IROQUOIS RESIDENTS INJURED IN CRASH

George Shaver, his adopted daughter, Sadie Jones, and Gertrude Empey, of Iroquois, had a miraculous escape from serious injury when en route to Brockville on Friday last, the car swerving and running into the fence at the Binion Pond, one mile above the village of Iroquois. Only a guy wire prevented them from being thrown into the pond. Six or seven posts were uprooted by the impact.

The Empey car was driven by Mr. Shaver, who said the gears, being somewhat different to those in his own car, confused him, as he had never driven it before.

Miss Jones, a hair-dresser, had intended taking a fast train at Brockville to Toronto, where she was going for more instruction in her line of work. However, she was forced to return to Iroquois, as all three were considerably shaken up. Traffic Officer Eugene Rose investigated the accident.

LICENSE REQUIRED TO SELL GASOLINE

The Ontario Department of Highways is reported to be preparing penalties, ranging from $5 to $1000, for individuals or firms selling gasoline without government license. The penalties are expected to be placed in effect shortly, and the department is also understood to be planning extension of the auditing system, to keep close check on pay rolls and other departmental expenditures.

In the future, it is understood, every gasoline vendor in Ontario will have to obtain a license from the highways minister. Failure to obtain a license will mean a fine of not less than $5, and not more than $100 for the first offence. The second offence will call for a fine of not less than $100, and not more than $1,000.

Shipment of gasoline will be closely watched in co-operation with transportation companies, in an effort to eliminate bootlegging of the product.

LUTHERAN PASTOR IS RECIPIENT OF GIFT

Retiring after 50 years of service in the ministry, Rev. L.M. McCreary, who resigned last Sunday from the charge of St. Peter's English Lutheran church, Ottawa, after 15 years as pastor, was honored this week by the congregation of the church. Clergymen from Montreal, Hanover, Williamsburg and other points were present to unite in the tribute.

The congregation presented Mr. McCreary with an Afghan pillow and comforter as a slight appreciation of his services, the presentation being made by K.L. MacIntosh of the church council. To Mrs. Lotz, wife of Rev. A. Lotz, the new pastor, was presented a bouquet of flowers by L.E. Shannette.

The choir gave a musical program, including solos, quartet numbers and recitations.

DR. D. A. McEWEN

Dr. D.A. McEwen, for many years a well known physician of Ogdensburg, N.Y., died suddenly at his home there, about 12.30 p.m. Saturday Aug. 25th, following a stroke.

Dr. McEwen had not been in the best of health for several years, but had been able to be about his home every day. He was running a lawn mower at his home in the afternoon, when his wife went into the yard. The doctor complained to her that he was not feeling well. She assisted him into the house, and summoned Drs. Stacey and Cooper, but Dr. McEwen's condition was such that they were unable to assist him, and his death occurred a few minutes later. He failed to lose consciousness until the end, and took his own pulse but five minutes before his death.

David Alexander McEwen was born on a farm at Hulbert on August 10, 1865. He was a son of David McEwen and Anne Graham McEwen, and the youngest of a large family. He was educated in the rural schools and Iroquois High School. Later he entered Morrisburg Training School, and taught in the rural schools of this vicinity for two years. He then entered Queen's University, Kingston where he obtained his medical degree in 1894.

He was twice married. In 1896 he married Candace Johnson of Morrisburg, at which time he was practicing medicine in Manistee, Mich., where he remained for two years, moving to Ogdensburg in 1898. His first wife passed away in 1922, and in 1929 he married Elizabeth Preston, who survives him.

Besides his widow, he is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Hester A. Bigford, Michigan; Mrs. Jas. Morrison of Brinston, Mrs. John Merkley of Winchester and Mrs. Harriet Baldwin of Inkerman. Several nieces and nephews also survive.

The funeral services were held at his home on Tuesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. O.E. Raymond.

Dr. McEwen was a life member of the Methodist Church, and a member of the Board of Trustees of the Ogdensburg United Church. He was respected and admired throughout the district of Northern New York, and much sympathy is extended to his widow and other relatives.

BODY FOUND IN GULF

BELIEVED CANOEIST'S

The broken body of a drowned man, believed to be Jack Smith, ill-fated Peterboro, Ont., canoeist, was picked up yesterday by fishermen at Long Point, Newfoundland.

A union rubber suit with blue overalls underneath, covered the body. Ever since fishermen at Point La Fontaine, Nfld., discovered the empty canoe, Pride of Peterborough, on August 20th, men along the shore have been on the lookout for some trace of the adventurous paddler, who set out from Gaspe, Que., several weeks ago. Their find yesterday definitely established the fate of Smith, who was attempting to paddle across the Atlantic to Peterborough, England, in a 16-foot craft.

CHILD STRUCK BY AUTO

A serious motor accident occurred about 3 p.m. Tuesday, when Mildred Johnston, six-year-old daughter of Thomas Johnston, farmer in Matilda township, was accidentally struck by a passing motorist at the junction of highway No. 2 and Albert street, Iroquois. Constable J.E. Gregory, of Iroquois, who investigated the accident, stated that the little girl apparently ran out in front of the car driven by N.W. Voizard, of Gouin boulevard, Montreal, who was not driving excessively, but was unable to avoid striking the child.

She received bad cuts on the forehead, cheek and behind her ear. Several stitches were inserted by doctors, who were immediately called. The child was later removed to her home.

No blame is attached to the driver of the car, which was travelling west at the time of the accident.

Moved by Mr. Flynn, seconded by Mr. Roach, that one hundred feet of fire hose be purchased from the Gutta Percha Rubber Co.

A by-law was passed, recommending the payment of the several accounts received by the Clerk.

MR. ROBERT BELL

The high esteem in which the late Mr. Robert Bell was held, was shown on Wednesday, by the large number of friends and relatives who filled St. Andrew's Presbyterian church at Dixon's Corners, to pay a last tribute to one who was respected by all. The funeral service was in charge of Rev. Wm. Merrillees of Iroquois, assisted by Rev. E. Lacey of Brinston United Church. Special music was contributed by the choir, with Mr. Basil Strader as soloist.

Pall bearers were: Messrs Orrin Strader, Clinton Stewart, James Barton, Orrin Wylie, Albert Small and Rumsey Peterson.

The remains were conveyed to Brinston United cemetery, where a special graveside service was held by Connaught Lodge No. 440 I.O.O.F., of which deceased was a member. Messrs Arthur Bell, Wilfrid Cooper and Charles Strader were in charge.

Mr. Bell, who had been in failing health for some time, passed away suddenly at his residence. He had always engaged in farming in Matilda township, and was in his 61st year.

Besides his wife, he leaves to mourn his loss two daughters, Mrs. A.S. Peterson, Brinston, and Mrs. Lorne Cunningham of Hamilton; three sons, Lorne of Shanly, Graham of Williamsburg, and Earl, at home; two sisters, Mrs. Bullis of Iroquois, and Mrs. Woods of Ottawa; and one brother Andrew Bell of Brinston.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

In annual session at Montreal members of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association chose A. L. Sellar as their president. That's a mighty good name for the head of this aggressive organization—Brantford Expositor.

A GOOD REASO

Feminine leader says the Great War showed men what women could do. That's one of the main reasons why there shouldn't be another Great War.—North Bay Nugget.

THE WESTERN CROP

The Canadian crop, on the whole, is not nearly as hard hit as that of the United States. Latest estimates there predict a yield of 490,960,000 bushels, the smallest since the nineties.

Another point to be born in mind about the Canadian crop is that in some sections of the prairie country there will be excellent yields. There are indications of crops running as high as 30 bushels to the acre or more in parts of northern Saskatchewan. There are good fields in the Regina area. At Lethbridge, in Alberta, it is apparent that the crop will be equal to the average for the past ten years.

Against this fair crop in certain sections and the higher price of wheat must be balanced the terrific burden to be placed on the province as a whole by the plight of the drought-stricken area—the large territory where there is practically nothing. The people of Saskatchewan who have something must be prepared to stand by those who are in distress.—Regina Leader-Post.

DO YOU REMEMBER

If he remembers the bicycle racks outside the drug stores, he looks a lot younger with his hat on.—Brandon Sun.

THE DAILY NEWSPAPER

Where else we ask them, our readers, could they buy so much for so little as they can get, for three cents a day, in the newspaper shop? That else can they buy, anywhere, that is half as much value for the money.

Oh, yes, we know well enough—who should know better?—how many things might be better than they are in this commodity of ours. But that is not the present point. With all their imperfections on their heads—and not because any great credit is coming to us newspaper people for it, for we are mainly people doing our day's work, to get our day's pay—the newspapers do really supply one of the great essential services of our civilization, and they do it for an absurdly-reasonable fee.

And because this is one thing at least that the newspapers very seldom say for themselves, we think anyhow it should be said once in a while.—Vancouver Province.

A BANKER'S PASSPORT

All passports bear a photograph of the holder, but there is one properly authorized and issued to a Canadian without his photograph—it carries an engraved portrait clipped from a $10 Bank of Montreal bill. The holder's name is Sir Frederick William Taylor, a director and formerly general manager of the Bank of Montreal.

The circumstances under which Sir Frederick clipped the bill and attached the engraving to his passport application are not known, but this well-known Canadian exercised the usual caution attributed to bankers by retaining the serial number in order that the bill might be replaced by a new note.—Financial Post.

POVERTY AMID PLENTY

"An apt utterance" is the way the Toronto Globe characterizes a remark which it attributes to Hon. Duncan Marshall, Ontario's new Minister of Agriculture. The remark was:

"The paradox of poverty amid plenty will not be solved by attempting to abolish the plenty."

It is an apt utterance one which has lost none of its point since Ogden L. Mills, former United States Secretary of the Treasury, said last Spring:

"We shall never solve the paradox of want in the midst of plenty simply by doing away with the plenty."—Financial Post.

SEVEN TO ONE

The muscle men of the underworld have things their own way because they are so tough that people fear to oppose them. Once in a while, however, some two-fisted citizen comes along to demonstrate that the underworld plug-ugly is pretty much a hollow shell.

It was so with a Chicagoan recently. A man named Richard Johnson, one night surprised four young hoodlums robbing the store which is under his apartment. But Johnson is not afraid of a fight, so he waded in and rounded up the four single handed, and turned them over to the police.

Next day a mysterious stranger warned him not to testify against them in court or he would be taken for a ride. Johnson laughed at him. A couple of nights later three men jumped on him near his home, to put the threat into action. Johnson started his fists swinging—and pretty soon these three were in the police cells along with the other four.

These city gangsters evidently are not quite so tough after all—if one citizen equipped only with courage and a good physique can handle seven of them.—Victoria Times.

THE KING'S ROAD

An old corduroy road made of split tree-trunks has been found under a busy Buffalo street. These roads, at one time quite common in Ontario, derived their name from the well known cloth material, a name which is said to have been first applied to a ribbed silk cloth worn by French kings in the chase. This corde du roi, or king's cord, was never, it is said, so called in France, the name being an invention of the English. It appears curiously enough, in ancient French lists, as "king's cord," the English translation of the French name the English had invented for it.—Toronto Star.

WORLD'S SMALLEST CAMERA

What is claimed to be the world's smallest camera has just been put on the market by a Birmingham firm.

The camera measures only two and one half inches by one and one quarter by one inch, and can be carried in the waistcoat pocket or in the lady's handbag, and yet it takes perfect pictures, 18mm. by 13mm, which are enlarged to the usual size. The tiny spool of film used in the camera takes six exposures.

The firm's factory has been enlarged to manufacture this new camera, and plans are in hand to produce them at the rate of 10,000 a day. The camera will be sold at a price of five shillings.—Brockville Recorder.

INTERESTING FIGURES

The Northern Miner in its annual number which contains a wealth of valuable information on the mining industry of this country states that Canadians today are producing more metal per capita than the nationals of any other country. With a population of ten million, in the year 1933, 842,992,980 pounds of base metals were reported. In addition, three ounces of gold, 1.5 ounces of silver, 2,200 pounds of coal, 31 pounds of asbestos, 78 pounds of gypsum per capita were produced.—Kitchener Record.

HIGHWAY MANNERS

It sometimes requires only the courage of a magistrate to consolidate the public opinion against an action that, however obnoxious, has been suffered too long in silence. The other day at Edmonton, a man and wife complained against a motorist who had dashed past them through a large pool of water. Their car was sprayed and through the open window came a deluge of water and mud over the couple. Observing that the practice must cease, Magistrate Primrose termed it "discourteous and dangerous." He fined the culprit $9 and the court costs. Thus are evolved ordinary highway good manners. The court in this case was contributing towards a realization that motorists can be as courteous as pedestrians.—Kamloops Sentinel.

HOLIDAY BY AIRPLANE

British holidaymakers have discovered air travel. Every traffic record, on internal and external routes was broken in three days the first August week-end. Regular services were doubled, trebled and quadrupled. The Imperial Airways traffic officers dealt with 76 services on one day alone, 44 of them cross-Channel and 32 of them between London and the Isle of Wight. Those 76 services carried 571 passengers, a far higher single-day figure than any previously reached.

From early morning till late at night the airliners have flown with full loads. And activity was not confined to the London Terminal Aerodrome, Croydon, Heston, most popular of all airports with the private flyer was extremely busy dealing with especially chartered taxiplanes and air liners.

The London-Isle of Wight service employed five monoplanes, each with capacity for six passengers. Throughout the week end these machines flew steadily back and forth, Machines plying between England and the Channel Isles were filled to capacity.—British Aircraft Society.

A CANDID CANADIAN

So many visitors from abroad pour soft soap over our wonderful policemen, our pretty girls, and our impeccable sportsmanship, that it is refreshing to meet a candid friend like Mr. Napier Moore, the famous Colonial, who points out our faults. It appears to Mr. Moore that we are less honest than we used to be, and have taken to rooking our guests. It may do certain types of shopkeepers, taxi drivers, and waiters good to know that their racketeering tactics are observed.—Manchester Sunday Chronicle.

BY AIR TO CANADA

We publish the striking news that tenders have been invited for flying boats capable of conducting a service between Britain and Canada. Thus this year, which will see accomplished the last stage of the regular air journey from Britain to the Antipodes, has also seen the first business-like attack on the difficulties of the trans-Atlantic flight.—London Daily Telegraph.

CHILD EMIGRATION TO EMPIRE

What has been done at Fairbridge to the great good of the children of Australia and of this country can certainly be done elsewhere. In this conviction the Society decided to launch the appeal for funds for the extension of the work to Canada and other parts of the Empire, which had the blessing

Mr. Norman Actually Poses

Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, whose evasive tactics have given newspapermen some strenuous times in the past few years almost gave the photographer heart failure when this picture was shot. As he walked up the gangway of the liner Duchess of Bedford the banking authority spied the lurking cameraman. "Wait a minute until I get my hat on straight," he called out. Then, instead of a fugitive snap, the posed picture above resulted.

of the Prince of Wales last month. Of the 100,000 pounds asked for 26,000 has already been collected, and a school on the Fairbridge plan is about to be created in Western Canada.—Glasgow Herald.

"SCOOPS" BY AIR

Although the staff of The Pioneer can legitimately take some pride in having once again "scooped" their competitors over the publication of the High School results, they would be the first to admit that the bulk of the credit belongs to Major Vetch, of the U.P. Flying Club who, by beating the telegraph actually demonstrated the value of the aeroplane to the modern newspaper. In Europe it has long since been realised and some of the most daring flights of pilots like Captain Barnard and Captain Hope have been made in order that newspaper readers should have the latest photographs on their breakfast-tables. In India the carriage of news by air is still something of a novelty, but it is likely to become more and more a matter of course as the advantages of the aeroplane are appreciated.—Lucknow Pioneer.

Weekly Press Has Great Influence

NEWSPAPER ASSOCIATION HISTORY GIVEN AT ANNUAL CONVENTION

Montreal.—The influence that the weekly Canadian press wields in its respective field, the improved standard of its editorial comment, and the potential power that it possesses in shaping public opinion throughout the Dominion, were the points emphasized at the session of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, who held their 15th annual convention here recently. At the same time was celebrated the 5th anniversary of the formation of the Canadian Press Association, out of which in 1920 sprang the three separate organizations that now exist—the Canadian Daily Press Association, the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association and the Canadian National Newspaper and Press Association, and in honor of this event the weekly newspaper editors heard a glowing tribute to the men of three quarters of a century ago whose power with the pen made them notable. It was mentioned by David Williams, of Collingwood, that the first president was W. Gillespie of the Hamilton Spectator, and the first secretary was Thomas Sellar, then of the Montreal Echo, an uncle of Adam L. Sellar, of the Huntingdon Gleaner, at present vice-president of the C. W.N.A. and who succeeded to the presidency of the association.

OLDEST MEMBERS.

Mr. Williams joined the association in 1886, and with Col. A. G. F. MacDonald of Alexandria, were the two oldest members present at the convention. Naturally, Mr. Williams in his address was reminiscent of the establishment of Canada's first paper, the Halifax Herald, in 1752, of the jubilee of the association, and of the men who had directed its destinies to 1920, when the re-organization took place. He recalled conditions of type setting and printing presses of decades past, and admitted that while there were better sustained advertising rates now, it was a question whether there were better editorials than there were half a century ago. He admitted that there had been a lapse in editorial standards about 20 years ago, but believed that with the passing of the "boiler plate" era, editorials were once again reaching a high standard.

Mayor Camille Houde, who officially welcomed the weekly editors to Montreal, had nothing but praise for them and their works. He told them they had an influential role to play in the future of the Dominion, for while most people read the daily press, the latter did not always speak its mind—except about him—while the weekly press had the time to study matters, and was in closer touch with its people who were influenced by its editorial comments and considered articles.

Editors of the daily press, declared Mr. Houde, had not the time to look into all the reading matter that went into his paper, but the weekly press editors and their collaborators had more time to get into contact with the population and know their needs.

IMPORTANT FUNCTION.

"That is important in these crucial times," declared the Mayor, "for we have to find a new formula and study means for a better distribution of things. There has been too much capitalization and over-production in every line, we have been trying to industrialize the country and still keep people on the farm and we are between two stools and are getting nowhere. You people have the time to study the situation, and see if you don't think that instead of picking parties it would be best for the country if the best men were picked instead of the best party. We are coming to that point where we have to unite the best brains, and the fault under the party system is that the one that is in power does not make use of the best brains in the other. Canada with its 10,000,000 people, no immigration and $10,000,000,000 debt cannot afford the luxury of not utilizing the best brains she has if they are ready to help everyone must put his shoulder to the wheel after deciding in what direction they should go. And if we do not play our role in the next few years somebody else will play it for us."

POWERFUL INFLUENCE.

The president, Charles Clark, of High River, Alberta, in his presidential address, recalled the time when people bought papers for news and editorials and the advertisers came in to help along a local enterprise, and compared this with present day conditions. Weekly papers had been through hard times, but they stood higher than ever today in the public estimation and wielded a powerful influence because of the spirit of independence that they had maintained. He was confident they would continue to fight furiously for the peaceful welfare of their people.

An animated discussion arose over the proposal to make all past presidents of the association ex-officio directors. Hugh Savage, of Duncan, B.C., maintained that this would keep them off the elective board and allow younger men to control the destinies of the association, but Sam Dornan, Alameda, Sask., and Adam L. Sellar, Huntingdon, maintained it would make the directorate top heavy with one director for every eight members. On a vote the recommendation of the directors to increase the board was defeated by an overwhelming majority.

WHAT THEY MISS

Pyromaniac motorists who scatter burning cigarette stubs along country highway might enjoy their pleasure trips more if they stopped to watch the prairie and forest fires they start.—(From the Chicago Daily News.)

INDIAN HAS TIME OF LIFE ON JOURNEY TO JAIL IN B.C.

Aged Horse Thief Greatly Impressed by Wonders of Modern Civilization

Vancouver.—A wrinkled old Indian, who had never been out of his familiar haunts in Chilcotin district, a wild, little inhabited area in the Cariboo territory of northern British Columbia, went to jail, but had the time of his life doing it.

Police say it all happened because Gilpin—he claims only one name—thoughtlessly helped himself to some 10 or 20 horses, then tried to sell them back to the owner. He was sentenced to three months in Oakalla Jail here.

MARVELS AT STEAMER.

Gilpin's first initiation to the wonders of civilization came when he boarded a boat at Squamish. He had never seen a steamer in all his 73 years, and when he arrived in Vancouver his astonishment increased.

Many-storied buildings, street cars, shopping crowds, all were a source of wonder to him, as he was whisked through the streets in a police car, his eyes goggling and his mouth agape. Street cars particularly intrigued him.

"What make him go?" he asked his escort, pointing at a passing street car, and the officer pointed to the overhead trolley and attempted to explain as simply as possible the marvel of electricity. He muttered to himself: "Little wheel go round, make big wheels go around, car go along; Mmm—Plenty funny."

The traffic crowds were "joost like plenty crowds," and a group of children splashing in a park pool brought forth a chuckle and a "Ha! Ha! Papoose all same ducks."

As the car turned off the highway at the edge of the city for the run to Oakalla, Gilpin shook his head and muttered, "Hi-Yu! Big City. Houses go mebbe five, six miles, eh?"

Canadian Women In Parliament

Hon. Mary Irene Parbly Plans to Retire in Next General Election—Three Other Women Hold Seats—Senator Wilson, Miss MacPhail and Mrs. Stevens.

Although Canadian women have been active in politics since they were granted the franchise towards the end of the war, few have actually gained election to Parliament or the Legislatures.

At present four women hold seats either at Ottawa or provincial capitals, and one of this number has signified her intention to retire in the next general elections. She is Hon. Mary Irene Parbly, member of the Alberta Legislature for Lacombe and minister without portfolio for several years. She will not seek re-election.

The other three holding seats are Senator Cairine Wilson, of Ottawa, Miss Agnes Macphail, member of the House of Commons for Grey Southeast, and Mrs. Dorothy Steeves, member of the British Columbia legislature for Vancouver North.

Mrs. Steeves is the latest woman to win a seat, having been elected on the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation ticket at a by-election. She is not the first woman to sit in the British Columbia legislature, however, as the late Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith sat for a Vancouver seat a few years ago and enjoyed the honor of being the first woman cabinet minister in the British Empire. She was a Liberal and became minister without portfolio.

INTERESTING CAREER

Many elements combine to make Miss Macphail's political career one of the most interesting in all the annals of Canadian politics. As a country school teacher she sprang into prominence as a champion of farmers' rights. Her election by a constituency of hard-headed Ontario farmers was a keen tribute to Miss Macphail's personality and ability.

Miss Macphail went to Ottawa in 1921 on the crest of the great wave of farmer political consciousness which sent a large United Farmer or Progressive group to the House of Commons and gave the United Farmers of Ontario control of the government of the province. When this movement receded Miss Macphail held on. She is not only the only woman in the House of Commons but the only member adhering to the original straight farmer party.

Miss Macphail's public services are not confined to parliament. She became a leader in the movement for world peace and took a prominent part in the work of the League of Nations Society and went to Geneva as a member of the Canadian delegation to the assembly of the League of Nations.

The only woman member of the Senate, Mrs. Cairine Wilson is a Liberal and comes of a family long prominent in politics. Senator Wilson's appointment was received with widespread approval and allowed the successful prosecution of a court action initiated by a number of prominent women to determine the legal right of women to sit in the upper house. She has no election worries although she frequently goes on the stump to aid her party.

Like Miss Macphail, Mrs. Parbly has represented Canada at the League of Nations Assembly. She entered the political arena as president of the United Farm Women of Alberta and subsequently was elected to the legislature. She became a member of the cabinet without portfolio in the United Farmer Government which still holds office in that province.

Sulphur Industry Now Returns to Louisiana

New Orleans, La.—An important industry—the production of sulphur—which back in 1905 was a paramount importance to Louisiana and then faded when the deposits of sulphur ran out, is once again returning to this State.

After an enforced inactivity of nearly a decade, Louisiana last year re-entered into sulphur production when an oil prospecting company located a rich sulphur deposit in southwest Louisiana.

The success of this company led other companies, including several large oil firms, to search for the mineral. As a result of this increased activity domes have been located in various sections of the State. Only one other deposit, however, some 45 miles due south of New Orleans, has been opened up for production on a commercial scale.

In 1933, the first year commercial production began again, Louisiana produced 321,000 long tons. This amount, coupled with the 1,083,446 tons turned out by Texas, represents practically the entire production of the United States.

The added importance of the rejuvenation of a work which had been considered lost can be gathered from the fact that the world production of sulphur is only approximately 3,000,000 tons, Italy, Spain, Chile and Japan are the other producers.

ITALIAN PEOPLE ARE MUCH TOO GENEROUS

Rome.—An official communique asked the adoring Italian people not to shower gifts on the infant expected by Crown Prince Umberto and his wife, the Princess Marie Jose.

Citizens with an impulse to equip bassinets were asked to make their contributions to the national mothers and infants protective association.

The birth of the royal infant is expected by mid-autumn.

Alter Hair Style To Suit Clothes

Women, According to Hairdresser, Are Far Too Conservative About Their Coiffures — Change Appearance of Head as You Would Your Make-up

I had been wrestling with a new hat, write a bright, young thing in the shop I had imagined it would suit me, but when I got home, as is the way with hats, it turned against me.

After an hour of misery (it was an expensive model) I decided that it was my hair which was wrong, and betook me to a genius among hairdressers, one with the hands of a magician and the eye of an artist.

"What," I asked him, "can you do about this?"

Carefully he looked at me, first from this angle and then from that. Then very deftly he started to work, cutting a little here and a little there. As he worked he talked.

"Women," he told me, "are far too conservative about their hair. They get a style which they think suits them, and persist in it, year in and year out, regardless of the fact that time works changes.

"Faces alter. They become plump or thin and the style of hairdressing should alter with them.

"Fashions change too, and it is not reasonable to expect a style which suited the hat with a large brim to be equally becoming to a small one. How is it possible?" He shrugged expressively.

MORE FEMININE

The intelligent woman has learned to change her make-up to suit her clothes.

She must now learn to do the same thing with her hair. It must be dressed to suit her hat and the general trend of fashion.

Not so long ago practically every smart woman was wearing a short, soignée shingle, but with the advent of long flowing locks hair has been leaning more and more towards Victorianism, and become soft and delightfully feminine.

On leaving the hands of my hairdresser, marvellously transformed, I then visited other salons to see the latest and most up to date hairdressing styles.

Curls, I found are by far the most popular style at the moment.

No matter how short the hair may be, it must be coaxed into curls. Curls combed to the front and round the ears. Curls massed, and curls bunched. Curls brushed with an upward gesture, to give the backward movement which is now almost a necessity.

The general feeling must be UP, as though the wind were sweeping through the hair and pushing it back into a speed-nymph effect.

In most cases the hair is being persuaded up from the neck-line, but sometimes the top is smooth, and then the curls are allowed to nestle in the nape of the neck. This is a particularly good arrangement for the woman whose neck is long. In her case the hair must not be raised too high, as this only accentuates the length of the neck.

A long face may be made to look wider if the curls are arranged in bunches at the sides, while a full face will get extra length and height if the hair is curled across the top.

REAL FLOWERS.

The hair must become the hat and the hat the hair. Curls are built up to suit the type of hat, and very often one side of the head is more elaborate than the other.

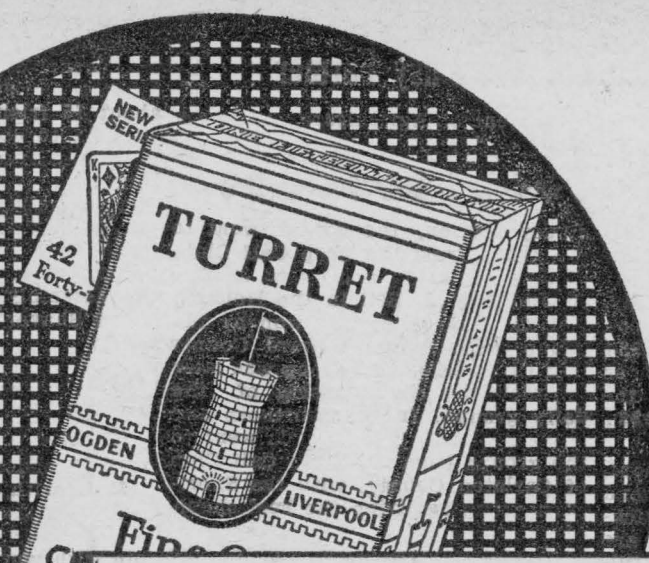

Young buds and debutantes are looking more than usually flower-like with their hair piled high, and supported by little Alice-in-Wonderland coronets made of real flowers.

When there are waves they must be wide and sweeping, finishing at the end in loose curls.

The woman with a good profile can afford to adopt the new fashion of having the hair swept across to one side, leaving the other side smooth and clean-cut.

Partings no longer take the straight and narrow path. More often they stray slantways across the head. Sometimes they even wend their way round the ears. Either style is definitely becoming to a certain type of face and shape of head.

The Mining Industry Leads the Way

Canada's place in the ranks of the world's mineral producers has probably been the biggest single factor in the Dominion's recovery towards normal business conditions. Ranking first in the world in the production of Nickel and Asbestos, second in Gold, Platinum, Radium and Cobalt, third in Copper and fourth in Lead and Silver, the grand total of over $220,000,000 worth of minerals was produced in 1933. If some forty years ago, someone had told you that the mineral output would reach this stupendous figure about 1933, you would probably have thought that the prophet had lost his senses, and one could not blame him as, only a matter of four decades ago, mineral production in Canada was a very small item in the business of the country.

The growth during the past decade has proportionately been much greater than previously and appears to be gaining momentum as time goes on. Undoubtedly, the increase in the price of gold to about $35.00 per ounce, has provided the stimulus which has led to the tremendous activity in old and new gold camps from coast to coast, and where there were some 216 active operations in the auriferous quartz section of the gold mining industry in 1933, it is probable that at the present time, the number is close to 300. In 1923, there were only 65 active operators in this field, at which time they employed $77,574.00 capital, hired 5,524 men and paid about $9,000,000.00 in salaries and wages, while the cost of fuel and electricity used was $1,497,000.00. In 1933 these figures had increased to $158,599,000.00 capital employed and 12,823 men employees, drawing a total of over $20,536,000.00 in wages and salaries, while fuel and electricity costs were $3,330,000.00. 1934 will undoubtedly see a further substantial increase in these figures, as in addition to new operations, many of the older companies have expanded their activities.

Not so many years ago, mining was looked on by the average business man as a vehicle for a few promoters to make a living out of the unwary. Today, the leading business and financial men in Canada, United States and Great Britain have had forced on them the realization of the tremendous value of the industry to the Dominion.

It is doubtful if the average person, including those who purchase mining stocks from time to time, realize how much money is spent through the development of one mine to the producing class. The Northern Miner in its recent annual issue, gives an example of this in Howey Gold Mines.

Around this company's mine has been built a community of some 600 persons and in a carefully calculated estimate it is stated that some $850,000.00 was spent by the Howey Mines, its employees and dependents in 1933. Of this amount, some $120,000.00 was expended on local items, such as power, coal, wood, water, freight, etc. In other words, some $730,000.00 was spent by these people at outside points, either by mail or otherwise. It naturally follows that the largest part of this money found its way to manufacturing points, to the railways, to farming communities, to departmental stores, etc. When it is estimated that there are nearly eighty producing gold mines in Canada, some larger and some smaller than Howey, it does not take a great deal of imagination to realize the tremendous amount of new wealth which has been put in circulation in practically all classes of business through the production of gold alone. If producers of nickel, copper and other mineral products are added to the list, it can again be readily seen the fabulous sums which are being spent by mining companies and their employees and families.

From the above, it can thus be readily seen just what a tremendous asset Canada has in its mining industry.

On top of this, however, it must be kept in mind that outside capital is being brought into Canada through the industry, and that the general public in the United States are rapidly becoming "Canadian mining conscious," is indicated by the fact that only recently a group of people from Washington, D.C., sent a special representative to Toronto for the purpose of looking into the possibilities from the viewpoint of the small investor. This representative happened to contact the writer, and, as a result of what was a very pleasant interview, it is likely that a group will come from Washington in the near future to visit one or more of the producing camps in Ontario. This is only one of many instances of American interest, which has been indicated during the past year or two.

Canada has reason to be proud of the advancement made by the Mining industry during the past decade.

Poundmaker Makes Progress

This company, holding about 700 acres located immediately north and west of San Antonio Mines in the Rice Lake Area of Central Manitoba, is reported as making good progress with its work. In earlier operations, a two-compartment shaft was sunk to a depth of 325 feet with a winze to the 525-foot level. Independent engineers estimate that there is $450,000.00 in ore blocked out about the 325-foot level and that there is $1,000,000.00 in ore indicated to a depth of 525 feet, in addition to which there is a substantial tonnage of commercial ore on the surface dumps. It is reported that there are some ninety tons of concentrates ready for immediate shipment.

Dominion Motors Special Meeting

A special general meeting of the shareholders of Dominion Motors Limited has been called for September fifth, at least, for the purpose of considering the granting of authority to directors to sell the business in whole or in part on terms to be approved by the board. In the Notice to Shareholders, president J. A. Brand states that the company cannot renege in the production of automobiles without being allied to a strong United States company, as rapid change in design and model of cars makes costs prohibitive for an independent Canadian company. It is proposed to liquidate the business and realize something, if possible, on the investment of shareholders.

Numbers One and Two veins of this company's property are continuing and development efforts are meeting with decided encouragement. Panning of these veins indicates good values and a wire from Mr. A. R. Farrell, who is in charge of operations, states that shooting in Number Two vein has resulted in opening up promising-looking ore body, showing width of 10 feet with coarse, free gold showing on the north side, near the porphyry contact. It is understood that samples from both veins are being prepared for shipment to the company's head office in Toronto, and results of assays should be available shortly.

MacFarlane Long Lac Gold Mines Limited holds a group of nine claims lying south and east of Long Lac Adair Mines, in the Little Long Lac area. Company has an authorized capital of 3,000,000 shares, of which approximately 1,568,000 shares have been issued.

Equipment Companies Anticipate Business

It is understood that plans are under way for active resumption of manufacturing railway equipment in the near future. Some of the companies engaged in this business have kept open at a loss for several years, but unless orders appear shortly, it would seem likely that closing down of plants would be necessary. It is understood that before long, orders will be placed from Ottawa for new C.N.R. cars, along with other equipment. Companies that stand to benefit from the placing of such orders include Canadian Car & Foundry, National Steel Car and Canadian Bronze, while such companies as Dominion Steel and Coal and Algoma Steel, along with several other industries, would benefit through call for raw material.

"OH, YOU ARE GETTING FAT!"

Woman's Action After Friends Remarks

Now She's 49 Lbs.
Lighter

If you are one who hears remarks from friends about "getting fat," you will naturally be interested to hear this woman's story. Fortunately, it had a happy ending. Here is her letter:

"I had put on weight gradually — not noticing it myself — until my friends kept saying to me, 'Oh, you are getting fat.' I had myself weighed and nearly had a fit. I was 178 lbs., and I am only 5 ft. 3 1/2 inches in height. Then I saw an advertisement for Kruschen, and I thought I would try it. I did so and today I weigh 129 lbs. and feel better. I continue to take Kruschen, as I find it is still reducing me, and I wish to lose a little more weight. I am recommending Kruschen to all my friends." — (Mrs.) T. W.

Kruschen is an ideally balanced blend of six separate mineral salts. The formula represents the ingredients of the mineral waters of Carlsbad, Ems, Kissingen and other well-known European spas, which have been resorted to for generations by the over-stout. Only in Kruschen can you get this precise combination of salts. The exact correctness of the formula of every batch of Kruschen is checked by a staff of qualified chemists, before it is passed for bottling. Kruschen combats the cause of fat by assisting the internal organs to throw off each day those waste products and poisons which, if allowed to accumulate will be converted by the body's chemistry into fatty tissue. Thus Kruschen acts upon surplus fat only; if you have no excess fat to lose, you cannot lose weight with Kruschen. Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c and 75c per bottle.

HERE'S WHERE YOU SEE CHAMPIONS

Hard-fisted pioneers of Ontario had barely sown their first grain among the stumps of the Niagara peninsula when leaders had paved the way for what has grown into the Canadian National Exhibition. Down through the succeeding decades agriculturists of Canada have brought their finest livestock, blooded horses, poultry, pigeons and pet stock, along with products of the field and orchard to compete for valuable prizes. A prize list of approximately $100,000 attracts the very best that modern agriculture can produce from Ontario and other provinces. Canada's greatest Horse Show and Speed Trials, featuring the Standard Bred Society's $6,000 Futurities, are two of the leading events at your Exhibition. News And Information For The Busy Farmer

Furnished by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

During the month of July, 1934, 11,000,000 lbs. of bacon were exported to Great Britain, as compared with 7,300,000 lbs. during July, 1933, the total shipments of bacon for the first seven months of 1934 amounting to 81,504,600 lbs. as against 38,787,700 lbs. during the corresponding seven months of 1933.

When packing eggs for shipment, a good practice is to brush the hand lightly over each filler as it is packed, to make sure that no eggs are protruding above the top of the filler. Such eggs almost invariably will break in transit. Before packing a case, examine the bottom and sides. If any nails are loose or have fallen out, replace them.

Value of Certified Seed

Commercial potato growers whose stock is infested with diseases, or contains mixed varieties, would find it decidedly advantageous to secure certified seed. It is not the chief purpose of the Department of Agriculture to encourage potato growers to use certified seed with a view to having their crops inspected for certification purposes, because every potato grower has not the necessary patience and time, or suitable location and equipment, for growing certified seed. The object of the department rather is to have growers use the best seed obtainable for their commercial crop, and help to keep down to a minimum destructive plant diseases, with their resultant serious effect on yields. The use of certified potato seed on many farms would double the yields now being obtained.

Pig Feeding Methods

Although there are several methods of preparing meal mixtures for feeding pigs, the following rules are recommended as safe practices in producing hogs of the desired type: (1) Grind all grain. Fine grinding is recommended especially for young pigs. (2) Soak meal mixture between feeds; do not use too much water, but feed as a fairly thick slop. (3) Hand feeding is the best method for securing hogs of a desirable type. (4) If necessary, a self-feeder may be used after pigs have reached the growing stage of development. (5) Keep pails, troughs and other feeding equipment clean. Mouldy or decaying matter will cause feeding troubles, and (6) Supply clean drinking water.

The Racket of Robber Bees

Although honey stealing by bees is likely to be most troublesome in late summer, the beekeeper has to keep in mind that robber bees may start their racket at any time. In warm weather when there is little or no honey to be got from the flowers, the bees will easily yield to any temptation to obtain it anyhow. After more or less fighting, they will overpower any very weak colonies, and carry the honey to their own hives. Old robber bees have a shiny appearance, the hair having become worn off with entering so many different hives. No colony should be allowed to grow weak, says the Dominion apiarist, and no honey or syrup should be exposed in the apiary.

Notification of Animal Disease

Horses, mules and asses of all ages and classes are liable to contract any of the serious contagious diseases of the skin known as mange scabies or itch. Mange is scheduled under the Animals Contagious Diseases Act, which requires that every owner, breeder, dealer or veterinary surgeon suspecting the existence of this disease shall immediately notify the nearest veterinary inspector. Treatment is carried out under quarantine, the following mixture being used officially for hand treatment under the supervision of an inspector: Sulphur, 2 pounds; oil of tar, 8 ounces; raw linseed oil, 1 gallon.

Current Crop Report

Recent general rains have improved pasturage, and will benefit root crops and late tree fruits. Threshing of fall wheat is about completed, with yields below average. Harvesting of spring grains is nearing completion, under favorable weather conditions. Threshing is well advanced, with oats and barley yielding from 35 to 60 bushels per acre. Corn is in good condition. The hay crop is considerably below average. The second cutting of alfalfa is light. Roots are making satisfactory progress. Turnips in a few districts will be below average, due to insect damage. Sugar beets are 30 per cent. under expectations. Apples, peaches and pears will be light, with apple production estimated at one-third less than last year, and peaches one-half of last year's tonnage. Grapes promise a good yield.

Interest in Junior Work

At Central Canada Show The Junior Agricultural Department of the Central Canada Exhibition again proved one of the outstanding features of the show. This department, which includes the judging competitions in live stock, poultry, seeds, domestic science, halter making, as well as the Calf Club and showmanship competition, attracted a record number of 721 entries. A large and interested ring-side followed the placings made by W. J. Bell and C. L. McQuat, in connection with the Calf Club and showmanship competitions. First honors in the Ayrshire groups went to the Newington Calf Club of West Stormont, while in the Jersey section, the award went to the group from the Carp Calf Club, Carleton County. A class of 36 faced Judge W. J. Bell in the Holstein section. This class was won by the group from Prince Edward County Calf Club. The same group was later awarded the championship of the dairy groups. In the Shorthorn and Hereford class, both awards went to the groups from the Carp Calf Club of Carleton County, with the Shorthorn group receiving the beef championship.

The champion showman of the junior agricultural department was Norman Cummings of Lancaster, with Donald McIntyre, of Finch, reserve.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. S. Anderson, at Glen Stewart, was the scene of a pleasant gathering on Saturday evening, Sept. 1st, when about 75 friends and neighbours assembled to celebrate with them the 25th anniversary of their marriage.

The house was beautifully decorated with autumn flowers. After the guests had partaken of a very appetizing tea, Rev. E. Lacey called the assembly to order, and Mrs. Floyd Shaver read the following address:

Brimston, Ont.,
Sept. 1st, 1934.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. S. Anderson,
Brimston, Ont.

Dear Friends:

It is with feelings of joy and happiness that we, your friends and neighbours, have been privileged to join with you on this happy occasion in the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of your marriage.

To you, Mr. Anderson, a resident of this community since your birth, and to you, Mrs. Anderson, the bride who came here twenty-five years ago, we can truthfully say that we have found you both that type of citizen whom we are proud to enter on our list of friends. We recall many former occasions when we have participated in social events in this home, and we vividly remember the genial hospitality which was always extended to us.

It is said that when all else fails, friendship stands. To you, it must be most gratifying indeed to know that the link of friendship which binds you to such a large circle of people grows stronger day by day, and you are esteemed in this community for your sterling traits of character.

Tonight, it is our privilege to extend to you our heartiest congratulations on having reached the twenty-fifth milestone of wedded life. Our hope and prayer is that you may be long spared to enjoy many future anniversaries together, and that God's richest blessings may crown all your future efforts in life.

Signed on behalf of your Friends and Neighbours.

Mr. Anderson made a suitable reply, thanking all who in any way helped to make the evening a success.

Rev. E. Lacey gave a few remarks wishing Mr. and Mrs. Anderson many more years of wedded life.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson were the recipients of many costly gifts, showing the esteem in which they were held by their neighbours and friends.

Among those from a distance present were: Mrs. Olive Knight, Mrs. Maud Coons, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Shaver, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Shaver, all from Ottawa.

The TUDOR HOUSE

By MRS. STANLEY WRENCH

(Author of "Sing for the Moon" "Strange Lovers," etc.)

Synopsis

Michael Borde, 40, unmarried, born and bred in a Birmingham slum, is now a wealthy motor manufacturer wrapped up in his business. One day he feels an urge to visit the countryside around his old home and motors up there on Spring day. He rescues Daphne Eden from a menacing tramp, falls in love with her and proposes. She accepts and introduces him to her father who greets him with the words, "Get out of here, you cur. You ruined my home... stole my wife... broke my life... curse you!" Michael meets Miss Hamill-Hardy who insults him, but he negotiates successfully for the old Tudor house. He tells Mrs. Gregory, Daphne's friend, of the purchase. He goes to London and stays longer than he intended. Upon his return he learns Daphne has gone away. He tells Mrs. Gregory how he knew Daphne's father.

He settles at Werburge Lucy.

"That's Mr. Ronald's Bat"

Michael Borde had never played games as a young man. He had been far too busy. Since he had become engrossed in the manufacture of Multiple Cars there had been times, when, reluctantly he had been forced to envy other men who found pleasure and fitness in them, but had never found patience to learn.

Now, as he picked up the cricket bat, recollections of childhood's days swept back; he saw again that narrow Birmingham street, and remembered dozens of things he had forgotten.

"Gosh!" he reminded himself. "As likely as not there'll be a cricket eleven here. Always the way in these villages."

He smiled grimly.

"They'll ask me to umpire, or Lord knows what," he reflected. "I must ask that old chap downstairs. Barton'll know."

His eye ran over the well-bound willow, where two dates were scratched, and these set Michael Borde pondering. His experiences in the war years, rubbing shoulders with other men of different temperaments and upbringing, had taught him a good deal, jostled him out of smugness and inexperience; it was after the War that he had begun to understand a little of the things he had missed. Cricket scores, the football page, even sport in general held no interest whatever for him, and occasionally he had wondered idly who so much space was given up in newspapers to fruit yourself in three years, sir," he said. "If so be, you be fond o' pears."

Michael Borde laughed quietly, turned from the window, and still with the cricket bat in hand, went downstairs.

"Barton," he said, addressing the old butler, "I found this upstairs. I suppose it's a special bat. I notice there are dates scratched on it."

The old man's hand closed over it with reverence, and there was a note in his voice reminded Michael Borde of the bourdon stop of an organ. He was thrilled by its richness. Before that Barton had been an automaton rather than the retainer, with no more expression, no more sign of emotion than a mute at a funeral.

"That! Ah! That's Mr. Ronald's bat, sir," he said. "He played for the County, you know."

If he had been chief harpist in the celestial choir old Barton could not have managed to throw more respectful admiration into his voice. Although he did not understand, Michael Borde was suitably impressed.

"Ah," he remarked. "Then I suppose those dates..."

The old man went off into a wealth of detail, some of which Borde did not understand. He reached the conclusion, however, that one of the young Hamill-Hardy's had been a fine cricketer, and that it was with this bat he had made his scores.

So that was why Diana had wanted her brother's cricket bat.

Why didn't she come and ask him for it, if the thing had been forgotten? Any reasonable person would have behaved in an ordinary way instead of stealing into the house, slipping upstairs, and then bolting as though sight and touch of him was poison. His face flushed with anger, remembering how her grey eyes had regarded him.

"As though I were a rat," he told himself.

His first thought had been to send the bat after her. Now his lips tightened.

"I'm blown if she shall have it unless she asks for it," he told himself. "If she's got a sentimental side and wants her brother's bat she'll have to come to see me for it now. Besides, she has no right here..."

"Has Miss Hamill-Hardy gone?" he asked.

The old man became the automaton again.

"I was not aware she was here, sir," he said.

Unless Barton were lying, and he had no reason to suspect this, it meant then that Diana had slipped into the house unawares, not knowing, of course, that he was coming down today.

He put the cricket bat in his car, then returned to his inspection, but as he went from room to room, up one staircase after another, checking points where he thought it desirable for lighting to be laid. Michael Borde found his thoughts wandering.

But it was not of Daphne he thought. He remembered how Diana Hamill-Hardy had flushed as she curtly ordered him to allow her to pass.

"I'll be even with her yet," he told himself. "I've never yet had a man or woman boss me."

Later on that day, talking to Mrs. Gregory, he made no mention of Diana, although to her he described the rooms he had visited, and included in his description an account of the nurseries and schoolroom.

"I've something to tell you, Michael," she said, when he had finished. "I have heard from Daphne. No... as he put out an eager hand, "don't ask me anything yet. I have had two letters. The first gave me no clue to her whereabouts, and the way she had arranged for me to get in touch with her, was proof that she did not wish this to be disclosed. She asked me, too, for a promise."

He waited, knowing what that promise would be.

"Daphne stipulated that I would not disclose to a soul where she had gone," she said quietly. "I have promised, Michael. I did it for the best. No, stop," as again he put out his hand and made as though to speak. "I know Daphne better than you, and if you want to get her you must let things work themselves out naturally and leave me to do my best for you. After all," she looked at him frankly. "Daphne is not a young girl. She is a woman of thirty, and knows her own mind..."

Significant?

Occasionally a merchant is heard to say, "my windows are my advertisement." Judging by the business done, some doubtless are. Over in Coldwater, accepting the challenge of the News, a local merchant decided to experiment along this line. He placed a number of articles in the window and among others placed one item and marked it at one-fifth its regular retail price. And so far he has not received one inquiry concerning this particular item. Rather significant is it not?—North Hastings Review.

Hands Across the River Link The Friendship of Two Nations

Stream Between Maine and New Brunswick Towns No Barrier to Interchange of Public Service Nor Performance of Neighborly Acts

Calais, Maine. — Internationalists seeking means of establishing friendship between countries could well take a lesson from this little town and that of St. Stephen, N.B., separated only by the St. Croix River Connected by the international bridge and flying different flags, these two towns are called the most unique consular districts in the world.

If a fire alarm rings at St. Stephens, the Calais department turns out. If the fire is in Calais, the St. Stephen department hurries across the bridge. Should a general alarm be turned in, both towns respond with all their resources.

Canadian Cottons, Ltd., is in Milltown, N.B., a part of St. Stephens, yet the Maine Register lists it as in Maine. Nevertheless, it is a Canadian concern, but it hires more help from the Calais side of the river than it does from its own side. In fact, the mill workers hardly know whether they are laboring in the United States or Canada.

The water used by both St. Stephen and Calais comes down from a spring on the Canadian side. It is piped across the International Bridge and purchased, sold and controlled by the Calais Water Power Company. Calais it is said, is the only city in the world that gets its water supply from a foreign country.

The gas, which is controlled at Calais, is used in both cities. So is the electricity which gets its power from Milltown, on the Canadian side.

At St. Stephen the Rotary Club meets weekly Monday noons; the Calais Rotary at the same hour Wednesday. Any member not able to attend his own organization can easily make up his attendance by crossing the river and attending the other meeting.

In St. Stephen there is a business college which is the only one available to nearby Maine. This is the unusual occurrence of young Americans getting a business education in a Canadian college who will return to the United States for their jobs.

And last, but far from least, is the Calais Brass Band. It has more musicians from St. Stephens than it has from Calais, and incidentally, it is one of the best bands in Maine.

More Poppies Sold

Flower This Year Will Carry
Currie Button

Toronto.—While all other provinces showed a decrease in sale of wreaths on Poppy Day last year, Ontario maintained its position, Archdeacon A. O. Mackintosh, chairman of the poppy committee, reported to the eighth annual convention of the Ontario command of the Canadian Legion.

In addition to 363 special wreaths to the Ontario Government, 3,313 were sold, he said. Total distribution of small poppies was $22,000, an increase of 221,000 over last year and the Toronto poppy fund purchased 250,000, making a total increase of 471,000.

"The poppy for this year is similar to last year's with the exception it carries a Currie button in its centre in place of the Legion crest," he reported.

The unemployed veteran wants to earn his money, declared Brig-General Alex. Ross, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, in his address to the convention. He emphasized the necessity for organization and co-operation among ex-servicemen as a means of finding employment for their jobless comrades.

A friend in Paris sends me a bit of unpublished World War history in which Elmer Roberts, the justly famed Paris correspondent of A.P., now retired, figured as a hero. It was early in the campaign and the headquarters of both German and French armies had on the same day claimed in their respective official communiques that their troops had conquered the important Hartmannswillerkopf height.

The Germans had broadcast to the world that the French claim was false and the French desired to have their statement confirmed by some impartial observer. Elmer Roberts was selected to make the decision. He was asked to go to the front and report and consented to perform this dangerous task.

It was no prettily arranged inspection where correspondents were shown distant battle action; it meant

The Muskoka Forest

During their investigations of an outbreak of the eastern hemlock looper caterpillar in the region of Muskoka Lakes in the province of Ontario, the results of which are published in the June number of Scientific Agriculture, officers of the Dominion Entomological Branch noted that the regional forest might be divided into three main types. One type included old stands of hemlock, either pure or mixed to a small extent with white pine and different hardwoods, such as the sugar maple and American elm. This type of forest is mostly over 80 years old and has not been touched by fire but was most exposed to the recent hemlock looper attack. The undergrowth is composed of ground hemlock and blueberries and in the very dense stands the soil is covered with needle debris only. Natural reproduction of hemlock occurs in places where windfalls have brought in sufficient light.

Old stands of white pine which cover mostly the south and southwest sides of the hills and the dried situations represent the second type. These white pine stands are also mature and apparently suffered only little from fires. Frequently the stands are mixed with hardwoods such as white and red oak yellow and white birch. Hemlock is scattered here and there only and was not attacked by the looper.

The third type covers land recently burned over, it consists of hardwoods with scattered hemlock and white pine, and seems to be the preparatory stage for either the first or second type. Very few old hardwood stands can be found. Birches and poplars begin the process of reforestation on the bare land, on account of their light seed and their ability to grow on poor soils. Maples come next in succession, and some oaks occur here and there. In moist situations these young stands are mostly so dense that no other flora is able to exist beneath them. On south slopes and in dry places, this process of nature reforestation meets many obstacles, the soil being covered by blueberries and weeds which are strong competitors with forest reproduction.

SOAKING HAM

Before the days of scientific refrigeration ham and cured meats of various sorts were the principal summer meats. Now although fresh meats are available in abundance, ham still finds special favor during hot weather.

If you are going to bake a ham or several pounds of bacon always let it stand in cold water for at least eight hours, depending of course on the size of the cut. Both the flavor and texture of the meat are greatly improved by the soaking.

Cook In Low Temperature

Another point to keep in mind is the necessity of slow cooking. The curing process dries and hardens the fibers of the meat, so, in order to prevent brittleness long, slow cooking is imperative. Whether the cooking process be boiling, broiling or baking, low temperature must be maintained.

Soaking tart seems essential as an accompaniment to salted meats, but try to avoid the monotony of always serving the same thing. If you are in a rut and continuously serve pineapple slices with your ham, the following list may help you to concoct some original mixtures or combinations: Slices of orange—rind and all—brown in ham fat, grilled apple slices, glazed baked apples, chilled spiced apple sauce, broiled bananas, glazed apricots, spiced peaches, ices and sherbets of pineapple, orange, lime or lemon. Raisin sauce always is liked, but orange sauce, tomato sauce, frozen horseradish sauce and frozen mustard sauce are simple and delicious for summer meals. The combination of horseradish and mustard is splendid, too.

The next time you must resort to cold boiled ham as an emergency try ham rolls. They take only a few minutes to prepare and are quite unusual.

Ham Rolls

Four slices cold boiled ham, 1 cup stale bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon melted apple or currant jelly, 5 tablespoons milk, 4 teaspoons prepared mustard, paprika.

Combine bread crumbs, milk, jelly, mustard and paprika. Spread a thin layer on each slice of ham. Roll and fasten with wooden toothpicks. Place in a shallow baking dish and bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. Baste two or three times during the baking with fruit juice or vinegar from sweet pickles. Serve with grilled apple slices or a spiced fruit pickle.

SWEET HERBS

Spare a corner of your perennial border for a few of the old-time sweet herbs that were always to be found in your grandmother's garden and you'll rejoice the palates of your household.

Some herbs are perennial and, when once established, will come year after year. These include thyme, sage, sweet majoram and lavender.

Many may be dried and stored for winter use. Some may be used fresh, just as they come from the garden. Borage, burnet, sweet basil, thyme, sage and savory are used only after being dried. Chives, parsley, dill, chervil and mint are good fresh as well as dried.

The secret of fine cooking lies in the seasoning and no French housewife ever makes a soup without a fagot of herbs or kitchen bouquet. This kitchen bouquet usually contains bay-leaf, parsley, pepper-pod, carrot, celery and thyme. Soups and stews seasoned with these herbs have a savoriness impossible to gain any other way.

Sage, thyme, savory and mar-joram are used in stuffings for poultry and meats. Dill, caraway, fennel, mustard, burnet, horse-radish and mint are for sauces.

Herb Vinegars

Herb vinegars are specially good in salad dressings. Basil, tarragon, garlic and parsley vinegars are easily made at home. Most fancy grocers also keep these vinegars on their shelves. Often it is the vinegar that is the source of the indescribably agreeable taste found in French dressing served in fine hotels and restaurants.

Tarragon vinegar should be made in August when the leaves are at their best, although the dried leaves may always be used. Four cups of hot vinegar are poured over one cup of fresh leaves and allowed to stand three weeks, stirring each day. The vinegar is then strained and bottled ready for use.

Basil vinegar is made by steeping the leaves in vinegar. For two weeks the vinegar is heated each day and poured over the leaves. The infusion is strained and more basil added until the desired strength is obtained.

Garlic vinegar is unusually good with summer vegetables salads. Head lettuce, sliced tomatoes, cucumbers, new cabbage—in fact any vegetable served with French dressing made with garlic vinegar gains a distinctive flavor.

Garlic Vinegar

Six cloves garlic, 2 leaves basil, ½ nutmeg, 3 lemons, 3½ cups vinegar. Grate nutmeg, squeeze juice from lemons, heat vinegar to the boiling point. Combine all ingredients and bring again to the boiling point. Bottle and let stand three weeks. Strain, bottle and seal.

BAKE VEGETABLES

Experiments have shown that the method of cooking, the manner of cutting, and the extent of surface exposed during cooking have much to do with the loss of flavor, minerals and food value of vegetables.

The mineral loss of vegetables classed as roots and tubers is less than for those known as stalks and leaves. Cabbage, celery, beet greens and onions lose most minerals during cooking. Spinach loses none of its calcium but much of its iron unless properly cooked. Practically all minerals lost from vegetables remain in the water in which they are cooked. That is why it is so important to utilize the water.

AIR DESTROYS VITAMINS

The destruction of vitamins is caused more generally by exposure to air than by heating, but not all vitamins are susceptible to these factors. A plant source of vitamin A is less liable to injury by exposure to air than an animal source; in fact, most foods suffer little loss of vitamin A when properly cooked.

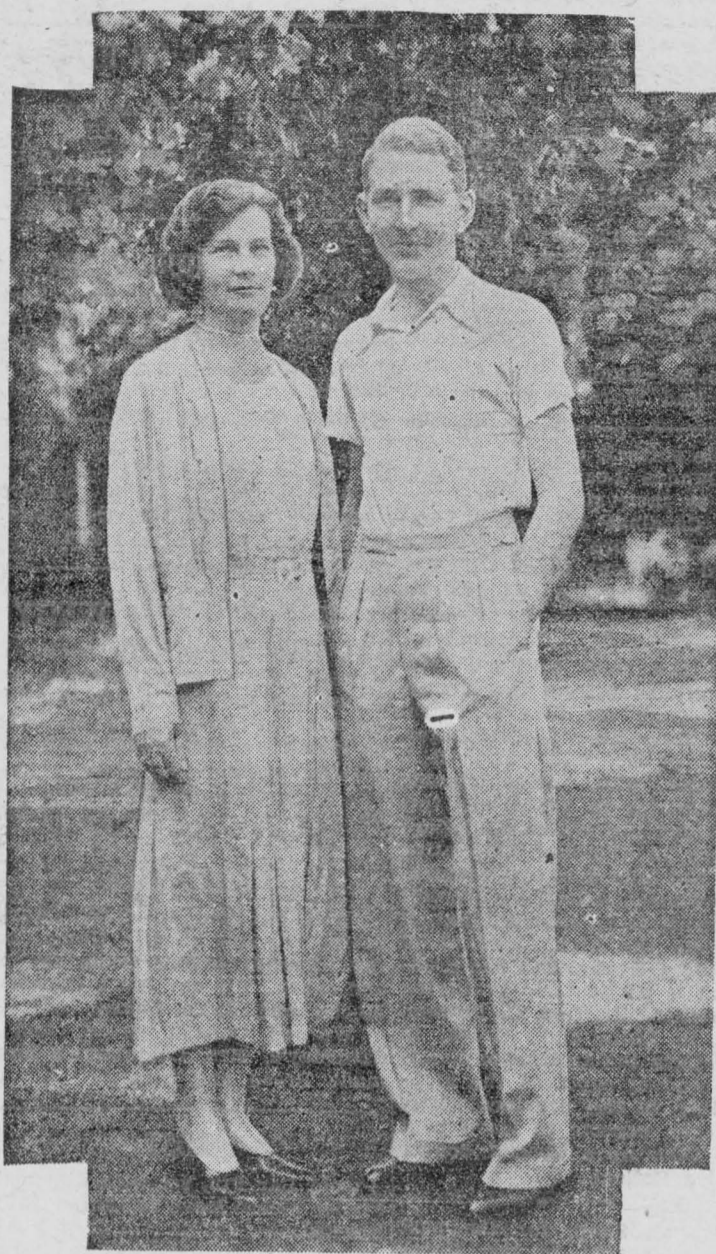

Vitamin B remains unchanged by heat as long as the natural acidity of a food is maintained. As the acid is neutralized, this vitamin is rapidly destroyed and its destruction becomes complete in a strong alkaline solution within an hour.

Expose to air and the duration of the heating period have marked effect on the destruction of vitamin C. Heat alone, even at a high temperature, causes only a small loss of vitamin C in foods. Prolonged cooking is the cause of unnecessary loss of all three vitamins.

So far as is known, vitamins D and E are not likely to be affected by ordinary cooking methods.

Baking is recognized as the best way to preserve all minerals. Next comes steaming or pressure-cooking. The method which taxes the skill of the cook is that of cooking in as small amount of water as possible until the vegetable is tender, then letting the water cook away. This method closely resembles steaming, because most of the extracted nutrients cling to the vegetable.

TOMATO RECIPES

For scalloped tomatoes you need four ripe tomatoes, 4 green peppers, 1 package cream cheese, 1 cup cracker crumbs, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1 teaspoon white pepper, 1 tablespoon butter, 1-3 cup milk.

Scald and peel tomatoes. Cut in slices about ¼ inch thick. Wash peppers. Remove seeds and white pith and cut in crosswise slices about 1-3 inch thick. Put a layer of tomatoes in a buttered baking dish and cover with a layer of pepper slices. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, sugar and crumbled cheese. Cover with cracker crumbs. Repeat, layer for layer, until all is used, making the top layer of cracker crumbs. Dot with bits of butter and pour milk over the whole. Bake thirty-five minutes in a moderate oven. Serve from baking dish.

Tomatoes and Mushrooms

Then there are tomatoes and mushrooms on toast!

Four large tomatoes, 2 sweet green peppers, 4 small onions, ½ pound mushrooms, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 4 squares hot buttered toast.

Scald, peel and chop tomatoes. Wash pepper and remove seeds and white pith. Cut flesh in thin strips. Peel and slice onions. Combine peppers and onions and cook in butter over a slow fire for ten minutes. Add mushrooms which have been peeled and sliced quite thin. Cook five minutes longer and add tomatoes. Cook fifteen minutes, until all are tender. Serve on hot buttered toast.

The combinations and possibilities for stuffed tomatoes are endless. Add meat for savoriness with bread crumbs, rice or macaroni. Beef, ham, veal, lamb or chicken may be utilized for this purpose. Other vegetables such as corn and sweet peppers and green beans and lima beans may be used singly or in combination. So may nuts and cheese.

Broiled Tomatoes

Wipe and cut in halves crosswise, cut off a thin slice from rounding part of each half. Sprinkle with salt and pepper; dip in crumbs, egg and crumbs again, place in a well buttered broiler and broil 6 to 8 minutes.

Tomatoes A La Creme

Wipe peel and slice 4 or 5 large tomatoes. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and saute in butter. Place on a hot platter and pour over 1½ cups white sauce.

Deviiled Tomatoes

Three tomatoes, salt and pepper, flour, butter for sauteing, 1 teaspoon mustard, ¼ teaspoon salt, few grains cayenne, yolk of 1 hard-boiled egg, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 teaspoons powdered sugar.

Wipe, peel and cut tomatoes in slices. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge with flour and saute in butter. Place on hot platter and pour over dressing made by creaming butter, adding dry ingredients, yolk of eggs rubbed to paste, egg beaten slightly and vinegar, then cooking over hot water, stirring constantly until it thickens.

Baked Tomatoes

Wipe six small tomatoes and make two one-inch gashes on blossom end of each, having gashes cross each other at right angles. Place in pan and bake until thoroughly heated. Serve with sauce for devilled tomatoes, adding, just before serving, 1 tablespoon heavy cream.

Stuffed Tomatoes

Prepare six medium-sized tomatoes. Take out seeds and pulp sprinkle inside of tomatoes with salt, invert and let stand half an hour. Cook 5 minutes 2 tablespoons butter with ½ tablespoon finely chopped onion. Add ¼ cup finely chopped cold cooked chicken or veal, ½ cup stale soft bread crumbs, tomato pulp and salt and pepper to taste. Cook 5 minutes, then add one egg slightly beaten, cook 1 minute and refill tomatoes with mixture. Place in buttered pan, sprinkle with buttered cracker crumbs and bake 20 minutes in a hot oven.

Tomato Canapes

Three ounces cream cheese, 2 tablespoons Roquefort cheese, 2 tablespoons heavy cream, ¼ teaspoon salt, shake of cayenne, 2 medium-sized tomatoes, toast, mayonnaise.

Mix the two cheese together with cream and seasoning, until smooth. Cut rounds of toast the same size as tomato slices. Spread with cheese mixture, cover with slice of tomato and garnish with mayonnaise and parsley.

Tomato Custards

Four cups fresh tomatoes chopped, 1 sliced onion, 1 bayleaf, 1 sprig parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 3 eggs.

Boil all ingredients together except eggs for 20 minutes. Put through coarse sieve. Add water if necessary to make 2 cups puree. Add beaten eggs, pour into greased custard cups standing in shallow pan of water. Bake till firm, about 20 minutes in moderate oven. Turn out and serve with cream sauce to which peas or cheese has been added.

Fried Tomatoes

Dip thick slices of tomato in flour and fry in bacon fat. These fried tomatoes provide a nice luncheon or supper dish if served with bacon. Fried tomatoes with eggs is also a popular dish about this time of year. The possibilities of tomatoes hot or cold on your menus are legion.

The Sunday School Lesson

"Hezekiah Leads His People Back to God—2, Chronicles, Chapter 30
GOLDEN TEXT — "God is gracious and merciful."

TIME—Hezekiah was born, B.C. 747 became king, B.C. 723, held his great passover, B.C. 722.

PLACE—Perusale m

"And Hezekiah sent to all Israel and Judah." The good king was not content with the reestablishment of worship in Jerusalem alone, but longed to restore the pure worship of Jehovah on a national scale. "And wrote letters also to Ephraim and Manasseh." These tribes are specially mentioned, not only as being nearest to Judah, but as being the leading tribes of Israel. "That they should come to the house of Jehovah at Jerusalem." The ancient sanctuary established by the Lord, to replace which in the Northern Kingdom Jeroboam had set up rival sanctuaries at Bethel in the south and Dan in the north, where Jehovah was worshipped with the idolatrous symbol of bulls. "To keep the passover unto Jehovah." The passover was the chief religious feast of the Jews, commemorating the great deliverance of the people of God from the tenth plague in Egypt.

"The God of Israel." Hezekiah did not say, "the God of Judah," but used "Israel," the name of the Northern Kingdom, which was also God-given name of Jacob, and thus of all the Israelites, descended from him.

"For the king had taken counsel, and his princes." Hezekiah was no arbitrary ruler. He did not foolishly think that all wisdom resided in himself. "And all the assembly in Jerusalem." Hezekiah would have a true democracy. "To keep the passover in the second month." The second month of the Jewish year, the month Ziv or Iyar, corresponding roughly to our May.

"For they could not keep it at that time." At the time when Hezekiah reopened the renovated temple. "Because the priests had not sanctified themselves in sufficient number." A large number of priests would be required for the sacrifice of so many animals as would be offered up, and those priests must undergo a course of ceremonial purification to meet the requirements of the law. "Neither had the people gathered themselves together to Jerusalem." They had not assembled from the villages of Judah, to say nothing of the towns from one end of Palestine to the other.

"And the thing was right in the eyes of the king and of all the assembly." They all agreed to keep the passover once more, to hold it in the second month, and to invite the northern tribes to the feast.

"So they established a decree to make proclamation throughout all Israel, from Beer-sheba even to Dan." Beer-sheba was a town in the extreme south of Palestine and Dan a town in the extreme north, so that the phrase included the entire nation. "That they should come to keep the passover unto Jehovah, the God of Israel." Hezekiah's reform had its political and social aspects, but he made it essentially and fundamentally religious. "At Jerusalem." The religious centre of the nation, consecrated by centuries of worship and hallowed by the very presence of Jehovah in the Most Holy Place. "For they had not kept it in great numbers (margin, 'for a long time') in such sort as it is written." Pious families here and there had been observing the sacred feast according to God's explicit directions, but no observance on a national scale had been attempted for many decades.

"So the posts went with the letters from the king and his princes throughout all Israel and Judah." Swift and tireless runners sped along the pathways of Palestine, up hill and down dale. "And according to the commandment of the king, saying, Ye children of Israel, turn again unto Jehovah." Turn away from your idols and yield once more to God. "The God of Abraham, Isaac and Israel." That is of Jacob, the God who had led their fathers to that goodly land and had made them a great nation. "That he may return to the remnant that are escaped of you out of the hand of the kings of Assyria." God is eager to meet his repentant children. Like the father of the prodigal who ran out to meet him and would not allow him to finish his prepared speech of confession, is our God hastens toward any sinner who turns back toward home.

"And be not ye like your fathers, and like your brethren, who trespassed against Jehovah, the God of their fathers." A strange and significant snatch of corroborating history is to be found in 1. Chron. 5 : 23-26. "So that he gave them up to desolation, as ye see." The margin reads, "So that he gave them up to be an astonishment. Their pitiful fate amazed all the nations round."

"Now be yet not stiffnecked, as your fathers were." Beginning with the day of Jeroboam and Rehoboam, the Israelites had been stiffnecked in their determined opposition to the will of God. "But yield yourselves unto Jehovah." To yield ourselves to the Lord, is to make ourselves over to him giving him the entire possession and control of our whole being. "And enter into his sanctuary which he hath sanctified for ever." Hezekiah refers to the central building of Solomon's temple, the Holy Place and the Most Holy Place. "And serve Jehovah your God. By worshipping him and bringing him offerings." That his fierce anger may turn away from you." The message is an invitation, but it is also a warning.

"For if ye turn again unto Jehovah, your brethren and your children shall find compassion before them that led them captive." Terrible indeed was the lot of the exiles in Assyria. They lost all their goods. They were deprived of all of their comforts. "And shall come again into this land." That was the one great longing of the exiles, expressed most sorrowfully in such psalms as Ps. 137: "By the rivers of Babylon, There we sat down, yea, we wept, When we remembered Zion." "For Jehovah your God is gracious and merciful. No one could have said that the Jews deserved to be brought back to their own land, but God's mercy exceeded their deserving. "And will not turn away his face, if ye return unto him." Strong sunny confidence in God shines from the whole message and reaches its climax in the closing assurance that he is merciful and gracious.

"And there assembled at Jerusalem much people to keep the feast of unleavened bread in the second month." So called because in memory of the hasty leaving of Egypt, only unleavened bread was used. "A very great assembly." The closing verses of this chapter carry swift and exultant joy, one particular tumbling after another as if the happy chronicler could not race his pen fast enough.

Hallville softball team, champions of the Dundas League, added two victories to their string, when they defeated Cardinal 12-4, and Chesterville 5-4, before a record-breaking crowd of about three thousand people on Chesterville fair grounds yesterday.

Among the most brilliant students to graduate from the Morrisburg Collegiate Institute in recent years, is Miss Mary Schwerdfeger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R.J. Schwerdfeger, who, after winning two scholarships in 1933, was this week awarded the Waterloo College Scholarship in Classics, amounting to $200. Not only does this remarkable achievement reflect much credit upon this M.C.I. student, but it also reflects the high standard of the institution from which she graduated, and is particularly gratifying to her teacher, Mr. Geo. C. Powers, specialist in Latin and Greek, in which subjects the institution's outstanding student captured the highest standing in the province. Miss Schwerdfeger expects to leave next week, to take up a special course in Waterloo College.

Smith, sailing in a 16-foot canoe from Peterboro, Ontario, to Peterboro, England, is believed to have lost his life in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, recently, after successfully negotiating the treacherous rapids in the St. Lawrence river, and the long river itself.

Fire of unknown origin broke out on the farm of Mrs. J. McEwen, four miles west of Winchester, at 1.30 a.m. Thursday morning, and destroyed a large dairy barn, hen house, pig pen and silo, as well as the season's crop of hay, and a large quantity of grain. The loss is estimated at $3,000, and is partly covered by insurance. The farm is known as the Dick Atcheson homestead, and the buildings located there were considered among the most up-to-date in the county of Dundas.

Magistrate John McCormick received notice on Wednesday, from the Attorney-General's Department that, by virtue of an order-in-council dated August 23, 1934, he had been appointed Judge of the Juvenile Court within the meaning of the Children's Protection Act. His jurisdiction will extend over the same area as recently outlined in the redistribution of magistrates.

COUNTRYMAN—EDWARDS

A very pretty wedding took place on Thursday afternoon, August 30, when Miss Beatrice Minnie, eldest daughter of William Alfred Edwards, of Aultsville, was united in marriage to John Milton Countryman, of Gallingtown.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a beautiful French blue Russian-afre crepe gown, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and gypsophylla. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G.N. Maxwell, of Finch.

Immediately after the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served to the relatives and friends. Later the happy couple left by motor for Niagara Falls and Toronto, the bride travelling in a navy blue silk crepe suit, with hat and shoes to match. Upon their return, they will take up residence in Gallingtown.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful pearl necklace. Among those from a distance who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Manson Robinson and family, of Chesterville; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Gallinger and family, Moulins; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Countryman, Mr. Arthur Brownell, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Edwards, all of Gallingtown.

CORNWALL TO PROBE THREE AUTO DEATHS

Coroner Dr. C.J. Hamilton, Cornwall has ordered inquests in connection with three automobile fatalities which happened in that district over the week-end. The victims were:

Elias Fetterly, 74-year-old Onabruk Township farmer; Charles Simon, 30, of Maxville; Duncan McPhail, 20, of Cornwall Township.

Fetterly died at Cornwall General Hospital Monday afternoon as a result of shock and injuries suffered at 10.15 Sunday evening, when he was struck and knocked down by an automobile driven by Percy Millward, Wales. Fetterly was walking along the county highway east of Avonmore Village, only a short distance from his home, and is said to have crossed the pavement in the path of the automobile.

Phillip Guindon, of Maxville, was arrested on Sunday by Provincial Constable Wilfrid Bertrand, Hawkesbury, on a charge of criminal negligence arising out of the death of Charles Simon, in an accident at St. Isidore de Prescott, Prescott County, at 11.35 Friday night. Police at first believed that Simon was the driver of the automobile which crashed into a truck parked before a curb gasoline pump, but learned subsequently that Guindon was driving. Simon suffered head injuries which caused his death at Hotel Dieu Hospital, Cornwall, on Saturday.

Duncan McPhail suffered fatal injuries when the automobile he was driving overturned in a ditch on the county highway, twelve miles north of Cornwall, at 2 o'clock Friday morning. He was taken to Hotel Dieu Hospital there, where he succumbed to injuries and shock on Saturday. McPhail was alone in the car, and was returning to his home in the Ninth Concession of Cornwall Township, after attending a boxing-wrestling match at Cornwall. The cause of the accident has not been ascertained.
