Road repair

BERWICK (Staff) - Roxborough Township will decide whether to begin work on the boundary road with Finch Township after its spring roads tour, Finch Township council learned Monday night. At its last regular meeting, the township decided to approach neighboring Roxborough about sharing the cost of repairing the five-mile stretch over the next five years.

Designated driver

CRYSLER (Staff) - The designated driver system will now be used at functions sponsored by Stormont Junior Farmers. From now on, guests at the club's dances who identify themselves as drivers will be served non-alcoholic beverages at no charge. "Have a good time and have a safe trip home," newly elected club president Valerie Wert told the audience at its annual meeting Saturday night at Crysler Community Centre.

Youth jobs

CORNWALL (Staff) - Cornwall's Youth Employment Centre officially opened Feb. 5. Located at 16 Second St. E., the centre will give unemployed youths job training and advice about finding work.

More than 70 area youths have already signed up for the program. Federal, provincial and municipal governments and several local groups including the Chamber of Commerce and S.D. and G. County Board of Education provide financial, advisory and staffing help.

Learn to read

CORNWALL (Staff) - A new organization, recently formed here, could prove the answer many people are looking for. For the functionally illiterate, of whom there are 3,000,000 in Canada the Tri-County Literacy Council, can provide volunteers who will help teach adults to read. Tutors will be teamed with students by the council.

The council will employ the Laubach method of a one on one learning situation. Right now both volunteer tutors and students are being sought. Anyone can call co-ordinator Mike Brunet at 937-0120 or 938-7142.

Serving on the council are Nancy Harsanyi, Daphne Christie and Mary Mayer.

Talks stalled

CORNWALL (Staff) - The Eastern Ontario Health Unit's mediation talks here last week failed to end a strike that has dragged into its third month. The Unit's non-medical staff walked out November 6 and since then there have been three fruitless mediation sessions.

Union officials are now calling for government intervention. Steve Backs, a union spokesman, said the only way the dispute can end at this point is through the direct intervention of the provincial health minister, Murray Elston.

Among the strikers are 45 health inspectors, dental hygienists, certified dental assistants, audio technicians, home workers and clerk typists. They are employed at the Cornwall office, at Casselman and L'Orignal. The workers' contract ended December 31, 1984.

Calling brides

(Staff) - The Record is offering free engagement notices in the annual wedding supplement. This special issue will appear February 26. The advertising staff will be pleased to accept information and pictures for inclusion in this supplement. The deadline is Thursday, February 20 at 5pm. Pictures will be returned on request by calling at The Record office.

Firefighters urged to expand role

AVONMORE (Staff) - The chief of the Osgoode Township fire department urged United Counties fire chiefs to form first response teams to deal with medical emergencies in their communities.

Speaking at a Mutual Aid Association meeting here last Wednesday night, chief Peter Griffin said Osgoode has had a first response team for two years and enthusiastically supports the establishment of skilled units to respond to emergencies.

"If it were you, would you want someone to help keep you alive by learning basic first aid," he asked the audience of about 50 men. "You could probably save a life. You could certainly ease the suffering in the accident cases you respond to with your extrication

He said there are about 40 such teams in Ontario, consisting of volunteers trained in cardiopulmonary resuscitation techniques and first aid who respond to calls from ambulance attendants.

About half the calls the department answered last year were not fire-related. Almost 12 per cent involved heart attack victims.

A study released last year discovered that more deaths occurred at the scenes of accidents or home emergencies than in ambulances or hospital emergency rooms. David Kinsley, assistant executive director of the District Health Council of Ontario, said the first four to six minutes are critical in saving a life.

He said areas 10 miles or more beyond ambulance bases at Winchester, Finch, Casselman and Morrisburg are in particular need of first response teams.

Moose Creek, Ingleside and Maxville are on the periphery of ambulance service.

Brenda Tessier, regional manager of St. John Ambulance, said money should not stand in the way of fire departments obtaining basic first aid skills.

The Workers' Compensation Board will subsidize first aid training for two workers per shift through an employer. Ms. Tessier said employed firefighters could be trained through work and the municipality could apply to have an additional two men receive instruction.

"For the most part, maybe you'll have to pay for one or two of your people," she said. "You don't have to use your budget for first aid training."

Jane Mroz, affiliate faculty with the Ontario Heart and Stroke Foundation, said firefighters shouldn't worry about legal liability for any actions they take to cope with an emergency.

"You will not be held liable providing you act reasonably," she assured them.

Mr. Griffin said firefighters should also be covered by the municipality's liability insurance.

He said the standard municipal by-law establishing fire departments states firefighters should perform first aid and rescue work.

"You have an obligation in your own by-law to render an emergency service in your area," he said.

Some departments with auto extrication equipment do not have the necessary follow-up skills. "You get your casualty out and what do you do if you don't know first aid?" he asked.

Mrs. Mroz said the St. John Ambulance instructors are taking precautions against the contraction of acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS) from mannikins used in teaching. Each student would be equipped with his own silicone mask when working on a mannikin to protect him from contact with the saliva of others.

But there's no similar protection when treating a road accident victim.

"I think it's a risk everybody takes. AIDS is a disease and so is hepatitis," said Theresa Helmer, CPR instructor and coordinator at St. Lawrence College.

Firefighters' reaction to setting up first response teams was mixed.

"Nobody wants to commit themselves. I think the manpower would be the hardest thing," said Crysler fire chief John Benoit.

He said a first response unit would demand more time away from work for volunteer firemen. Even now, he said, rounding up firefighters for day-time calls is difficult because of the number who work outside the area.

Most members of Crysler's department have first aid training but only three have CPR skills. Mr. Benoit said the department is considering upgrading its CPR abilities.

Newington fire chief Ab Evans foresaw a problem in finding time for first aid and CPR courses, but supported the idea of first response.

"We've got to be for it. That's our main aim, to save lives."

Queen for a weekend

Bonhomme carnaval

Thursday was carnival day at Chesterville Public School when Bonhomme made a special visit. The children managed to bring a bilingual atmosphere to the day as they conversed in French to their carnival "ami" during the morning. The carnival was held in conjunction with Chesterville winter carnival. Homemade soup was donated by parents and the money that would have been raised through the sales of lunch was donated to the Chesterville for Africa famine relief fund.

120 youths and women to be helped with training

CORNWALL (Staff) - Area young people will benefit from a $536,795 grant awarded by the federal government to the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry County Board of Education.

Announced last week by MP Norm Warner, the program is being sponsored by the employment and immigration department's Job Entry Program. The money is to be divided between two programs involving 120 area residents, including 60 women who want to re-enter the work force.

In making the announcement Mr. Warner said "These projects eptimize what Job Entry is attempting to accomplish -- government working with the local community and the private sector to provide young people and women returning to work with the solid skills experience they need to participate in the labor market."

Both projects in the local program began earlier this month. The Alternative School will receive $277,870 to provide 60 young persons with training in one of 20 occupational areas including appliance repair, technical skills for women, metal fabrication, computer technology, and mechanical skills. All trainees will also receive instruction in life-work skills and job search techniques.

Job Entry's focus is on two target groups, 15 to 24 year olds who are having a difficult time making the transition from school to work, and women having difficulties re-entering the labor market after being away from it.

Participants in all but one occupational area will receive a total of 26 weeks of training: 10 weeks of classroom instruction and 16 weeks of work experience. Trainees in the agricultural co-operative module will receive a total of 41 weeks of training: 18 weeks of classroom instruction and 23 weeks of one-the-job training.

In order to help women back into the workplace the Alternative School will receive $258,925 to provide 60 women returning to work with 26 weeks of training in one of 13 occupational areas as well as instruction in job search techniques.

Participants will receive 10 weeks of classroom instruction and 16 weeks of one-the-job training in such occupational areas as eduction and health care services; entrepreneurial skills; retail merchandising for Natives; business studies; computer technology; industrial design and technical skills.

Job Entry Program participants receive training allowances or, if eligible, unemployment insurance benefits. Supplements such as daycare and dependent care costs are also available.

Gun heist at Crysler store

CRYSLER (Staff) - Area police are looking for a suspect who broke into the Home Hardware store here last Wednesday morning and stole a 12 gauge shotgun and some ammunition. Nothing else was taken. The gun was valued at $500.

Proprietor Claude Quesnel said "it's hard for me to say how much (ammunition) they took."

He said the glass door of his store was broken and entry into the interior was made that way. As well, Mr. Quesnel said the telephone wire had been cut in front of the building, deactivating the store's alarm. He speculated the thief or thieves "knew the gun was there." Although there were some airguns on display none was removed.

Mr. Quesnel said someone in the area saw the car used in the robbery, a late model red or maroon two-door sedan, either Oldsmobile or Buick.

Although police said there were no suspects someone in the area allegedly saw one man wearing a facemask.

The alarm was raised by a neighbor just after the incident which was called in to Long Sault police headquarters 26 minutes past midnight.

It was the first robbery in four years at the Home Hardware although Mr. Quesnel said there was an attempted robbery last fall.

As well as police from Long Sault, cruisers from Winchester and Morrisburg arrived on the scene. The investigation is continuing.

Wear a costume to village Heritage Day

(Staff) - In honor of Canada's official Heritage Day, February 17, the community is invited to a pot luck dinner in the village. Hosted and sponsored by Chesterville and District Historical Society, the meal will be held at the Legion Hall from 5 to 7pm.

Organizer Jo Saunders said Heritage Day is "a day to stop and reflect on our rich and diversified social, architectural and natural heritage."

To this end each family participating in the meal is encouraged to bring along one old family recipe dish, either a meat, potato, salad or dessert.

As well anyone who has a heritage costume in the closet should don his or her finery and get in the spirit of things.

At the hall the schools' heritage art contest results will be displayed. As well diners can enter the family heritage treasure chest contest and details will be supplied at the dinner.

The Chesterville Heritage Day Committee has been planning the event for the past few weeks and wants to see a large turnout for their first effort at such an event in the village.

The treasure chest guessing game will involve naming the artifacts on display and guessing their uses in past years.

No immediate threat posed by free trade McKinnon tells dairymen

KEMPTVILLE (Staff) - The Ontario Milk Marketing Board attempted to quell dairy farmers' concerns over the effects of free trade on the milk industry this week, when Ken McKinnon chairman of the board, spoke to dairy farmers at Kemptville College's Dairy Day.

Speaking to about 500 farmers, McKinnon told the audience the dairy industry does not face an immediate threat from any potential trade related discussions with the United States.

He also said the idea of free trade has been misconstrued by the press and farmers should get a clear understanding about the situation before condemning the idea all together.

McKinnon addressed many of the advantages and disadvantages of a free or bilateral trade agreement with the U.S.

Ken MacKinnon

His address to Eastern Ontario farmers comes at a time when producers are especially concerned about the effects of including the dairy industry in free trade negotiations.

The U.S. milk surplus for 1986 is projected to be almost the same as Canada's total milk production this year.

Although some sectors of agriculture, such as hogs, cattle, pork and some fruit commodities, have a lot to gain by free trade arrangement with the U.S., McKinnon felt confident that for several reasons the government could not negotiate away the supply management system in the dairy industry.

In a long-term dairy policy announced in January, the federal government promised for the next five years to: retain supply management; to continue the direct payment of $6.03 per hectolitre on domestic requirements of milk and 1.1 million hectolitres of planned exports; amend the Import Control List to provide a greater protection against the importation of non-fat solids and; to rectify the cheese trade balance at the upcoming GATT negotiations.

By granting this commitment, the government has shown its respect for the effective management of the industry and it won't just throw it away, McKinnon said.

However, he advised farmers to keep the potential risk to the dairy industry and other possibly threatened sectors of agriculture in perspective.

"We must not become complacent," said McKinnon.

Even though Canada and the U.S. haven't agreed even to hold discussions, he pointed out the possibility is always there.

Existing trade arrangements with the U.S. have lead to a 38 per cent increase in Canada's imports since 1980. Right now Canada has a $20 billion trade surplus with its neighbour to the south, which makes Canada the largest single export market for the U.S.

For these reasons, a freer trade agreement would be a legitimate goal in negotiations between the two countries, submitted McKinnon.

However, the U.S. congress has before it some 300 bills to provide protective measures directed for their domestic industries.

Keeping in mind that country's $150 billion trade deficit, surpluses in many goods and services and a highly valued dollar, McKinnon suggested that it might be to Canada's advantage to enter into trade talks only to secure access to the U.S. markets.

When and if negotiations get under way between Canada and the U.S., McKinnon finally assured farmers that the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, of which Canadian Dairy Farmers is a member, will be directly involved in trade issues with both the federal and provincial governments.

As well, several committees with representatives from various milk organizations will be set up to examine what is being discussed, and to see that dairy farmers' best interests are being considered.

First response

He said the department is fortunate it has no major highways in its jurisdiction and Finch ambulance service is so close.

Seventeen of the department's 21 firefighters have first aid skills and there are plans for a CPR course.

Although the department has never answered a call that demanded first aid skills, he said, "I just hope when it happens, we're ready."

Down the road, Winchester Village fire chief Bruce Kerr said volunteer firefighters may be needed to provide first response service.

The village, he said, is fortunate that it hosts an ambulance base. But if that ambulance is away on another call, he said an emergency could demand medical attention.

He said the departments are "stretched quite a bit" covering residences, businesses, nursing homes and senior citizen complexes. Increasing the number of calls they must respond to could mean more manpower, another vehicle and higher municipal taxes.

"But by the same token, you can't weigh somebody's life against vehicle or another part-time man," Mr. Kerr said.

Records of the number of Winchester's firefighters with CPR and St. John Ambulance training are sketchy. He said the department's first priority will be improving its firefighting skills.

DFA presses for right-to-farm bylaw

WILLIAMSBURG (Staff) - Fearing the right to farm could be threatened by neighbors' complaints, the Dundas Federation of Agriculture will ask the county's municipalities to incorporate provincial proposals to increase protection of farmlands.

Williamsburg area dairy farmer Gordon Garlough, one of the federation's provincial directors, said the federation wants the townships of Winchester, Willaimsburg, Mountain and Matilda to include proposed changes to the foodland and guidelines in their official plans.

Mr. Garlough said the move was prompted "to some extent" by recent cases in the Maritimes against farmers by neighbors complaining of odors. But he said Ontario farmers have not escaped complaints about normal farm operations.

"We've had some, I'll call them minor, cases in Ontario," he said, citing examplies of corn dryers being forced to shut down or orders against spreading manure.

He said the province is now discussing changes to the guidelines which would protect existing farm operations from adjacent heavy residential development and complaints.

About a month ago, he said the federation considered lobbying the municipalities to pass a "right to farm" bylaw.

But when delegates to the meeting of rural Ontario municipalities told the federation in February the province was considering strengthening foodland protection guidelines, Mr. Garlough said the DFA decided to request municipalities to comply with the changes.

He said municipalities greeted the proposed changes with mixed feelings. Although they supported farmers' right to operate, they feared the new guidelines could be "far too restrictive" on municipal plans for residential development.

"We have to see some sort of trade-off," he said, between residential growth and agricultural land use.

But Winchester Township reeve Gerald Holmes supports the proposals. "I'm certainly in favor of it myself."

He said the township has dealt with few complaints from residents about farm operations,

He said the township has had no problem with residents protesting a neighboring farm's work, with the exception of a complaint several years ago in Marionville of a hay dryer.

Although the matter was settled then, he said residential growth could mean more complaints in the future.

He said he personally supports incorporating the guidelines, once approved by the province, into municipal bylaws.

Mr. Garlough said the guidelines would probably affect only lands adjacent to existing farm operations. Whether there would be any impact on new operations depends on how the guidelines are written into municipal plans.

THE CHESTERVILLE Record Editorial / Opinion

Winter spirit

The success of last week's winter carnival in Chesterville testifies once again to the spirit of community in this village.

With a superb facility like the skating rink on the river, a unique feature, the scene was set for good times and a break in the routine of the cold winter months.

The village rink is being called Rideau Canal South and the carnival Mini-Winterlude. But the commercialism that has steadily been creeping into those two institutions have now invaded this tranquil country area. One hopes the spirit of community with events conducted on a purely voluntary level will prevail.

Organizers chipped in with a will and gave very generously of their time and effort over the past weeks to make the carnival fun for everyone.

The icing on the cake, though, was the magnificient gesture of dedicating the event to African relief and of assisting that cause in a very real way.

May carnival '87 keep faith with this year.

Human rights

Human rights in the world took two giant steps forward this week and made one shameful leap back into the dark ages.

In the past seven days the despicable Baby Doc fled Haiti courtesy of the United States Air Force and the French government and Anatoly Shcharansky walked to freedom in the chilly dawn on a bridge spanning East and West Berlin. On the negative side of the ledger Ferdinand Marcos, gangster at large, said he wasn't going to pay any attention to the election held in the Phillipines last Friday and would continue in office regardless of what the results may have been.

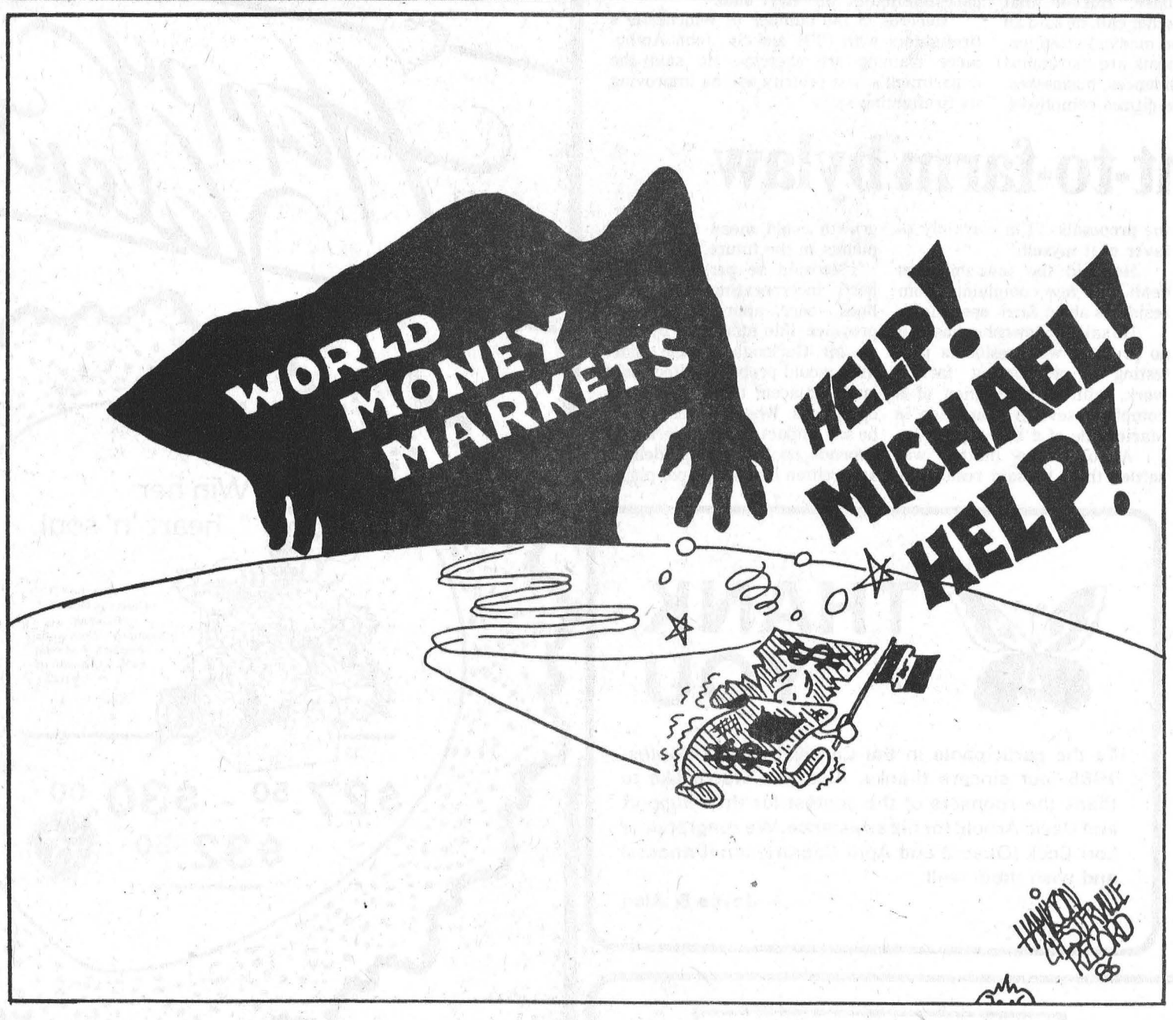
What really happened in that painful exercise may never be known. Canadian senator Al Graham, an observer at the election, said he was profoundly shocked by the abuses, corruption, graft and hooliganism he witnessed there. But then we always knew the local dictator and his minions held power and became richer by those means.

Why Mr. Shcharansky was released, having been convicted in the USSR of spying for the CIA, will be debated in the weeks to come but Mr. Shcharansky has said his only crime has been in attempting to emigrate to Israel.

In Haiti, though, the volatile situation is unclear with several former Duvalier henchmen among the current ruling faction.

Baby Doc, son of the infamous Papa Doc, who was as vicious a man as ever ruled a poor, sad country, languishes in a posh French hostelry in the Alps. His own chateau is located conveniently close to Paris so he and his wife can indulge their taste for the finer things in life.

For the poorest country in the western hemisphere with a per capita income of $170, there is nowhere to go but up.



The Farmer's Wife

by Wyn Thompson

Would you believe it? There are still people who ask us if we aren't lonely in winter, living way off in the country. The Farmer says it would be a real trick to be lonely with dogs and cats and cows swarming about, birds flipping in and out of the bird feeders, grandchildren popping in for a snack, and clothes cupboards and shoe storage racks to varnish in the office and storage room.

People are so busy or scattered in summer, whereas in winter we are closely knit as a community. We can have a couple of dozen people for a buffet supper without even figuring them up. And even if a sudden storm sweeps in, most will arrive snowy and triumphant.

My theory of entertaining remains quite simple: have lots to eat and let everybody help themselves. I lean heavily on a couple of hot casseroles and a roast of beef, with juices flowing down the knife as it cuts. A salad in a big wooden bowl with all kinds of vegetables in it, and a cheese board furnished well with various Canadian cheeses.

I have been reading a few current mysteries while not missing an Agatha Christie or Sherlock Holmes one on television. I like the mysteries where people take time to eat. When I chance on a mystery where the superintendent sits down with his wife or fellow officer and eats so much as some scrambled eggs and ham, I decide it is a good book.

Out skiing today I saw two deer, father leading the way so proudly while mamma tipped softly after. It was a moment to hold in memory always.

It is a comforting thought that beautiful moments never die. One can collect them, store them away, and they are always on file to bring forth and appreciate again and again.

Talking of deer, I got off the trail in a nephew's bush the other day and came upon not one, but two, deer yards, within a few rods of each other. It was an exciting find. The residents were off for a run, no doubt, but by the evidence around, they would return by nightfall.

We are in the midst of our February thaw, a yearly miracle. It is the curtain going down after Act 1 in Eastern Ontario, for regardless of Wiarton Willie and his cousin we shall have more winter up to April. But now snow melts, icicles drop from the south side of the barn, the air at noon is suddenly silky soft. Out I go wearing no mitts and only a summer jacket. A kind of intoxication sets in.

True, I will probably get a cold, but never mind. I cavort about the yard with Irish and keep thinking that the crocus will be up any day now. Maybe nature herself is stopping for a time to look for spring.

The snows melt, the dog discover bones long buried and the lost beach sandal is retrieved, via Lady. The only thing I mind is Lady's collection of bones tucked in around her bed in the garage and her quilt in the corner of the office.

This has nothing to do with my housecleaning. It has to do with Lady's agility. She can snatch a bone while you are filling the bird feeders and hide it in a flash, only to be brought forward as guests enter our home.

The thaw is over so swiftly. Yesterday was balmy, with real warmth in the sun on my shoulders as I skied eastward in the lovely afternoon air. Melted snow ran down the road in rivulets, I noted as I crossed it to enter the bush trail.

We went so far as to turn the thermostat down and not bank the stove. In the night, the thermometer plunged down and down as the long hand of winter reached out. We got up shivering and built up the fire.

The embers were hot enough so the wood caught fire easily. Because we keep a good bed of ashes, embers seem to last a long time. We turned up the furnace, put the screen in the front of the stove, and sat with coffee in one hand and a warmed hot cross bun in the other.

I suppose the attraction of an open fire is a heritage from our ancestors. Fire meant life to them so they guarded it with their lives. How man survived at all is a mystery.

February cannot be called a restful month in Eastern Ontario. Even before breakfast is begun, snow has to be removed, chores done in the country, town driveways and walks shovelled, stubborn cars started, birds fed. As the Farmer says, "The birds are not what I call wild. If they were any tamer, they'd be in the house with us."

The light falls slanting across the swamp as I ski home. The color is deep now that February is here, the stems of shrubs that I cannot name begin to glow with deeper tones of garnet and yellow.

It is still winter, we shall have a heavy snow before long. There will be bitter weather, dark days, for March has a lot of winter in it too in Eastern Ontario.

But already the sky has a different look as the sun gets ready to go down. The lemony color has turned to apricot. I decide that I must enjoy the vistas while the trees are still bare and sharply etched against the sky.

The first star comes out, so pure, so cold. Halley's is a thing remembered. A bit of a disappointment. I feel the cold through my jacket. I kick and slide a bit faster. Soon I am at the edge of the road. I call the dogs, we wait until a couple of cars pass us by. The dogs run for the house at my command and my skis slap across the pavement.

Any day now the urgent footsteps of spring will fall on snow-cold ground. And winter will slip away.

Notice: The public will take notice that after this date any person found cutting the granolior walks with an axe, pick, or steel shove, or any instrument that will harm the walks will be dealt with according to law.

Also that no salt be used for removing the snow or ice. Further, that coal cinders and ashes shall not be allowed to be thrown on the streets. L.A. Zufelt, Reeve, Chesterville.

Finch: The inhabitants of the unincorporated village of Finch are making an application to the Legislative Assembly of Ontario, asking to have the said village incorporated. This is a progressive move on the part of the village of Finch and will no doubt result in a decided improvement in the condition of this enterprising community.

Counties' Councillors, McMillan and McInnes of Payne Division, and Begg and McDiarmid of Roxborough, the special committee appointed by the Counties' Council, met at the Payne river bridge, on the Roxborough-Finch boundary, on Wednesday, and decided that a new bridge is necessary.

Notice: After doing business for some time in Chesterville as Butcher I have found that the credit system is detrimental to business, and I wish to inform the public that on and after the first day of March next, I intend to do business on a strictly cash basis. J.H. Cowdrey, butcher.

Chesterville's covered skating rink was demolished this morning at 11:15 when the strong wind prevailing since early morning ripped more than 30 feet of the currugated iron covering and timber framework to ribbons and scattered it over the C.P.R. right-of-way and adjoining open lots.

All railway communications west of Chesterville were disruped and electricity supplied to local block signals were cut off but storage batteries will operate the signals for 24 hours when it is expected repairs will be made.

More than 100 shareholders listened to encouraging statements as officers of the Chesterville Co-Operative Limited reported on the first year's operations to the annual meeting held in the Community Theatre Saturday afternoon.

J. Frank Casselman, president gave a brief summary of the development of the Co-Op which has necessitated the purchase of the Carl McMillan property to cope with the rapid expanse of the society.

Three fire hydrants in the business section of the village have been repaired this week and full fire protection is again possible. Work at renovating the Fire Hall is going forward and should be completed by the first of the week.

George L. McIntosh of Moose Creek was named president of the Eastern Counties Plowmen's Association at a recent meeting in Spencerville where it was decided to hold the association's annual match in Stormont county the day following the regular county match.

With Mr. McIntosh on the executive are 1st vice president, Allen Johnston of Johnston's Corners in Carleton County, where the 1947 match will be held; 2nd vice-president, Tace Wade of Russell County, where the 1948 championships will be staged.

66 From the Record, Thurs., Feb. 10, 1966

A petition from South Street residents was considered by Chesterville Council Monday evening. Residents of the street asked for relief from a stagnant ditch that fronts the residences of the north side of the road. It was felt that simple reconstruction of the drainage area and the placement of catchbasins would help.

Council considered the matter at length. The College Street sewer line will be extended south from the Faubert property when College Street is rebuilt.

The Life of Riley

by Wayne Riley

On Feb. 6, the same day Ronald Reagan celebrated his birthday by having a few friends over to the White House, the alarm on my wife's biological clock went off.

It went off with a single-note squeal that cut cleanly through my head and made the cats jump and run under the table and the baby drop her spoon on the floor.

And it made me jump to the wall and frantically wave a hand in front of the smoke detector and think about how odd it was that a smoke detector would double as a biological clock alarm. It's funny how you take everyday things for granted.

But there it was. The alarm had gone off and now Heidi and I were both thinking about how old she was and how quickly her life was going by.

For my part this kind of thinking was shocking. I had never before thought of my wife as old. Sure, there were times when the light struck her face like a prize fighter, cutting in wrinkles and puffing out the flesh around her eyes. But she always bounced back, regaining her smoothness and sending the aging process down to the mat for an eight count.

Really, she still seemed like a kid. And so it didn't seem out of the ordinary this day to go to the extra bedroom and unbox a cake and border the "Happy Birthday Heidi" icing centerpiece with 29 candles, one for each year she had been on this earth.

I lit the candles, scorching my thumb in the process, and brought out the cake with a rousing rendition of "Happy Birthday". I set the cake down in front of my wife and smiled with some satisfaction as I saw her face brighten in the orange glow of candles.

And then the smoke alarm went off.

A few years ago this simply would have been a funny little incident without meaning, like a horoscope reading that tells a newlywed she will fall in love with a dark-haired man next month.

But this was now, when my wife was 29, a year short of 30 and only just slightly more than a decade shy of 40. Almost as old as my mother. Yes, the doubts about youth were already there. And now the heat and smoke from her birthday candles had set off the smoke alarm.

It was a biological wake-up call. "Heidi, you've been snoozing. Yesterday you were celebrating your sixth birthday. Today your birthday cake is a fire hazard. Start investing in RRSPs."

The thought of my wife aging in front of me like time lapse photography, however, was only at the tip of what was troubling me now as I stepped down from the now quiet smoke detector.

I am only four days younger than Heidi.

The alarm had jolted me awake too, telling me that age was beginning to read between the boyish lines on my face. I could unwind every night but I could not slow down the clock.

Worse, I realized that my best before date as a man expired in 1975 while Heidi would remain at her peak freshness for at least another six years. I was 46 in women's years.

Why hadn't I taken notice of the warning signs? The birthday candles that are sold in packages of 24. The cards that say "Now You're Four" and "Hey, You're Seven" but never say, "Wow, You're 29". The lack of adult-sized party hats.

Why hadn't I paid attention to the fact that neighbourhood kids hadn't been to one of my birthday parties in 23 years?

I tried to fight the sense of panic welling up in me by focussing on the fact that today was Heidi's birthday but it was hopeless. I looked at the waxed icing on the cake, flame broiled by the candles, and I thought of Ronald Reagan looking at his cake. He was probably thinking that only yesterday he was 29.

When I was 11 years old I actually told my mother I didn't want to celebrate my birthday that year because it would remind me of how much I had not accomplished. My mother just shook her head and gave me one of those slack smiles mothers give to children who think they've seen it all in the first decade of life.

There I was in Woolworth's, depressed at how little I had accomplished with my paper route and piano lessons, sizing up a life that seemed to lose steam after I turned nine. And then the smoke detector went off and I was four days from turning 29.

And I don't even remember being 27.

But it was still my wife's birthday and I stepped away from the smoke detector and laughed like this was just one of those crazy coincidences in life that didn't mean anything. And I thought about eventually going to daylight saving time, pulling the hand on the biological clock back an hour or three. Hollywood, I had heard, is almost always on daylight saving time.

Yet how would that look. "Yes, my wife and I were the same age when we got married but now she is six years older. I don't know, maybe she had more time on her hands."

So I forgot about that idea too and congratulated my wife on her birthday and resigned myself to the fact that more and more people would be younger than me.

I resigned myself to having a single candle on my cake in the future to comply with fire regulations and getting things like support socks as gifts.

And that night, just before bed, I resigned myself to listening to the smoke detector go off again when I'm 45 just to let me know that the aging process has really heated up.

And maybe that's not such a bad thing to look forward to. After all, where there's smoke, there is still fire.

Jr. Farmers urged to tackle ag-education

CRYSLER (Staff) - One of Stormont's own addressed the county junior farmer's association Saturday night and challenged the club to re-establish agriculture as a top priority in the organization.

Avonmore farmer Jim Wert, soon to end his year-long term as provincial president of Ontario Junior Farmers' Association, has travelled all over the province but Stormont's annual meeting was his first opportunity to address his friends and neighbors.

"This is home and I've always wanted to speak in front of my county," he told the large audience at Crysler Community Centre.

"I'm here tonight to talk about tomorrow because I'm almost ready to get off that junior farmers' bus," he said, recalling he had first become involved in the club because he wanted to play fastball.

"It's going to be a challenge I hope counties right across Ontario will take up in the future."

He said the provincial association has been wrestling for the last four years with the role agriculture should play in the organization.

"The problem is we have to find our niche, our area." With only between 3 and 4 per cent of Canadians living on farms, he suggested junior farmers could teach the non-farm population of the significance of agriculture.

"I'm proposing that there is a need for agricultural awareness both inside and outside our organization," he said after quizzing the crowd on its knowledge of farm population, productivity, prices and revenue.

Yet he said there has been a disappointing lack of interest in pursuing agricultural education. When the Ministry of Agriculture and Food approached the provincial junior farmers' association to help design a long-term farm education program, he said only four of 119 clubs took on the project.

"How is Stormont to tackle agriculture education? Slowly and with detail," he proposed.

He suggested the club could invite a Cornwall service organization to a farm and a member could explain some pressing issues in the industry.

He also suggested the club could plan a farm day for senior elementary school students. "Don't bring them out and let them play in the hay," he said, adding the visit was intended to make young people aware of farm concerns.

He said junior farmers should take advantage of opportunities to discuss agriculture policies among themselves.

"Not only are you listening to today's leaders, you're rubbing shoulders with tomorrow's," he said. "The ones (organizations) that are going to flourish in the upcoming years are those that are the movers and shakers."

Outgoing club president Barbara-Ann Glaude urged the club "to unlock the valuable ideas which the 1986 executive would love to have to work with. Give them the tools that they need."

Among the highlights of 1985, she cited the second year of sponsoring an African foster child, the Ottawa-Carleton judging competition, a Montreal Expos baseball game, a white water rafting expedition, the Avonmore fair petting zoo, the donation of a horseshoe pitch at Finch senior citizens apartments, livestock evaluation tour and many sports competitions and dances.

Stormont Junior Farmers presented Frank Kramer with a senior merit award Saturday night in recognition of his participation in a provincial leadership camp, local club activities and Sing Swing, an annual conference of dancers, actors and singers from clubs across Ontario. The Junior merit award went to Stormont Dairy Princess Alice Tanner, who also reprensented the club at Sing Swing and helped with Stormont club projects. Record Photo-Johnston

In Memoriams

IN MEMORIAM
GROVES — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Keith who passed away Feb. 14, 1983.
There is a precious flower still blooming in my heart
That holds so many memories I know not where to start
The memories of my married life of days both good and bad
Of things that made me happy and things that made me sad
There was always that special someone to brighten up my day
And made my life worth living in a very special way.
I wish that I had told him just what he meant to me
I did not know without him how lonely life could be
He smiled away the heart aches and laughed away the tears
Oh how I had grown to love him throughout those many years.
Now, looking back on memories upon the path we trod
We're thankful for the years we had you Dad
And leave the rest to God.
Sadly missed by Edith and son Allan

IN MEMORIAM
GROVES — In loving memory of a dear father Keith, who passed away Feb. 14, 1983.
The pearly gates were opened
A gentle voice said "Come,"
And with farewells unspoken
He gently entered home.
Always remembered, Junior and Sheila

IN MEMORIAM
In memory of the Rupert's of Burnard who passed away on Nov. 26, 1979. Kenneth who passed away on Feb. 15, 1980 and Mabel who passed away on Dec. 18, 1983. We miss you all.

In Memoriams

IN MEMORIAM
LANG — In loving memory of a dear mother who passed away Feb. 16, 1976.
As we loved her so we miss her.
In our memory ever she is near.
Loved, remembered, longed for always.
Bringing many a silent tear.
Ian, Judy and Wendy
25

IN MEMORIAM
HEWSTON — In loving memory of a dear grandmother who passed away Jan. 29, 1985.
When days are dark, friends few,
Grandma, dear, we think of you.
Friends are friends if they are true,
We lost our best when we lost you.
Ian, Judy and Wendy

IN MEMORIAM
McDONALD — In loving memory of a dear sister and aunt Beatrice who passed away March 11, 1984
This month comes back with sad regrets
It recalls a day I will never forget
You fell asleep without goodbye
But our memories of you will never die.
Sadly missed by Tony, Ralph and Family

IN MEMORIAM
McDONALD — In memory of a dear niece Beatrice who passed away March 11, 1984.
The heavenly gates stood open,
Two years ago today
With goodbyes unspoken
She was quickly taken away.
She would not wish for sorrow,
She would not wish for tears,
But just to be remembered,
By us throughout the years.
Remembered by Aunt Kathleen Bouck and Family

Christine's Cuisine

By Christine Must

KAHLUA SWEETHEART CAKE

¾ cup unsweetened cocoa (175ml)
1 teaspoon instant coffee crystals (5ml)
1 cup boiling water (125ml)
½ cup Kahlua (124ml)
½ cup butter (125ml)
¼ cup shortening (50ml)
1¾ cup sugar (425ml)
3 large eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla (5ml)
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour (500ml)
1½ teaspoons baking soda (8ml)
¾ teaspoon salt (4ml)
¼ teaspoon baking powder (2ml)
2 tablespoons Kahlua for layers (30ml)
Kahlua Fudge Frosting

Preheat oven to 350 F (180C). Line bottom of 2 layer cake pans (9"x1½" - 23 cm) with baking parchment and lightly grease sides of pan. Blend cocoa, coffee crystals and water. Add Kahlua and cool. Beat butter, shortening, sugar, eggs and vanilla together with mixer until light and fluffy. At low speed or by hand beat in the sifted dry ingredients alternately with cooled chocolate mixture. Divide batter evenly between the prepared pans. Bake on center rack 25 to 30 minutes, just until cake tests done. Be careful not to overbake. Cool in pans 5 to 10 minutes, then turn out, remove paper liner and cool layers completely on wire rack. Brush bottom of each layer with a tablespoon Kahlua. Put layers together with Kahlua Fudge Frosting, then swirl frosting on sides and over top in wide petal pattern. If desired, set dark chocolate covered thin mints at an angle around top of cake. Let stand until frosting is set.

Makes 10 to 12 servings.

KAHLUA FUDGE FROSTING

6 oz. semi-sweet chocolate
¼ cup Kahlua (50ml)
¼ cup half and half cream (50ml)
1 cup butter (250ml)
1½ cups icing sugar (625ml)

Stir semi-sweet chocolate pieces, Kahlua, cream and butter over medium heat until chocolate melts. Remove from heat and blend in icing sugar (free from lumps). Beat until frosting holds its shape. To hasten cooling place pan over ice water.

Real Estate

by: Larry Stevens REALTOR

HIGH RATIO MORTAGE LOAN

Since 1964, several new mortgage plans have been introduced by private lending institutions that enable you to borrow up to 90% of the value of a lot and house. Previously, a Canadian buying a home under a conventional (non-NHA) mortage had to either come up with 25% of the value or obtain a second mortgage or assume the original mortgage.

Lending institutions operating through federal legislation are now authorized to make mortgage of more than 75% of property value, provided the amount in excess is insured through Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation or a private insurer such as Mortgage Insurance Company of Canada.

A mortgage insurance premium is payable by the borrower and it may be spread out over a number of years by adding it to the mortgage. The premium varies from 1% to 2½% of the loan, depending on the percentage of lending value that is insured.

Rotary gives support to Rotel project

By C.A. Graham

We enjoyed another fine meal served by Mrs. Espinoza and a sing-song led by president Chuck with Margaret Casselman at the piano. Several guests were present to enjoy the fare - Allan Johnston, Wendel Harper and two members from the South Ottawa Rotary club.

The visiting Rotarians were there to explain Rotel to us and to pick up a $1000 cheque from our club to assist in the construction of Rotel. Rotel is a motel type of building on Smyth Road near the hospitals and will be used to accommodate friends and relatives of hospital patients. The interesting part of the project is that although it is sponsored by the South Ottawa Rotary club, only out -of-town people will use the facility.

The pancake breakfast was discussed and it was felt that the affair was the most successful to date, although the profits are less than usual. The club is very grateful to the Rotarians and their wives who spent both days in the kitchen producing the pancakes, sausages, bacon and eggs.

Of course the most important contribution to the success of the breakfasts was the work of the guides, pathfinders and ventures. They took orders and delivered the plates to the customers as fast as the Rotarians could cook the meals, and all this with cheerful smiles and lots of hustle. Girls, we are grateful to you and your leaders.

Last but not least, we are grateful to the companies who contributed their products to the breakfasts. The list is too lengthy to put in this short article but we must mention Nestles. Their continuing contribution to Rotary projects is much appreciated.

The winning number for the draw on the Nestles gift pack is 30240. The winner may pick it up at my home, 30 Queen St. East.

Dr. Charles Adamson, left, president of the Chesterville Rotary, presented Rotel chairman Malcolm Bayne with a cheque for $1,000 Monday night. Mr. Bayne, a member of Ottawa South Rotary, was in Chesterville to promote a fundraising campaign for the 54-unit Rotel.

Successful Chesterville carnival helped by superb weather

(Staff) - Carnival queen Lori Cook reigned over Chesterville's winter celebration here last weekend. The four-day carnival, said organizers, went splendidly with great participation and weather to match.

Lori, 16, was assisted by princess April Countryman during the weekend festivities.

Recreation director Dave Arnold said the carnival itself was well attended in most areas and organizers and volunteers "should be congratulated for giving their time."

Mr. Arnold said "the weather was superb and the rink on Saturday and Sunday was a fabulous success."

By the end of this week most of the participating organizations should have totalled their receipts and the African famine relief fund being supported by Chesterville's carnival will be enhanced by a donation from the village.

Thursday night's talent show, a community favorite, featured appearances by the seven contestants for the title of carnival queen. As well, the entertainment was as good as ever with young Troy Cross, a talented pianist, the judges' pick for best overall performer. In second place in the variety segment was Donna Prentice of Vankleek Hill. Winner of the song contest was Pauline Prentice, Vankleek Hill, with Finch's Emilie Prunner runner-up in second spot. The concert was hosted by Mike Junta of CHEZ 106 and was organized by Isabel Smith.

Successfully defending their title for the second year in a row were the Chesterville volunteer firefighters. They were victorious over Finch firefighters in the tug o war event.

The ice sculpture prize was won by Karen Parker who designed some turtles in her back yard.

Some were properly attired in work boots and plaid jackets and some of the younger ones wore skates, but the annual logsawing contest near the refreshment booth on the river was a success.

In the crosscut sawing competition for boys aged 16 and under, Gerry VanKessel and Jason Kennedy won first place with a time of 27.88 seconds.

David Barkley and Allen Picard were second, with a time of 46.45.

Perdina Wolfe and Karen Parker combined for a time of 35.14 seconds in the category for girls 16 and under to win first prize.

Carey Kennedy and Sarah Derks placed second with a time of 50.89.

A time of 24.18 was good enough to win Marge Countryman and Denney VanDelst first place in the women's crosscut competition.

Betty VandenBosch and Edna Dubois were second with a time of 34.96.

Only three seconds separated first and second place finishers in the men's crosscut division. Bryan Kennedy and John Douma edged the team of Rene VanGilst and Abe Douma with a time of 24.56. Second place was won with a time of 27.69.

In the category for chainsaws under 50 c.c., Greg Sullivan was first with a time of 21.22. Rene VanGilst was second in 33.84 seconds and Debby Gillespie third with 1.26.86.

With a time of 31.8 seconds, Rene VanGilst won the division for chainsaws over 50 c.c. Gary Geertsma was second with 35.5 and Greg Sullivan followed closely with 36.67.

Friday night's big event was the official opening of the carnival at the arena and featured the crowning of the carnival queen and her princess.

Winning that honor was Lori Cook, 16, and April Countryman was runner-up. Miss Cook was the recipient of a color television while all the girls received framed portraits of themselves and sport watches. The queen also won a free portrait sitting at Woody LaPrade Photo.

The pageant was organized by Joyce and Alan Sharkey of the Brookslyn and Al-Mor.

The opening, which was conducted by reeve Carl Ward and Paul Meldrum of the CBC, featured an exhibition of precision skating by members of the Winchester Skating Club.

Saturday's ice events, always a big draw, benefited from perfect weather.

There were only three entries in the third annual children's snow sculpture contest, sponsored by Brandon Earl Erratt.

Organizer Lorilea Erratt blamed the lack of interest on the "sugary snow" conditions prior to the deadline for judging.

However, Karen Parker's sculpture of two turtles, entitled "Motherly Love", captured first place and a plaque.

Mike deBruijn's tugboat placed second and a snow dog crafted by Ivan Arsenault finished third.

First prize in the singing category at Chesterville carnival's talent night went to Pauline Prentice of Vankleek Hill. The trophy was presented by Edwin Earle. Record Photo - Hanrahan

PURPOSE

Under the motto "Self Help and Community Betterment" the Junior Farmer Program provides opportunities for young people, especially those in rural Ontario, to help themselves develop personally and to help better their community. This is achieved through social and educational activities which satisfy the personal needs and interests of the individuals involved, and through service projects which meet the needs of their community.

This program helps to develop in its members a sense of social responsibility, the ability to provide effective leadership, and an awareness of the duties of a citizen.

The Junior Farmers' Association of Ontario provides coordination and leadership to affiliated Clubs and Associations, and provides opportunities for these groups to participate in a variety of inter-club activities. It serves as the means through which the basic and fundamental principles of the Junior Farmer program may be developed and maintained throughout Ontario.

JUNIOR FARMER SONG

The Junior Farmers everywhere are marching right along,
Our eyes are bright, our steps are light and on our lips a song.

We give our best with all our zest in harmony we grow,
The Junior Farmers in the Province of Ontario.

The land is ours, we treasure it, a heritage have we,
The country is the finest place, on this we all agree.

So let us face the future, one and all with hearts aglow,
The Junior Farmers in the Province of Ontario.

Jr. C Flyers take over lead

(Staff) - The Chesterville Junior "C" Flyers have taken over first place in the Eastern Ontario Junior "C" Hockey League (EOJCHL) standings, two points ahead of Embrun with two more wins added to their record this week. They have gone undefeated in 10 games.

Tuesday's match in Chesterville was to be against the Embrun 72s and Flyers coach Mike Armstrong said in an interview on Friday, "The season all boils down to our game against Embrun," referring to the fact if they did defeat the 72s that a first place standing would almost be guaranteed.

"If we play half as good as we have been," said Armstrong, "we should beat them. Embrun is a high-scoring and good-skating team. We'll have to concentrate on a good defense and do a lot of backchecking."

"Tuesday's game is really a four-point game," said Armstrong.

At home last Tuesday the Flyers took an easy 7-3 victory over St. Isidore Eagles.

The Flyers were the first to light up the scoreboard in the match with a power-play goal scored by Pete Van Kessel at 10:43 in the first as he scored with a wrist shot from close range after receiving a pass from linemate's Mark Guy and Barkley.

Barkley replied for the Flyers second power-play goal at 6:43 as he took a slap shot from the blue line with Vince Cousineau picking up on the assist to give the Flyers a 2-0 lead over the Eagles.

Seconds later St. Isidore rallied with a goal scored by Mario Charlebois to narrow the 86s lead to 2-1.

Two goals scored within the five-minute mark in the first period gave the Flyers a strong first period lead of 4-1 over the Eagles.

Jerrold Boulanger answered for the first goal unassisted with a low wrist shot put in the corner. Then Kevin Byers collected the second goal when he received a pass from Ken Byers and Sam Gibson to lead over St. Isidore 4-1.

The Flyers continued to add to their lead with the first goal scored in the second period at 13:50 scored by Jerrold Boulanger as Carl Bartholemew and Mike Harper powered for the assist.

One minute later the Eagles capitalized on the short-handed Chesterville team and narrowed their lead to 5-2.

At 6:47 in the second period the Eagles scored what proved to be their last goal of the match as the Flyers were short-handed again to close in on the Flyers 5-3.

The Flyers' Bartholemew answered for the team's sixth goal with a bullet shot from the blue line that the Eagles goalie didn't even see at the 12-minute mark in the third.

Tallying the Flyers last goal to defeat the Eagles 7-3 was Kevin Moore as he received a pass from linemate s Ken Byers and Rene Boulanger as St. Isidore was short-handed and the puck was deflected into the net.

On Thursday the Flyers scored three power-play goals to defeat Alexandria by a narrow 5-4 win with a strong three-goal third period effort to seal the win.

Alexandria was the first to score in the match at 1:42 in the first period on a power-play to tie the match 1-1.

Three minutes later Alexandria replied with a tie-breaking goal to lead over the Flyers 2-1.

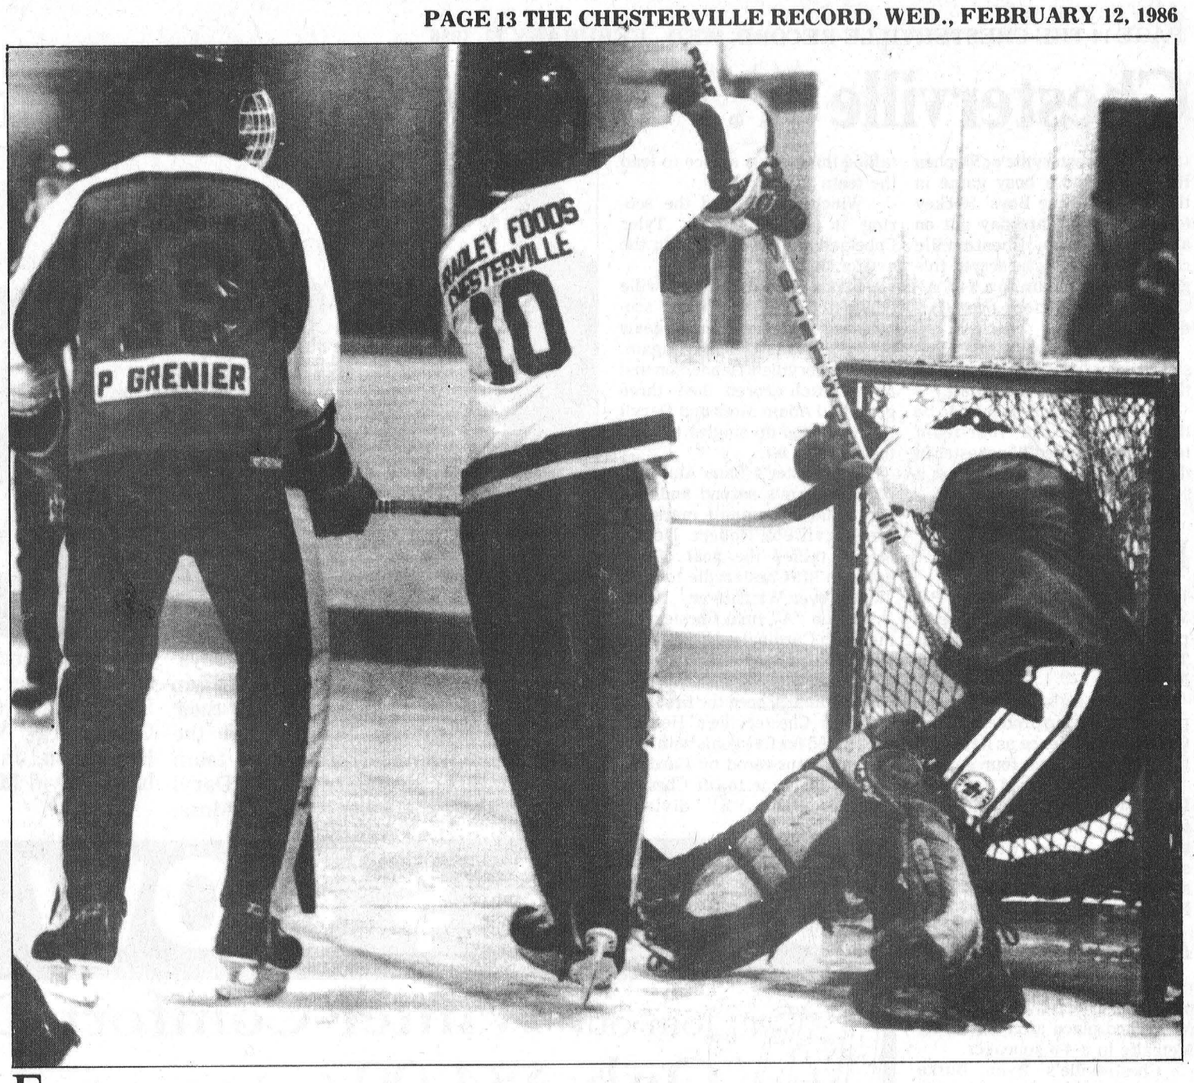
Jerrold Boulanger then quickly answered for a goal to tie the game again .

Alexandria managed to squeeze in one more before the end of the second period to lead over the Flyers 3-2.

Moore scored the tying goal for the Flyers at 14:30 in the third as Barkley and Cousineau combined for the assist.

At the 13-minute mark Alexandria scored to lead 4-3 .

It was Barkley's tying goal and Cousineau's tie-breaker in the remaining time of the third period that put the finishing touches on Thursday's 5-4 win



Excuse me

The St. Isidore Eagles goalie, Christian Lagivne got a little more than a puck in the stomach as Chesterville Flyers Vince Cousineau (No. 10) puts on the pressure at the net. The Eagles couldn't handle the pressure on Tuesday in Chesterville and lost to the Flyers 7-3.

We believe by modernizing and updating your present system, we can accomplish this for you. To show you that we mean what we say, we offer you a "FREE EFFICIENCY TEST" of your oil heating equipment. Our technicians are trained to perform the most up-to-date analysis of your system with our new electronic equipment.
