us that again?" And when she had complied, he would be likely to say, "I can't sing a note, but just to hear you, Mrs. Corcoran, makes me feel there's music in my soul."

It was inevitable that, having been first interested in the singing, he should next become interested in the singer. Nora had fully determined that this should result. When he began to escort her home after the lessons, she felt that they were approaching a basis on which she would be able to negitiate with him. But she was going to do nothing prematurely; she was going to be sure that the shock of surprise and disappointment would not flatten out the wave of sympathy. Besides, she realized that an application for pardon could hardly be considered until Dave had served a term proportionate to the offense which he had confessed. Perhaps by the next spring or summer, when he had been in prison a year and a half, it might be safe to make the effort. She thought that a year and a half would not seem an inadequate term for attempted robbery. Until that sufficient period of penance should expire she would abstain from any appeals; she would devote the interval to strengthening her hold upon Patrick Maguire's interest.

It had been a long time since she had been disposed to make herself as charming as she could. Now she recovered much of her old pleasure in exercising that facility. She flattered Patrick Maguire on his own account as shamelessly as she flattered him and Mrs. O'Brien about Laura. She had been hearing about Patrick Maguire—so it seemed to her—almost ever since she could remember. How then did it happen he was such a young-looking man? And so good-natured looking too? She always had thought of a political boss as a man who looked like this—and she thrust out her lower jaw, drew down the corners of her mouth, and swaggered back and forth across the room in an absurdly truculent manner.

Laura backed against the wall and looked awed; Maguire passed from a broad grim into a shout of laughter.

"Come down here, Maggie; come down here and look at this!" he called; and when Mrs. O'Brien appeared in the doorway he said to Nora, "Come now, Mrs. Corcoran, give it to us again."

"Oh, I couldn't," Nora protested. "I was just being silly, Mrs. O'Brien."

"Go on, go on," urged Maguire. "It's her idea of what a political boss should be—the way she thinks I ought to look. Let's have it again now."

So Nora, with some reluctance, performed for Mrs. O'Brien's benefit, and Mrs. O'Brien was as entertained as her brother.

"You've got a comical way with you, Mrs. Corcoran, there's no doubt about it," she said. "To think you should ever have thought Patrick was that kind of a fellow!"

Nora was relieved that her conception aroused in Mrs. O'Brien amusement rather than hostility. She was still further relieved by other evidence, as time went on, that her increasing intimacy with Maguire was not, disapproved by his sister. Having expected that Mrs. O'Brien would discourage the growth of social intercourse between them, she was somewhat puzzled as well as gratified by the woman's failure to display jealousy, or even vigilance. In fact, it could not escape Nora's notice after a while that as soon as Laura's lesson was at an end, Mrs. O'Brien usually had some mission that took her from the house, while Patrick Maguire continued to sit in the parlor and insist on being amused. If it had not seemed too incredible, Nora would have been disposed to think that Mrs. O'Brien was trying to make a match. But that was preposterous. It was inconceivable that Patrick Maguire's sister should be planning measures which, if successful, would either dispossess her of a comfortable home or at the least deprive her of the authority which sh ehad long enjoyed in her brother's house.

So Nora concluded that she received such marked conisderation only because Mrs. O'Brien had decided it was perfectly safe to let her have it, and because both mother and uncle were sincerely grateful for her recognition of Laura's extraordinary qualities.

One day when Maguire had chosen to walk with her after the lesson, they met Jerry Donohue. He saluted, looking straight at her and ignoring Maguire. Nora was rather pleased that Jerry should have seen her in such company. He had not been very attentive to her of late, and it wouldn't be at all a bad thing if some little jealous apprehensiveness should stir within him.

She felt a slightly vengeful satisfaction when he called on her the next day. Her mother was in the bed-room, lying down, so there was no particular reason why he should have talked so stiffly and formally as he did. About Dave and how handsomely the warden spoke of him, about the weather and how he enjoyed now being on duty at dawn, for he had heard a robin sing only day before yesterday in the park—and then abruptly—"I saw you walking with Patrick Maguire yesterday."

"Oh, yes," said Nora. "I walk with him quite often." After a pause, as she did not want to punish him too severely, she added, "I give his little niece music lessons, and sometimes, if he's going down street, he walks along with me. He's quite interesting."

"I have no doubt he would be if he was to tell all he knows," replied Jerry.

"He's very pleasant," said Nora. "Not at all uppish. And he's very nice with his folks."

"Jerry," she said in a wistful voice, "do you ever think much of what life might have been for us if—if the Purroy Works had gone on just the same as always?"

"No," he answered, and he did not mean to be cruel. "I find plenty to think of with life as it is."

"Yes, but don't you ever like to imagine things, Jerry?"

"Not that sort of thing. What's the use, when you're hungry, of imagining a dinner?"

"It might make you enjoy it all the more when you sat down to it."

"It might," admitted Jerry thoughtfully. "It might. But if the best that's ahead of you is a stand-up feed at a lunch-counter—how about it then?"

"I don't see why anybody should feel so hopeless as that."

CHAPTER XXVII.

On arriving at home, Jerry walked in upon a tableau, especially arranged for him because from the window Peter had seen him coming down the street. At first Jerry could not make out just what was the matter; the family were all placed round on chairs in the sitting-room, looking at him expectantly, with mirth and interrogation in their eyes. His mother sat in the middle of the room, with Peter on one side of her and Betty on the other, and their faces seemed almost to dance as they looked at him. He turned to Kate for explanation; and then, though she sat with her head down, very demurely mending stockings, he saw that she was quite a different Kate from the one he knew.

"Hello!" he cried. "Why, you've gone and put your hair up!"

Then they all laughed, as if there were something humorous about either the remark or the discovery. Kate laughed too as she lifted a rosy face and shining eyes.

"Does it make me look quite old, Jerry?"

"I should say so. Stand up and turn round, so that I can see you.—Yes, there—" as Kate obediently stood and turned before him. "You're dressed like a young lady too—not a little girl any more at all. Do you feel as different as you look?"

"No; only a little shy at having people think I've changed."

"The change is very becoming, so you needn't feel shy."

"Oh! Do you really like it, Jerry?"

"Yes, very much."

"Isn't that nice! Now I shan't feel half so shy about showing myself at school like this to-morrow."

"Of course you won't Why, all the boys will be interested and all the girls will be jealous."

"If I thought that— But you see, Jerry, lots of the other girls have put their hair up, so I don't believe anybody will be much surprised."

Jerry smiled at her willful rejection of his little compliment. Her way of turning it off was rather clever too—so very innocent.

Knowing and Learning.

There was once a woman who thought herself an excellent housekeeper because she did thing exactly as her mother had done, no better and no worse. Then there came a guest, a little girl who had learned many things from reading the latest books and magazines a girl who was always learning. And the woman who had been satisfied with knowing found that, while a good housekeeper, she was not an excellent one, for she was wasteful of both time and strength and she had missed all the improvements that had been made on the ways and methods of a past generation. She was an 1880 model of housewife competing with the 1918 type.

The little girl who read and learned mixed the lard and flour for her pie crusts with a fork and used ice water instead of any kind that happened to be available, her crusts were flaky and feather light. She put her dust cloths in an old pail, poured in a little kerosene oil and covered them tightly for an hour. Each cloth was as good as those the woman had been buying of an agent at thirty cents each. She washed beans, peas, berries, etc., in a sieve and the work was wondrously simplified. She kept a clean newspaper over the kitchen table, changing papers as often as necessary and much scrubbing of the white oilcloth was saved.

The woman who knew watched her with a new interest in what had become prosaic, dragging housework. When she suggested that boiled salad dressing could be canned just as easily as peaches the woman doubted, but experience proved that enough dressing to last three months could be made at one time and with a big saving of time, fuel and dishwashing.

The girl who read went back to school but the woman who thought she knew subscribed for three good magazines and set hereslf the task of becoming the woman who could and would learn.

The Housewife's Part.

Again the housewife has to prove "the policeman of food control." In her hands lies mainly the success of making 1½ pounds of sugar do for each person in the family for a month. The burden of maintaining the Allied sugar supplies falls on us. There is not enough sugar available for us all to live in our peace time habits. Our great war programme has reduced our sugar-carrying fleet; the sugar requirements of the army are very large; the American crop is less than we expected; we have diverted 50,000 tons of sugar shipping in order that Belguim should have food; Germans have destroyed sugar beet fields and factories in, northern France and Italy; more than 50,000,000 pounds of sugar was sent to the bottom of the ocean off the United States coast recently.

Since about 70 per cent. of the country's sugar supply passes through the hands of the housewife, it is evident that she has a most important role to play in its conservation.

Just as in the use of flour substitutes, she will learn from experiment and practice many ways of using other sweetening. She will also learn how to substitute other energy and fuel-giving foods for the sugar she has relied upon in days of plenty.

All this takes time and thought, but it is a voluntary contribution to ultimate victory.

Remodeling The Child's Sweater.

In nothing do we show our patriotism more than in our willingness to fall in line with every request of the government. One of the biggest requests is to get along with as little wool as possible, a request which will inconvenience the folks of our northern clime nearly as much as the ban on sugar. So far wool cards are in the future, the giving up of wool is simply a test of our patriotism.

This is how one mother met the situation. Sweaters will wear out even on grown-ups, and when a child wears one three years it begins to look as if a new one must replace it. This sweater, a dark blue, was worn and frayed at cuffs and collar. In normal times the mother would have given it to the Salvation Army and bought a new one. This year, however, she decided on new collar and cuffs. For the cuffs she simply cast on thirty stitches, knitting with two needles, and knitted back and forth until the cuffs were as deep as were needed for that particular sweater, which depth, of course, she learned by measuring on the child. The collar is just as simple.

Cast on seven stitches and knit across the back. On the third time across cast on two more, and on the fifth, seventh, ninth, eleventh, etc., until you have twenty-two stitches. Then knit straight back and forth until the collar is of sufficient length to start the point on the other side, when narrow on every second time across down to seven stitches. The collar is then done.

The cuffs are sewed together and tacked onto the sleeve, the worn blue cuff being cut away. With the new white collor sewed in place, the old sweater has a quite dressed up look, for the simple outlay of fifty cents in money for the yarn and two afternoon's work.

To Dry Citron Peel.

Pare the citron, cut in pieces of a convenient size, and boil in slightly salted water until tender. Make a thick syrup, using one pound of sugar to one pint of water for each pound of the prepared citron. Add the citron and let simmer until the syrup is nearly absorbed, then boil rapidly, stirring constantly, until the pieces are well coated. Dry in the warming oven and store in any tight receptacle, fruit jars or pails with tight-fitting lids.

Eat Frozen Fish.

Fresh frozen fish is just as palatable as fresh fish. Only—a good many women do not know how to handle it properly.

The thing to remember is that frozen fish must be de-frosted in cold water. When this has been done clean and prepare as you would any other fish and cook in whatever form you desire.

Fish which has been frozen is just as nutrious as any other and its cheapness should make it more widely known.

No matter how much dripping is used, fish, when being fried, is apt to stick to the pan's bottom. If a tablespoonful of dry salt is put into the pan and rubbed over it it will be found satisfactory

Save Sugar

Use Corn Syrup

Canada is receiving only just enough sugar for her actual needs! There is no surplus for wastage.

First, all waste of sugar must cease; second, wherever possible, Corn Syrup must be used as an alternative for sugar.

You will discover a real economy, and a delicious addition to your household supplies if you

Here are a few suggested ways to use CROWN BRAND or LILY WHITE Corn Syrup to give to dishes a finer flavour than sugar gives:

Use CROWN BRAND Corn Syrup as a Sauce on Puddings.

Use LILY WHITE instead of Sugar in Cakes.

Use either brand in Cocoanut or other Puddings.

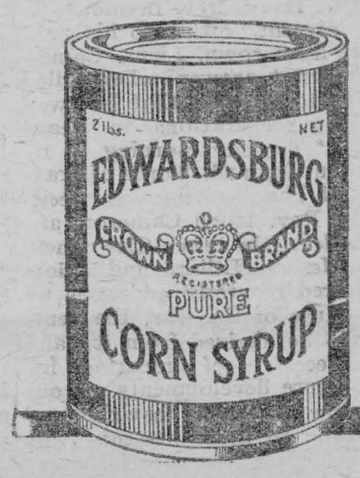

Use LILY WHITE in making Marmalades, Jams and in all Stewed Fruits.

The Brand is Important!

Real Corn Syrup is GOOD—very good! If your experience tells you otherwise it is because you have not tasted the genuine, which is produced from the most nutritious part of the Corn by wholesome and scientific processes.

Remember the brands, LILY WHITE and CROWN BRAND, and insist on getting them, for purity, economy and flavor.

Write to the Canada Food Board, Ottawa, for Bulletin on Corn Syrup

A great many recipes are improved by using half sugar and half Corn Syrup.

Buy a can of LILY WHITE or CROWN BRAND Corn Syrup to-day and become acquainted with their great possibilities.

Marketing Fresh Eggs.

Fresh laid eggs have a market value greater than eggs from the cold storage warehouses. They are worth more than eggs put down in waterglass. Too frequently the farmer knows that his fresh eggs are worth a premium and yet he receives the same price that city consumers are paying for storage stock. It is not necessary for a farmer to accept a price for his fresh eggs no greater than the price paid for goods not of the same quality. It is being done because of carelessness in saving and marketing the eggs.

The country egg buyer who exchanges groceries and merchandise for eggs is not able to pay the price that fresh eggs should command. In the first place too many farmers keep their male birds with the hens during the hot weather. The result is a poor quality of eggs.

Next, we come to the practice of allowing the hens to hide their nests all over the farm. At certain intervals there is a general hunt for eggs and then the good and the bad are sold together. Eggs are placed in one pail or basket and the top eggs are used every day in home cooking. The eggs in the bottom of the pail are taken out each week and possibly not that often. The egg buyer knows that his purchases from farmers will contain a certain number of poor quality eggs so he strikes an average and pays a price allowing for the inferior stock which he will undoubtedly receive. The farmer producing fresh eggs is forced to suffer because of this undesirable competition.

The best plan is to keep enough fowls to make egg marketing worthy of attention. Then, produce infertile eggs except during the hatching season. Ship the eggs to a reliable dealer who is willing to pay for eggs for a select trade if you have enough eggs. If the production is too small for frequent express shipments, it pays to make arrangements with a local grocer who is willing to pay a fair price for quality eggs. If this does not seem best, try the private trade and try and work up a business with buyers who are willing to pay a slight premium over the market price for eggs that are fresh laid and absolutely guaranteed to be fresh.

It is unfair to the producer of good fresh eggs to compel him to sell at the same price paid for mixed stock and that is what happens to the farmer who makes no effort to obtain his due credit for the effort necessary to produce eggs that are right in every way. At first thought, the difference of a few cents in the price of a dozen eggs does not seem worth worrying about, but when that is multiplied by several thousand during the course of a year, the result is surprising. Little things count up in every business and it seems as if this is more true in the poultry business than in any other line.

feeding, and good care, will make a profit—even in war times.—E. E. R.

The Dairy

The small-top milk pails have been found by experiment to keep from forty to seventy per cent. of the dirt out of the milk. It is a little more difficult to sun such a milk pail but it can be done. The practical dairyman knows that it is impossible to keep every microscopic bit of dust and dirt out of the milk at milking time, even if the cows are perfectly clean and the air is as pure as good ventilation can make it. These small-top milk pails are of assistance in producing cleaner milk on the farm and they should be in more general use.

The barrel churn operated by power is a practical investment for the farmer who makes butter often. It saves time and cuts out one more of the regular farm duties which tire the muscles. Many farmers who have changed from the old dash churn to the barrel churn are wondering how they ever endured the dash churn so long and when they adopt the power operated churn the smile grows broader and butter-making becomes a rather enjoyable and profitable sort of business.

It will pay to study the milking machines at the next fair or dairy show where they are exhibited. Many farmers believe that the milking machine is a complicated and expensive outfit that is only useful on a "rich man's farm" where style is sometimes more important than profits. This is not true and many farmers who are using milking machines find then a labor saver and an economical investment. They are not too complicated and the expense of such a machine is no greater in proportion to its usefulness than many other kinds of equipment considered necessary on the farm.

Store away plenty of cabbage and mangels to serve as green food for the fowls during the winter and early spring.

Poultry

Making the Hens Pay in Winter.

Not everybody understands how to feed and care for a flock of hens so as to get eggs in winter. A woman who is succeeding admirably in this respect the present season gives the following suggestions: First, do not expect eggs in winter unless the hens are young. Old fowls are too fat to lay well. Best results are obtained with pullets. Next, do not crowd too many hens in one flock. About twenty to twenty-five will do better than a larger number. If old and young of both sexes comprise the flock it will be advisable to keep the young hens and pullets by themselves. Provide water with the chill off in cold weather. Hot bricks under the container changed twice or three times during the day will do this. If kept clean there is no objection to heating these bricks in the house. Charcoal, crushed oyster shell and grit are kept where they are accessible at all times, and meat scrap forms a portion of the ration every day. The first meal is fed as soon as it is daylight. This is a warm mash slightly moist, composed of bran, ground oats and a little corn meal fed in troughs. At this time a basket of clover chaff is emptied in the scratching shed. There is no noon meal but about four o'clock a liberal feed of corn is given. This corn is kept in the house, precious as it is this year, and so is never icy cold.

The fowls work in the clover chaff a good deal of the time through the day. They eat it with relish. Alfalfa chaff is even better. Milk would be a fine addition to the ration but this flock does not get it. Often fresh vegetables like cabbage or beets, are placed where the fowls can eat them, but no condiments or patent foods of any kind are supplied. Healthy young hens do not require them. Of course, the quarters of the flock are warm and free from vermin. They have the run of a small outside yard on fine days. When it is very cold or stormy they are kept inside.

Feed is expensive, yet the eggs which this flock are laying sell readily at forty-five cents per dozen and the owner claims the hens are paying a good profit. All the feed except the corn and the chaff is purchased outright. The chaff plays an important part as it keeps the fowls busy, besides supplying the necessary material for egg making. The moment it is placed before them they begin to scratch in it and instead of moping they are working and singing.

Questions Relating to the Lympathic System.

N. L.—What is the function of the lymphatic system of the body? Is there any relation between it and the blood? Is the fluid which is in blisters derived from the lymphatics? Of what use is it to the body?

The lymphatic system consists of a series of small and large vessels and glands extending from the surface of the body to its centre and communicating with the great vines of the body which go to the heart. Into these veins it discharges the fluids it has collected from the tissues by absorption. Lymphatic fluid or lymph is transparent in appearance, the lymphatic vessels are arranged in meshes or network which is closely related to the course of the bloodvessels the smaller lymphatics especially in the skin and mucous membranes being near the capillaries and the larger ones near the larger blood vessels. At irregular intervals in the lymphatic meshwork are glands from .03 to .8 inches in their long diameter, somewhat bean shaped, through which the lymph stream flows. The fluid which oozes from the capillaries in the skin and elsewhere into the spaces between the tissues thus bathes their cells with liquid food. These spaces also contain fluid material from worn out and disintegrated cells and this is soaked up by the lympathics finally entering the large veins on either side of the neck where it is carried to the heart with the blood stream. The lymphatics of the intestines contain not only the materials of ordinary lymph but also about three times as much albumen as that fluid together with a considerable quantity of fat which has been absorbed in the form of an emulsion, hence the lymph is very closely related to the blood.

I suppose the fluid of blisters, under usual conditions is lymph or contains lymph. If you cut your finger and introduce a poison the poison may be and often is taken up by the lymphatics producing inflammation in these vessels and the surrounding tissues. You can see the evidence of the involvement of the lymphatics in such inflammations in the red lines or streaks running up the arm. The poison or the inflammation may be arrested in the glands of the armpit which become swollen, painful, frequently suppurate, and often require more or less extensive surgical treatment. The poison may be distributed by the blood over the body and the patient die from blood poisoning. Lymphatic glands in the neck and elsewhere are often the seat of tubercles and may require removal. It will therefore be apparent that the lymphatic system is a very essential part of the body in its ordinary functions and also the possible seat of serious disease.

Questions and Answers.

Mother—Would you kindly tell me if anything can be done to cure my boy of stuttering, which seems to be troubling him more and more?

Answer—The only thing I can suggest is that you send a stamped self-addressed envelope and the article on stuttering and stammering will be mailed to you.

K. B. H.—1—Would cubeb berries in powder form be more effective as a remedy for catarrh than the crushed berries?

2—Would bronchitis and other throat troubles be benefitted by this treatment?

Answer—1—If you refer to using this substance by inhalation, a powder would of course be less irritating than the granulated form produced by crushing.

2—I would not advise you to use it.

Placing Bees in Winter Quarters.

Everything should now be in shape for winter. If the bees are to be stored in cellars they should be placed there as soon as settled cold weather comes on. The later the better, since there will be some mild days during which they may want a flight to discharge their feces. This prevents dysentery to which bees wintered indoors are sometimes prone.

Let the cellar be absolutely dark, and all they will require during the winter months will be an occasional airing at night for an hour or two, but never during the day.

Sweep up any dead bees that may accumulate on the cellar floor during the winter, using a lantern while doing so.

To ventilate the cellar wait until it is dark and open the door for an hour or two.

When wintering outdoors be sure to use sufficient packing to keep the bees warm. Unless the climate runs many degrees below zero and stays there for a long time, it is all right to winter outdoors in the double-walled chaff hives.

Solving the Nation's Shoe Problem

A LARGE section of the Canadian public depends upon this company for shoes. Our financial resources and buying power are greater by far than those of any other Canadian manufacturer of shoes; our volume of output is more than twice that of any other. Our sales organization covers the nation from coast to coast, not merely a small section at a time.

Our six branches maintain adequate stocks within the reach of every dealer in Canada, and are now serving more than 5,000 dealers, enabling them to fill orders quickly and to cut down the amount of idle stock on their shelves.

We are making every effort to use this power to help solve the big problem of providing enough good quality shoes to go around. In the face of an actual scarcity of leather, it is difficult; but it can be done if you will co-operate with us. Buy wisely, for service rather than merely for style, and see that the shoes you buy are stamped with the manufacturer's trade-mark.

OBITUARY

Mr. Vincent Barry

Mr. Vincent Barry, of Saskatoon, Sask., formerly of Morrisburg, died at St. Pauls Hospital, Saskatoon, on Monday, November 11th. The circumstances in connection with this death are exceedingly sad, it being the second member of the family to succumb to the epidemic disease within one month.

The deceased was the youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Barry, one of the most highly respected families of this county. He was born at "Killarney", Dundas County, and educated at the schools of Morrisburg. Some seven years ago he went West and settled in Humboldt, Sask., where he resided until last Fall, when he moved to Saskatoon. In 1916 he was united in marriage to Miss Edna Erle of Winnipeg, by whom he is survived.

Learning that his brother, Murray of Smiths Falls was dangerously ill, he journeyed East to his bedside, accompanied by Mrs. Barry. Finding his brother in a more hopeful condition, he immediately returned home where he died from pneumonia, following influenza. Mrs. Barry is also critically ill.

Deceased was a brother of Dr. L. Barry, who died in Smiths Falls, October 11th.

We join with a legion of friends in extending heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

Levi F. Selleck

Mr. Levi F. Selleck passed away at his home in Green Court, Alberta on the 29th of Oct., Ult., after a short illness. This announcement was received by his many friends in Morrisburg, not altogether with surprise, for it was known that he had been feeble for some time, and the outlook for recovery doubtful.

Mr. Selleck came to Morrisburg from Kemptville when a young man, and established a business as druggist and stationer. He married a Morrisburg young lady, Miss Effie Haines, who with one son, Burnell, and one daughter, Adena, survive.

There was never a more genial nor more popular merchant left our town, and when he moved to Alberta some twelve years ago, his departure was regretted more than any citizen who ever left Morrisburg. He was a progressive citizen and took a keen interest in Municipal affairs. He was what is commonly known as a "live wire." The entire community joins in extending sympathy to his widow and family.

Mr. Geo. P. Crysler

We are called upon this week to chronicle the death of one of the oldest, and a life-long resident of Williamsburg Township in the person of Mr. George P. Crysler, who died on the old historical homestead, East Williamsburg, on Sunday November 10th, after a brief illness.

Deceased was in his 75th. year, a son of the late Samuel Crysler, and one of the most progressive farmers of his days. He is survived by one brother, Martin, at home; and four sisters, Mrs. May Nichols, New Hampshire; Mrs. Wm. Bouck, Cornwall; Miss Crysler at home and Mrs. J. N. Eastman of Morrisburg.

The funeral was held on Tuesday afternoon from his late residence to Trinity Memorial Church, Riverside, Rev. C. O. Carson officiating. Interment in Trinity Memorial cemetery.

The pall-bearers were James M. Barkley, Laban Barkley, Herman Havunga, Allan Loucks George McKenzie and W. A. VanAllen.

Among relatives from a distance were, his niece, Mrs. J. W. Butler, and a nephew, Dalton Crysler, Montreal.

DIED

At Riverside, Morrisburg, on Tuesday, November 12, Miss C. Florence Salmon, aged 33 years.

The funeral services were held at the family residence, Tuesday Nov. 14th, Rev. R. Cameron officiating.

Mr. Bruce Roode Meets Tragic End

Mr. Bruce Roode, a young and promising young man of Mountain, met with a tractor accident on Saturday last which caused his death.

Roode, who had been engaged in tractor plowing for the last two months, was considered by his employer, Mr. W. Quenneville, to be an expert. At the time of the accident, he was at work on Mr. F. E. Farlinger's farm (at the head), where the soil was wet and heavy, making it difficult to operate the machine. The accident happened about 11 a.m., when Mr. Roode attempted to free the machine which had become fast in the wet soil. Detaching the plows, he placed two fence rails under the driving wheels, which had beded themselves deeply, and turned on full power, and the lugs on the wheels taking a firm hold on the timber, threw the rear end of the machine over the front part with such force that the heavy centre casting was snapped, and the operator pinned to the ground underneath it where he remained for three hours or more before he was found by Mr. Quenneville. The latter who arrived at the farm house about 1.30 p.m., was informed by Mr. Farlinger, who had gone a distance from the house in search, that the hired man had not yet reported for his dinner, and that he was anxious about him. When found, Roode was conscious and told Mr. Quenneville how the accident had happened. He prayed to be relieved, but this was impossible until more help had been secured, owing to the enormous weight of the casting under which he was pinned. It was not until about 2.15 p.m. that the unfortunate was relieved, but apart from being numb through exposure, he claimed he was not internally injured, and stated that he would be back on the job in a day or two. He was taken to his home in South Mountain, where he died on Monday morning, November 11 at 5 o'clock.

Roode was a very popular young man in his district, and the accident has cast a gloom over the entire surroundings. The funeral was one of the largest ever held in Mountain.

The Bank will trust you

Perhaps you never had an account in a bank—maybe you've never done business in a bank—hardly even cashed a cheque in one. But—that is no reason why you cannot go to a bank and borrow money to buy Victory Bonds.

If you are a steady, industrious, thrifty citizen, working and saving a part of your income, you are just the kind of person Canada's chartered banks stand ready to help to-day.

Any bank will lend you as much money as you can save during the next twelve months, with which to buy Victory Bonds.

All you have to do is to pay ten per cent. of the amount you want to buy and deposit the receipt for that ten per cent. in the bank.

The bank will lend you the 90 per cent. balance at 5½ per cent. interest and will give you a year to repay it, the interest you get on your bond being just the same as the bank charges you.

This is a fine opportunity for you to begin a real savings account, to make a first class investment and to help your country at the same time.

Why not see a banker to-day—he will tell you all about it and you will be glad of the advice and help he can give you.

Borrow and Buy Victory Bonds

Issued by Canada's Victory Loan Committee in co-operation with the Minister of Finance of the Dominion of Canada

164

As a matter of business, what do you think of the plan?

You are a farmer.

Canada is a farming country.

Canada grows more food than the people of Canada need.

To prosper she must sell that surplus food.

Great Britain is our best customer for grain, pork, beef, cheese and other farm products.

Every practical man must see how important it is to hold the British trade. Canada wants not only the profit on this trade, she wishes to create a goodwill in Britain towards Canadian products and thus assure our export business for the future.

At the moment Great Britain asks for credit, asks Canada to sell her the products of the farm, "on time." To hold her trade, it is necessary to give this credit.

This takes capital—immense capital. For Britain's purchases from Canada are huge, and these purchases must be paid for in cash.

In these times, it is not easy even for a nation as wealthy as Canada to procure money. Certainly, no other country can lend us money. The only way now open for Canada to secure money is to borrow from the people of Canada.

This is the reason for selling Victory Bonds.

Can anyone deny the sound business sense of this plan of protecting our valuable market?

From the standpoint of the man who lends, what better security could he get for his money? Where else could he get a five and a half per cent. return on such security? Where would he find an investment to pay interest so regularly and with so little trouble to the lender? Certainly Canadians have an opportunity to benefit very directly from this borrowing plan.

And the money Canada borrows is spent entirely in Canada—a very large part of it for the very crops the farmer has to sell.

Therefore, if the Victory Loan is a success, business in Canada must be good, the nation must prosper and so be able to carry on a vigorous war effort in France and Flanders.

As a practical man you must approve of the Victory Loan plan.

Then help it along. Put your own money into Victory Bonds; urge your friends to buy; work hard among your loyal neighbors to make the Victory Loan 1918 an overwhelming success.

Buy VICTORY BONDS

—all you can pay for in cash and all you can carry on instalments.

Issued by Canada's Victory Loan Committee, in co-operation with the Minister of Finance of the Dominion of Canada.

How do you like Victory?

It's all over, Mr. Hohenzollern!

Williamsburg sustained her reputation for being to the front when it came to celebrating. We couldn't crowd it all into one night, so we took two. Men and women; boys and girls old and young; they were all out. Drums, mouth organs, band instruments, horns, bells, church bells, tin pans, tin boilers, factory whistles, bombs, fire works and flags galore were in the parades. The pretty girls formed parades singing patriotic airs, ringing bells, etc., and it was not till the wee small hours that the tired citizens found a chance to steal away to dreamland to dream of the homecoming of our heroes.

Mr. and Mrs. Seaman of Montreal are visiting the former's brother of this place.

Wedding bells are ringing.

WORLD WAR ENDED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—The world war ended this morning at 6 o'clock Washington time, 11 o'clock Paris time. The armistice was signed by the German representatives at midnight. This announcement was made by the State Department at 2.50 o'clock Monday morning.

This announcement was made verbally by an official of the State Department in this form:

"The armistice has been signed. It was signed at 5 a.m. Paris time, and hostilities will cease at 11 o'clock this morning, Paris time."

The armistice was signed at Senlis, a little French town, the headquarters of the allied Generalissimo.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Revolution in Germany assumes tremendous proportions. The Monarchy is swept away. Berlin, the Capital, is the scene of severe fighting and violent cannonades. Through the provinces of the erstwhile Empire the uprising spreads like wildfire. A Socialist leader is in control as temporary Chancellor. Great public parades are marching the streets of German cities shouting "Long Live the Republic" and singing the Marseillaise.

The Hohenzollern dynasty is at an end. Wilhelm has abdicated, and the Crown Prince has renounced his title to the Throne. The Kaiser left Berlin some days ago and hastened to the Military Headquarters of the High Command in the field. It was here—after hours of pressure on the part of his advisers, and faced with the threatened desertion of his forces—that Wilhelm bowed to the inevitable. Retribution has overtaken autocracy.

Marshal Foch, Generalissimo of the Allied Forces, who Handed the Terms of Armistice to the German Bearers of the White Flag.

NEW GERMAN CHANCELLOR PROMISES GREAT REFORMS

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Revolution is spreading throughout Germany. Provisional authorities are exhorting the people to remain calm and avoid the excesses which may destroy the fruits of their labor. In addition to the efforts of Friedrich Ebert, who has been appointed Chancellor, to form a new Government, Workmen's and Soldiers' Councils, similar to those organized in Russia, are springing up all over the country.

Philip Scheidemann, Leader of the Majority Socialists in the Reichstag, is assisting Ebert at Berlin, and has exhorted the people to avoid disorders.

The Workmen's and Soldiers' Council of Berlin has called a general strike, which has tied up industry. This is spreading, and the leaders of the majority parties are experiencing the greatest anxiety over the grave danger of the country being turned into a state of chaos through the actions of the extreme factions.

Soldiers' and Sailors' delegations have arrived at Berlin to declare their allegiance to the new People's Government, and the War Ministry has placed itself at the disposal of the new Chancellor. Prince Maximilian pleads for a united people to avert grave future dangers from the Empire, which has so calmly, he states, endured the sacrifices of war.

Among other Ministers who desire to be relieved of their duties are the Prussian Food Controller and the Minister of Public Works.

RUSSIAN PEASANTS REVOLT AGAINST THE BOLSHEVIKI

HUN WARSHIPS AT DANISH PORT

Fled From Kiel When Sailors' Revolt Broke Out.

Copenhagen, Nov. 10.—The German training ship Schlesien, with 400 men on board, which fled from Kiel when the sailors' revolt broke out there, has arrived at Marstal in distress. The crew had been unable to obtain water at other Danish ports. Two German cruisers in control of Red forces are watching outside of Marstal. The commander of the Schlesien says that he believes Danzig is the only German port he can safely enter.

The Schlesien is a pre-dreadnought battleship. It is 414 feet long and displaces 13,000 tons Marstal, where she took refuge, is a small port on the east coast of the Island of Aroe, in the Baltic.

Whole German General Staff Fled

London, Monday, Nov. 11.—The former German Emperor's party, which is believed to include Field Marshal von Hindenburg, arrived at Eysden, on the Dutch frontier, at 7.30 o'clock Sunday morning, according to Daily Mail advices. Practically the whole German general staff accompanied the former Emperor, and ten automobiles carried the party. The automobiles were bristling with rifles, and all the fugitives were armed. The ex-Kaiser was in uniform. He alighted at the Eysden station and paced the platform, smoking a cigarette. Eysden lies about midway between Liege and Maastrichi, on the Dutch border. The party is proceeding to Middachten Castle, near Utrecht.

Assumes Sovereignty Over Austrian Galicia

Galicia is a crown land of Austria-Hungary, north of the Carpathians. It has an area of 30,307 square miles and in normal times had a population of some 7,000,000.

The Royal War-Maker fell on the natal day of the Royal Peacemaker.

FORMER KAISER FUGITIVE IN HOLLAND SIGNED ABDICATION WITH A SHIVER

Crown Prince Also Renounced the Throne—Dramatic Scene at German Headquarters on Saturday—Former Crown Prince is With His Father.

London, Nov. 9.—A German wireless message received in London this morning states:

"The German Imperial Chancellor, Prince Maximilian of Baden, has issued the following decree:

" 'The Kaiser and King has decided to renounce the throne.

" 'The Imperial Chancellor will remain in office until the questions connected with the abdication of the Kaiser, the renouncing by the Crown Prince of the throne of the German Empire and of Prussia and the setting up of a regency have been settled.

" 'For the regency he intends to appoint Deputy Ebert as Imperial Chancellor, and he proposes that a bill shall be brought in for the establishment of a law providing for the immediate promulgation of general suffrage and for a constitutional German National Assembly, which will settle finally the future form of government of the German nation and of those peoples which might be desirous of coming within the empire.

"Berlin, Nov. 9, 1918.

It is semi-officially reported in Reichstag circles that Prince Max will be appointed regent of the empire.

Deputy Ebert, who has been appointed Imperial Chancellor, is Friedrich Ebert, vice-president of the Social Democratic party and president of the Main Committee of the Reichstag.

Ebert's election to the latter office in June of this year was taken to mean at the time that the Socialist minority in the Reichstag had either been reclaimed by the military Government or that the Socialists had gained the ascendancy. Later events have proved that the Socialists were in the saddle.

Ebert quite recently declared in the Reichstag that the German people would no longer permit themselves to be without the right to decide their fate. It was he who informed the Reichstag of the release of Dr. Liebknecht.

A telegram received from Brunswick by way of Berlin, asserts that Emperor William's son-in-law, the Duke of Brunswick, and his successor, have abdicated.

The reigning Duke of Brunswick is Ernest Augustus, a son of the Duke of Cumberland. On May 24, 1913, he married Princess Victoria Louisa, the only daughter of Emperor William. They have three sons, the eldest, Ernest Augustus, whose right to the throne also has been renounced.

BRITISH LOSSES BY U-BOATS AGGREGATE 9,000,000 TONS

A despatch from London says: Speaking in the House of Commons, Right Hon. Thomas James Macnamara, Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty, stated that 8,946,000 tons of British merchant shipping had been lost during the war up to September 30 last, by enemy actions. Of this number 5,443,000 tons had been replaced by new construction and by the purchase of ships abroad and the utilization of captured enemy ships.

The Crash of Thrones—The crash of thrones in Europe as a sequel of the Allied victory is unparalleled in history. Here are the autocrats whose doom democracy has sealed:—1. Constantine of Greece; 2. Nicholas of Russia; 3, Ferdinand of Bulgaria; 4, Carl of Austria; 5, Mohammed VI. of Turkey; 6, Boris of Bulgaria; 7, Wilhelm II. of Germany.

FOOD SITUATION WHEN WAR ENDS

North America the Great Channel of Supply For 250,000,000 People.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Whenever peace comes, it is certain not to add one ounce of food to a hungry world. On the other hand, it is certain to increase the claims on this continent to share what it has with others.

The Supreme War Council, in session at Versailles, desires to co-operate with Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria in making available, as far as possible, of food and other supplies necessary for the lives of the civilian populations of those countries.

The resolution was passed unanimously by the Supreme War Council. It shows the food situation is second only to that of the military front, says the Chairman of the Canada Food Board.

To take them in the order of their withdrawal from the war: Bulgaria adds a total of 4,000,000 people to those who must be fed; Turkey, roughly, 15,000,000, and Austria-Hungary, 50,000,000 people. Besides these, there are in Poland, in the Balkans and on the fringes of Russia, probably another 100,000,000 people who have been facing semi-starvation for at least two seasons. These stricken people, when they can be fully relieved, added to the whole population of France, Italy and Great Britain, not to speak of the peoples of the neutral countries, give a total of 250,000,000 who will have to be fed.

Only a part of the allied shipping will be free for many months to come to make the long voyage to Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India and to the Argentina, where there are undoubtedly stocks of food. Repatriation of troops, which cannot be made to a very great extent until the last belligerent power has been made to throw down its arms, will take up for two years an incredible part of allied shipping. No more vessels will be detached than are imperatively necessary for the distant voyages; the North American route must remain the great canal of food supply for the whole world.

WAR COSTS CANADA OVER A BILLION

Last Month's Expenditure Over Sixty-Six and a Half Millions.

A despatch from Ottawa says: The war has cost Canada well over a billion dollars up to date. This comprises accounts which have actually passed through the Finance Department. It does not include recent overseas expenditures, for which accounts have not yet been presented.

War expenditure by the Dominion since August, 1914, has been for the different fiscal years, approximately as follows: 1914-15, $60,750,000; 1915-16, $166,197,000; 1916-17, $306,486,000; 1917-18, $343,835,000; seven months to Oct. 31, 1918, $169,574,000; total, $1,046,344,000.

The expenditures for war purposes last month was $66,510,000, as compared with $44,481,000 in October, 1917. It is explained, however, that the figures for last month include some overseas accounts which had been delayed in the mail.

Revenue on consolidated fund account continues to increase. Last month it was $23,431,234, in comparison with $18,241,155 for October, 1917. During the seven months ending Oct. 31, 1918, revenue was $164,414,136. This compares with $145,719,060, the revenue for the equivalent period last year. Expenditure on consolidated fund account was, in October, 1918, $19,685,497; in Oct. 1917, $16,459,966.

The total net debt of the Dominion on Oct. 31 last was $1,287,035,509, an increase during the month of $62,807,616.

TELL HARROWING TALES OF BULGARIAN CRUELTY

A despatch from Athens says: British prisoners returning from Bulgaria say that terrible tortures were practiced by the Bulgarian soldiers upon prisoners, some of whom have been driven insane. Serbian and Roumanian prisoners were badly mistreated, and in one instance a Greek was hung up by the feet and burned. Many harrowing reports are told by men who for some time have been behind the Bulgarian lines.

BRITISH AIRMEN WELL SCHOOLED

MUST STUDY GUNNERY AND WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY

Aspirants for Royal Squadron Are Intensively Trained from the Ground Up.

When the young cadet of the Royal Air Force has learned to march, to swing his arms with the stiffness approved by his instructors, to salute in the only possible way considered "correct" by a flying officer, to stop the other fellow from hitting him when he has the gloves on; when, in fact, he has learned discipline, and his body has been hardened by physical training and games, he leaves the camp by the sea and goes—to school. He is eager to fly, but much must be taught him before he can leave the ground.

So it is that the boy, by now very much a soldier, goes to the lecture room, and for a period "swots" as hard as military necessity and his own keenness dictate. He does not study languages or history or mathematics, but engines and aerial navigation, signalling and wireless telegraphy, aeroplane rigging and map reading. His professors and lecturers, like himself, are in khaki. Highly capable N.C.O.'s teach him the why and the wherefore of cranks and rods and cylinders; he pulls engines to pieces and sets them up again.

Studies Mechanism of Planes.

He sits in a seat with a "joy-stick" manoeuvring a quarter-sized airplane in front of him, and sees the effect on the machine of different movements of the control. By ingenious devices he learns the art of observation from the air and how to report what his eyes have beheld. He comes to know why, to correct the deflection of the wind, he must steer a machine at an angle which apparently contradicts the direction in which he wishes to fly. He becomes wise about compasses and instruments. All that is shown him he must absorb and remember, so that, at the end of the course, he can pass the test of a strict examination.

It is hard work. He cannot "cut" lectures. He must not slack. When he leaves the school a little more of boyhood has gone; the man is emerging. But he has kept fit. Every day after work he goes from the desk to the playing fields. Games count for so much that at each stage of his training, the marks which are to determine his suitability for an air force commission include an award for the degree of proficiency he shows at play.

Testing the Guns.

From the school of aeronautics the cadet passes to the school of armament, and for a time has the "tock-tock-tock" of machine guns continually in his ears. If he is not familiar with the Vickers and Lewis guns as he is with a knife and fork at the end of his lessons, it is not the fault of his instructors. In the beginning the fact is impressed upon him that an airplane is merely a means of taking guns into the air, and that if a pilot takes up a gun without being able to use it he is asking for trouble.

Trouble in such a case means death. Diagrams, cinema demonstrations, sectional models and guns, complete and in part, are brought into use to make instruction easy. For one ingenious lecture the pupil takes a seat in a cinema hall, and his position in relation to the pictures which pass over the screen is that of the pilot of the photographed airplane. Here is shown how to aim his gun. He sees the approach of an enemy machine and the burst of fire which, according to its accuracy, sends the Hun crashing to the ground or misses him. The lesson is elementary in its simplicity but wonderfully effective.

While at the school the cadet passes through a gun-testing section. Every machine gun to be used for air fighting is examined minutely and severely tried before it is sent overseas. Hours are devoted to the scrutiny of each weapon. Guns as they come from the makers are quite good enough for ground use, but for use in the air they must be tuned up so that the risk of failure is reduced to the minimum.

It is a great day for the flight cadet, as the boy is now called, when he reports to the training squadron where he is to learn his flying. His mind is packed with the theory, but before him lies adventure.

The pupil is taken up by an instructor and goes "dual" before he is allowed to handle a machine alone. "In the old days," I was told at the southern aerdrome, "you were counted a dub if you could not get along after three hours' dual. If you took four hours you were heaved out." To this recollection the officer with whom I talked added another: "When the instructors had learned their flying," he said, "it was considered an insult if a pilot who had once gone solo was told that he was to be given more dual. This simply meant that men went up and got into bad habits and a sloppy way of flying."

Marvelous Gunnery.

Before a pilot goes solo at all now he is taught to loop and spin and half-roll, and to land in any field which the instructor directs him to get into. Even so, his progress is still closely watched after he is given single control, and at intervals the instructor goes up with the pupil to correct any fault he may have developed. The number of machines crashed at one time was enormous; to-day the crashes, by comparison, are insignificant, and an accident on the occasion of a first solo flight is almost unknown.

When the instructors are satisfied that a pupil can fly a service machine properly, the boy—he has still to graduate for his wings, but if he is of the right stuff he is by now only a boy in years, and his fresh, virile manhood is an inspiring thing to see—is transferred from the elementary side of the depot to what is known as the "special flight" side and is taught aerial fighting and the use of his gun in the air. Some of the instructors under whom he is trained are marvelous gunners.

I watched one of them swoop down from the air, firing bursts into a tiny pond as he dropped, and there was an upward leap of glistening water for every cartridge used. One could imagine the havic such firing might create among marching infantry.

Venezuela means "Little Venice." Early explorers so named the South American country because of its Indian dwellings on small islands and piles driven into the water.

Butchers in Birmingham, England, have undertaken to buy bones back after the housewife has made full use of them, paying the customer half of proceeds of their disposal. They are used for the extraction of glycerine and for the manufacture of phosphate for fertilizer and a valuable pig and poultry food.

Memory.

I know a lone spot on the Arras road
Where I shall hardly bear to walk again
For fear of waking those great souls I loved
Who struggled to a death of piteous pain.

Ah! I should hear their laughter on the way,
And round my heart their boyish sighs would creep;
Till I must long to leave the rushing world
And steal away to join them in their sleep.
For only they who tread the tortured path
Of those torn roads where swaying poplars sigh
Can dream of how God could give no greater bliss
Than the hushed peace beneath the sad French sky.

I know a lone spot on the Arras road
That murmurs with the moan of Memory's pain.
And I should grieve my heart with stifled sobs
If I could bear to walk that road again.

GIRLS! LEMON JUICE IS SKIN WHITENER

How to make a creamy beauty lotion for a few cents.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands.

L'Envoi.

The thousand things I could not say
Before I crossed the sea,
Dear love, the words I could not speak
And all you are to me;

The thousand dreams I could not dream
When Life for gold did dance,
Are Life to me, dear love, since Death
Became a dream, in France.

The thousand things I cannot write,
The things that I would do,
Shall all be yours, dear love, when God
Shall send me home, to you.

What He'd Do.

An army examiner had before him a very dull candidate for a commission. The man proving, aparently, unable to make response to the most simple questions, the examiner finally grew impatient and quite sarcastically put this question:

"Let it be supposed you are a captain in command of infantry. In your rear is an impassable abyss. On both sides of you there rise perpendicular rocks of tremendous height. In front of you lies the enemy, outnumbering you ten to one. What, sir, in such an enormous emergency would you do?"

"I think, sir," said the aspirant for military distinction, "I would resign."

Every time you fill the tank of your auto or tractor by lamp or other open light, you are inviting an explosion.

Had No Respect.

One artillery unit worked hard during the afternoon of the second day of the attack to get its pieces into position. It had moved up for the second time, and had not fired a shot. It was four o'clock when the lieutenant in command gave orders for every one to stand by. The gunners were to fire their first volley into the German lines. Everyone stood waiting for the final word when the telephone rang and word came that the infantry had advanced so far that it would be necessary to move up again before going into action. "Oh, hell!" said a gunner; "those infantry guys ain't got no respect for us at all!"

Land of the Beyond.

There is a country into which there is to-day a yearly immigration with which no other country in any age has had anything to compare. Every year 35,000,000 of people enter its ports and crowd its territory as newcomers and colonists.

Every month 3,000,000 are numbered as fresh arrivals. Every twenty-four hours there are 100,000.

And this has been going on and will continue century after century. For the country in question is the Land of the Beyond, that is on the other side of the grave.

British Columbia canned herring is meeting with a growing demand. It is estimated that 250,000 cases will be packed this year, an increase of 150 per cent. over 1917.

A Dust-Stained, Fearless King.

Albert, King of Belgium, is the hero of the hour;
He's the greatest King in Europe,
He's a royal arch and tower;
He is bigger in the trenches than the Kaiser on his throne,
And the whole world loves him for the sorrows he has known.

Defiance was his answer to the Teutons at his gate;
Then he buckled on his armor and pledged his soul to fate.
He stood between his people and the biggest Essen gun,
For he feared not shot nor shrapnel as his little army won.

King of Belgium, Duke of Brabant, Count of Flanders all in one;
Little Kingdom of the Belgae starr'd with honor in the sun,
You have won a place in history, of your deeds the world will sing,
But the glory of your nation is your dust-stained, fearless King.

Arctic Curio.

In the midst of the Arctic swamps are often found curious formations which travelers in these inhospitable regions call "ice mushrooms."

When the summer sun banishes for a brief while the frozen crust of the landscape, squat pillars of ice (sometimes as much as ten feet high) remain here and there, covered with moss that has actually grown on top of them and by which they are kept from melting. It is nature's own idea of an icehouse.

SUFFERED TWO YEARS WITH PIMPLES

Child Could Not Sleep Till Cuticura Healed.

"My little brother suffered for about two years from tiny red pimples. They appeared constantly on his body but he had the greatest trouble under his ears. The skin was red and very sore and at the least touch he would give a howl of pain. After a few seconds he would have to scratch, and he was not able to sleep.

"A friend advised me to send for Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I noticed a change, and I used three cakes of Cuticura Soap and four boxes of Ointment when he was healed." (Signed) Louis Frank, 746 City Hall Ave., Montreal, Que., February 2, 1918.

Keep your skin clear by using Cuticura Soap and Ointment for everyday toilet purposes.

AMERICAN PLAN

JOHN J. HERNAN, - - Manager

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Williamsburg District has carried the Flag of honor. The grand total of $180,000 was reached on Wednesday, and Captain G. H. Challies informs us that before the curtain drops Saturday night when the full returns have been received, more than $200,000 will have been subscribed. The objective for this District is $175,000.

This grand success is due in large part to the Captain and the other canvassers. Through their untiring efforts, they have added another good "old Flag" to the Municipality which if hung in our Public Hall, will show in years to come, that our district did better than well.

If you have not yet subscribed do so—for your own benefit, and at the same time help the Allies to carry out the great task necessary to "Finish their Work".

Anyone wishing to subscribe, who may have been missed by the Canvassers, may do so until late Saturday night by calling at Mr. Challies' residence.

The attention of our readers is directed to Messrs. Fetterly's and Ashton's changes of ads this week; the former is advertising bargains in pianos and phonographs; the latter is offering highest prices for live and dressed poultry. It was through the courtesy of these gentlemen in giving up their front page spaces, that made it possible for us to reproduce the pictures of the heroes who occupy their space.

Congratulations are extended to Lt. John H. Barkley, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Barkley of this town, who has been awarded the Military Cross.
