New Landmark In Town Will Be Seen For Many Miles

To be 150 feet high, the new smoke stack a-building at the new Nestlé's plant, north of the village has some interesting statistics hidden in its masses of masonry. Up to 90 odd feet now, the stack has already used over ten freight car loads of red bricks. And the name "Nestlés'" that is slowly being spelled on the south side of the chimney in ten foot letters, will use two car loads of glazed white tile. To build high it is necessary to dig deep and the subsoil of hardpan was uncovered and a twenty foot block of concrete laid on it for a foundation to the big smoke stack. After the stack is built and seemingly finished from the outside, much remains to be done, the most important of which is the lining of the inside of the first forty feet of the chimney with firebrick. When the furnaces start to roar the fragile red brick must be protected from the inferno of blazing gasses that will stream into the flues. With the name "Nestlés'" 150 feet in the air over Chesterville, now all that remains is to get the name "Chesterville" on the cans of milk and Nescafe that will leave the new plant. "Made in Canada" is rather indefinite.

Interesting Meeting Grantley Women's Ass'n

The Women's Association of Grantly were guests on Wednesday evening, August 13th, at the home of Mrs. Phil Casselman, Goldfield South. The attendance was good despite the heat.

Mrs. James McMillan, the Vice-President, was in charge of the meeting and after the opening exercises gave the story of the life of Abigail, assisted by Mrs. Ernest Beckstead and Mrs. Donald Gordon.

The Secretary, Mrs. Kettle, gave the minutes of the last two meetings, reading several letters from former members expressing pleasure at receiving their invitation to the 25th Anniversay in July. Several donations were gratefully acknowledged.

Miss Shirley McMillan entertained with a piano solo "Londonderry Air", Mrs. Phil Casselman read an interesting excerpt from J. B. MacDougall's book "2000 miles of Gold" and Mrs. Donald Casselman gave an amusing list of "Errors in Type". An oral contest on Nursery Rhyms was conducted by Mrs. Ernest Beckstead.

After lunch the ladies enjoyed a social hour, Mrs. Mary Sutherland, a visitor of Avonmore, was welcomed by her former neighbors.

The hostess was thanked for a delightful evening.

The Late Mrs. Levi Merkley

Mrs. Levi Fetterly, a life-long resident of Russell Township, died Thursday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Roy E. Annable, of Winchester.

Born at Chesterville 92 years ago, Mrs. Fetterly had been in good health until a few days before her death. She was married 70 years ago and her husband died in 1936. She was a member of the United Church and active in the work of church associations.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. W. R. Fraser, Gallingertown; Mrs. William Shepherd, Russell; Mrs. Roy Annable, Winchester; one son, Allan Fetterly, Moulinette. There are 22 grandchildren, and 26 great-grandchildren.

The funeral was held at the home of Mrs. Anable at 1.30 p.m. on Saturday, with interment in the family plot at the Morewood cemetery.

HINDLEY—COONS

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Coons, of Cass Bridge, was the scene of an interesting wedding at three o'clock Tuesday afternoon when their daughter, Irene Muriel Ellen, was married to Joseph Charles Hindley, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hindley, of Rockwood, Ont.

Gladioli, zinnias and phlox, against a background of ferns, made a pretty setting for the ceremony, performed by Rev. Dr. George A. McIntosh of the Winchester United Church. The wedding music was played by Mrs. W. H. Neilson, of Appleton, Ont., and during the signing of the register, Mrs. Harold Kettles, of Carleton Place, sang "Because".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Ella Coons, as bridesmaid. The best man was Mr. Lloyd Hindley, of Rockwood, brother of the bridegroom.

A beautiful floor-length model of white net over taffeta was chosen by the bride. The fitted bodice was of lace and elbow mittens of lace completed the costume. A single strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom, was her only ornament, and she carried a bouuet of American Beauty roses.

After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served. The bride's table was centred with a twotiered wedding cake, and lit by tall pink tapers.

Mr. and Mrs. Hindley left on a wedding trip to Montreal and Quebec. The bride's travelling costume was of black crepe trimmed with satin, with black accessories. They will reside at Rockwood, Ont.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Hindley, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Gregson, Lloyd Hindley, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert McCutcheon, all of Rockwood, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. William Hindley, Miss Fanny Coons, Reg. N., of Guelph; Miss Betty Hindley, Reg. N., Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Neilson. Appleton; Mrs. Harold Kettles, Carleton Place; Mr. and Mrs. Aura Hutt, Chesterville, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mcenomy, of Inkerman.

Travelling By Airplane Enjoy California Trip

Arriving home in Chesterville Tuesday evening after a summer spent in California, Chas. Graham and his daughter Aura, are firm advocates of the airplane as the way to get between two points on the map.

June 28th found them boarding a TCA airliner at Uplands at 9.05 in the morning and by 2.00 p.m. they were in their hotel in Chicago. The trip across was restful and pleasant. Leaving Chicago the following night at 8, the travellers had no difficulty in sleeping in the easy chairs of the American plane, and wakened in time to see some of the Rockies flowing away behind them as they came in for a landing at Los Angeles at 7 the next morning.

The return trip was made in the daytime and in one of the famous "Connies" or Lockheed Constellations. Carrying 51 passengers the big ship climbed to 18,000 feet and held that altitude all the way across. The cabin was very comfortable, as a system of pressurizing kept the pressure equal to that of 7,000 feet. The temperature over the Rockies outside the plane was 28 degrees and for miles on either side stretched the snow-capped mountains. The mountains were the only scenery as the ground was not visible at 18,000 because of the haze. Roaring along at more than 300 miles per hour the plane crossed the continent to Chicago in less time than it takes a fast express to go to Toronto from Montreal. Excellent meals were in order at all times on the planes and the stewardesses were the last word in attention.

HUNTED BY MEN TRAPPED BY A WOMAN

By Marian Macnaughton

Were you here the summmer everybody was so excited about the bear? 'Twas rumored that there was a big bear roaming these woods of the Lake of Bays region. So all the men went ahunting the bear. We females stayed at home, sort of laughing and very dubious. Mel, the neighbor and a year-round resident, would come and say, "Come, Jim, we're going bear-hunting. Bear tracks were really seen at the spring this morning." And off they'd go—all morning, all day—day after day. But no bear that summer! Just weary hunters!

Come fall, one of the native wives set a trap and one morning there the bear was—in the trap—only a 220-pound bear.

Now, again, there are bears. Up the hill above Lumina, bears feed on the garbage; one was on the road not far from here the other evening and early in the summer, one drank at the dock two doors from our cottage.

However, we, ourselves, have seen no bears, but we have a deer story to tell. Everybody is driving into Algonquin Park to see and feed deer. So, last week, oud crowd prepared a lunch for ourselves and took a snack for the deer and drove toward the Park in the late afternoon. Before we reached Highland Inn, one or two deer were seen by one or the other of us. Near the inn, a group of people was gathered around two young deer but right beyond were a man and woman with their special fawn. We joined them and the fawn joined us. It put its head in the window of the car and we fed it a life-saver which it crunched with great relish. Then we got out and petted and fed it again and became really chummy. As long as we stayed, it stayed.

We drove on a few miles to have supper at the Lake of Two Rivers, a government camping site where there are fireplaces, picnic tables and accommodations for overnight campers. It must be well-known for there were many trailers, tents and campers, but no wonder, as it is a lovely spot.

About seven o'clock, we started toward home. The sun was beginning to set, and the shadows of the pines, cedars and tamaracks, with here and there a tall birch, made a lasting impression on our companions, newcomers to the Muskoka region.

Now the deer were really out—but we couldn't stop to feed them all, nor did they need our food as many of them were being fed. Perhaps the most beautiful sight was one standing alone on a bluff, silhouetted against the glowing sky.

All of us saw at least eight, but our fifteen year old guest saw eleven, and wished she could see twelve, but the rest of us were happy to see even one.

VARIETY OF USES FOR FARMERS' CORN

The contribution which farmers make to many industries may not be generally appreciated, and it is interesting to trace the many uses to which agricultural products are put.

The farmer who grows corn, as often as not thinks of it as silage for farm feed, or as cash crop. He knows that it can be processed into starch for sundry purposes, into the corn meal and syrup widely used as food products; into corn oil as a dressing for salads, for mayonnaise, as edible, table oil, and into gluten as an ingredient of cattle feed.

Actually these are only the more obvious of the uses to which corn and the products derived from it can be applied. In the food industry it is a valuable ingredient of baking, cocoa, cake, custard, sauces and various culinary and food preparations. It is used in the biscuit, pastry, baking and confectionery industry; in the canning and preserving industry. As a raw material it figures in the manufacture of yeast, and in the canning and preserving industry. As a raw material it figures in the manufacture of all types of sweetener products, such as syrup, glucose and dextrose.

Corn, too, is an ingredient of glues and adhesives. The rubber industry uses corn starch as an ingredient of compositions for coating the surface of rubber articles to produce a smooth, matt finish, and for dusting to permit working with sheet rubber. The paper board and the warp sizing used in the textile industry are derived from corn starch.

Corn is used by the electrical industry in the manufacture of electrolytes used for re-charging dry cells, by the pharmaceutical trade as a binder in medicinal tablets, and by the retail druggist in compounding and dispensing medicines. As an ingredient of cleansing solutions, and a vehicle for holding tanning extract, the leather and tanning industry finds it particularly useful.

Corn starch is an ingredient of some explosives and the raw material in others, is used in foundry work, and as an ore dressing to quicken the settling of ore. Even the everyday match owes something to the farmer, for corn starch is frequently used as a binder in the composition of the head of the match. It is used in rayon manufacture, by the tobacco trade as an agent to hold moisture, and soap stock a fatty acid from corn oil, is used in the soap industry.

Apart from the everyday household use of corn -meal, starch and syrup, at least 15 processing and manufacturing industries use corn or products derived from its manufacture, in lesser or greater degree, which indicates the inter-dependence of agriculture and industry.

FOOD MOST FUNDAMENTAL NEED FOR LIFE & HEALTH

The Geneva conference of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), in which Canada is taking part, will be the first World Food Parliament, said Sir John Boyd Orr, Director of the Organization. It will be turned into an international forum, at which the whole situation and outlook in food, agriculture, forestry, and fisheries will be fully discussed.

"Forty-seven nations will report on their progress and their problems and we shall see what can be done towards achieving a better balance between production and the needs of the world's consumers. Every annual conference hereafter will be turned into a World Food Parliament of that sort", said Sir John.

Asked why he said that food should have first attention when there were so many big international problems, he said—"For three main reasons: The first is obvious: Food is the most fundamental need for life and health. The people who do not have enough of it far outnumber those who do. Therefore, we can do more for human well-being and happiness by stepping up world food production and consumption than by any other one thing.

"Second, in order to increase food production you automatically have to bring about extensive developments in industry as well as agriculture. That will give full employment, increased purchasing power, and expanded trade. In short, it will multiply the world's real wealth, which is the only basis for the expanding economy that everybody knows is essential not only for countries like China and India but for highly developed countries like the United States.

"Third, it should be easier to get agreement on a world food program than on anything else, because it is based on facts and not theories, and it is in the interest of everybody in every land—not only the primary producers but factory workers, merchants, housewives and children. It is a significant thing that more people are engaged in agricultural production than in all other occupations combined, and food and agricultural products bulk the largest in world trade".

LET'S ALL BE CITIZENS AGAIN

When laws are made for citizens, and apply equally to each in like circumstances, freedom flourishes and the people prosper.

When laws are made for groups and classes, giving special privileges and the power of government to minorities, freedom withers and production declines.

Great Britain has been compelled by the growth of special privileges, for labor, industry, agriculture, and civil servants, to adopt compulsory measures which impair freedom, destroy co-operation, prevent choice of occupation, preclude automatic rewards for initiative and enterprise, and restrict production.

Canada should make an immediate comprehensive study looking toward the earliest possible revocation of all privileges which are not clearly compensated by national benefits which accrue to all citizens alike. Let us stop creating privileges for employees, employers, farmers and civil servants, and start regarding ourselves as citizens again. Laws adequate to the protection of our rights as citizens are sufficient to safeguard all of our rights. There was a day in Canada when a minimum of law produced a maximum of personal and public good, at a minimum of public expense.—The Scene from Shingwauk Farm.

Correction Please

"I don't like your heart action," said the family doctor to the young man. "But, of course, you've had some previous trouble with angina pectoris."

The youth heaved a deep sigh.

"Yes, doctor, I have," he replied; "but you haven't got her name right."

TIME FOR DECISION

By George W. James
The Statesman, Bowmanville

(Article No. 14)

Article 13 of this series stated that opinions of two ranking Liberal sources would be heard on the question of the British food agreements that this column has discussed at some length. The Winnipeg Free Press, top-ranking Liberal newspaper and Senator T. A. Crerar, former long-term Minister in the Mackenzie King Cabinet and for 40 years a farm leader, sum up these agreements in the following terms:

Free Press Views

The Free Press observes: "The Canadian-British wheat deal and the Wheat Board legislation clearly contravene the intent of the world trade charter which has one main purpose —to promote a maximum movement of goods throughout the world." Continuing its analysis of the wheat deal, this paper states: "Discrimination is its essence and its purpose."

Discrimination

"Under it Canada sells wheat to one country at a price which it will not grant to others. What is the world to think of a nation which helps to write such a charter prohibiting discriminatory trade practices and then, when the charter is ready for signature, embarks on outright discrimination? This action neither strengthens general confidence in Canada's word nor improves the prospects of the forthcoming tariff conferences."

Economic Lunacy

"In defence of the agreement it is said that its offence against fair trade is only theoretical. But considered against the charter, the wheat deal reveals a deeper logic and a more dangerous process for Canada and especially for the farmers of the west. No temporary advantage, no supposed measure of security, could compensate the western farmer for failure to repair the world market after the economic lunacy of the last 25 years."

Senator Crerar Speaks

Senator Crear, speaking in the upper chamber, said: "The underlying principle of this bill is simply to make the handling and marketing of grain a completely rigid state monopoly. A farmer cannot sell his grain, a railway company cannot transport it, nor a grain elevator handle it without permission of the wheat board. It puts the whole business in a straight-jacket from which there is no escape."

Liberty Destroyed

"As a farmer in Manitoba I cannot buy seed wheat from a Saskatchewan farmer without permission of the board. If I send a truck across the border of these provinces to take delivery and bring it back I can be hailed into court and be fined. If a board agent does something to injure a grower he cannot be sued in the ordinary court. No farmer can deliver a bushel of wheat without a permit book."

Severe Penalties

Penalties in the legislation are that if a farmer is found guilty of infringing the board's orders he can be sent to jail or fined up to $5,000. The Senator challenged that there was no national emergency to justify the government's legislation and he continued: "I deplore the tendency to-day to increase powers of government and give it more authority over the people."

Keep Eyes Open

Condemning the British agreements Senator Crerar said, having been made they must be honored, which was the same stand taken by Progressive-Conservative leader John Bracken. Concluding he said: "Next week or next month other measures may do precisely the same thing to any other industry. If we are headed for a socialistic and authoritarian state, let us proceed with our eyes open; let us have the matter discussed by the Canadian people."

These two Liberal sources coincide with what this column has sought to explain.

MERCY

By William Shakespeare

The quality of mercy is no strained;
It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven
Upon the place beneath; it is twice blest,—
It blesseth him that gives and him that takes;
'Tis mightiest in the mightiest; it becomes
The throned monarch better than his crown.
His sceptre shows the force of temporal power.
The attribute to awe and majesty,
Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings.
But mercy is above this sceptered sway,—
It is enthroned in the hearts of kings,
It is an attribute to God himself;
And earthly power doth then show likest God's,
When mercy seasons justice.

Who flatters, is, of all mankind the lowest, save he who courts the flattery.—Hannah More.

RAISING CAPONS GOOD BUSINESS

It is generally conceded that capons after the age of five or six months will produce more edible flesh per unit of feed than will the normal male chicken, reports the Poultry Division, Dominion Experimental Farms Service. A capon is an unsexed male chicken. It differs from the normal intact male in several respects.

The justification for caponizing is the improvement it makes in the quality of the flesh, and not, as is so frequently stated, the greatly increased growth of the bird. As matter of fact, there is no appreciable difference in the growth of capons and cockerels up to about six months of age, after which the capon continues to grow and lay on flesh of a superior quality.

Capons are more docile and less active than normal males, which possibly accounts for greater deposits of fat dispersing throughout the muscles producing a superior quality of meat. Another advantage gained by caponizing is that, because the flesh of the capon does not get hard and tough like that of the normal male, it is possible to carry capons late in the season, where the price justifies it, thus extending the marketing period for fresh-killed roasters.

Any breed of fowl may be caponized, but on account of the commercial demand for large capons and the fact that the capon becomes superior to the cockerel only after the greater part of the growth period has been completed, it is generally advisable to use the large or general-purpose breeds.

Further information on the best breeds and age at which to caponize, the operation itself and the preparation of the birds will be found in Publication No. 613 "Capons and Caponizing". A copy of the publication may be obtained by writing to the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

CLEAN THE STABLES

Clean stables have much to do with keeping live stock healthy. With stock out on pasture comes an opportunity to do a little extra cleaning-up. After the stables have been thoroughly celaned they may be sprayed with a limewash containing a suitable disinfectant. Flies and mosquitoes around farm buildings are a source of annoyance to both humans and to live stock, apart from being possible carriers of disease. The new chemical DDT is effective in helping to keep stables and other farm buildings free of these pests. Any of the commercially prepared barn sprays containing five per cent DDT may be used for this purpose, and the instructions of the manufacturer should be followed.

One gallon of spray will cover 1,600 square feet and sufficient DDT will be deposited on the surface to last for some months, though the length of time the spray will remain effective depends upon the nature of the surface sprayed, exposure to sunlight and weather, dust and dirt which may cover the deposit, the effect of rubbing or sweeping the surface when cleaning, or contact with the bodies of animals or other objects. In addition to spraying the interior of stables and other buildings, the outside around doors and windows should also be treated.

His Fate

Grandpappy Morgan, a hillbilly of the Ozarks, had wandered off into the hills and when supper time came and he failed to return Young Jake was sent out to search for him and bring him in. Jake located Grandpappy standing quietly in a clump of bushes.

"Gittin' dark, Grandpap," said Jake.

"Yep," said Grandpappy.

"Supper's ready."

"Yep."

"Ain't ye hungry, Grandpap?"

"Yep."

"Wal, ain't ye comin' home?"

"Nope."

"Why not?"

"Can't."

"Why cain't ye?"

"Standin' in a b'ar trap."

IN MEMORIAM

IN LOVING memory of our dear brother and son Herbert Empey, who lost his life due to enemy action at Kassel, Germany, August 27, 1942.

The midnight stars are shining upon your silent grave,
Beneath it sleeps the one we loved and the one we could not save
The blow was hard, the shock severe,
We little thought your death so near.
Only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting without farewell.
We the remaining ones at home
Can hardly feel that you are really gone
Some day in Heaven when the Lord calls us home
We will meet you up There close by
His Throne
That day we know will be God's will,
And we hope His Will will be fulfilled.

—Sadly missed by Mother, Dad, Bob, Jane and Alice.

What to Do About Polio

Until the end of September we must be on the watch for poliomyelitis — infantile paralysis. June through September is the danger period, with the peak in September.

With that thought in mind it is well to remember the following facts:

A minor illness may be serious.

Early signs of infantile paralysis resemble those of many other illnesses, starting with headache, slight

WEED OF THE WEEK—

Perennial Sow Thistle

Perennial sow thistle has flourished under the excessive moisture conditions of the past 3 months and as a result its bright yellow flowers are in evidence everywhere at this time, particularly in areas where lack of drainage is a problem. This weed has a creeping root stock and lives over from year to year. It may be identified from the common annual and the spiny annual species by its thick, stiff, deeply cut leaves; bright, orange flowers about an inch across and numerous underground root stocks. The annual Sow Thistles do not grow so tall and coarse, they have tap roots and flowers are a pale yellow, less than half an inch across. Stems and flowers are not hairy as in the case of the perennial species. The seeds of all three species each bear a tuft of white silky hair at the top which enables them to be carried many miles with the wind during the harvesting and threshing season. Sow Thistle will grow in a variety of soils but thrives best in heavy clays and rich low land where there is an abundance of moisture and lack of drainage.

One of the most effective methods of control for this weed is to plow deep during the hot, dry period in July or August with the object of exposing root stocks to the sun. After the land has been dry ploughed it should be left in a rough condition for 1 to 2 weeks depending on weather conditions. In following this plan subsoil is separated from surface soil, moisture is cut and root stocks will dry out. Other practical methods which have proven effective for the control of this weed include drainage, a short rotation of crops which includes only 1 year in grain, early maturing varieties of cereal crops, a black summer fallow, a partial summer fallow which includes late sown spring crops or fall sown crops, maintenance of soil fertility by use of manure, commercial fertilizers, legumes and green manure crops, the object being to bring cultivated crops in rapidly, smother crops of buckwheat and rape, hoed crops, annual hay and pasture crop; and pulling, mowing and spraying of scattered plants and patches.

The objective at this time should be to prevent seed production as a neglected patch or field may infest an entire community by means of blowing seed. The co-operation of everyone is necessary in controlling this menace to agriculture. The Weed Control Act is your protection. It states that Sow Thistle and other noxious weeds must be destroyed before seeds mature. Notify your Weed Inspector regarding any neglected areas in your community. Obtain our pamphlet on Sow Thistle from your Agricultural Representative or write direct to the Crops, Seeds and Weeds Branch, Parliament Building, Toronto.

BURNING FEET

Bathing, exercise and adoption of correct footwear are recommended for those who suffer from burning feet in summer time. It is suggested that, whether one uses a tepid or an alternating hot and cold foot bath, the feet must be dried thoroughly. Talcum on the soles and between the toes, and a little witch hazel, will help relieve the burning, too.

Red Cross Pays No Part Air Borne Immigrants' Expenses

Because there seems to exist some misapprehension on the part of the public in the matter of the relationship of the Red Cross to the Provincial Government's Air Migration Plan, Alan L. Ambrose, the President of the Ontario Division of the Society, to-day (August 22) made the following statement at Ontario Red Cross Headquarters in Toronto:

"It has come to our attention that many people are under the impression that Red Cross is financing the transportation cost of air borne immigrants from the United Kingdom to Canada. We desire to make it clear that the British immigrants come to Ontario entirely at their own expense and that Red Cross pays no part of that expense. The Red Cross looks after the notification of their relatives and friends and operates the Reception Centre at 398 Jarvis St., where the newcomers are welcomed. The Province of Ontario reimburses the Red Cross for their full cost of the operation of this Centre.

The Red Cross part in this project is substantially the same as it was in the meeting and assisting of Canadian servicemen and their dependents on their arrival from overseas —that of extending a helping hand during the first few days of adjustment. As in that project most of the Red Cross personnel involved are volunteers.

Land of Opportunity

A young Irish girl visiting the United States was struck by the fact that any man, regardless of wealth or position, could hold public office. She saw the village baker serving as justice of the peace, a shoemaker elected assemblyman, and many other plain people holding offices of authority and power.

One day the fair visitor went skating. The butcher boy came up to where she was sitting on the edge of the pond, doffed his cap, and very politely offered to put on her skates.

"You didn't allow him to do it, did you?" the girl's aunt demanded later.

"Oh, yes," replied the clever lassie, "I didn't know but what he'd be President of the United States some day, and I didn't want to offened him.

then the government gave employment to a single girl and left the married one unemployed.

On the other hand when a married woman was taken on the staff it was the beginning of a train of circumstances—not the end. She at once began to earn. The expenditure of the money which she earned gave employment to others, both men and women. She would have additional spending power—not an undesirable consumation in any healthy economy.

It will be said, of course, that this would be true also of the single girl but there is a broader aspect to that problem. Taxes are extremely high. They are high because of war and the adoption of a number of social services which have added substan-why seek immigrants abroad. Let's go a step further, why not welcome emigration? When we fail to face realities our reasoning power begins to falter. If we, in Canada, with all our resources, are unable to provide a higher level of employment we must seek the solution in our own metabolism and not in laws which by their nature are more calculated to destroy than to give life.

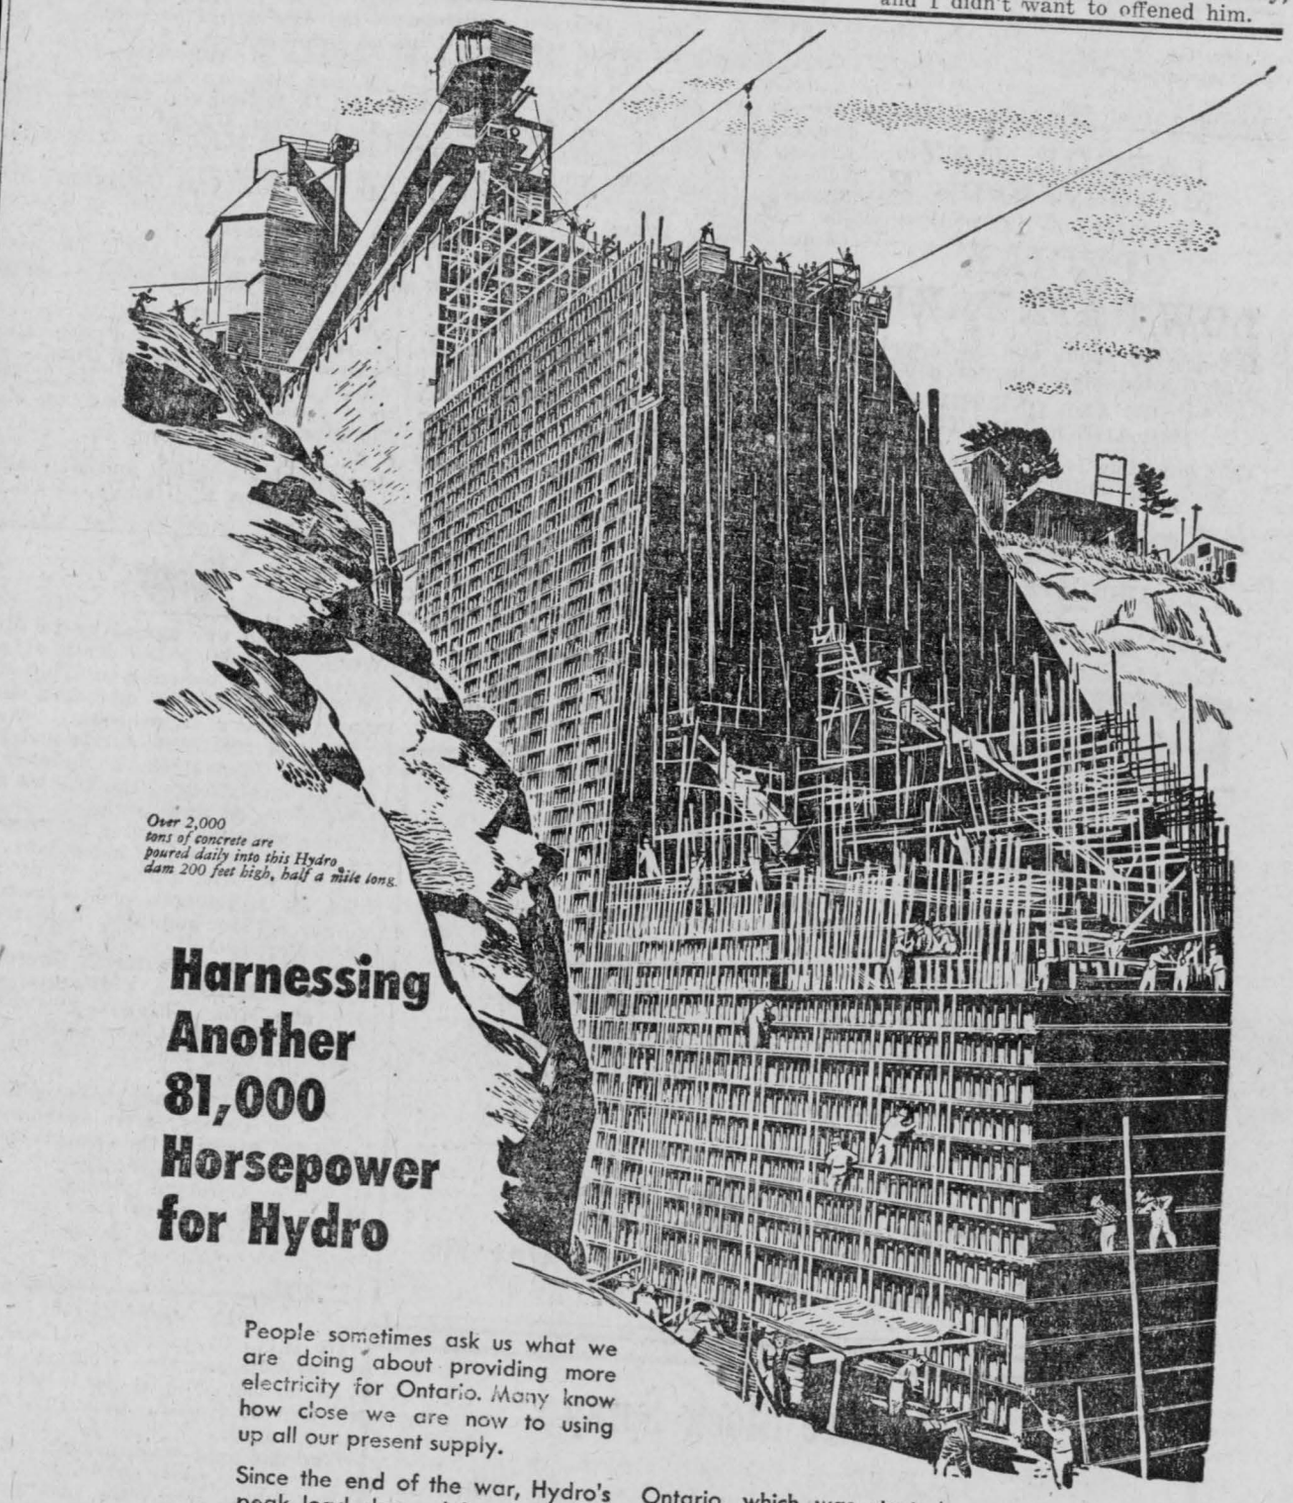
I have stated this case dogmatically, that is the easier way to do it. I am not blind to the fact that others hold opposing points of view. Have you thought about it in all its twists and angles. Drop me a line, give me your own opinions. In the multiplicity of views, honestly held, there is wisdom—at least there ought to be.



Over 2,000 tons of concrete are poured daily into this Hydro dam 200 feet high, half a mile long.

Harnessing Another 81,000 Horsepower for Hydro

People sometimes ask us what we are doing about providing more electricity for Ontario. Many know how close we are now to using up all our present supply.

Since the end of the war, Hydro's peak load demand has increased approximately 500,000 horsepower or more than 25% of the highest wartime demand, and is still mounting.

What are we doing about it?

Above is a part, but only a part, of the answer. It shows the great power development at Stewartville, on the Madawaska River in Eastern Ontario, which was started many months ago when materials and labor were in even shorter supply than now. It will give you 81,000 horsepower commencing next year.

With other Hydro developments being rushed to completion, an added 500,000 horsepower will be available in the next five years.

In the meanwhile we must all use Hydro sparingly so there will be enough to go around.

GARDEN CHATS: By Mrs. Harry Allison

Hello Neighbour: Speaking of cucumbers, as we were last week, did you ever wonder why sometimes they are so bitter? Well, I found out today. They tell me it's caused from planting them too close to a rusty wire fence. Yes, you can laugh. I did too. Just remember I didn't read that in a Horticultural Magazine, so don't quote me, please.

Someone remarked the other day, that although we pick every single cucumber, yet the next time we go into the garden, we stumble over a dozen great big ones. Have you noticed that? Mine were all big ones last night when I picked them. They were too big for anything but slicing and I planted them so close to the wire fence that they are all bitter, so I threw them away. I'll bet I get scolded for it, too, by some of my Village Neighbours. If you'd been here, you'd have been welcome to them.

To change the subject, were you at Ottawa Exhibition? Did you see the Horticultural display? I think Chesterville could do as well if we really tried. There seemed to be few exhibits and few exhibitors. In the "good old days" they used to fill that building with flowers, fruit and vegetables, but not so this year. Maybe we should blame the weather as usual. However, we'll hope for a better showing next year.

Say, did you remember about our local Flower Show? It is this Friday, (August 29th), you know. I know. I woke up the other morning dreaming about it. Perhaps I should say I had a nightmare about it. According to my dream, we had hundreds of entries all lined up, but we didn't know what class they were in or to whom they belonged. There were hundreds of people there too, and I was wondering how in the world the Institute would ever serve tea to them all. If the Show on Friday is anything like my dream, you won't want to miss it.

Did I ever tell you that the Judge of the flowers is to be Mr. Gammon from Cornwall. He is the District Director of the Cornwall district. That means he represents us on the Executive of The Ontario Horticultural Association. He is a competant judge with many years of experience.

This is your final invitation to attend the Flower Show from 3.00 to 5.00 P.M. on Friday. Don't forget to have your exhibits in place by Noon. I sincerely hope that you get First Prize.

See you Friday. Until then,
So long.

POLICE PROBLEM

Toronto Telegram

How three prisoners in Kingston penitentiary could saw through the thick bars of their cells, get out of the cell block and scale the high prison wall is a mystery that is matched by the performance of the cracksmen who have broken into the supposedly safe vaults of three banks in Ontario in the last five months and escaped with hundreds of thousands of dollars in securities without being discovered.

As a consequence of these desperado performances, as well as other crimes which remain unsolved, the police forces of this province will have to ask themselves whether their sleuthing methods are a match for the cunning of the criminals who have been doing most of the scoring in recent months.

Driving Aptitude

"Anything that will awaken the motorist to his driving responsibility is an aid to safer driving," said W. A. Bryce, division of public safety, Unversity of Toronto, in commenting on the U. of T. exhibit of psycohphysical tests at the Canadian National Exhibition. The tests are designed to measure the physical and mental aptitudes of individual drivers.

Although engineers are building better and safer highways and manufacturers are providing better and safer vehicles, accident, death and damage are still increasing. "The obvious conclusion," says Mr. Bryce, "is that the human factor is not keeping pace with the other two."

"To drive safely you must see clearly, think clearly, act promptly and skilfully. You must have a clear eye, an alert mind and a steady hand. When you are tested at the safe driving exhibit, you will learn your rating in these respects," he says. Mr. Bryce, who conducts a course at the university which has done much to promote safe driving among professional drivers, has some interesting facts and figures.

Reaction time—that is, the time it takes to recognize the need for action is three-quarters of a second for the average person. This means the average motorist travelling at 60 miles per hour, moves 66 feet, or four car lengths, before he even realizes he has to stop. A motorist with average reaction time travelling at 60 miles an hour with good brakes on a good road requires 226 feet or fifteen car lengths to actually stop.

One of the tests to be on display in the university exhibit, immediately west of the automotive bulding, tests this reaction time and tells how quickly you can act in an emergency.

Glare

Another of the university's tests is designed to check glare resistance. For safe night driving, Mr. Bryce makes five suggestions: do not light matches in car; keep dash light low; keep windshield clean; use lower beam when meeting other vehicles; drive more slowly.

"Many people," says Mr. Bryce, "have faulty glare-vision and poor glare-recovery. They still drive swiftly through the night, trusting to luck and the other guy!"

"Fatique is an important factor in many accidents, particularly during vacation time when people are driving long distances," says Mr. Brice. "It is important to know which of your senses are most affected when overtired". Two of the tests are designed to test strength and steadiness.

The average city dweller has very little experience in judging distance between objects which are themselves three or four hundred yards away, according to Mr. Bryce. This skill is constantly required when overtaking or passing other vehicles or when manoeuvering in confined quarters. In this test, distance judgment is measured by the ability of the driver to line up side by side two movable miniature cars viewed at an apparent distance of 20 feet.

Mr. Bryce says, "Drivers who have difficulty in judging distance, should allow more space when meeting or overtaking other vehicles; should avoid heavy traffic and exercise care when manoeuvring a car within close limits."

Vision

Vision is one of the most important factors in driving, said the divison director. Motorists should know exactly what to expect from their eyes. Besides testing, straight visual acuity, the university tests determine the motorists field of vision and color discrimination.

Field of vision is important when approaching intersections or anywhere where a hazard might come from the side.

Color discrimination is necessary, among other things, for quick recognition of traffic lights. People who are color blind, or in some cases even partially color blind, also have difficulty distinguishing between certain objects at dawn or dusk and should avoid driving at these times.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! We've been to the Canadian Exhibition and what fun. Never saw so much interest in the Exhibition in my life. Little wonder since every exhibitor has gone all out to show us the use of his products.

Of special interest to homemakers is the Shopping School in the "Women's World" at the Coliseum. Here you will find a modern grocery store, and the attendants will give you shopping budgets assembled for low cost, moderate cost and fancy menus. You should pick up copies or write to the Women's Section for them if you can't get down to the Fair.

Careful meal planning and skilful shopping can do much to ease the financial strain on the food budget. Approved methods of cooking and adequate storage facilities are also important and this point is proven by the many attractive displays of the manufacturers in the Electrical Building.

Everywhere at the Fair, visitors are directed and instructed by trained personnel, by illuminated signs, by "active" displays and colourful exhibits. Do go and look at the demonstrations. I can't begin to tell you all about the C.N.E. It's the best I've seen.

Here are a few manufacturer's recipes which we enjoyed.

Basket Salad

Hollow out grapefruit; set scooped-out fruit aside for breakfast. Line shells with endive; fill with drained fruit salad and serve with this dressing.

Nut-Date Dressing

¾ cup syrup from the fruit salad, 2 tbsps. cornstarch, ¼ tsp. salt, 1 tbsp. vinegar, ½ cup finely chopped dates, ¾ cup cream or top milk, whipped, ½ cup chopped walnuts.

Mix together the syrup, cornstarch, salt and vinegar. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is thick and clear. Continue cooking for 3 or 4 minutes longer. Cool slightly; stir in cream, whipped light but not stiff. Makes about 2 cups dressing.

Deep South Veal Roll

Remove bones from 2 whole veal cutlets, ½ inch thick, flatten cutlets with mallet. Spread each with half of the following stuffing: (Sauté 2|3 cup chopped onions and 1 cup diced celery in ¾ cup fat. Add 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, pinch of Rosemary and Savory and 1 cup soft crumbs.) Roll up, secure. Brown in Dutch Oven. Add 1|3 cup water, 8 sweet potatoes. Cover, simmer 40 minutes. Add 2½ cups green peas, 8 peeled orange slices, 2 tablespoons currant jelly. Cover, continue cooking 20 minutes. Eight servings.

Spareribs

The flavors of spareribs and savory celery stuffing blend perfectly. Place dressing in baking dish, cover with spareribs, or place dressing between two matching sections of ribs that are stitched or tied together. with salt and pepper, rub with flour. Bake uncovered at 325-350 degrees F. for 1½ hours.

Creole Fudge Cake

Preparation: Have shortening at room temperature. Line bottoms of two 9-inch layer pans with paper; grease. Set oven for moderate heat (350 degs. F.). Sift flour once before measuring. (All measurements are level.)

Measure into sifter:
2 cups sifted flour, 1 tsp. soda, 1 1|3 cups packed brown sugar, ¾ tsp. salt.
Measure into mixing bowls:
½ cup shortening
Measure into cup:
1 cup milk, 1 tsp. vanilla
Have ready:
2 eggs, unbeaten, 3 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted.

Stir shortening just to soften. Sift in dry ingredients, add ¾ cup of milk, and mix until all flour is dampened. Then beat 2 minutes. Add eggs, melted chocolate, and remaining milk and beat 1 minute longer. (Count only actual beating time. Or count beating strokes. Allow about 150 full strokes per minutes. Scarpe bowl and spoon often.) Baking: Turn into pans. Bake in moderate oven (350 degs. F.) about 30 minutes. Spread seven-minute frosting between the layers and on top and sides of cake, and coat with 2 squares of unsweetened chocolate melted with 2 teaspoons of butter.

TAKE A TIP

1. Pear and Apple Waldorf Salad: Make Waldorf salad as usual with chopped celery and walnuts, but substitute cut-up raw pears for about half the quantity of apple.

2. Salad Fillings for Pear Halves: Raspberry Jelly with sprinkle of grated orange rind; cottage cheese with minced nasturium leaves; chopped olives with mayonnaise.

3. Parsley Note: Add ¼ cup chopped parsley to thin white sauce (1 tbsp. butter, 1 tbsp. flour, ½ tsp. salt and 1 cup milk). Pour over cooked carrot cubes and fresh green peas, combined in equal proportions.

4. Seasoning for Beets: Season cubed or sliced cooked new beets with vinegar, grated onion, salt, butter and a dash of nutmeg.

5. Fruit Salad Dressing: Place 3 tbsps. tart currant jelly in a small bowl and slowly add the juice of one lemon, beating with a rotary egg beater until smooth. Add juice of one orange, and one tablespoon each of honey and maraschino cherry juice. Mix well and chill before serving.

6. Quick Luncheon Dish: Make French toast (dip bread into egg-milk mixture, using 1 beaten egg to ½ cup milk) and put two sauteed slices together with sliced fresh cooked fruit; serve with hot syrup.

CANNING SUGAR RATION BOOSTED THREE POUNDS

A three-pound boost in the individual canning sugar ration, lifting it to 13 pounds for ths year, was announced last night by the Prices Board.

A board announcement, ascribing the increase to "continuing improvement in the prospects" for future sugar supplies, said three extra canning sugar coupons—Y-11, Y-12 and Y-13—are being declared valid immediately. Each coupon is good for one pound.

The three extra pounds, the announcement added, would give housewives the opportunity of canning or preserving a greater quantity of fruit this season.

At the same time, the board announced that regular sugar coupons S-26 to S-51 will expire Sept. 15.

The latest increase brings the individual ration, including canning and table sugar, to about 45 pounds for this year. There is o indication of abandonment of the ration in the near future.
