Reverend Father P. J. Keaney, 69, Dies Pastor For 17 Years of St. Mary's Parish

Reverend Father Patrick Joseph Keaney, pastor of St. Mary's church here, passed away at 7.40 this morning, Thursday, in his 69th year.

Father Keaney, well-beloved pastor of St. Mary's died this morning after an illness of short duration. Pastor in Chesterville for seventeen years, his loss will be keenly felt by all members of the community.

Father Keaney was born to the late Mr. and Mrs. John Keaney, sixty-nine years ago in Blackloin, County Cavan, Ireland. He was educated at Carlow College, Dublin, and ordained to the Priesthood in 1904. That same year he came to Canada and was attached to St. Mary's Cathedral in Kingston for a year. Following his appointment by the archbishop, Father Keaney was curate at Prescott for one year, then served as pastor at Lanark, Stanleyville and Merrickville before coming to Chesterville seventeen years ago.

During his years here, his good works have been many and his kindness and cheerfulness have earned him a host of friends. Weather or personal discomfort was never a deterrent when the offices of his church were needed in any situation.

Reverend Father Keaney is survived by one brother, John, living in New York City, by several neices and nephews, including Rev. Father Kevin Keaney of New York City and Rev. Father Patrick Sheridan of Glasgow, Scotland.

Funeral services will be held for the deceased on Monday, February 23, from St. Mary's church.

NEAR FIRE AVERTED

When insulated wires were discovered smoldering and quenched on Friday last in the McCloskey House, a fire of serious proportions was averted.

At the noon hour when members of the Bell Telephone crew went up stairs in the hotel they noticed the smoke issuing from a closet where the vacuum cleaner was stored. Quickly putting out the blaze there was no need for the fire department that answered the whistle in jig time. Smoke issued from the upper storey for some time but no damage was caused.

POWER IN SHORT SUPPLY

In this issue of the Record will be seen a notice of the regulations concerning the Hydro-Electric power supply. While this municipality is not directly threatened with a shut-off of power at certain times of the day as are other localities, it is well to bear in mind that our power is in continuous supply only if we continue to use restraint and common sense in its use. That means to use no more than is necessary, to turn off unnecessary lights, to treat your power as if it were a bin of coal or tank of oil or cord of wood that cannot be replaced. Save it.

Fish and Game Club Sponsors Five Fine, Free Films

Monday night saw the presentation of an excellent set of Motion Pictures dealing with the various aspects of forest and wild-life conservation. The films were sponsored by the Chesterville Fish and Game Association and were presented by the Department of Lands and Forests. Game Overseers Royal Baker and J. A. P. Stewart were in charge of the equipment.

Dealing with the ever present danger of forest fire, one of the films was an excellent colour display with a commentary by John Fisher, the well-known radio speaker. The havoc and ruin caused by careless people in the matter of fires was graphically demonstrated.

A fishing picture called "Fish Tales" whetted the appetites of the many anglers present with the action shots of the flashing beauties. In the mountains of the west live many species of wild life and when the camera reached the Rockies, after covering many of the game scenes of the plains and forest, the audience was treated to a thrill. That picture was climaxed by the rare shots of a pair of Rocky Mountain rams engaged in a rutting season battle.

The evening audience showed much appreciation for the showing. The Fish and Game Association will be bringing more films to the theatre and the public is cordially invited. The next showing will be in the early part of April.

Some Views On French-English Relations

Last Monday night Mr. J. Potvin, member of the High School teaching staff addressed the members of the Rotary club taking as his topic "Problems between the French and English in Canada". Mr. Potvin was introduced by Walter Carr and present as guests to hear the speaker were Rotarian Eric Pallister of Kemptville and Ed. Brady of Chesterville.

Starting with the battle of the Plains of Abraham and the resulting desertion by France of her colony in the New World, the speaker outlined some of the problems that still exist between the two groups.

The issue of racial origin is greatly exaggerated in the speaker's opinion. When the belief of the superiority of race begins to crop up, the "isms" began to creep in. The French and English speaking peoples of Canada would have trouble showing a difference in their ancestors because they are common to the two groups and stem from the Normans. The pledge of the BNA Act must be maintained that there will be equality of race in all things in Canada.

In dealing with the religious issues between the two cultures, Mr. Potvin deplored any criticisms that arose and stated that in his opinion, the fundamental aims of religion in the Christian world are the same and should serve to unify rather than seperate. Unity against Evil was the right aim, rather than disunity among ourselves.

The obsession of the "large family complex" by certain illogical parties is to be deplored. Speaking as a member of a family of nineteen, and a Frenchman, Mr. Potvin declared most emphatically that any idea of domination through large increases in the population by large families was bosh. He stressed the fact that the French idea of a happy home was in fulfilling the obligations of the marriage vows and the great love of children and family life that is so marked in large families. The home must teach tolerance and charity and so unite all groups to develop Canada, and eliminate any negative attitudes that exist.

Pointing to the different standards of living that are apparent in Canada between the two groups, the speaker said that there was a difference in incomes that was due to several fundamental reasons. Education in the French speaking schools was not as technical as that in the English schools, although that condition is rapidly being corrected. Prejudices, in the speaker's opinion, were responsible for the holding down of certain classes in industrial labour. Simple arithmetic pointed to a lower standard of living when the family was large.

Mr. Potvin touched on several of the other problems that are present to-day. The matter of a national flag came in for discussion, the anthem question was discussed and the press was shown to be a problem that could stand some revision.

Concluding with the hope that tolerance and faith in one another would win out in the end over the differences that exist, Mr. Potvin hoped that the day would soon come when the two cultures in Canada would be accepted as the natural thing, and a stronger and richer life would result for us all.

The speaker was thanked by H. G. Bigelow on behalf of the club.

CANADIAN APPEAL FOR CHILDREN

Canada today is being asked to contribute to help the needy of Europe and Asia and that help is sought by the most deserving--the boys and girls of the world who have been innocent victims of the war.

Those of us whose lives are spent within hospital corridors, know first hand the value of our equipment. At our disposal we have labs for research, x-ray equipment for accurate diagnosis, modern surgical instruments and all things necessary for the treatment of the sick. But there are those of us who complain that some facilities are lacking. And maybe their complaints are justified.

How different in countries ravaged by war! More than three million children in Europe are hungry. To protect their feet they wear rags, on their backs, too, are tattered clothes. Malnutrition is rampant. And in its wake has come tuberculosis and rickets. All diseases are on the increase. With the elements and want sapping their vitality, these children fall easy prey to illness and hospitals --those not smashed during five years of war--are fighting a losing struggle.

Recent surveys conducted in these countries evidence the dire plight of the hospitals. Treating the ill is a make-shift business. Labs have been wrecked and libraries sacked. Surgical instruments have been pillaged or lost. Everything that goes for the operation of a hospital is in short supply.

Canada is now in the midst of a campaign to raise funds for the children in Europe and Asia. It is the Canadian Appeal for Children. The money will be used for purchase of food and clothing. Money will also be be spent to equip hospitals. Until Europe and Asia have recovered from the ills of war, the world will remain in an unhealthy state. If you wish to aid in this recovery plan, send your donation to any branch of any bank in Canada. The need is great. The need is urgent.

Thousands of children in the world are hungry, cold, and sick. Are they the kind of citizens we will want in the world of tomorrow? Help the Canadian Appeal for Children bring strength and health to these future world citizens.

All schools in Poland were closed during enemy occupation, so that there are boys and girls of fourteen years of age who cannot yet read and write. Give them the tools they need for education, by helping the Canadian Appeal for Children.

APPLIANCES CAN CAUSE MISHAPS

Don't read this if you want to be shocked — or possibly killed — but unsafe use of electricity and electrical appliances are causing more accidents every year, according to safety engineers.

They point out that even though electricity has become a great servant to the housewife it must be handled with care and respect.

Unless you can answer "Yes" to all these questions, they suggest that corrective measures be taken immediately to remove the potential danger:

Do you avoid replacing burned out fuses with coins, wires, or other metals?

Are pull-chains over or near wash bowls and damp floors provided with insulating links?

Do you keep appliances and cords in good repair at all times?

Are electric motors in household appliances kept clean and free from dust and trash?

Are you using the proper type of cord for all appliances?

Are all electrical circuits equipped with proper size fuses?

SEVERAL HUNDRED YEARS' SERVICE

Dear Readers:- At a time when this district is planning to build a hospital; I thought you would, perhaps be interested to read of two hospitals in old London, which have operated for the benefit of the sick and afflicted for several centuries.

Hospitals had their origin in monasteries and two London Hospitals survive from these ancient monastic foundations. The eldest of these is St. Bartholomew's and was founded by Rahere in 1123. Rahere was a good business man in the old medieval sense, as he established the hospital, the Priory, the Church and also the Great Bartholomew Fair which operated for well over seven hundred years.

One of the canons, John Merfield, produced a general treatise on medicine in 1380; and Sir Norman Moore said of it: "The picture is complete of the medical and surgical practice in Saint Bartholomew's Hospital in the reign of Richard II".

It was not very enlightened at a time when John of Gaddesden (1280-1361) court physician to Edward II, could advise "in cases of smallpox that the patient should be wrapped in red and everything about him, be of the same color; and also prescribed a plastee of headless crickets and beetles."

The medieval St. Bart's was probably very small with accommodation for only a few patients. Wat Tyler, when mortally wounded by Walworth was carried into the hospital. It is said Walworth and his followers, then burst into the building, carried Tyler out and beheaded him. At this time the hospital was governed by a master, eight brothers and four sisters, under the priory.

It was repaired under the will of Whittington about 1423. Thomas A. Becket, Henry Fitz Ailwin and Longsword were benefactors. Henry III gave two oak trees from Windsor Forest to provide fuel. In 1539, the hospital was surrendered with the priory to Henry VIII.

Largely due to the influence of Sir Richard Gresham it was refounded in 1544. The King made a gift of 500 marks a year but some of the houses from which this revenue was obtained being "rotten ruinous," the full sum was never realized. It then devolved upon the citizens to find four times as much money as they anticipated (!) In 1552 there were seven grades of paid officers as set forth in the "Ordre of the Hospital of St. Bartholomew's" the hospital being most important, the renter clerk, the butlers, the porters, the matron, the sisters, and the beadles ranking after. There were also, says the "Ordre," "as in a kynde by themselves, three surgeons in the wages of the Hospital garying daily attendance upon the cures of the poor". The first appointed medical officer was Thos. Vicary, Sergeant Surgeon to Henry VIII.

Doctor Harvey was physician from 1609-1643 and lectured at the hospital on the circulation of the blood. Doctor Percivall Pott was a surgeon in St. Bart's, and amongst his hearers when he lectured was John Hunter destined to become a distinguished surgeon and anatomist. Doctor Pott died in 1788 but in the medical world his name lives on. Falling from his horse, the doctor fractured his ankle in a peculiar way, causing displacement of the bones at the ankle joint, owing to the pull of the tendon of Achilles. Such a fracture is still known as "Pott's Fracture."

The gateway of the hospital dates from 1702. In the pediment is a statue of Henry VIII (the only one of that monarch in London) and above it are figures personifying lameness and sickness. Hogarth presented two pictures "The Pool of Bethesda" and "The Good Samaritan." In the Great Hall is a painting of Saint Bartholomew, and portraits of Doctor Ratcliffe, Abernethy and Pott. In this modern day, this hospital serves thousands of patients.

St. Thomas' Hospital is the second oldest hospital in London.

It was founded early in the 13th century by the canons of St. Mary Overy's Priory, apparently to meet distress arising out of a great fire in Southwork, the date of which is given as 1212. Probably in the first instance it was merely the assignment of a few cells in the priory. It was dedicated to St. Thomas the Martyr otherwise Thomas A. Becket. In 1228, Peter des Roches, Bishop of Winchester endowed the hospital with an income of about 1500 dollars per year. By the 15th century its administration was in the hands of a master and brethren. It too, had to be surrendered to Henry VIII at which time there were 40 beds for poor infirm people who had to be supplied with victuals and firing. It was then allowed to decay, but a sermon preached by Bishop Ridley caused the City of London to purchase and repair and enlarge the hospital. In 1533 a Royal Charter was granted by Edward VI. The clerk, hospitallee and matron were recorded by Rendle as the most important people, the surgeon taking rank after the shoemaker. In fact they did not add a physician to the roll until 1566. During the reign of Queen Elizabeth unruly patients were placed in the stocks and even nurses were punished by whipping. Patients who did not attend church on Sunday got no dinner. On through the years the hospital was improved and enlarged and in 1871 transferred to its present site. You might be interested to know that land which was bought in 1507 for 151 dollars, sold in 1871 for 1,500,000 dollars.

St. Thomas' Hospital holds a great place in the history of nursing, for associated with it is the Nightingale Fund Training School for Nurses established with the National tribute subscribed in appreciation of the services rendered by Florence Nightingale during the Crimean War. This hospital now ministers to many thousands of sufferers, from the humble beginnings over 700 years ago, of a few cells in the priory, and is a blessing to mankind.

The more we study history the more importance we attach to continuity and we learn that whatever we build or prepare, can go on to serve and help others, long after our own day is done.

Rosalie Metis Has Unhappy End K. Nash's Luck Runs Out Off N.J.

Wm. Nash, brother of Keith Nash who had the misfortune to lose his boat and nearly his life in the Atlantic Ocean, received an interesting letter the other day from a friend of Keith's in New York City. Knowing the interest that has been shown in the boating mishap, the letter is printed herewith:

Dear Mr. Nash: Last Sunday I drove out about 100 miles to see your brother, whom I had offered to accompany on the first leg of his trip to Florida, about a month ago, as he was hoping to leave over a week-end which suited my business engagements. I felt that he should not sail alone around the crowded harbors in and around New York, as a 45 foot schooner is too much for one person to handle. I still feel that if he had had some one along, even though it might not have prevented the mishap to the boat, might have mitigated some of the other rigorous conditions, such as to have to go without a hot meal and having to sit so long at the tiller; it might also have permitted rescue from the flooded cabin of such important items as his rubber gloves and a bottle of rum which would have helped considerably. But then there is no use crying over split milk; one's hind-sight is always so much better than one's foresight. And I really don't know what would have happened had I been along or some one else. As it is, Captain Keith Nash must have a very rugged constitution to have gotten through as he did, after 30 hours at sea, and especially so, right after getting over the grippe and a racking cough, which surprisingly the constant lashings of King Neptune's waves cured completely. I found your brother in high spirits as usual, with his morale unshaken, and generally in good health and without apparent ill effects, except for one thing. His hands, on which he wore cotton gloves that soon shrank; these hands which he had to use for hours to hold on to the shrouds and halliards so as not to be washed over-board, got very badly frost bitten, and are absolutely useless now--which is the reason he has been unable to write you himself. He is well treated at the hospital and they are doing everything possible there, where they have gained considerable experience during the War. They kept his hands bathed with Epsom Salt, then the doctor peeled the skin off, and they are now being treated with picric acid and are encased in transparent sheets so as to let the pus drain. The only worry is the tip of his fingers, which are still swollen to twice their normal size and cause him excruciating pains from time to time, like having spikes driven through them; especially after he moves his fingers, which the doctor advises so as to be sure to have the blood circulate. In addition the intern gives him shots of penicilin every two hours, and I believe they have a hard time in finding a new spot to put the needle.

I had phoned him I would be coming, having been prevented the week-end before by the arrival of my brother, who had flown from Brazil and lives in Belgium where we were born. So I found him waiting in the hall by the elevator, and he took me to his room, which he shares with 3 other patients, probably the best thing, as time drags a little for him. The hospital is a huge building about 10 miles from Toms River, which you can locate on the enclosed map. It is rather isolated in pine woods, which Pinewald implies, and the approaches are dotted by the summer bungalows of residents, a pleasant spot in the right season. The food at the hospital is good, but not very plentiful for an appetite trained on long journeys on the water, or in the Canadian woods. Still one does not need as much resting in bed. However, I think your brother feels the loss of his canned goods supplies, some of which he canned himself at the sweat of his brow more keenly, than the loss of his schooner Rosalie Metis, or his clothes, which have not yet been returned by the collier that picked him up. However, I brought him some clothes, so he'll have enough to wear when he gets out, which undoubtedly will not be for several weeks yet. It will probably take several months, at least 6, before he regains the normal use of his hands.

Captain Nash had been delayed from leaving by the condition of his engine, as he needed new gears, and afterwards some adjustment to his starter. While he was anchored in New York, at the foot of Wall Street, the financial district, I used to see him once or twice a week, and took snapshots of himself and the Rosalie Metis which I enclose. The picture of the boat is not too good, as it was taken at low tide, when there is a 10 foot drop. Finally, the ship was ready and Captain Nash decided to leave on Thursday, January 22, about noon. Small craft warnings were flying, a South West headwind blowing, which necessitated using his engine alone, and the weather was generally quite cold about 5 to 15° Fahrenheit on the water. Everything went on nicely though, and he was dressed for the occasion with all his sweaters, a pea jacket, a parka, three pairs of trousers and three pairs of wool socks. At about 6 p.m. it was dusk, and a haze settled over the water, Suddenly the schooner hit something and the Captain rushed forward on making distance from shore very hard to gauge, as the townlights appeared. deck to see what it was; whether a submerged wreck or some drift wood will never be known. Anyway, when he got back to the cabin the water was pouring in from the peak, probably the port side, and in a half hour's time the cabin and cockpit were completely filled. But the boat, which held quite a bit of timber kept afloat. As the wind had a tendency to shift from S.W. to N.W. he hoisted his sails up and brought his tiller ropes to the top of the cabin, where he stood.

It must have been a dreary and long night by himself, lashed by the waves that swung the boom around, so that it was impossible to stay on the lee-side without risking to be knocked overboard, and compelled to lay on the weather side and getting a hundred pounds of water on his back at regular intervals. The morning brought little consolation and mighty few ships on the horizon, most of them too far away to even notice the blue-grey masts which blended with the water. I understand why the top masts of ocean boats are usually painted white.

The cedar rowboat, which had been lashed to the portside on the deck, put overboard, was also useless; the planking had dried out, and the skiff took on as much water as the Rosalie Metis. Without food, wet through and through, in zero weather, a man's endurance does not last forever. But he continued to brace his feet in the grabrails and hold on for dear life. Finally in the late afternoon of Friday, January 29, a collier bound for Norfolk, Va., picked him up, half unconscious.

They undressed him and rolled him up in blankets and got a coast guard boat to come out from Barnegat City near-by, about 60 miles by water from New York, to take him on shore. They transferred him in his blankets on a mattress, and gave the position of the Rosalie Metis, and the collier went on South. At the naval station, Captain Nash was placed on a machine which shook him all over and got him conscious enough to drive him by car to the Dennis Memorial Hospital at Pinewald, near Toms River, N.J., where he now has been for over a week.

Unfortunately, the Coast Guard didn't look for the Rosalie Metis till two days later, when planes were flown over the area; but no trace was found of the schooner. It is hard to say whether she drifted out to sea, where the elements must have disposed of her, as the Queen Mary reported terrific storms after arriving 3 days late; or whether she drifted on shore, yet undiscovered, or claimed as booty by some thrifty but none too-honest fishermen.

I hope you will be glad to receive some news from your brother and his trip, and I know that it would please him very much if you would continue to write him regularly, even though he cannot write you and probably has difficulty in finding some one to write for him at the hospital.

His trip to Florida seems very far away now and it will cheer him up.

Yours very truly,

John P. Pflieger.

ALLOCATION OF HYDRO POWER

SOUTHERN ONTARIO SYSTEM

It has become necessary, due to a reduction in the amount of purchased power available, to issue the following notice to municipalities and direct customers of the Commission in the Southern Ontario System.

"Effective February 18, 1948, and continuing until further notice, the daily consumption of kilowatthours shall be restricted to a maximum of 90% of the average daily consumption of kilowatthours in the month of October, 1947. This reduction shall not apply to customers whose power supply was interrupted by the Commission in October, 1947 to the extent of 10% or more of normal delivery."

This is a temporary emergency arising from sub-normal rain fall last Autumn which has forced two of the Quebec power companies to drastically reduce their deliveries of power to The Commission.

This restriction will be lifted just as soon as circumstances permit and in the meantime, all consumers must play their full part by saving electricity at all times.

If the specified reduction in consumption of electricity is not obtained, it will be necessary to cut off the supply of electricity entirely for definite intervals of time each day, wherever the specified consumption is being exceeded.

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER COMMISSION OF ONTARIO

GARDEN CHATS:

By Lillian Allison

Hello Neighbour: Now that the sun is getting bright and the weatherman says "Milder", once in a while, my guess is that you are beginning to think of seeds for your garden and flower beds. Of course you may be the kind that visits the grocery store the day before you plant your garden and chooses the package with the prettiest picture. But I think that you, neighbour, take your gardening quite seriously and plan well ahead of time what you will plant.

For a few years after I began having a garden, ordering seeds was quite an ordeal. I wanted lettuce, for example, but what variety? I gathered up all the seed catalogues, found the lettuce section in each, and proceeded to read what each had to say about its own dozen or so varieties. Now that method took hours. By the time I read all the "plugs" for all the varieties of all the vegetables and flowers, I was worn to a frazzle

One year I decided on a system, I copied the variety, the quantity of seeds purchased and the name of the seedhouse from which each was ordered. I tucked the list away for the following year. And, believe it or not, the next year I found it too. Then I checked it.

If my cabbage had proved good, I ordered the same variety again. But if the beans had not yielded well, I chose a different kind. If I had had seed peas left over, I got a smaller package, but if we longed for radishes after ours were all finished, I ordered an extra amount. Now I have some varieties I can depend on and these are always on my list.

If you are an old gardener, you know what you want, but if you have not had much experience you might like to know what I plant.

I've found that "Early Winnigstadt" cabbages are excellent for summer. They are little pointed heads that mature quite early. "Henderson's Autumn King" is my late cabbage. They are large, flat heads (though not as large as the catalogue claims) and they keep quite well. They mature late and so do not burst.

"Straight 8's" are especially nice cucumbers. They seem to yield well and are the stream-lined variety we like for pickles.

"Cosberg 600" lettuce is my favourite. It makes nice leaf lettuce on the start, then heads up nicely without any coaxing. Miss Moad says that "Great Lakes" is the variety for late lettuce. I'm going to try it this year.

"Early Wonder" peppers proved most satisfactory last year. I had a wonderful crop of them and so many ripe ones. Never before did I have a kind that would ripen on the plant.

I always get an ounce of "Mixed" radish seeds. Some mature earlier than others and so they string along a long time.

If you could see the bushels of tomatoes I usually have to pick, you'd agree that "Super Bonnie Best" must be a good kind. They are more expensive but they are hardy and yield exceptionally well.

We always plant three varieties of sweet corn. Then we have corn for almost a month. "Earliest Golden Sweet" is ready by mid-August. "Golden Bantam" follows, and when it is done our "Bantam Evergreen" is fit to use. I don't have to eat warmed-up turnips for days as you do when you have to cook a large one.

I haven't space to describe all the others but here are a few favourite names: "Nantes' Coreless" carrots, "Unrivalled Wax" beans, "Canner's Perfection" peas, "Improved Dark Red" beets, "Short Thick" parsnips.

Of course Im not paid for advertising, so I can't mention the seed catalogues in which you will find these. Just look through them all; it will be fun some cold night.

Next week we'll discuss flower seeds.

Until then—

'MEET GISELE'

If it's a romantic ballad, folk ditty, or calypso song in English or French, Gisele la Fleche sings it. She's the young Canadian chanteuse whose lighthearted singing to her own piano accompaniment is broadcast Saturdays on "Meet Gisele," at 7.00 p.m. EST, from stations of the CBC Trans-Canada network. Gisele is not only a talented vocalist and pianist, but a concert violinist as well. She comes from a musical Winnipeg family, took voice and instrumental training at the Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto.

'REVIVAL NIGHT' ON STAGE 48

Revivals of two popular half-hour plays presented in the CBC's "Stage" drama series of other years are scheduled for the Sunday, February 22, broadcast of "Stage 48."

Written by Len Peterson, Canadian playwright, they are "Maybe in a Thousand Years," a serious drama from "Stage 45", telling how a young married couple, a Chinese boy and a white girl, overcame the unhappiness caused by racial prejudice; and "What Does He Know What He's Getting?" a "Stage 44" comedy about a perennial bachelor who thinks even the nicest women become naggers and schemers after marriage, and that for a man a wedding ring is as god as a noose.

"Stage 48" is broadcast every Sunday at 10.00 p.m. EST, on the CBC Trans-aCnada network.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Take a few simple ingredients, combine with a peck of ingenuity and a bit of patience and you have the requisites for an appetizing meal at low cost. Lacking the "peck of ingenuity" you might find help in The Mixing Bowl columns, which are designed to eliminate some of your worry in planning economical dinners.

The current price of meat limits our suggestions for the main course. Many cuts of beef and pork have gone sky high in price—hence the emphasis on economical meat dishes.

In today's budget dinner we present a Southern Beef Roll—as delicious as it sounds. It is a flexible recipe, suitable for both fresh ground meat or leftover meat such as the odds and ends of a pot roast. Ordinarily the beef roll would be served with gravy but it is especially good with tomato sauce. We also suggest you try scalloped tomato-and-cabbage instead of gravy. The scallop can be placed right on the dinner plate between the slice of beef roll and the mound of creamy mashed potatoes. The juiciness will blend with both the meat and potatoes, cutting down the need for butter and meat sauce.

Spanish Cream is one of those delicate wholesome desserts each member of the family from junior to grandad can enjoy. Some folks like it as well as ice cream, which is plenty!

SOUTHERN BEEF ROLL

2 tbsps. beef dripping, 1 pound minced chuck or beef steak, 2 tbsps. flour, 2 tbsps. minecd onion, 2 tbsps. chili sauce, 1½ cups water, 1 tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. chili powder, ¼ tsp. pepper.

Brown meat, flour and onions in melted dripping. Add chili sauce and water, and simmer 10 minutes. Add seasonings and cool partially.

Prepare biscuit dough: Sift 2 cups bread flour, 3 tsps. baking powder, ½ tsp. salt into a mixing bowl. Measure 4 tbsps. shortening and add to dry ingredients. Blend together until mixture is mealy, add ¾ cup milk and stir only until soft dough is formed. Turn out on floured board and pat into rectangle about 1|3 inch thick. Spread with beef filling and roll like jelly roll. Place on baking sheet. Bake 30 minutes in electric oven at 350 degrees.

SCALLOPED TOMATOES AND CABBAGE

1 can tomatoes, 2 cups shredded cabbage, 1 tsp. sugar, ¼ tsp. salt, 2 tbsps. flour, ½ cup fine bread crumbs.

Drain off ¼ cup juice from tomatoes. Heat the remainder to boiling point. Add cabbage, sugar and salt; simmer 10 minutes. Blend flour with ¼ cup cold tomato juice and add gradually to hot mixture. Stir until thickened, then pour into greased casserole and top with crumbs. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes. Six servings.

SPANISH CREAM

1. Sprinkle 1 tbsp. (1 envelope) unflavoured gelatine over ¼ cup milk.

2. Scald 1½ cups milk, add 2 tbsps. sugar and ¼ cup raspberry juice; pour the hot liquid over 2 slightly beaten egg yolks.

3. One-third cup of raisins may be added. Cook in double boiler, stirring constantly until custard coats spoon.

4. Add gelatine, remove from electric element and add ¼ tsp. salt.

Chill in electric refrigerator until mixture begins to thicken.

Fold in 2 egg whites beaten stiff but not dry. Pour into mould rinsed with cold water. Chill until firm, unmould and serve with top milk. Serves 6.

MOLASSES COOKIES

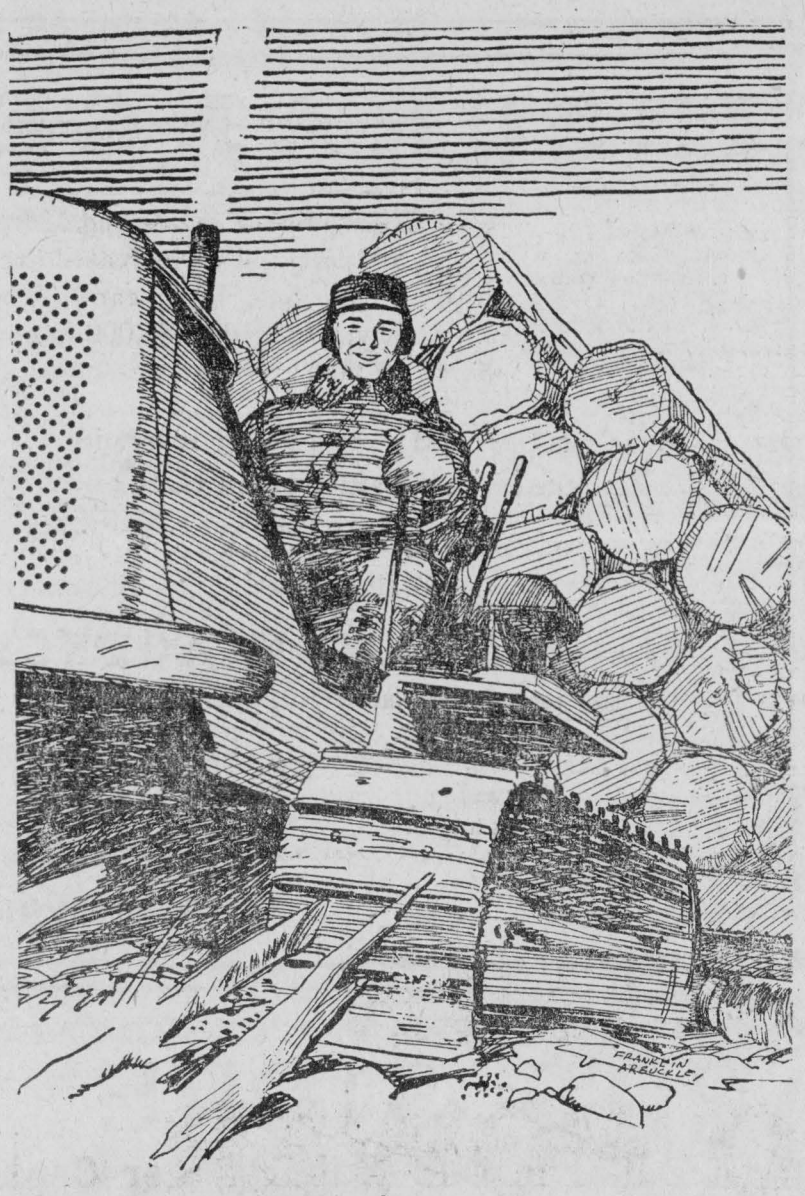
½ cup shortening, ½ cup brown sugar, ½ cup molasses, 1 egg, ½ cup sour cream, 1½ tsps. soda, ½ tsp. salt, 1 tsp. ginger, ½ tsp. cinnamon, flour.

Cream shortening and sugar together. Add the molasses, wellbeaten egg, and the sour cream into which the soda has been stirred. Add the salt and spices and enough flour to make a very soft dough. Chill the dough so that it can be handled more easily. Roll to one-fourth inch in thickness, and cut with a cooky cutter. Bake in a moderate oven for about 10 minutes.

THE SUGGESTION BOX

Mrs. J. A. C. says: Soap lasts longer if it is well dried out. When you bring home a new supply of soap, unwrap and pile loosely in a dry place.

Mrs. M. D. says: Odds and ends of wood from a lumber mill, sandpapered and painted or pasted with "decals" make delightful blocks for children.



"She sure hauls them!"

When Bill and his crew go into the woods now, they get timber out twice as fast as they used to. That new tractor Bill bought really handles those logs!

Back in town, the saw-mill is running full blast, taking all Bill's crew can deliver . . . And this extra activity, this extra income spreading around through the community is largely due to the fact that Bill went to see his bank manager and arranged a loan to buy the tractor . . .

In lumbering towns and rural hamlets, in big seaports and tiny fishing villages, bank credit — money at work — helps to increase business activity in whole communities. Your bank manager's job is to help men and women grasp opportunities and to put the bank's facilities to work for you and your neighbours.

HAWK IN HAND, HARRY HAS HANDFUL

Harry Allison of the Finch Road came into the office of The Record yesterday with a very angry handful of little hawk. When he and Charlie Hummel were in the barn throwing down feed the bird was noticed and after some effort was captured. The small bird, in body size, about as large as a pigeon, managed to demonstrate its fierceness on the fingers of its captors, and before long had earned a wholesome respect for its needle-like talons and knife-sharp beak. The bird was a sharp-shinned hawk, a real chicken lover, and one of the swiftest of all the hawks. It is the mortal foe of pigeons and its shadow over the barnyard will cause unreasoning panic among the fowl there as any farmer can testify. It, and not the big, slow, red-tailed marsh hawk is the real chicken hawk.

The many friends of Mrs. Jack Wyatt are sorry to hear she is a patient in the Cornwall General Hospital. We all hope to see her home again soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Smith and Marion, of Chesterville, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bush and family.
