HENRY'S Shorthand School Ottawa, Ont.

No School in Canada offers a better training, or ensures a more successful future. Henry's leads all others, and ranks among employers as "THE SCHOOL OF HIGHER EFFICIENCY"—a fact borne out by more than 600 pupils who have, since January, 1913, left other Ottawa schools to come to it.

Therefore, it is not surprising that business men, in advertising for stenographers, should specially say, "Graduates of Henry's School preferred."

Mountain Twp. Farmer Loses Farm Buildings

Fire, believed to have been caused by combustion, destroyed all outbuildings and practically all their contents on the farm of Clarke Hyndman, at Hallville, nine miles east of Kemptville, late Monday night. The direction of the wind prevented the fire from spreading to the house.

Mrs. Hyndman said the barn seemed to catch fire in an instant and the flames spread rapidly to two adjacent buildings and a silo. In them were stored the results of the entire Summer's work, none of which could be saved. She could not estimate the loss, but said there was some insurance.

Mr. Hyndman, while trying to get his calves out of the barn suffered painful burns to the right arm. With the assistance of neighbors, he was able to get all the stock out except a few hens, which were destroyed.

The glare attracted scores of farmers from all parts of the countryside. They did their utmost to save the buildings, but the heat was so intense that they could not get near enough to do much, handicapped as they were by lack of water.

Montreal Milk Distributors Will Pay More

Montreal, Oct. 9—Morning and afternoon conferences at the office of Hon. J. L. Perron, Minister of Agriculture, resulted this afternoon in the settlement of the "milk strike" when representatives of milk producers of the province of Quebec which had held up shipments to the Montreal distributors when demands for Winter price rate of 33 cents per gallon had been refused, agreed to the compromise put forward yesterday by Premier Taschereau.

This compromise, briefly, provides that the producers receive 32 cents per gallon during the months of December, January, February and March and 28 cents a gallon for the other four months of the Winter milk season, October, November, April and May.

No repetition of the disorders that had occurred during the past week among the milk producers was reported today.

Mr. G. P. McKerracher, representing Summers Ltd., successors to John Northway & Son Co. Ltd., will be at H. J. McMahon's store on Thursday next, October 17th, showing the newest in Fall and Winter styles in coats and dresses. You are cordially invited to call and inspect his showing.

Acclamation for Ferguson Likely in Grenville

Premier Howard Ferguson will likely win his home riding in Grenville by acclamation, unless anything unforseen happens, as Thomas Llyod, of Prescott, nominated as Liberal candidate at a convention on Tuesday, announced last night that for personal reasons he would not run.

When Garnet Anderson, of Kemptville, president of the Grenville County Liberal Association heard Mr. Lloyd's decision he said it was unlikely the accociation would enter anyone else in the field against Mr. Ferguson, if Mr. Lloyd would not contest the riding.

Most Rev. M. J. O'Brien Installed as Coadjutor

Kingston, Oct. 9.—Welcomed by thousands of the Roman Catholic laity of the city, who lined the streets along the line of the procession, His Grace, Most Rev. M. J. O'Brien, coadjutor Archbishop of Kingston, arrived in the city this evening and was formally installed as Archbishop by His Excellency Most Rev. Anrea Cassula, apostolic delegate.

Arriving in a special train, the new Archbishop of Kingston and the Apostolic Delegate were met by several hundred of the laity and a great many priests of the diocese and escorted to St. Mary's Cathedral, where sanctuary boys sang a welcome as His Grace entered the cathedral. The papal bulls, containing the appointment of His Grace as titular Archbishop of Kingston, were read by the Apostolic Delegate, while an address of welcome was read to him from the clergy, and the laity of the archdiocese. His Grace responded, thanking the priests and the congregation for their kindness and assuring them of his devotion to them always. Solemn benediction was conducted by His Excellency Most Rev. Anrea Cassulo.

Put Body In Ditch Then Speed Away

Brockville, Oct. 9—Provincial police and highway traffic officers of the dsitrict are making every effort to -locate a hit-and-run driver who during last night struck and killed Dennis Donovan, aged 37, of Escott, who was drawing milk along the highway. The bodv, with the skull fractured, was found in a ditch, where it is presumed to have been laid by the occupant or occupants of the car that struck him.

Mr. Donovan, who formerly conducted a garage at Prescott, left his mother's house in Escott village at 11 o'clock last night, and carried a lantern. It is stated he returned to his home and later left it about midnight and set out on highway No. 2 walking in an easterly direction. Nothing more was heard of him until this morning, when the bodv was found.

Stormont Deanery Sunday School Conference

On Wednesday the annual deanery conference of the deanery of Stormont was held in Holy Trinity church with a representative gathering from the parishes of the deanery. The day's proceedings opened with a celebration of the Holy Communion at 8 o'clock and again at 10 o'clock at which the Rev. H. M. Little, rector of the Church of the Advent, Montreal, preached, the rector of Holy Trinity being the celebrant. A hearty welcome was extended the visitors by the rector on behalf of the congregation and they were entertained at the homes of the various members. In the afternoon the election of officers took place, the Rev.'s E. W. B. Richards and G. Oliver Davies being elected president and secretary treasurer respectively. The former was also elected clerical representative on the Diocesan Board of Religious Education, while Mr. Gillard, of Wales, and Mrs. G. W. Thom, of Aultsville, were elected as lay representative and substitute lay representative respectively on the same body. Two able addresses were given in the course of the conference, the first by the Rev. C. Patterson-Smyth, rector of Prescott, on the real objective of the Sunday School and the second by the Rev. C. G. Hepburn, rector of All Saints' Church, Ottawa, on the responsibility of the whole church for the religious instruction of the young Both of these addresses were provocative of discussion amongst those attending the conference. The meeting concluded with a very hearty expression of thanks to the clergy who contributed to the programme and to the ladies of the congregration for their hospitality, after which the Archbishop of Morrisburg, pronounced the blessing.

Dog's Silence Leads to Arrest

Toronto, October 9.—A fifteen-year-old boy was arrested last night charged with the theft of jewellery valued at $3.000 from the home of Samuel Langdon here yesterday. The arrest was brought about by the silence of the Langdon's pet dog, which had kept silent while the lad stole the jewellery from a miniature safe. When Mrs. Langdon told detectives she thought it strange that the dog had not raised any commotion, that at once narrowed their search down to people whom the dog knew. They questioned the lad and he finally confessed, they claim.

Eat More But More Carefully

Cold weather is coming, and cold weather means that the body needs added fuel if it is to withstand the cold.

This means more food, but many err in partaking of the wrong kind of food. Instead of increasing too heavily on your meat, fish, bread and eggs, lean strongly on your green vegetables, your milk and your fresh fruits.

Serve a large orange at breakfast, or two small ones instead, so that you will balance the acidity of the bacon and eggs. Serve a salad at luncheon and a fruit cup at dinner. Cater strongly to spinach, raw cabbage, celery, carrots, turnips and other vegetables that may be secured fresh.

Do these things and you'll probably avoid that old bugaboo "Spring Fever" which comes to so many cluttered bodies each Spring.

They were discussing the new typist. "What do you think of her?" asked the boss. The chief clerk looked a little doubtful. "Well, I don't know," she said. "But she spells atrociously." "Really," said the boss. "She must be pretty good, then. I'm sure I couldn't spell it."

Is Your Town Labeled?

A party of tourists struck the edge of a little town at fifty miles an hour, slowed down to forty on account of the "Fifteen Mile" signs, and glanced around for information as to their whereabouts.

The butcher shop was labeled with the name of Cyrus Green; the grocery stores, dry goods stores and all other stores were propely named; the Methodist and Baptist and Catholic churches had not forgotten to announce themselves, while a road marker pointed to another town ten miles away.

"Where are we?" asked a back seat occupant.

"Squeedunk in the Wilds," shortled the driver.

"We're in 'Lucky Strike,'" remarked the daughter. "There's the sign."

"Wrong, Sis! We are in Camel Cigarettes. There's the sign over there."

"We're ten miles from Pearlville," grunted Dad at the wheel, noticing the marker and whirling to follow its lead. Let's make Pearlville and get those souvenirs. Heaven only knows what this burg is."

And four tourists spent fifteen dollars in Pearlville—which was less than one half the size of the unadvertised town passed with nothing but wise-cracking.

It pays to advertise!

Mrs. Wentworth had not been feeling at all well. She decided at last to consult a specialist. "You are just a little run down, madam," pronounced the great man, afer making a careful examination. "You need frequent baths and plenty of fresh air. I would also advise you to dress in the coolest, most comfortable clothes. Remember, nothing formal. Mrs. Wentworth returned home in high glee. "Well, dear," asked her husband, "what was the specialist's opinion?" "He said that I must go to the seaside, do lots of motoring, and get some new summer dresses," she replied.

"The Mysterious Cityof Stone"

A lantern lecture was presented in Morewood United church last Friday evening by Rev. R. W. Armstrong on "The Mysterious City of Stone." The slides, which are about fifty in number, constitute one lecture in a series of twenty-six hundred lantern slides on the Holy Land possessed by Mr. Armstrong. The series were prepared by Rev. J. E. Holley, of Cincinnati, who spent twenty-five years on the project, during which time he made repeated trips to the Holy Land and to the art galleries of Europe.

This mysterious city is situated in the Arabian desert and is today known as "Petra" and may be the Kadesh mentioned in Scriptures. The wonderful thing about the city is that it has been completely hewn out of rock. Public buildings, residences, and even the tombs are all carved out of the mountains of solid stone. One slide shows the Khazne, a bulding over one hundred feet high with an interior capable of seating several hundred people, extending back into the hill, like a great cave, but there is evidence that this cavity has been chiselled out of the rock. Another slide shows an ancient temple which is larger still, but excavated from the rock in the same way, with an elaborately ornamental front all carved in the stone. An amphitheatre with accommodation for thousands of people is also shown and the seats of this are all cut out of solid stone. Several high obelisks are shown. These also were created in the same way, the rest of the mountain was cut away leaving these giant pillars of stone standing upright, possibly as monuments or shrines. There are thousands of tombs there which throw light upon the history of the city. They would indicate that Petra was once a great city and that its life must have extended over several centuries. These tombs are elaborately carved both outside and in. Tradition says that Miriam was interred in one of these tombs. There are also views of an ancient altar which throw light upon the religious practices of the people.

The city is now unoccupied, but the concluding pictures showed the life of the natives who now live in the surrounding country.

Presenting Doctor Monkey

A monkey in the Pennywood Park Zoo, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania,, recently had a swelling in his jaw. Evidently the members of his tribe felt that the Zoo veterinarian was a long time putting in an appearance, for while four of them held the sufferer securely, a fifth examined the swelling and then neatly bit out a tin whistle over an inch long.

Selecting the Layers

Experimental Farms Note.

To be able to select the best pullets for production purposes, it is important to have the young chicks hatched at the time of year which will allow them, under proper management, to make a steady, vigorous, uniform growth. It has been found at Nappan that the April hatched chickens are of more uniform quality by the middle of September than those of May. This period of time of six to six and one half months gives the birds a chance to have size, vigor, body capacity and egg type.

However, at present, there has not been a successful method worked out of selecting high and low producing pullets before they commence laying, but all birds of low vitality, crow headed, slow maturing and off type individuals, as well as those with breed disqualifications, are culled out.

An individual, whose body is deep as measured from fron of keel to the centre of the back; gradually tapering flat sides, wedge back, back of good breadth carrying its width to the base of the tail; good width throughout the pelvic region and wide, full breast, is one that possesses both capacity and egg type. Along with the proper body conformation, tre type and shape of the head has a very important part in selecting good layers.

The pullet to select is one that has a head that is clean cut, of medium length and depth, wide and flat, the width increasing uniformly from the attachment of the beak to a point directly behind the eye; the eye should be large, bright and prominent and the face smooth and lean, with skin fine in texture.

By selectig birds showing a combination of the above characters, we have found at Nappan that we are able to pick a large percentage of the pullets that prove to be good layers.

Is This An Advertisement?

Whatever it is, it appears on a tombstone in a little Maine graveyard and provokes far more than its share of smiles:

"Sacred to the memory of James J. Ream, who died August 6, 1900. His widow, who mourns as one who can be comforted, aged twenty-four, and possessing every qualification for a good wife, lives at . . . Chatham St. this village.

German villages keep their streets rough and crooked in order to slow down fast automobiles and so prevent injuries to geese, pigs and chickens.

What a Test!

Nine Competing Radios in one Room!

ON the evening of Friday, July 12th, the test was made . . .

Nine competitive and leading makes, side by side . . .

All hooked up to the same aerial. . . .

Same ground connection. Same room . . .

All in good working order. All new models . . .

And then they were tuned in, by means of a multiple switch, one after the other . . . to the same station, before a dozen spectators.

Careful record was made of the performance of each, for volume, for "pick-up" (sensitivity), for clearness, for tone.

And then they were put to an even more severe test...

Each was given a turn of the dial, to record the stations brought in, their volume and clarity.

There was in that group one Radio that brought in stations with an unbelievably greater volume and clarity than any of the others . . .

that one Radio was the Rogers!

When the others were barely audible with their full volume turned on, the 1930 Rogers, in several instances, could be cut down one-fourth and every word and note came in clearly.

The laboratory test is more severe than any home test. It deals only with cold, comparative results. It asks not that allowances be made for conditions; the time and the place affect all alike.

Just a few hours' test, but one that means years of radio satisfaction to you.

The 1930 Rogers is offered to you with the hope that you will expect much of it, with the promise that you will not be disappointed.

The 1930 Rogers, all-new in construction but backed by a record of five years proven performance and with guaranteed A-C tubes, comes to you with the highest rating earned by any receiving set.

Expect More U.S. Demand For Cows

"Seasonable Hints from the Dominion Experimental Farms," a pamphlet issued by the federal Department of Agriculture just received has an article by George W. Muir, of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, the opening paragraph of which reads:

"The recent changes in the United States tariff on milk and milk products will tend to decrease our exports of these commodities, but any loss in this respect will be very largely compensated for by the fact that there will be an increased demand from the United States for cows with which to produce their milk at home. This very probable demand can be accounted for by two ways: first, because the average dairyman producing milk for the city trade cannot, or will not, raise his own dairy cows and, second, they have not got a sufficient supply of young cows coming on that will be needed to offset the milk shortage due to curtailed imports from Canada. As a consequence, it is bound to be profitable for our dairy farmers in Canada to raise their heifer calves. The degree of profit will depend on two things: the quality of the calves raised and the economy and thoroughness of the raising. The quality of the calves raised will, in turn, depend on the quality of the bull used, so that the best bull obtainable should be placed at the head of the herd and only the calves from the better cows in the herd raised. It costs just as much to raise a poor one as a good one, so it is poor economy to raise the former. The economy and thoroughness of the raising depends to a large extent on the methods of feeding."

Gas and Coal Oil Responsible Fo Many Costly Fires

Coroner Crawford of Toronto, expressed, in his address to the jury at an inquest lately held in that city, a belief that many people were ignorant of the danger incidental to the careless use of gasoline in their homes. The jury in its verdict asserted that there was need of effort to teach the public how to use gasoline safely and that, in its opinion, "the press might help in this work."

Such an effort to teach the public has been made in a pamphlet, entitled "Do You Know?" that has been published by the Ontario Government, at the instance, no doubt, of the provincial fire marshal and his deputy. The pamphlet gives information concerning the properties of gasoline. It points out that one gallon of the liquid has the explosive power of 83 pounds of dynamite. Gasoline vapor is three times as heavy as air, the pamphlet says, and will float along near the ground or drop to the basement in an invisible stream. If it is present to the amount of from 1.4 per cent., to 6 per cent., of the volume of air in a confined space it is liable to be ignited by a flame or a spark. Most people know that there is danger in using coal oil to facilitate the lighting of a stove, yet quite frequently the fact that someone has done so with disastrous consequences is published in the newspapers. Most people might be expected to know that it is dangerous to use gasoline in the neighborhood of an open flame, for example, the flame of a lamp, or to strike a match in a room in which gasoline is being used. The pamphlet reminds the public of these dangers and also of the possibility that violent rubbing in the process of cleaning floors, silks and so forth with gasoline may generate static electricity, produce a spark and ignite the gasoline.

The pamphlet directs attention to risks that are connected with the use of gasoline and coal oil in dwelling houses, and suggests methods of guarding against those risks. By way of indicating that there is need for caution in the use of gasoline, the pamphlet records that the number of fires caused by careless handling of gasoline and coal oil in Ontario last year was 315. Those fires occasioned loss of property to the value of $349,911 and, worse still, resulted in a loss of human lives.

Most Useful People

Jack Miner, the famous and extremely human bird lover and philosopher of Kingsville, Ontario, has found himself elevated into the company of the truly great—probably to his own great surprise.

Samuel Thomas Hughes, president of the largest newspaper information service in the world, has been very busy during the past twelve months, compiling a list of personages who are considered "the hundred most useful people in the world." He has finally settled in his own mind on ninety, and now he is asking the public to look the list over and suggest ten more. He gives the option of deleting up to ten of the names he has suggested, and thus increasing the number to be added to twenty.

In the first ninety which Mr. Hughes has selected, appear three Canadians, E. W. Beatty, president of the C.P.R., who is described as a "Canadian Railroad magnate, who is opening millions of acres to human needs—the youngest railroad president in the world"; Sir Wilfrid T. Grenfell, medical missionary to Labrador, and Jack Miner, who is described as "wizard of wild birds." This is pretty good company in which to place the humble and very modest bird lover of Kingsville, but those who know Mr. Milner will agree that he is deserving of the honor of being named high in the list of the most useful people.

Some Facts About Watches

A watch is composed of 165 parts, and requires about 3,600 operations to produce a complete timepiece.

The jewels are mostly ruby or sapphire, their practical purpose being bearings for the small pivots and other places where friction must be reduced to a minimum.

The balance wheel is supported by a balance staff, made of tempered steel, the pivots or bearings of which are about four thousands of an inch in diameter, or about twice the thickness of writing paper. The reason for their being so small is that the balance wheel must make 432,000 excursions of about three-quarters of a turn each, each twenty-four hours to keep correct time. This could not be done with large pivots, unless greater power could be used than there is space to be utilized for power plant, or main spring as it is commonly called. The balance wheel with its hairspring is the governor of time.

The old style solid balance wheel may vary between temperature of 40 degrees and 90 degrees as much as six minutes in twenty-four hours.

The compensated, or adjusted balance wheel is made up of over 20 pieces of metal, proportioned in such a manner that the temperature, hot or cold, does not affect the time.

The power is transmitted from the main spring to the balance wheel by means of an escapement through a train of wheels and pinions so proportioned, that the minute hand makes a full revolution every sixty minutes, and the second hand one revolution every sixty seconds. The escapement consists of an escape wheel of 15 teeth and a pair of jewels mounted on an arbor supported the same as the balance staff, which, when in motion, allows one tooth of the escape wheel to move on one-fifteenth of a revolution each time the balance wheel makes one of its 432,000 excursions per day.

The higher grade watches are given the utmost care in all detail of construction. Only the most skilled mechanics should be employed to handle them.

From the above mentioned facts you would naturally expect a watch to be a very delicate machine, and so it is. However, given proper care, one will produce almost perfect results through a period of a great many years. Possibly we should emphasize the words "proper care.' A watch is amply strong to stand any ordinary use in the pocket, but must not be subjected to bumps, such as dropping or knocking against hard objects.

Oftimes a bump will bend a pivot or crack a jewel. The watch runs but never will it keep good time as it did before the damage was done, until it is again put in its original perfect condition.

The timepiece of today is no longer a luxury, but a necessity, considered so by women as well as men.

Comparatively few know anything about the construction of a watch or the care it should receive. The rule seems to be not to have anything done to it until it stops. Usually a watch will run months after the last atom of oil is used up. Imagine, if you can, running an automobile or locomotive, until the oil is all worn out, and continue running that machine until it will stop and refuse to go for lack of attention. Fortuntely, or otherwise, a watch is so constructed that oil cannot be applied with an oil can. It must be placed between the jewels where the capillary action keeps the pivots lubricated or on bearings not capped with end jewels, a small amount can be applied when the watch is put together, which is usually sufficient to last from one to two years.

How accurate should a watch run? The U. S. Bureau of Standards has made many tests of watches. The time specifications for military strap watches are: That the watch on a 15-day test, run without more than 2 minutes variation in 24 hours. Therefore, a lady's small wrist watch, much smaller than the military strap watch, should be considered good when it runs within that time.

It is important to know that your watch will perform properly according to the size of the movement, provided the watch is given proper care and not injured, in accordance with a chart prepared by the watch manufacturers. A man's 18, 16 or 12 size movement should be overhauled and oiled every eighteen months; a man's railroad watch every twelve months; a lady's 10½, 10, or 9 ligne watch every nine months and a ladies' 8, 7, or 6 ligne watch, rectangular and oval, every six months. This will insure almost unlimited service.

THE ELECTION CAMPAIGN

The Supreme Issue Before the Electors of Dundas

As the workers for N. W. Beach, the candidate of Dundas Prohibitionists in the present election, continue their active campaign work, they are again discovering that the people of this county, as ever, stand strong and true under the Prohibition banner. Never in the history of this grand old county has Dundas spoken with any uncertain sound on this issue, and in spite of the party pleas and cries in this campaign, their clear-cut motto, "Dundas always stands for Prohibition", still stands forth. Dundas is determined to remain true to her principles, and for this reason considers Prohibition the supreme issue in this campaign.

And well she may make this the supreme issue. Nothing in the last two years of Government Sale would tend to change that view. In spite of the fact that the county as a whole is under Local Option or No License except in Morrisburg, the liquor traffic has persisted in ignoring these Prohibitory laws and has "slopped over" into our county. What the people have seen and heard in the last two years has proven to them that Ontario cannot drink 50 million dollars worth of Booze, and not suffer in economic, industrial, social and moral conditions. Many of the people of the county drive the main highways with the possibility ever before them of an accident at the hands of an intoxicated driver. They fear for their young people on an evening's pleasure that they may yield to the enticements of drinking friends. Young people of both sexes and often under age have been known to drink and often become maudlin. All the old bootleggers are still on the job, and now bootleggers are at the game. In our villages, many a Saturday evening he plies his trade, or near to social gatherings, and the evidence of it is seen and heard on our streets and roads. Not one of the promised benefits of Liquor Sale has materialized and the people of this county know it well. Three years ago they had to go to Quebec for evidence of what Liquor Sale could do, today they have the evidence before their eyes, and the people of Dundas are going to act on that evidence. They feel that the only way to register their demand for Prohibition is to send to Toronto a man who will stand first, last and all the time for Prohibition. Running with only two planks in his platform "Prohibition and Independence", and backed by his well-known activity for Prohibition in the county for 40 years, the people are rallying back of Mr. Beach to gain another victory for the cause.

"Buckskin and Ermine"

Book-Review Sermon—By the Rev. Dr. J. Stanley Durkee of Historic Old Plymouth Church (Henry Ward Beecher's Church) Brooklyn, N.Y., Sunday Evening, Jan. 27th, 1929.

Text—Genesis, 31st Chap., 40th Verse—"The Lord watch between me and thee when we are absent one from the other."

"Buckskin and Ermine"—By Amelia MacMillan Lambkin (of our own city and head of the Welcome Home for Girls, who is a teacher and preacher in this great realm of human life and human stability) which tells of Spiritual living and teaching.

"Buckskin and Ermine"—the title very naturally leads one to God's great out-of-doors. We expect to wander down the glades as the evening comes on and the stars shine out in the heavens. We expect to see the wild animals as they come near and then see them skulk away in their fear. We expect to see the Indians around the teepee and the smoke of the camp-fire and we are not disappointed, for it is all there.

In this story one feels the holiness of the evening hour; one watches the camp-fire's glow; one watches the coming of night; one feels the quietness of the forest in the eventide. Last summer I was in Ireland and as I read this little book I could hear the Sabbath bells, for every church in Ireland has its bells, and I was reminded of Moore's poem on the Bells of Shandon—

"Those evening bells, those evening bells
How many a tale their music tells
Of youth and home and that blest time
When last I heard their merry chime."

I was also reminded of "The Rock of Ages" and "Abide with Me" and sundown closing over the green and beautiful Isle.

Does God keep watch twixt thee and me? This story makes more real the words of this text, and makes true its every word. This story says "I believe" and "I know". It is a story of home, of God's loving care, of the great out-of-doors.

I gather three thoughts from this book:

First—The book teaches God's love of the out-of-doors. Lord Byron said, "There's a rapture in the lonely woods" etc. Our author tells there is no time of day like daybreak in the forest. St. Peter has always been my special favorite of the Disciples. When troubles were pressing around him Peter said "I go a-fishing," and blessed is the man who can go a-fishing and forget the troubles of the world—that man knows the sublime love of the out-of-doors.

Secondly—We get the lesson of a great over-ruling Providence. This book begins with the quotation from the great English author,

"There's a divinity which shapes our ends Rough-hew them how we will."

The keynote of the book is—God is in control. Whittier said "And so beside the silent sea I wait, etc." . . . God is in control of His world There is an overuling Providence. This story ... there were marks by which the Indian boy and girl were known in after years—identification marks. What are the identification marks God puts on His children? Wordsworth says that God has put the stamp of His divinity on every soul ... mark of individuality will never be obliterated.

There is a quotation given at the beginning of one of the chapters of this book that I have always loved,

"God's plans like lilies pure and white unfold
We must not tear the close-shut leaves apart
Time will reveal the calyxes of pure gold."

How beautifully the poet expresses it—God will reveal to you your mission.

And the third thought—This little book teaches genuine love. I grow weary as the years go by, reading and hearing of those who would drag love from its Holy Plane to the plane of vileness and filth, but this is a story of gentle love, as sweet as the odor of the rose. Love . . . sweet and beautiful hearting, strengthening, that great unknown something we call LOVE. There was the love of the young mother who removed her own garments and put them around the little babe that she might not freeze and then laid down beside her and gave up her own life. Then the love of the Indian mother Me-Me who had no children of her own and mothers and teaches the little Dawn. The chieftan loved and was devoted to the white boy Arrow Point. You find it in the children who were wandering for years. In the young man and the young woman. They had such a love as blesses and brightens and beautifies. The Almighty never granted anything so beautiful as the love for one and another. The old story—old as the first two hearts which came together. Now—as the boy and girl who whispered again last night "I love you."

If you are looking for a story of tragedy, blinding passions or thrilling moments, do not read this book for you will not find them there. If you are looking for a story of the unquestionable or the indecent do not read this book. You will not find such decay there. But if you are looking for something to read at one sitting—If you are looking for quiet repose when burdens have been heavy to bear—settle down under the reading lamp in a warm room when the blustering storms beat against your window pane and reach for this little book.

It is one of the most beautiful stories it has been my privilege to read for many months. The story of human lives and faith in God's watchful care. In it you shall find comfort. you shall find rest. It will be as the sugar in your coffee, and maybe your eyes will grow dim. You will like the pure beauty of the story of God's great out-of-doors and perchance you may repeat

"God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son."

The second edition of "Buckskin and Ermine" is now on sale at Bolster's.

Young Man—Why is it that the elderly unmarried ladies are so fond of cats?

Miss Leftover—Well, you see, as we were not able to get a man, it's quite reasonable that we bestow a little care on the second most disagreeable animal on earth.

"HOW OLD IS ANN?"

We do not profess to give an answer as to the number of years which Ann has lived, or the number of birthdays which she has celebrated, because we are quite willing to leave the solution of that problem to the mathematicians, or to those who enjoy struggling with such puzzles. The reason why we refer to Ann's age is because this gives us the opportunity to point out to our readers that there are more ways of determining age than by counting years. By this we mean that the real age of a person is not represented by the number of years passed since his birthday, but rather by the condition of his body at the present time.

The body is frequently likened to a machine or an engine. The body differs from any other machine in that when a part is worn out, it cannot be replaced. The true age of the body is shown by the condition of the various essential parts. If they show signs of wear, then the body is growing old, regardless of the number of birthdays passed. Old age is merely the wearing out of the body machine, and health work seeks to prevent a premature old age by protecting the body from needless strains, and by warning against the over-indulgences which are responsible for many of the breaks during the years when fitness should be maintained.

If we were asked to determine Ann's age on this basis, we would want to know the condition of her heart, her arteries, her kidneys, her lungs, and of these, particularly, would be interested in heart, arteries and kidneys, because it is in these organs that the first signs of wear are usually seen. We would then want to know how Ann lives. What does she eat? Does she get sufficient rest and recreation? In other words, does she live a hygenic life? Knowing the actual condition of her body and her manner of living, we would know much more about her true age than does the mathematician who solves the problem.

October Dishes

By Etta Bitta Pye.

With cooler weather, hot dishes begin to come into their own. Cold soups become hot; cold meats are now hot and delicious; even the dessert may be a hot one occasionally.

The body begins to take on fuel for the winter. Salads are sweetened and a touch of sugar is added to the cooked vegetables to furnish quick energy food and bring out additional flavor. Here are two recipes that fit particularly well into October's food needs:

VEGETABLE SOUFFLE.

1 cup left-over vegetables
1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon sugar
½ cup milk
2 eggs
salt
pepper

Add the flour to the butter which has been melted in a sausepan, and blend until smooth. Add the water slowly, while stirring to keep smooth. Cook one minute, stirring constantly. Then add the milk. Pour the mixture over the eggs which have been beaten until light, and to which have been added sugar, salt and pepper. Add mixture to the vegetables which have been placed in buttered baking dish. Bake in slow oven until souffle is set—about 40 minutes.

DRESSING FOR FRUIT SALAD.

4 egg yolks
4 tablespoons flour
4 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup pineapple juice
½ cup lemon juice
½ cup water

Add to the egg yolks, after they have been well beaten, the flour, sugar, salt, mustard and pepper. Blend thoroughly; then add the remaining ingredients. Cook in a double boiler until the dressing is thick and creamy, stirring constantly to avoid lumps.

The Spirit of 1796

Credit should be given the Detroit News for unearthing the following advertisement of 1796, through which a citizen of Philadelphia sought to procure a suitable servant.

"Wanted for a sober family a man of light weight who fears the Lord and can drive a pair of horses. He must occasionally wait at table, join in household prayer, look after the horses and read a chapter of the Bible. He must, God willing, rise at 7 in the morning and obey his master and his mistress in all lawful commands; if he can dress hair, sing psalms and play cribbage the more agreeable. He must not be familiar with the maid servants, lest the flesh rebel against the spirit and he should be induced to walk in the thorny paths of the wicked. Wages, 15 guineas a year."

Cornwall Commercial College — the school you will attend if you investigate

The "C.C.C." is an intensive Business Training School which, in a few months time, thoroughly prepares young men and women for the most exacting requirements of the business world. We believe we can contribute no greater service to the youth of this country.

A "C.C.C." training is always an asset. The services of graduates always in demand. Secretarial studies and higher accountancy for university and high school graduates. Individual instruction under a staff of business experts.

Beginning students may enter on any school day. Complete information upon request.
