Village council changes Feb. dates

CHESTERVILLE — Chesterville council has rescheduled its February 8 regular council meeting to February 15, and has cancelled its February 22 meeting. The move is necessary because of a timing conflict with the upcoming Rural Ontario Municipalities Association Convention, which some council members will attend. Chesterville council normally meets the second and fourth Wednesday of every month.

Globetrotter brings clinic to Cornwall

CORNWALL— Having entertained thousands around the world as a member of the famous Harlem Globetrotters, Tyrone Brown will host a "Hoopstart" basketball clinic for local youths from the United Counties Basketball Association at Cornwall's Central Public School Gym. The event will be held Feb. beginning at 5:30 p.m. The clinic is a prelude to the premiere of the 1995 Harlem Globetrotters "Salutes the Family" World Tour, at the Civic Complex in Cornwall Feb. 9 at 7:30 p.m.

Advisory team receives grant

WILLIAMSBURG — The Dundas Community Advisory Team will receive $3,416 through the Jobs Ontario -Community Action program to implement a 10-steps to community action program. The program will be offered to a maximum of 25 people in the county, and is designed to strengthen volunteers' leadership skills. The announcement was made by Ontario Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs Minister Elmer Buchanan Friday.

Collisions down slightly

LONG SAULT — Motor vehicle collision statistics released this week show a slight drop in personal injury collisions, says Constable Joel Doiron of the Long Sault OPP detachment. The statistics were released by the Traffic and Marine branch of the OPP. In 1994, the OPP investigated 18,410 personal injury collisions in addition to 55,184 property damage collisions for a total of 73,594 motor vehicle collisions. Alcohol was a contributing factor in 4,386 of the total motor vehicle collisions. In comparison with 1993 statistics, personal injury collisions decreased by five per cent from 19,335; property damage collisions increased by one per cent from 54,552; the total number of motor vehicle collisions had a minor drop from 73,887, but the number of collisions involving alcohol increased by four per cent from 4,231 in 1993.

Family tragedy leaves man dead, father charged

Record Staff

ELMA — A family tragedy unfolded Monday night leaving an 18-year-old RR 2 Chesterville man dead and his father charged with first-degree murder.

Provincial police were called to a Marcellus Road home north of Elma late Monday night and discovered the body of Alistair Deighton, who died of an apparent shotgun blast.

Charged is Alistair Deighton Sr., 49. He was taken into custody at the scene and appeared in provincial court in Morrisburg Tuesday, where the case was remanded in custody to February 14.

The victim had completed Grade 12 studies at North Dundas District High School in January, and played offensive tackle for the Myers Riders football club in Nepean.

The suspect, a salesman with Colonial Furniture in Ottawa, had attended another son's hockey game in Winchester on the evening of the incident. A witness told the Record he appeared to be his normal self.

The mood was sombre at North Dundas District High School Tuesday. School psychologist Dr. David Kauffman and school chaplain Rev. Roy Harwood were called in to help students cope with the tragedy.

Principal Don Fairweather said Alistair Jr. was a popular student and was well-known by the student population.

"It's the students' first day back for their second semester and to be met with this news is tragic. It's a tragic situation. We are providing help to students to deal with their grief.

Angie Villeneuve and Joanne Vien, both friends of Alistair Jr., were shocked by the news Tuesday.

"Of all people, this couldn't have happened to Alistair. He was a joker and very laid back. You could always joke around with him," Vien said. "My God, he always made me laugh."

Villeneuve said she remembers Deighton as having many friends.

"He loved touring around with his friends. He had a lot of friends. He wanted to go to college. That's all he wanted to do. He wanted to go to college and play football. Football was everything. He had a real passion for it."

Mike Morris, who coached Deighton Jr.'s Myers Riders football team, said he was well liked and was a team player. He said he had the potential to play university football. He also said Alistair was looking forward to receiving his championship ring, that he was first in line to get his finger measured for the ring.

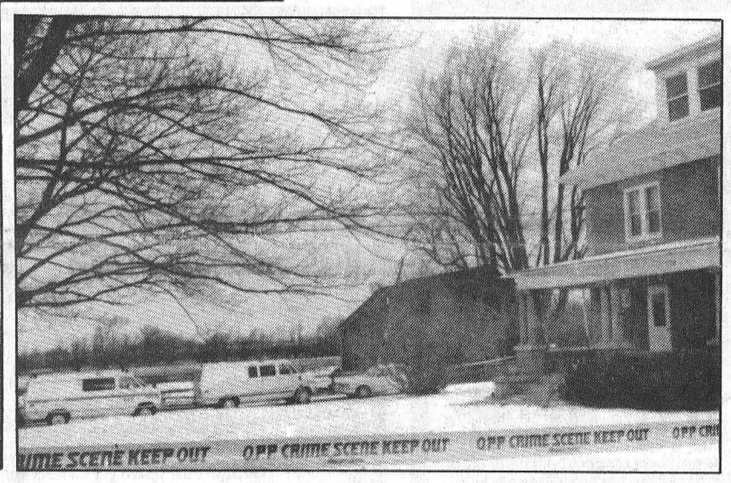
Record Photos — Morris and Hewitt



Morrisburg OPP Tuesday were not releasing information as to who was in the home at the time of the shooting or where in the home it occurred.

They also declined to say whether the fact Deighton Jr. had been recently charged by police with sexual assault had any bearing on the incident, saying no motive has yet been established.

Alistair Deighton Jr. is survived by his father, his mother Sheila, and by younger brothers Michael and Chris.

Derks offers help with landfill books

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

MAPLE RIDGE — Former Chesterville councillor Martin Derks will provide Chesterville council with a list of recomendations for landfill site bookkeeping as a result of his recent questioning of the site's accounting.

Derks met with Winchester Township's auditor last week to explore his complaints about what he calls vague and incompetent bookkeeping for the Boyne Road site, which is shared by Chesterville, Winchester and Winchester Township. Winchester Township, as the host municipality, handles bookkeeping for the site through its municipal office.

Derks says he will end his questioning of the accounting, which began in November when Chesterville council was given an informal list of revenues and expenditures for the site's 1993 operations. He expressed serious concerns about the figures, complaining that it was difficult to tell which money belonged to which municipality, and where other money had wound up.

Winchester Township began keeping separate books for the site in 1994, something Chesterville had been calling for since 1991.

Derks says he will recommend that Chesterville send two representatives to landfill committee meetings instead of one. He will also recommend that the township hire a new bookkeeper and new auditor.

Each of the three municipalities is allowed two representatives on the landfill board of management, but Chesterville appointed only one, Shirley Coons, as no other members of the previous council were able to commit to the task.

Derks says he is glad he made an issue of his concerns, saying it was in effect his job as a councillor at the time.

"I'll feel better that I didn't sit back and do nothing. To just sit back and do nothing really isn't right."

In a related matter, Chesterville resident Archie Black visited Chesterville council last week, also to complain that the site's bookkeeping was "sloppy."

"It seems we can't get good information in it, either from council or from (Winchester Township)," he said.

"There are not too many people capable of

Hwy. 31 eyed for paving

Kim Robinson
Special to the Record

KINGSTON — The province is eyeing a stretch of Hwy. 31 between Morrisburg and Cty. Road 5, just north of Winchester Springs, for resurfacing.

Phil Pawliuk, a planning and design engineer for the Ministry of Transportation, says paving will take place some time in the next few years, depending on the availability of funds from the province's five-year capital construction program budget.

The project would cost roughly $1.3 million and take about two-and-a-half months to complete.

Ministry project engineer Doug Boyd said Monday, "It is possible there could be a project this summer, but I wouldn't want to say for sure."

He said other ministry projects, such as a resurfacing job near Pakenham, have run over budget, so there may not be money for Hwy. 31 for a few years.

The ministry is looking at pavement and traffic conditions on a number of roads in eastern Ontario, including sections of Hwys. 2 and 7, to determine which paving projects should have highest priority.

The Hwy. 31 improvement would be what Boyd calls a fast-track project, where design costs are minimalized and construction contracts are put in place quickly.

Police committee sets objectives

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — With a clearly defined objective and ideas for initiatives, Chesterville's community policing committee is moving forward.

At its second meeting recently, the committee adopted a slogan to describe its mandate: "To make a safer and more secure environment for the community of Chesterville."

And steps to organize a community patrol, modeled after others in Embrun and Osgoode, are already being taken.

Committee member Barry Leclair and Winchester OPP Sgt. Brent Mattice, who is acting as police liaison, will sit in on a community policing patrol meeting this week in Osgoode.

Leclair's report on the Osgoode meeting is expected to help the Chesterville committee in setting up a similar program.

Chesterville's community policing committee was formed after seven people volunteered at a meeting to discuss the village's problems with vandalism and other crime in early December.

The concept of a volunteer-driven, community patrol was suggested, and has become one of the committee's main goals.

The patrol would consist of people who would walk the streets of the village at night and act as extra eyes for police. Members would call police, and not intervene, when suspicious activity is spotted.

Interim chairman Dave Adams says things are starting to fall into place for the fledgling group. But he says it's important that the public of Chesterville is aware of its existence, its goals and its needs.

The committee is soon expected to decide on a pattern for volunteer patrols of the village. After that it needs to recruit as many volunteers as possible for the patrols in order to make it successful and sustainable.

"The patrol, I think, is definitely a plan for the immediate future and it's a goal we have very strong feelings for," Adams says.

Adams says the development of a formalized committee could also help bring attention to Chesterville's concerns when government bodies are involved.

"We felt that as a commitee, as a organized group representing the community, a letter signed by us would bear some type of support."

Derks will make landfill site suggestions to village

Reeve Jim Cook noted that the site's administration fee system, which has also been questioned, could come up for review if the three municipal councils meet as a whole, which could be in the near future.

''Since it's a new council, we should get together for some ground rules and the administration fee is one of them,'' he said, adding that no meeting has been scheduled but he has had preliminary talks about having one in the near future.

Black asked why the village could not get a separate 1993 statement for the site from Winchester Township, echoing Derks's concerns.

Cook said it was the opinion of the township's auditor that separating the landfill numbers from Winchester Township's for 1993 was too time consuming and expensive a task, adding he is under the understanding that separate figures will be provided for 1994.

''It may cost a lot of money, but we're dealing with a lot of money,'' Black said.

''I don't believe there's anything wrong,'' Cook responded, adding he felt the previous council was not being given enough credit for pursuing separate figures, which he said it had done quietly.

Court date

Douglas Therkelson, 22, of Russell, appeared in provincial court in Morrisburg Tuesday morning. Therkelson, Daryle Bolton of Winchester , 23, and a young offender were charged with first-degree murder in the death of Winchester senior Kenneth Hutt January 21. Information on the proceeding was not available at press time.

Project will preserve area's Dutch heritage

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

Kate Russell, Margot Dixon and Caroline Roberts will interview the area's Dutch for project.

CHESTERVILLE — The rich Dutch heritage of the Chesterville area will soon become an officially documented part of history.

As part of an eight-week project, three local women will conduct audiotaped interviews with some of the Chesterville area's first Dutch arrivals, to document and preserve their experiences.

Caroline Roberts, Margot Dixon and Kate Russell are all seasonal employees at Morrisburg's Upper Canada Village. They are undertaking the project through an unemployment insurance initiative, with other costs supplied by the Historical Society.

The trio, based now at the Chesterville and District Heritage Centre, are currently planning their approach. But soon, with tape recorders in hand, they will begin interviews with some of the area's Dutch.

A strong contingent of Dutch immigrants came to Canada in the early 1950s. Many settled in the Chesterville area and became strong members of the agricultural community and the community in general.

Through the project, interview subjects will be asked what conditions they left in the Netherlands, how it was they came to Canada, and what they found when they arrived. The interviews, though are not strictly bound by any guideline, and can flow according to the subject's experiences.

The taped interviews will become part of the Chesterville and District Historical Society's archives, and copies will be given to the participants as a family memento.

"It's a very valuable source of information that's slipping away," Roberts says. "We all know people who would have been interviews except they're not here today."

To make the project more successful, the three are asking for old photographs of the area's first Dutch immigrants, as well as ideas on who might be good subjects to interview. They are also hoping to borrow two or three dictaphones for transcribing the interviews.

Russell and Roberts are trained through the Ontario Museum Association, while Dixon has experience as an archivist.

Local historian Clarence Cross, a member of the historical society, has given the interviewers pointers on interviews, based his own extensive research.

While the three stress that their undertaking is a pilot project, they say it opens the doors to either a booklet or even a book in the future, by them or by someone else.

In the meantime, working on the project will hopefully lead to permanent jobs in the community for the three women, with one of the many one-room museums and historical societies in eastern Ontario.

For more information on the project, phone 448-3534.

Chesterville Public School notes

Chesterville Public School is now officially a "Green School," with the completion of its 100th environmental project. The school becomes only the 981st of 15,000 schools in Canada to achieve the designation. Congratulations to CPS's Environmental Gang and the leadership of Mrs. Saunders and Ms. Henbest. The next goal is to achieve "Earth School" status, the completion of 1,000 environmental projects.

Chesterville Public School wants to survey the community in order to project kindergarten enrolment for the 1995-1996 school year. Please inform the school if you have a child who will be four years old by December 31, 1995 for Junior Kindergarten or five years old by December 31, 1995 for Senior Kindergarten or if you know anyone who does. Survey forms are available at the school and do not constitute registration.

CPS's Winter Fun Day is scheduled for Friday, February 3, the date chosen to coincide with the village's Snowflake Winter Carnival. Students can choose one of three packages, including indoor and outdoor winter games at the school, cross-country skiing and downhill skiing.

The cross-country skiing is open to students in Grades 4, 5 and 6 only. There is no cost, and participants are asked to bring food to be cooked at a bonfire.

The downhill skiing is a bus trip to Ski Fortune in Old Chelsea, Que. It is open to all students as well as friends and parents. Students must be in Grade 4 or higher to go alone. Younger students must be accompanied by an adult. The cost is $24, or $33 for non-skiers, who will be given a compulsory lesson. All money will be refunded if the trip is cancelled. For more information, contact Madame Canillone, Mr. Cooper or Mrs. Henderson.

Take heart

Inside this week's Record is a special supplement about heart and stroke. It's one of the most common killers of Canadians, but at the same time, something many of us don't give a lot of thought.

But the truth is, heart disease and heart ailments do not discriminate by age or sex. And almost every family has been touched in some way by heart disease, heart attack or stroke.

This year, the Dundas Chapter of the Heart and Stroke Foundation of Ontario is raising awareness that women can be just as affected by heart and stroke as anyone else.

February is Heart Month, and the theme is reflected in the foundation's message.

Take for example the four personal stories in the supplement about those who've been there.

From the young Berwick girl who suffered a heart defect from an early age to the 53-year-old schoolteacher with a rare artery condition, to Eileen MacMillan, pictured on the cover, who underwent a triple bypass in 1989 and today volunteers for the Heart and Stroke Foundation and other organizations, they're stories about how lives can be continued normally through medical techniques and know-how.

These stories are success stories because we have learned, through medical research, that there are techniques we can do, and lifestyles we can encourage that can lead to normal lives for those who suffer from heart-related ailments.

But there's still a long way to go in terms of heart research. And that's where you come in.

During Heart and Stroke month, the Dundas Chapter of the Ontario Heart and Stroke Foundation is counting on your support.

When Heart and Stroke Foundation volunteers ring your doorbell this month in Dundas County, please be generous.

While much has been done in terms of medical technology, there's so much more that could be done. And it's your donation that makes it possible.

Help the foundation reach its goal, and you'll be helping everyone who in the future will be affected by heart disease.

Off the Record

Superbowl XXIX, fans 0

By Robin Morris
Sports Vidiot

Is it just me or do you find yourself watching the Superbowl for the ads and the half-time show? Let's get our priorities straight. At $1.4-million for a 30-second spot you know they're gonna be the highlight of the night, especially when you consider that the 90 players involved in the game took home a grand total of only about $2.6-million.

I mean, the action on the field is pathetic, as predictable as the Ontario Ministry of Transportation increasing speeding fines and Jean Chretien's approval rating going up. (From Canadian Press, Aug. 15, 1995 - "The Canadian dollar has hit a new 100-year low of 15 cents against Canadian Tire money, Quebec has voted overwhelmingly to separate from Canada and the unemployment rate has hit 60 per cent and continues to climb. In the midst of this Prime Minister Jean Chretien's approval rating has reached an astounding 150 per cent, according to a Decima Research poll of nine million English-speaking Canadians of voting age conducted between 9 and 9:05pm last night. The margin of error is plus or minus 145 per cent, 19 times out of 20. In Quebec the prime minister continues to be known as Johnny Courteau of de Mountain. The large margin of error is due to the fact that many respondents thought they were voting in the Labatt X-Y Referendum.")

But I digress.

Here I was all primed to see how the Dennis Hopper Nike ads would be played out, to get the results of the Labatt Copper Beer phone-in poll and to see if Coca-Cola would go back to the New Coke taste and the ads kept getting interrupted by a replay of the past 10 Superbowls.

At least the CFL can dish up a different game each year when it comes to the Grey Cup. But then again, with the state of the CFL you never know whether teams will switch cities during the half-time intermission as owners play hot potato with the likes of the Ottawa Rough Riders. There's a sense of stability in the NFL; the kind of stability that comes with the onset of a new ice age in which change moves at a glacial speed. To wit, NFC 11, AFC nil.

It started off with promise. Who could ask for a more tasteless pre-game show than to have Kathie Lee Gifford sing the Star Spangled Banner while Miss America signed the words for those who are, fortunately, deaf enough that they didn't have to listen to Mrs. Gifford or her arteriosclerotic husband in the broadcast booth? Something I didn't have clearly explained to me was the St. Vitus-like thrashing about Miss America did while raising her arms as Kathie Lee's voice reached new lows on the high notes. Is that the signing equivalent of vibratto? There was one thing about which I wasn't left in doubt: there were more bombs bursting in air and rockets' red glare during the anthem than when Francis Scott Key stood on the deck of that British warship while Fort McHenry was being bombarded.

So I was geared for Dennis Hopper and his psychotic referee routine and it's the 49'ers (oops, with the insufferable pretension of the NFL in denoting its championship games with Roman numerals that should be XIXL'ers) 7-0 1:24 into the game. In less than five minutes it's San Fran up XIV-0 and coasting toward the final score of XIXL-XXVI. I think everybody but Larry "Bud" Melman got on the field for San Francisco during the last quarter. Which is more than anyone can say for San Diego, which had nobody on the field for most of the game, except for the coin toss which, predictably, they lost.

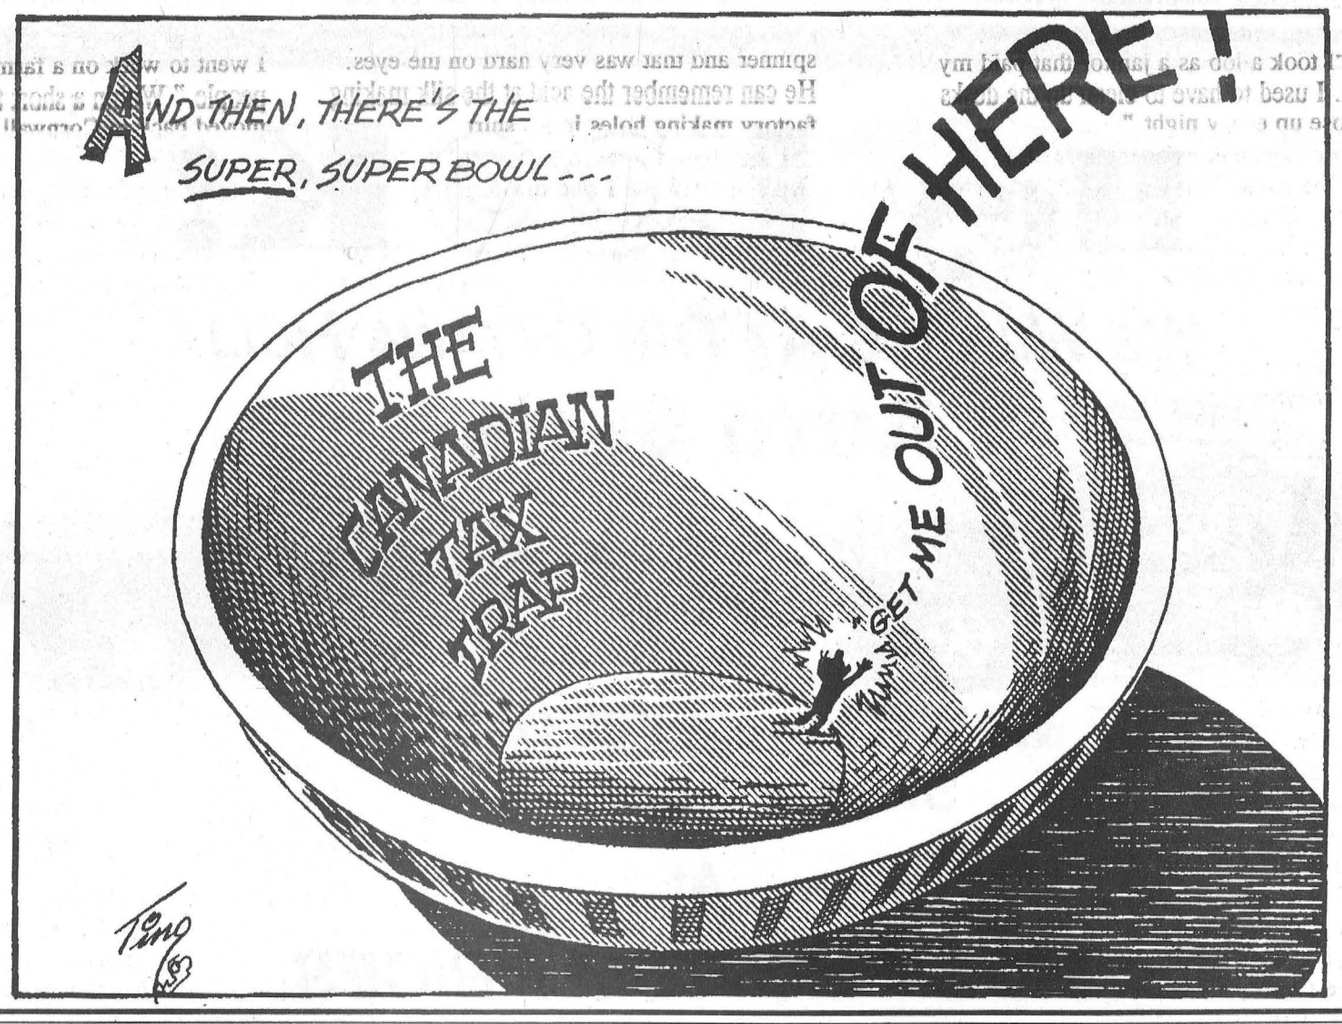
And still no Dennis Hopper ads. And then it dawned on me. We're in Canada where the CRTC allows networks like Canwest-Global to pirate the original American signal and insert their own ads. So instead of the Bud Bowl we get 30-second spots for Bud's Auto Body. And instead of Dennis Hopper's auditory hallucinations about footsteps, we get the auditory nightmare of Mark Hebscher and Jim Tatti climbing up each other's back to plug their favorite topic - themselves.

This means that I'm going to have to go out and buy K-Tel's latest Rock'em, Sock'em Superbowl Ad video or sneak out of the dinner party to which my wife, the Charming and Talented Mrs. Morris, has unwisely accepted an invitation and make a quick trip to Napanee to watch the rest of the game on brother-in-law Ralph's dish. Ralph (you may remember him from the last wedding column, he of the flood-length trousers) is a true fan, subscribing to the NFL's own satellite network.

He gets every game in every time zone, from sea to shining sea. All of the regional games on both ends of every NFC and AFC double header. All with the original American ads. That man can work the remote control on the satellite with more deftness than Mario Bernardi wields his baton. He can scan the sky and pull in Dennis Hopper in the Eastern, Central, Rocky Mountain and Pacific time zones, stopping intermittently to check the scores and see who has the best deals on car rentals in Denver. If there's room in Canton, Ohio, then Ralph will be taking his rightful place in his first year of eligibility, a bronzed thumb poised above the satellite remote alongside the bust of Jim Thorpe.

So anyway, after commissioner Paul Tagliabue and Indiana Jones had rescued the Vince Lombardi Trophy from Tony Bennett during the half-time show and presented it to Eddy DeBartolo (Is that the same DeBartolo family that was turned down by major League Baseball when it wanted to buy a team? You mean there are people out there who can still be considered unsavory by Bud "Scab Ball" Selig and Marge Schott?) I called Ralph for the real scoop.

Once again Bud had defeated Bud Lite and Dennis Hopper had talked for a minute straight to put Nike in the record book for most pitches in a championship game.



THE FARMER'S WIFE

By Wyn Thompson

On a cloudy February day the crackle of the fire in my fireplace has a rather special pleasure. Six-Toes thinks so too, for isn't he stretched out full length on the mat in front of it.

He had had a substantial lunch and a good rove around the house, after which he settled down for a nap, but an ear was beginning to twitch, a sure sign of wakening.

Shortly he was into his toga exercises stretching this way and that, then came quickly to me as if he was curious to discover what I was like.

"Well, cat, do you want a lap?" I leaned forward and ran a finger along his spine, then scratched him behind the ears, a gesture old Scampcat used to find most delightful.

The purrs began to sound like bass drums very lightly beaten, and Six-Toes swelled with pleasure. Before I knew it he jumped up on my welcoming lap and began to knead. He seemed to be happy at last.

He suddenly made himself into a round circle of peace, all kneaded out, and one paw over his smudged nose. There was a short interval of silence, but it must be remembered that cat had had a traumatic experience en route to our home, and while he slept his nose twitched and I suspect he imagined being dumped unceremoniously at my gate while his owners sped away.

So it was, before he even woke up or had his eyes properly open he leapt off my lap, in a great state of nerves. He looked at me as much as to say it is all very well, but you have to remember to be careful of strangers.

Without giving me a parting look, he walked with dignity across the room, and stood in front of the patio door waiting for it to open. The door opened and he was outside. He bounded up onto the woodpile and hunkered down in the watery sunshine that just emerged.

And so, he comes and goes. But, during a severe cold spell of January weather, he spent the night in the garage, it being heated a bit.

The next day while he was washing his face he seemed to come to a decision. After all, if a gentleman cat spends the night, it is a kind of a commitment. He stayed close to the fire all day, enjoying all tender ministrations that came his way.

"I will be your cat," he assured me, sitting on the desk with his paws tucked in.

He jumped down and went to the Farmer's lap and informed him of his decision, sitting upright and looking gravely at the Farmer's face before he hunkered down for yet another bit of shut-eye.

And of course we agreed, because of the white vest and the tiger stripes that ran down to the tip of his tail, because of the smudge of color on his nose, because he hummed such a variety of songs, because he really was quite a handsome fellow.

We named him Six-Toes although he does come for Cat, Kitty, or Where are You?, particularly if he hears the refrigerator door closing.

Of course, there's always one fly in the ointment. The neighbor's Siamese has occasionally called on us. Of a sudden, I heard a very rude song being sung, and sure enough the Siamese was on the woodpile too, singing at a high pitch that came out piercingly, a very intense song indeed.

Six-Toes crouched down, his eyes thin slits of attention.

Six-Toes remained crouched, the Siamese sat upright, elegant, dignified and haughty while the insults flew round and about them. The first song was really just the tuning up, then the volume and the language escalated.

However, it was the words "gutter bum" that sent a shiver of rage through the whiskers of Six-Toes, and he gave a low growl. Otherwise he was completely motionless.

The last syllable of the growl rose into a piercing and terrible scream, and he pounced, his nose being dealt with severely by the teeth of the Siamese.

Six-Toes was suddenly aware that he had got himself into a real fight. There was no way of backing down, and he began a very low moan which is a sign that the time for words is long gone. They sprang into the air and then pounced into each other screaming with rage, biting whatever seemed handy.

All this time they were hurling insults at each other, growling and yipping with pain, and it was terrible to hear. It was impossible to tell who was winning, and no one will ever know, for just then the Farmer who was working in the garage settled it with the broom, shouting, "Go home, you horrible Siamese!"

He flew home across the fields growling and cursing homemakers who adopt gutter trash and a six-toed monster who employed such unfair methods of attack.

Six-Toes was hovering outside the patio door. Now that it was all over, he felt a bit shaken, it must be confessed.

He came in and after a while he lay down, quite exhausted, on the mat. He could feel the warmth through it, and he laid his paw on his sore nose and closed his eyes.

He ached all over but emitted a purr of triumph, and also gratitude. For it was rather handy to have someone with a broom intercede on his behalf, not that he couldn't have managed himself.

But, it is nice to have a keeper handy on such occasions.

Remembering the good old days with George LaFlamme

By Melissa Batchilder
Record staff

One of George's favorite past-times .

Both are as natural as working hard in life has been to him. "I've always been glad to help someone out," he admits with a degree of shyness. However, he is somewhat reluctant to talk about his good deeds as humility overcomes him.

"Helping people out is pretty important," says the former-grocer whose face is one of great familiarity around Chesterville. "When people were hard up, I've always tried to help. I was in the business to do it."

George has no regrets about his generous lifestyle. "I just helped where I could."

As a matter of fact during a Nestle strike years ago, it was well-known that if groceries were low, employees could turn to George for help. "I gave a family $1,100 worth of groceries once. Everyone told me I would never see a dime for them. I was told I was crazy for doing it, but before too long that family started paying me bit by bit until it was all paid off."

As George sits in a comfortable home on South Street, he remembers that life certainly wasn't always easy for him. He knows only too well the value of hard work.

"I was born at North Branch and raised at Apple Hill. I went to school there too." It was at the tender age of eight that George lost his father in an automobile accident. As the youngest boy, George worked at home to help his mother.

Growing up without a father was often a struggle for the young man, but despite obstacles he made his way to college in Cornwall in the day when many young men just went to work.

"I took a special course in bookeeping, shorthand and typing." As was life until that point for George, times were tough in college as well. "I took a job as a janitor that paid my tuition. I used to have to clean up the desks and close up every night."

In those days there was no borrowing money, he adds, "but I was a real go getter."

Upon graduating from college, George went to work in a cheese factory. "I went to work for 4:30 a.m. and the farmers would come at six with their milk. I did that for three years."

He remembers the way cheese used to be made. Weighing about 90lbs., the huge pieces had to be flipped over each day. "I would turn them over each morning. There is a knack needed to do this." As the foreman of six other men, George was often showing them just the right way to flip the cheese.

Despite having just turned 80 years old, George moves his arms in the manner it took to flip the cheese without difficulty. "You just lifted it and flicked."

He describes in detail the work that went into making cheese and how there was rarely a day off. "I worked seven days a week and on my first day off in two years I met my first wife."

After marrying, George went to work at Cortaulds in Cornwall. "I was a laborer," he grins as he mocks a grunt. "Actually, I was a spinner and that was very hard on the eyes." He can remember the acid at the silk making factory making holes in his shirt.

"I was there for three years until there was a strike in 1939. So I said the heck with all this and I went down to Montreal."

World War II had just broke out and "I got into delivering milk from 2 a.m. until 7 a.m. each morning on a horse and sleigh. Then I got a job at Canadair."

The enormous company which employed 10.000 people made airplanes for the war. "The type of airplane we made was rigged with pontoons in order to land on water."

George started his career there as a chaser where "our boss gave us the authority to get tools out of stores." Within six months, George had worked his way up to lead hand and eventually was made responsible for all stores.

"There were 18 stores in the plant and it took me a couple hours to go through and check them all."

Despite his glowing career, tragedy struck after he had been there 10 years. His three-year-old daughter was killed after being hit by a truck. "We were advised to move back to the country because my wife just wasn't able to deal with seeing the trucks all the time."

The LaFlammes moved to Avonmore "where I went to work on a farm with my wife's people." Within a short time, the family moved back to Cornwall and bought a little grocery store.

"I had that for two years and then I moved to Chesterville and bought a small store." He remained a grocer until he was 61 and retired.

His grocery was well-known in Chesterville as was George LaFlamme's kindness. "I really just did what I could because I remember what it was like to be in need."

At the time there were two other large grocery stores in Chesterville, but there was no competition. "There was Fulton's and Dick Casselmans, but we all did okay for business. Earl Cross had the butcher shop."

George's business was located in the building which currently houses the Cooperator's Insurance.

In those days, George was always on the street. As a councillor, Rotarian and member of the Knights of Columbus, his heart was in the community.

Despite his high profile, he was always a champion for the underdog, he says, "because I understood."

George says since he retired he has never looked back. "I was happy to sell the business to Mike Dean. He still lists me at Christmas as his number one employee," chuckles George. "I like Mike. He's a nice boy."

When George retired he walked out the door with only a pen. "I took one pen. That's all I wanted as a souvenir."

Life today is a lot more quiet for George and his second wife of 31 years, Adele. Although the couple travelled extensively throughout the world during the early years of retirement, with the later years came illness.

However, George is quite comfortable with discussing the Parkinson's Disease which has greatly affected his speech and balance. "I'm not able to travel like I used to," but he gets around home with the aid of his new wheels, he chuckles. George's "bike" is actually a modern form of a walker with wheels, a basket and brakes. "It's a great thing."

He explains the illness has limited him in his perception of distance and mobility as well, but "nothing has really stopped me."

As he pats his cherished dog, Pitue, George supposes his morale is good. "I enjoy reading and spending time with Pitue and this morning I was out for a walk with my wheels."

George was diagnosed at 72 and in the last eight years he has come to accept his illness with dignity and a positive outlook. "I had to give up my licence," which was for the best, he explains, because of his reflexes. "I didn't expect that, but it was better than an accident."

He chuckles as he says his wife, Adele, "has reneged on me by giving up her licence too." With the help of "wonderful" children, he adds, he is never stuck.

As the years roll along, George realizes life has been good to him. "I enjoy living here." Chesterville has enjoyed George too.

Melissa! — by Melissa Batchilder

Yippee! Yahoola! It's winter carnival time in Chester-city! Why am I so excited? Hell, anything to look forward to this time of year gets me excited.

Seriously, I'm so happy to have made it through January without a mental meltdown that I'm ready to celebrate. That's right Poppa, I'm mentally fit for another year! Doesn't that excite ya?!

It should excite him. I mean really, when I spoke to him on the phone the other day these were his questions. Are ya still not smokin'? Are ya still dietin'? Are ya still goin' to the gym? Do ya still have all of your mental faculties about ya?

What a guy eh? I think he was disappointed when I responded yes to the last question. He said he had waited for the call (you know the "I'm losing my mind cause it's January and I ain't got no money" call) all month. What a turkey he is. Ah, my dear poppa, as I write this column there are still 24 hours left in the month and I can feel the ole cheese beginnin' to slip off my cracker. Beware! (I'll call collect for sure.)

I was out to sit in on yet another wild and crazy council meeting in Winchester Township Monday night. Ya gotta love it when people treat ya with such great respect that you're made to make your own photocopies.

C'mon Nancy, you clerk you, I thought that's why YOU were makin' the big bucks. Perhaps Michelle here at d'Record could show you how to make a good photocopy or use the fax machine. She's such a good little secretary.

Oh well, things are gonna change when I become reeve of Winchester Township in 1997!

Now I must send greetings to Kevin Coyne in the Perth-area. Someday we shall meet my friend. Then you can see what I'm like in real life! P.S. It's good to know that I have such a world-wide audience. Move over Oprah!

Yet another new shop has arrived in Chester-city. Wooden Nickel Antiques is an absolute pleasure to tour through. I'm serious. I could spend hours in there along with a whack of money. Now don't get me wrong, the prices are the most reasonable for antiques I've ever seen anywhere.

It's just that I want everything in the store in my home. I know I don't have any idea what I would do with a speckled bed-pan, but I'm sure I could make some use of it. Couldn't one place dried flowers in it or something and hang it one the wall? Anyways, ya really should drop by cause along with antiques, there are beautiful dried flowers and dried flower arrangements for sale there. It's located across from the Co-op.

Now before I segue into my next bit of heavy-duty investigative journalism, I think it's time to repeat a few things from the first column I wrote for d'Record, way back when.

This column is made up of issues, people, businesses or occurrences I choose to write about. Usually, they are ones that strike me in a special or unusual fashion. If someone is particularly nice or rotten as I go about my daily business, then I may just choose to write about them. The nice ones always get mentioned, but the same can't be said for the rotten ones.

You see, it's too much of a hassle sometimes to write about the rotten things taking place. I don't have the ambition or desire to deal with rotten issues or people, because it comes back on me. You know how it is. I write about someone being rotten and that person gets all offended. (I know. I know. They shouldn't be.) So, I try to stick to the good things in life. I like funny stories about funny people.

I also like to make note of the good things in life. I'll admit, I'm a real champion of causes and a soldier for the underdog. That's just me I guess.

Now granted too, if I get ticked off about something in a big way, you'll hear about it. I've never been known to keep quiet for long.

Let me also point out that this column has nothing to do with advertising. What it has to do with is people or things they care about. If I wanna write about Mike Dean's then it's because he has a fine bunch of people working there and I think they deserve notice. The same goes for the Second Hand Shop or Farmer Di's or the Heritage Cafe. A business is a business is a business. But, it's the people behind the counter who make it something special.

I've been in most every shop on the go since I came here. Naturally, those who work in them wouldn't know me from a whole in the wall. That's my advantage. If someone was nice to me or did something noteworthy without thinking it might appear in this column, then he or she is to be commended.

Not only have I been in Chester-city checking out the lifestyles of the rich and famous. I've made my way to Finch, (one of the most wonderful places I know,) Berwick, (it reminds me of a mini-city,) Crysler, (the folks were grand), Williamsburg, (a marvellous township hall,) Morrisburg, (great shopping) and all parts in between. That's the readership area along with a number of other spots. So I'll write about whatever I want whenever I want in this space as long as it's within our readership boundaries.

Why am I nattering on endlessly in hopes of explaining this column...who knows? It fills space. Seriously, since I started writing I've gone on and sometimes on forever yakkin' about whatever I want. Now that I know a few of yous out there actually read this space each week, I thought I should retrace a few steps in case ya missed it in my first column.

Something else I've been asked to repeat is the pronunciation of me name. It's actually pronounced like bachelor. Dat's the way they say it on d'oisland anyways.

And where exactly is d'oisland? Well it's the one the only, land of my birth, Prince Edward Island. D'oisland is actually pronounced d'oiland for you remedial folks who couldn't figure that one out. There is a little oisland that I long there to be. Prince Edward Island is heaven to me. (Of course, Chesterville is too!)

Ya know, the backseat of my car is really beginnin' to gross me out. Seriously, I hope that by bringin' this up that a sorta "fairy garbage mother" will take it upon him or herself to break into my car sometime and clean it for me. I'll even leave the doors open.

Really, I thought someone stole a camera out of it once. (Don't worry Robin. It wasn't a company camera.) Needless, to say the camera was just buried under the clothes, books, coffee cups, potatoes, footwear and countless other disgusting items I won't bring to your attention.

I don't even get embarrassed about it. When I have a passenger in the backseat, I just tell him or her to push the stuff over or sit on it. Most often their feet don't even come close to touching the floor for the junk on it. Usually, the backseat passenger's feet are hanging over the frontseat passenger's shoulders!

The guy in the frontseat isn't much better off. He's usually sitting half on the console with his feet out the window. Damn, I hate when that happens in the winter. And there I am, just drivin' along...no problem. Sometimes, I have to kick kitchen utensils from under my feet or the odd time an object, (like a hairbrush or something) will actually stop the gas pedal from moving. Then I have to get out and clean out my foot space. That's it though. Then I'm off.

Rev. Eric Swensson Rosenquist

The Reverend Eric Swensson Rosenquist, a resident of the Morrisburg area for the past 24 years, passed away quietly at Winchester Hospital on Sunday, January 22, 1995. His life of more than 91 years included some childhood sorrow, but also happiness in Christian service as a Lutheran minister for 41 years.

Eric was born on October 19, 1903, in Viersen, Germany, the flower capital of Westphalia. His father died when Eric was three, his mother when he was nine. He and his brother and sister were then raised in an orphanage in Godesberg, Germany, where they received elementary school and trades training. Eric became a journeyman cabinetmaker, but recurring lung infections caused him to change careers; in 1923 he began theological training at the Rhenisch Mission in Barmen, Germany. After three years there, he followed several colleagues to Canada, to serve German speaking settlers in the western provinces.

On his way to further studies at the Lutheran Seminary in Saskatoon, he visited at the home of Pastor Martin Ruccius, one of the pioneers of the Lutheran Church in western Canada. There he met his future wife, Johanna, and their courtship continued mainly by correspondence for almost three years. After his ordination in June, 1929, and assignment as "circuit preacher" to small rural parishes surrounding Winnipeg, Eric and Johanna were married on September 10, 1929, in Trinity Lutheran Church, Winnipeg. In late 1930, Pastor Rosenquist accepted a call to Bethany, a larger rural parish at Freefield, near Inglis, Manitoba. It was a challenging assignment for the 27 year old newcomer, but with energy, dedication and prayers, the parish prospered through the Depression and into the years of WW II. Now learning to preach in English, Pastor Rosenquist served both God and country.

In 1944, Reverend and Mrs. Rosenquist, now with five children, moved to Edenwold, Saskatchewan, where he served the congregations of St. John and St. Paul. He felt rewarded in his work with young people, including confirmation instruction, and the development of a church camp at Lake Katepwa. With his usual thoroughness he also continued as Synod Statistician, for more than a decade.

From 1954 to 1960, Pastor Rosenquist served the Beausejour, Green Bay, Golden Bay parish in eastern Manitoba.

For the next ten years, Reverend Rosenquist served the semi-rural parish at Ellerslie, Alberta, just south of Edmonton. It was just one congregation, large and active, with pride in its farm area history, but open to new immigrants and suburbanites.

Eric Rosenquist, beloved husband of Johanna, was dear father of five children: Erica (Mrs. Ernest Steiner) of Delta, British Columbia, Walter (Adeline) of Ottawa, Jo (Mrs. Dale Leflar) of Bengough, Saskatchewan, Gerry (Lois) of Morrisburg, and Carl (Yvonne) of Acton, Ontario. He is survived by a sister, Martha, of Barmen, Germany, predeceased by a brother, Oskar. Sadly missed by 16 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren. Lovingly remembered by numerous in- laws, nieces and nephews.

A memorial service will be held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Morrisburg, on Sunday, February 19, 1995, at 3 p.m.

Memorial donations can be made to the Rosenquist Endowment Fund by calling the Marsden and McLaughlin Funeral Home, Williamsburg (535- 2339).

FINCH - The North Dundas Raptors went home as the 'A' Pool champions after posting three victories in last Saturday's Novice 'C' House tournament held at the Finch Arena.

Raptor Bradley Switch led his team to all three wins netting a total of six goals and three assists.

The Raptors doubled the North Dundas Demons 6-3 in their contest. Switch fired in the hat trick and pitched in a helper while teammate Scott Bradley dumped in two of his own goals. Scott Smail rounded out the 6-3 score with a single.

In the last eight seconds of the second period Scott Bradley brought his Raptors within one of the Braves for a 2-1 game.

Raptor goalie Derek Kelly shut the Braves out in the third period while wingers Switch and Darrell Moore scored singles for the 3-2 upset.

Annable's Jewellery posts second win of season

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

WINCHESTER - Sports Unlimited solidified their first place standing with a 3-1 win over the Country Girls in last Sunday's WDLHL action.

Nancy McDiarmid netted two unassisted goals in the opening period to give Sports Unlimited a 2-0 lead. McDiarmid also leads the league in total points with 28.

The Double Beauty squad jumped ahead to an early lead in the first period, scoring twice within one minute.

Kim McDermid netted the Beauty's first goal on a pass from teammate Shannon O'-Reily. 50 seconds later O'Reily drove to the net alone for the 2-1 lead over Annable's.

The Classics came back late in the opening period with goals from Deanna VanLoon and Terry Hoy. Jane Hendrix pitched in on both goals while Cathy Little gave Hoy a hand.

After the opening period of play the Kamikazes jumped ahead to a 5-2 lead.

Cougars end hopes of playoff spot for Express

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

FINCH - It's a battle for a playoff spot that will go on until the very end of the season.

The North Stormont Express dropped two more this past weekend, putting them three points behind Russell and four points under Vankleek Hill.

The Cougars earned themselves another two points last Thursday night when they defeated the Express in the dying minutes of the contest.

Throughout the 1994-95 EOJCHL season the league has been divided in two.

The top four teams have all had their turn at the top while the bottom three, Russell, Vankleek Hill and North Stormont have all spent time bringing up the rear.

Although North Stormont has sat in fifth spot all season and then dropped to the bottom in the past couple of weeks, Express head coach Peter DeRooy believes he has the better of the three teams.

"As far as I'm concerned we're a better team than Russell and Vankleek Hill," he added, "the reason we're in the predicament we're in now is since January 10 (1995) our line-up has been depleted and we're not going to win anything that way."

The Express, however, gave the Vankleek Hill Cougars a good fight before going down in the last two minutes of the game.

Vankleek Hill's winning goal came on a shot from Sebastien Tessier who fired the puck high into the Express's zone from the blue-line. The puck then ran along the top of the glass, bounced on top of Express goalie Andrew Barton's net and into the crease. A goal which can never be fully believed until viewed.

Penalties proved to be the Express's enemy once again as they gave up three power play goals.

The game had a slow start. Both teams skated casually up and down the ice, taking few shots. Barton stopped nine shots while Cougar goalie Marc Fredette blocked six.

The second period started in the same slow, liesurely manner until the Cougars turned on the speed and aggression.

Francis Briere answered back at 11:07 on the clock with help from Chris Leroux and Matt Moore.

With 9:19 on the clock the Express themselves down two men, Tyson Chadwick and Jamie Cooper, and unable to stop the five-on-three Cougar rush.

With Chadwick and Cooper still sitting in the box, teammate Chris Eastman scored his first goal since joining the Express a few weeks ago. Eastman scored the short-handed goal on a feed from defencemen Pat Cadieux and Lance Ouderkirk.

North Stormont tied the game up at 5:57 of the second period on an unassisted goal by Briere.

Two minutes later Cadieux stuffed in his own rebound for a 4-3 lead. Leroux and Briere assisted.

The tables were quickly turned as the Express found themselves down a man on two quick Vankleek Hill goals which knotted the score up at 5-5.

As Jamie Cooper served the final of his seven penalties he racked up throughout the game, Julian Benoit and Briere teamed up for Leroux's second goal of the night and a 6-5 lead.

Express goalie Andrew Barton faced 38 shots while Cougar goalie Marc Fredette saw 32.

With a strong hold on last place, North Stormont travelled to Rockland to face-off against the first place Nats last Sunday night.

From the opening face-off the Express knew they had their work cut out for themselves. The Nats came on strong, taking numerous shots and cashing in on many of them.

After one period of puck chasing, the Express found themselves down 3-1. The Nats scored two early short-handed goals before John Hammel and Pat Cadieux teamed up for Francis Briere's only goal of the game at 14:53 of the opening period.

North Stormont netminder Chris Land was unable to stop four of the shots that came his way in the second period.

Foreign face-off

Poland-bound Rapids end season in a flourish

MAXVILLE - Unflustered by the need to fast-track their regular season schedule in preparation for their journey to Poland and the Czech Republic, the Seaway Valley 'AA' Major Bantam Rapids won two of their last four games securing a comfortable playoff spot with a resounding 7-0 whitewash over Ottawa West.

This and the Rapids' 4-1 victory over Rideau-St.Lawrence made up for earlier 4-1 and 4-0 losses to Gatineau and Ottawa Valley respectively.

Defencemen Kevin Wright, whose personal stats weigh more heavily in the assists and PIM columns, registered his first two goals of the year in the very last game.

Also tallying against Ottawa West were Steph Loyer, Yves Ruest, Kent McDonell, Kurt Macdonald and affiliate Christian Cadieux. The shutout off-set netminder Gerry Goulet's setback against Ottawa Valley four days earlier.

Ruest opened and closed the scoring against Rideau-St. Lawrence, bracketing Miguel Lafleche and Loyer's single goals.

Between the pipes, Shawn Martelock relished the opportunity to wipe out his earlier trip to Gatineau.

The Seaway Valley team ends the regular season with 40 points and a 19-12-2 record which is good enough for third spot in the Ottawa District Minor Hockey League 'AA' Division standings.

Express's season almost over

Chris Leroux and Tommy Cooper with 17:19 left in the second period.

Briere and Benoit teamed up for a Hammel goal and a score of 7-3 after two periods.

Chris Land only let in one goal in between the pipes during the third period for a final score of 8-3.

The North Stormont Express have only six games left in the season, all of which are against the toughest teams in the league.

DeRooy, however, is confident his team can pull off the two neccessary upsets needed in order to garner themselves a playoff spot.

"If we have all our players out that are carded, we are just as good as any team in the league."

"If we can't win two of those six games then we don't deserve to be in (the playoffs).

North Stormont's next game is against the Embrun 72s Thursday, February 2 at 8 p.m.at the Finch arena.

Tae Kwon Do - for self discipline, not school yard brawls

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

MOREWOOD - Self confidence and self defence are the two main focuses at the Morewood Tae Kwon Do school.

"It's self discipline mentally because of the concentration. It also helps to build confidence, especially for the kids," explained instructor Sylvie Connelly at a recent demonstration held at the school.

Three years ago the Tae Kwon Do school opened its doors to the community in hopes of giving the children a physical challenge in a structured learning environment.

"It's here so the children don't have to do the big travel into Ottawa. They would end up missing a lot of classes, especially in the winter," noted instructor Lu Teege.

Teege also insists what is taught in classes is not to be used in any other capacity than self-defence.

"This is strictly a self defence art, not a school yard bully art," he said.

Students at the Morewood school begin their mental and physical training as early as three years old and eventual perfection is not a requirement.

"We just want them to try," added Teege, "If the child feels they can't do anything...Through trying they'll eventually get it...There are a lot of black belts who still can't do some things perfectly and that's ok." Teege also contends the willingness to try will lead to a mastering of this Korean art form.

"Flexability comes with training," added Teege, "you work within your limitations and as your body adapts your ability changes."

Dancin' fools

Sitting on the sidelines

With Sandy with a Y

Memories of years gone way by came flooding back to me as I watched some tiny tots take their ballet class last week.

Yes, it is true. My athletic vocation was not ice hockey, and those who have watched me play can attest to that. It was dance.

Ever since I was a wee thing I remember being dragged to dance classes, day in and day out, and then dragged to shows around this wonderful province.

20 years later, I still drag myself to the odd dance class but I've given up the glamourous theatrical life for the sweaty locker room.

Yes, this old relic has officially hung up the tights and dance shoes for a less taxing sport - hockey.

By now you may have figured out I kinda like hockey. Thank goodness the NHL is back on TV. Now I have legitimate excuses for my pathetic social life - 'I can't go out, the game's on.' I do have one gripe about it though - Global doesn't carry any Leafs' games! 'Ottawa black-out in effect' has come across my TV a few too many times this weekend. Do people out here really hate them so much that they've managed to get them off the TV?

Anyway, back to me...

Little did I know the game of ball hockey drastically changed once you put those 1/4" wide blades on your feet.

But I must toot my own horn and say I'm doing alright.

Admittedly I have no points but I haven't seriously injured myself or anybody else on the ice during a game, so that's ok. I also have no penalty minutes which is another plus.

I must say I think I would have one heck of a slap shot if I could just learn how to stand up while shooting. I think balance while shooting has something to do with that cute little leg lift players do when they shoot.
