Newsbriefs

(Staff) - So far there's a blank slate in Chesterville village. The municipality is the only one around where, at the time of going to press, anyone who throws his hat into the ring can automatically be acclaimed to council.

The deadline for submitting nomination papers is October 21 at 5pm. However, acting Chesterville village clerk Glenna McIntosh said she can extend that deadline to October 23 in the event no candidates present themselves for the election.

With a battle for reeve in the persons of current reeve Carl Ward and deputy reeve Jim Cook, the only election likely in the village is at the top.

Bert VanKessel, a former deputy reeve of the village, has indicated he plans to run again for this position.

At the level of councillor the incumbents, Rudi Derstroff, Mike Brannen and Jim Sullivan, have all announced they will not seek another term.

Water supply

BERWICK (Staff) - It looks like the village of Crysler will get its new sewage and community water supply soon. Enviroment ministry funds have been confirmed for the extensive project.

Council should receive offical confirmation of the availability of government grants in the near future since representatives of the Ministry of the Environment have indicated money would be available for engineering work in 1986.

Council members have said if the engineering work is completed in 1986 they can look forward to construction of the project in the spring of 1987.

Last January, details of the proposed water and sewage systems were presented at a public meeting.

Loose change

INGLESIDE (Staff) - An Ingleside man's small coin collection, valued a more than $300, was stolen sometime last week-end.

The theft of several old coins, dating between 1702 and 1937 from Ingleside resident Leonard Bergeron was reported Monday.

They could have been stolen any time between Oct. 10 and 14. Constable Terry Rutherford of the Long Sault OPP detachment is investigating.

Seeks seat

MOREWOOD (Staff) - Winchester Township's deputy reeve has decided to throw his hat into the ring again. Seeking the office in the upcoming municipal election is Claude Cousineau who has served for the last three years as deputy reeve and four years as councillor before that. Mr. Cousineau indicated council should direct its energies into expanding the tax base in the township "keeping property taxes at a reasonably low rate compared to some of the surrounding municipalities."

Carl and Sandra Mayhew, Church Road residents, saw their home go up in a mass of flames around 9am yesterday. The fire, which spread rapidly, levelled the house and precluded efforts by the Williamsburg Volunteer Fire Department to save the dwelling.

Fire destroys log home on Church Road

(Staff) - A 9am blaze Tuesday levelled the home of Carl and Sandra Mayhew on the Church road south of Chesterville. The log home, which had been expanded over the years, was attached to a woodshed. Everything in the house was lost although no one was injured.

Mr. and Mrs. Mayhew were cleaning the barn at the time the fire broke out and as they emerged from the outbuilding they saw smoke coming from their house.

"When I opened the door," said Mr. Mayhew, "smoke just rolled out."

The house, located opposite the home of Graham Wells, was once owned by him and was the former Wells homestead. Nothing was saved from the burning building.

Williamsburg township fire chief Lyle Kehoe said the fire was impossible to contain and his men were waiting on site in case the wind should change and endanger buildings located nearby.

Chief Kehoe said he did not know what caused the fire but that his men would "have a look round" when the ashes finally stopped smouldering. He said the woodshed portion of the house would burn "for some time."

The alarm was given when Mrs. Mayhew ran to the home of a neighbor, Heather Wells, who telephoned the fire department.

The Mayhews add their three children will be accomodated with friends and relatives, Mr. Mayhew said.

Local school trustees seeking office again

(Staff) - After nine years on public and separate school boards, Sarsfield O'Connor will seek re-election as the separate school representative on the S.D. and G. County Board of Education.

But with the extension of full-funding to Roman Catholic secondary schools, his term will end in December, 1986.

Mr. O'Connor has represented Roman Catholic ratepayers in Dundas County and west Stormont in issues of high school education for the last five years. In the mid-1970s, he served four years on the S.D. and G. Roman Catholic Separate School Board.

About two months ago, he said, the provincial government decided that the positions of some 200 trustees like himself would disappear at the end of next year. "We knew the writing was on the wall," he said.

He said 62 per cent of the board's high school students come from separate elementary schools. (In Dundas, only about 10 per cent attend Roman Catholic elementary school.) But only two per cent of the counties' secondary school students attend separate high schools.

He said the transition of students cannot be accomplished "in one year and one month" but at the end of that time, there will be no representative of hundreds of students from separate schools coming into the public system.

He described the S.D. and G. board as "broad-minded" and believes the seven trustees representing Roman Catholic taxpayers have had a "stabilizing influence".

He said the board has successfully provided a high quality education for all students and counts among its accomplishments special education, afffirmative action in teaching positions and co-operative education for students not academically oriented.

Most local trustees will run Nov. 12 for the three-year term. The deadline for nominations to both public and separate school boards is Oct. 21.

Graham Casselman of Winchester Springs will run as trustee for the public board in the township of Winchester. He was defeated in 1982, then appointed to the board in December, 1983 after the death of trustee Lorne Thompson.

"I think it's been quite a learning experience," said Mr. Casselman of his first two years.

Although full funding of separate high schools will mean changes for the board, Mr. Casselman said they'll be gradual. He said only a small number of students -- between 50 and 60 -- transferred this year.

"The only other issue in the capital investment in upgrading our schools," he said, adding that's a perennial concern of the board.

Reeve likely to be UC warden

(Staff) - Ralph MacKenzie is prepared to become Warden of the United Counties, the first from Finch Township in almost 40 years.

As chairman of the counties' finance committee and a representative from Stormont County, the Finch Jersey farmer is next in line for the Warden's job, provided he's re-elected in November.

No one has yet challenged him for the reeve's seat, a position he's held for the last five years.

"We feel we need a new home for the aged and that's one of the main items on the agenda," he said last week of his priorities if he becomes Warden in November.

He said the counties also need more office space and he would support the planned upgrading of computer systems in the social services department. He added that aspects of the roads department night also be computerized.

The position of Warden rotates annually among Dundas, Glengarry and Stormont politicians who successively chair the counties' social services, roads and bridges, and finance committees.

The last warden from the township ws Kenzie MacGillivrary in 1947. Previous Finch Wardens include Henry C. Nugent in 1932, Robert C. Bogart in 1926 and in 1902 Hugh McMillan, who was an International Harvester Company dealer in Finch village.

If re-elected Mr. MacKenzie would replace Ewen MacDonald, reeve of Charlottengurg Township. The plumbing and heating contractor has announced he won't run in upcoming municipal elections.

As his term draws to an end, Mr. MacDonald said he considers the sale of the counties nursing home, St. Lawrence Estate in Charlottenburg Township, and the opening of Woodland Villa, a private nursing home in Long Sault, highlights of his tenure as Warden.

Although a Warden probably won't see the end of projects he initiated, Mr. MacDonald doesn't consider the one-year term too brief.

Mr. MacKenzie agreed. "You may not get it completed but you get it started," he said. "Being the way we work in S.D. and G., ones on the executive committee know what's going on."

Unlike some other municipalities, S.D. and G. does not elect a Warden. "If you just drop somebody into a new position, he doesn't have the background," said Mr. MacKenzie.

Having sat on the counties' executive for the last three years, he said he's aware of issues and projects already undersay.

Public meeting called for community centre

CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - A 14-week study on the feasibility of building a new multi-purpose community centre in Chesterville will be kicked off Oct. 28 with a public meeting in the village's present 51-year-old community hall.

The study, given the green light by Chesterville council last month after more than a year of preliminary study, will determine how much a new building would cost, where it would be located, what facilities it would include and whether a new facility is needed at all.

A Nepean consulting firm, Sesquaig Inc., has been hired to help conduct the research.

Although a provincial grant to cover 75 per cent of the study's $9,500 price tag has not yet been approved, Sesquaig Inc. has told the village it is willing to go ahead with the study.

The firm, which was selected from tender in April, 1984, has also pledged to halve its costs if the grant does not come through.

The village's present community centre located at the corner of Mill and King Streets above the town hall, has long been a source of controversy for both Chesterville council and the recreation department.

Plagued by overcrowding, a shortage of parking, complaints from neighbors about noise and poor access for the handicapped and the elderly, the upstairs hall last underwent extensive renovations in the mid-1970s.

Despite the problems, Chesterville recreation director Dave Arnold said Monday the feasibility study is in no way a quick attempt at pushing through a new community centre.

"I don't want people to feel threatened by this study," said Mr. Arnold, a member of a local five-man feasibility set up in March 1984, to coordinate the research. "I don't want people to say "There's Dave Arnold. He wants a new community centre.' "

"What this study is all about is to determine whether there is a need for multi-purpose community centre."

To find out, service groups, organizations and individuals will be asked to submit their views in written and oral presentations.

Chesterville residents will also be receiving a questionnaire asking if they would like to see a new centre built and what they would like to see a new centre built and what they would like to see included in it.

Views of residents living in Williamsburg township and Winchester township will be polled in a random telephone survey.

"We are going to listen to any concerns on a personal basis, plus or minus," said Mr. Arnold. "If people don't think we should have a new hall, that's fine."

Included in the feasibility study will be the possible benefits to the village arena by building a new community centre close by.

Because the village owns the land around the arena, Mr. Arnold said pairing the arena and a community centre would be relatively easy and would immediately solve the parking dilemma.

"Because of its location, the present hall doesn't enhance the use of the arena," he said. "An arena and a hall should go hand in hand with things like tournaments and special events. What we want to find out is if it would be more profitable to have the hall beside the arena."

The arena location, he added, would also solve the current parking problem that has had residents before council complaining about cars parked in front of their driveways and on their lawns during hall events.

Mr. Arnold said a "ball park" figure for a

Also a constant is the realignment of staff, space and money to accommodate shifting enrolment. "That's always a concern and part of the housekeeping part in the system," he said.

"Declining enrolment has pretty well levelled out," he said. "I think we've probably almost come to the valley of declining enrolment."

Ingleside resident William Fleming, who has served a term and a half representing Osnabruck and Finch townships, will seek re-election.

With respect to full funding, he said he's most concerned about its effect on small, rural schools. "That's the main one that people seem to be worried about and educational people are worried about, too."

But because it is "the law of the land", he said, "then we have to go on and make it work." He said the transition is "going as smoothly as can be expected".

As the debate over funding continues, he predicts the next term will be very busy. "I'm sort of looking forward to it. There'll be a lot of challenges, to be sure."

Fraser Campbell of the Maxville area has been a trustee since 1969 and will run again to represent the townships of Roxborough and Kenyon.

He said last week the board will follow the direction of the provincial government in implementing full funding. "Whatever the government passes, we try to make it work."

Gerry Rosenquist, public board trustee for Williamsburg Township and the village of Morrisburg, could not be reached for comment.

Suzanne Charette, who represented the townships of Roxborough and Finch on the separate school board for five years, will not seek re-election because of a recent move to Hawkesbury.

She's supporting Alphonse Lafrance, a Crysler area dairy farmer, in a bid to represent the area.

A trustee from 1976 to 1978, a member of the French advisory committee for secondary schools and a father of six, Mr. Lafrance said he's anxious to see first-hand how full funding will be implemented.

He would also like to see parents become more involved in their children's education.

"It's their system. It's their kids and lots of times they don't know even who's going to run (for trustee)," he said. "I think they're afraid of the system. They're afraid of talking."

He said the board must work within the constraints of the provincial government. "We get all the directives from Toronto. We get the money from Toronto," he said, adding the board functions often only as bureaucrats carrying out instructions.

Terrence Wheeler, a Martintown area resident, will seek re-election in Cornwall and Osnabruck Townships. "I thought I'd give it one more try," said the trustee of about 15 years.

He plans a "low key campaign" but said, "You have to be in the pulpit before you can preach."

Peter VanMoorsel, chairman of the board for the last two years and a member for seven, will run in November to represent Dundas County on the separate school board.

"It was very, very busy," he said of the last term.

Diabetes fundraiser

FINCH (Staff) - A major fund raising event for the cause of the Canadian Diabetes Foundation will be held here November 6 when the Finch and District Lions Club sponsors a dance featuring Sylvester MacDonald and the Clansmen. The event is featured as part of the 1985 annual appeal. The location is Finch Arena Community Hall.

new hall would range between $300,000 and $500,000 and that going ahead with the project would depend upon the availability of provincial grants.

Even if grants are not available in the near future -- the government is currently deciding on whether to approve grants for new construction -- Mr. Arnold said the money spent on the study will not be wasted.

"I think it will be money well spent," he said. "This study will hopefully bring to light the issues surrounding the current facilities.

"Whether we get a new community hall in two or three years may not be the most important thing. The important thing is that we've never gone through a community planning progress report and now we have an opportunity to set some goals and objectives to work towards."

Objectives of the feasibility study will be outlined during an Oct. 28 meeting at the community hall starting at 7:30. Residents for and against the proposal to build a new hall are urged to attend the meeting and express their views.

Calling all candidates

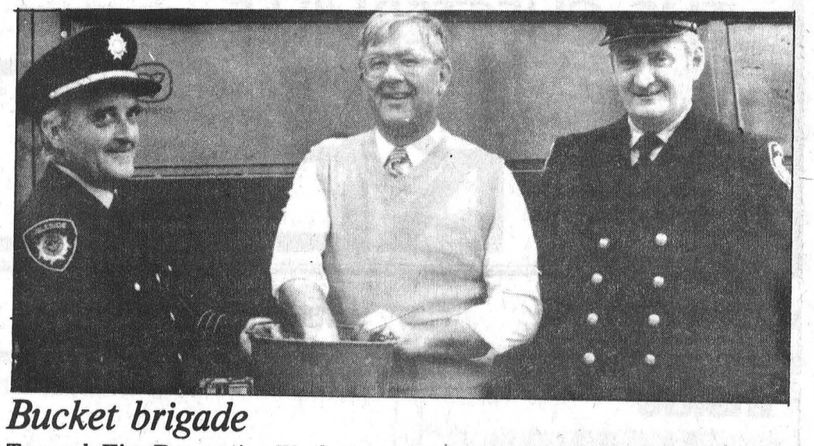
The Record newsroom staff will be on hand on Saturday, October 19 to photograph any candidates running for area councils and school boards who would like to take advantage of this free service.

The pictures will be used in Record news stories covering election events such as all candidates meetings and press conferences.

Anyone wishing to have his or her photo taken should come into the office between 10am and 12 noon.

Strike possible

CORNWALL (Staff) - Unionized employees of the Eastern Ontario Health Unit will be in a strike position October 19. Union spokesman Steve Backs said last week his group has not yet set a strike date because he thinks a strike can still be avoided. The unit's 49 employees, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) voted in September in favor of striking to back their contract demands. Alderman Ray Lalonde has said there are no funds available to meet these demands.



Bucket brigade

To mark Fire Prevention Week several volunteer fire departments got into the act with fundraising events throughout the area. The Osnabruck township department was no exception and joined a promotion by McDonald's. Rothwell-Osnabruck vice-principal Earl Jeacle, centre, pulled the winning ticket for a student to receive a smoke detector compliments of the fire department. All the tickets were sent to Cornwall for a raffle to become fireman (or woman) for a day with the Cornwall Fire Department. Deputy chief Harold Hollister, left, holds the fire water bucket while Laurie Rodger lends assistance. The winner of the smoke detector was Sherry Helmer.

Paging system

(Staff) - Ingleside fire department is using a new paging system to ensure that all calls are answered quickly. Calls are now automatically received in Cornwall, which in turn will activate a siren in the village to alert all firefighters.

"After Oct. 9 it'll be hooked up and we hope it'll pan out for us," said Ernie Gillard, chief of the Ingleside division of the Osnabruck Township fire department.

Mr. Gillard said last week the new system, Cam-Page, will offer coverage "24 hours a day, 365 days a year."

Calls had been received in the homes of four firemen and Mr. Gillard said they've had to arrange schedules so someone will always be in one of the homes to answer the telephone.

"It (Cam-Page) is sure going to ease the pressure on the guys who have the phones," he said. "All the conversation and everything else is all taped and we then have feedback in the event of an investigation."

The department is also involved with a campaign by McDonald's restaurants to have each home draw up an evacuation plan in case of fire.

"This is where most of our fatalities are, they're in the home," he said. "By doing this, it makes the people familiar in the event they did have a fire and had to get out."

The child submitting the best plan will be "fire chief for a day" at the station later this year.

Weekend cigarettte heist

(Staff) - Two bottles of wine and a couple of cartons of cigarettes were all thieves stole after breaking into the Chesterville Legion Hall on the week-end.

"They seem to like DuMaurier cigarettes," Legion president Roger Richer said Tuesday. "We have a color television in there and all sorts of other things but that's all they touched."

The theft was reported at 7pm Monday when Mr. Richer and a group of members entered the hall to do some repair work.

Other than the liquor and cigarettes, which Winchester police value at $60, Mr. Richer said the greatest loss is damage to the refrigerator.

"We have this huge refrigerator with glass doors and it's locked so they broke the glass," he said, adding it'll be difficult to repair.

Winchester police said the break-in occurred sometime between noon Sunday and Monday night. The thieves entered the hall by prying open a south window but did no damage to the building. Constable Bryan Helmer is investigating.

The detachment is investigating a second week-end break-in at the Winchester arena. Police said Tuesday it occurred Sunday night or early Monday morning.

A small amount of cash was stolen. Constable Martin Berlin is investigating.

Another election?

Reading the political entrails this week there have been a few predictions of another provincial election in the wind.

Our own MPP in this riding, Noble Villeneuve, says watch out for an April 24 call to the polls. The Tories in Toronto claim May 2 is their bet for premier Peterson's announcement he'll face the people.

The premier's problem is that because his party failed to procure the most votes last time around he governs with the professed support of the New Democratic Party. The trouble with such deals is the NDPers are holding him virtually hostage to a series of reform-type legislative projects they want to see presented to Queen's Park. Indeed, the NDP wrote the agenda, handed it to Mr. Peterson and told him get on with it and ratify the NDP proposals into law.

This of course sticks in the craw even of the centrist party in provincial politics and Mr. Peterson and his ministers are discovering most of the NDP-inspired programs are extremely costly to the taxpayer.

He is hinting, as a consequence, he may have to raise taxes. We have been warned several times by the premier we'll have to tighten our belts in order to pay for these reforms as envisioned by the NDP.

As well, many of the proposed program changes represent Liberal campaign promises. Such plans cost money and the Liberals are very quickly discovering the difficulties attached to governing and the compromises and deflections necessary to balance political power.

What Mr. Peterson is aiming for, if he decided to call a spring election, is a positive mandate to govern from the Ontario people and the opportunity to dispose of that socialist albatross around his neck.

No extra billing

It is our firm belief that under no circumstances must extra billing of patients be allowed in this province, or indeed in any area of this country.

District health councils will soon be organizing one-day community consultations in nine Ontario cities.

One of the Ontario Liberal party's promises during the last provincial election campaign was to put an end to extra billing by physicians. That objective is currently being kept in the forefront of provincial matters by the NDP, the Liberals' partner in the political alliance which ousted the Tories and brought premier David Peterson to power.

Regrettably, the Ontario Medical Association appears to have opted negotiations. As a consequence the health ministry has gone to the people, to a wide spectrum of opinion in the health field.

Ontario residents pay a high premium for their health care as OHIP charges are among the highest paid anywhere in Canada. Indeed, most provinces do not operate a premium system at all.

To impose extra charges on patients is wrong, morally speaking.

We must be careful not to allow the health system, maybe the best in the world, to creep backwards towards the American model. In that country treatment of a serious disease like cancer usually wipes out a family's savings in spite of private health insurance systems.

There must be strong public and government opposition to plans by doctors to charge over and above what they receive from their current scale of payments.

The Farmer's Wife

by Wyn Thompson

We camped at Myrtle Beach State Park bent on savoring the joys of a holiday caught between the completion of silo filling and the harvesting of the grain corn crop.

The hurricane watch was upgraded to a hurricane warning at 7:15am on September 25 at the Myrtle Beach State Park. It was earmarked as the worst hurricane of the century.

Of one accord, the campers arose and began to break camp. Cautious souls that we are, after helping our friend Edith batten down some of her property the previous night, we had hurried back to our camp in the State Park and made preparations to evacuate on a moments notice.

All care taken, food, medications and water in the car, gas in the tank, we settled by a little campfire and listened to the radio until midnight. We went to bed and slept fitfully until 5am arose and made coffee, and when the warning was announced returned to our friend Edith's helped her secure her home erring on the side of caution but knowing if the winds reached 130 miles per hour our attempts would be futile, then started out on the evaculation route 501 to Marion, hoping to get far enough inland to avoid 'Gloria's' wrath.

It was 10:30am and the evacuation was orderly, albeit bumper to bumper. A slight drizzle and scudding grey clouds with very little wind accompanied us. Nothing ominous yet!

A weird feeling to be following the directions of regular radio bulletins on such a gentle day. So far! There had been no rush in the campground, just consistent movement forward. No dallying. No talking. No tittering.

At 11:40am we passed a business that had a sign out saying, "12 hours to Gloria - drive safely".

We proceeded inland about 90 miles and camped the night, monitoring Gloria's progress. At 9:30am the next morning, in full sunshine, we returned to Myrtle Beach State Park, an area that had mercifully been spared. Communities to the north had not been so blessed. A cold air mass had moved in on high and pushed Gloria out beyond the South Carolina coast, thus began life as usual.

The air base across from the Park had been evaculated and we sat on the Beach and watched the Warthogs, planes of the North American Defence System, returned in twos and fours to the base from which they, too, had been evacuated a few short hours before.

We had a good visit with a nursing sister from the base, a friend of our friend Edith, who told us of the base hospital evacuation and her trip inland with a patient who had recently been operated on. And of her chagrin, as she told the pilot of the helicopter, that it was too warm in the cabin, when he simply flung open the 'copter door. She laughingly said, having flown transport before, that she expected he would simply turn a few knobs.

Life quickly returned to normal after "the storm that wasn't." We spent a great deal of time on the beaches, just lolling about and watching the birds. A myriad of shore birds can be found along South Carolina's Grand Strand starting with the tiny sandpipers and progressing up to the three foot high pelicans and great herons with their six foot wing spreads.

Easily the clown of the seabird world, the pelican can be seen diving for fish at least two times every day. Sporting a wingspread of six feet, short legs and webs between all four toes, their appearance fits their comical personalities. The large pouches under their bills are used for scooping when fishing.

Some egrets are found in the pools and streams. Most are white and a little larger than their kin, the heron. Once in danger of extinction because of their beautiful plumage the egret to protected by various national and international protection bodies.

But my favorite is the tiny sandpiper with its greenish legs and light brown back feathers, their bodies measuring only five to six inches long. They scurry along the beaches as intent on their business as little old ladies hurrying to a tea party. "They dislike getting their feet wet as much as Lady does," the Farmer commented, as they scurried inland with each approaching wave.

One of the Myrtle Beach papers received a tremendous nod of approval from the farmer. Its front page sported a picture of a beautiful four horse team pulling together, below which one read "Everyone knows that farmers have a tough row to hoe, and that it takes courage and perseverance to sustain a farming operation. It's important that our area farmers flourish, and not just for the good of the community, but for the entire nation as well."

"Because when farmers experience difficult times, we all feel the crunch. We believe that if everyone pulls together, lends their support and works with and for this vital American industry, we'll all reap the rich rewards of a unified and prosperous community. Let's not forget that we're all in this together."

Another day we saw some fishermen bringing in their nets and the local populace hurrying down to the beach to buy the fresh product. It was a new experience for us and a most interesting one, although we chose to let the local restaurants cook our seafood

All too soon we had to say good-bye to our Carolina friends and head North where the crisp fall air in Pennsylvania snapped us out of the eighty-five degree lethargy that we had enjoyed for two wonderful weeks on the Grand Strad.

The Life of Riley

by Wayne Riley

I cannot roll the edges of my tongue to form a U and I cannot wiggle my ears.

I can admit these difficiencies now only because I have reached that stage in life where I recognize that a certain gap exists between dreams and realities.

Well, of course, rolling the edges of your tongue to form a U and wiggling your ears are not big dreams. Most people, in fact, would not even mention them in the same breath as, say, winning a million dollars in a lottery or touring Europe for a year.

But every now and then, sitting with friends who have their tongues stuck out in perfect Us and are wiggling their ears without moving their foreheads, the pain of those doomed little dreams come back to haunt me.

Fortunately, this doesn't happen often. It's not that my friends are overly sensitive of my feelings. They simply don't feel it's mature to perform these amazing feats too often in public.

But, lucky them, even when things are going badly, they at least have these amazing feats to pull out of the bag to tell the world they are no ordinary human beings.

I was thinking about this while watching the Blue Jays play the Kansas City Royals during the third game of the American League championship.

Things were going badly for the Jays. The Royals -- for shame, trying to cash in on the monarchy while at the same time trying to stand in the say of a Canadian success story -- were winning.

Cliff Johnson was at the play. Things were going badly for him as well. He had just swung on a pitch and missed. But he had kept the swing going, corkscrewing himself down to the ground. With 53,000 Royals fans laughing at him while he got himself off home plate, Cliff immediately knew what he had to do.

Cliff walked over to his bat and stepped on the end of it, flicking the handle up into his waiting hand. Even the partisan crowd had to suck in its breath. What a cool move.

The announcers, who know that you should only report such respectable things as "ribbies" and what percentage of hits a player gets when he is facing a left-hander in a tie game on a sunny afternoon on artificial turf while being coached by a man in a crew cut, never made mention of it.

But is was a move that stuck in the mind as solidly as a triple play.

And it made me a little sad, not because Cliff later struck out, but because he had had the drive to stick with it when he was young and learn how to step on a bat and make it flip into his hand.

I had that same dream years ago and let it slip away.

I never played anything more professional than school yard ball and I knew even as a kid that I wouldn't advance any farther in the sport.

But there was hope even there. Like my father always said to me, no matter what you are doing, do it well.

So I worked on the trivial stuff, those rare, but incredibly exciting, plays that made you the star of the game even if your team lost.

I practised catching a softball in my hat, holding it by the beak in front of me and turning my head at the last moment so that the ball, which slipped through the hat nine times out of ten, wouldn't hit me in the face. It was a painful play to practise. But when it worked, it was magic.

I practised throwing my glove at grounders to save a home run and learning how to catch a bat just a hand's width from the butt end so that our team would be up first at the beginning of the game.

And I practised -- oh, how I practised -- stepping on the end of a bat to make it flip up into my hand.

I practised until the sole of my foot ached. I practised until I could not taken another bruise on the inside of my right leg as the bat handle flew up and missed my waiting hand again.

And so, I never starred in a game of school yard softball. I came close once, getting hit with a line drive that knocked me to the ground for several minutes, but the other players determined that I hadn't intentionally walked into the hit and that it therefore wasn't worthy of star status.

But you learn to compensate. Some kids could wow their friends by appearing to swallow their gum and then bringing it back out on their tongue. I learned to balance a pencil between my nose and my upper lip.

Some of the boys learned how to whistle at girls. I tried to whistle and couldn't. So I learned how to exhale and make it sound like an eerie wind.

In other words, my trivial accomplishments lacked the impact of the trivial accomplishments of others.

This might not seem like much until you realize that there are few among us who are secure enough in their major talents to believe that they can stand out on the respectable stuff alone. After watching the versatility of someone opening a pop bottle with a lighter, one has to question the real value of being able to read Latin or of finding the circumference of a circle.

Growing up, I knew I needed something to fall back on. I found it in a deck of cards.

I once saw someone cut a deck, separate the halves, and flip them back together in an arc. What a show stopper. It was beautiful. I spent an entire winter learning that shuffle. And when spring came, I could do it well enough to, if not draw a gasp of amazement, at least draw some quiet admiration from my brothers.

So now I was watching Cliff Johnson strike out in the Blue Jays game. The crowd was looking at Cliff. I was looking at his bat.

I picked up a deck of cards from the end table and gave them a shuffle. I knew what Cliff was thinking as he went slowly back to the dugout. You don't need a World Series ring to feel good about yourself.

Chesterville's Past

05 From the Record, Thurs., Oct. 19, 1905

The people of Mountain Station and vicinity, and particularly the patrons of Mountain No. 1 cheese factory, are exercised over the disappearance of Joseph H. Wilson, proprietor of that factory. Wilson went to Kemptville on the noon train on Monday of last week and was expected home that night.

He failed to return at the appointed time, and next morning there was nobody to receive milk at the factory when the patrons came around. Subsequent investigations show that Mr. Wilson had cashed two cheese cheques on Alex W. Grant & Co., of Montreal, at a local bank, amounting to $700. He went to Prescott that same afternoon.

Previous to leaving he had collected money for cut cheese in the village of Mountain. Mr. Wilson's factory is mortgaged for about $800.

The Canada Feather Washing Co., are at present located at Winchester and every bed and pillow cleaned by them are warranted thoroughly disinfected and germ proof. Highest cash paid for all kinds of feathers. Drop a card if you require their service.

Confirmation services were held in Holy Trinity Church in this place on Thursday evening last when Edyth and Louise Dauley and Edna and Arthur McGee of this place and Mrs. Hart of Winchester had the Apostolic right of confirmation administered to them by the Lord Bishop of Ottawa.

25 From the Record, Thurs., Oct. 15, 1925

Friday night last when the snow storm at its height an involuntary bath was taken in the Nation a short distance below Chesterville when the car driven by a man named Eamer from the vicinity of Newington plunged down the bank and landed in water to within a foot of the roof of the car.

He was proceeding from Winchester to Newington by way of Chesterville but missed the turn at Pitcher's corner and went straight east until coming to a very bad piece of road near the river, there he tried to turn the car and retrace his steps when he lost control with the above result. Had he not been able to break his way through the roof of the car he might have been drowned.

Tuesday morning as Mrs. Curran Kearns was driving to town her horse became frightened at an auto on the Finch road and became unmanageable. Mrs. Curran managed to keep it on the road until turning west from the Stock Farm when it ran into the ditch and in making the turn in front of Tom Allan's slewed the buggy around until it struck the cement sidewalk, when Mrs. Curran was pitched out, receiving minor bruises and a considerable shaking up.

Work is about to commerce on a new electric line by the Hydro connecting up the villages of Russell and Morewood with the Chesterville sub-station. The material for the line has already begun to arrive at the station here and the poles are expected to be on the ground almost immediately when the work will be rushed from this end.

Referring to the snow storm of last week being the earliest appearance of snow in this section for many years a correspondent at Dunbar writes that on the 29th, Sept. 1912, snow fell all day long, not just a flurry. Grain was standing in the stook and some had not been cut. Corn also had not been cut.

45 From the Record, Thurs., Oct. 18, 1945

For the month of September the pupils of the Public Schools of Dundas County made purchases of War Services Stamps to the amount of $645.00. This compares with the sum of $857.00 for September of last year. Purchases per pupil amounted to forty-five cents.

A crowd of about 400 friends and neighbours attended the farewell party in the Community Hall, Monday evening, given for Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Masterson and family on the eve of their departure for Alexandria where Mr. Masterson is entering the lumber business.

Recently the Village Council decided to increase the power of the lights on King and Main streets, after a delegation waited on the October 1st meeting. This experiment was a step in the right direction, but the lighting is still inadequate.

60 From the Record, Thurs., Oct. 13, 1960

Loss has been estimated at between $35,000 and $40,000 in a fire which razed a cheese factory in Crysler Saturday night.

The factory, owned by Edgar Levasseur, was partially covered by insurance.

In Memoriam

IN MEMORIAM

MUNRO — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Harold, who passed away Oct. 16, 1984.
The blow was great, the shock severe;
We little thought his death so near;
Only those that have lost can tell
The sorrow of parting without farewell.
Sadly missed along life's way
Quietly remembered every day,
No longer in our lives to share
But in our hearts you're always there
Friends are friends if they are true,
We lost the best when we lost you.

Dearly loved & sadly missed by wife - Neita

How to cope with addiction:

Parents learn to identify signs of kids' use of drugs and alcohol

(Staff) - Jean Ward, a Chesterville resident and high school teacher, wants parents to stop ignoring the signs of abuse and denying that their children are addicted to drugs or alcohol.

Later this month, she'll repeat a course she first taught last year about the causes and symptoms of children's addiction and how to help both the child and the family recover.

"My concern is knowing that these children's lives have been altered," she said. "My objective is to help the parents help their youngsters."

The free, ten-week course begins Thurs., Oct. 24 with a definition of addiction and a description of the personality type susceptible to substance abuse: low self-esteem, lack of self-confidence, a great desire to be liked by one's peers.

The course deals with addiction to both drugs and alcohol. "They're all mind-altering drugs," she said, adding that drinking but not drug use is socially acceptable. Society, she said, doesn't acknowledge that alcohol is a drug.

Mrs. Ward said denial by both the user and parents that a problem exists is one of the greatest and most common obstacles to overcoming addiction.

She said adults sometimes feel they're failures as parents if their children use drugs or drink and consequently they deny their children are addicted.

To cope, Mrs. Ward said parents must first stop blaming themselves for a decision made by their child. "No matter how badly you feel about yourself, you chose your way of coping," she said of children who turn to alcohol or drugs.

"The one thing all parents have to accept when faced with a family drug problem is that parents do not make kids take drugs. You did not bend their elbow to take their first drink. You did not hold their fingers for that marijuana joint.

"No matter what problems exist in your family, the kid who makes the decision to try drugs does so of his own free will," she said, referring to notes from last year's course.

Among the signs of possible drug or alcohol abuse she lists are: falling school marks, changes in friends and style of dress, sudden loss of interest in sports and hobbies once enjoyed, long periods of time alone.

"Some parents will say all children go through these as a normal part of growing," she said, but experiencing many at once -- "this is not a normal part of development".

Parents sometimes believe their children's changed behavior stems from an emotional or psychological problem. Mrs. Ward said there is "a greater taboo" against having a child who uses drugs than one with emotional disorders.

She cautioned parents against using the excuse of a possible non-drug or - alcohol related problem to explain a child's unusual actions.

"If you haven't identified another problem up to this point," she said, "usually you try to eliminate substance abuse problem."

Last year, about 12 parents attended the course which doubled as a mutual support group for some who had children with addiction problems. Initially, Mrs. Ward said, some came just for information.

But after a few weeks and hearing the stories of other parents, they recognized symptoms of addiction in their own home.

She said some then opened up. "Once they hear that other people can talk about their experiences, then they see it's okay."

Her interest in helping others cope with young people's addiction to drugs and alcohol is the result of confronting an addiction problem with a teenager.

She's taken six courses concerned with various aspects of addiction, including its physho-social impact counselling and interviewing skills, and community services available to abusers and their families.

There are few treatment resources available locally. The Cornwall General Hospital will assess an individual for the severity of an abuse problem to tell whether he or she is at risk of becoming hopelessly addicted.

Rideauwood Institute in Ottawa offers programs specifically for teenage drug addicts and alcoholics and their families.

Our House in Carleton Place has a six-month program for drug and alcohol abusers which, as Mrs. Ward described it, is not "rehabilitative" but "abilitiative". She said it enables young people to assume responsibility for their own lives.

Although fear of others knowing of an abuse problem in their family can keep parents from seeking help, Mrs. Ward said the community already knows of the situations.

She compares an abuse problem to diabetes. If a parent knows his child's body can't tolerate sugar, he is obligated to keep the child from succumbing to the disease.

And if a parent knows his child is abusing drugs or alcohol, and thereby harming himself, he is also obligated to help the child.

Course to start soon

Jean Ward, Chesterville resident and Seaway District High School teacher, will lead a course for parents on how to recognize signs of drug and alcohol abuse in their children. The free, ten-week course at North Dundas District High School begins Oct. 24.

CHRISTINE'S CRISIS

The Record's office manager finds herself in dire straits. Christine Must, who is also needed here to write the cooking column, Christine's Cuisine, belongs to a one-car family and her husband says he needs the car for work.

We think it unseemly that our cooking columnist and keeper-of-order in the front office should have to hitchhike to work.

Chesterville and Berwick initiate religious education course for S. D. and G. board

CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - A little girl stands in the centre of a ring of singing children, smiling but obviously thinking hard.

The children stop, and she suggests a new activity for them to do while they repeat the chorus.

"I'm glad that I'm me, That's who I want to be."

Each day for about half an hour before lunch, Chesterville Public's grade 1 class, sings, pastes and colors as part of a new religious education program.

S.D. and G. County Board of Education has introduced this year a structured program and curriculum of religious education at Chesterville Public and Berwick Public schools.

Chesterville's course, under the direction of grade 1 teacher Phyllis Vollrath, began a few weeks ago but Berwick's course starts in January.

Mrs. Vollrath says her class of six-year-olds likes the material, which covers such topics as coping with rejection, clearly expressing one's fellings, beginning friendships and accepting the consequences of choices.

One day, for example, the chiildren drew pictures of themselves at different ages and described the new skills they had acquired over time. The lesson's goal: to accept one's limitations and accomplishments.

In a later lesson, pupils colored pictures of various professionals, such as firemen, police offices and bakers, and discussed what they had to learn before doing their job.

One child requested a picture of a nurse. "There are boy nurses, too," the teacher said.

"And there are girl doctors," volunteered one dark-haired girl.

Mrs. Vollrath said the lessons use such activities, songs, games and "guided fantasies" -- imaginary trips and experiences guided by music and the teacher's description -- to develop understanding of oneself and others.

But the material is not explicitly religious. The Good Friday lesson, for example, prompts the class to discuss jealously and how to deal with it. For the days following Easter, they learn about pollution and how seeds grow and are encouraged to care for the environment.

Lessons are frequently taught by Duso, a dolphin puppet that Mrs. Vollage says is quickly becoming a favorite of the children. They're puppet shows unlike others she's presented.

"If you had a puppet show, invariably the end the puppets would be fighting," she said. But Duso encourages tolerance and alternatives to conflict.

Mrs. Vollrath said she has received no negative response to the course.

"I don't expect that in our community there will be any negative reaction to it. I would be surprised, in fact, if there were," said Rev. Rick Bombay.

Minister of the Chesterville Christian Fellowship church, Rev. Bombay has been a "free church" representative on the board's religious education committee for the last six months.

He said that religious instruction has always been "a hot potato situation" in Ontario but doubts that non-denominational education would have its detractors here because of the "strong religous base" in this area.

He supports the course's objectives and believes the board will benefit from a consistent policy towards religious education.

Most public elementary schools have had various forms of religious education, which is provided for in the provincial Education Act.

"What's been happening is teachers make up their own and then they get a little worried," said James Dilamarter, a S.D. and G. superintendent of education specializing in elementary and secondary school curriculum.

"It's a harder task because the resources provincially aren't there." Chesterville Public, he said, is using American material because the board could not find suitable curriculum in Ontario.

He said the Education Act states that public schools are to "inculcate respect" for religion and such principles as truth, justice, temperance, and loyalty to country.

"We haven't initiated anything new," he concluded.

He said that while orientation of provincial religious instruction is Judeo-Christian, there has always been provision for children to opt out.

Mr. Dilamarter said the elementary program will complement what is already offered by the board: high school chaplains and daily readings in both elementary and secondary schools.

He said the S.D. and G. board has achieved "a fair amount of progress" in terms of religious education.

Chesterville and Berwick were chosen to try the program because this area has "a strong respect for religion and the concepts illustrated in religion".

"I think that the teachers and the system and the community are very supportive of the principlies of religion," Mr. Dilamarter said.

Berwick principal Robert Gilroy is compiling a program from materials used in Quebec and Newfoundland. He'll teach the course to either or both grades 7 and 8 during two 30-minute periods each week.

The course will cover the Bible, world religions and morals and values designed for adolescents' understanding. While the first two sections resemble traditional teaching, he said the third is more open to interpretation.

"It's a public system and you have to appeal to people of all beliefs and non-beliefs," he said.

The class will discuss various dilemmas faced by young teenagers. Among the exercises the pupils might do would be the rating of the acceptability of various attitudes.

For example, they might rank whether they agree or disagree with the following statements: good looks are important, girls asking boys out is okay, cheating at exams is okay.

Mr. Gilroy said dealing with peer pressure is an important part of the program.

Chairman of national science fair guest of St. Lawrence chapter of Ontario registered nursing assistants

CORNWALL (Special) - The St. Lawrence Chapter of Ontario Association of Registered Nursing Assistants held their annual dinner meeting on October 8, at the Jade Garden Restaurant in Cornwall.

Ken Moran was invited to speak on International Youth Year as well as the National Wide Science Fair, held this year in Cornwall.

Mr. Moran explained the three themes of International Youth Year are "participation, development, peace."

Mr. Moran, who was chairman of the 1985 National Wide Science Fair, explained how "youth today get something special out of putting something together." He also mentioned the recognition the city of Cornwall received through the CTV and other broadcasting networks as host of this great fair.

Mr. Moran presented slides and mentioned names of youths in their early teens whose knowledge is contributing towards more research and enlightenment in the fields of cancer research and aerodynamic engineering in the years to come.

Mr. Moran was thanked and presented with a small token of appreciation by vice president Geraldine Denault.

The lucky ticket drawn by our senior member, Dorothy Allen, announced the new owner of a quilt was Susan Robidoux of 645 Glengarry Blvd., Cornwall.

Members were reminded to think of some ideas for the upcoming 1985 Santa Claus parade on November 17.

Everyone was reminded the next meeting will be held on November 26, at Glen Stor Dun Lodge. It is our annual wine and cheese. In lieu of gifts bring wine or cheese and an RNA friend

Block Parents to arrive in village

(Staff) - The windows of Chesterville homes may soon carry small signs offering safety to children in distress.

The village's block parents program will soon be underway, said Mimi Adamson, a member of the committee organizing the block parents program.

"We're now registered," she said, explaining the program is recognized by the police.

About 25 parents said last spring they'd place the sign, a picture of a child holding an adult's hand, on their windows to identify their homes to children needing help.

Mrs. Adamson said these residents are now being screened by police to ensure they're suitable care-givers for children.

But the committee wants more people to volunteer for the program. "We hope for at least 100 parents and not just one per block," said Mrs. Adamson. "We're looking for retired people, single people and working parents, too."

She said volunteers are to display the sign only when they are available to help children who are in danger, lost, hurt or the victims of serious bullying.

Mrs. Adamson said block parents are not obligated to provide first aid, transportation, food or drink, recreation or toilet facilities.

She said the police and the committee will soon visit the schools to teach children to recognize the sign.

A second appeal is being sent through the schools to parents urging them to volunteer.

Mrs. Adamson said the program is now limited to the village but may be extended to the rural area should enough people volunteer.

Anyone interested in the block parent program should call Nicole Jean, 448-3670.

Six of our members attended the rally in Summerstown where Rev. Rik Allan, Ex. Sec'ty of Ottawa - Montreal conferences spoke on the topic "Dialogue and Native Peoples."

Newington has invited us to attend their Thanksoffering service Oct. 10. We decided to invite Newington to our service Nov. 6 when Miss Verna Levere will describe her experiences in Gambia.

Joan McEwan thanked the ladies and presented a small token of our appreciation.

The worship service was presented by Janet Milnes.

Annual WDMH sale to be held Oct. 26

WINCHESTER (Staff) - The October meeting of WDMH was held on Oct. 10 in the conference room at the hospital, with president Rose Campbell presiding. The well attended meeting was opened with the Auxiliary prayer, followed by the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by secretary Mary Fisher. Treasurer Anne Freeland gave her report.

The awards committee chairman Gail Van Noy, gave her report, and stated that the committee recommended that the award be divided among the three top teen volunteers, who will be pursuing a medically related field. The members agreed with the recommendation. The winners are Brenda Dikland of RR1, Morrisburg, who is entering the field of medicine and Nancy Lynn Ellis, who is entering the field of nursing. Each will receive $100 to help them in their training.

During roll call of the units, reports were given. Gail Van Noy reported on the Gift Shop, and Lillias Lancaster reported on the In Memoriam Fund. Olive Cass gave the volunteer report and said that striped pinnafores had been purchased for teen volunteers. Mr. Stel gave his report which was followed by the report of the blood donor clinic by Lillias Lancaster. She said that the next clinic will be held Nov. 27.

Seniors president calls for Ministry on Aging

WINCHESTER (Special) - Joyce King, president of the United Senior Citizens of Ontario, was the guest speaker at the annual meeting of zone 35 held at the Lion's Club here.

She told 100 members present the resolutions approved at the provincial convention in August will be forwarded to the provincial government. The seniors are hoping that a Ministry on Aging will be formed. She expressed appreciation for the benefits seniors receive from OHIP but hoped that provision will be made in future for dental care and eye glasses. Extra billing by doctors was deplored. Satisfactory housing for seniors, especially in the cities, and the need for reforms in some nursing homes was emphazied.

The USCO membership fees are no longer optional, since all clubs benefit from the work done by the USCO. The USCO will soon be moving into new headquarters in Toronto named after Jack Lorette (age 93) who was one of the founders of the organizations.

Annual reports were given by each member club: Chesterville, Ingleside, Iroquois, Long Sault, Matilda, Morewood, Morrisburg, Mountain and Winchester. Fund raising projects, donations to meet community needs and bus trips were mentioned. Reports on entertainment were varied. They included interaction with youth organizations, Christmas shopping trips, slide presentations, church services, nursing home visits, variety shows, rhytym bands and choir .

The meeting began with a pot luck luncheon. President Willis Robinson was in the chair. Mrs. King conducted the election of officers for the 1985-1986 season: Willis Robinson, president (Winchester); Aden Marcellus, 1st vice president (Iroquois); Vivian Murphy, 2nd vice president (Long Sault); Doris Myndman, recording secretary (Winchester); Enid Wasson, corresponding secretary (ingleside); Stuart Mattice, treasurer (Morewood).

There are two directors appointed by each of the nine clubs.

Flyers adjust to new rules in exhibition hockey play

(Staff) - For a while the Chesterville Junior "C" Flyers will probably be receiving more penalties than goals because of more strict ruling. "It will take the team a few games to get adjusted," said coach of the Flyers Mike Armstrong.

After three exhibition games played in the past week Armstrong said in the middle of the third game against North Stormont 86s, "We are going to have a good team."

Chesterville played their first exhibition match against Finch last Tuesday in Winchester and took a 5-3 win.

John Guy lit up the scoreboard for the Flyers at 8:43 in the first frame on an assist from rookie player, Kevin Byers to give Chesterville a 1-0 lead over North Stormont.

Flyers, Jerrold Boulanger scored unassisted for the team's second goal six minutes later in the second period as the Flyers grabbed a 2-0 lead.

North Stormont's Bernard Grady reduced the Flyers lead with a goal early in the second period as Mike Van Delst made the pass for an assist to tally the score to 2-1 for the Flyers.

At the five minute mark Flyer's Darren Kelly scored to increase the team's lead to 3-1 as Scott Johnson and Kevin Moore combined together on the assist.

It was a brother duo that gave the Flyers a 4-1 lead at 3:27 in the second period as Kevin Byers scored on his brother, Ken's pass.

Steve Tait replied for North Stormont's second goal of the match at 11:53 in the third period as the Flyers held a doubling lead of 4-2 over Finch as Bernard and Mike Grady, another brother duo, combined for the assist.

Johnson scored the Flyers last goal of the match as John Guy and Vince Cousineau collected on the assists to give the team a 5-2 lead at 7:26 in the third frame.

The 86s didn't stop fighting for a win as Dennis Landry scored at the five-minute-mark in the final frame to tally the game score of 5-3 for the Flyers.

The Flyers second exhibition game didn't have the same happy ending as the Flyers fell short three goals from a win losing 5-2 to Embrun on Friday night in Embrun.

The Flyers took an early lead with a goal at 12:52 in the first frame as Darren Kelly scored unassisted.

The goal went unmatched until 5:24 in the second frame when Embrun 72s captain, David Clement scored to tie the match 1-1.

One minute later the Embrun squad scored again to take the lead, 2-1.

The Embrun three-goal splurge ended after three minutes from their first goal as they took a 3-1 lead.

The Flyers rallied back at 1:30 in the second frame as Mark Guy scored the teams last goal after receiving a pass from Vince Cousineau and Doug Newman to narrow the 72s lead to 3-2.

The rest of the game remained in Embrun's hands as two third period goals put the finishing touches on the Flyers second exhibition game as the 72s took a 5-2 win.

On Monday night the Flyers travelled to the Finch arena to regain the confidence as they defeated North Stormont a second time with a 3-0 victory.

Mark Guy was the team's leading offensive player in Monday's game as he powered for two goals in the third frame.

The Flyers lead goal was scored by Kevin Moore with Sam Gibson collecting the lone assist to give the team a 1-0 lead.

Then in the third frame Mark Guy took the limelight with two goals.

The first goal was scored at 7:55 with Todd Findlay and Pete Van Kessel accounting for the assists and the second goal was in the last minute of the game with John Guy and Van Kessel replying on the assist.

The Flyers took a 3-0 blank over North Stormont.

The game consisted of more penalties than goals as the Flyers had 16 and the 86s with 20.

"It was a rough game," said Armstrong.

Tied up

North Stormont's Steven Flannagan was tied up by a Chesterville Flyer in last Tuesday's game as the North Stormont 86s lost 5-3 to the Flyers in Winchester. The 86s played the Flyers on their home ice on Monday and lost again 3-0.

NSIHL sees no problem with fewer teams as Long Sault, Maxville teams drop out

FINCH (Staff) - The North Stormont Intermediate Hockey League will have it's season opener on Friday night and instead of being a seven-team league this season it is reduced to five teams.

Long Sault and Maxville are not putting a team in the league this year after an '84-'85 season characterized by a shortage of players.

"I won't miss Long Sault," said the coach of Newington for last years championship team, "Last year they never made an effort to have a good team or at least a team."

David Bancroft, a player-coach for Newington feels that his team will be the same quality team as last year. Asked if he thought his team would do as well as last year he replied," "God only knows."

Avonmore Aces coach Marvin Waldroff had the same answer. "It's not over until the fat lady sings and even then I'm not going to chirp." Newington hasn't finalized their players list but they do have four new players on their roster.

Newington has had two practices to prepare for Friday night's opening game. But, said Bancroft, "It takes a while for the team to get into the groove. We always start slow. The league is going to be much stronger this season so every game will count.

As for Avonmore, winners of last year's regular season, Waldroff said, "We will be a solid contender as in the past 14 years. We've never been out of the playoffs in 14 years." Waldroff has been the coach for all the 14 years and has led his team to a championship win five times.

To top all Waldroff's achievements as a coach for the Avonmore squad he has received Waldroff's team this season will "have a few young legs coming up," that he is glad to have. The two he mentioned were Tim Ouderkirk and Stacey Moore. "The league will be more competitive this year," said Waldroff, "Every game will mean everything. There's only going to be one team that will sit out in the finals and we will need to play well every game."

If it proves to be as competitive as last year it will be a toss up between all five teams

ND hoopers find winning number

(Staff) - The North Dundas District High School's Junior girls basketball team found a magical winning score of 45-20 as they defeated Seaway last Tuesday on their home court 45-20 and did the same with Bishop McDonell Secondary School on Thursday before a home crowd.

The Seniors on the other hand, lost their only game this week by one point in last Tuesday's game against Seaway.

The NDDHS Junior girls victories were led by Rose Rombough with a total of 22 points in two games and Linda Hamelin with 21.

Hamelin tallied 16 points in last Tuesday's game as NDDHS had little problem defeating Seaway District High School.

NDDHS Juniors led after the first quarter, 8-2 and continued their strong offensive punch into the second quarter leading Seaway 23-8.

Seaway nearly matched NDDHS's Juniors effort in the third-quarter with eight points and NDDHS with 10.

But in the last quarter NDDHS put the finishing touches on the game winning 45-20.

The Juniors second victory was on Thursday as Rose Rombough and Cindy Cholowski both collected 12 points to power NDDHS Juniors to a another 45-20 win.

Snowmobile club snowballs

(Staff) - Most people get excited when they see the first snowfall of the year, but the first snow fall is followed by several more. For the North Star Snowmobile Club in Finch it's all the better.

The club started close to 20 years ago in a "ski-doo shack" and has evolved over the years into a 20'x40' snowmobile club with 33 members.

This year the club will be offering a one-day training session for 12-year-olds free of charge. The course is to inform the children the basic rules of snowmobiling so at the age of 16 they will be able to drive on trails. Don McLean and Dwayne Smith, both members of the club, will be teaching the course.

The club is a non-profit organization and last year they raised $100 for the Children's Heart Fund. The club holds ski-doo rallies and for the past two years they have gone to Ingleside and back. This season they have talked about changing the route.

Although the club has many features one that is missing is a trail groomer. President of the North Star, Peter Babcock, said, "It's not as if we wouldn't like one but they cost around $10,000. You can get government grants for it and the Ontario Federation of Snowmobiling will give you money after you have one for grooming the trails but it's out of the question for a while. We're getting along without it for now anyways. What they are good for is finding someplace for the snowmobiles to go other than on the roads."

Babcock enjoys the club mostly because, "it's a place to go after a run on a Friday night or to bring the kids on a Sunday."

New season looks striking for new bowling managers

(Staff) - This season at the Chesterville Bowling Alley there are more people than bowling pins with 550 bowlers in leagues.

With 17 leagues and 6 teams in each league and each team consisting of 30-36 bowlers it's no wonder the new managers, Sue and David Bird, are run off their feet. Along with a 21 months old baby, Brett, it's a night and day job.

It all begins in the morning with a clean-up session that can last two hours.

Then it's the start of league after league pouring through the door each day until the week is over and 550 bowlers have either thrown their balls in the gutter or thrown strikes. But it's not over even then because there is open-to-the public bowling on Saturday afternoons beginning at 12:30pm. Closing is at 11pm. Sunday closing is at 5pm instead of 11pm.

Maintenance is just one more chore to add to the list of things to do: oil the lanes; grease the string pin machines; make sure they are working properly; and the list continues.

Sue and David, who took over for David's parents, Syd and Sylvia, owners of the bowling alley, are toughing out all the long hours and enjoying it at the same time. For them it's a family oriented set-up.

Although some of the leagues lost some of last year's players they were replaced this season. The youth bowling has increased this season by 30 and a new league from Crysler started up and the Chesterville Bowling Alley agenda book is too full to add anything more.

David started in the grocery business and worked in it for 12 years. He is "accustomed to dealing with the public." For Susan, well, "she grew up in a bowling alley."

With all the hours and a 21 month-old-baby around Susan has rigged up a system that allows her to work while the baby sleeps and she still knows that he's fast asleep or if he's awake.

An intercome has been set up so that she can hear the baby breathing while in the loud noisy bowling alley.

"It makes me feel safer," said Susan, "It's a good set-up."

New managers

Susan and David Bird (above) are the new managers of the Chesterville Bowling Alley, taking over for David's parents. Susan and David started this season and are enjoying it already, despite the long hours they keep.

First place gets crowded in WDMB

WINCHESTER (Staff) - It's a three-way tie after Sunday's game between Ormond, Dunbar and Morewood in the Winchester and District Men's Broomball League.

The first place teams are tied at six points each and Finch is the closest contender holding the second place spot alone with half the points.

The Winchester Raiders lost to Newington 2-0 here on Sunday night as Newington's offence pulled together in the second frame for both goals.

The first goal was scored by Newington's Chris Lemery and assisted by Barry Zeran to give the team a 1-0 lead at 4:10 in the second frame.

Then at 8:47 Lyle Dingwall sealed the win with a second goal as David Markell collected the assist to give Newington their 2-0 victory.

Ormond trounced Finch with an easy 6-2 win as they evenly divided up their goals in the first and second frame.

Ormond's Bill Robinson scored the first goal at 15:05 of the first frame with the assist coming from team mate Jim McDermid to give the team a 1-0 lead early in the match.

Dan McDermid added to Ormond's lead six minutes later in the frame to give the team a 2-0 lead over Finch.

Then a 8:13 in the same frame Finch made a one goal come-back as Jack Hoogeveen put the ball in the net to narrow Ormond's lead to 2-1. It was in the last 21 seconds of the first frame that Ormond's Doug Sloan scored to what proved to be a much needed goal that triggered a three goal rally in the second frame.

With Ormond holding a lead of 3-1 Finch again put the pressure on with a goal early in the second period as Henry Pynenburg set up the shot on net for Dave Peterson's goal to reduce Ormond's lead to 3-2.

It was then that Ormond started their three goal second period effort as Dan McDermid answered for two and Jim McDermid sealed off the victory with the sixth and last goal of the match to give Ormond a convincing 6-2 win.

Dunbar left Toyes Hill scoreless in the first game of the night as they took a 3-0 win to keep Dunbar in one of the top positions.

Laurie Blanchard accounted for two of the three goals as he scored at 9:09 in the first frame on a pass from Larry Gallinger. And a second goal at 1:50 in the second frame as Gary Gallinger made the assist. The first goal of the game was scored at 19:21 by Larry Gallinger to give Dunbar a 3-0 blank over Toyes Hill.

Morewood also took an easy win to keep a top position in the standings as they defeated Crysler, one of the last place teams, 4-0.

Pete Van Gurp scored two of Morewood's goals while Bill Moran and Larry St. Pierre collected on the two remaining goals.

Making the assists for the teams goal were Van Gurp on the first goal at 2:12 in the first frame. Richard McAllister on the teams second goal scored by Van Gurop at 18:30 in the second frame. Brian Como replied for the assist on the third goal at 4:40 in the second period. And Jim Thompson with the last assist.

There was more pushing and shoving from the back of the net than in front on Sunday night as Toyes Hill took a 3-0 defeat against Dunbar in the first game of the Winchester and District Men's Broomball League.

Local hockey convenor positions filled

(Staff) - The quest for convenors is over for the Chesterville and District Minor Hockey Legue and just in time as the league started it's Hockey Week last night.

The Chesterville and District Minor Hockey Week gives the coaches a chance to give the teams practice and the coaches a chance to pick and organize the teams.

The ice time was donated by the town from last night and goes until Friday night. Every night for the four days the youngest level will start at 7pm and it will continue on to the oldest level, Midget, and will end at 11pm.

The convenors will look after the level they have been designated by booking ice time, handing out equipment at the first of the season and getting it back at the end, organizing tournaments and handling and problems that arise in the level.

Most of Chesterville's competitive levels of hockey will be having two teams. There are three levels in which a team can play at level A, level B and level c. Level A is the top team and level C is the less competitive teams.

Chesterville will have mostly "B" and "C" teams this season but they also will be having a level "A" team in Midget.

President of the Chesterville and District Minor Hockey League Ed Decooman said in an interview on Monday that he hadn't had any female registration this season and doesn't expect to either.

"When they can't play past Pee Wee they get discouraged so they don't bother," said Decooman. "If they wanted a change in the ruling it would be up to them to make the change by showing their interest."

If there ever came a time when a vote was made on whether a girl could play hockey with males Decooman said he would vote "yes".

The only thing lacking in the league thus far is a coach for the Pee Wee level.

Again the Juniors never felt any pressure as they lead the first half 26-10 and continued with their offensive punch to win the match against Bishop McDonell.

The Seniors lead scorer was Donna Koekkoek with half of the team's points.

The first quarter left Seaway ahead 6-4 and the same happened by half-time as Seaway held a narrow 16-12 lead.

The first-half lead of four points saved Seaway Seniors as the NDDHS's fourth quarter effort of 10 points and Seaway with only 4 came close to bursting Seaway's balloon.

The game ended in a 33-32 victory for Seaway.
