WHO WOULDN'T CHEER?—The cheerleading corps at Glengarry District High School will be out there cheering on the junior footballers Friday and that should prove potent enough to bring victory. The girls earned fourth place among 26 Eastern Ontario school corps which competed at Ottawa recently.

Facilities Taxed As Hundreds Turned Out To Give Blood At Friday's Red Cross Clinic

Life-giving blood flowed out at Friday's blood donor clinic at a rate that sent astounded Red Cross personnel rushing back to Ottawa for additional supplies.

The blood bank is richer by 440 pints of blood, many of them from first-time donors. Another 63 volunteers were rejected for medical reasons and more than one hundred other would-be donors had to leave the long line-up because of the time factor.

"Unbelievable," bubbled Miss Frances Brison nurse in charge of the Red Cross mobile unit. "We hold clinics all around Ottawa for a radius of 60 miles and more but this is fantastic. It's like the Boxing Day clinic in Ottawa."

Miss Brison said they had hoped to collect 150 pints of blood. "We'll never forget Glengarry," she happily concluded. As the last intravenous needle was inserted at 10:30 p.m. her weary staff agreed.

Twenty-four cots had been set up in a gym at Glengarry District High School and the mobile unit consisted of two Red Cross nurses, eight clinical assistants and three drivers.

Philip Lloyd, chairman for the campaign, stated he was overwhelmed by the response of the community. "Everyone was so helpful. There were Cameron McCormick and his caretaking staff here at the school. They put in a lot of time getting the gym ready. The ladies of the hospital auxiliary have been here all day helping. Jim Baker, Gilbert Sauve and Leopold Seguin have visited the industries, stores and service clubs. Mrs. Bernice Barlow of our staff organized all the volunteers, and as for our students, well!"

When first asked to help at the clinic so many students volunteered that names had to be drawn from a hat. Seventy-six students gave blood out of a possible age group of 150. Williamstown's Char-Lan and Maxville High School each sent 10 donors. GDHS staff members to the number of 26 gave blood. The students helped set up the cots and equipment, made and served coffee and cold drinks, cared for small children, stayed with donors, typed cards and helped clean up afterwards.

No particular group stood out among the donors. Housewives, office workers, farmers, industrial workers, nuns, professional workers, young people, all gave blood.

Mr. Lloyd felt running the Red Cross fund campaign and the blood donor's clinic simultaneously had helped a great deal. Each canvasser was asked to draw attention to the need for blood and when the clinic would be held. The results of the fund campaign are not complete, but the tremendous success of the blood donor clinic speaks highly for the responsibility and generosity of Glengarryans, he added.

Sewer Contract May Be Let

Town council will probably let the contract at next Tuesday's meeting for water and sewer services on Jean St., West Boundary Road and Lochiel St. West. Tenders were called in early summer for the contract but the project had been delayed by the Department of Municipal Affairs.

The result of that hearing was announced last week when council approved approval and was informed that the hearing had established that council was within its jurisdiction in proceeding on the project.

The municipality was using the same system for grant petitions for local improvement by-laws as it has done in the past eight years, the hearing found.

The project is to cost some $44,000 of which the town's share is some $21,000.

It is possible the project could proceed under a winter work plan.

Townships Asked To Pay In Ratio To Use

Each of the neighboring townships is to be asked to pay toward the cost of the minor hockey program here, according to the involvement of residents of each municipality.

At a meeting of the Recreation Committee last week it was decided to estimate the actual cost of ice time per child and bill each township according to the number of its residents participating. Members of town council will approach each council to explain the procedure and ask its approval.

Revenue of the Junior B Glens hockey team is to be divided with 70 per cent going to the team and 30 per cent to the arena. The arena will also get 30 per cent of revenue from the sale of booster tickets.

Balloon Travelled Far And Fast

Back in September Edward Hunter of Maxville, picked up a balloon from the ditch along the side road west of Maxville. It had been released the day before from Central Arena, Burlington, Ont., as part of their Jaycees Home Show.

The attached card was returned to Burlington and Mr. Hunter has received word that balloon No. 19 had travelled over 300 miles in approximately 24 hours and had covered by far the farthest of 349 balloons that had been released; 52 tags were returned.

A six-year-old Burlington boy who had bought ticket No. 19 for 50 cents won a bike complete with banana seat and monkey bars. He is Brendan Johnson of Morley Crescent. Mr. Hunter received a dish of blue mountain pottery.

Privy On Roof Special Prank

Halloween was enjoyably quiet on the local scene reports Police Chief Leo Lemieux. With few exceptions the youngsters behaved well and Saturday night's fine weather saw a large turnout of costumed kiddies.

Some of the most imaginative tricks were reserved for Sunday night when one of the few out-houses still extant in town found its way onto the roof of the Deschamps Garage, Main St. South. A steel farm gate from the Co-Op also managed to squeeze its way into the lobby of the Ottawa Hotel.

Rolls of wire and other Co-Op merchandise were used to form an obstacle course on the Mill Square during Saturday night and lawn swings were popular objects for transfer from home base. A few egg spatters evidenced less savory activities and three or four boys were rounded up for throwing firecrackers. They were let off with a warning.

Not in the category of practical jokes was the damage done to property on Main St. North. Sod recently laid on property fronts was torn up and strewn on the street. A bicycle rack from Perpetual Help School was also moved onto Main St. South and the result was $90 damage to the car of Jack McDonnell, Green Valley, who ran into it.

Police had three cars patrolling Saturday night to keep things under control.

Quiet In Rural Areas

Halloween was unusually quiet throughout the rural areas reports Sgt. Harold Buttle of the Lancaster OPP. The usual damage to mail boxes seems to be a year-round happening, he observes. There were such incidents and some burning of hay on roads but no serious damage and no accidents resulting from pranks.

Tax Collectors To Be Tougher On Arrears

Clerks of seven area townships and Alexandria met last week in the Cornwall Township Office with S. K. Melski, Ottawa administrator of the Dept. of Municipal Affairs.

The purpose was to formulate a uniform plan of tax collection in this area.

Mr. Melski urged tax collectors to use all means at their disposal such as collection of rents from property in arrears, seizing of chattels and registering for tax arrears. Use of the bailiff to collect arrears was also suggested but some clerks present balked at this idea. All agreed though, to make a more concerted effort to have taxes paid by due date.

Present were the clerks of Cornwall Township, Finch Township, Osnaburgh, Charlottenburgh, Lancaster Township, Lochiel, Kenyon and Alexandria.

Local tax collector, Clerk-Treasurer D. O. Collin reports some $150,000 of current taxes is still outstanding. Since Sept. 15th all in arrears have been notified and within ten days all owing 1971 taxes will get a reminder. Those in arrears for prior years can expect a stiffer approach, he advises. Levies for county and schools must be paid, he reminds, and so the drive to collect taxes owing.

Lad Saved From Drowning In Lake By Quick Response Theatre Manager

James Golden, 7, was saved from drowning in the Alexandria Lake, last Thursday afternoon, through the quick response of Guy Theoret, 25, and the life-saving training of Constable Jean Guy Levert.

Manager of the Garry Theatre, Mr. Theoret heard the cries for help behind his theatre and was able to bring the lad to shore. Constable Levert happened to be at Glengarry Motor Sales at the time and he reached the scene in time to apply mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. The boy was treated at Glengarry Memorial Hospital by Dr. Bourdeau and released.

According to the report of Constable Levert, young Golden and Danny Turton were playing at the water's edge where Jimmy climbed into a rowboat. When it floated free of shore he panicked and jumped from the boat. Mrs. Turton saw the child in the water and her screams brought Mr. Theoret to the scene in time to make the rescue.

Young Jimmy Golden lives with his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Spurgeon Golden. His parents were victims of carbon monoxide poisoning some six years ago.

GLENGARRY SCENE FOR CALENDAR—A Glengarry scene will illustrate the 1972 desk calendar of the Royal Trust Company which goes out at Christmas as a greeting to some 285,000 clients and friends of Royal Trust throughout Canada, the USA and abroad. "November 1st, Glengarry, Ontario" is by Douglas A. Faibles of Montreal and it pictures his farm home near Dornie. The painting was acquired for Royal Trust's Centennial Collection established in 1967 and is being used as a tribute to Ontario. Tommy Lee, assistant vice-president, Public Relations, at Royal Trust, has a summer home in the St. Andrews West area and he has been thoughtful enough to forward this copy of the painting.

THE 300TH DONOR—Clinic chairman Philip Lloyd appears more than happy with the results of Friday's blood donor clinic and Red Cross President Jerry Adams may have been pondering how all comers were to be handled. Mrs. Michel Lacombe was the 300th donor but so many turned out to give blood the committee could have been safe to plan on photographing the 400th. The clinic staff managed to handle 440 donors among the more than 500 who volunteered their blood. —Photo by Robert

OUCH, MY NOSE!—Alexandria's new flying field had its first mishap Friday afternoon when a visiting plane failed to lift off and nose-dived onto the adjoining Cuthbert farm. Ted Mandrick of Ville St. Laurent was paying his first visit to the field when his motor lost power on take-off. He was at 50 feet and escaped injury though damage to his plane may run to $4,500. Club member Donat Deschamps flew him back to his base at Cedars, Que., and his plane is now under repairs at The Farm, Bainsville. Department of Transport officials checked the accident and gave the local strip a clean bill of health.

IT'S OUR OPINION

An Opportunity To Clean The Garry

If a winter work program is needed here the suggestion of Mayor Touchette for a clearing of the Garry watercourse is one that should rate priority by the local Public Utilities Commission. The mayor is a member of the Commission and he no doubt will find support for that suggestion among other commissioners.

Our water supply gets nature's purification treatment as it flows over the rocky riverbed of the Fraser Rapids but pollution awaits it in the swampy area it must seep through before entering our lake. The liberal use of chemicals at the filtration plant may remove algae and make our drinking water more palatable. But a hint of the horrible pre-filtering condition of that water is given us in late winter when no amount of chemicals can totally remove the putrid stench of rotting weeds and animal life that is less noticeable in summer.

Suggestions for piping the river water through that stretch of swamp have been rejected as unduly expensive. This would do nothing to improve the water in our lake and the most satisfactory solution to the problem must be a thorough clearing of the watercourse and draining of the swamp-land created by the river water. This could best be done in winter, we imagine, and the financing would fall less heavily on Alexandria water users if it was approved as a winter work project.

Many thousands of dollars now being spent each year on chemicals in the filtering process might be saved if the water reaching the local plant was less redolent of decay.

The PUC should lose no time in fitting this project into a winter work application and town council might tie in with it a plan to remove the tons of effluent that now pollute the Garry between town and the river's joining with the Delisle. That muck that rises higher each year to fill the river bottom is a legacy of raw sewage bequeathed residents along the river through years of neglect on the part of our town. It should be our responsibility to clean the riverbed if we are sincere in our demands to end pollution and restore the environment.

Cleaning and clearing the Garry should fit into a winter work program here, and other jobs might be provided for tree-cutting crews that would rid the town of its dead and dying elms. Many of these skeletons of once stately trees remain to disfigure the landscape and speed the infestation of still healthy elms. Their removal can be so expensive as to be beyond the means of some property owners and a community project under winter works could ease the burden on the individual.

Dead elms despoil the countryside, too, and area township councils are probably even now planning for their removal.

The winter ahead will be long enough for those who are gainfully employed. If winter work projects are needed to ease the plight of the jobless planning at the municipal level should be already well advanced.

What's Your Price?

What price freedom? At what sum in today's soft dollars might you be induced to cut and run for it, leave home and family and the social scene for a new life not necessarily of crime, but one shadowed by the gnawing knowledge that "the law" was looking for you.

Would $200,000 be enough?, queries the Woodstock, NB Bugle, and the sum is suggested by two members of the banking profession on Prince Edward Island who recently absconded with double that amount. Inevitably they headed for the United States where a $10,000 annual income is just above the poverty line. If they did nothing but stay clear of the clutches of the law they might make do for ten years or so. But would they still relish their tainted new life style?

That might depend on a lot of imponderables, but think it over yourself as you play the game the Woodstock Bugle writer suggests:

The disappearance of two young Summerside bankers and over $400,000 in cash at the same time has led to a lot of coffee shop speculation on the rewards of crime. Many people say that, given the opportunity and a large enough sum, they would take the money and run.

By discussing the amount which would be large enough, it is possible to determine what value a person places on his present situation in life.

Most of the people I have talked with think that $200,000 is scarcely enough. Considering the risk, the difficulty of establishing a new identity and dealing with a huge sum of hot money, that much money might not go too far. Adding the fact that friends and family must all be abandoned, many of the things we would like to do with sudden wealth become impossible.

The two young men in question apparently were doing fairly well. While their salaries were under $10,000 a year, they weren't too far under and would probably have achieved that figure at a reasonably young age.

They apparently decided that they could be happy without visiting the Maritimes or their families any more. They were apparently willing to give up Canada with all its privileges and responsibilities.

Deciding what your price would be to give up some of these things is an interesting game. Playing it may show you that what you have is of greater value to you than you thought.

P.S.—The two young bankers, after successfully getting away with $400,000 in cash, decided it was not such a good idea after all. After only three weeks of "freedom" they voluntarily gave themselves up and returned all but about $5,000 of the money.

PPS—Each is now serving a two-year term.

Blood Shows

Glengarry's honor was at stake and her red-blooded gentry responded in no uncertain terms, Friday, to replenish the Red Cross blood bank. Our local hospital had been shown to be deep in debt in the matter of blood serum used over recent years and not returned by Glengarry donors. In one fell swoop, Friday, a record 509 from town and country turned out to give blood and so swamped the facilities of the clinic it could not handle all comers.

The blood bank is richer by 440 pints, though, and a few more clinics on that scale will in a matter of time right the balance.

Chief credit must go to those more than five hundred who responded to the call. But this was also a triumph of organization on the part of officers of the recently re-activated Glengarry Red Cross and its blood clinic committee headed by Mr. Philip Lloyd. They and the canvassers who were active across the county must have done their homework to rate so successful a clinic.

The week-long canvass for funds under the chairmanship of Mr. Gilles Roy, also went exceedingly well, we understand, and without its personal approach the clinic might not have enlisted so many donors. County officers may decide to make this dual-purpose Red Cross Week an annual event for raising funds and supplying the blood bank. Friday's grand success suggests the same format should be used another time.

Serious Offence

Practically everyone who has carried out some do-it-yourself project around the house must have been shaken by a recent case in a Quebec City court.

It seems that Adrien Lebel, who is classified as a laborer, was caught in the act by an inspector for the provincial department of labor.

Caught in the act of what? Well, Lebel was caught in the act of driving a nail.

The judge fined him $200 after he pleaded guilty to a charge of being found in possession of carpenter's tools, contrary to provincial regulations.

To make matters worse, Lebel's employer, contractor Romeo Fiset, was fined $200 and costs for having carpentry work done by a common laborer.

How far have things gone when a man who is handy with tools commits an offence when he uses one of them to make an honest dollar, although he is not classed under some provincial regulation as a carpenter?

The charge of being found in possession of carpenter's tools sounds almost as serious as being caught with burglar's tools, suggests an editorial in The Gananogue Reporter.

Now that a court decision has been rendered and precedent set, we wonder what will happen to the farmer who fixes his barn, the stock-broker who replaces a screen door or the truck-driver who mends a fence.

Will some labor department inspector be peering at him from the hay-mow or from behind a bush or tree?

The Weeklies Say

SAME MISTAKE

Government is entitled to make mistakes, just as we are, but we will not tolerate the same old mistakes over and over again. Under such circumstances we speak out, as we do when we are aware someone is trying to do a snow job on the public and on us. —Yellowknife (NWT) News of the North.

Pollution Of Another Kind

(Dresden North Kent Leader)

By this time next week, the ballots will have been counted, the successful candidates declared elected, condolences and cigars will have been handed out, and another provincial election will be history.

However, in many ridings, especially the rural ones, pictures of candidates will still be around long after the tumult and shouting have died down. Utility poles, sides of buildings and other likely spots for the posting of election propaganda will still carry frayed reminders that 1971 was an election year.

Just prior to the election, there is always a flurry to replace such signs that have been torn down by zealous party members of opposing views. However, once the election is over, the signs are forgotten by those who were so eager to post 'em in the first place.

All three parties seeking election included the problems of pollution in their election platforms. It will now be interesting to see just how many of the candidates were sincere in their promises of doing something about pollution. The viewing of out-dated signs is certainly a special kind of pollution that deserves an equal amount of control.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

A REAL SUCCESS

The editor, The Glengarry News,

The residents of Glengarry County can be extremely proud of the response to the needs of the Glengarry Branch of the Red Cross.

Red Cross Week was a huge success as was evident by those who turned up for the Blood Donors Clinic last Friday at the Glengarry District High School.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Mr. Philip Lloyd, Chairman of the Blood Donors Clinic, and all his volunteers for their tremendous work and organization which made the clinic a success; Mr. Gilles Roy, Chairman of the Campaign, and his canvassers who organized a campaign system throughout the County which not only collected the required funds to operate various functions of the Red Cross but also assisted in notifying the general public of the Blood Donors Clinic; and Mrs. Kenneth Allen, who spent many hours doing research and writing articles for publicity for the Red Cross.

Words are not enough to express appreciation to all the volunteers and donors—and a special thanks should be given to the students and young people in Glengarry County who gave blood for the first time, as well as working so hard to make the clinic and campaign a success.

We would like to see Red Cross Week become an annual event and hope that the co-operation will remain as keen as it has been this year.

It is very gratifying for the volunteers, and the work and effort is worthwhile, when you get a

DEAR DEER

It was open season on deer early this week in Glengarry and area nimrods had an opportunity to hit the trail. If an open season had not been declared some hunters probably would have been out anyway for Glengarry has its quota of poachers and jacklighters according to area wildlife officers.

Poaching can be expensive if the law catches up with the culprits, as witness a report from Kemptonville where two residents of North Augusta paid $1,000 fines each and had their vehicle and firearms seized by the Crown. They had been found in possession of a freshly killed eight-point buck after a high speed chase in which they nearly wrecked the vehicle in which they were fleeing from a Provincial Constable.

In court at Brockville each was fined $500 for possession of a buck out of season; $250 for possession of a firearm not encased at night; $250 for hunting on Sunday.

That's a lot of bucks to pay for one buck and those guys from North Augusta will probably decide to give up the game. Out of season deer could prove as dear around here, Conservation officers warn.

It's not that much fawn, the poacher must ruefully conclude, when the court demands his doe.

THAT 5-O'CLOCK SHADOW

That extra hour of fading in bed. Sunday morning, must have been relished after a night of Halloween fun. But not so enjoyable was the curtain of night dropping down one hour early because of the return to standard time.

That simple little act of turning the clock back one hour brought on the night at 5 o'clock and left your Rambling Reporter wondering why we couldn't observe Daylight Saving Time all year round.

That five o'clock curtain comes down just at the time traffic is heaviest as factories empty and workers head home. Wouldn't the accident potential be much less if a lot of those tired, hungry commuters were getting home before darkness closed in?

In this age of the auto more and more bread-winners are driving daily to their jobs and they face the worst driving conditions in winter. That's when we add to their worries by turning back the clock and making them navigate slippery roads with the extra hazard of darkness.

Staying on fast time might have its disadvantages of course. The shorter period of daylight in winter might see more people forced to leave their beds before dawn; and that might prove more unpleasant than early dusk. Farmers were once dead set against fast time but they seem to have adapted to it in summer and perhaps it wouldn't be the problem it once was now that every farm has electricity.

A Rambling Reporter has no worries concerning winter driving. He doesn't fancy this early darkness, though, and he'd be interested to hear the views of readers on the subject of year-round daylight saving time.

If the local constabulary find tire marking a chore, we know a dog who's a natural for the job.

WHO HE?

Members of town council must be a lot more knowledgeable than one might credit them. How else

Mrs. Will MacDiarmid of Ottawa spent the weekend visiting Mrs. Olive O'Hara.

Guests at the manse last week with Rev. and Mrs. Iver D. MacIver were Dr. and Mrs. W. L. MacLellan of Cornwall, and Mr. and Mrs. John G. Mulholland of Ottawa.

Miss Susan Gamble of Ottawa, was home for the weekend with Dr. and Mrs. D. M. Gamble.

Friday afternoon, Nov. 5, is the big football game at Maxville High School. The seniors, who have only lost one game this season, will be playing off against Hawkesbury. Mr. and Mrs. Nick Haramis had the older members of their family all home for the weekend—Susan, Judy, Nick Jr. and Michael, of Montreal.

Against all common sense and in direct opposition to general public opinion there was a deer hunting season here this week—but Kenyon Township has been plagued for the last two weeks by the usual band of greedy poachers from the east, hunting at night in the swamps and near the dump. Anyone reporting suspiciously parked cars in this area is doing no more than his civic duty. And don't kid yourself that they have gone home this week, either.

Weekend visitors with Rev. and Mrs. Iver D. MacIver were Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Murray of Scotstown, Que. Miss Violet Hemer of Nanaimo, B.C. is spending some time visiting the MacIvers. Miss Agnes McLennan of Ottawa, spent the weekend with her sister, Mrs. William Morrow.

explain the fact that they are not only protecting us against hawkers and pedlars, but petty chapmen, as well.

We wouldn't recognize a petty chapman if he bumped into us; didn't know any such chap walked around on two feet. But our ever-vigilant town fathers were right on the job when they framed a new by-law to control hawkers and pedlars. They reached way out into left field to come up with a petty chapman who probably would have posed even a greater threat than a pedlar cause we didn't know he existed.

Come to think of it, we haven't had too many hawkers or pedlars pestering us lately, either, unless magazine girls come under one of those categories. If you believe all you hear about those travelling gals, they'd probably come under pedlars.

Maybe those petty chapmen council is going to regulate are the boys from the Toronto bucket shops who telephone periodically with tales of the wonderful stocks they'd like to unload on us. We don't need protection from them cause we make it a practice to hang up while they're in mid-sentence.

A by-law governing hawkers, pedlars and petty chapmen has a fine ringing sound to it and we wouldn't want council to shorten it a bit. Who knows; maybe we're the only town extant that still protects its citizens against petty chapmen.

Football Finals On Friday Being Played At Maxville And Alexandria

by Angus H. McDonnell

Maxville High School football team squeezed by GDHS last Thursday, 15-14, to maintain their league lead and the right of home field in the Glengarry-Prescott Senior football sudden death championship playoff for the MacArthur trophy. Hawkesbury defeated Vankleek Hill 12-0 and having won their last three games earned the right to travel to Maxville on the strength of their overall points.

The final will start tomorrow (Friday) at two p.m. on the Maxville High School field.

The GDHS junior Gaels won over Hawkesbury 9-6 in their semi-final bracket while the Hill's VCI scored an upset win over Char-Lan, 6-0. The Hill students play GDHS here tomorrow (Friday) at 2:30 for the junior championship.

Alexandria played their best game of the season over in the into the Maxville end for a major and J. T. Hay was good with the convert. Gaels led 14-2 as the teams changed ends for the final canto.

Maxville sliced this lead early when Munro hit pay dirt for a TD and Scott was true with the convert. With time waning, skipper Garry MacIntosh went over the Gael's goal line for the home-stay's second major that was not converted making the final read Maxville 15, Gaels 14.

The junior Gaels came up with a strong scoring punch in the last half of their semi-final, here, against Hawkesbury, as they posted nine points to overcome the Hawks' half time 6-0 lead.

There was no scoring until late in the second quarter when Hawkesbury counted a major that was not converted.

In the third both defences were holding firm until the young Gaels forced the Hawks to punt from behind their goal line. The kick was short and Gaels took over on the visitors' 23 stripe. The resulting field goal try by Mike March was wide but good for a single.

Gaels' defence dug in and got the ball back on the Hawks' 12 yard line. Just 20 seconds ticked away in the final when Ray O'Connell broke through for a TD. Mike March was solid with the convert boot and Gaels were now ahead 8-6.

With time on the wane GDHS had to punt from about mid-field and Ray O'Connell belted a Joe Zuger hoist that travelled well into the end zone for a single.

As usually happens in school football, as in any other league, even the CFL, Hawkesbury resorted to the desperation pass in hope of a quick TD, but that was broken up when Rodney Shepherd, for the second time in the game, intercepted a pass on the Hawks' 45 and that was the ball game, Gaels 9, Hawks 6.

Once again, both school league's championship games are scheduled for tomorrow, Friday, Senior in Maxville hosting Hawkesbury and GDHS at home against Vankleek Hill. Time 2:30.

Persistent Beaver Flood Valley Of Scotch River In Kenyon Township

(by Velma S. Franklin)

Beaver have become a fairly common animal in the county in recent years. By conservationists they are considered valuable and eagerly protected and by landowners who have suffered property damage from extensive flooding, pesky varmints to be got rid of.

A group of farmers and a family of beaver on the Scotch River in the north of Kenyon have managed to come to a state of mutual adjustment.

Although there had been no appreciable rain the river suddenly began to rise in the fall, and a search located a beaver dam only a few hundred yards from two houses. There were no big trees near the site, but a perfectly water-tight dam had been built of stones, mud, and a tangle of small brush and twigs. It was four feet high, over 40 feet long, and had backed the waters up almost a mile, into the next concession.

There was no particular concern over the hay fields that were flooded, but the farmers across the road got upset on finding that the corn they were about to harvest was standing in a foot of water.

This was on a weekend, and waiting for any official action would only have resulted in more flooded corn. They gathered at the site of the dam with a big old brush hook, a long cable, and a tractor, and in an hour had managed to pull the whole center out of the dam. Someone demarked that it was a shame to waste all that hydro, with the head of water the animals had backed up.

The water went down immediately and the corn was cut. And within three days it was rising again, the beaver had entirely repaired the dam. The river is full again, right to the banks, and a wonderful place for duck hunting. One puzzling thing — the big brush hook was left on the bank along with the cable. And it disappeared. Away off the road, this was an unlikely thing to attract a thief. The beaver would have been scouring the river banks for material to build the new dam, and may have drawn it in with the brush. They would hardly have known what it was for, would they?

The leg he broke last summer playing soccer was broken again Saturday in the junior football game at GDHS and John Morris has his left leg in a cast again. The break was a double one last

ODAF DATA

A report from your Glengarry Agricultural Office

by J. Y. Humphries

PROPER VENTILATION PAYS

Cattle are, or will be in the barn again and we will no doubt be encountering a number of pneumonia cases throughout the county. Many of these problems could be solved by a proper ventilation system. In the Fall, when outside temperatures still reach the low 50's and all livestock is housed inside the barn, you will realize that the barn temperatures can reach 80 or 90 degrees if no ventilation is provided.

As I have mentioned before, it is extremely important that you have two different levels of ventilation in your building. At this time of the year and in the spring, you need large fans which will control the temperature in the stable. In colder weather, a smaller level of ventilation controlled by another fan will tend to introduce a small amount of fresh air, enough to keep the moisture from collecting in the building.

From past experience on ventilation problems in Glengarry County, the trend is to provide too much high level ventilation and not enough low level ventilation. This can be costly as far as equipment is concerned and also costly because you don't obtain the ventilation which you are looking for and herd health is a problem.

The location of fans is a subject that concerns a lot of people. The location and type of inlet should be of more concern to you. The fan only creates a vacuum of air, air from the inlet moves in to take its place. It is therefore the position of the inlet that controls movement of air in a building.

Remember the three basic principles of ventilation:

—Heat is required to allow air to pickup and remove moisture.
—A draught-free method of introducing air into the building.
—An exhaust system.

We must therefore have the proper building insulation, proper inlet design and a proper exhaust system, usually obtained with agricultural fans. For help in solving your ventilation problems, contact your Agricultural Engineer.

CATTLE GRUB CONTROL

Cattle will shortly be stabled for the winter months. This is the season to begin your control program for lice and more important at this season, cattle grub or warble fly control on young animals. Lice can build up and reduce gains on young cattle as well as production on older cattle without you realizing it. You may be feeding a whole lot more animal units than you planned on. Systemic insecticides such as Co-ral Ruelene or Neguvon are now widely used for cattle grub or warble fly control. In all cases, these should be applied prior to December 1st on young cattle. They are not designed for lactating cattle and must be applied well in advance of slaughter. These can be used as sprays or pour-on-treatments, depending on product. In addition to controlling warbles, they give good control of lice. Remember to read and heed the label and follow the directions carefully when applying systems.

For further information, a Fact-sheet entitled "Insect Control in Dairy Cattle" is available, outlining the various treatments available.

Your beliefs, thoughts, judgments need up-dating too, no doubt.

It's a changing world, up-date, reevaluate, rejuvenate and scintillate". At the close of the meeting an attractive Hallowe'en buffet
