Alexander Hall Jammed Monday Night As Four Candidates And Speakers Heard

Accusations of ineptness and corruption were commonplace in Alexander Hall, here, Monday night as the four candidates who had qualified for the November 8 federal election debated campaign issues, at times with some heat.

It was hot in the jam-packed hall, too, and some 500 present saw the speakers through a haze of smoke. Someone had neglected to turn on the air-conditioning.

Incumbent Member Viateur Ethier heard himself castigated roundly, in an especial way by the Creditiste candidate Raymond Berthiaume. He is running as a Social Credit candidate but he left no doubt of his admiration for his leader, Real Caouette, while damning the Liberals, even back to the days of Laurier, for their sins against national unity.

Conservative candidate Albert Cadieux also came under the guns of Liberal speaker Rene Bertrand for having left a huge deficit when defeated as mayor of Hawkesbury. Mr. Berthiaume was an outsider and did not rate support in this riding said Bertrand. He described the NDP candidate as one who had changed his allegiance twice.

G. G. Aubry was chairman of the meeting, conducted almost wholly in English following a predominently French afternoon meeting at Hawkesbury. John G. Proulx acted as co-chairman.

Following Mr. Bertrand's opening address, Viateur Ethier spoke of the achievements of the Liberal government and enumerated some of the benefits to this riding: Grants for cheese factories; increase in the price of milk; three new Post Office buildings (Apple Hill, Lancsater and Martintown). The Department of Public Works is looking for a site for a Federal building in Alexandria, he declared; the Armouries is in the hands of Alexandria; Square C Textiles was brought here through the good policies of the Liberal Government; the Canada Pension Plan will go into force January 1st; Loans for university students; unemployment reduced; medicare. "The Right Hon. L. B. Pearson should be given a majority government," he concluded.

Senator John Connolly said "Your candidate, Viateur Ethier, has been an assiduous and conscientious member of the House of Commons for 2½ years and warrants your vote to return him on November 8th." Senator Connolly was impressed with the reception given to Mr. Pearson through the provinces and stated "I believe in the principles of the past, in such men as Sir Wilfrid Laurier, MacKenzie King, Louis St. Laurent and Rt. Hon. L. B. Pearson. I predict on November 8th this government will have what it needs so much, a majority in the House of Commons."

"There are tremendous problems facing us, firstly the problem of national unity which can be gained by working with the results of the federal conferences. We now have more real national unity in this country than ever in our history, thanks to Mr. Pearson's work."

Senator Connolly stated that the unemployment rate is now below 3%, which is considered full employment; that in 30 months the national accounts have been brought into balance and that the Automotive Agreement with the U.S. will bolster our economy. Wheat sales abroad are the greatest ever to be culminated.

"We have not got stability in the federal area. Everything else is stable but the Federal Government — without a majority. Only the Liberal party can provide it, so, in the name of your country, produce a strong majority government on November 8th by voting for Mr. Viateur Ethier."

Raymond Berthiaume, Social Credit candidate, stated that Viateur Ethier did not protest when the scandals came up in '63, the Dorion case, etc., and thus put the French and English people to shame. "We can have national unity as long as we agree on the basic things. Difficulties between the French and English date back to Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Real Caouette is the best friend this country has and he puts his cards on the table. He is against

New Type Of Cribbage Board Patented By J. P. Gallant

A new form of cribbage which will involve bidding has been dreamed up by a local TV repairman, J. P. Gallant.

A patent for Canada was granted late last week on a new type board and Mr. Gallant has applied for a U.S. patent as well. He is now dickering with manufacturers in both countries and hopes to see his board go into early production.

The new board has, with the usual crib rows for marking points, two extra rows of holes for recording player bids and other pegs for marking bonus points and penalties. Six pegs are used by each player in a game of two and Mr. Gallant also has mapped out rules for a game of four persons.

The editor tried out the board over the weekend and found the Gallant version of cribbage most interesting. Chief difference from the popular old game is that the crib does not go automatically to the dealer but is open for bidding. After the cards are dealt and cut, the players estimate how many points they might score from their hand, the crib and pegging. Bidding starts at 10 and the highest bid wins the crib. There are penalty points for failing to make the bid and bonuses for points above the bid.

Mr. Gallant first had the idea for his game back in 1945 but started working on the board some four years ago. Since then several prototypes have been made and discarded before he was satisfied that all angles were covered. Several crib players have tried the game and made suggestions incorporated in the new regulations, we understand.

A tentative name for the new brand of crib has yet to be copyrighted.

IT'S OUR OPINION

Highlight Of A Dull Campaign

This is the election campaign nobody wanted but the politicians themselves; and certainly it has been a quiet one in this riding. Four candidates may have been busy as beavers through recent weeks, striving to win friends and influence voters. But most of the action has been on the personal level and the oratory of notable campaigns of long ago is now confined almost wholly to the television screen.

We wonder how many families are receiving the message. Where there is a choice of channels, as we have here, can the politician mouthing much the same program of promises as does his opposition, can he hope to compete for the TV audience with Danny Kaye or other such entertainment? If the Gallup Poll finds some forty percent of the electorate still undecided, is it partly because the election oratory has been wasted on airwaves not tuned into the parlor set?

These were our thoughts Monday night as we viewed a jam-packed Alexander Hall where some 500 were peering through a curtain of cigarette smoke, enduring the heat of a crowded hall to hear the four riding candidates and their supporting speakers.

Maybe most of them were there at the call of the party organizers, present to make a show of success for their candidate. Perhaps others had come with the hope of enjoying a real donnybrook which failed to materialize. A lot of them were eating up practically every word each speaker uttered. Some seemed starved for a bit of good old-fashioned political oratory.

Surely if we promise the winning contestant $18,000 a year, the political hopefuls should provide more interesting entertainment than we're getting. And even the party leaders should realize they can't compete with a Danny Kaye.

No Pressure Group For Him

The election campaign rolls on toward the day of decision and as was predictable the party leaders and their lesser lights have been lavish with their promises. Medicare is the big bait, of course, but all the candidates of all the parties climbed onto that bandwagon early and so there have had to be other carrots dangled before an electorate that might not bother going to the polls if there wasn't the promise of something for nothing.

Huge hockey arenas for cities seeking a major league franchise were among Mr. Pearson's many pledges in early campaigning. Anything he can do Honest John can do better and Mr. Diefenbaker makes a special play for the senior citizens' support with the promise of an added $25 on the monthly Old Age Pension cheque.

The trough is running full in the Teasury at Ottawa, it seems, but the politicians fail to remind that if election promises suck it dry the only way it can be replenished is through added taxing of you know who.

Not all of the people are born suckers, we were pleasantly made aware over the weekend. A copy of The Carleton, student paper of Ottawa's Carleton University, came to hand and we liked the attitude of a student columnist, Cowboy Bob.

Seems the Canadian Union of Students plans a march of 900 students on Parliament Hill this week, lobbying for free University education. Cowboy Bob won't be marching with them. As he puts it "Bob doesn't want to belong to a Let's Get Something For Nothing pressure group".

Here's his salty way of saying so:

"Where in hell does the C.U.S. get the idea that a free University education is their rightful lot?

"Let us not confuse privilege with license.

"Anybody who really wants a University education will get one. If you don't believe it look at all the people who are working their way through on their own. If a University education comes free, well slam-bam, thank you ma'am, I 'ppreciate it. If I have to go in hawk (sic) to get what I want (be it an education, a car, or a house) then that's what will happen, but I'll get what I want.

"C.U.S. will spew out a whole slough (sic) of figures and statistics about how many high-school students, capable of attaining a University degree, would like to go to University but don't because of financial difficulties. Those that would like to go — don't; those that want to go — do.

"There are enough yo-hos around here now who just don't want to go out to work and want a warm place to hang around in during the winter. Let them stand over a sewer if they want to keep warm."

In these promising days just prior to an election Cowboy Bob rates the adult audience, too.

Can So Much Rain Be Natural?

We have known such extremes of summer drought and fall precipitation this year it is difficult to reconcile them with the natural law. As these daily rains continue to saturate soil and depress spirit we find lurking in the recesses of our mind the suspicion that too much of such a good thing just might not be God-given, but man-made.

Are those clouds overhead still being seeded? Might those rain-makers the Robarts Government hired back in arid August be too stupid to quit when we're ahead? Is Queen's Park so bound up in red tape that it hasn't got through to them that Eastern Ontario weeks ago got back in the form of rain that $200,000 and more that it cost to bring in the rain-makers?

The cloud seeding may have been discontinued, if it was ever started in this area. We wouldn't know. This business of coaxing rain clouds to disgorge wanted water was carried out under a cloud of secrecy so dense that even our local Ag. Rep. couldn't tell us whether or not there were rain-making machines in operation in the area.

We do have an inkling that there were. But we have no word that the program has been halted. And the rain keeps tumbling down.

This secrecy (or should we say lack of informative publicity) that has shrouded the cloud-seeding program leaves us with the impression the politicians are keeping clear of it with a ten-foot pole. We needed rain desperately through the summer. So we got it, in buckets, after these rain-makers had been brought in. One would suppose the politicians would be shouting from the rooftops of their accomplishments. Instead they are as clammed up on the subject as a mummy; maybe because they know not how to turn off the taps.

It's quite possible this cloud seeding had nothing to do with these recurring rains. But we have been left in total ignorance by officialdom and ignorance breeds fear. We can only judge by what we read; and what we have read leaves us wondering if it is not dangerous to so play with nature.

While Glengarry suffered through a dry summer, the farm folk of Chicoutimi were demanding that their government call off the rain-making program in that area. So demanding did they become, after weeks of incessant rain, that the Quebec Government did order out the cloud seeding machines which had been brought in to reduce the fire loss in pulpwood holdings. Up in Ontario's northlands came the same demand to Queen's Park. The rain that was being encouraged to hold down the fire loss in bushland was interfering with the natural cycle in farming.

If we sound all wet, put it down to these incessant rains. Or to our ignorance of the workings of these rain-making machines.

We probably know as little about why or when rain will fall as do the weather forecasters. We do have an idea that all this earth of ours is dependent on the sun for its supply of life-giving rain. What comes down must first have gone upstairs in the form of evaporation.

Physics is above us, too. In our limited schooling we learned to be wary of the weather; we heard about high and low pressure areas, evaporation, wind currents, clouds and such. Some clouds brought rain, we learned, and some merely obscured the sun and brought welcome relief from its warming rays.

Now they shoot silver iodides or something into clouds and if they are rain clouds the precipitation may be increased by possibly 20 per cent.

We're left with the thought that if cloud seeding can empty the skies over Chicoutimi or Timmins, there might be no water left in them once they reach Glengarry. Right through droughty July and August we had cloud cover, but not a drop of rain. Now we're getting more than we need; but will we have it next summer when our land expects it, if it is being diverted to restrict forest fires?

Planners in government have already economized the farmer to the brink of non-production. Should they now be allowed to limit his rain; if that is possible with cloud-seeding?

HOCKEY FARES

The CNR is going all out to win back passenger traffic, we've read. And we were left doubting because of the stories told of the sad lack of accommodation on some trains that pass through here.

Saturday we learned there was some truth to the printed word. One Paul E. Monast, branch manager for passenger sales in Ottawa's CNR office, has come up with a gimmick that seems likely to see renewed interest in travelling to Montreal by rail rather than by road.

Tickets to NHL games in the Forum are as hard to find as hens' teeth. We've heard the weeping and wailing winter after winter. Now it may be reduced to a sigh of anticipation.

This guy Monast and the CNR have the answer; tickets in quantity for Saturday night games at the Forum.

All area hockey fans at Alexandria or Maxville have to do is organize a party of 60 or more. If the number warrants it, the CNR will even stop its through trains at either station, going and coming, to provide an afternoon departure and an early-morning home-coming.

If you like hockey and an excursion to the city, and if you are so rich in friends as to have 60; see your local CNR agent.

MADE BY MR. CLEAN?

There's a tube of Macleans toothpaste right beside our toothbrush rack and though we have no use for the stuff it has become through time a familiar sight as we go through the motions of making our "toilette". Darned if we know what it tastes like and one of these days we'd decided to ask Greenfield's Johnnie MacLean if it was a credit to his clan.

It's a grand old name around Greenfield. At least that's what

SOCIETY NEWS

Some time ago I read the following: "Marriage is a wonderful institution for women. Men should have nothing to do with it."

Wouldn't it be funny if things were changed around a bit and a bridegroom should suddenly become an important character at a wedding instead of a sort of necessary evil? If and when this ever happens, the report of a wedding would appear something like this in the Society Column:

Flooberry—Blooberry

The marriage of Philander Quinsy Flooberry, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace M. Flooberry, to Miss Adenoid Blooberry, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brutus K. Blooberry, was celebrated last Saturday at the home of the groom's parents. The Rev. Nohope Atoll performed the ceremony.

During the signing of the register, Mr. Green Blooberry, brother of the bride, soloist, sang: "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonite!"

The groom was given away by his father who wore a dark green frock coat (originally black) belonging to his grandfather Cyrus Flooberry, who distinguished himself in the Civil War, and grey striped trousers tastily patched in the rear with similar material, and tan shoes.

The groom wore a freshly-cleaned shiny blue serge suit with frayed cuffs, a black leather bow tie, a new pair of green and yellow socks, hand knitted (a gift of the bride) and a pair of new black shoes with rubber heels and matching laces.

After the reception, which was well attended, during which the bride poured tea and the groom scraped the toast, the happy couple left on a camping trip, the groom wearing a red mackinaw shirt under a drab raincoat.

On their return they will reside at the home of the groom's parents until they can find other accommodation.

Be seein' ya!

McDonell and his fine reports on his recent trips and also for the past few months. It is a pity that there are not more (including myself) to write such items. No doubt a good number have experienced the same as Mr. McDonell but due to so many excuses have not referred them to our community and encouraged more fellow citizens to attempt the same. I, for myself, have seen many wonderful places and things in my travels. This I do try to express to some friends and relations, but never in the manner that Mr. McDonell has done with their tour in Europe and also the recent one to Western Canada and Northwestern States. These stories were very interesting to me and I am sure they were to a good many others also. As Mr. McDonell points out so frequently, there are old Glengarry relations in most any place you will visit.

Another item I really enjoyed reading is the comment to Mr. Humphries' letter to the editor of some date back. It is very warming to note that someone has been taking notice of the farming crew especially with the struggles they have had since the last few years. It must not be forgotten that the farmers are the suppliers of provisions for a nation, whether urban or rural. Your issue of Sept. 16th states that a "threatened strike at Square C Textiles was settled amicably"; it is most unfortunate, that it is so well known, that the farmers, as a whole, cannot go on strike with their products, etc., and therefore remain the slave-like creatures behind the whole issue. It is also well known that the daily earner, as I very well know them, is finding times most difficult as years go by. As it is cooly mentioned further in this same issue, it may be a good opportunity for the high governments who will be doing the steering later on, to actually steer in proper channels. All people, whether in cities or towns or rural areas, just cannot live on synthetic foods, etc. Prompt attention must be brought to the situation if we do not want regrets later.

Another item which is good to read is the car horn noises on Rambling Reporter. This really proves that us Westerners are not accustomed to these things, ha! ha! In the East, whether near, Middle or Far, it is the custom for a driver to have one hand on the horn and one on the steering wheel. Therefore this leaves none to shift gear and he's driving high all the time, with a Canadian woman's size foot on the accelerator and you sit by his side, maybe praying, if your wits can stand it, or else closing your eyes until you reach your destination. It must be fun, when I am on my third sojourn at this, ha! ha! Nevertheless during my two months holiday last summer I did notice that considerable horn blowing was being done, also quite excessive speeding in smaller areas like North Lancaster, Glen Norman, a dangerous place like the "Brown House", etc., etc., was being ignored and this by drivers from the Alexandria locality as I found later when I got accustomed to the serial numbers. This certainly needs attention. Maybe we could have more of the "Tycoon-to-be" type of fellows on your Sept. 16, issue, page 3.

Well, Mr. editor, if this should go in the press, I hope it will not offend any of my Glengarry friends, as stated by yourself, but let them know that I also like to take my share of the pros and cons, and all should have a hand in making this corner of our country, a place to be proud of. Debates often bring good results.

Yours truly

we thought until a TV commercial caught up with us while watching Saturday's sports fare. We have little time to waste watching the gook box so we're probably the last to learn that that toothpaste is only a 42nd cousin, maybe, of Johnnie's.

This is not a Macleans' product, the way the announcer put it. This is MacLEANS.

Ye gods, what manner of men are these, we conjectured? These radio and TV announcers and admen who are so butchering the spoken word. Some other promoter of a product invented Mr. Clean; so, ergo, his imitators must grab onto this grand old name of MacLean and mangle it so that it comes out to sound like "Make Clean". Isn't that something to get your teeth into?

Next time Johnnie hits the big city we can see his face drop as the hotel desk clerk addresses him as Mac Clean.

These radio and TV types make a habit of assaulting our ears, but maybe the entire American nation is to blame. That melting pot of nationalities gave us in the recent World Series the celebrated case of one Jim Lefebvre. That baseball player may have 42nd cousins right here in Alexandria but they don't pronounce it LA-FEVER.

We're thinking of suggesting to LBJ that all his countrymen should be sent to Glengarry to take a short course in how names should be pronounced. Then our bilingualism would really pay off.

Candidates . . .

Separatists openly, and the type of corrupt government the Liberals have been giving us."

Albert Cadieux, Conservative candidate, replying to Mr. Bertrand, said "regarding the deficit while I was mayor of Hawkesbury, that year we spent over 2½ million and the Minister of Municipal Affairs said I had done more in two years than any other council in ten years. My books are open for inspection at any time. Farm loans had been promised at a lower rate of interest, instead it was increased. Mr. Ethier was against an increase in family allowances but voted for a 90% increase in salaries for members of Parliament. He voted against the old age pension being retroactive."

"We intend to increase the price for milk to $4 per 100. We intend to take off that 11% tax imposed by the Liberal Government."

Henry Duggan, speaking for the Conservative candidate, said "the only thing Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson have in common is that both want a majority government. Senator Connolly said in 2½ years the Liberal Government had a record never beaten; the reason, I say, is due to the efforts of the other parties who insisted the Liberals pass good legislation or they would be thrown out of power. I take exception to the vaccilating manner in which Mr. Pearson handled the Scandals in the Department of Justice; in the manner of handling the unions in Canada, which I admit have to exist in our country today; but why not a settlement before the mails were held up and needed pension cheques not delivered."

"Senator Connolly forgot to mention that Sir John A. MacDonald was the Father of Confederation. I agree with him that Canada was never plagued with so many problems but I differ with the Senator in that the Liberal party does not hold all the brilliant minds; we could also handle those problems."

Osie Villeneuve speaking for the Conservatives gave figures showing the increase in costs of necessary farming equipment and the lower prices paid for cows and beef cattle. He gave prices paid for milk and cheese and said to the farmers "Your milk has brought you an increase of 2% without subsidy but farm implements are up 180%. "We have had two bad years from drought and being downed out. Think of these things on November 8th," he concluded.

Tom Aitken, NDP, said "I am proud to have been born in Scotland where Tommy Douglas was born. The government is a Punch and Judy show — an old man and an old woman, old John and old Mike. Send them back home to play with their toys, they are in their second childhood anyway."

"We are interested in education for everybody; hospitals are badly needed; we will put in a medicare plan for which you will pay only $50 per year. Both parties promised many things. Our constituency is called a depressed area. The income of the average farmer is less than the welfare paid. Bonuses are deceiving. A stable smells sweet compared to the Liberal dairy program."

Mr. Aitken said that Mr. Latreille knows the farmers' problems and unless you are satisfied with the present government, vote for a government that will help you to get a better return for your labor. "We can't compete with welfare today. All this country needs is proper leadership. Vote for Wilfrid Latreille and Tommy Douglas will give you this."

Wilfrid Latreille spoke in French and English. Our basic principle is for the betterment of the laborer and the farmer. On November 8th think of your family, your children and their education. Forget the old Red and Blue. Liberal means to give largely and conservative means to keep or conserve; but our platform means to conserve the actual economy of the country.. Our wealth is so great thanks to the laborer. Give to the laborer what is coming to him. According to existing conditions the farmer cannot send his sons to university or agriculture schools. We will give free university education, free technical and agriculture education, not to everybody but to those who have the ability. Highly trained personnel is badly needed. We import these from other countries. You are signing the death warrant for the raise in milk prices, you will be admitting that you are satisfied with the present government if you re-elect the old parties. For your sake and for the economy of the country, I ask for your vote."

Mr. Ethier concluded with a five minute rebuttal. "Mr. Villeneuve throws the ball from the Provincial to the Federal Government. We did not ask for this election. I offer my services to the people for a term of four years. Vote Liberal and give Mr. Pearson's team a workable majority and you will have the opportunity to judge him four years from now."

Both Senior And Junior High School Footballers Finish Season Undefeated

Playoffs in school football get underway here Friday with Maxville meeting the GDHS seniors, undefeated and unscored on through the season. Also undefeated, the junior team will host Hawkesbury High, Saturday, Nov. 6th, for the championship play-off game.

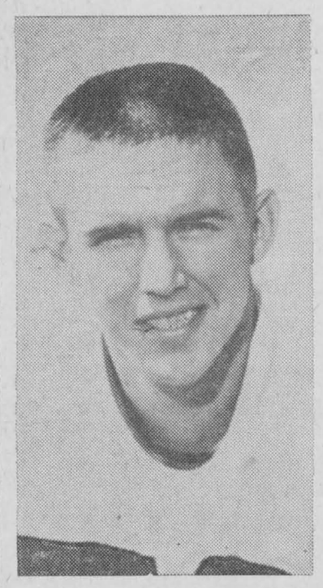

The seniors took Maxville by a 53-0 score last Friday to finish their season in front of clean goalposts. Not even a single point had been scored against them.

Stanley MacMillan's kick-off counted a single and he added a field goal soon after. Billy MacLeod ran a 45-yard reverse for a major, Glen MacSweyn got one and Murray McLachlin scored his first TD of the season on an interception. Maxville intercepted to stop another Alexandria march before half-time.

Myron McCormick scored a major early in the second half and MacSweyn added his second. Quarterback Roger Levert went over following a 45-yard pass to MacMillan and Billy MacLeod got his second on a 45-yard run. Stanley MacMillan's 7 converts and a field goal made up the 53 point total.

The junior team ended the season in Hawkesbury, Saturday, and won a 13-12 thriller in the last minute of play when Gordon MacNaughton kicked a single.

Roger Jeaurond scored both Alexandria touchdowns following majors by the home team, to set up the game-winning boot.

SOCCER SPEAKER—Jay Roberts, sensational end with Ottawa Rough Riders, will be the guest speaker at the trophy night dinner dance of Glengarry Soccer League in Green Valley Pavilion, Saturday, Nov. 6th.

Men's Club Opens Fall Program

He was introduced by J. T. Smith and thanked by Mansel Hay.

SPORTS in the GLENS

by ANGUS H. McDONELL

In the midst of the football whirl and the NHL getaway the hunters are in the background quietly preparing for their annual trek to the woods where they will make a keen effort in a sportsman's way to outwit the wily deer.

Most of the nimrods in the Glens will be heading to their customary haunts, some quite a distance, while the remaining few will check the local runways under Glens' restrictions.

One popularily known group will be hunting for the first time in the Muskoka Lakes District. Veteran Sam Brunet and brother (Beamsville) Ernie, along with their camp colleagues Doug Baxter, Guy (Ambrose) Lalonde, Jacques Lalonde, Adrien Filion, John (Apple Hill) Guindon, and Duncan (Maxville) MacDonald are the new owners of a camp north of Huntsville.

The exact location is Novar. The club, in addition to their camp, holds lifetime hunting rights on about 2,000 acres. Although the hills, dales and lakes of this deer domain are unfamiliar to Sam and his group the boys should not have any difficulty as they will be guided along the trails by veteran Harold Murphy who also has well-trained hounds. Pleasant camp fire evenings, fellows, and good hunting.

THE LITTLE DAVIDS

Football in the East on the weekend was as dull and bleak as the weather. It was greatly different in the proposed new city in the NHL—Vancouver.

During our August Western safari we saw the Roughriders take the measure of Stampeders in Regina, and we were impressed with that fundamental asset, desire. We thought they could well be the Little Davids from the Wheatfields, and on Sunday enough footballs were unleashed from their slings to slay the mighty Lions right in their own lair.

Should Regina throw an open switch to sidetrack Locomotive Lewis in Winnipeg, and Roughrider George Reed continues his battering ram offence there might not be too much hoopla at the corner of Portage and Main as the sun goes down on the semi-final game.

Hamilton's hockey score win over Als wasn't even a good throwback to the two bucks and a kick game before Warren Stevens started throwing forward passes for MAAA. True there was no solid footing but the only highlight in our books was that the drifting clouds over Mount Royal didn't bring any rain.

Ottawa's loss to Argos was even less impressive for a calculated Eastern finalist club. Toronto appears in the final stages to have improved more than any other club, East or West. Coach Bob Shaw must be the answer.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL

The football fare tabled by our Glen's high school teams last Friday was much more palatable than the Big Four clubs, now known as the Eastern Conference.

As expected Alexandria was too strong for Maxville's first year team. Roger Levert handled the local squad in his usual fine fashion and scored a major himself. Billy MacLeod and Glen MacSweyn crossed the visitors' goal line twice while Myron McCormick added another touchdown.

The defensive unit not only again held their goal line intact but Murray McLachlan intercepted a Maxville pass to scamper into the end zone for the seventh major score.

A sound distance kicker on a football team is similar to a top notch goaler in hockey and should Stanley MacMillan continue to improve as a booter he surely will be scouted. Stanley converted all GDHS majors, split the uprights once and rounded out a fine effort with a single that gave him 11 points for the day. Moe Racine and Dave Mann would envy such a performance.

A scout tells us GDHS juniors won a thriller in Hawkesbury 13-12. Thus the playoff stage is set for this Friday with Alexandria meeting Maxville in Ourtown while Taylor Coombs and his Char-Lan students from Williamstown take on Hawkesbury in the paper mill town.

HITHER AND YON

The editor was away last weekend so we took on part of the Rambling Reporter beat . . . We leisurely travelled "The Old Coach Road".

Our starting point was the Ottawa Hotel, as we presume the coach driver and his horses used to do, about four p.m. in a brilliant sunset . . . skirted our once noted, but now barren and desolate, Fair Grounds . . . paused for still another look at the Rory McCormick farm, our picturesque popular golf course decked out like an Indian Summer bride.

Turned left at McCormick's Post Office . . . stopped on the crest of a hill to view, live, Stuart McCormick's painting of the Old Coach Road at this point depicting autumn maples in golden shades and shadows . . . this painting we prize and it hangs over the mantle of our fireplace . . . On to Quigley's where Keith MacMillan's fine herd of Holsteins was in the barn yard awaiting the rustle of the milk (machine) pails.

On by the "14th" to Kirk Hill . . . more Maples and Populars yielding a Gatineau or an Adirondack scene . . . Campbell MacDonald's farm home, resplendant in fresh contrast colors, bordered by the white fence with a half dozen Clydes in a roadside field . . . the two Kirks on the hill silhouetted against the evening sky . . . Neil Blair's was another neat, progressive farm home to please a rambling eye . . . the Lloyd Howes farm holdings on the brow of the hill was more impressive evidence of the Glens basic industry . . . from hear you scanned the fields across to the "Tannery" and "Bull Frog Tavern" . . . the junction of the "18th" and the final run of the stage coach to Vankleek Hill . . . We picked up 34 at Johnnie John Myles McMillan's . . . shifted into high gear and rounded the bend at Bonnie Brier on to the Military Road . . . finally, an unexpected ranch scene as we headed into Alexandria . . . John Chisholm's Herefords . . . upwards of three hundred wending their way from the Delisle and an evening drink on the Power House farm like a miniature ranch on the shores of the Bow River near Calgary.

HARD ROCK EDGAR

Another of the thinning old guard that brought hockey and lacrosse fame to Alexandria and the Glens some 50 years ago entered the athletes' Valhalla last Friday — Duncan Edgar McRae.

"Edgar", as he was familiarly known, was a rugged defenceman in his Rockland youth. As the Glengarry Agricultural Representative he became one of the pillars of Alexandria's championship hockey and lacrosse teams. Edgar belonged to the old school of rugged checkers, asking for no favors and yielding none.

Edgar was an ardent booster of Glengarry Football when the league was first organized. Edgar McRae was the type of citizen and sportsman that it was good to have known.

That lies within our hearts concealed.
