Mets Seek Win in Game Here Friday

Fans of the Morrisburg Mets Lacrosse Club have not had much to cheer about for their last few contests, apart from a thrilling 15-11 win over Cornwall Celtics last Friday night at the local arena. In other games played since our last report the Mets have lost twice to Ottawa Vikings, once to St. Regis, and once to Caughnawaga.

Several of the Mets players have left Morrisburg, seeking employment as tobacco pickers, despite the fact that the western Ontario tobacco acreage has been halved this year, and mighty few jobs are available. Consequently the team has been operating with a make-shift lineup, but some of the players who have not had the playing time this year to show their ability have surprised some fans with a super-effort.

This Friday night, the Mets will be hosts to the Caughnawaga team at 8:30 p.m. in the local Community Centre. The team is trying to wind up their regular schedule with a win. Your presence at the game could be a help to them.

On Wednesday night the Mets dropped a 22-10 decision to the Vikings in the Capital City. At press time the score sheet was not available to us.

by Lynne O'Brien

There has been lots of ball action in the past few days, so I'll only give the highlights of the games.

Katherine Alguire was the winning pitcher allowing 7 hits, and 4 strike outs. Lorraine Patterson, Sheila Bush, Gloria Holmes and Ruth Thompson were the losing pitchers, giving up 11 hits (1 a homer to Anna Verhoeven in the 3rd, with 1 on base) 9 walks and 3 strike outs.

Doug Boyd struck out 8, walked 3 and allowed 6 hits in the losing cause. Cardinal defeated Picky's, Syracuse, Verona to meet Brockville in the final game and went down to defeat 3-1.

Doug tied the game up when he stole home in the bottom of the 1st. At the end of the 2nd it was tied 2-2. In the 3rd inning, Tom Hare homered with Big Doug Casselman homering with 1 on to give Pioneers a 4-3 lead. In the 4th, Dennis Freeman and Dale Kingston homered to take a 5-4 lead. Big Doug allowed 1 hit, walked 1 and struck out 8. Skakum allowed 3 hits, 3 walks and 5 strike outs. Onstein walked 2 and struck out 3.

Domville met Cardinal in the final game. Domville grabbed a 2-0 lead in the 3rd inning. Mike Skakum's homer in the 4th with 1 on tied the game. The score remained tied after 7 innings and forced over time. Cardinal scored in the bottom of the 8th to win the game 3-2 and the tournament, for the 5th consecutive year.

Brinston will hold their Annual Tournament on August 8th and Williamsburg on August 15th, starting at 9:30 a.m.

The St. Lawrence Girls Softball League recently held a meeting in Morrisburg to decide playoffs. All 4 teams are in the playoffs, 1 and 3, 2 and 4, in a best of final semi-finals to start as soon as possible. 4 games were to be finished right away as 3rd and 4th place is still being effected by Iroquois and St. Regis. Morrisburg Jets hold 1st place, with Cornwall second. The winner of the playoffs is to receive the Beavers' Dentar Bur Trophy.

SUMMER CAMPS IN AREA ARE NOW IN FULL SWING

Finger painting, plaster of paris modeling, mislaid running shoes, embroidery, a day of rain, trips to the beach, tired leaders, ball games an Ottawa excursion, hot lunches, sing-song, happy kids: that was the story of the Seaway Community Services summer camp held during July at Dixon's Corners. The camp, which had a daily attendance average of sixty children, was led by ten local high schoolers. Visitors to the camp included Mr. Walter Hutchinson, who taught leather-craft, and Mr. Ray Lewis, who called a square dance. Mrs. Mary Moore and Mrs. Heather Butt from the Department of Agriculture introduced various crafts and the Maycourt Marionette Club of Ottawa supplied a puppet show. Heaping hot lunches were generously served by church groups from all of the surrounding towns. A similar camp is being held in August at Glen Becker and the SCS hopes that it enjoys similar success.

Former Registrar Died at Morewood

James Franklin Casselman, Registrar at the Dundas County Register Office, Morrisburg for seven years prior to 1943, died July 27. An area native, his home was in the Chesterville district. Why Stop Now

Before it's too late we must show our children that to make a country better, we don't have to wreck it, suggests the editor of the Ridgetown Dominion.

We send our children, who have been raised in a relatively sheltered environment, into the cities where they will find themselves in a wild, turned-on, protesting world. Dedicated anarchists and hate-mongers will try to twist the young, honest idealism with which our youth left home, into something dark and ugly. The ideas of Marx, Lenin, Hitler, Mao, Che Guevara and other revolutionaries will be presented to them.

"The way to make the country better is to destroy it", they will be told. And the brighter, the more idealistic the boy, the greater the incentive to persuade him to believe it.

If we tell them Canada is perfect, they'll not believe us. If we tell them they have things so much better than any former generation, they won't know what we are talking about. We can not order them to be patriotic.

The truth is that nobody can do much about our present or our future unless they understand and appreciate our past. If we teach them the good and the bad of our past and if they understand that those who have gone before have contributed much and that they themselves can add their contribution without destroying all that has gone before, we will give them something solid on which to build.

We disagree absolutely with those who claim that we must leave the young free to form their own beliefs and codes. We taught the child to talk and we chose the words he learned. We taught the child to walk and we chose safe places for him to walk. Why, with the spiritual values of godliness, respect for honest work, study, achievement, patriotism and service, should we adopt a "hands-off" policy and do nothing to turn the child's thinking to lofty themes? Some day, some one of them will say, "We didn't know, you never told us".

The Girdle-Makers Say Charge Lacks Foundation

The woman driver who drives by the seat of her pantyhose is safer on the highway than her sister who wears a girdle, according to a report in Marketing, the Canadian advertising news weekly magazine. It quotes an automobile manufacturer's survey which claims the girdle is "probably the most unsung menace on the road today".

The car maker's argument goes like this: "Discomfort from the girdle causes the woman to squirm, thus reducing concentration. And the pull from the garters tends to hoist her feet off the control pedals. To overcome this, she often pushes against the pull and ends u pgoing faster than she really intends to. On the other hand (or leg), weightless pantyhose is comfortable and allows complete concentration on the road ahead".

But a leading girdle manufacturer violently disagrees: "We've been making girdles for 30 years and have never heard this complaint. The evidence for this claim seems to have been simply plucked out of thin air. There's no foundation for these statements".

Naturally, the pantyhose makers disagree. They rebut: "The extra comfort women find in wearing pantyhose must make driving an easier and safer operation".

Getting back to the old grind is a grind this week, after spending the past week lazing on the shores of Sturgeon Lake in Kawartha country. The weather was fine, the roads fast, the fish and the mosquitoes were equally hungry.

"Let's brush up on some fundamentals. This is baseball!"

The Second Forty . . .

(A Forum About Mature Women)

By: Margaret Brookfield

BACKACHE

Dear Miss Brookfield:

I suffer from backaches and pains in the legs. I am 52. Some friends say these aches are common after the "change". Is this true? B.L.

Dear B.L.:

The best advice we can offer was published in the Journal of the American Medical Women's Association and entitled: "A Doctor Talks About Menopause." The author, Dr. Eva F. Dodge, had this to say about the aches and pains you describe: "There are many causes for pain in the back and legs of women, no matter what their age. In some women, this is due to lack of hormones. If you develop these symptoms, you should discuss them with your physician. He will be able to determine the cause of your difficulty."

40-Plus And In Love

Dear Miss Brookfield:

The reader from Texas who complained about a mature couple who act like lovebirds in public sounds jealous. Maybe if she had a little love in her life she wouldn't be spending her time watching and criticizing others. I am 50 and a widow. I say more power to that "old pair." At least they aren't afraid to show their love. A.R.

Dear Miss Brookfield:

I agree wholeheartedly with the Texas reader's reaction to a mature couple who persist in acting like a pair of romantic teenagers in public. I know a couple whose behavior is similar and I find them embarrassing and silly. R.L.

Dear Readers:

Caught in the middle, we'll weasel out of this argument with a flat statement: if you find it silly; ignore it; if you find it romantic, enjoy it.

Walk for Health

Dear Miss Brookfield:

When I told my husband I wanted to buy exercise equipment to lose some weight, he suggested daily walks, as a healthy and inexpensive form of exercise. I say walking increases the appetite. Isn't this true?

J.L.

Dear J.L.:

No, not according to all authorities. An all-day hike may give you a hearty appetite but an hour's walk will not, says Ruth Goode, co-author with Aaron Sussman of "The Magic of Walking." If you tend to over-eat because of boredom or tension, walking will help cure the first and also relieve the second.

"Specialists in just about every field recommend walking as the best exercise," says Ruth Goode. These include heart and chest specialists and physical fitness experts.

She suggests walking at a comfortable pace of three miles an hour. But remember to calculate the return trip. You can start with short walks and increase the distance gradually. A mile-long walk, says the author, is not such a long distance. If you walk for 10 minutes and return, you have walked a mile during that 20-minute period. One last word: just remember to dress comfortably.

A hard-working lot

I'm not one of those people who get all upset every year when the wire services carry the news that doctors in Canada average $28,000 income a year.

Maybe nobody else is bothered either, except politicians feeling they can make a little hay in the soak-the-rich line. Most people, I think, are so glad to have a doctor when they need one that if he can make a good living at it — well, fine.

I imagine, too, that the doctors who pull that average away up are specialists in big city hospitals, while my acquaintanceship runs a lot more to general practitioners, especially in the country.

In fact, once when a baby girl was badly burned by a coal-oil lamp that fell into her crib in a farmhouse and set her bed clothes on fire, I was drafted by our doctor to drive 85 miles to a hospital. This was the nearest one with the kind of equipment he thought was needed and he couldn't drive and look after the poor little girl and her parents along the way. I made it in not much over an hour, but the little girl died anyway. I won't forget the ride home, just the two of us. And don't ever tell me that doctors don't suffer.

Another thing, they have to be sort of pillars of the community, or the word gets around pretty fast. I remember being in one doctor's waiting room in the country when he had an old lady in his office. She was a wraith-like teetotaller who came in about once a month to tell him about the things that made her go bump in the night. The doctor was giving her his usual rapt attention when the phone rang.

On the other end was a man we both knew. He was obviously about half-snapped. His voice could be heard right out into the waiting room as he commanded: "Hey Doc, come over and have a drink!"

In the hush that followed, everybody in the waiting room could hear the doctor say that he couldn't leave right now. Then he hung up the phone and looked blandly at the outraged old girl across the desk, who had heard it all. "Friend of mine just brought in a new well," he said gently, and I don't think she ever guessed otherwise.

This same one had a good way to collect overdue bills. He discovered it by mistake. A patient owed him $40 and had for years. But one time when the semi-annual statements went out there was a typing error, and the bill was listed as $50. About an hour after the post office opened the next morning the man came in and plunked down $40. "Take it or leave it!" he said angrily, and steamed out — leaving the doctor with a little insight into human nature that he has used judiciously since.

I remember another one, dead now. One snowy night on a back-roads call he had to walk the last half-mile along the drifted road to where a pretty shiftless couple lived with several kids. He delivered the newest claimant to the baby bonus — and then found that no preparations of any kind had been made: no bed, clothing, or anything.

If you think he accepted this situation with gentle smiles, you are wrong. He bawled the living daylights out of the mother and father. The father later told some of his cronies that it was a highlight in his lifetime of listening to plain and fancy swearing.

While the old doc spoke, however, he was peeling down to his long flannel underwear. This he took off and tore into pieces. In these he wrapped the baby, and fixed a little bed for her. Then he left.

Do they come like that any more? I suspect, one way or another, that they do.

Gold Medalists

No Great Loss

(Wingham Advance-Times)

The decision of the cigarette companies to eliminate the prize offerings in their merchandise is a wise one. Although there were a few lucky winners of cash prizes or motorcycles, etc., they must indeed have been few and far between.

Although the offer of lucky tickets in cigarette packages sounds on the surface like legitimate advertising, it is, in reality, no such thing. It is plain, old-fashioned bribery. The chance of winning a valuable prize does not in any way enhance the product. Nor does it provide any useful information to the buyer. The same thing is true of many other so-called advertising stunts, trading stamps being a prime example.

There has been a lot of talk in recent years about advertising and its possible evils. Sound advertising is an easily justified service to the buying public. If advertising is designed and carried out to do its job properly it must provide information about a product which assists the buyer to spend his money wisely and receive full value. Advertising should tell buyers where they can purchase a given product, if possible, the nature of the item in question and point out sound reasons why it should be selected for purchase.

The singing commercials and the emotion-charged voices of the highly-paid announcers often betray the purchaser into spending his money for a product that he really knows nothing about. He has been brain-washed into buying and has never been told anything at all about why he should buy.

It is to be hoped that a lot more gimmick-selling practices will go the same route as the cigarette cards.

Our Most Privileged Pensioners

(AN EDITORIAL IN THE GLENGARRY NEWS)

Members of Parliament, now at home for the summer holidays, have yet to get that 25 per cent increase in take-home pay that was almost legislated this spring. When the fight against inflation demanded a ceiling of six per cent on wage increases and profits the government was made to see what a bad example it was setting. And so a committee of Parliament is even now studying the matter of pay increases that would have raised the federal Members' indemnity from $18,000 to $24,000 a year.

That Parliamentary Committee can be expected to give a favorable decision when the time is more opportune. Stymied by circumstances beyond their control, inflation, Members of the Commons will have to make do with their paltry $18,000 for the present. But their future well-being is practically assured by means of the generous pension plan they voted themselves and all Parliamentarians to follow them.

Stanley Knowles of the NDP describes it as Canada's first guaranteed annual income plan, and the new pensions for MPs are particularly provident for the young politician who can win two elections on the federal scene. Once re-elected, he and his family will be generously endowed for life from the public purse.

A Member of Parliament need only serve in the Commons for six years before becoming eligible for a pension under the revised plan and it is payable immediately upon retirement or defeat, regardless of age. A Canadian may now be elected to the House of Commons as early as his or her 18th birthday, and so there is the possibility of an MP resigning from Parliament on one's 24th birthday and immediately starting to draw a pension of $3,780 per year or $315 a month, for the remainder of one's life.

That young Member, given normal life expectancy, would draw pensions totalling $173,880 in return for premium payments of $8,100.

Premiums and benefits have both been increased under the new pension plan. Total premium each year will now be $1,350, entitling the MP to a pension of $6,300 per year after ten years and the maximum $13,500 after 25 years in the Commons. Cabinet Ministers and others drawing additional pay may contribute more to the fund per year and qualify earlier for the maximum pension benefits.

Pensions are provided as well, for the relict and children of an MP or ex-MP and the premiums paid to the fund by a person who fails to complete six years in Parliament are totally refundable.

Under terms of this new pension plan, anyone who has been elected twice to Ottawa, his service encompassing at least six years, is assured a nice income for life, as is his widow unless she remarries. Payments at the new rate can be retroactive to April 1963 and so most members of the present Commons are in a position to qualify for the new pension even though they do not win re-election in the next federal vote.

The plan is not actuarially sound and it infringes the government rules for pension plans approved for all other Canadians. The permitted minimum age is 55 years for drawing full benefits under the usual plan. Parliamentarians will be eligible at 24 and there is an escalation clause to offset the effects of inflation. For an additional annual premium of ½ percent benefits will be geared to the dollar's purchasing power.

This pension fund is not designed to be self-sustaining and it is safe to say increasing millions of dollars in taxes will be needed a decade or two hence to make the many monthly payments to people who have lingered awhile in the Commons and gone on to other fields. The annual premiums will be more than met by those increases MPs are ready to vote themselves just as soon as restrictions on wage increases are lifted.

So generous are the terms of this Parliamentary pension plan that we suspect the public service in Ottawa is but preparing the way for more munificent retirement income for the bureaucrats.

Doris Clark

Nix on double-trouble

DEAR DORIS — I started hanging around with a girl in my class who was real nice. Our friendship lasted all year. What I thought was very strange was that she never asked me to her house.

Then I found out why. Her father is a bootlegger, and two of her brothers are in jail. After I told her it didn't matter, I was asked to her house often. All her family are very nice.

When my father found out I was going there, he said if I ever went back he'd beat me so I'd go in the hospital. I tried to tell him that nothing went on there, but he just won't listen.

I'm 18 and I know right from wrong. How can I make him understand that nothing goes on there?

Eighteen

DEAR EIGHTEEN — With a background of jail sentences and a current bootlegging business, I'd pay attention to father. There may be plenty going on undercover. Why wouldn't they be pleasant with you?

Keep your girl-friend if you like, but stay away from double-trouble. Don't visit her at her home.

DEAR DORIS — As social convener of our Home and School, it will be my duty to introduce the honored guest who will be opening the tea.

How do I start? What do I say about the person? A lot of the people at the tea personally know the lady, and she is very jolly.

Convener

DEAR CONVENER — Arm yourself with some colorful details by having a telephone conversation with your guest ahead of time.

Your remarks might go something like this, using facts that apply:

"Ladies: For the benefit of you who are not yet acquainted with our delightful guest, Mrs. Smith is the mother of four grown children, taught school for a number of years here and founded this Home and School Branch.

"She has been a mainstay of Home and School these many years. We have enjoyed her quick wit and now have the privilege of enjoying her again as she does us the honor of opening our tea. Mrs. Smith, the floor is yours!"

DEAR DORIS — I want to have a seven-year-old flower girl, but we don't have a ring-bearer. Could she go down the aisle alone, or should we get an older usher for her?

Also, if the bride's father does not give her away, who should — brother, uncle or cousin?

Bride-To-Be

DEAR BRIDE-TO-BE — No need for a ring-bearer. Many dainty little flower girls trip down the aisle on their own and enjoy the spotlight.

If the father doesn't want to give his daughter away — and it is a great pity for him to pass up this honor for whatever reason — another male relative or family friend may do so. Preferably someone older.

Confidential to Mike — No rule says you have to kiss a girl if you take her out more than twice. Kissing is at its best as an expression of affection when you get to know a person well. Believe it or not, most girls are relieved when they find that a boy enjoys their company and doesn't demand kisses in return.

Necking is kissing from the neck up. Petting involves more intimate caresses; arouses dangerous emotions. French kissing involves the tongue as well as the lips, and should be avoided.

DEPARTMENT OF LANDS AND FORESTS

Weekly Report

HUNTING PREPARATIONS

To many, August may seem a little too early to make preparation for your fall hunting, but for those who do not hold a Hunting Licence there is no better time.

All perons should have either (a) a previous hunting licence or (b) a hunting licence certificate issued by the Department of Lands and Forests when they wish to purchase a hunting licence this fall.

During 1969, 1,824 persons made application to Kemptville for hunting licence examinations. Even though examinations were scheduled during each month, with the exception of July 1,159 applications were received and processed during September and October. With a heavy influx of applications being received many persons were scheduled for examinations two to three weeks after submitting their applications, thus causing many persons to miss the opening week of the small game season.

Persons under 20 years of age are required to attend a Hunter Safety Training Course conducted by a qualified instructor before applying for an examination. Instructors are available throughout the district. Please contact your local Lands and Forests office for the names of Instructors in your area.

Persons having lost their previous licence should start now to make inquiries on how to make application to verify the purchase of that licence.

No purchase of a hunting licence prior to 1968 can be verified by the Central Licence Bureau of the Department of Lands and Forests in Toronto.

A schedule of Hunting Licence Examinations has been published for the month of August.

For the information of persons requiring hunter safety training in Ottawa a course will be conducted at the R.A. Centre, 2451 Riverside Drive, Ottawa, on August 19th, 20th and 21st. Registration at 7:30 p.m. on the 19th.

Prepare now—avoid the rush!

PETS IN PROVINCIAL PARKS

Although park regulations permit park users to bring their pets into a Provincial Park there are certain restrictions which pet owners should be aware of as follows:

Every person using the campground or campisite in a provincial park shall at all times maintain the area in a clean and sanitary condition and when vacating the property shall restore such campground or campsite as nearly as possible to its natural condition.

No person shall permit a horse, dog, or other animal to be at large in a provincial park.

A dog or other animal on a leash exceeding six feet in length is deemed to be at large.

No person shall permit a horse, dog, or other animal, whether on a leash or not, to be in any waters of a provincial park operated by the superintendent as a swimming area, or upon any part of the beach adjacent thereto.

Except in an area operated by the superintendent for the purpose no person shall drive, walk or ride a horst, pony or other like animal in a provincial park.

The co-operation of pet owners will greatly assist in ensuring the enoyment of the area by all.

FIRE AND RECREATION

The holiday season is now in full swing and the mass evodus from cities and towns is taking place. People are off to cottages and summer resorts or on the roads with trailers and camp gear seeking the more remote areas for peace and quiet. Unfortunately, with all of this there is the ever present danger of fire. One careless camper neglecting to extinguish his campfire can ruin hundreds of acres of wood land, destroying not only the trees that may have taken half a century to grow but also the animal and plant life that inhabited the area.

There are various causes for forest fires under the headings of Lightning, Recreation, Resident, etc but during the holiday season recreation is usually the Number one cause.

Remember — only you can prevent forest fires. Drown your campfires, break your matches and crush out your cigarettes.

ONE-HALF MILLION EXPANSION FOR SM. FALLS PLANT

R. Patterson McLean, president, InterRoyal Corporation Limited, has announced the expansion of the manufacturing facility in Smiths Falls, Ontario.

A start has been initiated for immediate construction of approximately 50,000 square feet of additional manufacturing space at a value of approximately $400,000.00

"We feel this expansion in the Smiths Falls area is indicative of our confidence in the future," said Mr. McLean. "It exhibits our faith in the Canadian economy and is in line with the total expanding philosophy of the InterRoyal Corporation."

The new InterRoyal construction plans for Smiths Falls will add valuable manufacturing space to the present 100,000 square feet in that plant. When completed it will give InterRoyal a total manufacturing area of over one half million square feet in Canada.

InterRoyal manufactures a complete line of furniture for the office, health-care and educational fields. It also manufactures industrial storage and library shelving.

The Corporation enjoys Canadian manufacturing facilities in Galt, Smiths Falls, Ontario and St. Jean, Quebec. The Canadian head office is in Galt, Ontario.

An international corporation, InterRoyal enjoys plants and sales facilities throughout North America. Current expansion plans are also taking the Corporation into Puerto Rico and Western Europe.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor, Morrisburg Leader,
Morrisburg, Ontario.

Dear Sir — I would like to draw the attention of the local Council to the matter of Victoria Street.

I believe that it is nearly nine months ago that the trees were cut down on this street, all being Elms, and all nearly dead, it was time to cut them. But the fact remains that they were also cut on Ottawa Street, and the stumps removed.

I was just wondering where the taxes were derived from on the west side of Ottawa Street, from where these thees were removed. On the other hand, maybe there are no taxes paid on Victoria St., and the stumps can remain; and trees planted in every other part of town where the taxes are paid.

I know the mothers on Victoria St. will be real proud of the council if they come bulldozing down the street during the fall rains; there shouldn't be too much mud to mop up.

Thanking you. Mr. Editor for the space in your paper. Yours truly,
GORDON McKOY,
Victoria St., Morrisburg.

CODA LAUNCHES PUBLIC RELATIONS CAMPAIGN

The Council on Drug Abuse (CODA) has just launched its public information program by equipping more than 600 pharmacies across Ontario as Drug Information Centres. Frank C. Buckley, CODA president said, "the public will be able to pick up free pamphlets from display racks on drugs most commonly abused.

"Initially, our literature campaign will be centred in drug stores and drug departments of department stores. Later the pamphlets will be given national distribution. The first group of pamphlets to be distributed cover Stimulants, Solvents, Narcotics and a Drug Reference Chart. There are eight different pamphlets in all with Depressants, Drugs and the Law, Hallucinogens and Drug Abuse — A Guide For Parents, to be distributed shortly. We feel that Pharmacists, because of their knowledge of drugs, are a key group to help inaugurate our drug information campaign." Mr. Buckley said.

"A comprehensive promotional campaign will support the pamphlet program", Mr. Buckley said "including TV, radio, transit cards, outdoor billboards, newspaper and magazine advertisements and hang up posters." Additional display material including "Do You Know What You're Doing?" buttons, window banners and easel cards is being made available to pharmacists enrolled in the program.

"Drug Abuse is a growing social phenomenon affecting all levels in the community. The drug scene is surrounded by rumours and half truths. Basic factual information is desperately needed. If we can make people more knowledgeable about drugs and their abuse, then intelligent dialogue can follow", Mr. Buckley said.

Using the theme, "Do You Know What You're Doing?", the CODA information program presents known facts without preaching or moralizing. CODA pamphlet racks will be equipped with special decals showing telephone numbers for emergency medical assistance and further information, Mr. Buckley noted.

Rounding out an active summer agenda, CODA will present two projects of far-reaching significance: The International Symposium on Drug Abuse at the Ontario Science Centre. Aug. 17-19 and the pavilion "Man and His Drugs", in the Queen Elizabeth building during the Canadian National Exhibition, Aug. 20 to Sept. 7.

CODA is a voluntary, non-profit, national association of concerned Canadians officially inaugurated in November 1969 to do something about the problem of drug abuse.

TILE DRAINAGE ACT BENEFITS FARMERS

The Tile Drainage Act is a very valuable piece of legislation in promoting land drainage in Ontario, says Professor Ross Irwin, School of Engineering, University of Guelph.

Under this Act a farmer is able to borrow, at low interest, three quarters of the cost of installing tile drains on his farm. Many people in the past have benefited from this Act, says Professor Irwin.

From 1965 to 1969, the number of loans granted under the Act increased from 864 to 1,491, and the total number of dollars loaned more than doubled from $1.8 million to over 4 million per year. This has provided improved drainage on about 75,000 acres of land each year

The cost of installing tile drainage has increased from 14.1 cents per foot in 1965 to 19.6 cents per foot in 1969. The average loan made last year was $2,900, which is up from $2,000 in 1965, and is a reflection of the increased sity of Guelph.

SALES BY DOMINION SHOW NOOD GAIN

Sales of Dominion Stores Ltd. rose 10 per cent to a record $171,-304,124 in the first quarter ended June 20, 1970. Net earnings of $2,-235,543 (27 cents a share) were eight percent below $2,438,311 (30 cents) last year due mainly to major cost increases, intensified competition and an increasing degree of market saturation. Profit per sales dollar was 1.32 cents against 1.57 cents.

Rising taxation and inflation have brought in their wake major cost increases, Thomas G. McCormack, president, reports. The Company is more constrained than many other businesses from passing higher costs along to customers. It has to vie strongly for new store locations and there are few areas where a competitor is not available to provide strong competition.

There were 397 stores at June 20 compared with 390 a year ago.

Working capital was $17,145,000 at June 20 compared with $17,336,-000 at March 21 and -18,891,000 a year ago. Capital expenditures totalled 02,826,000 and dividend payments 71,454,000 (18 cents) during the quarter under review.

NOW HEAR THIS

by Lorna Rogers

Twenty years is a long time in the life of a radio show. Believe it or not, this is the 20th anniversary of the Shelburne Old Time Fiddlers' Contest, and the CBC radio broadcast of the finals on August 8. The Contest, co-founded by the CBC and the Shelburne Rotary Club in 1951, has grown so big that a month before all the seats had been sold, leaving nothing but SRO for those patient souls who line up outside. At one point the organizers were considering closed circuit TV to take care of the overflow. Graham Townsend, 28, of Toronto, is trying for a three-time win. 'Cousin Bill" Bessey is back for his fifth year as emcee. The Rhythm Pals and Al Cherny (grand champ, 1960-61) of The Tommy Hunter Show, and comic Vince Mountford complete the guest line-up.

For centuries people have been fascinated by the study and practice of the occult, but, mindful of the Salem witch-hunts and such, they've usually been very secretive about it. Suddenly witchcraft is having a resurgence, especially in England and in California. What's the reason for this renewed interest in an ancient art? On August 9, Summer Supplement takes a not too-serious look at witchcraft, offers a few spells, and interviews a man who gave a very popular night course on black magic.

Like to learn Eskimo? CBC's Northern Service is now offering a series of programs on Eskimo For Beginners, featuring vocabulary-building exercises and examples of Eskimo cultural expression through music, song and story.

As the city more and more encroaches on rural areas, swallowing up farmland and in many cases forcing the farmer to move into urban areas, city-dwellers are wistfully eying the country as an escape from the growing rat race. More and more are buying up farms in an effort to get back to the land even if it's just for summer weekends. Concern, August 12, interviews a group of city people who give their reasons for seeking the peace and quiet of farm life. As well, some old-time farmers give their reactions to the newcomers.

Art is an imitation of life. This is especially true of the growing theatre of protest and conspiracy, a theatre attempting to be in tune with our troubled times. An example of Chicago 70, a Toronto Workshop Theatre production which had successful runs both in Toronto and in New York. It was based on the trial of the Chicago seven, accused of conspiracy during the demonstrations of the Democratic Convention in Chicago. On August 12, Ideas Network presents a documentary by Paulette Jiles with Abby Hoffman, one of the Chicago conspirators and William Kunstler lawyer for the Chicago seven. Paul Levine and David Bakan of York University act as commentators.

Who's for Hughes?

OTTAWA — By the end of this month the Cabinet will probably have come up with a decision on who will build a communications satellite for Canada — but considerable political blood will have flowed during the decision-making.

I'm betting the Government will give the nod to Hughes Aviation of California as prime contractor for the satellite, thus providing Communications Minister Eric Kierans with his first concrete public victory in a Cabinet disagreement.

Tremendous lobby pressures have been exerted on the Government by the Canadian electronics and aerospace industry to let RCA of Canada mastermind the Telesat project, although that company's several bids have all been far more costly than the Hughes' offer.

Mr. Kierans' success in resisting the pressure will depend largely on his ability to sell Hughes on the idea of dishing out as much sub-contract work as possible to Canadian companies, and on his ability to convince Cabinet that long-term Canadian communications research is more important than grandstanding for votes.

Both David Golden, president of Telesat, and Mr. Kierans claim that the first Canadian communications satellite will be unique. We'll be the first in the world with such a commercial venture, and communications satellites which follow will be of a more sophisticated type.

Hence there is only short-term value in having maximum work on the satellite done in Canada. Hughes has offered to place the satellite in orbit, guaranteeing it against all risks, for $28 million.

To have RCA do the job, with 65 per cent Canadian content, would cost twice as much and take half a year longer.

Mr. Kierans feels the extra money would be better spent on research in Canada to perfect the next generation of satellites — and on developing a Canadian East-West computer data system.

There are several reasons for believing that Mr. Kierans has made the right choice and that the Cabinet will back him — some of them practical business reasons; some of them involving political nuances.

The Crown corporation, Telesat, has decided firmly that Hughes should build the satellite. If Telesat management's first major decision is reversed by Cabinet, a good portion of the board of directors — including Mr. Golden — would likely resign.

Telesat directors are sure their company would not be economically viable with the more expensive RCA proposal, and their financial advisers have told them it would be impossible to raise funds if RCA gets the contract under terms of their latest offer.

If the Telesat recommendation is reversed by Cabinet, we'll likely see a resignation, too, from Mr. Kierans. That's how deeply committed he is to following the advice of Telesat's directors.

And if Mr. Kierans leaves the Cabinet, he won't do so quietly, as did Paul Hellyer last year.

He will talk and he will continue to fight; for Mr. Kierans is something of a Don Quixote.

It boils down to a choice of Canada having a communications satellite — built by Hughes primarily in the U.S. — or not having a communications satellite at all, as I see it.

Of course, there are those in the Cabinet who disagree, or there wouldn't be all the fuss over making this decision.

Marriage Natures Neurosis Says Humorist

WIVES MELLOW WITH AGE, AFTER 75

The author of a humorous book has a bit of advice for men who want to avoid marrying a neurotic woman: stay single.

Stephen Baker, author of "How To Live With a Neurotic Wife", was asked to estimate the number of wives who can be categorized as neurotic. He said (hopefully, tongue in-cheek): "I would say approximately all of them." Age makes no difference, he added. All wives are neurotic, whether young, old or in-between. But he does offer some hope to harried husbands. "After 75, they calm down," he predicted.

His wife, a tall, willowly blonde, who works as a high-fashion model suggested a sequel to his book. Like a good husband, he has taken her advice. Soon to be published is: "How To Live With A Neurotic Husband."

This book will show that Mr. Baker is convinced that marriage is a neurosis-ridden state. Asked how many husbands were neurotic, he said: "I would say about 100 percent."

Truth in Humor

Emphasizing that his book "is supposed to amuse people," he admits, however, that "it gets close to the truth . . . Many people told me that they recognized their own wives in this book. And when you get that close to truth, some people do take the book seriously. But that really wasn't the intent. This book was written for laughs."

A few samples of his humor follow:

—In a chapter entitled: "Sharing The Bedroom With A Neurotic Wife," he writes: "To her, a bed is at once a playground, an analyst's couch, a soap box, a camping ground, an athletic field, and a place to hold meetings with her as the Main Speaker."

—In another chapter, dealing with the neurotic wife at home, he has this to say: "The mark of a good wife is that she keeps looking for ways to improve the appearance of a home. Furniture may be rearranged several times a year —the exercise help husband's physical condition."

—A chapter on conversational gambits includes this gem: "Women also have a knack for starting a conversation by means of thought provoking statements such as:

I have a headache.
I have a splitting headache.
How come you don't have a headache?
Talk to me, Alfred.
I only wish I had you job.
You don't understand women.
You think sex is everything.
Do you think I'm sexy?"

Mr. Baker said the most popular chapter seems to be the last, entitled: "How To Get Rid Of A Neurotic Wife." He explores everything rom provocation ("That girdle does wonders for your figure") to therapy. About the latter, he writes: "A marriage counselor may save your marriage. But that is exactly what you are trying to avoid." Or: "Generally speaking, a psychoanalyst — if you can afford him — is more sympathetic to your plight, for he probably has problems with his own wife."

Other Books

Among the other books Mr. Baker has written in his spare time (he is the president of his own advertising agency) is: "How To Live With A Neurotic Dog." Again, this is a humorous book. "Curiously enough, most people take the book too seriously and I don't know why said the author. "It was reviewed, for example, in many magazines. But the funniest review appeared, of all places, in a magazine for psychologists. They reviewed it with a spirit of scholarship and great seriousness. It didn't get to them that this book is not for real."

His wife, Oleda Baker, co-author, with her husband, of "The New York Model's Diet Book," claims that marriage has made her more interesting (her husband encouraged her to pursue a career and write a book) but also neurotic.

"Actually," said her husband, wit a smile, "she is a perfectly normal neurotic. I want to put it on record because she's here and I'll never hear the end of it."

Plenty of CBC Activity at This Year's "Ex"

From August 21 to August 30, Ottawa's Lansdowne Park swings with the sounds of the Central Canada Exhibition and joining the CCEA in the ten-day revelry will be the CBC stations — CBO, CBOT — Channel 4 and CBO-FM.

In changing from the static, information display of the past few years, CBC Ottawa will take over a major portion of the Civic Centre Arena with a full scale stage where fashion shows, 'live' CBC radio and television programs will be produced. In another portion of the arena the CBC is mounting a magnificent display of colorful costumes used in major television productions in Montreal. And, for the amateur and professional make-up artist, arrangements are being made to have a special area set aside to show what is involved when it comes to applying television and stage make-up.

As well as these good things to look at, the producers of this year's CBC participation at the Ex plan on keeping things jumping with twice daily presentations by CBOTs "Hi Diddle Day" puppets; a performance by the M.R.Q. rock group on weekends, The Gerry Hoelke Quintet with special guest-singer Judy Landers; 'live' daily broadcasts by CBO Radio's "Now . . . Just Listen" program; nightly visits from Charlotte Gobeil of Channel 4's "This Day Tonight"; another Ottawa rock-group "Five In The Morning" performing 'week-nights'; the production of two half hour exhibition specials to be telecast on CBOT and CBOFT; and the introduction of a new aggregation on the Ottawa musical scene — The Ottawa High School Band — a dance band group under the direction of conductor-arranger Ron Milne.

All of these CBC Ottawa sponsored activities will be taking place daily from the start of Ottawa's Exhibition on August 21 thru the closing date August 30, in the Civic Centre Arena.

Your most useful servant can cripple or kill you.

Tractors, combines, balers, corn pickers and other machines have made farmers much more efficient.

But the increasing use of machinery has been paralleled by a frightening increase in farm accidents.

- More Canadians are killed in farming than in any other single industry.
- The accident rate on farms is 20% above the national average.
- Accidental deaths involving farm machines have doubled over the last 10 years.
- 20% of all persons killed in farm accidents are under the age of 10.

But machines do not cause accidents. Farmers do.

- Less than 5% of farm accidents are caused by mechanical failure.
- More than 93% are caused by carelessness.

A thoughtless act, refusal to use safety features like tractor roll bars and power take-off shields, and allowing children to operate, ride on or play near machinery are among the principal causes of farm accidents.

July 25th to 31st is Farm Safety Week and your Workmen's Compensation Board urges you to farm safely this week and every week.

Bobby Orr the businessman

ORILLIA, Ont. — This sleepy town that Stephen Leacock made famous comes alive each summer as thousands of cottagers make their weekly trek to town for groceries and supplies.

Until a few years ago, this was Orillia's biggest single industry and numerous resorts, camps and motels sprung up on the shores of neighboring Lake Simcoe and Lake Couchiching.

Some of the resorts, unfortunately, couldn't make it as times toughened. As a result, a $250,000 business was born.

The Bobby Orr-Mike Walton Sport Camp found a home in just such a resort, and any day this summer hundreds of boys can be seen playing hockey under the direction of every boy's hero, Robert Orr.

Make no mistake about these hockey camps; they are big business. And they are here to stay.

But the one that operates on a truly big-league basis is the Walton-Orr, 150-acre spread on the east side of Lake Couchiching. There are many competitors, but the biggest thing this camp has going for it is the presence of Orr.

The hero of Boston Bruins' drive to the Stanley Cup has not simply put his name on the enterprise. This is his summer home for 10 weeks and Orr commutes from here to his limited summer personal appearances.

"Unless Bobby is at the camp, boys leave here feeling they've been cheated," said Bill Watters, camp director. "Last year, out of 10 weeks, Bobby only missed three days, and never two days in a row."

While cottagers are still sleeping, Orr can be found at centre ice in the arena, surrounded by 30 bright-eyed youngsters, aged seven to 14.

He is one of 10 "name" players on hand to demonstrate the finer points of the game. And he takes his turn at the 6 a.m. session, walking the few yards from his new air-conditioned house trailer located behind the shuffleboard and table tennis sets.

A visit to the Orr-Walton camp is an eye-opener for any parent. My 10-year-old started his campaign for hockey camp in December, and despite a dismal season that saw his team eliminated in the semi-finals, 14-1, the interest remained.

"Don't worry if he can't skate very well," advised Watters. "This is a sports camp, not just hockey. Everyone has a good time."

That's why we found ourselves in line one Sunday at the converted hotel with the attached hockey arena.

"What part of the States are you from?" one father asked while puffing on a cigar.

Apparently, he found it hard to believe that Canadians dig this type of summer, too.

Five of the six people in line ahead of me were from the Boston area, the man behind from New York.

"Approximately 50 per cent of the 1,650 boys who will be at the camp this summer are from the United States," said Bob Haggert, director of the camp. "One seven-year-old flew in from California."

With a staff of 45 and an investment of $500,000 (the powerboats and canoes alone cost $25,000), Orr - Walton Sport Camps expect to be around for some time.

This is their second year of operation and their second complete sellout. For $128.50 per week, including tax, a boy participates in 10 sports daily — baseball, soccer, football, swimming, canoeing, water skiing, basketball, lacrosse, golf, softball are among the other sports.

As long as Bobby Orr stays healthy, the camp will soon be taking in $400,000 annually in fees. A mile-long stretch of undeveloped shoreline is owned by the camp and expansion plans call for increasing the capacity to 3,000 by 1972.

Young Mr. Orr will never need a tag day!
