Charlottenburgh, workers reach tentative agreement

by Dann Rogers

Charlottenburgh Township Council will meet sometime within the next week to discuss ratification of a tentative collective agreement hammered out with its roads and clerical workers Friday.

The roads and clerical workers unanimously ratified the agreement last Friday.

The tentative deal was reached after a 10-hour bargaining session which ended early Friday morning between council and its 20 full and part-time unionized workers.

The two bargaining units representing the roads and recreation department, and the clerical workers, are members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees Local 3089. They are negotiating their first collective agreement.

Representatives for the council and the employees would not discuss details of the agreement until the proposal is presented to council.

The six-month impasse in the negotiations came to a head Thursday morning when the municipality locked out workers in the roads and recreation department.

Roads and recreation staff locked out Friday

Those workers set up picket lines at the arena and municipal office and the clerical workers refused to cross them.

''The issue was plowing, sanding and salting,'' administrator Jay Currier said Friday.

''Council felt it couldn't leave itself in a position where it would be vulnerable to a walkout by the roads department.

''The option (to a negotiated agreement) was to contract out work which meant sending out tenders early in the fall. If we were going to contract out the work, we had to get the process going,'' he said.

Steve Backs, regional representative of CUPE, said the lock-out caught him and the municipal employees by surprise and that talks had already been scheduled when council took its action.

''I guess they had the impression we were dragging our feet,'' said Backs Monday.

''But the delay concerned what to do with the clerical workers. We wanted to figure out how the pay equity plan would affect the workers.''

The Pay Equity Act is supposed to ensure women are paid rates comparable to men doing jobs of equal importance. Recently, council sanctioned the start of a pay equity plan to provide guidelines for pay rates for female staff workers.

''The act helped form the basis of the agreement because part of the wage settlement saw a higher percentage increase for the inside workers,'' said Backs.

''Part of the settlement calls for the use of the pay equity formula and implementing it before the seven-year period proposed by the government,'' he said.

Both sides agreed the principal issue in the dispute was wages for office and clerical workers. Current wages range from $9.42 to $$11.14 an hour for roads and recreation and $7.45 to $8.40 for office and clerical.

School enrolment remains stable

Enrolment remains stable this year for the local elementary schools of the SD&G County Board of Education, but there has been a decrease in the number of students attending high school in Glengarry.

Ken MacLennan, superintendant of education said last week there was an increase of 31 students from last year in SD&G public elementary schools, bringing the total to 6,204. An increase of one was recorded in Glengarry public elementary schools.

There are 71 less students registered at Glengarry high schools this year. Superintendant Gerry Samson last week said high school enrolment figures for all of SD&G won't be available for at least another week and the Glengarry statistics won't be complete until the end of this week.

Enrolment figures are not yet available for the SD&G Separate School Board.

The largest decrease in secondary school enrolment was registered at Glengarry District High School which dropped 39 students to 425 this year.

Tagwi High School was down 36 students to 490 and Char-Lan lost four students for a total of 294 this year.

The only increase was at Ecole Secondaire Regionale Glengarry which rose by eight students to 487.

At Glengarry elementary public schools, Martintown registered a loss of five students, down to 108, Laggan was up two, to 170 and Maxville Jr. also increased enrolment by two for a total of 243.

Mount Carmel House fire 8 workers

Helpless and disgusted were words used to describe the feelings of one of eight supervisors who walked off his job at Mount Carmel House, Sept. 11. As of Tuesday morning, all had been fired.

Julie Kake, who has been one of the spokespeople since the walk-out, said Tuesday, she feels her basic rights as a human being have been violated. She also said that a simple case of employees asking for better working conditions has been blown way out of proportion.

''I find it very confusing and degrading that as a human being you don't have any rights. You open your mouth and your job is on the line,'' she said.

The workers left their jobs after they learned that an AIDS carrier was being treated at Mount Carmel House, a substance abuse rehabilitation centre in St. Raphael's. They did not want the patient, a 21-year-old Ottawa prostitute Donna Jean Newman, evicted, said the supervisors. They wanted officials to establish precautionary safeguards to protect workers and clients from contracting communicable diseases. They also wanted to be free to choose whether or not

Father jailed for sexually assaulting daughter

by Lesley Cadham

A father who pleaded guilty to sexually assaulting his eight-year-old daughter on several occasions was sentenced to three months in jail, Thursday.

Judge Reginald Levesque of the Alexandria Provincial Court ordered a publication ban on the names of people involved to protect the child's identity.

The accused is to serve his sentence via the temporary absence program. To allow him to retain his job, he will be permitted to go to work during the day but will return to jail after work and remain there until the following morning.

The man was accused of forcing his daughter to perform oral sex on several occasions from the time the child was three years old until last May. He denied charges that he slapped the child when she would not cooperate and that he performed oral sex on her on one occasion.

He also told the court that the assaults had only occurred from the time the child was five years old.

Defense Lawyer Pat Rudden said some of the acts by the accused were ''distasteful,'' but were prompted by unsatisfying sexual relations with his wife. He further explained that the accused was not a child molester and that he had not assaulted other people's children.

On the witness stand, the wife of the accused told the court that when her husband mentioned ''sexual problems'' two years ago, she assumed he was referring to the problems which existed in their own relationship.

Later, her daughter told her of the assaults, but when she asked the child if she was sure, that they could call the police, the youngster explained she'd been repeating a story she'd heard at school.

The wife of the accused also told the court she had learned that her husband had made an attempt to help himself two years ago. He'd made a doctor's appointment, but became frightened and cancelled the session.

She described her husband as a good father and said if he could obtain help, the family could re-unite.

The couple has been separated since the incident came to light, which was after the young victim told a teacher about the assaults. The teacher reported the problem to the Children's Aid Society and the police were notified.

Before sentencing the accused, Judge Levesque reiterated the evidence and said it was obvious that the married couple ''enjoyed a good, sound relationship.'' Both had been abused sexually as youngsters and had difficulty in adjusting to the sexual roles of marriage.

He explained that the sentence must take into account that the accused and his wife planned to strive toward keeping the ''strong family unit'' together, that the accused took steps to deal with the problem by seeking help from a psychiatrist and that his

Through rain, sleet or strike, —we'll deliver The News

In an effort to ensure readers and advertisers are serviced, The Glengarry News has in place contingency plans should local Canada Post inside workers go on strike this week.

Subscribers in Alexandria who normally pick up their copies of The News in their boxes at the post office can obtain their copies at the loading door behind our offices at 3 Main Street. This will only be necessary if inside workers at the post office do not report to work for sorting.

If the small, rural post offices throughout the county remain open, our rural route subscribers should receive their copies as usual. If, however, papers are for some reason not delivered to the boxes in the country, rural route subscribers can pick up their copies at stores and outlets closest to them.

These outlets are noted in an advertisement located on page 10 of this week's edition.

''We will do everything in our power to ensure our advertisers will continue to get their messages out to the readers in the most expedient method possible, given the circumstances,'' publisher Joe Banks said.

Faulty heater cited cause of Apple Hill fire

Loss estimated at $20,000

A fire suspected to have been started by a faulty electrical heater in the bedroom engulfed and destroyed a home near Apple Hill, Friday evening.

The Apple Hill Fire Department responded to a call at 10:20 p.m. to fight a blaze at the home of Alexander McBain in the 3rd Conc. of Kenyon, just off Diversion Road.

Mr. McBain was away at the time of the fire and none of the animals he keeps there were injured in the blaze which restricted itself to his one-level, 2-room house.

''It must have been burning for about an hour by the time we got the call and the building was a total loss by the time we got there,'' Fire Chief Allan MacMillan said Monday.

He estimates the loss at approximately $20,000. Fifteen firefighters from the Apple Hill fire department responded to the call and no back-up from neighboring fire departments was deemed necessary.

The fire was brought under control within two hours.

The fire that destroyed the home of Alexander McBain just off Diversion Road in Kenyon Township Friday night was still smouldering the next afternoon.

New lodge focus of meeting

United Counties Council was to have met last night (Tuesday) to discuss how the Glen-Stor-Dun Lodge will be owned and operated.

Last week the City of Cornwall agreed in principle to purchase the 15-acre site and to develop and operate a joint home in partnership with the United Counties.

''The councillors may decide to sell the lodge to the City or they may negotiate an agreement to give Cornwall an interest in the site,'' United Counties co-ordinator Raymond Lapointe said Monday.

For almost seven years now, the future of the 35-year-old lodge has been in the air and Mr. Lapointe says a replacement home will probably be built on the site.

The province, he said, has given favorable reviews to developing a number of satellite extended-care beds in a private facility which would be staffed and funded by the county.

''If the counties get government grants for the satellite homes, they will probably enter into a joint-operating agreement with Cornwall for the Glen-Stor-Dun Lodge site,'' said Mr. Lapointe.

If the counties decide to build a lodge on the present site, it will house about 50 or 60 beds, he said. The present lodge, which has 210 beds, no longer meets provincial standards and there has been no talk of renovating it.

News costs are going up Oct. 1

As the result of inflationary increases in the cost of publishing, advertising and subscription, single copy costs of The Glengarry News will increase slightly as of Thursday, Oct. 1.

Effective that date, the single copy of The News will go from 40 to 45 cents. Subscriptions within a 40-mile radius will go up from $16 to $18 per year and to $10 for six months.

Beyond the 40-mile zone, subscriptions will increase from $20 to $22 and from $10 to $12 for six months. Subscriptions to the United States and other countries will increase to $65 a year.

The cost of classified ads will increase from $3.10 for 20 words to $3.30 for the same and 10 cents for each additional word.

All display advertising will be billed on a per agate line basis (33 cents). This will be a change from billing on a per column inch basis. One column inch is exactly equal to 14 agate lines. Classified display ads will cost 36 cents per agate line.

The cost for ads in the business and professional guide will be $18.50 for 13 weeks, $157 for a two column by two inch ad for 13 weeks.

The Guiding year began in fine style for the Glen Robertson Guides who spent the weekend of Sept. 12 in Montreal.

The trip began on Saturday morning with the Guides participating at an Open House at Rolls-Royce (Canada), an aircraft engine repair and overhaul base. In the early afternoon, it was time to check into the Guide House located in downtown Montreal.

A better choice of lodgings could not have been made as the second and third floor were entirely at their disposal. LThe day was capped off with dinner (where pizza was cooked in a brick oven over a wood fire) and a movie.

Sunday saw the Guides touring Old Montreal. First it was off to Notre Dame Basilica and the small museum behind the church. Next, it was Place Jacques Cartier and then onto the McCord Museum located on Sherbrooke St. While there the Guides saw, among other things, a display of Amerindian and Inuit art and artifacts.

Well, it's September again and as usual hundreds of students have returned to school. All students, whether they admit it or not, felt a flurry of excitement during the first days of class. This excitement and perhaps a bit of anxiety is most evident in students entering high school for the first time, the "grade niners."

On Sept. 15, all Grade 9 students were assembled in the large gymnasium where there were a series of booths. As the students circulated from booth to booth they met with teachers and senior students of Glengarry District High School who provided information concerning clubs, intramurals and school bands as well as all the other activities.

Many congratulations go out to Bernice Barlow, Tina Cairncross and Terrance Wheeler for all their work and organization which made this event such a success.

to work with carriers of the contagious diseases.

But their request was "flatly refused," and officials told them that they had nothing to worry about, said Ms. Kake.

The workers delivered a list of several other grievances regarding working conditions to officials on the same day.

When asked whether she knew before the walk-out that the AIDS carrier was in fact Miss Newman, Ms. Kake said she would not breach confidentiality by stating the girl's name. She added, however, that the media had already revealed the patient's identity.

In addition, it was the AIDS carrier who immediately informed supervisors and other patients that she was carrying the AIDS virus, says Ms. Kake.

She declined to explain what legal action, if any, the workers are pursuing, but said, "We are sticking together and investigating other routes."

Several verbal and written requests by the supervisors to meet with Mount Carmel House officials have been denied, said Ms. Kake, who added, "They don't want to see anyone who has been terminated."

Miss Newman was admitted to Mount Carmel House just after Labor Day weekend and left on Sept. 22 to go for a walk. Police apprehended the girl in Montreal and she appeared in court there Wednesday. Miss Newman was sentenced to three months in jail for soliciting for the purposes of prostitution.

wife did not abandon him but was trying to help him.

The sentence must be a specific deterrance to further child abuse but must not destroy the man's motivation to deal with his problem, he said. "Furthermore, society's disapproval of acts of sexual assault was important.

Judge Levesque continued, he had to consider the effect the sentence would have on the yet "viable family unit," and on the victim, who could feel guilty as a result. The small child trusted her father, he said, and the breach of that trust aggravated the decision.

The accused will also be on probation for two years.

Caught cheating cabbie

A Cornwall man who pleaded guilty to charges of theft and mischief was fined $200 in Alexandria Provincial Court, Thursday.

Raymond Lauber, 26, failed to pay a taxi driver a $29 fare for a ride from Cornwall to Green Valley, in the early hours of Sept. 18.

Mr. Lauber hired the taxi to take him to Green Valley but when the driver arrived at the destination, Mr. Lauber handed him $5 and told him he would have to get the rest of the fare from someone in the house.

The court was told that Mr. Lauber knocked on the door and when no one responded, he smashed a window and damaged the door. He then broke the kitchen window and crawled into the house. The owner, who shares the house with Mr. Lauber's grandmother, told him to get out and called the police.

The accused returned to the taxi and explained he'd been unable to obtain the fare. He told the driver that if he drove him back to Cornwall, he'd be able to find money to pay him.

But the accused disappeared into an apartment building and did not return.

He was apprehended by Lancaster OPP later that morning.

Council meets to discuss Lochiel official plan

by Mary MacCaskill

Lochiel Township Council met on Monday, Sept. 28 to further the process of updating Lochiel's Official Plan. The consulting firm of Totten-Sims-Hubicki Associates of Stittsville has been retained by Lochiel to assist council with the plan update and background planning studies.

At the Monday meeting the consultants outlined the approval process that is to be followed. First, a background report is prepared and a draft document (a first draft of the new official plan) taking into consideration suggestions and concerns of the various government agencies is completed.

Once a draft document is prepared, it is circulated to the agencies for comments and necessary revisions made. Then council will call a public meeting, at which time property owners will have the opportunity to discuss their concerns about the official plan.

The Official Plan is then revised further if needed and adopted by council and sent on to the Ministry of Municipal Affairs (MMA) for final approval.

Tom Smart of the MMA was present at this meeting and suggested that any official plan should be as general as possible. The specifics should be in future zoning bylaws.

Janet Anderson of Toronto, representing the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, offered the services of their field representative, Gary MacTavish, from Kemptville to council, if council desired assistance in designating marginal areas.

The Ministry of the Environment, Ministry of Natural Resources, and the Raisin Region Conservation Authority also sent representatives and were asked to be prepared to comment on areas within their experience and expertise.

Daphne Hope of the MMA stated although there was no commitment on funding from her office to date to help council prepare the new official plan, she does not anticipate problems in this area, and council will be notified when funding has been approved for the project.

Responding to Reeve MacDonell's query as to when Lochiel would have an updated Official Plan, Bob Clark, one of the consultants, said a base map of Lochiel should be completed by the end of November and council should be able to adopt its new Official Plan sometime next summer.

Lancaster seniors project shapes up

by Joanne Stevenson

"We are very optimistic," said Eric Urquhart, chairman of the Lancaster and District Non-Profit Housing Corporation. Since the September 9 meeting with housing officials, the corporation has hired both a consultant, Gilbert Côté and an architect, B.J. Edmundson.

Two meetings on Tuesday and Friday, are planned this week to discuss requirements for the 26-unit seniors complex.

Mr. Urquhart explained the corporation must choose a site, submit building plans for the lot and present cost estimates within government-approved guidelines.

The application must be completed before the December deadline. Funding allocations will be announced in January 1988.

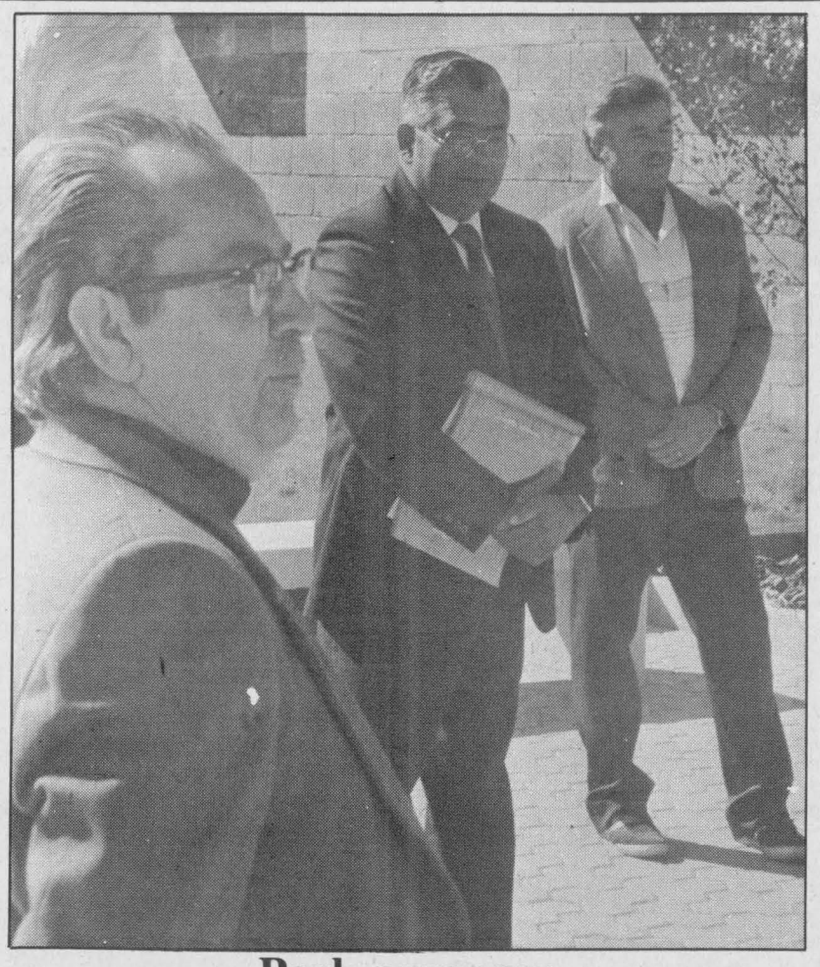

At the September meeting, Michael Garneau, a program co-ordinator for the Ontario Housing Corporation, suggested the local group select consultants for interviews from a prepared list of professionals already involved in area projects.

The corporation hired consultant Gilbert Côté of Lecompte Engineering of Ottawa. Mr. Urquhart notes Ralph Millar will be acting as the contact person. Mr. Côté was among the six consultants on the list being considered by the corporation. At the September meeting, Mr. Garneau stated Mr. Côté had been involved in the St. Albert project.

Architect B.J. Edmundson of Kohler, Dickey and Edmundson, also of Ottawa, had earlier been interviewed by the corporation during a previous, unsuccessful bid to obtain provincial government funding.

This Monday, members of the corporation had visited a seniors complex Mr. Edmundson had recently finished in Casselman.

After this week's two meetings, the project should be entering the stage of preparation of building designs.

Breath test results maybe highest judge has ever seen

Four men were fined a total of $2,100 for impaired driving, Thursday, and are prohibited from driving motor vehicles for one year.

Bernard Thivierge, 49, of Sarsfield, faced a fine of $1,000 after pleading guilty to charges of impaired driving in Alexandria Provincial Court. Mr. Thivierge was charged by Hawkesbury OPP after officers saw his vehicle cross over Hwy. 417's lane indicator line several times and weave onto the shoulder on several occasions. When they approached the driver, police officers determined he showed usual signs of impairment such as slurred speech and poor balance.

Two breath-tests taken about 15 minutes apart reflected identical readings of 340 mgs of alcohol to 100 mls of blood. He was fined $500.

"I'm not sure if this is the highest reading I've ever seen, but it must be close to it," said Judge Levesque.

He added, Mr. Thivierge's fine was to protect the public and dissuade other drivers from drinking before operating a motor vehicle.

Forty-year-old Hendrick Hoosting of North Lancaster pleaded guilty to a July 30 charge of impaired driving. Mr. Hoosting was on his way home on the evening of July 30, when he noticed that a tree had fallen over County Road 18 near North Lancaster. He sped toward the tree and came to an abrupt stop hitting the fringes of the branches. When he reversed the vehicle, a Lancaster OPP officer who was directing traffic ordered Mr. Hoosting to stop. He approached the vehicle and found Mr. Hoosting smelled of alcohol, had glassy eyes and swayed when he tried to stand up.

Two breath tests showed readings of 158 mgs of alcohol to 100 mls of blood and 148 mgs of alcohol to 100 mls of blood.

Fined $300 was 37-year-old Kenyon Township resident Robert Lacombe who pleaded guilty to impaired driving. Mr. Lacombe was charged after a Lancaster OPP officer watched him cross over the white line on Main Street in Alexandria several times on the morning of Sept. 18. When the officer tried to stop the vehicle by activating the cruiser's flashing lights and siren, the driver paid no heed. The officer finally passed the vehicle, pulled in front of it and slowed to a stop. The driver smelled of alcohol, had bloodshot and watery eyes, was unsteady on his feet and had to be helped to the cruiser. Readings were 155 mgs. of alcohol to 100 mls of blood in the breathalyzer tests.

Lochiel Township resident Gilles Chabot, 48, was fined $300 for impaired driving. Breath tests yielded readings of 222 mgs of alcohol to 100 mls of blood.

Mr. Chabot has been ordered to begin community service work at the end of next month.

Man fined $500 for beating sister

A Glen Robertson man was fined $500 Thursday for assaulting his sister.

Lawrence McIntee, 22, appeared before Judge Reginald Levesque in Alexandria Provincial Court on charges of causing bodily harm to his sister. The assault occurred in the early hours of July 13 in the family home.

Mr. McIntee was apparently upset about the loudness of the television set and punched his sister's face and back before going on a rampage during which he punched holes in the walls and broke windows, doors and furniture.

The young woman suffered minor bruising.

When Mr. McIntee pleaded guilty to the charge earlier this summer, he could not explain why he had assaulted his sister. Judge Levesque ordered a pre-sentence report.

On Thursday, he told the court the report stated that the young man failed to recognize his anti-social behavior.

Recommendations that Mr. McIntee see a doctor for help in anger control were also included in the presentence report, but the accused did not attend sessions which had been arranged.

Judge Levesque said the court is concerned that the accused failed to recognize the anti-social behavior and that he lacked concern in dealing with the problem.

"The court is interested in results. Clear, concrete results. And it's going to obtain them for the protection of the public," said the judge.

Mr. McIntee has no prior record. he will be on probation for one year and has been ordered to immediately and actively participate in anger control therapy.

Council seat filled

Charlottenburgh Township has appointed Edgar Prevost, a Tyotown Ro[illegible] resident, to fill the council seat left vacant by the death of Paul Rozon on Aug. 24. The appointment took place at a special meeting of council held prior to its regular meeting Sept. 28.

Reeve Morgan Major told councillors they had two courses open to them: they could call an election to fill the seat, or they could fill it by appointment. Council decided upon the latter route and Mr. Prevost was chosen unanimously.

The new councillor, an employee of C-Tech in Cornwall, ran in sixth place in the township's municipal elections held in 1985. In a telephone interview with The Glengarry News on Monday night, Mr. Prevost said he was surprised when he heard of his appointment.

A father of seven, Mr. Prevost says he is ready for the challenge of serving the ratepayers of Charlottenburgh.

"In general I'll do my utmost to keep them happy. I'm looking forward to sitting there and making the best decisions for the township."

When asked if he had any particular concerns he would be addressing as councillor, Mr. Prevost replied, "Not really. I'd sooner work as a whole with the rest of the council on important issues."

Councillor Prevost has been a member of the Glen Walter Volunteer Firemen for 30 years and is a former Jr. C. Hockey coach. He feels that his experience in these areas will stand him in good stead on fire protection or recreation matters.

Toppling clothesline nets man $100 fine

Alexandria resident Claude Ingola was fined $100 in Alexandria Provincial Court Thursday for public mischief.

Mr. Ingola was charged by Alexandria police on Sept. 11 after pulling a Sinclair Street resident's clothesline out of the exterior wall of the home. Mr. Ingola had been trying to see another man who lived in the house but when the man did not emerge, the accused became frustrated, banged on the door and damaged the clothesline.

Mr. Ingola will be on probation for one month and has been ordered to pay the homeowner $20 in restitution. The purpose of the $100 fine was to dissuade Mr. Ingola and other people from repeating such an act and to protect other individuals from vandalism.

A mystery

If there is method in the Ontario Provincial Police's unorthodox approach to solving the area's serial killer case, it is one as much veiled in mystery as the murders themselves.

Given the facts, it is difficult to find reason to side with the OPP's methods in conducting the investigation. After 100 men are assigned to the case, Det. Insp. Jim McCormick called a press conference where he appealed to the murderer to turn himself in to police or to the news reporters who publicized the story.

The ensuing publicity exposes a Chesterville man who, it turns out, maintains his innocence in front of a television camera and claims he is the victim of a vendetta by the OPP. In fact, police have been watching him around the clock since the Morewood murder on July 14, he claimed.

Media reports about unorthodox police tactics prompted Attorney-General Ian Scott to demand a full report last week on the controversial investigation. Criticism became more vocal late last week as lawyers, the suspect's family, some local residents and SD&G Crown Attorney Don Johnson seriously questioned the police department's methods in conducting the investigation.

Top Toronto criminal lawyer Eddie Greenspan went further. He called the department's behavior ''reprehensible . . . Police basically supplied enough information to lead reporters to the suspect so they could do the work the police can't do.''

Greenspan said the police have used the media and if they're proven wrong, the OPP could be facing a significant lawsuit.

Still, the force must have known that when it called the press conference, it would come under fire for its soft tactics and attempt at media manipulation. And this is what makes the entire ''strategy'' so mysterious, so full of questions. Indeed, in the context of the tradition and pride which for so long has been synonymous with the force, it just doesn't make sense.

There are fewer police forces in North America as able and professional as the OPP. Over time, officers and the force itself has gained a justified reputation, so much so that across Ontario, small municipalities (most recently Arnprior) are seeking to dissolve their local police forces in favor of branch OPP offices.

The method of training and the standards are universal from one end of the province to the other. The OPP's criminal investigation branch in Toronto is internationally renowned. The man in charge of the investigation, Det. Insp. Jim McCormick, has a proven track record.

So nothing fits here, least of all the media's role in locating a killer. The OPP could very well find that it created a monster when it unleashed the newshounds onto the story. Before long, they could be a source of irritability for the force, and soon begin to put the pressure on the police themselves rather than the murderer they were invited to help apprehend.

But only time will tell whether the OPP's strategy is actually a hastily put together attempt at public appeasement or whether it is a shrewd and deliberate ruse aimed at drawing out the real culprit.

Until then, we watch the OPP with a curious eye. It is not, after all, everyday the story in itself is upstaged by the ability or the inability of a police force to solve it.

No surprise

To anyone with a knowledge of the United States and American business psyche, the breakdown in the free trade talks last week should come as no surprise.

Remember, this is the same nation whose people invented the game of poker.

It has been obvious to everyone — most certainly Simon Reisman — that the Americans have gone along with the negotiations on the preconceived notion that there would be more for them to gain than lose. It would have been naive to believe otherwise — that the Americans were simply trying to be good neighbors, magnanimously making all kinds of concessions while Canada insists on preserving the auto pact and its ''cultural sovereignty.''

So the Americans did what it does best in such situations, and what it did with the Soviet Union when it refused to use the Strategic Defence Initiative (SDI) as a bargaining chip en route to disarmament in western Europe. It upped the ante, to the point where Mr. Reisman had no alternative but to stroll from the talks.

Given this, probably the biggest surprise to the negotiating team and indeed to Canadians who were following the negotiations, is that anyone was surprised about their outcome.

A taxing matter

RAMBLING REPORTER
Eugene Macdonald

That proposal by the federal government to introduce a sales tax on all goods and services just won't go away.

Under pressure from consumer groups Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and his deputy P.M. Don Mazankowski assure there will be no tax on food in future tax reform legislation.

But Finance Minister Michael Wilson, the man in charge of taxing, insists the government's second phase of tax reform is considering all options, including taxes on all goods and services. He even argues that a sales tax on food will hit the man of means harder than the average shopper because his food bills will be higher. True, he may pay more, but that tax on food won't be the burden felt by shoppers who are already paying a high percentage of their income for the weekly food bill.

Mr. Wilson still means to tax the food we eat and he is being pressured by big business to introduce that all-embracing sales tax legislation no later than next January. A lobby group known as the Business Council on National Issues has given him that deadline for the new sales tax lest he lose the support of Canada's business leaders for his tax reform plans. That business group is reportedly made up of chief executives of some 150 big Canadian companies.

Surely a sales tax on food would be the last straw for the people of Canada who are already burdened by some of the highest tax rates imaginable. A tax on food at the checkout counter would hurt those least able to pay. The average family shopper is already spending more than a hundred dollars for food, some much more than that. If the federal and provincial governments added a 12 per cent combined sales tax to that food bill it could add from $600 to $1,000 a year to your outlays for food.

That would cost middle-class Canadians much more than the piddling savings Finance Minister Wilson tells you his tax reform proposals will bring.

That group of business people is talking more sense when it urges the federal government to reduce the deficit by eliminating all new spending ''other than for absolute essentials.''

If Canadians are being taxed inordinately, the chief culprits are the successive governments that have been so irresponsibly spending every dollar the tax man can gather in. Then they borrow billions so they can finance more government give-away. Government grants are the accepted thing and no corporation, however wealthy, will plan even a modest spending program without financial help from both federal and provincial governments.

It has been suggested that the annual deficit of $30 billion might be done away with if governments simply quit giving grants and went back to responsible spending practises.

More taxes are not the answer, Mr. Mulroney. Try spending less and balancing the books.

Mom Nature and I

JUST PLAIN JOE
Joe Banks

Just when I thought Mother Nature and I were good friends, she had to do this to us.

I felt we had an agreement, Mom Nature and I, that we would never throw unannounced loops at one another. I promised never to pollute her air or water, to throw back as many fish as I caught and to avoid cursing the weather at any time of year.

In return, the old girl agreed to stay on the straight and narrow, at least involving her role with the Banks family. Live and let live. You know, no unusual sicknesses, no blown down trees through the roof, no wild bears leaping through our door in a fit of rabid confusion.

But no. Mom Nature, probably in a fit of flippancy, decided this weekend would be an appropriate time to break the agreement, such as it were.

The weekend started off innocently enough. It wsa to be our final weekend in Almonte. The packing was to be completed, the final phone calls made, the rest of the postal notices mailed out. Heck, even Laura likened to a princess in training.

Then it happened, slowly at first, but discernable just the same. The cramps. The nausea. The building contractions. Wife Diane was showing all the classic symptoms of child labor — with over five weeks remaining in her pregnancy.

Okay. Forget we're moving this week, taking up a new life in an unfamiliar town amongst unfamiliar people. Never mind that her medical records had been transferred to our new doctor here in Alexandria. And don't give a second thought to the expected strike by the inside workers of Canada Post this week (a state of affairs which of course gives me no end of joy), which has from time to time given rise to a new definition of panic in the weekly newspaper field.

The fact is, THE BABY WAS COMING EARLY, and there was nothing we could do about it — except let Mom Nature have her way with us, whichever way that would be.

''Don't worry about it,'' Diane's mother, a Registered Nurse, told her assuredly over the phone Sunday. ''It's probably false labor. But just in case why don't you phone the hospital?''

That's all it took. Mention of the hospital, to me, meant there must be a problem — or the potential of one. Gad, the baby really was coming early. On moving week.

Well, to make this long story short, junior or juniorette decided it was not time to make his/her appearance. Mother Nature had merely hiccuped, and the Banks caught the reverberations.

The doctor wanted to keep Diane in the hospital overnight, as a precaution. It meant I had to stay in Almonte till Monday morning and show up late for work in Alexandria. After having only been on the job for a little more than a week, and knowing how hectic Monday is in this business, I felt more than a small pang of conscience. Despite the circumstances, my work ethic, which prompted me to work in Almonte for almost six years without a sick day off, pulled the guilt strings.

Despite the passing crisis, however, the Great Mother was not done with me. Monday morning, as I headed eastward to work, it rained from Carp to Ottawa. So? you ask. Alas, this was not just a drive through rain. This was a journey on the ''Maid of the Mist'' — Niagara Falls answer to the world's largest gravity shower. On Hwy. 417 for 15 miles, the visibility was perhaps 30 feet as water fell from the skies in sheets. Only the odd brakelight up ahead or the faint line on the road indicated to me I was still driving and not piloting a submarine.

The car and I both lived to drive another day, but after my arrival at work just after 10 a.m., we'd realized Mother Nature wasn't willing to hold up her end of the bargain. I was convinced she was out to get me because the sky cleared up over Alexandria and the sun came out later in the day. The clouds seemed to be smirking.

No, I won't keep more fish and I will still resist polluting the water and the air. But I've learned Mother Nature can't be totally trusted day in and day out. Just ask the people of Edmonton who lost their homes to the killer tornado, or the parents of Canada's latest quintuplets.

That's Mother Nature — the wretched conceiver of great cataclysms and the blushing bearer of beautiful wonders.

Here's hoping you see more of the latter than the former.

Truancy

LOOKOUT
Dann Rogers

Most everyone has an opinion on what to do with a drunken sailor, but perceptions become a little more vague when it comes to dealing with studentss who don't want to go to school.

The Citizens Committee for Academic Freedom, a lobby group for the educational and civil rights of students and their parents, thinks the provincial Ministry of Education may soon get a little too tough with skipping students.

The ministry is in the process of drafting policy directions for compulsory attendance legislation.

The committee considers these proposals ''draconian.'' It recently issued a press release which characterized the proposals this way: ''A parent who removes his child from school for whatever reason, be it religious or academic ones, fear of AIDS or a problem with a teacher, will soon be liable to a $1,000 fine, three months in jail and a state-ordered psychiatric assessment.''

Jake Rogers, a provincial attendance counsellor with the Ministry of Education says this interpretation is somewhat exaggerated.

''If parents have valid academic or religious reasons for keeping their kids out of school, then we won't crack down on them.

''The students we're interested in are the ones who are under 16 years of age and refuse to attend school with no good reason at all,'' he said.

The law states Ontario youth must have 10 years of compulsory education, ideally from age six to 16, or at least have their education attended to by a reliable, caring source.

The academic freedom committee goes on to say: '' . . . under the proposed law now, children under 16 convicted of truancy will be liable to a $1,000 fine and a state-ordered psychiatric assessment.''

Mr. Rogers says the fine for truant kids under age 16 will be dropped from the proposal before it is presented to the minister of education sometime in the next three months.

''We definitely want to put some teeth in the law. Without a change in it, the kids who drop out of school are considered juvenile delinquents, we don't want them considered as criminals, but rather as troubled kids.''

Instead of the fines, the ministry wants to emphasize the role psychiatric assessments can play.

Another part of the proposed legislation says that an employer who hires a person under the age of 16 during school hours will be liable to a $10,000 fine and three months in prison.

As the law stands now, the maximum fine is $100.

''There's not a big abuse of this, but we want to have the clout to make it clear to employers that they can't get child labor,'' said Mr. Rogers.

So if a student doesn't want to go to school, he shouldn't be keel-hauled or fed to the bilge rats. Rather let him work for a living and he'll soon realize how sweet academia is.

Questions

THAT'S LIFE
Lesley Cadham

For an all-expense paid, one-week vacation anywhere in the world, would you be able to kill a beautiful butterfly by pulling off its wings?

For $20,000 would you go for three months without washing, brushing your teeth or using deodorant? Keep in mind that you would not be permitted to tell anyone why you are behaving anti-socially.

If your date answered yes to both of those questions, would you tell him to get lost and never darken your doorway again? I sure would.

Much to my surprise, a lot of people would rip the wings from an innocent butterfly for the chance to see the faraway lands of their dreams. Fewer people would subject themselves and others to three months of repulsive body odor and plaque build-up.

The questions, certainly not one I would raise during casual conversation with an acquaintance, can be found in ''The Book of Questions'' by Gregory Stock, PhD.

The book itself is harder to find, a fact I swear to because I almost wore the soles off my shoes running from bookstore to bookstore trying to track it down. I finally put in a request at the Williamstown library and they didn't let me down.

The publication does not contain trivia questions and no answers are provided in the back of the book. The questions posed by Dr. Stock are geared to make you reflect upon your values, beliefs and your life in general. They zero in on money, greed, generosity, life, death, integrity, pride and love.

The words seep into the dusty crevasses of your mind. They sweep aside the cobwebs and bring to light forgotten dreams and honorable intentions. They can induce you to re-evaluate your values and think about issues you'd purposely locked into your subconscious. In short, the questions have the power to force you to look deep inside yourself.

The book is great at parties, too, because it gives normally inhibited people an excuse to ask questions which would usually be considered rude. At a dinner gathering last week, I pulled out the book and asked a guest whether he would be willing to eat a bowl of live crickets for $40,000.

A moment later, the book was on its way to the other end of the table. From time to time I heard asked ''would you spit or pick your nose in public?'' or ''How old were you when you first had sexual intercourse?''

All for only $8.95 wherever you're lucky enough to find it.

WORD SKETCH

Sybil Carello

Winter hovers in the wings. A long and cold winter, with an abundance of snow, weather wizards predict, with unreserved glee.

For the robust of mind and body, the news is greeted with equal outbursts of stoicism and cheer. Inarguably, winter has its charms as well as its mishaps.

Fighting the winter elements, or journeying through them kneedeep in exhilarating seasonal sports, has always been an occupation of the fit.

For octogenarians, those aged 80 and beyond, winter, is a journey of another sort. A gauntlet, in my view. As the natural atrophy of age begins to affect the efficiency of the whole body, simple navigation over ice and snow, can turn into a treacherous affair. Cold is felt more acutley. And hypothermia, a sudden drop in body temperature, is a common risk among the old. Arthritic and rheumatic conditions become pronounced. And winter colds, if they occur, are likely to linger.

And then there is the depression, a natural byproduct of a too-long winter. Most of us succumb from time to time. But the very nature of our youth, work, health and many activities, temper it. It's easier for us to see the seasons ahead. For the elderly, particularly the widow, or widower, this isn't always the case. Winter-bound in a large, empty house, or nursing home cubicle, only memories sustain between visits. Poor health, coupled with debilitating lonliness can initiate a downward spiral.

Statistics indicating a high mortality rate among elderly during winter months, is hardly surprising.

What is surprising actually appalling, are the reports of mental and physical abuse, generating from within their own families!

Within the comforting confines of a small village where every face is a familiar one, I have noticed an invisible shield of care and respect surrounding the aged. People are mindful of their faltering steps, their impaired faculties. Friendly greetings reach out to touch these old souls whose short winter jaunts, I'm truly convinced, are acts of pure faith.

Moving to the Glengarry area has restored some of my faith in the natural acts of kindnesses extended to the very old. Unfortunately, this kindness isn't always the rule in larger centres, or, for that matter, even smaller towns.

One of the horrors of living in Montreal, was watching the elderly traverse through jostling crowds; or crossing intersections to the obscene music of an insensate, motorist's horn. (The kind you want to suspend by the toes). At some point, we, too, will be there, feeling a rush of vulnerability and impotent rage.

Besides our own, older, familial ties, some of us have a circle of octogenarian (and younger) pals. My few, delight at any visit, no matter how short. As one special 82-year-old often tells me, "It's something to look forward to." Preoccupied with my own life, there are timees when contact becomes an afterthought.

In some other societies, the elderly have an enviable, secure status. Respected, sought after for their individual wisdoms, they continue to play active, important roles. They live longer, happier, lives because they have something to live for, "something to look forward to."

What a pity our culture often reduces them to forgotten shadows. Aside from the fighters, most, given no other recourse fall easily into line, into pill bottles, into forced retirement, into nursing homes, into limbo.

Singer, Bette Midler intones a sad, eerie, but fitting tribute: "You know that old trees just grow stronger; and old rivers grow wilder every day; but old people they just grow lonesome, waiting for someone to say, hello in there."

News Editor is a good fiction writer

Sir:

Re your column of Sept. 16 concerning your fantasy of some kind of Machiavellian action between the Liberals and the independent candidate. As Mr. McGregor's campaign manager I can assure you that your fantasy is just that. For example, the copies of Bill 8 and Hansard were obtained from the provincial printer, just as you could obtain them.

Also, I obtained copies from Mr. Villeneuve, who, as our MPP was obliged to supply them on our request. Further, Mr. McGregor resigned his position as Justice of the Peace and registered as an independent candidate before APEC learned that he would be running on the main objectives of APEC.

Consequently APEC advised the local members to give every support possible. APEC, however, did not directly support the candidate since it is a non-political organization.

Your mischievous innuendos and false statements are designed to sully the name of an honest and well-proven citizen of our country. You, sir, are a disgrace to the profession you are engaged in. Your name, sir, stinks in my nostrils.

You were fully informed concerning Mr. McGregor, so I must conclude you have deliberately attempted to injure the reputations of a number of people. Furthermore, if you had a real grasp of the business you are in, you would have been aware of the large advertisements placed in over 40 newspapers throughout Ontario in which Mr. Peterson's Bill 8 was the target, not the Conservative Party or Mr. Villeneuve. An editor you are not! A writer of fiction you surely are!

Privatization threatened by postal strike

Sir:

The threatened strike by inside postal workers directly challenges the federal government's privatization strategy.

Jean-Claude Parrot, president of the militant Canadian Union of Postal Workers, has declared that he is determined to stop the privatization of postal services. Canada Post Corporation has been selling post office franchises in the private sector which have been staffed by non-union labor. Existing opposition to privatization by public service union officials would no doubt stiffen if the federal government backed down in its confrontation with the inside postal workers union.

The first of the government's three options in this high stakes contest is to cave in immediately and thereby save the economy from a paralyzing strike. With the second option, the government can remain firm in its resolve to privatize postal services and meet the union challenge head on and win.

The third option would be for the government to give in to the union's demands after an extended, bloody and economically damaging strike. This would be disastrous for the government — and Canada.

We therefore urge your readers to contact their MPs and tell them forcefully not to choose the third option, which would make us all victims, in vain.

Instead, urge the MPs to stand firm against the threats, get tough and forge ahead with privatization.

David Somerville

Obituary corrected

Sir:

With reference to the death notice of my late brother Lorenzo Lefebvre in the Sept. 2 edition of the newspaper, there were some errors which I would much appreciate being rectified.

Lorenzo was born in Brodie, Lochiel Township.

Our father's name was Fred Lefebvre.

Lorenzo was married to "Melina" Gravel

One brother, Lomer Lefebvre of Ottawa also survives.

Thank you for your kind co-operation.

Farmers can travel south to Nicaragua

Sir:

Farmers considering a trip south this winter should look into the following tour:

OxFam-Canada is sponsoring a Canadian farmers tour to Nicaragua scheduled for Jan. 4 to 21. OxFam is looking for four Ontario farmers to participate in the tour along with Western Canada farmers.

Tour participants will have the opportunity to witness the achievements of rural people in Nicaragua. They will visit agricultural co-operatives, small and medium-sized farms, state farms, talk with farmers, ranchers and farm workers. study firsthand the Nicaraguan agrarian reform program and its effect.

Anyone interested in participating in OxFam's Farmers' Brigade to Nicaragua can call Bob Jeffcott at 416-961-3933 or write to OxFam-Canada at: 175 Carlton St., Toronto, M5A 2K3.

Having met the Farmers' Brigade in 1985, while travelling rural Nicaragua I fully endorse such an experience.

Participants of such a tour find it most enriching and gratifying!

Volunteers are wanted for campaign

MARTINTOWN

Lorne MacDonald
528-4378

It's time to roll up our sleeves Martintown and pitch in. The Ontario Heart and Stroke Foundation needs our help! Heart and stroke disease is still the number one killer in Canada and no doubt we've all loved or known someone who has been affected by one or the other.

The Ontario Heart and Stroke Foundation is about to begin its monthly meetings for 1987-88 and are looking for people to sit on the board in a learning position. The more people they have the less they have to do.

They are also looking for captains and canvassers in the Martintown area for the campaign in February. This might seem like a long way off but in order to be prepared we have to start thinking about it now in order to enjoy success.

Campaign Chairman Hazel MacDonald outlined for me the type of person she is looking for as captains or canvassers: 1, a person who is familiar with his area and its people (perhaps a politician), 2, a person recovering from heart problems who wants to give something back to the foundation, and 3, a responsible individual (retiree) with time on their hands. These are just a few examples of well-suited persons.

Martintown's previous captains have retired so it is time for someone new to pick up the torch and continue the good work as in the past. For more information contact Campaign Chairman Hazel MacDonald in Alexandria at 525-3561 or in Cornwall at 938-8933.

Here is your opportunity to say ''so long and good luck'' to Garth and Gordon this Sunday, October 4th. The community is hosting their friends, between 3 and 5 on Sunday afternoon at the cottage (Garth and Gordon's home). Everyone is welcome, so come bid these wonderful citizens farewell! Please bring your own refreshments and your warmest good wishes. Garth and Gordon want to see you all there.

Tonight don't forget it's the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church harvest supper from 4:30 until 7:30. Adults $6, teens $3 and children under 12, free. Everyone is welcome to attend. Sounds like a real good deal to me. Hope to see you all there.

* * *

I wonder how many readers will recall what happened in Martintown during the night of Sept. 29, 1929? That of course was the night of the great Martintown fire. It must have been a scary night for many. The fire started in Johnny Archie McDonald's blacksmith shop and spread to Barney Warner's wheelwright shop, then to John M. Grant's carriage house, barn and stable, then to Johnny Archie's carriage house and woodshed. Fortunately it started to rain and prevented further spread. I would imagine there was a lot of exhausted people in the village when that was over.

I hear from well-informed sources that St. Andrew's United Church in Martintown was treated (no maybe tortured) to a guest soprano in their choir. I hear there are church-goers still walking around with sore sides. Sales of earplugs and blindfolds were way up this week at Lalonde's General Store.

Welcome home to Martintown to John, Maryanne, Clayton and Curtis Delaney who have just purchased Mrs. Clyde's home in the west end of the village. Good to have you all back and part of the community.

Once again it's time to light a fire under those of you who have not yet purchased your tickets to the fundraising dinner and dance to be held at the Martintown Community Centre on Oct. 24. It will feature a Chinese buffet and dancing to the music of McMartins Fiddle. Tickets are $15 apiece and can be purchased from committee members or at Char-Lan garage. Also tickets are quickly running out on the trip for two to Orlando, which includes airfare, accommodation, and car rental. There are only a few left so you better act now.

Don't forget the first and third Wednesdays of the month are bingo nights at the centre. For info on these or anything else pertaining to the centre and coming events please call 528-4801 or 528-4635.

GLEN NORMAN

Mary Lacelle
525-4998, 525-1372

Donat Ouimet and Donald MacGregor of the surrounding area have taken up residence at the beautiful old Davidson-Moore Lodge in Glen Nevis.

Claude Leroux is busy building himself a new home. Richard Andrews already has an interested party in his partially completed house. I know the stones were not the alluring factor, it's just that anyone who knows Richard is impressed by his professional carpentry.

The community was shocked to hear of the early morning Tuesday fire that destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ron St. Denis.

I would like to take this opportunity to welcome the Robitaille family who have moved into the old general store. It has been a while but I've only just been informed. There is also another family that have moved in as well, but as yet I don't know their name. I would appreciate a call so we can welcome them properly.

Don't forget about the wine and cheese party Saturday night at the Sports Palace. I know some Glen Norman folks are attending. It is for a good cause, to buy special equipment by the hospital auxiliary.

Happy birthday Oct. 2 to my grand nephew Christopher Riel, my nephew Kenny Lalonde Oct. 4, and my father-in-law John Lacelle, Oct. 5, also happy anniversary to Kenny and Laurie Lalonde, Oct. 5.

Documents found when school demolished

NORTH LANCASTER
Diane Roy
347-3553

Without being an old softie, I do feel along with many villagers a pinch to the heart when old historical landmarks disappear. No one stops progress and evolution but childhood memories will linger on forever. Such was the case over a week ago when the solid remains of old no. 8 North Lancaster School were torn down on the property of Marc Sauvé.

Marc's father, Germain Sauvé came upon an interesting piece of information forgotten between the school's ancient walls some 60 years ago.

The yellowed, fragile document dated Alexandria, March 7th, 1924 and signed by J. W. Crewson, inspector of public schools, contained 13 detailed regulations on annual uniform proficiency examinations to be held in area schools on June 25 and 26, 1924.

From the contents, too long to rewrite, one realizes that these "entrance" exams were very serious business. Many local residents will remember so as they glance at the old school's picture in this week's edition of The Glengarry News.

I am grateful to my mother Lucille Lacombe Poirier, to Germain and Noel Sauvé, to Leonide Rozon and to Rollande Diotte in helping to identify most of the pupils in the group picture. If a reader recognizes someone or discovers that a name is not accurate, please inform us.

Though not a landmark, but part of North Lancaster's scenery, the huge century-old hard rock maple standing on the east lot of the McCormick's property, formerly owned by the Graham's and at one time the Vaillancourts, had to be cut down last Friday.

The crew from the United Counties Road Department were instructed to saw down the tall tree near the road for safety measures. One remembers the close call neighbors had at the end of July when another old maple tree right across the street from this one had fallen on its own after this year's numerous summer storms.

We welcome to our area Jim and Cathie MacDonald and children Addison and Callie who took up residence on the fifth concession east on the farm of Yvan Desautels. After a few years in Edmonton, Jim and his family are happy to be back in familiar surroundings as he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn MacDonald of Green Valley.

SOFTBALL CHAMPS

Congratulations to King Edward Hotel ladies softball team who captured the A championship title last Saturday at the Alexandria Park defeating GTL and Lalonde General Store teams. Sylvie Rozon of North Lancaster along with her teammates is very grateful to coach Barry Benton for the victory.

Brithday wishes this week to Marie-Josée Samson who will be 12 on Thursday and many happy returns to three of my favorite senior citizens: Ubald Poirier of Alexandria, on Oct. 1, to Mrs. Isabelle Lacombe now of Alexandria celebrating on Sunday, Oct. 4 and to Joseph Bourbonnais, a life-long North Lancastrian whose birthday is next Monday, Oct. 5.

André and Fleurette Théoret were off again last weekend, this time enjoying the colorful fall scenery of the Laurentians.

Old #8 North Lancaster School

The students are, from left: front row, Léonide Rozon, Marcel Campeau, George Goulet and Germain Sauvé; second row, Alcide Rozon, unknown, Marguerite Blondin, Fleurette Major, Rose Bourbonnais, Pauline Vaillancourt, Noella Vachon and Carmen Major; third row, Rita Bourbonnais, Noella Avon; Rose Rozon; Mary McDonell and Lorette Major; fourth row, Raymond Campeau, Gérald Rozon, Rémi Campeau, Gérard Vincent, Robert Vincent and Gilles Rozon.

Village Video owner Mike Fradette has learned that his shop once housed, some 45 years ago, a movie theatre. He finds it an interesting coincidence that his place has handled two eras of film entertainment.

Carol Ann Larocque spent the weekend with her mother, Mrs. Jean Larocque. Carol Ann is employed with the Toronto Children's Hospital.

Congratulations to Michel and Debbie Decoeur upon the birth of baby Lauri Ann. Grandparents are Bernard and Blanche MacDonald and Paul and Yvonne Decoeur. Aunt Simone Cardinal is a very happy relative also.

Early settlement averts ugly scene in village

WILLIAMSTOWN
Sue Harrington
347-2279

It lasted only a day, but Thursday's lock-out caused quite a little flurry on the Williamstown scene. Picketers and placards appeared at the arena and the township hall and news whizzed around faster than speeding bullets.

Fortunately an early settlement was reached and the event passed into history without bad weather, ugly incident, or much loss of ice time. It must have been the sign that did it!

Though causing a minor disruption in minor hockey's clinic, the lock-out did not affect that most important event in a young man's life — travelling team try-outs. Passed from generation to generation with the ease of an infectious disease, the desire to make Char-Lan's prestigious teams has brought young hopefuls out this week in droves.

One such hopeful, trying for a spot on the Peewee Rebels, is young James Cooper who played last year for Cornwall Royals AA atoms and was named the team's MVP. James is another of those boys for whom the regular hockey season is just too short. This summer he played for the Ottawa 67's, an AAA Major Atom team. He also attended Huron Hockey School.

Good luck for the future from your family and friends, James!

If he's anything like some of his cousins, young Bryce Cameron Major should be a future goal-getter. Not for a while, though. On Sunday, in St. Wilibrod's Church in Verdun, Bryce, son of Aaron and Tyra Major was christened in a ceremony conducted by Father Joe Cameron. Father Cameron is a cousin of Bryce's maternal grandfather, Ewen Cameron.

Attending the event were some 20 guests, including Karla and Bruno Major, and Myles and Laurie Major. Karla said the whole day was beautiful; Bryce behaved himself admirably. It must have been the magic of his christening gown which was worn by his father before him.

After the ceremony, those present returned to Ville La Salle where a reception was held.

Godparents for Bryce Cameron Major are his grandparents, Ewen and Lee Cameron. And by the way, welcome to Hamilton Island!

Well Bryce might have had a lovely christening gown, but when it comes to wedding dresses, Joanne White had a beauty. I mention it here because I've just seen some photographs of her recent wedding to John, and the dress looked truly magnificent. It was a very soft pink in color and the skirt seemed to tumble into filmy clouds which floated into a train. It looked to be the sort of dress we all dreamed about as young girls, the sort a princess would wear!

Speaking of weddings, Bill and Muriel Cowling of MacGillivary's Bridge, have recently returned from Toronto where they attended the wedding of their son William to Debbie Barnes. The wedding took place at St. Olave's Church on September 19.

Both William and Debbie are fond of choral music and the ceremony featured the Toronto Cathedral Choir under the direction of Giles Bryant.

Among those who attended from a distance was Muriel's cousin, Doris from Wellingborough, England.

The bride and groom holidayed in Bermuda following their wedding, and upon their return will reside in Swansea, Toronto.

A curious place this Swansea. According to Mr. Cowling, prohibition is still being practised in the area. Not so in Williamstown. After nearly two decades of dry weather, restaurateur Ed Latreille hopes to reverse the situation locally in the near future in his Old Mill Restaurant.

Fun and dancing were on the menu as the Ladies Guild of St. Mary's travelled to Lancaster to the Chateau Gardens in order to honor residents who were celebrating birthdays. Ann MacLeod, Dorothy Williams, Anita Farlinger, Ellen Berchand, Victor Latreille, and Alderic Viau were the birthday party recipients.

Residents of the Gardens apparently really enjoyed the Scottish music provided for them by the Lochiel Strings and many a sprightly jig livened up the day. Our local ladies provided the lunch for the occasion while the Gardens brought forth the birthday cake. And, as they say when it happens, a good time was had by all.

A good time was also had by all Char-Lan soccer teams this week as they dumped teams from La Citadelle in Cornwall. Not even La Citadelle's school spirit (the whole school was let out for the event) or their famous banner could daunt our Williamstown Crusaders. Shaun Powell and Devon MacDonald scored in the senior team's 2-0 victory, while Todd Cameron posted another hat-trick for the junior team and Ed Swerdfeger had one, in their 4-2 win.

Come to think of it, maybe little Bryce will shine on the soccer pitch as well.

I'm sure all of you who worry about the world of the unknown will be relieved to hear that Rose-Marie Chretien has made it safely to her destination in Mauritius, and according to her mother is very pleased with things so far.

Janice Montreuil

Well, hello again! Another week gone by and the end of September is upon us. Here is a sampling of what your area has to offer you this week.

The Knights of Columbus, Council 8715, Lancaster will sponsor a Thanksgiving Bingo on Sunday, October 4, at St. Joseph Hall, Oak St., Lancaster at 7 p.m. Also, Michel Bourdeau asked me to remind everyone that during the next few weeks the Knights of Columbus will do their annual blitz for the Arthritis Society campaign.

I also had a letter from Hazel MacDonald, campaign chairman for the Glengarry Chapter of the Heart and Stroke Foundation of Ontario. They are starting their 1987-1988 monthly meetings soon and are looking for volunteers to sit in on their meetings in the hopes that once persons become familiar with the workings of the foundation, they may want to take on a specific job or position. Please think about helping out as heart disease is still the number one killer in Canada today, a disease that hits both young and old alike. Information at 525-3561 in Alexandria and 938-8933 in Cornwall.

Chris Rozon of Chateau Gardens Nursing Home in Lancaster called me and asked if I would mention they are looking for volunteers (male or female) to help with social activities such as bingo, bowling, exercises, movies, rhythm band, and therapeutic walking. Call Chris at 347-3016 if you think you could spare some time to help. It would be appreciated.

June Picard from the Char-Lan Alley Cats Bowling League called to let you know that they resumed bowling on Thurday, Sept. 10 at Olympia Bowling Alley in Cornwall. She is happy to report that the league has increased from six teams to eight teams and they are looking forward to another year of fun and fellowship. High scorers for the week of Sept. 24 are: men's high single, Andy Lubbers, 247; men's high triple, 619 and ladies high single, Dorothy Black; Ladies high triple, Ina Davies, 591.

Please call me with your news or write c/o Box 43, South Lancaster, Ont., K0C 2C0.

Pioneer Museum closes after Thanksgiving weekend

DUNVEGAN
Mary MacCaskill
527-2855

Dunvegan's new 4-H group, "A Taste of Ontario's Fruits and Vegetables" held its first meeting Sept. 22 at the Women's Institute hall. The executive for the group are president, Karen Schmidt; vice-president, Cathy Arkinstall; secretary, Jeri-lynn Heinsma and press reporter, James Whealon. The group leaders are Lynda Heinsma and Huguette Schmidt.

* * *

I would like to thank Huguette Schmidt for coming to my rescue on Saturday evening when I ran out of gas near St. Elmo. Stan was at work and I'm glad Huguette was home and so willing to rescue me. Thanks again! It would have been a long walk.

* * *

The gremlins got into last week's column and Mary Catherine MacLeod was missed from the list of those receiving honorary life membership certificates at the Skye Women's Missionary Society September meeting. My apologies Catherine.

* * *

The jui-jitsu classes are full up, so enrolment is complete for this season.

The bookmobile will stop in Dunvegan on Thursday at 1 p.m. for your fall reading requirements. It stops at McCrimmon Corner at 11:30 a.m.

FALL WHITE LILACS

We've heard about lilacs in the spring but who would expect a lilac to bloom now? Neil MacCrimmon sure didn't but there stands the bush at the corner of his house doing it anyway. I didn't quite believe this myself, so I nipped around to the MacCrimmon place to see it and yes it is blooming for the second time this summer. (I know we're into the fall but this was last week.)

The second bloom is only on the top but the MacCrimmon bush is definitely in bloom. You should join the local horticultural society Neil; they'd have to introduce a new category at the competitions for your lilacs.

WOOL DAY

Thanksgiving weekend is the last weekend the Glengarry Pioneer Museum will be open for this season. The grand finale is "Wool Day," on Sunday, Oct. 11. Members of the "Wool from Glengarry" group will be at the museum, showing the techniques of spinning and weaving. There will be fleece for sale as well as local wool, dyed or left natural.

All the woolen coverlets, blankets and shawls in the museum will be hung up outside for a colorful display on the Sunday afternoon. And . . . . bring some apples — any kind of apples, and try your hand at using the cider press. The museum's big press just came back from Upper Canada Village. If you've never tasted fresh apple juice, here's an opportunity. Kathy and Jim McGill of Dalkeith will be on hand pressing apples of their own if you just want to watch. Fred Christie of Monkland, is bringing along his collection of antique saws. After the Thanksgiving weekend, the Museum packs away their collection, so come out for "Wool Day" and join in the fun.

There was a good crowd Saturday night at the Bonnie Glen for the mixed party for Lorna Campbell and Keith Massia. Lorna is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allister Campbell of Dunvegan.

In keeping with "World-wide Communion" a service of "Holy Communion" will be held at Kenyon Presbyterian church on Sunday, Oct. 4 at 11 a.m. A warm welcome is extended to all.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Dyck of Markham spent a few days visiting at the "manse" last week.

PIPING AND DRUMMING SCHOOL

The executive of the Glengarry School of Piping and Drumming were pleased to welcome 20 new students on Saturday to the first lesson of the Fall term, which consists of 11 lessons and runs each Saturday until Dec. 12. No lesson will be given on Oct. 17 when the Glengarry Pipe Band travels to the National Art Centre for Glengarry '87.

This year the director of the school is Colin MacLellan of Maxville who is teaching the senior classes. P/M Roger Martin of Alexandria is teaching the beginners while P/M David Danskin of Maxville has the intermediate classes. Margaret St. John of Ottawa is the drumming instructor.

There is room for more students and the executive wish to encourage those who are thinking about starting to hurry on over to Maxville and enrol in a class suitable to their skills. Classes are for one hour from 1 to 4 p.m. and all ages and levels are welcome.

The last euchre party of the season will be held at the Dunvegan W.I. hall on Thursday night. Come out and make this last evening a gala affair.

Bruce and Margaret Allnutt spent a week in Alberta visiting their daughter and family, the Bruce Sargents in St. Albert. While there, they visited the eight-block long, Fantasy World in Edmonton.

Ethel McKinnon enjoyed visits from two cousins she had not met personally before. They were Helen Schaff from Creighton, Sask., and Jean Ward from Vancouver. They are the daughters of the late Hugh McKercher who was a brother of the late Margaret Lampton. Another cousin, Arnold McEwen and his wife Ivy from Ottawa, provided the transportation for the two ladies.

* * *

David Conners, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Conners and Michael St. John, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hormidas St. John are on a three-month travelling holiday in Europe.

Best wishes are extended to Walter Brady as he recovers from a recent indisposition.

Beverly Blair, Woodstock, was home last weekend and was an attendant at the Filiatrault-McDonald wedding in Alexandria on Saturday.

RASPBERRY REPORT

Lena Golden is reporting a second crop of raspberries on her garden patch and appreciated the help of the two Birtch children in getting them picked.

The people of Maxville United Church who are behind the annual church supper which is being held this year on Oct. 3 are issuing this reminder along with an invitation to all to attend this event.

We often hear negative comments concerning members of the younger generation. There is one young fellow who deserves praise. He is Phillip Brady who has two paper routes. Phillip, a Grade 8 student delivers the Ottawa Citizen to a section of the village before school in the morning and then repeats his route in the late afternoon with the Standard-Freeholder. Also, Phillip is friendly and can always take time for a short visit. Keep up the good work, Phillip, and you will be an important businessman some day.

Stanley G. McDonald, his sister Alma, Mrs. Howard Umphrey and their sister-in-law Mrs. Alex McDonald, Ottawa, flew to Baltimore last weekend to visit with their brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. William McDonald. At age 93, Stanley drove back and forth to Ottawa.

Roger and Catherine Hartrick enjoyed a visit from his brother Peter and wife Margaret and daughters Connie and Anne from Red Deer, Alta.

John and Marjorie MacLean, Ottawa, were recent visitors with his sister, Helen Hunter.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Blanche, Burritt's Rapids and formerly from Dunvegan, were recent visitors with Mrs. Neil MacRae.

SMOOTH ROAD

The new paving job at the CNR crossing on Main St., is appreciated. We just hope the speedsters won't find it too smooth.

The newsletter from the Maxville Public School indicates the students will be conducting two fundraising projects this year. In late October there will be a catalogue sale and in February a chocolate almond sale.

The first Open House this year is on Oct. 6 from 7 to 9 p.m.

The newsletter also publicizes a rabies vaccination clinic, sponsored by the Eastern Ontario Health Unit on Oct. 3 from 1 to 4 p.m. Dogs and cats must be vaccinated and the cost is $7. For more information you are invited to call 1-800-267-7120.

The following comes from Sue McDonald, co-ordinator of activities and volunteers at the Maxville Manor.

You often read about the special events that go on at Maxville Manor but what do our residents do from day to day? What programs do they have and who runs them?

We at the Manor are very proud of our very dedicated volunteers so we are planning a series of articles on them. Starting soon in this column will be a series on volunteer profiles.

The Auld Lang Syne colum of 60 years ago indicates that three graduates of the Maxville Continuation School were attending the Ottawa Normal School. They were Alma McDonald, now Mrs. Howard Umphrey, who taught for a short time in the local public school; Mary McInnis, now deceased who taught in the school for several years as Mrs. Jim Whissel and Wilfred ''Bill'' Kennedy, now deceased, who farmed at Three Bridges. His wife, Betty, lives in Dunvegan and his sons, the Rev. Duncan and Mack in Ottawa.

Ninety years ago, the late W. B. McDiarmid left the village to resume his medical studies at McGill. He became a highly respected doctor in the village and later a federal member of parliament. His son Bill lives in Ottawa.

In the same column, E. J. ''Ernie Peter'' McEwen bought a fine team of horses for export to Europe. He must have been a fairly young man at this time and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. ''Peter Black John'' McEwen. His two daughters, Edna and Evelyn Johnson, live in Kingston.

Children's Mass held in Apple Hill

APPLE HILL
Nancy Marleau
527-3293

As the Lord said, "Let the children come to me" and that's exactly what they did at Sunday's mass at 10:30 in St. Anthony's Parish. Our young children of the parish did the readings, brought the offerings to the altar, read the prayers of petitions and even took up the collection.

Their faces just shone with pride and pleasure in a job well done. We thank Patricia Quail for her guidance and enthusiasm in organizing this "children's mass." She tells us this is just the first of many. We are looking forward to this.

After mass there was a christening for young André Leroux. André is the son of Marcel and Sylvette Leroux and brother to Mireille. A new parishioner for our "future children's mass."

A little note from our Apple Hill recreation committee on our turkey bingo. It's on Monday, Oct. 5, at the Activity Centre at 8 p.m. There'll be 10 regular games, three specials, a 50-50 draw, and a door prize. Let's get those bingo markers out and ready!

Also a reminder that the elections are coming up at the end of October. I hope you are all seriously considering being there.

There is still work to be done on our ballfield and rink so if you could possibly spare an hour or two, please get in touch with Marc Guindon at 527-2394.

BIRTHDAYS

A birthday greeting goes out to Mrs. Loretta Ingram, who is going to be 72 years young on Oct. 8. I'd also like to send out birthday greetings to someone whose birthday is on Oct. 6. I won't tell you how old she is though. Happy birthday, Mom!

I'd also like to let Ian Lacelle know that we are thinking of him and hope his stay in the hospital is a short one.

Morris off to Winnipeg farm club

Local hockey hopeful Frank Morris hasn't given up his dream of playing for the National Hockey League. For now, however, he's taking it one step at a time.

The 24-year-old Alexandria native was invited to attend the Winnipeg Jets' training camp in early September and made a good impression, his mother Gwen said Tuesday.

''He was leading in points for goals and assists'' during the camp exhibition play she said—until he was pulled off the active camp roster for sustaining a separated shoulder.

Mrs. Morris said the injury did not keep the player off the ice; he could skate but couldn't play.

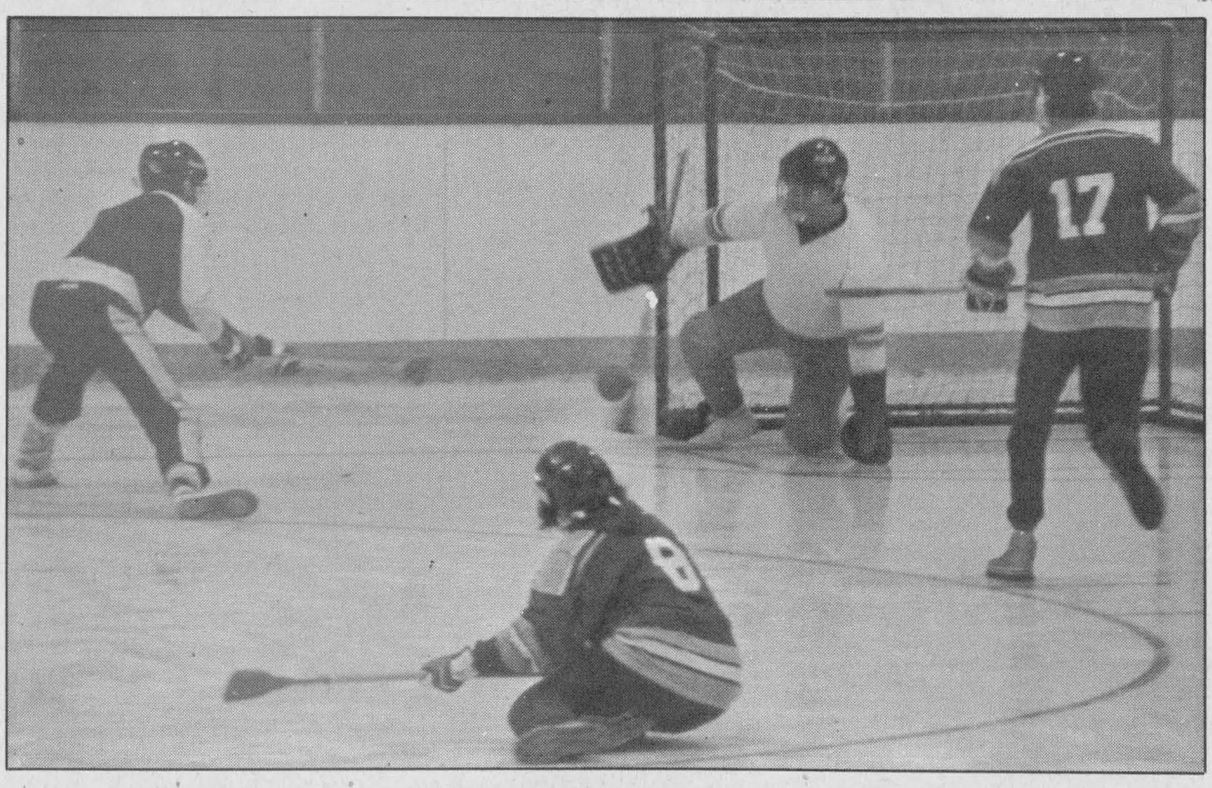

A free agent, Morris was sent to the Jets' farm club training camp in Moncton, New Brunswick on September 10. He's been there since, but the club has yet to sign him.

The News couldn't reach Morris in Moncton before press time for a progress report on his try-out in Moncton.

In July of 1986, Morris had been invited to be a player-coach in the National Ice Hockey League. He chose instead to return to Concordia University that fall to finish his degree.

In a story published in the July, 1986 edition of The News, Mr. Morris said he was still hopeful of a career in the NHL.

''I still like the idea of going to the NHL,'' he was quoted then as saying. ''I'll probably never play in the NHL, but I'd still like a crack at it.''

Glens down Rebels in exhibition play

Glengarry's Junior B hockey teams took to the ice in an exhibition match Friday night that both teams needed to hone their pre-season skills. In a game that saw more penalties than completed passes, the Alexandria Glens downed the Char-Lan Rebels 4-2 before a large crowd at the Glengarry Sports Palace.

The first period seemed like a try-out for the Goons of Glengarry squad as 13 penalties were handed out. Both teams seemed rusty as they tried to maintain their balance by clutching and grabbing one another.

Chris Carney managed to pick up a goal on a scramble in the crease to put the Glens ahead 1-0 and that's how the first period ended.

The tempo picked up a bit in the second period and there were only 10 minor penalties and one major assessed. John Dullaghan of the Glens picked up a rebound in front of the net and banged it home to give the hometown squad a 2-0 advantage going into the third period.

In the third period the skating and execution dramatically improved over the first two periods and only nine minor penalties were handed out.

Darryl Menard popped in two goals for the Rebels, the second when his team had a two-man advantage, to even the score at 2-2.

The Glens took the lead back a few minutes later on a power play when Mike Daniels blasted one in from the point after taking a perfect pass from Leonard Seguin who was holding court in the far corner.

Seguin continued to lead the way a few moments later when he made a picture-perfect end-to-end rush, but was stymied by the Rebels goalie.

Luc Francoeur collected the rebound and deposited it in the net to cap the scoring at 4-2.

The Glens travel to Williamstown to play the Rebels Saturday evening at 7:45 p.m.

Before that rubber match, the Glens host the Morrisburg Lions at the Sports Palace at 8:30 p.m., Friday night.

On Sunday afternoon, the Glens are at home again to do battle with the Hawkesbury Hawks Junior A club at 1:30.

The following Saturday, Oct. 10, the Glens hit the road to play the Cardinal-Spencerville Combines at 8 p.m.

GSL ends season with awards

Another soccer season has come and gone and its finale was celebrated at the Glengarry Soccer League banquet, Sept. 18.

About 380 guests crowded into the Bonnie Glen and anxiously awaited news such as ''Who was best goalie?'' and ''Who earned the title of most valuable player?''

Included in the esteemed head table guests, piped in by Pipe Major J. T. MacKenzie were League Chairman and Master of Ceremonies Roy MacMaster, guest speaker Alex MacKie, league Vice Chairman John MacSweyn, Glen Nevis representative Joey McRae, and Old Timer ''Little'' Willie MacLeod, who also donated the Senior men's MVP trophy. Also at the head table were Ralph MacGillivray, league referee-in-chief, Dunvegan representative Lori Trottier, league Secretary-Treasurer Margie Laferriere, also winner of the Louis Shepherd Award for Outstanding Sports Advancement, Laggan representative Kevin MacGillivray, Glengarry Star representative André Chenier and Alexandria representative Gerry Simpson. Continuing down the line were Elizabeth Ferguson, Maxville representative and Ernie MacMillan, representing the Glen Sandfield team. Mr. MacMillan was also the recent winner of the Founders' trophy for Dedication and Promotion of Soccer.

Maurice Sauvé started the ball rolling with the ''Sportsman's Prayer.'' ''Help me be a sport in this little game of life,'' he read. '' . . . help me to see that often the best part of the game is helping the other guys . . .''

Angus H. McDonell also delivered a message to the crowd before reminiscing about the league's early years.

''When the great scorer comes to write against your name, he writes not who won or lost but how you played the game,'' he said.

Sixty-four awards were handed out.

Thomson sets sheaf toss record

by Angus H. McDonell

The Cabers of Glengarry closed their 1987 Heavy Events competitions last Sunday afternoon at the Mastersons Beach recreation centre, Loch Garry, in recording breaking class. A new Canadian record was set in the sheaf toss and a hefty Rochester N.Y. athlete, Mark Palmer, won both the Neil McDonell Memorial Trophy and the Angus H. McDonell award emblematic of Glengarry's long gone great athletes.

Ron MacDonell, Cabers chairman and veteran competitor at Highland Games rated Sunday's exhibition of brawn and skill comparable to the top five best Games in Canada and New York State this year.

Doug Fales, a walking encyclopedia of International Heavy Events rules and records, declared Martintown's Robin Thomson's feat of tossing the sheaf over the bar at 26 feet (with an estimated three inches to spare) was a new Canadian record. That achievement topped Dave Harrington's mark of 25 feet 8 inches and Scotland's Alistair Gunn's recent Montreal level of 25 feet nine inches.

A large crowd using lawn chairs bordered the south side infield and were generous with their applause, a mark of keen interest in the efforts of the competitors striving to maintain Glengarry's heritage in the annals of sport history.

And favorably to the occasion was the ideal fall weather and the panoramic setting of the Loch Garry Lake shore line. Among those in attendance were area municipal politicians, Glengarry Highland Games organizers and heading the fans in general was Williamstown's venerable sports lady nudging four score and 10, ''Nettie'' MacDonald.

Ten athletes entered the program that consisted of the standard eight competitions beginning with the stone throw and closing with the ''56'' (weight) over the bar. In this final fatigue reduced the number to four, Paul Lang; John (Syracuse) MacDonald; Roddy McLeod and Ian Sandilands. The other members were: Pat (Syracuse) Lynn, Robin Thomson, Ron MacDonell, Mark (Rochester) Palmer, George (Ottawa) Chiappa and Willie Lang.

Finlay and Angela McDonell donated the Neil McDonell Memorial Trophy to the Cabers of Glengarry at their annual fall meet in Loch Garry Sunday. The first winner of the trophy was Mark Palmer of Rochester, N.Y.

In the always feature event, tossing the caber, Roddy McLeod and Mark Palmer in their first try both hit 12 o'clock. Mark Palmer repeated in his second toss while McLeod was slightly off the 12 marker.

Competing in the Glengarry historic 16 pound hammer throw, four broke the 100 foot range: George Chiappa, 112.4; Mark Palmer, 109.7; Willie Lang, 104.9 and Ian Sandilands, 103.9.

Mark Palmer was first in the final total points standing with a posting of 38 thus winning the Neil McDonell Memorial Trophy donated by Mr. and Mrs. Finlay McDonell, Neil's parents. This award goes to the athlete scoring the most points exclusively at the Loch Garry meet.

Mark Palmer who finished first at the season's opening, the mini Highland Games, May 17, at Lancaster, part of the Centennial celebrations and repeated on Sunday took home the McDonell award. George Chiappa was second with 26 points and Willie Lang third at 20.

The program concluded in the recreation hall where the athletes were served refreshments by their hosts Finlay and Angela McDonell and their assistants. Chairman Ron MacDonell expressed gratitude on behalf of the Cabers for the hospitable way they were received and in addition to the major awards distributed prizes donated by Alexandria Moulding, GTL and MacMillan and Howes Real Estate.

The 1988 schedule is slated to start at the Lancaster recreation grounds Sunday, May 22. This meet will be a continuation of commemorating Glengarry's first Highland Games in Lancaster, June 30, 1840.

Fastball league proposed for Alexandria in spring

SPORTS

Peter Conway

Autumn is upon us, no more NFL football and there's talk of another postal strike.

Well, with that in mind, here are a few thoughts as I enjoy a week off, away from the typewriter.

Can anyone be looking forward to the National Hockey League season after watching the Canada Cup?

With B.C. Lions' management asking players to take salary cuts, is there a future for the Canadian Football League? The league has suffered through financial problems with some of its clubs the past few years, but it now looks as if it's only a matter of time before Ottawa or Saskatchewan fold. I hope it doesn't happen, but let's be realistic.

Forget about the Meech Lake Accord. Wayne Gretzky and Mario Lemieux did more for Canadian unity in the recent Canada Cup than any politician could hope for.

The media has made a big thing about Montreal Canadiens' John Kordic missing the team bus to practice last week. Well, if a pro athlete like Kordic, with his salary, can't meet the bus on time, we're all in a lot of trouble.

Maurice Sauvé is a fiesty competitor when it comes to playing hockey. But, he's the only guy that can hook someone and get that person angry. It's hard staying angry at him when he looks at you with his friendly laugh.

It will be a crime if Buck Rodgers isn't named the manager-of-the-year in the National League. He's kept the club in the pennant race all season. Not bad for a club which many thought would finish in the cellar.

It's difficult understanding why some Midget AA coaches in the area are bad-mouthing Junior B hockey and advising the kids not to try out for the clubs. Geez, players like Neil Sandilands, Luc Sabourin, Frank Morris and Terry Carkner all played Junior B earlier in their careers. Sandilands and Sabourin went on to play Major A hockey, while Carkner and Morris are attending National Hockey League camps.

Luc Francoeur may not be the biggest player attending the Alexandria Glens' training camp, but if spunk and desire counts for something, I'd take him on my team anytime. He has been a tireless worker in scrimmages and enjoys the game.

It should be an entertaining year in the Border Hockey League between the five clubs. New-entry Maxville, should all the Maxville-area boys play, should ice a competitive squad and will challenge St. Raphael's and defending Laggan for the pennant. Glen Nevis and Lancaster shouldn't be outcounted as well.

Rumors are that a fastball league will be formed next spring in Alexandria. For many, fastball is a more enjoyable and competitive game, but are there enough hurlers in the area for the loop?

Talk about your fun job on the side. Maxville's Richard Scott has organized four bus trips to Montreal to Expos' games this year. All the trips were sold out, and needless to say, everyone had a great time.

Isn't it mind-boggling to think that Edmonton Oilers' Paul Coffey feels his $350,000 salary isn't enough to make a living? Just think of the less-talented players in the minor leagues playing for a lot less and hoping their pro hockey dreams come true.

If there's one guy that's survived the wrath of Harold Ballard over the years, it's Borje Salming. The popular Swedish defenceman has worn the Maple Leaf sweater for 14 seasons.

The atmosphere around Junior B rinks won't be the same this year. Colorful, popular, and sometimes unpopular, local referee Carman MacMillan has decided to hang up the blades. But, there's no need to worry. Carman will be still around the rinks supervising young officials for the Ottawa District Hockey Association.

André Currier still has high hopes for his New York Rangers this season. Well André, I wish your team a lot of luck, because they'll need it. I can just imagine the look on Michel Bergeron's face when opposing players streak past defenceman Barry Beck. I'm anxious to see if Mr. Bergeron makes a few trades for some of his former Nordique players. If Bergeron thought the media was tough in Quebec City and Montreal, he hasn't seen anything yet. If the Rangers slide, the New York media will have a field day.

Anyway, local Junior B fans are gearing up for the season and both Glengarry teams should provide us with plenty of entertainment this year.

If anyone needs information inthe sports department while I'm away on holidays, give my colleague and editor Dann Rogers a call.

Invincible lady has work of art in Smithsonian

by Lesley Cadham

Give her a large, flat surface to paint on and she draws a blank. But pose a small tin milk jug at the tip of her paintbrush and there's no stopping her.

She's Janice Montreuil and she insists she's never going to be another Van Gogh or Monet. The brush strokes do not come from her heart, they come from her head and that's what separates her from fine artists.

Perhaps her proudest moment was in 1985, when the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C., chose one of her hand-crafted, tole-painted Christmas ornaments to become part of the esteemed collection.

A tiny cottage in South Lancaster — a little home away from home — holds her many works of art and hoards of supplies to create more. She feels comfortable in the four-room home which was once an old school house and says it provides the perfect setting in which to create the wide variety of art works. It helps get her creative juices going, she explains.

Just inside the front door sit old wooden buckets now colorfully decorated by the strokes of Janice's brush. Delicate flowers, fluffy sheep and a host of other designs spruce up articles as simple as apple baskets and tin pie-plates.

It really started in 1973 when she came across a barrel of old tin teapots in the attic of the McGillis' general store in Lancaster. They had been left behind by Alex MacKenzie, a tinsmith who once occupied the building. Janice bought the lot, inspired by the feel and shape of the tin, then studied tole painting for two months before daring to touch the antique pieces with a brush.

Between cooking meals and taking care of her family Janice worked at her kitchen table and says she almost drove everyone "nuts" in her zeal to master tole painting.

She recalls her deep desire to learn and in a frenzied voice recalls, "I had to paint like that . . . had to paint like that. From that came this passion, an all consuming passion."

But Janice was unfamiliar with oil painting and art in general.

Instructional books were hard to find, but she persevered and proudly proclaims that she is a self-taught tole painter.

"You've got to remember, by trade I'm a secretary with a high school education. I wasn't born with an interest in art, it was the last thing on my mind. I liked secretarial work. I liked the orderliness and neatness. It was a disciplined life," she says.

But tole work is also a disciplined process and her success with the technique was almost unavoidable. Don't ask her to paint what she feels, she says, and don't put a blank canvas in front of her and ask her to paint something.

"Five years down the road, I decided to take a course in painting. Lo and behold, the teacher puts this blank surface in front of me. Everything I'd learned went out of the window.

"A small round surface is comforting. A big, white square surface in canvas is not," she says.

The wooden articles used in Janice's work often take the shape of pencil or scissor holders, clocks or even small sleighs, all sculpted by her husband, Wilfred.

In addition to selling her works, Janice takes on several students each year. She loves to see their faces glow when they suddenly pick up on the technique.

"It was so thrilling to be able to paint, like 'I can do this'. This is what I'd like to pass on, the 'I can do this;' you don't have to be an artist," she says.

Possibly the second-biggest thrill in her self-made career was when the Assistant Curator of the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts gave Janice's entry in the "Air Canada System Art Show" an honorable mention.

This invincible lady is also working toward becoming a "certified decorative artist." There are only three in Canada and though the road to obtaining the honor will be a long and difficult one, Janice says she's determined; she doesn't care if it takes forever.

Janice is a member of a number of arts and crafts associations including Glengarry Arts and Crafts and Tri-County Crafts and is also a founder and secretary of Pioneer Corner Craft Co-operation in Cornwall.

In 1981, her first book, "Tole Work by Janice — Vol. I" was published and the following year, volume II was put into print.

And as if her already overflowing work day is not busy enough, Janice has been hired by The Glengarry News to write about the goings-on in Lancaster.

She looks around the cozy workroom, eyes flitting over the many ornaments she has made for her daughter's October wedding, over yet-to-be-painted pencil holders and to her lovely painting of flowers which hangs on the wall.

She sighs and says, "I don't know if I'm ever going to live long enough to do everything I want to do."

Taking her tole

Janice Montreuil is a successful tole painter and teacher of the art who wonders if she'll ever live long enough to do all the things she's planned. She is in the throes of completing handmade ornaments for her daughter's October wedding, and says the box upon which she is resting her chin is a bride's box and will be a gift to the young bride.

Alexandria to host World "Pitune" Championship

At a recent meeting, the World Pitune Federation chose Alexandria as the site of its first world championships.

According to WPF spokesman Claude Lecompte, it was felt that Alexandria should be the logical site, since the game was more or less born in Alexandria.

For the unitiated, the game of Pitune is a type of rummy game played with wild cards. Although indigenous to Alexandria, the game has now been exported to all parts of North America and the rest of the world.

Mayor J. P. Touchette, himself a world class player, welcomes this honor to Alexandria and says he is willing to challenge any other mayor from any other town or city in the world to a friendly game of "pitune."

The championships are to be a two-day affair, to be held at the Alexandria Hotel on Oct. 17 and 18.

Terry Fox Floatilla raises $740

Although participation was lower, the annual Terry Fox Floatilla was still a success last weekend.

A rainy Sunday afternoon put a damper on the seventh annual affair as only 20 canoeists took part. The event still managed to raise $740 for cancer research.

Organizer Maurice Sauve was pleased with the number of people that took part, but says more would have participated under more suitable weather conditions.

Cairn and time capsule being dedicated

The congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in South Lancaster will hold a special service Sunday, Oct. 4, to conclude its bicentennial celebrations. The service will be at 11 a.m. in the church.

The service will be followed by the dedication and unveiling of a cairn, built by the congregation, as a memorial to the Rev. John Bethune, the founders of this congregation and their successors who have supported and strengthened the church over the past 200 years.

A time capsule has been built into the cairn to contain documents pertaining to church activities at the present time. It is hoped this capsule will not be tampered with and will be opened for examination of the documents in October 2087, at the tricentennial.

The founders of this congregation having left their homes in lands across the ocean made their way to the colonies of the Americas in hopes of building a better life for themselves and their families. This dream was short lived, for not many years after they had settled and established homes in the Carolinas and New York State, they found themselves again uprooted by the American Revolution.

After much hardship they made their way to what is now known as Canada and many of them settled in Glengarry in and around 1784.

Unfortunately at that time there were no ordained clergymen in the area and the first services of worship were held under canvas and later in private homes that had been built. The need for an ordained minister was sorely felt to officiate at marriages, baptisms, funerals and to record births and deaths.

The Reverend John Bethune, born on the Isle of Skye, in 1751 and emigrated from Scotland as a Licentiate of the Church of Scotland in 1773 and went to North Carolina.

In 1787 he arrived in Glengarry, and he was the first Protestant minister to come to Upper Canada. There is much speculation as to the exact place of his residence during his first years in Glengarry. With his boundless energy he established congregations then known as the Glengarry Churches in Lancaster (now South Lancaster), Williamstown, Summerstown and Martintown, also St. John's in Cornwall.

In the beginning, all the churches were under the same jurisdiction with the same minister, session and managers and were known as the Glengarry churches. The old communion tokens were stamped "Rev. John Bethune, Glengarry, and a date. It is well documented that some time after his arrival in Glengarry, he made his home in Williamstown where he resided until his death in 1815. In 1822 St. Andrew's, Lancaster (now South Lancaster) separated from Williamstown and set up their own church with a minister, session and other church officials.

John McDougal, who had been an elder in the Glengarry church since 1790, now an elder of St. Andrew's Lancaster walked to Toronto and back to obtain the deed for the property on which the church now stands.

The present stone church (with an adjoining cemetery), was built and opened for worship in 1855. At the time the church was built it had a small high pulpit reached by a flight of steps, it also had a gate which was closed once the minister was in the pulpit. It was built this way for those seated in the balcony to be able to hear the sermon better. This pulpit was later replaced with a lower one and again in 1937 when the present solid rosewood pulpit was obtained from American Presbyterian Church in Montreal and installed. The original choir loft was at the back of the church in the balcony, this has been removed to make space for a church hall. A new hall built in 1967 replaced this facility. The original pews which at one time had doors which could be closed were replaced in 1972 when the church was renovated.

Angus Joseph MacDonell

A well-known collector of antiques and a familiar figure at auction sales, Angus Joseph Macdonell died at Glengarry Memorial Hospital on Sept. 6 after a serious illness of four days. He had been a resident of Maxville Manor since June.

Mr. Macdonell was the eldest son of Alexander MacDonell and his wife Sarah MacDonell. After his education in the local schools, he attended the University of Toronto. Prior to his retirement, he was the postmaster in Apple Hill for many years.

His retirement home was in Strathmore where he entertained many friends and showed his antiques that were always on display. He was also an avid gardener and was most generous with his flowers and vegetables.

Surviving their brother are Cyril and Charles living on the home farm south of Maxville, a nephew Donald and a sister-in-law Jeannine. Mr. Macdonell was predeceased by his brother Vincent and a sister May, Mrs. Alex Campbell, formerly of Dominionville West.

The funeral service was held Sept. 8 in St. Anthony's Roman Catholic Church, Apple Hill and was conducted by the Rev. Father Sylvester Theoret. During the service, Father Theoret spoke of Mr. Macdonell's generosity in donating pieces of antique furniture to the church. Burial was in the family plot in the parish cemetery.
