Briefly

Week marked

CORNWALL - This week is being recognized as Canadian Foster Family Week by the Ontario Children's Aid Societies. Recognition of these families is extremely important during this, the Year of the Family. Events will be held throughout SD&G to recognize the contributions of foster parents.

SPARTA forums

MAPLE RIDGE - A community forum will take place Oct.29 at North Dundas District High School as a part of the SPARTA project to receive valuable input from citizens towards an eventual strategic plan in economic, social and cultural development. Citizens interested in attending the event should register in advance by calling collect 933-8030.

Luncheon marks harvest season

INGLESIDE — St. Matthew's Presbyterian Church in Ingleside welcomes visitors to its Harvest Luncheon and Bazaar. The event, to be held at the church Saturday, October 22 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., features a candy table and crafts.

Fruit for sale

INGLESIDE — The Rothwell-Osnabruck Band and Choir will be selling Florida citrus fruit until Nov. 7. Orders for navel oranges, grapefruit or tangelos can be placed with students or by calling the school Monday to Thursday between 12:15 p.m. to 1:00 p.m. or 3:15 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. at 537-2464.

Minister to speak

CHESTERVILLE — Reverend Ron Hubbeard will be speaking at Nationside Pentecostal Church Oct. 23 - 26. His itinerate ministry has been singing and preaching in churches across Ontario this year. Services will be held Oct. 23 at 10:00 a.m., 11:00 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. As well, he will be ministering Oct. 24, 25 and 26 at 7:30 p.m.

Tools extracted from excavator

Crime Stoppers this week is asking for the public's assistance in solving a break and enter at J & M Excavating and Snow Removal on Chess Road in Matilda Township Sept. 2 or 3. Thieves gained entry by prying open the main front door with a crowbar. Once inside, they stole Black & Decker tools including a jigsaw, skil saw, half-inch drill, and other items including a table saw, 18 tubes of silicone and a hammer. The total value of the stolen items is $900. If you have any information on this or any crime, call Crime Stoppers toll-free at 1-800-265-TIPS. If your tip leads to an arrest, you may qualify for a cash reward of up to $1,000. You do not have to reveal your identity to help solve a crime.

Village council race draws four candidates

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — The race for council seats in Chesterville is shaping up like a game of musical chairs — four players, three spots.

Seeking council seats in the village are incumbent Peter Van Kessel and newcomers Sharon Casselman, Gail Parker and Frank Heerkens.

Incumbent Reeve Cook and incumbent deputy-reeve Shirley Coons appear headed for acclamation, as neither race drew an opponent.

Current councillor Roger Cole announced last onth that he would not seek re-election, and councillor Martin Derks did not enter the race.

Van Kessel, seeking his third term as a councillor, says his experience is a strong asset, and says he wants to continue to be involved with village projects already started, such as the revitalization plan.

A home builder and developer, Van Kessel says the elected council needs to begin planning for the future, especially in working toward conditions that will attract industry to town.

"I believe in Chesterville, for the good of Chesterville, not necessarily for today but for tomorrow, also," he says.

"We have to plan in advance, for the future of us and our kids."

Van Kessel says a municipality that sees no development is going backwards, while other communities are gaining. He says he would like to see some residential development, but only where water and sewer facilities are in place.

Gail Parker

Sharon Casselman

Sharon Casselman says that while she has much to learn about village politics, she is keen on the beautification plan and recreation.

Casselman points to a long list of local groups in which she has been involved, including Cubs, the Fraternal Hall Association and Winter Carnival Committee. She is also president of the Ladies' Fire Auxiliary and a 35-year Rebekah Lodge member.

"I've lived in Chesterville 44 years, I've raised my children in Chesterville, I'm now partially raising my grandchildren in Chesterville, I've been active in I think almost every organization in the village and I feel like I'm a part of Chesterville."

The village's parks are a "big plus" to the area, she says, and the beautification plan will further enhance its look. But Casselman also says the village needs to attract industry, to ensure it is always more than a bedroom community for the larger centres.

"To me, Chesterville has more than that to give."

Casselman also says she wanted to run so there would be an election in the village, unlike in 1991 when all five members were acclaimed.

"It's been a long time since we had an election in the village. I think this is good. I wish there would have been about 10 more (candidates)."

And she adds that her candidacy is an example to others that the average citizen can get involved in municipal politics.

Gail Parker is also a newcomer to politics, and is following in the footsteps of her father, Glenn Cunningham, who served Williamsburg Township for 13 years.

Parker, describing herself as a "people's person," cites that she has been active in the community for 26 years, and that her participation in groups like Children of the Church, Brownies, Guides, the Ladies' Fire Auxiliary and Chesterville and District Agricultural Society is the focal point in her life.

A dental office manager and dental assistant, Parker has also worked in banking and accounting and for the MTO's Licensing Bureau.

Parker says she hopes to "have the opportunity to be able to provide fair representation of village interests on council" in areas like economic development, the revitalization project and the village's reputation in the region. She also says she would like to encourage council to strengthen community involvement.

And she says she has proven leadership and teamwork abilities, and is open to listen to the concerns of others.

Frank Heerkens says he wants to use his expertise in electricity on the village's Hydro Commission, made up of elected council members.

Part owner of electrical contractor Dundas Power Line, the Nationview Service Centre and Heritage Cable Inc., Heerkens is also a developer.

He said he felt it was a good time to run for council, to "learn the ropes and present some of my views."

Heerkens says he would like to see the Hydro Commission set a list of policies for developers, renters and tenants in areas where policies are not currently in writing.

Bingo call deferred

MAPLE RIDGE — Those concerned over the proposal to construct a large bingo hall in Winchester Township can lay their fears to rest, for a while.

Council decided to shelve a land redesignation proposal by Edsel Byers until its town planner could reach an agreement with the property owner as to what the land should be used for.

Controversy arose around the issue after Byers made his intentions known to build a bingo hall.

A number of local service clubs voiced concerns at last month's council meeting that a large bingo hall would take business away from smaller non-profit bingos.

However, Byers assured, a larger bingo hall would only improve their fund-raising abilities.

The land in question is located just west of the municipal office on County Road 43. The nine-to-10-acre land package was formerly used as an

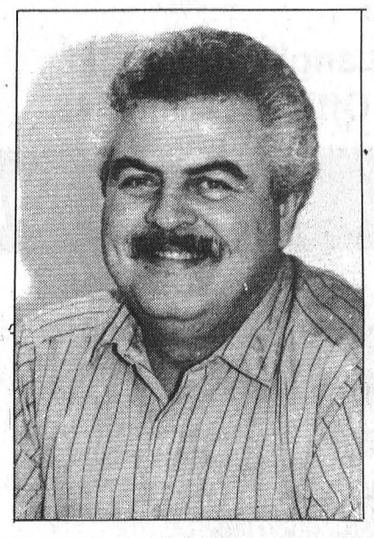
Township reeve contested, six vie for council seats



Cousineau: Incumbent

Melissa Batchilder
Record staff

MAPLE RIDGE — Claude Cousineau and Raymond Como will go head to head in a race for the reeve's seat in Winchester Township.

Como said he has been approached by many area farmers and businessmen and encouraged to run against Cousineau, who has been on council in various capacities for 15 years.

Despite his official involvement in municipal politics, Como says, he has been on the opposite side of the fence from council on a number of issues. "I have experience in many areas of farming, business and politics," he adds.

The 60-year-old farmer resides at RR2 Winchester and in addition to farming cash crops, operates an equipment sales business. "I am well acquainted with the issues in the township and know the ins and outs of drainage and roads," adds Como. "I feel I am the best one for the job."

Como says he is concerned with roads, weed control on the roads, abandoned cars and a number of other issues which have arisen in the township periodically.

It is also extremely important to cut spending on equipment, he adds, and with his experience in this field he can offer great insight.

Cousineau expects to rely on his direct political experience throughout the campaign.

"My vast experience at the local and county level of politics is beneficial to me. It's all been quite an experience; the kind you can only gain through time," adds Cousineau.

Como: Challenger

Bingo bucks: The Morewood Firefighters' Association recently donated $600 from its first bi-weekly bingo to Winchester District Memorial Hospital. From the left are Claude Cousineau, Frank Merkley, president Tom MacGregor, Doug Carruthers, WDMH board member Ken Stewart, Capt. Milton Lacelle and Carl Hutchison. The bingos are held at Morewood's Community Hall the 2nd and 4th Saturday of each month at 1 p.m.

Council seats up for grabs

Melissa Batchilder
Record staff

BERWICK — Three council seats will be up for grabs in the upcoming Finch Township municipal election.

However, the seats for reeve and deputy-reeve will be sworn in for acclamation by current Reeve Floyd Dingwall and Deputy-reeve Archie Byers.

Those vying for council positions are Don P. Campbell, Fraser Ouderkirk, Parry Carruthers, Roger Ouimet and Ron Beaton.

Campbell, Carruthers and Ouiment previously announced their candidacy while Ouderkirk and Beaton only announced their intentions to seek office after filing their nomination papers Friday.

Ouderkirk, 43, says although this is his first- ever run for public office, he has a lot of offer.

As a construction worker, he adds, he is familiar with water and sewer and this is beneficial with regards to the current project in Crysler. The village is installing a new water and sewer system.

"It's right up my alley and there is a lot I could help out with."

Although there is nothing "really wrong" in the township, he says, he feels he could contribute many valuable assets if elected.

"I can see a few changes being made, which would be for the betterment of the municipality," he adds, but nothing drastic.

Ouderkirk adds the fact he has lived at RR1 Finch his entire life would add to the benefits he could offer the community.

Meanwhile incumbent Parry Carruthers says he is interested in completing some unfinished business and therefore has thrown his hat into the ring.

His concerns are primarily with completing the water and sewer project in Crysler as well, and keeping tases down. "Taxes are high enough here and I don't want to see them rise anymore."

The six-year veteran of municipal politics added he does not approve of the proposed development charge for new structures in the township and he would also like to see more low-cost housing.

Other candidates will be profiled un upcoming editions of the Record.

O'Connor, Kirkwood vie for seat

Melissa Batchilder
Record staff

MAPLE RIDGE — Tom Kirkwood and Sarsfield O'Connor will go head to head in a bid for SD&G public school board trustee in Winchester and Winchester Township.

When ballots are dropped Nov. 14 each hopes his name is the one marked the most.

Incumbent Kirkwood says he became very active in school board committees during his first three-year term and would like to continue his work.

"I also believe there is a strong need for active representation from the rural areas," Kirkwood adds.

As a youth counsellor for the Ottawa-Carleton Board of Education, he adds, he contributes a different perspective to the board. "I can offer an alternative because I work with these kids and know first-hand what the problems are."

In addition, he has children who attend local schools. "It is important to ensure all children in the system get the necessary programming for the future."

Kirkwood, 39, who has lived in the area all of his life, says he has a good understanding of what is needed and is prepared to work towards that.

Morewood's Sarsfield O'Connor is no stranger to the SD&G Public School Board either.

The former chairman is hoping to return to the board in an attempt to bring stronger representation out of Dundas County. O'Connor was earlier profiled in the Record.

Four enter council contest

He would be in a conflict of interest for hydro tendering, he admits, but says he wants to help the utility in general. Heerkens added that developers and businessmen, like himself, do not run for office to "line their pockets," but to advance the community in which they do their business.

Heerkens also admits to being outspoken: "Sometimes I say things that people aren't happy with, but I guess it's better that the truth be known. I'd rather be that way than not deal with the issue.

As a councillor, Heerkens says he would like to enhance Industrial Drive, and bring the road up to standard.

Candidates join fray

Deputy-reeve Wyman Barton will be acclaimed in his seat as no one is contesting this position.

However, council seats are up for grabs with six area residents vying for spots.

Randy Rankin, Robert Norris, Martin Schoones, John Douma, Ed Gibson and Brigitte Klepy will all be racing for three open seats.

Gibson, who earlier stated he would not be seeking re-election, is now the only council incumbent.

Newcomer to the area, Brigitte Klepy says, if elected, she hopes to add a "fresh" approach to council.

Having only resided in Morewood for four months, she says it is important to her to participate in the township's growing future.

"It's a good way to meet people and discover the features offered in the township."

The 28-year-old school bus driver is making her debut in politics in hopes of offering a new perspective, she adds.

Other candidates will be profiled in upcoming editions of the Record.

agriculture and farm equipment dealership.

Currently zoned as agriculture to light industrial, Byers would like to see it redesignated into commercial in order to renovate the building which sits on the land.

In accordance with Byers's plans, the building would provide uses as a bingo hall, miniature storage and warehouse, two office buildings and a recreation facility.

Members of council agreed the matter should be looked at closely before any decisions are made and will now consult with the town planner before moving on any further.

Osnabruck race draws 11 candidates

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

OSNABRUCK CENTRE — The word acclamation will not be used in Osnabruck Township in this municipal election, with 11 names crowded onto the ballots.

Three candidates are seeking the reeveship, two are seeking the spot as deputy reeve and six have entered the race for the three council seats.

Incumbent Reeve Gordon Ross is joined on the ballot by former councillor Jim Bancroft and current deptuy-reeve Doug Leighton.

The two candidates for deputy reeve are no strangers to the township's business. Councillor Oscar Ouderkirk will compete against Bart Whitton.

Ouderkirk, who has served two non-consecutive terms as a councillor, says it's time for him to climb the municipal ladder, and that his experience on council is a strong asset.

"I think there comes a time after you've been there for seven years you should either move up or move out," Ouderkirk says, adding it creates an opportunity for new councillors with fresh faces and ideas.

He says he wants to work toward completion of Ingleside's sewer project, as well as the infrastructure projects planned by the township.

And he says when the Ingleside sewer project is complete, he will work toward attracting industry that will provide jobs for township residents.

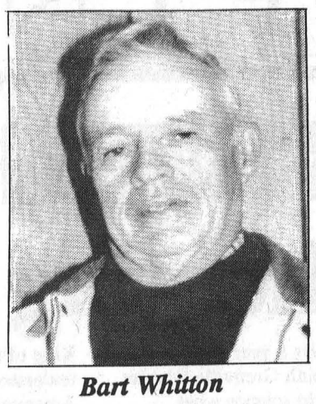
Ouderkirk says the Township's operation of Farran Park should be advanced, as should road conditions, while keeping fiscal restraint in mind.

Bart Whitton worked for the township for 18 years before retiring in January, most recently as water and sewer superintendent. He has also filled in as clerk and deputy clerk, secretary of the township's planning board and member of the committee of adjustment and health and safety committee. Before that, he worked with Ontario Hydro and the city of Cornwall. He also operates a 100-acre beef and cow farm.

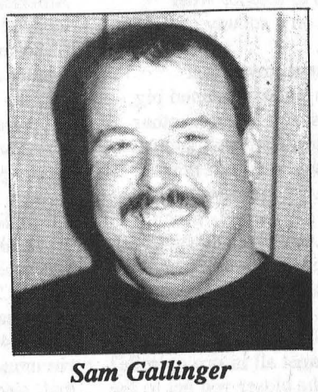
A Renfrew native who has lived in the township for 33 years, Whitton says he is interested in participating further in the fruition of Ingleside's $12-million joint water and sewer project with Kraft Foods, an endeavor he describes as "a monstrous project for a little community."

"I've been in on it all the way and I feel I'd like to finish the job," Whitton says, adding the township will be in an excellent position for development, with an anticipated 20-year capacity for services.

Whitton also says he is worried about "ideas" the provincial government gets, such as the new wetlands policy, that he feels do not suit rural areas.



Bart Whitton



Sam Gallinger

"There are decisions being made down there by non-rural people," he says. "Someone has got to start getting active and quiz those guys down there."

Seeking the three council seats are incumbents Fran Laflamme and Heine Bruining, along with newcomers Jim Moak of Newington, Anne Missons, Steven Middleton and Sam Gallinger.

Gallinger is a 28-year-old beef and dairy farmer who lives west of Osnabruck Centre. He has served on the township's Minor Variance Committee for a year, and says he finds municipal matters "very interesting."

Gallinger, who also drives a truck part-time and works in construction, says he wants to sit on council and learn the issues first-had, but says a priority would be looking into getting the same amount of services for less money. And he says because people with whom he's spoken complain that taxes are too high and should be studied.

The township's two Catholic school board candidates appear headed for acclamation. Crysler cash crop farmer Alphonse Lafrance is the only English and French candidate, and Peter Van Moorsel is the only English Language candidate.

The Public Board trustee seat is being contested by incumbent William Fleming and Ingleside's Diane Leighton.

Election candidates not yet profiled in the Record will be interviewed in the coming weeks before the election.

Trick or treat

Halloween is supposed to be a time when our kids can dress up, go door-to-door for treats and have fun. But it's no secret that Halloween in Chesterville can mean something different.

As in all stories about vandalism, it needs to be pointed out that it is but a small proportion of youth — and not all of whom are from the area — who take advantage of the event for mischief and destruction.

But those who do use the night as an excuse to rampage stand out like a sore thumb, and have sadly given Chesterville a reputation as the place to be for Halloween hijinks.

Year after year, the same plans to deter Halloween mischief are made by police and by village council, and year after year, vandalism happens. Some years, like 1991, are worse than others.

Most people would agree that the traditional Halloween pranks, like soaping windows and a moderate amount of egg-throwing are to be expected, or even tolerated, but that outright vandalism and destruction is too much.

But unless Chesterville as a community takes strong action to prevent Halloween vandalism, the message it sends is that it is tolerated.

Understandably, it's a busy night for police across the area, and they'll likely do what they can. The same is true for village employees and members of the fire department.

But something more is needed to prevent the possibility of a tragedy like 1991, when rock-throwing youths caused $10,000 damage to windows and signs in Chesterville.

Either the village, the Merchants' Association or the people of the community should organize some sort of patrol, the hiring of security guards or whatever it takes to make someone think twice before throwing a brick through an expensive storefront window.

Would it not be better to spend money or time as a community to prevent damage than to tour the streets the next morning and see who the unfortunate ones are who are cleaning up glass or signs and calling their insurance companies?

Would it not be worth it to do whatever is possible to save the village from its reputation as the place to be for Halloween mischief?

It's quite possible that we'll all wake up Nov. 1 to nothing more than a few egg shells or soapy windows. But it seems that it would be better to take a stand than to leave it up to chance.

Off The Record

Of deficits and shooting stars

By Robin Morris
Innumerate Editor

Aren't you more than just a little relieved to know that the universe isn't nearly as old as everyone had thought? Suddenly learning that the universe is only about five-billion years old, instead of the 15-billion everyone had been led to believe, makes joining an end of the world cult and moving to Switzerland, there to ponder the wonders of creation (like Ricola and la Vache qui Rit) and Einstein's Theory of Relativity (much of which was conceived during Bert's soujourn as a postal clerk in the Land of Numbered Bank Accounts and Never Ending Neutrality) more than just a little premature.

I know last week's announcement by a group of astronomers that there is no Black Hole at the centre of the Milky Way had me kicking up my heels for joy full in the knowledge that despite what the late Joe di Mambro told his crowd, we've got at least 10- or 15-billion years before the universe stops expanding and comes crashing back in on itself. Added to this is the safety valve of another five-billion years to account for the time we've frittered away since the Big Bang. That's almost enough time for Preston Manning to become bilingual.

It seems the star gazers have been able to determine, by measuring the color of light travelling from distant stars to some mountain top in South America, that, in astronomical terms, the universe is a mere pup. And not only that, but it isn't nearly as big as had been thought. Which leaves we with the question: if the universe is not infinitely large, what's on the other side of it? (You'll have to excuse my ignorance in these matters, since my only encounter with physics was a year with Doc Molnar in grade 11 at South Grenville District High School, which was to science what bumping into a stranger on a subway car is to personal relationships).

The problem with astronomy is that interstellar distances are just too damned big. Consider this: the nearest star to earth, other than our own sun, is Alpha Centauri, and it's 20-million light years away. And just how far is 20-million light years? Let's see now, light travels at 186,000 miles per second, which means you multiply 186,000 times 60 times 60 times 24 times 365.25, times 20-million, which is, according to my pocket calculator, pretty darned far.

So how can the Star Ship Enterprise zip around from planet to planet all in one episode? Einstein calculated that the closer you get to the speed of light, the more time slows down so that if you rocketed around the earth several times at the speed of a light particle, you'd be younger when you arrived than when you left. I've seen this phenomenon in action, only it had nothing to do with the speed of light. Several years back we went on a bus trip to an Expos' game, and many of our fellow travellers managed to duplicate Einstein's calculations, only they did it at 100k/ph with a 24 of Ex. When we arrived in Montreal they were 20 years younger than when we started. Is that how Captain Kirk did it? ("Scotty, fire 'er up to warp 14 and break out a couple of two-fours.")

Since our concept of time is tied to distance and the speed of light, even if we managed to nudge the throttle up a bit and made it Alpha Centauri in, say, 19-million light years, we'd arrive there at about the time that Arthur was King of the Britons, and, given the medieval understanding of technology, which is like an American's understanding of culture, how would we ever get back?

Scientists think of distances in the way finance ministers think of deficits. Paul Martin said the other day that Canada's current account deficit is in the neighborhood of $35-billion (not the accumulated deficit, which is like your mortgage, but the current account deficit, which is more like your Visa bill). How much is $35-billion?

Think of it this way: a Canadian banknote is six inches in length. The circumference of the earth is 25,000 miles, so if you started laying out a line of $20 bills at the equator, it would take 264-million of 'em for you to circumnavigate the globe (probably more than that, since a lot of them would float away in the watery bits between the continents, but hey, we're talkin' theoretical science here). The value of your line would be $5.28-billion, or just a shade over one-seventh of the amount Ottawa spends in addition to the amount it collects in taxes each year.

Boggled yet? Then think of it in terms a sports fan can grasp. Unless there are some big changes in the National Basketball Association, estimates are that Shaquille O'Neal's next contract could total as much as $100-million. So 35 Shaquille O'Neals would equal Canada's current account deficit and the distance from Alpha Centauri to the earth, expressed in NBA contracts, is only one-fifth of a Shaq Attack on the Orlando Magic's bank account.

Now if only we could get an NBA team in Ottawa.

THE FARMER'S WIFE'S

By Wyn Thompson

A crisis a day. Served up by the media. Last thing at night courtesy of Prime Time News. First thing in the morning via the radio at the head of the bed. To be digested like that first rush of caffeine.

About sums up people's lives!

"Small wonder we become cynical, numb, or worse, parochial in an attempt to escape it all," commented the Farmer as we watched the ten o'clock soap opera, "How the world goes to Hell minute by minute."

All courtesy of the technological advances of the 90s.

Technology is grand taken in small doses...I'm all for it. I love to know...I have an insatiable curiousity.

However, it is no longer chic to be well-groomed and well-spoken; one must now be a technological wizard. Free net, internet, voice mail, main frames (no, not unto the world but unto the computer screens).

"You're jealous the grandkids are away ahead of you," laughed the Farmer. That shut me up in a hurry, but he was at the International Plowing Match at Pembroke and declared it a technological wonder.

Bombarded technologically from sunup to sundown, my head swivels left to right at a dizzying speed. All one can hope to do is get an overview of this magical corner of the universe.

Actually, it was refreshing to attend the Writer's Guild of which I am a member, and hear Roy MacGregor say that a writer friend of his became so wrapped up in hi-tech equipment, literally and figuratively, that his writing suffered. The cure? A return to pencil and pad.

But, Highway 43 running past our door, reconstructed quickly this summer was thanks to Hi-tech knowledge. How different was the first approach to the paving of it. Or the laying of the first corduroy section by here a century ago!

"The removal of aggregate from the farm today is possible only by Hi-Tech advances," said the Farmer, "I remember the first attempt at opening a pit with a horse and scraper."

"No Hi-Tech for us, though," I replied, "we are canoeing the icy green waters in the man-made lakes once known as the Champlain Sea. No motors allowed and do the grandkids enjoy it."

As technology progresses (and progress it must says the astro-physics student in the family), I predict more and more people will occasionally seek out a country lane or quiet body of water.

It is the Indians 'Moon of the Falling Leaf.' Flaming colors still enrich lawns and fields and roadways.

The smell of autumn is in the earth, in the ripe apples and fresh apple juice. It is in the grape vines festooning the concession roads. The cessation of weed spraying has allowed the grape to return.

Autumn is in the clear pure air over country roads which wander deep in banks of dried ferns and blankets of fallen leaves.

Cold and as deliciously fragrant as a glass of good wine, the mornings sparkle as the sun falls across the frost-silvered fields.

The moon is full and as the frost creeps into the pasturelands, we take an evening stroll down the farm lane.

A dog howls. Another answers. Leaves drop in whispers. There is the snap of a twig.

A pair of eyes gleam in the distance, and disappear silently into the bush —a fox? a cat? a skunk? An owl's wings flap in the old white pine and we stop in surprise at this unusual sound.

In October the woods seem haunted. The creaking limbs, the scrunching leaves, the snapping twigs, the webs of spiders are surely the work of the little people of the woods.

A rabbit darts ahead of us in a panic. The Farmer recalls that witches were once said to turn themselves into hares, in order to work their evil spells.

Ah, the woods are truly haunted in October under a full moon. Thoughts of witches, and elves in October have filled the world with fear longer than anyone can recall with certainty. Today Prime Time News does it.

Yet, the season would not be complete without the association of witches and their following.

The light breeze becomes heavier and colder. I shiver. "Time to go home," says the Farmer turning immediately. I like to dally a bit!

Later, over coffee, we talk of the grandkids and their new beginnings in September. The oldest grandkid is in her third year at Toronto U and at last report is soldiering on.

The next two are laboring through High School, much less enthused over obtaining an education.

The fourth grandkid, just beginning his high school experience at North Dundas finds it, "Awesome, totally awesome," An accoustic guitar adds to the awesomeness, I am sure.

The fifth and last teeters on the brink of junior high, but is more interested in her voice lessons and new hair style, not necessarily in that order.

"Time for bed," says the Farmer drinking his last mouthful of coffee, and rising immediately. I like to dally a bit!

Women share friendship that spans generations

Melissa Batchilder
Record staff

Friendship...it's as simple as that. The relationship shared by Jean Rollo and Cheryl Harper can't be more simply defined. Despite, age, background and interests, the two women have battled the odds to nuture and develop a special kind of friendship.

Having met at a Long Sault nursing home where 98-year-old Jean lived and thirty-something Cheryl worked, the two "hit it off immediately," says Cheryl, "and we've been friends ever since."

At Cheryl's home in Morrisburg, the women share a cup of coffee and a chat. "She's my best pal," says Jean, as she pats a fluffy white kitten which has jumped up on her lap. "She's been awful good to me."

Cheryl insists the friendship runs both ways. "Jean is a wonderful friend. I have learned so much from her."

The younger of the two women is quick to highlight some of the things Jean has accomplished in her lifetime. "She travelled to Hawaii not very long ago," notes Cheryl.

"Ah, but that was disappointing. It was all so commercial," Jean adds still carrying a strong Scottish accent.

As a young girl, Jean left Edinburgh, Scotland "and came out here with a couple of others." Landing in Ottawa, she adds, she didn't travel much after that. "I lived there for most of my life."

Although she married an English man, Jean says, she continued to work in government offices in the city for years. "I got a good record from there too."

As a custodian, she was never without work and never wanted to be, she adds.

Now living at St. Lawrence Residence in Long Sault, she still keeps busy. "I've been there for more than four years. I moved in Jan. 3,1990 and I really like it."

Leaning forward on the kitchen table, Jean nods her head. "I'm an early riser too." That's an understatement, adds Cheryl.

Each day Jean rises at 2:00 a.m. or 3:00 a.m. "I sleep during the day. I can't sleep all night too!" Cheryl can attest to this. "For as long as I have known her she has kept those hours."

Having never had children of her own, Jean insists she is not without a family. "This is my adopted family," she says in reference to Cheryl's family. Jean leans over and takes Cheryl's hand. "She's my pal now," adds Jean.

Briefly Jean returns to the past. She remembers coming to Canada on a "big boat that was as slow as molasses. I could have swam here quicker." She could have, she adds, if she could swim. "I'd go to the bottom in a minute."

Jean's years have provided her with great wisdom. This is just one of the benefits to the friendship, says Cheryl.

Piping in quickly, Jean insists, "you have to try everything once, but I don't say you have to try everything a second time."

After having lived in Britannia, an Ottawa neighborhood, with her husband who worked on the railroad, for years, Jean's knowledge on many topics is unsurmountable.

"I like to always go to places and see things," says Jean.

It was only a short time ago that Cheryl and Jean visited the Museum of Man and Civilization. While there, adds Jean, she had a thrill of a lifetime.

As she explains the effects of watching a shark documentary at the Imax theatre, she squeals. "I really thought the sharks were going to bite me."

Now Jean has hopes of soon being able to see a film about the Titanic.

"I really love to be on the go. I have some good friends that are always willing to take me places. I love being in the car."

Cheryl grins as Jean speaks. "She is out a lot of the time. She can't stay in. She walks to the coffee shop in the plaza on days she isn't going away."

Part of the women's friendship, of course, includes holidays and special occasions. Jean is included in all family gatherings and just this Saturday, there was one held in her honor.

"It's my 98th birthday," she beams. "As long as I'm with Cheryl it will be good fun." The pair converses and decide a chocolate cake will be made to celebrate the day.

Cheryl explains her ease in the friendship she maintains with Jean is due in part to her love for the elderly. "I was a registered nursing assistant for 18 years and always worked with the elderly."

Now back in school studying to be a social worker, she is able to draw on her experience and her friendship with Jean to help her along. "It wasn't long ago that Jean helped me get an A on one of my papers."

Both women love to joke with each other, "and we have lots of good fun," says Jean.

Many afternoons each week, Jean makes her way to Cheryl's home for the company of a good friend.

When she isn't there, Jean can be found playing euchre or other games of cards.

"Everyone is good to me," adds Jean. "People are always willing to drive me where I need to go." Cornwall is one of her favorite spots to drive. "It's really lovely there."

Whatever is on Jean's mind comes out of her mouth. "If I'm thinking it, I might as well be saying it."

In light of that statement Jean insists it be noted the owners of her nursing home, the Brissons, are to be commended for the great job they do in providing homes for the aged. "They are very nice people and the staff is really good. It's small and there is a real personal touch. Everyone who works there is really friendly."

A relationship of this nature, explains Cheryl, can come easily if allowed. "Both people must be willing to forget the age barrier and just treat each other as human beings."

Often, however, younger people are intimidated by the elderly, Cheryl adds, when there is really nothing to be afraid of at all. "In this case, Jean makes it worthwhile because of who she is. I have learned so much from her."

It is important, says Cheryl, to realize those with more years are no different than anyone else and with help from the younger generation, "they should be able to live life to the fullest."

Jean and Cheryl have never had an argument, "because she does everything I tell her," chuckles Jean as she points to her friend.

Thinking for a moment of her birthday, Jean thinks aloud. "Now 98 years is a long time to have been around. I hope I'm here 100."

Noting her quick senses and physical abilities, Jean's face contorts. "I'm not dead yet!"

There are still a few things she has left to do, she adds. Fishing is something she hopes to do before long and perhaps she will.

Looking back at her life, there are many memories she could recall. Afterall she has lived through two world wars, countless historical events and thousands of changes in society. "There isn't a lot I have forgotten."

Nevertheless, Jean does remember one thing in particular from 1914. "It was the beginning of World War I and I remember the headline for the paper reading...War is Declared. Hell is let loose."

Cheryl listens intently to yet another piece of wisdom delivered as a result of their unique friendship.

Melissa! — by Melissa Batchilder

How much would your head weigh if it were made of cheese? What time does the 7:30 p.m. bus leave? What color is a red corvette? All dumb questions, right? Fine.

If you're so smart, then I want you to phone me up right now and tell me why cheese is so expensive. Really, I'm just so cheesed off, (oh, that pun was awful) that I can't afford one of my favorite foods. (That's one of a bijillion.)

Now Alvin Runnalls, agricultural expert at large, was able to fill me in on a few points. Cheese is solid and its food value is high. Buy $5 worth of smokes and $5 worth of cheese and see which keeps you alive longer.

Aren't you glad I picked such a worldly topic to start off with this week? Just wait until you read my next cry.

Anyways, I'm still looking for the ultimate logical answer as to why cheese, that's plain orange cheese, is so bleeping expensive.

To voice your opinions on this urgent matter, call 448-2321.

Will someone please bring me a pumpkin! Please, please, please bring me a pumpkin. Poor helpless being that I am simply doesn't know where to get one.

Okay, so what it comes down to is that I just don't want to have to pay for it. Now it's not because I'm poor or cheap. Oh no, folks, it's because of the principle.

I don't think we should have to pay for something that I'm not going to eat or wear. Isn't that a neat way of thinking?

Actually, I'm sorta gonna eat it, but it's not like I'm gonna make a pie or anything domestic like that. Oooh yuck! I just want the seeds. Actually, if you'd like to just bring me the seeds all washed off and everything, I'd really appreciate it cause then I wouldn't have to touch that gross and slimey stuff on the inside.

Well hey, if you're gonna be so kind as to bring me just the seeds, then maybe you could dry them off, chuck them in the oven with a wee bit of oil and salt and then bring them in. Now that, I'd really appreciate.

You see, we never had punkins on d'oisland cause we was d'poor folk. So as a child I was deprived of such delicacies as punkin seeds. It just happened that as I was wrappin' some fish in newspaper the other day, and I saw a little recipe for punkin seeds.

Well you see, I was so excited that I started jumpin' about and then slipped on the floor and hurt meself. Isn't that a tale of woe? Woncha pleeasse bring me a punkin?

On a more serious note, (yes folks I do have those from time to time,) my 10-year high school reunion is coming up this year. It's hard to believe it's been an entire decade of my life since we all walked across the stage and picked up our diplomas.

Somehow, it is more important to me than any other graduation prior to or afterwards. It was a time when dreams were wonders in our minds and never hardships. It was also a time when life seemed infinite.

Unfortunately, as each member of that small graduating class has learned since...life is not infinite, nor is it guaranteed. Having lost four members of that class to accidental deaths, I tend to believe we have all learned to appreciate our own lives and those of our families a bit more.

At this time, a decade ago, we all had dreams of our futures and we couldn't wait until the seasons passed, which would then allow us to spread our own wings. We were all going to fly. Many were leaving d'oisland, some would stay at home and take on their father's fishing fleet while others would prepare to harvest tobacco or potatoes. Of course, there were also those who were anxious to further their educations.

Looking back on those 10 years, I don't think many of us are where we thought we would be. It will be exciting to reunite with those we shared our initial visions of life with, and then it will be a sad and somewhat painful realization that four others with whom we began, won't be there to share in that reflection.

Regardless, I believe that each of us has grown during those years and are now capable of coping with life's tragedies and joys.

Occasionally, I have thought about not attending the reunion. I wasn't sure as to what the point was in gathering together people who don't know each other anymore. The friends I was close to in high school, I remain close to today. Really, why bother travelling thousands of kilometres to see people you don't know?

Then I realized that for myself and others, reuniting will provide an opportunity to reflect on the four classmates who won't be there. As I once read, "life is like a spinning leaf, blown along an endless street..."

******

There now. Don't go thinking I don't periodically have some deep thoughts. Sometimes, they're so deep that I think I'm drowning. Gurgle. Gurgle. Gurgle.

******

I want to know why the interest in upcoming municipal elections is so low. Get off your duffs folks and take an interest.

Honestly, we whine and complain about our governments and the first chance we're given to personnally do something about it in the form of an election, we run and hide. Shame. Shame. Shame.

In some places it doesn't even seem that there will be elections for seats as reeves and deputy-reeves. Men like Floyd Dingwall should be proud that his township thinks he's doing such a fine job that no one should oppose him. Hurray for Floyd!

******

I think I'm becoming addicted to Becker's. I really do. Everytime I walk by, it's like a magnetic force that pulls my legs toward the place. Really, sometimes I hafta hang on to the telephone pole to struggle against this force.

Then I give in and off I go wanderin' through Beckers to buy stuff that I don't need. Heart of all, I'm picking up stuff like expensive dish detergent, (me who has never picked up a dish in my life!), bubble gum, (great, now I have cankers,) Rice Krispie squares, (I don't even like them, in case you were thinkin' of bringin' me some) and two for a buck chocolate bars, (because they do wonders for me svelte figure and porcelain-like complexion.)

Nevertheless, I can't keep away from the place. I wonder what will happen in the winter, cause I hate putting my coat on and try to stay inside as much as possible for that very reason. Will I suffer withdrawal? Will I start to shake? Will I need therapy? Stay tuned.

Local artists showcase work

Liz Edwards
Special to the Record

MOREWOOD — Janet Whittam will have a chance to explain her behavior — the hours spent combing the woods and swamp, dragging out armfuls of branches or long heaps of grapevines. Her neighbours, people in the community, and other interested visitors are welcome to find out Oct. 22 and 23.

Whittam's home will be part of the area's studio tour for artists and craftspeople. Whittam is a weaver. With the materials from the woods she makes baskets. With yarns, she creates clothing and household lines.

Some people know what she does, but it's easier to explain it if she can actually show them. She and 15 other artists in the Russell-Embrun, Morewood and Finch area will allow voyeuristic curiosity that visitors may have about artists into their homes and workplaces to see them at their source.

In Whittam's case it's her white farmhouse east of Winchester with its upstairs studio, the looms, the yarn, where she turns her ideas into something artful if not practical as well.

"You know I meet people in the community, I see them over and over again. I know what they do but they don't really know what I do. I sell most of my work in Toronto," says Whittam.

"It's hard for me to explain. They know that I go to Toronto for a couple of weeks and go to these craft shows and things like that. It's not that I think I have this undue importance or anything like that. I just think people are curious, you know the country where people know each other more than they do in the city."

It's a casual tour, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days. The group has drawn up a map with a brief description of each of the artists and their work. Visitors can pick and choose as they like but Whittam urges them to also look at an artform they know nothing about. They might like what they see. Or they could quite likely see them all.

"In this kind of community artists are scattered around the landscape. It's a little spread out but it's very possible to do it all in one day," she says.

Studio tour signs will help mark out the sites which will also be identified with purple and green balloons. It is the second studio tour this year. The first was held in spring and also incorporated local gardens.

Approximately 300 came to the first. Whittam says she would like a bigger turnout and would like to make the two tours yearly events — a tradition like Russell's Autumn in the Country art exhibit but more casual.

"I feel like the two things complement each other, you know, because Autumn in the Country is a really beautiful show. It has a very special atmosphere," explains Whittam.

"I think that people who participate in it really have created something very special. But it's a very polished, finished kind of art show. In this we will be displaying our work but it's more going behind the scenes."

Some of the feature artists will include Carolyn Dey of Morewood who is known in the area for her artistic jackets and vests and Janet Keefe of Williamstown who makes pottery in the Japanese Raku style. Simon Koo of Embrun, a former mechanical engineer, will display his unique style of oil painting which is neither abstract nor realistic but has a touch of his technical side.

In some cases, a few artists will combine their displays at one location for the ease of visitors. There is no fee for the tour but artwork and crafts will be for sale. However Whittam, whose main market for her crafts is in Toronto, says she started the tour as a way to promote the artists in their own hometowns.

Brochures, which include the map and a brief outline of each of the artists, is available at Clara's Dressmaking and Tailoring on Main St. in Winchester and Mike Dean's in Chesterville.

Tower power
Cruickshank Construction workers joined Finch Township council and Kostuch Engineering members at the site of preliminary digging for water and sewer services in Crysler Thursday. Reeve Floyd Dingwall stressed that the 169-foot water tower, in the background, will bear the name of the hamlet.

Tower will take hamlet's name

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CRYSLER — If there's one thing to signify that Crysler's long-awaited water and sewer project is being built, it's the brand-new, 169-foot water tower in the east end of the village.

And on that tower, says reeve Floyd Dingwall, will be the word 'Crysler' — not Township of Finch.

Dingwall joined council members Thursday to watch preliminary excavation on County Road 13 for water and sewer services, and to quash rumors about the name that will eventually appear on the tower.

He said he has received calls from concerned Crysler residents, worried that the name of the hamlet would not appear on the tower.

"It never was thought of to put Township of Finch," Dingwall said Thursday. The head of the tower, now bearing only a coat of primer, will sport the name Crysler on the east and west sides. A Township of Finch Logo, hopefully in full color, will be painted on the south side.

The $700,000 tower was built by Landmark Inc. of Burlington, and is reported to be one of the tallest in Ontario. It is but one of six parts of the water and sewer project, expected to be finished by November 1995 and ready for use shortly afterward.

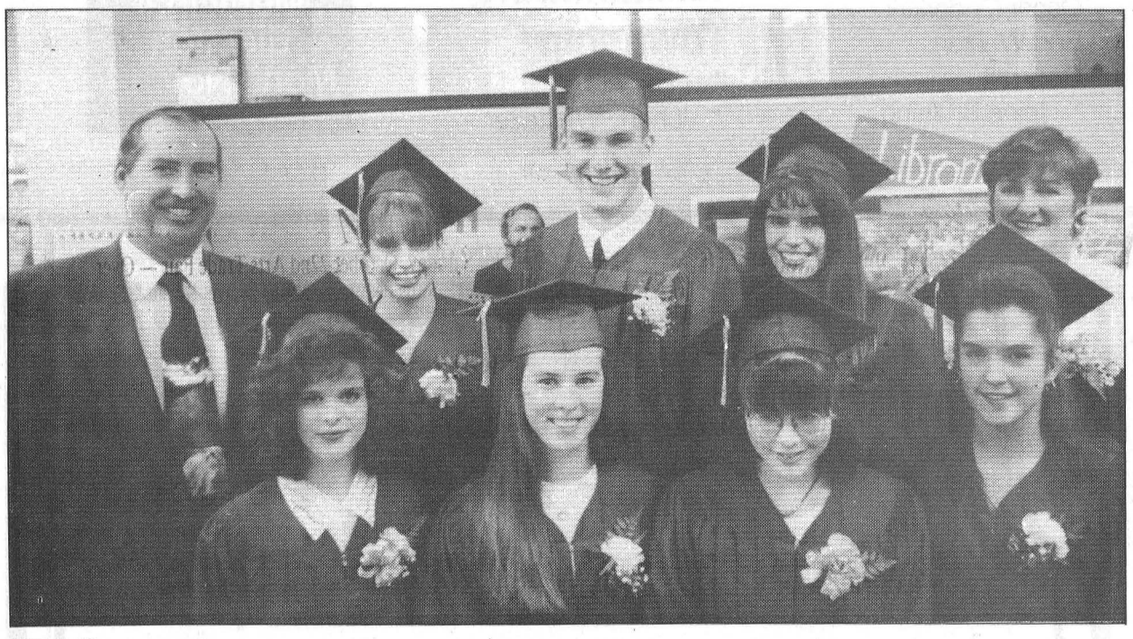
Project engineer Jim Johnston, of Kostuch Engineering, said the project overall is coming along well.

Dingwall added that he suspects Crysler residents will tolerate the road construction, knowing that it is necessary for water and sewer services and glad to see the project finally underway.

The road work and laying of pipe is expected to be completed before Christmas.

Deputy-reeve Archie Byers noted that the project is the culmination of many hours of meetings between the township, engineers and provincial officials.

"I feel that the village is very excited about it because I understand there are water problems around here."



R-O grads return

Morrisburg OPP report

MORRISBURG — A Matilda Township woman has been charged with failing to drive in a marked lane after an accident she was involved in Oct. 7 resulted in the write-off of her vehicle.

Laurie Day was travelling north on Carman Road when she lost control while maneuvring through the curves in Hainsville.

The vehicle passed into the south bound lane onto a lawn, rolled over and hit the Schench residence.

Day received minor injuries.

Morrisburg OPP seized $10,000 worth of marijuana from a Williamsburg Township residence Oct. 9.

Charges are pending after a search of the residence was made with the aid of a search warrant at the residence.

Officers seized 1,640 grams of the drug.

Two recent break-ins in Williamsburg Township appear to be related.

More than $5000 worth of electronic equipment was stolen from the Williamsburg Township office Oct. 16. At about the same time, Timothy Christian School on County Road 18 was broken into and $4,000 worth of the same type of equipment was taken.

Two male suspects are being sought for questioning with regards to this incident.

Williamsburg man killed on highway

Police say victim was trying to flag down passing cars

Record Staff

INGLESIDE — A Williamsburg man was killed instantly Sunday night after being struck by a car on Hwy. 2 near Ingleside.

Shortly before 9:30 p.m., 46-year-old Daniel Pope got into a truck with three other men.

Pope and a friend then argued with the two other men in the truck and left on foot, said Long Sault OPP Cst. Joel Doiron.

Pope was walking on the road in an attempt to flag down passing cars when he was struck by a 1984 Chevrolet Celebrity, driven by Ronald Moore, 31, of Williamsburg after the vehicle rounded a corner.

Pope was in the middle of the road and despite attempts by Moore to swerve, the victim was struck by the passenger side of the vehicle, said Cst. Doiron.

The victim was pronounced dead at the scene.

No charges have been laid.

Obituaries

Mae Serviss

Mountain Township native Mae Serviss, a resident of Park Drive Villa, Williamsburg, for the past two years, died in Winchester District Memorial Hospital Wed., Oct. 12. A retired hospital laboratory technician, she was 76.

Mrs. Serviss was born at Hulbert April 27, 1918, a daughter of Spencer and Ruth (Wright) Fawcett and married Ralph Serviss in Iroquois in 1935.

Mrs. Serviss was a member of Williamsburg United Church and had lived in Ingleside, Ottawa, and Brinston.

She is survived by two sons, Raymond, and his wife, Eva, Finch, and Ernest, and his wife, Helen, Williamsburg; three brothers, Fred, Hainsville, Basil, Morrisburg, and Orval, Winchester; six grandchildren, three great grandchildren, and by a number of nieces and nephews.

She was predeceased by her husband, a sister, Rettie, and by two brothers, Delbert and Merrel.

Rev. F.E.A. Macpherson conducted funeral services from the Marsden and McLaughlin Funeral Home, Williamsburg, at 11am Sat., Oct. 15 and interment was at Sprucehaven Cemetery, Brinston. Pallbearers were Dale Marcellus, Leen Sieling, John Dalrymple, Ken Beckstead, Bill Whittaker and Bill Cook.

Donations to the Heart and Stroke Foundation will be acknowledged by the family.

"Mancel" Wesley Smith

Mancel Wesley Smith, of Moffatt Street, Morewood, died October 10, 1994 in Belleville. He was 65.

Mr. Smith was born July 18, 1929 in Cannamore, son of the late Clarke and Ethelwyn Smith. He was a professional engineer, educated at Queen's University, class of '53.

He is survived by son Ian (Anna) Smith of Mt. Albert and daughters Dr. Sheena Smith (Rev. Ken Lewis) of Belleville and Melanie Smith of Hull, Que. He was also dear brother of Carman (Gloria) Smith of Ottawa and Newman (Mary-Elizabeth) Smith of Ancaster and grandfather of Stephen and Kathryn Smith and Aneesha and Sean Lewis.

Mr. Smith is predeceased by his wife, Lorna Henderson.

Funeral services were held October 13 at Daniels Funeral Home, Chesterville, and were officiated by Rev. Roy Harwood. Interment was at Morewood United Cemetery.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Reader questions chamber link

To the Editor:

A few years ago, I sat on the board of directors of the Moose Creek Chamber of Commerce and it was agreed at that time that I write its constitution. On one occasion, I came up with the idea that the Chamber for Business and Commerce for the area be called the "Roxborough Chamber of Commerce". I was almost thrown out of the meeting by two former council members for suggesting such an idea! The good of Moose Creek had to come before the good of the many! This was for Moose Creek, and if Roxborough wanted a Chamber they could start their own. In my opinion, that's restricting growth and negative thinking.

Let me continue —This year, these two former councillors of Roxborough along with Reeve, Carson Payne, Deputy-reeve, Gerald Moncalm and Councillor, Daryl McRae sat on the Board of Directors for the "Moose Creek Chamber of Commerce". Tell me, how can individual business concerns or business related issues be discussed at an open meeting of the "Moose Creek Chamber of Commerce" when elected officials of Roxborough Council are sitting at the table as Directors of the Chamber?

(example: Commercial assessments for water and sewers or high commercial taxes, etc.)

Let me continue —Approved at the "Chamber of Commerce" and then passed at "Roxborough Council Meeting" or is it discussed, motioned and passed at the "Moose Creek Chamber of Commerce" and just read at the Council Meeting" just to be on the safe side. Confusing! The voters (remember come November) of Roxborough could save a lot of money if the Council's extra meetings could be paid by the "Moose Creek Chamber of Commerce".

Let me continue —A motion written by Art Buchanan (former Deputy-reeve) and seconded by Gilles Sabourin (former councillor), at an irregular meeting of the "Moose Creek Chamber of Commerce" reads "that the membership of Moose Creek Mall and Gerimi 809304 (Theoret Land development company), be terminated due to an objection to the Official Plan." Also a position held by Richard Theoret, as director of the chamber, was also terminated. So if you object to the Official Plan or any other by-laws of Roxborough Township, you get terminated to the "Moose Creek Chamber of Commerce."

Therefore, can it be, that the "Moose Creek Chamber of Commerce" and the "Council of Roxborough Township" is one and the same?

During the past two elections, candidates were chosen from the ranks of Chamber members. An all candidates debate was organized, and a platform was selected. Carefully chosen questions were then pre-written and given to Chamber members in order to question the opposing candidates and to embarrass them at the debate.

Good business sense would condemn such a practice, especially in the name of good local businessmen, where most have resigned or quit attending "Chamber of Commerce Council Meetings".

Many will not attend the October 26 "All Candidates Debate" organized by the "Moose Creek Chamber of Non-Commercial Related Endeavors" at Tagwi.

I hope the electorate will remember come November 14.

Enough is enough!

Yours most sincerely,
Michel Theoret

CARD OF THANKS

Our craft table and canteen at the Berwick Craft Show turned out to be a great success. We raised $461.40. Three cheers go out to Sherri and Sonya for all their help. We wish to thank everyone for donations and N.G.S. parents for volunteering their time. Our next canteen is on Nov. 19 and 20 at the Finch Craft Show. Donations would be appreciated for the craft table. Thanks again!

Kings outshoot Canadians, lose 3-1

SPENCERVILLE- Even the friendly confines of the Spencerville Arena was not enough to help the Minor Bantam Kings.

The Kings out-shot the visiting Ottawa South Canadians, 49-17, but came out on the short end of a 3-1 loss.

Canadians goalie, Stephen Nichols stood tall, turning back wave after wave of the on-rushing pucks.

Three breakaways and numerous point-blank shots were handled with poise. Not until the persistence of Avery Flanagan was finally tallied and three tries was the shut-out broken.

The loss evened up the Kings' record at two wins and a pair of losses.

Chesterville Arena rates hold steady

CHESTERVILLE - The hourly rental rates for the Chesterville Arena will remain the same as last year.

"They (the rates) are the same as last year because wages and hydro didn't go up...they are the two biggest expenses at the arena," explained Chesterville recreation director, Robin Langille.

The hourly rates are as follows and all are subject to GST:

In-town (anywhere within the boundaries of Winchester Township): $75.

Out-of-town: $85

Broomball rate: $70

Non-prime time (Monday to Friday - anytime before 5 p.m.; Saturday - before 8 a.m. or after 10 p.m.; Sunday - before 9 a.m. or after 10 p.m.): $45.

"These are odd hours so we thought we could entice people into using this ice time," said Langille.

Also new this year is Shinny Hockey which is expected to start at the end of October.

"You pay $2 and go out with a stick and shoot the puck around or play a game," he said.

"We hope to hit people in the agriculture industry or shift workers who want to come out and play hockey."

Shinny hockey hours: Tuesdays: 10-11:30 a.m. and Thursdays: 1:30-3 p.m.

For more information regarding rates and free ice times contact Robin Langille at the recreation office, 448-3285.

Walker released from Red Wings' contract

INGLESIDE - Ingleside's Todd Walker, 20, is currently contemplating his next move.

Walker, who recently signed a 25 game contract with the American Hockey League's, Adirondack Red Wings, was released from that contract two weeks ago.

"I don't know what I am going to do right now. I'm home for a few days to think about my future," said Walker.

At press time, Walker was unsure if he was going to go back to school or continue playing hockey.

Walker has played for the Cornwall Colts as well as the Ontario Hockey League's Newmarket team.

Consistency pays off for junior volleyball Devils

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

MAPLE RIDGE - The junior boys' North Dundas Devils dumped the Seaway Warriors two games to one in last week's match-up at Seaway this past Wednesday afternoon.

According to co-coach Francis Vandenburg, the junior Devils are finally playing a more consistent game.

"They're (the Devils) spiking is starting to come along really well. I think that was a big factor (in the win over Seaway)," explained Vandenburg.

The Devils walked all over the Warriors in the first match, defeating Seaway 15-1. The Warriors came back with a strong second match and beat the Devils 16-14. The third match then saw North Dundas walk away with a 15-9 victory.

"They (Seaway) came on really strong for their second game. They're still pretty good competition," said Vandenburg.

Helping shut out the Warriors was Devils' Curtis Smith and Mike Hodge.

"Curtis Smith played well with his spikes as did Mike Hodge," she said.

Seaway and North Dundas may be each other's competition but the two teams are getting together again this week for a practice match-up at North Dundas.

The Devils next round of competition comes from General Vanier and Ecole Secondaire at Ecole Secondaire Thurs., Oct. 20.

Red defeats Black and Green doubles White

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE - In the first week of the Chesterville Town League's hockey action, the Red team defeated the Black team 6-4 and the Green team downed the White squad 6-3 last Wednesday night.

The Red team took an early lead, in the first game of the night, when Ken Byers (2) dumped one in the net at 13:58.

Three minutes later the Black team's Cory Van Delst (58) shot the puck past Red's goalie, Jeff Whittaker, to tie the game.

Pat Kelly followed suit two minutes later to give the Black team the lead. With 42 seconds left in the first period, Kelly scored again with assistance from Mark Smith (18).

The Black team lead 3-2 going into the second period.

The second period of the game saw both teams play much more aggressively than in the first period. The Black team continued to build on their lead. With 22:41 on the clock, Smith dumped one in the net to extend their lead to 4-2.

But the Black team's lead was short-lived. At 17:10 of the period Red's Brad Cotnam (7) got one past Black's net-minder to bring his team one point closer to the Black's lead.

Cotnam scored an unassisted goal seven minutes later to tie the game at 4-4.

Red's John Luimes (19) gave his team the lead with 6:36 left to play in the game.

John Tessier also helped his Red squad put the Black team away by scoring the final goal of the game at 2:23.

Black's Kelly Ryan (11) left the game with two assists and Cotnam, Gary Klein-Swormink (4), Jason Ouellette (6) as well as Jason Kennedy (15) all had an assist in the game.

Black's Kelly had two goals and one assist while Smith had one goal and two assists for the night. Other Black point-getters were VanDelst with one goal and Willy O'Connor with two assists.

In the second game of the night, the Green team's Jerrold Belanger lead his squad to victory, over the White team, by scoring four goals. The final score was 6-3 for the Green team.

The Green team played to win last Wednesday night as they shut the White team out in the first period by scoring three goals.

Chris Williams (29) started the scoring for the Green team at 12:54. Belanger followed suit five minutes later and scored two goals of his own.

Crusaders defeat Lancers

R-O midgets only winners of triple-header

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

INGELSIDE - The Rothwell-Osnabruck Lancers girls' basketball teams faced tough competition when they hosted the Char-Lan Crusaders this past Monday afternoon.

But it was an unwelcome greeting for the midget Crusaders as they were easily defeated by their host 22-9.

"It's nice to win," said Lancers' coach Bob Thompson, who's eight-person squad faced Char-Lan's 27 person army on the court.

The Lancers charged ahead and gained a five point lead in the first quarter. By half time, the Lancers were up 14-1 over the Crusaders.

"We had a stronger first half than second half again," said Thompson.

The second half of the game found the smaller and much more fatigued Lancers facing new Char-Lan players, throughout the half, who were eager to break through the Lancers tight defence.

"We scored 14 points in the first (half) and eight points in the second...they were probably tired towards the end (of the game) because we only had eight players," explained Thompson.

Whether or not his team was tired did not stop the Lancers from keeping the Crusaders away from the basket.

"Jennifer (Donkers) was my best defensive player because she stayed in her position and rebounded really well," he said.

The Lancers' top scorer was Alexia Campole with eight points. Pam Prosser and April Hadly each had four points.

The junior and senior Lancer teams had a more difficult time than the midgets battling the Crusaders. The juniors lost 30-28 and the seniors lost 42-26.

The junior R-O Lancers were down 14 points going into the fourth quarter when their offence started connecting the ball with the basket.

"We didn't play any offence in the first half," said Lancers' coach Bob Thompson.

"We played a great defensive game. We just didn't score enough baskets to win the game."

The Lancers' aggressive defence garnered foul shots for the Crusaders which led to their victory.

"That's where we lost the game - at the foul-line. But that can happen in any game," explained Thompson.

With 40 seconds left in the game, the Lancers tied it up 28-28. Then 20 seconds later the Lancers had the chance to take the lead when Diana Dejong drew a foul. Dejong was unable to sink her two shots.

In the dying seconds of this unbelievable come-back, Crusaders' Shirley Bergeon dumped the ball into the basket twice from the line to give the Char-Lan Crusaders the victory.

The senior Lancers found their feet glued to the floor when they matched up against their Crusader counter-part. The Lancers lost 42-26.

"Most of the girls were completely flat...we had no hustle," explained Lancers' co-coach Karen Bryan.

Lacking hustle was not the Lancers' only problem Monday afternoon.

Aggressive Nats derail Express

Mental lapses, retaliation costly to NS in 6-2 home loss

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

FINCH - Aggressive, fast-paced and tenacious was the type of game the North Stormont Express played when they hosted the Rockland Nats last Thursday night.

Unfortunately, the Express' hunger for another win was not enough to get them one over this very verbally and physically aggressive Rockland squad.

The Express lost 6-2 to the Nats.

"We had some undisciplined penalties. They have to learn to turn the other cheek sometimes," said North Stormont Express head coach, Peter DeRooy.

Within the first minute of action, North Stormont's aggression gave them some good scoring opportunities but Nats goalie, Janick St. Georges, was able to deflect the puck back into play.

It took eight minutes of play before the Nats scored the first goal of the game. But six minutes later, the Express' Tyson Chadwick (4) surprised Nats' St. Georges on the power-play and shot the puck through his legs to tie the game at 1-1.

The second period started out just as aggressively as the first and within two minutes, the Nats took the lead with a slapshot to the corner of Express goaltender Chris Land.

"Chris (Land) let in some bloopers but he stopped a lot of good ones too," said DeRooy.

Between all of the verbal shots made between the two teams, the Nats managed to score one other second period goal to give them a 3-1 lead.

"We had some mental lapses," he said.

At 16:29 of the third period, Nats' goalie, St. Georges, was not expecting North Stormont's assistant captain, Mike Marleau (2), to take a shot from the face off, but that is exactly what Marleau did to cut the Nats lead to one point.

The Express was unable to keep up with the fast-paced game the Nats came to play and the Express ended up losing a lot of their steam by the third period.

With one second left in the Nats power-play, Rockland scored their fourth goal of the night. The Nats then went on to score their fifth goal with just three minutes left in the game.

The final nail in the coffin came 30 seconds later when the Nats took advantage of another power-play and scored their sixth and final goal of the night.

Aggressive play from both teams caused the Nats to rack-up eight minutes in penalties while the Express clocked in with 16 minutes in penalties.

Another indication as to the aggressiveness of this match-up between the Rockland Nats and Express was the number of times the net was dislodged from its crease.

The philosophy on both sides seemed to be if the puck was not going to go into the net, then a player was.

The Express may have dropped another game in front of the hometown crowd, but it was an exciting game from start to finish.

Sunday night's game against the St. Isidore Eagles was cancelled due to the death of team member Paul Rozon.

Aggressive play in front of the net typified the match up between North Stormont and Rockland. Last week's loss to the Nats brings the Express's season record to 1-2.

Stewart's Classics, Country Girl winners

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

WINCHESTER - In the second week of the Winchester and District Ladies' Hockey League, Stewart's Classics and Country Girl came out the big winners. Andy's Food Town and Sports Unlimited ended their game in a tie.

The first game of the day saw Annable's Jewellery take a beating from Stewart's Classics. The Classics defeated Annable's Jewellery 7-1.

The Classics dominated the game from the first face-off by scoring five goals in the first period.

Annable's Jewellery did manage to squeeze past Stewart's strong defence to score one goal with 6:05 left in the first period.

The second period of play was also dominated by the Classics' powerhouse offence. Stewart's Classics dumped two more goals past Annable's goalie Roxanne Backes.

Stewart's Classics' Tara Berry was the game's top scorer with 3 goals. Kelly Durant had one goal and one assist, Deanne VanLoon netted one goal and had two assists while Michelle Helmer got an unassisted goal. Cathy Little pitched in with two assists. Kim Williams and Janet Corrie each had an assist.

The second game of the day saw a much more evenly matched Double Beauty lose to Country Girl 2-1.

The first period saw a lot of action in front of the net but goalies Sherry Stewart (Double Beauty) and Lori Garlough (Country Girl) were in peak shape to stop their opponents' shots.

The first goal of the game was finally scored at 17:30 of the second period by Country Girl's Brenda Morgan. Morgan went for the net again one minute later and netted another one for her team.

In the dying minutes of the game, Double Beauty's Jackie Morris snuck one passed Garlough to give them a one point deficit.

Country Girl's Kerry Kennedy had two assists while Carolyn Herfkens and Marie Shelp had single assists. Double Beauty's Dana Doumoulin assisted Morris in their single goal of the game.

Andy's Food Town and Sports Unlimited finished their game with a 2-2 tie.

Sports Unlimited got the goal scoring underway at 17:30 of the first period when Tammy Bartholomew shot one past Andy's Food Town goalie Carol Chesbro.

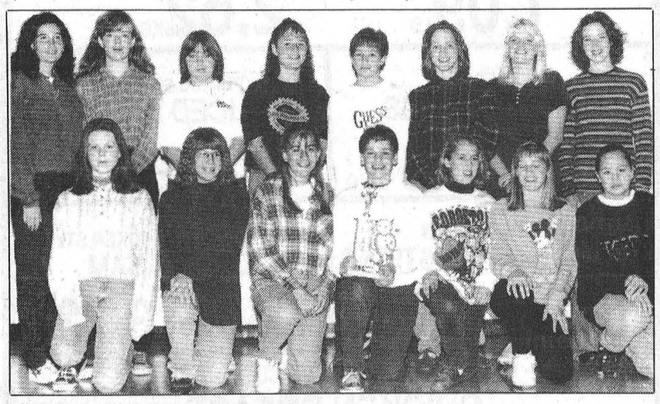
A minute later Andy's Food Town's Deanne Corbett-White retaliated with an unassisted goal.

With only 20 seconds left in the first period, Bartholomew netted her second, and unassisted, goal of the game. Sports Unlimited led 2-1 going into the second period.

The second period saw a lot of chances in front of the net but not until there were only 24 seconds remaining in the game did Andy's Food Town's Corbett-White take advantage of the opportunies. She finally scored on Sports Unlimited goalie, Stewart, with assistance from Rhonda Winters and Sue Whelan.

Dundas Winners

It was a close finish but Maple Ridge Senior Public School prevailed over Nationview to become the 1994 Dundas County Elementary Boys Soccer champs. Front left: Ben Gutnecht, Barret Brundige, Wayne Garlough, Steve Mattice, Joey Hillis, Will Saunders, Andrew Douma, Rodney denDunnen. Back left: Dylan Roberts, Chris Deighton, Adam Larose, Grant Norris, Jeff West, Waylon Lollier, Julian Whittam, Deanne Van Loon (coach).



1994 Senior Champs

Walk your way to fitness

Powerwalking: the newest way to loose that fat

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE - No longer do you have to torture your body by running 10 miles a day or doing aerobics that are bouncy enough to propel you to the nearest planet to stay fit.

Low impact aerobics are here and power walking is steadily marching over other forms of exercise.

"It's just like walking but you're using the force of your arms and legs on the spot," explained aerobics instructor Pene Arnold.

Power walking is new this fall to the Chesterville Recreation aerobic program.

"There was some interest in power walking by some people taking her (Arnold's) course, so she wanted to give it (power walking) a try," said Chesterville director of recreation Robin Langille.

Choosing to do low impact aerobics over higher impact ones does not mean the physical benefits are any less.

"It's not too stressful, like high impact aerobics, but you still get the same benefits. You're just doing it (working out) in a different way," said Arnold.

"Low impact aerobics, or power walking, uses the whole body...you can still get the lungs and heart rate going," she said.

Other than increasing your rate, another important benefit to power walking, is the body's joints, such as the knees and ankles do not suffer as much strain as they do during higher impact aerobics.

"It's (power walking) better for people who don't like bouncing," explained Arnold.

"It's also better for those just starting or for those not wanting to do high impact aerobics to stay fit," she said.

Power walking classes are held every Tuesday night at the Chesterville Community Hall. Classes have already started but there is room for those still interested in joining.

Devils 'blew it' against CC

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

MAPLE RIDGE - The soccer season had a bright outlook for the junior North Dundas Devils but it had a bleak ending.

"We had two good games at the start (of the season) and the others have been wipe outs," explained Devils' coach Doug Carroll.

The Devils lost their most recent game to Cornwall Collegiate 5-0.

"We had four opportunties and blew it," said Carroll.

"Their (North Dundas') problem is that they can't control the ball."

But there is a positive note to the Devils' losing season. Devils' goaltender stopped 40 shots and let only five goals in against Cornwall Collegiate.

The juniors ended the season with a 2-9 record while the seniors finished with a 2-5 record.

Wins pile up rapidly

SEAWAY VALLEY - Fresh from drubbing the Frontenacs 4-1 in Kingston, the Seaway Valley 'AA' Major Bantam Rapids managed to subdue the mighty South Ottawa Canadians, doubling them 4-2 in their own Peplinski Arena.

While the Kingston crew were reaping a plethora of penalties, the trio made up of regular Pierre Tranchemontagne and Cornwall Bantam 'A' imports, Daniel Dupuis and Jean Greggain, racked up three goals. A rare man-advantage situation allowed Kingston to get a screen shot past goaltender Gerry Goulet.

Kingston's knock-em-sock-em style called for the kind of cool firmness superbly exhibited by Bubba Ferguson and Kevin Wright at the blue line and for crisp set-ups by the likes of offensive defensemen Jeff McKertchner and Nick Grady.

Red and Green victories

The second period still saw the Green team dominate the action. Green's Sean O'Connor scored goal number four of the night two minutes into the period.

Belanger netted his third goal at 19:20. Belanger scored again with 7:40 left in the game.

It was not until the last ten minutes of the game did the White team finally get past the Green's defence and score.

Trailing 6-0, White's Pete Schoones (7) netted an unassisted goal with 7:10 left on the clock. Three minutes later Barry McShane (2) got one past Green's net-minder Ben Henry. White's Jeff Holmes also netted another goal for his team with 2:15 left in the game.

The White team's last minute drive to the net was not enough to give them the lead and they lost 6- 3.

R-O loses to Char-Lan

"Our defence was week...we had some offensive opportunities but we just couldn't sink the ball," said Bryan.

The Lancers started strong by gaining an early lead in the first quarter but they lost their early lead to the Crusaders' much more awake team.

"They (Char-Lan) came to win and we didn't," said Bryan.

The Lancers had a bit of a comeback in the third period but this burst of energy did not last any longer than one quarter. The Crusaders dominated the fourth quarter of play.

"In the fourth quarter they (Char-Lan) started to run away with the score," she said.

The Lancers next chance to redeem themselves comes on Thurs., Oct. 20 when they travel to Tagwi to face the Warriors.
