

Newington population '?' this week-end--

'Class B' Stormont County Fair this Fri., Sat., and Mon.

Stormont Fair at Newington is ready. The last of the flags are up and the grounds are in the best shape ever. Entries have been flooding in and secretary Joyce Evans stated the executive feel one of the best yet will begin on Friday of this week. It will be a three-day show, with Saturday and Monday offering full bills of entertainment.

The fair this year suffered the loss of its hard-working president, Arthur Zeran, a booster of Newington and district and the Stormont Fair was felled by a heart attack recently. The executive members have continued with their efforts and the fair is entering its first Class B show full of confidence.

Friday will see most of the exhibits in place and ready for judging at 1 p.m. The midway of ferris wheel and rides will be in full swing.

Saturday will find the fair opened by the Honourable George Gomme. The day will include the cattle shows, horse classes, sheep and swine and of course a pair of fast horse races during the afternoon.

In the evening a Teen-age dance will be staged on the open-air pavilion. The Optimist Club of Cornwall pipe band will entertain during the afternoon and a ball tournament will keep things interesting in the infield. Labour Day, Monday should be a memorable one. The Stormont Dairy Princess, Ruth Caruthers will be on hand to be serenaded by the Smiths Falls Children's pipe band. Another ball tournament will be staged and the 4-H competitions will bring out the young showmen. The Guernsey club show will be held and the children's cattle classes will take their places. Two more horse races will be things up and in the evening a big wind-up dance will fill the pavilion once again.

Stormont County Fair will be one to enjoy this year. Follow the crowds to Newington over the week-end.

The barber pole with spiral stripes is a relic of the days when barbers were also medical and dental surgeons.

The old village has been ripped and torn of late. A water system a couple of years ago opened the seams of the streets and unearthed the undisturbed soil of the ancient roads. That has been just patched and laid when along come the gas pipe liners. They swept up and down the roads, alleys and lanes with gay abandon. As they went they buried a bright yellow pipe, covered the hole like a busy pup with a bone, and tore up a new piece of road.

One thing we must say about the pipe people, they try successfully to please. The town has had a few complaints but they have all been so minor, one could hardly call them complaints. The lads may be rough and ready when it comes to making a necessary hole. They have had long experience in filling in the gap and smoothing it over.

The town fathers live under a barrage of questions, some delicate, some indelicate. There have been some misgivings about allowing a private utility lay a gas main system in the municipality and the councillors have heard about it. The answer has always been the same. When a voter is multiplied by about 700, there is a certain inherent responsibility in being the resulting elected official. If the voters feel they need another source of energy, then the village government tries to provide it.

Gas, the natural burning kind, is fine fuel and used in tremendous quantities throughout the world. It is something of a dirty word in the Ottawa area but a brand new installation is a far cry from the patchwork business the capital city calls her gas works. We have now a distribution system as modern as the latest hydro-electric installation. The two systems will compete. Cheterville also will offer one more advantage to anyone thinking of settling in the village.

For ourselves here at the Castle, we have had gas for years. Sadly enough, we refer to the kind that rises on a sultry summer night from the surface of the moat. It has a delicate effluvia that makes mosquitoes stumble in full flight. For years we wondered why our friends always approached the drawbridge from the windy side. Long research has led us to believe it had something to do with our "natural gas." Of late we hear the Ontario government is going to set up a special conservation area. They are determined to get us out of the private gas business. We will let you know about the "Crumbs Castle Colic, Gas and Conservation Authority" when it becomes official.

Chesterville Fair has record first day 4-H Competition, pony show, dairy princess Chesterville Fair had one of the busiest first days yet. The big 4-H show, a bi-annual affair with South Mountain, brought a large turnout of young cattle to the grounds. The kids did themselves proud with their shiny calves.

The new exhibition hall, rising from the frame of the small building, was thronged. Temporary tables offered a resting place for a mass of delicious food; flowers were massed along one wall and the exhibits of school children made a brave show. Needles must have been busy during the past winter. A fine display of crafts was on hand and some of the paintings were imaginative and striking.

An excellent entry in hay and grain was experienced and promised to give the judge a busy time.

Robertson's Shows were doing a land office business. Mr Robertson has his new ferris wheel in operation as well as the usual number of merry-go-rounds, spinners and other delights for the young. By press time the booths and stands were all in operation and ready for a big day. Cattle and horses have filled the tie-ups waiting their turns in the rings. As this is written with the fair still to hold its final day, it looks like one of the best. Next week we will carry a full list of the winners.

The pony show and dairy princess shows filled the grounds after the supper hour. Nearly 30 ponies were on hand to go through their paces.

Five girls competed for the dairy princess honors. They were Annette Duncan, Lynda Thompson, Stella Robinson, Edna Pyper and Helen Stoodley.

The girls made a speech, milked a cow and washed up their equipment. Judges finally settled on Edna Pyper as the top winner.

Fair president Allan McRoberts was on hand to present one of the prizes. Among the donors were Nestle Canada Ltd, Cheterville and Ault's Creamery, Winchester.

Miss Pyper received her crown from the hands of a former Ontario and National dairy princess, Mrs Carolyn McRae.

Helen Stoodley was second in the contest and the other girls were close runners-up.

Judges were Clare Merkle, Department of Trade and Commerce, Mrs McRae and Dr. Max McLean, E. B. I. General Manager, Kemptville.

Chesterville C. of C. meets

The regular meeting of the Chesterville Chamber of Commerce was held on Monday evening with a good attendance.

The "Be A Booster" decal was introduced, which is sponsored by the Eastern Ontario Development Association. It was moved and passed that decals be purchased and distributed for sale. The decals entitle the holders to a chance on valuable prizes.

Members were introduced to Renato Gianturco, a veterinarian and new member who is now residing in the village.

It was noted in the minutes that no action or reply has been forthcoming from council regarding street signs and house numbers. It was agreed that a reminder be forwarded.

The meeting adjourned at 10 p.m.

LABOUR DAY

Monday, September 5, will be observed as a holiday all across Canada. All places of business in the village of Cheterville will be closed all day. Householders are asked to make note of this fact and stock up accordingly.

Miss Heuff was presented with a corsage and escorted to the platform along with her mother Mrs A. Heuff and Mrs Lightfoot.

An address was read by Mrs Ian McIntosh and many lovely gifts were presented by Miss Nancy Smirle and Mrs Bourgeois for which Miss Heuff expressed her appreciation.

Miss Carol Merkle honoured at shower

Prior to her marriage, Miss Carol Merkle was honored at a miscellaneous shower, attended by about 60 of her friends, neighbours and relatives in the dining hall of Trinity United.

The bride-to-be and her mother, Mrs Harold E. Merkle were met at the door and corsages were pinned on them by Miss Corrie VanKessel and Miss Carol Beckstead. They were escorted to chairs, while her sister Mrs Harry McRoberts, played "Here Comes the Bride."

Mrs James Barkley read an address and presented Carol with a nicely decorated bride's book. She was presented with many beautiful and useful gifts. They were passed around for all to see. Miss Merkle then replied, thanking all for the gifts and the shower.

Stormont County Fair will be held September 2, 3 and 5.

4-H members participate in annual competition at Ottawa Exhibition

Eighteen 4-H Agricultural Club members from Dundas County took part in the Annual 4-H Competition which was held on August 22 - 24, at the Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa.

Dundas County did exceptionally well this year in the Open Judging Competition. In the Junior Division, there were 195 contestants. Hugh Garlough, R. R. 2, Williamsburg, won this event with a score of 474 out of 500. He was closely followed by another Dundas 4-H member, Marlene McMenomy, Inkerman, who had a score of 472. Merla McMenomy, also of Inkerman, placed 5th.

Junior contestants had to judge six classes which consisted of Jerseys, Ayrshires, Herefords, Swine Carcasses, Hay and Barley.

In the Intermediate Division, Dale Keyes of South Mountain, placed 16th and Stuart Leyenaar, Winchester Springs, was 17th out of 70 competitors. Bruce Garlough, Williamsburg, stood 13th out of 31 contestants in the Senior Division.

During the 4-H Camp this year, the emphasis was placed on Education and Careers. During the three day Camp, the campers visited the Ontario Vocational Centre, Eastern Ontario Institute of Technology and Carleton University. At each of these institutions the 4-H members heard the Principal or his representative outline the programs which his college offered. They also gave the 4-H members guided tours and Dean Richards of the University of Guelph addressed the group regarding agriculture degrees and diplomas. At the conclusion of this program the 4-H members wrote a quiz on Careers. A total of 93 teams participated.

C. Council approves road work

A special session of United Counties Council Thursday authorized road work in the United Counties which will total approximately $90,000. The major portion of the road work will be done next year.

By-laws were passed authorizing approximately $65,000 worth of work on County Road 18, between St. Andrew and Martin-town.

Work on the six mile stretch of road involves expropriating enough property to provide for an 86 foot right-of-way. Only a 40 foot right-of-way is provided now.

In 1967 the 18 foot pavement now existing will be widened to 22 feet and a four foot shoulder provided where none now exists.

Several curves and hills which are considered hazardous will be reconstructed to eliminate or reduce the danger.

A sharp curve which now exists on County Road 19, about one half mile southwest of Williamsburg, will be improved at a cost of approximately $5,000.

County Road 8 known as The Church Road, running between Township, is now under construction.

The one mile stretch of road is being improved and is expected to be completed this year. Total cost is expected to be approximately $20,000.

Counties council also passed a bylaw updating the county road system. The bylaw was necessary to return to the municipality small pieces of roadway which are no longer in use because curves of jogs in the road have been eliminated.

A second bylaw was passed removing from the county road system, roads which have been taken over by the provincial government.

OPP report reveals accident rate higher

O.P.P. officers this week patrolled 8408 miles of highway and secondary roads in a total of 571 duty hours. This resulted in 94 traffic charges being laid and 19 warnings issued. The accident rate was somewhat higher with 11 incidents being reported and investigated. Of these 1 was a personal injury accident in which 3 persons suffered personal injury and were sent to hospital. 2 charges were laid under The Liquor Control Act of Ontario and 2 charges of impaired driving were preferred.

3 thefts and 1 break-enter and theft which were reported are presently under investigation. 2 calls were answered to disturbances caused by fighting and drinking. Officers also answered 25 other calls which included lost articles, complaints of erratic driving, cattle on highway, and some property damage. 4 charges under the Criminal Code of Canada arose out of these occurrences.

A total of 12 hours was spent in the courts with 146 convictions being registered.

It would be safe to assume that in many of our accidents, liquor is a contributing factor. So — if you must drive while you drink, drive a nail. Then the only bones you break will be your fingers.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to thank our friends, neighbours and relatives who sent cards and congratulatory messages and made our 64th wedding anniversary a success.

John and Laura Ostler.

OPINIONS ... OURS AND OTHERS

The rail strike and Chesterville district

The sound of trains roaring through the village crossing is stilled. It is strange to lie awake at night and not have the distant rumble and thud of diesels on the air. It is frightening.

The unions of Canada soon will have to face their responsibilities as members of the business community. Not all are in need of too much change, but some unions in the vital public services work in the pattern of 1920. It hardly applies in this day and age.

The railways have always been hard bargainers. The West was won when the ribbons of steel bound the coasts together. The cost is still being paid and historians still battle over whether Canada paid through the nose for the large gain of private enterprise. Labour forces on the railroads from the lowly section hand to the white collar station agent were underpaid for years. Like the banks, it was deemed in the public interest to work for the CP or the CN even though the wage scale was rather lower than other less secure positions. Slow change has remedied many of the inequalities and a forceful set of railroad unions have made themselves felt.

Somewhere along the line, reason has given way to force. While we know only what we read and hear about the intransigence of railroad management, we do know the non-ops have shut down the railroads and have demanded a wad of increased pay. The union speakers have publicly stated they care not what the government of Canada does, as long as they get a mythical figure of 30 per cent increase. If that is not forthcoming, then the strike will continue and even the government will be defied.

This 30 per cent figure is a fancy figment. The cry is that longshoremen and river workers got that figure. The strident shouters forget the dock and river workers here in the icy East work only six months of the year at the job. The rest of the year it is usually another fill-in job or unemployment insurance. The non-op is at the switch or desk 12 months of the year.

This refusal to abide by a government or even union management order is the thing that sticks in this editor's crop. Since when does anarchy take over in the labour halls of this land? It can be no other form of rule than anarchy when the law is defied. We remember well a sample of that type of thing on the docks of Quebec. There the forces of law and order were swept aside with impunity. While it is all very well to threaten members of Parliament with half a million lost votes, what about the other nineteen and a half million people who make up Canada? If the right to strike includes the right to make rules of behaviour outside the laws of the land, then it is time to correct the right to strike. Responsible leadership in unions and railroads must answer to the common voice of reason. Railroads must pay wages on a par with other industries; railroads must be allowed the right to get out from under some 1898 conventions that proscribe their right to set realistic rate changes. They must be able to pay wage increases without automatic subsidies from the government of the day. The Diefenbaker government had to pick up a $50 million tab for the 1960 unpleasantness.

Labour unions seem to have lost the vital linking emotion that made labour management a true part of the working man and his plight. We find steel workers hooting their labour managers into silence when they offer a hard won agreement that tops anything in North America for the steelers. We hear sudden outbursts from interviewed railroad workers. They say the government will not have a say in whether they work or not; they will only agree to work if they get all they ask and fiddle-de-dee to anything else.

We hope the strike will have ended before this edition of the "Record" comes alive. The country is paralyzed in more ways than one when the rails are not humming. And the strikers will have a hungry wait before they see any strike pay.

We hope enough cool heads are in command when the final decisions must be made. Canada's economic life depends on the big bulk carriers. When they are out of business the lifelines of the country become thin and uncertain.

Grade 13 results still too late

The bleating and moaning over the way Grade 13 exam results arrive late still is continuing in this province, observes the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder. After next year, marking will be done on a local level, something which also has been criticized.

However, since record numbers wrote Grade 13 exams in Ontario, it was more or less inevitable that marks couldn't be produced until mid-August as they have been in past years. This occurred despite the fact 200 additional paper markers were engaged. However, it should be remembered they had to deal with a quarter of a million exam papers.

The system has been called unfair in many quarters because it prevents candidates from applying for admission to universities or colleges until the results are known. Does it? The pupil who looks forward sends in his application in April or May. Of course, its acceptance must await exam results.

There are, however, thousands who put off until the last minute sending of university entrance applications. Net result is universities, teachers' colleges and other institutions of high learning are simply swamped after Grade 13 results are announced. This need not be so, if the students looked ahead, selected the college of their choice and made application for entrance well in advance.

BURN OLD RASPBERRY CANES TO CONTROL DISEASE

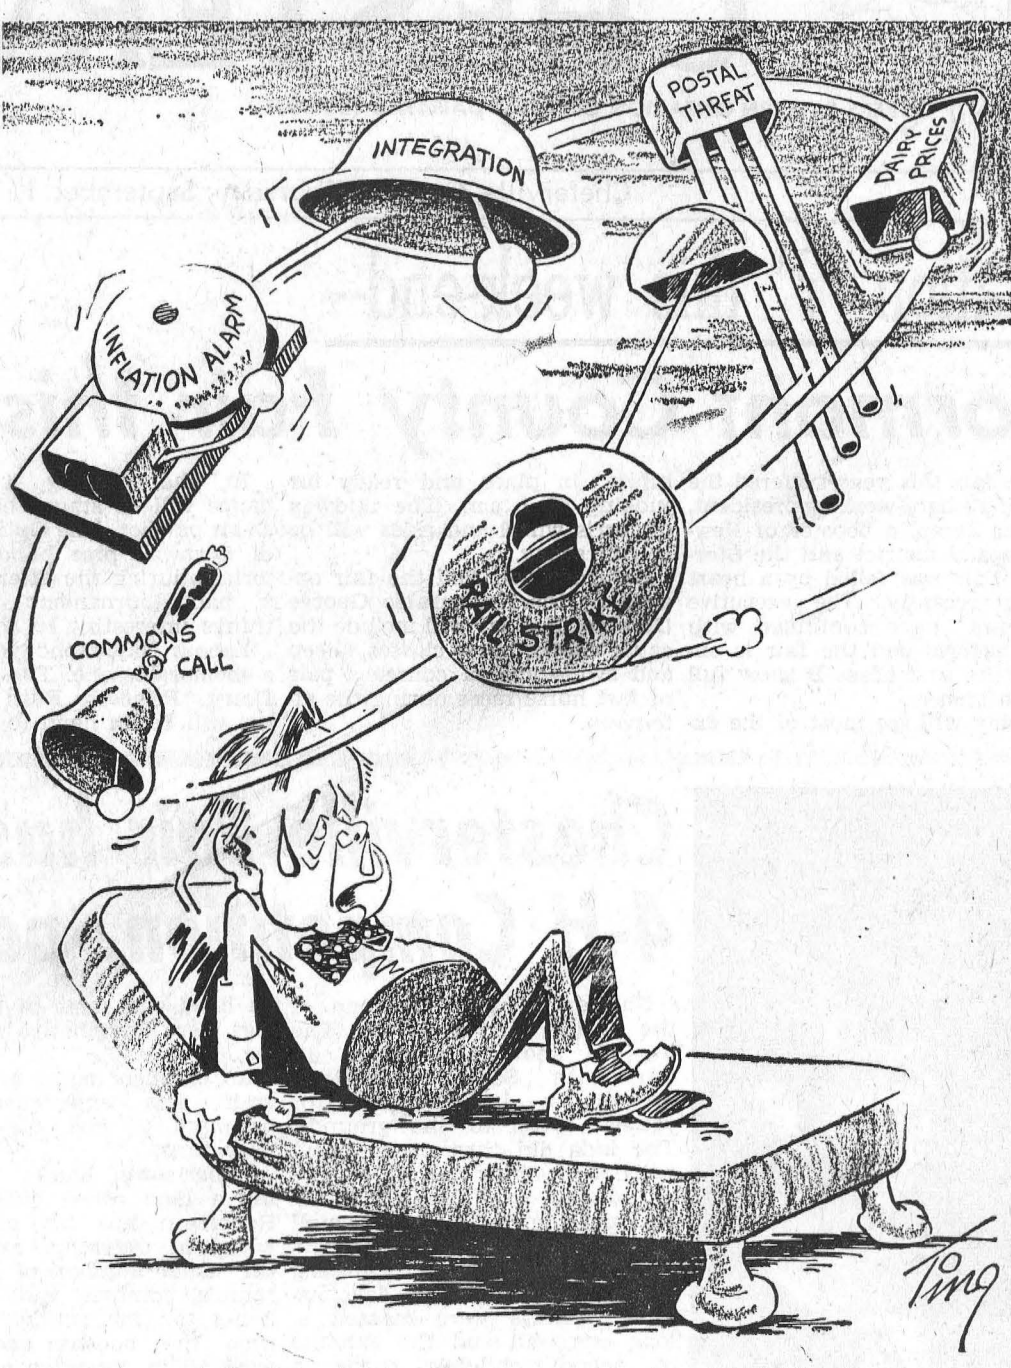

Whether in a home garden or commercial planting, don't wait to get the last late berry. Cut the old fruiting canes as soon as picking is finished. Remove the canes from the rows and burn them.

"Removing old raspberry canes after the crop is picked helps to control anthracnose and spur blight, two common fungus diseases of raspberries," explains biologist Professor C. B. Kelly, Ontario Agricultural College, University of Guelph. "This prevents further spread of fungus spores from diseased old canes to the new canes providing next year's crop."

"In most plantings, cutting off the old fruit canes and burning them is sufficient to keep these fungi under control. When these diseases are prevalent and the season turns wet, however, a schedule of fungicide sprays is needed as well. In such circumstances, consult the fruit spray calendars available from county offices of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food."

Try dipping your favourite fish fillets in rolled cereal flakes. The nutty flavour of the cereal brings out the subtle flavour of either baked or fried fish.

Garnet Dennison

Gloom settled over the community when it was learned that Garnet Dennison had passed away Wednesday afternoon, August 17, in Cornwall General Hospital, after an illness of only five days, following surgery.

Born at Archer on February 17, 1907, he was the son of the late George Dennison and his wife, Eliza Winters.

He received his education in area schools and at the time of his death was employed by Caldwell Linen Mills, Iroquois. He was trustee of the local school board for a number of years before it was absorbed into the school area.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, the former Mildred Swerdfeger, whom he married in 1932; two sons, Lorne, R.R. 1, Morrisburg, and Lyle, at home, who attends C.C.V.S., Cornwall. A daughter, Dolores, predeceased him in infancy in 1939.

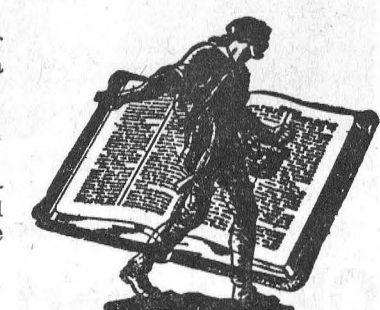

The funeral was held Friday, August 19, at 2 p.m., from Trinity United Church, Ingleside, of which he was a member, with Rev Harold Giffin offering words of hope and sympathy to the bereaved family.

Being of a kind and friendly disposition, always ready to lend a helping hand and a good neighbour, won for him the love and respect of all who knew him. The large attendance at the funeral and the many beautiful floral tributes testified to the esteem in which he was held.

The pall bearers were all neighbours of the deceased, Ross Dafoe, Fred Jarvis, Jake Casselman, Raymond Dafoe, Glenn Dafoe and Frank Dafoe.

Interment was in St. Lawrence Valley Union Cemetery.

THE BIBLE TODAY..

To meet the needs created by the literacy explosion in Central and South America, a new Spanish translation of the New Testament has just been published. Produced in a colourful paperback edition, this new issue of the Christian Scriptures is designed particularly for new readers and others unfamiliar with the literacy language. Many more highly educated people, also appreciate reading the contemporary language.

Selections and individual books of this Spanish Version Popular New Testament have been published separately by the Bible Society during the past few years.

The Bible began to appear in Spanish as early as 1490. In 1965 nearly 15 million copies of the Scriptures were circulated in the total. Other countries with over a million circulation were Colombia, Mexico and Venezuela. Most of these were sold, but at a price within the means of the prospective reader of the Word

WHAT'S IN A WIG?

What do Portugal, Indonesia, South Korea, Yugoslavia and Poland have in common? Good hair, that's what. In case you're not sure what good hair is—it's unbleached, uncoloured, untinted, non-straightened, non-permamented and generally non-tortured, in the ways of North America.

All of these countries annually export pounds and pounds of finest hair in the land to North American wig makers. First-class blonde Scandinavian hair, generally reputed to be the finest available, sells for $150 a pound. Wigs account for an eight million dollar business in Canada.

Hair is graded according to quality and length before it is sold to the wig makers in one pound bundles, starting at $25 a pound for the poorest quality. After dyeing, the hair is sewn onto a nylon thread, then applied in a circular pattern to a net cap made of stiffened silk and cotton. The process is partly done by machine, partly by hand. The finished wig resembles an English thatched roof before styling, but once skilled hairdressers go to work on the hair, it quickly takes on shape. The cost of a wig is not cheap, but any woman with stringy hair who has the day saved by one of the beautifully combed creations, will attest that they're worth every penny.

SOMEDAY DINNER MAY BE THE TABLE

Dinner tonight? How about fillet of salmon. Ragout de Douglas fir? Sauteed spruce? A cedar salad?

Not quite a contemporary menu, but its almost foreseeable when one talks to Dr Warren L. Kitts of the University of British Columbia who is working on wood consumption as a new way to beat high food prices.

So far, the only connoisseurs of wood have been beavers and habitual toothpick munchers, but Dr Kitt's project—aided by a $4,300 grant from the federal government—is studying the use of wood in beef cattle rations.

His search is for enzymes to break down the compound of cellulose and fibre that makes wood.

The resulting substance, says Dr Kitts, may replace barley as a staple food of beef cattle. Barley is becoming expensive and agriculturists want to reduce the use of it.

Dr Kitts says he has already successfully tried feeding unprocessed maple sawdust to cattle.

"But the processed wood would be similar in nutritional value to the starch in grain," Kitts and his two graduate-student assistants will experiment with sawdust and chips from alder, poplar and cottonwood as well as maple trees.

He says a diet of wood will have "no effect whatsoever" on the quality of beef.

And from there, he says, it's possible the same substance will be used for human feed.

"Eventually, wood may be fit for human consumption and perhaps even quite tasty."

CARRYING PLYWOOD ON CAR ROOF

Here is an easy way to secure fir plywood panels to the top of a car without the bother of regular carriers.

Place the panels on the roof of the car, first spreading a piece of blanketing to protect the finish.

Then use four C-clamps to hold the pieces of fir plywood tightly together. Bits of felt or cardboard under the faces of the clamps will prevent them marking the plywood.

Now all that remains to be done is to attach cord through the C-clamps and tie it to the nearest door handles.

If the plywood is to be taken some distance, it might be advisable to fasten additional clamps to the ends of the panels so that cords may be run from the radiator and the trunk door handle to prevent the load shifting when stopping or starting.

BUNS SHOT FROM GUNS TO PLANT TREES

Buns fired from guns may someday be used to change treeless hillsides into lush, green forests.

The reforestation idea is that of Jack Walters, a University of British Columbia research forester who is experimenting with growing seedlings in plastic foam buns.

The buns contain a mixture of plant food and a seed.

Early growth will begin under controlled greenhouse conditions. A planting gun will be used to sow the seedlings—a procedure faster than hand methods.

As the planted seedlings develop, the foam bun will break away as the growing roots force it to disintegrate.

Prime advantage of the bun, Mr Walters said, is that it would protect young roots and avoid the necessity of moving the seedlings around in earth.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a teen-ager who has grown very old in the last two months. May I ask a question of the millions of teen-agers who read your column religiously?

If you kids knew that your mother or dad had two months to live would you be satisfied with the way you have treated them?

When was the last time you told your parents that you appreciate the things they have done for you—I mean actually told them in words? When was the last time you went out of your way to let your parents know that you love and respect them? When did you last give your mom or dad a compliment or did something especially nice for them?

Death often comes unexpectedly! You have no way of knowing whether your mom or dad have six months, six years or sixty years left. The time to think about it is today. If you haven't been the kind of son or daughter you should have been, start doing something about it now.

If I had read a letter like this even a year ago I would have done a lot of things differently. Now it's too late.—A Son Who Failed.

Dear Son: Thank you for your letter. A teen-ager who is capable of writing such an honest and touching letter was probably a better son than he realizes.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell us who should take out the garbage. Is it the man's job or the woman's job?

For the past three years the Anglican, United and Presbyterian Churches have joined together to offer the children of Ingleside and surrounding community a week of inspiration and a clearer meaning of a Christian life.

Monday morning, August 15, this year's school opened in Rothwell Public School. The children arrived for registration eager for a week of learning, fellowship and fun. Total registration was 111 with an average attendance of 99. Mrs. Harold Giffin was director of the school, the theme being "The Church."

Most every morning they assembled in the auditorium for a film. Some of the films shown were "The Story of the Church," "Learning Church Manners," "Let's Meet Doreen," "Lit-Lit Makes Wishes Come True" and "Jesus, Friend of Children Everywhere" which explained the printing and distribution of the booklet of the same name in the Congo Republic.

The kindergarten department, which was held in the church hall of St. Matthew's Presbyterian Church, was under the leadership of Mrs. Dorothy Morgan, Mrs. Willie Rutley and Miss Karen Grant, assisted by Miss Marilyn Duprau, Miss Linda Rutley and Miss Ruby Liscomb. There were 29 children in this group, ages 4, 5 and 6, being dealt with according to age. The theme was "Our Church." Here realization of the church as a special place helps children develop proper attitudes toward it and each other which they can carry with them forever. The film "Akwa and Her Picture" was shown to them one day. The children made booklets entitled "Our Friendly Church," cardboard horses, lollypop dolls, peanut birds and stained glass windows.

The Primary department was divided into three groups according to their grade in school. Grades One and Two were under the leadership of Miss Mary Dixon and Miss Gail Brownell. Grades Three and Four, led by Mrs. Oliver Gallinger, and Mrs. W. Scott led Grades Four and Five. The theme was "The Church, The People of God." Their sessions covered a wide variety of subjects on church life, worship, fellowship, study, witness and service—all emphasized in interesting and creative ways.

Miss Dixon's and Miss Brownell's group made church trip-ticks with stained glass windows, church booklets of prayers, a wall mural "Going from Home to Church for Worship," mosaic wall plaques and cor hot plate mats.

Mrs. Gallinger's group made miniature churches, murals, posters, booklets and stained glass windows. Mrs. Scott's group made mottos with Bible verses and hymns, booklets, "My Bible Work," and posters, "Go to Church." They also learned a Bible verse to recite each day.

The Junior department, "The Church at Work and Worship," was led by Mrs. C. Anderson, assisted by Miss R. Nephew. Their program supplied necessary details for giving unity and vision of great potentials as an instrument of strength in the church. Their projects were stained glass windows, letter holders made of wood and they learned a Bible verse to recite each day.

Rev. and Mrs. James D. Ibbott gave life and vitality to a group of Intermediate Seniors, having discussion groups under the theme "The Church and My Life." Rev. H. Giffin assisted as a discussion leader. Responsibility to the church as an individual was dealt with and how these children find their place in the community of worship, witness, and the people of God.

On Thursday they went on a tour of the churches. At the Roman Catholic Church Rev. H. LaPierre conducted the group and answered their questions. Rev. Wm. Craig from St. Luke's Presbyterian Church, Finch, and Rev. Andrew Moffat, from the Baptist Church, spoke to the children and answered questions concerning the differences and similarities of the churches. Due to the keen interest shown by the group the tour of the United and Anglican Churches was continued on Friday. The school was further enriched by the visit of Pastor Allan Buckman, Lutheran minister from North Dakota, on his way to Nigeria with his family. The handicrafts of this group were taught by Mrs. H. Rowden. Some of the children became carpenters and made beautiful book ends while other expressed their feelings in stained glass windows for worship centres.

Each group sang old hymns, learned some new ones and also learned some nonsense songs and played games.

Refreshments were served each day to all the groups. Mrs. Gordon Hall, Mrs. John A. Steward, Mrs. Balkwell and Mrs. Donald Malone were in the kitchens with Mrs. Hawley, Mrs. C. A. Meyers, Mrs. John Cross, Mrs. S. Ransom, Mrs. Lucy Scott, Mrs. Ernie Gillard and Mrs. G. Wells taking turns assisting.

Mrs. Allan Beaudette looked after registration, assisted by Mrs. Garth Grant, Mrs. Tom Rupert,

Mrs. Carl Tinkess, Bert Mattice, Miss Marilyn Duprau and Miss Mavis Amell. Mrs. Merton Collins provided transportation for those who required it. Others called upon to do various favours at the school were Mr. A. A. Morrison, Mr. Chas. McConnell, Mrs. R. Hebert and Bert Mattice.

The children's gifts were sent to support of Christian education in countries around the world through Bible story booklets and picture packets in the native languages.

Parents and friends were extended an invitation to visit the school on Saturday morning to view the displays and listen to the proud accounts of the children. Seventy-three certificates were awarded for perfect attendance.

Select the tree for surroundings

Tree planting is an important investment for you and your property. If you intend to plant this fall, now is the time to give thought to what tree would serve you best. The beauty and value of your home can both be enhanced with a little planning before planting, and horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food offer suggestions toward helping you make the most of your tree investment.

Stand back and have a good look at your property. Think of the size of tree you desire in relation to the house and other surrounding features. A mature tree which is either too large or too small will offer very little reward for your efforts. Consider the purpose the new tree, or trees, will serve. Your requirements may be one of several; providing shade, screening an eyesore, framing a view, forming a windbreak, or displaying a specimen tree.

There are five different tree shapes and these should be considered when making your selection. Most globe-shaped trees such as mountain ash are quite low-growing (20 to 35 feet) and can provide good screening. Vase-shaped trees such as red oak grow larger and make excellent shade trees. Pyramidal in appearance, trees such as the linden and littleleaf linden make ideal specimen trees for a special site in the garden. The thin, erect, columnar trees, including the Lombard poplar and several species of beech, are effective when used to frame a view or provide a windscreen. The weeping trees, including birch, can add both interest and beauty to a home. In addition to basic shapes, trees should be chosen for other qualities as well. Consider the foliage colour, texture, blossoms and bark character. Remember too that personal preference is important. No tree is a good tree if you don't enjoy having it. All these qualities should add to make a new tree on your property, but a rather important element in the overall landscape design.

Just as you expect certain requirements from a tree, it also demands certain conditions in order to thrive. Choose a tree with adequate hardiness for Ontario climatic conditions and one with known disease resistance. Ensure that adequate soil, moisture, and light will be available, and that competition with other nearby plants will not prohibit development. Allow adequate distance between the tree and any foundation so that root restriction will not occur. A minimum of at least 25 feet is suggested for trees which will grow to 20 feet high or more.

There is time now to plan for fall planting of new trees. Take notice of other trees growing in the neighbourhood and how they affect the residence. A trip to a nursery will help in your selection. By fall you should have the right tree chosen for your home and you.

PATIENTS PICKED UP AND DELIVERED

Sick? Telephone the doctor and he will send you a chauffeur and car for you.

After the visit to the doctor's office, you will be driven back home.

You will, that is, if you live in Croydon, Eng., just outside London, and have one of a trio of doctors who share a large practice of national health (socialized medicine) and private patients.

The doctors put the system in to practice three months ago and say it has worked fine.

The doctors say their house calls have been greatly reduced and they've been able to give more time to emergencies and the bedridden.

Come to the Fair

By Mrs. Ella York
Chesterville

Come, folks, come to Chester-ville Fair,
You'll see many friends and ex-hibits there;
There will be something interest-ing for all, never fear,
This fair is improving from year to year.

There will be prize cattle of many a kind,
A better class of livestock would be hard to find;
The children proudly show their calves, with joy,
It is good training for each girl and boy.

They can't all win prizes but will experience gain,
And learn to be good sports, again and again;
The sheep in their pens will be looking their best,
They will be so much alike it will be quite a test.

There should be pigs and poultry too,
And exhibitors all have their jobs to do;
There will be big horses and lighter ones there,
Driving horses and racers, at this country fair.

The children will have some ponies small
Which usually delight one and all.

There are games and rides, to have a good time,
And booths where you can get coffee for a dime.

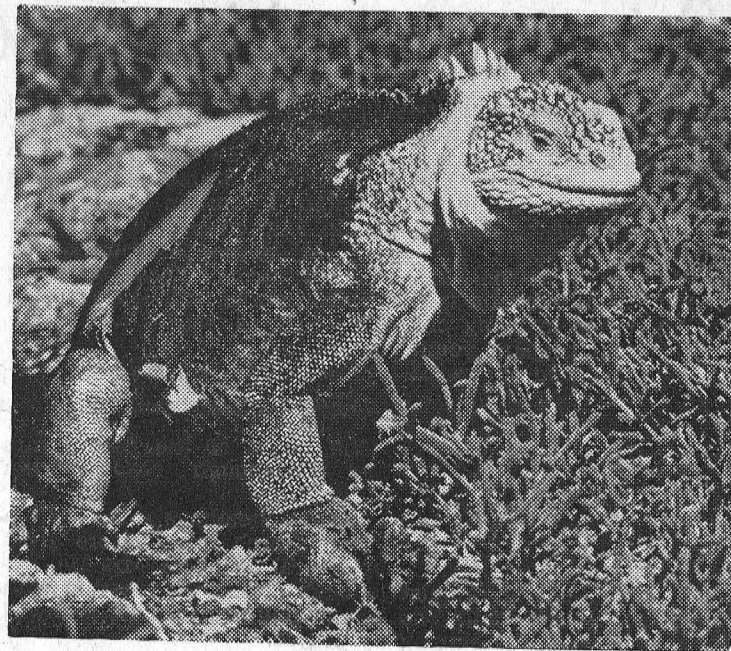

There will be hot dogs, hamburg-ers and all kinds of food,
Ice cream and drinks and every-thing good;

There's an agricultural tent with quite an array
Of all kinds of vegetables and seeds on display.

There is great work involved in all of these things
But when you're a winner, great joy it brings;
Then there's the house of wonder-ful art,
Homebaking and fancy work to thrill any heart.

Oil painting and flowers and rugs homemade
Are the interesting things in this building laid;

The children have a corner all of their own
For the school displays, so in-teresting alone.

Sheriff Maurice Joseph said he will not tolerate any more bingo, raffles or lotteries even though he is "mindful that the purpose or objective of the activity is exclusively religious, civic or charitable."

At the same time, Joseph said he will sell the two new cars he won.

WATER SOLUBLE VITAMIN A CONVENIENT IN WINTER

Livestock producers using the relatively new water soluble form of Vitamin A will find the material convenient to use for cattle during the winter months, if needed.

Researchers have found that water soluble Vitamin A in water is relatively stable at low temperatures but relatively unstable in water at warmer temperatures.

Recent tests carried out by the two researchers show that Vitamin A is relatively stable for two to three days if the water temperature is 45 degrees F. If the water temperatures is 75 degrees F., half the Vitamin A is lost within 24 hours. After four days at 72 degrees F., 96 per cent of the Vitamin has been lost.

The researchers recommend mixing water soluble Vitamin A in the water every 48 hours. Directions on the label of the container should be closely followed to provide adequate concentration of Vitamin A.

Stormont County Dairy Princess to be chosen at Newington Fair

Six Stormont County girls are practicing for the Dairy Princess Competition to be held at Newington Fair on Saturday afternoon, September 3rd. The Stormont County Milk Committee is sponsoring the contest and plans to make this a yearly event at Newington Fair.

Under the direction of Frank Cameron, Competition chairman, a coaching class was held on Monday night at the farm of Marland Murray and Son, Mar-tintown for the competitors. Mr. Keith MacMillan, Finch, and Mr. Albert Montgomery, Newington, were in attendance, along with Mr. Bruce Rutledge, of the Dairy Branch. The girls were shown the milking procedure to be used in the competition.

The winner of the competition will be crowned by the 1966 Dairy Princess, Miss Ruth Carruthers, Crysler. Saturday's event will commence at 2.30 p.m. with the judges interviewing the contestants, followed by speeches and milking.

Members of the competition are: McDonald, Finch; Linda Hart, Newington; Ikye Bruining, Newington and Joyce Pollock, Lunenburg.

R. S. Walker, Finch, has a slightly mixed up Hopa crabapple tree. The tree followed the book until the first crop of bitter little apples appeared. Suddenly one day Mr Walker discovered blossoms appearing at the ends of the fruit-bearing limbs. It is not often one finds the fruit and blossoms on a single tree. Mr Walker is shown here examining the freak.—Record Staff Photo.

COULD WIPE OUT ALL INSECTS

A Harvard University scientist says he has synthesized a substance that could eliminate insects without harming wildlife. Dr. Carroll Williams, who headed a research team, says the substance halts insect growth by deranging internal chemistry. But he says the substance also would affect beneficial insects.

Dr. Williams said the agriculture department would have to set up guidelines for its use.

Citing the drawback, Dr. Williams said that while killing mosquitoes and plant-destroying insects, the substance also would kill the bees necessary to maintain plant life.

He aid, however, the substance could be used to advantage now. He suggested stored materials where no insects are wanted such as packaged cereals. Another proposal was for the control of mosquitoes in areas of military operations "where everything is being destroyed anyway."

Fort Henry Guard performs at Crysler Park

An authentic re-enactment of a century old British regiment conducting a normal drill was presented Saturday at Crysler Battlefield Park.

Kingston's famous Fort Henry garrison marched to the strains of the fife and drum band through Upper Canada Village and across the mall in front of the Battlefield Memorial Building.

They were led by their mascot, David II, followed by pioneers who carried saws, axes and equipment required in pioneer days to hack a path through the forest for the regiment. These pioneers were known as the engineers of the infantry.

The mascot of the Royal Welsh Regiment at Old Fort Henry 100 years ago, was a goat.

This tradition was renewed 14 years ago with David I. The goat died 18 months ago at the ripe old age of 12. This is equal to 84 human years.

His successor, David II, born in January, was officially presented to the guard last month by St. David's Society in Toronto.

Demo Kotsos, a student at Eastern Ontario Institute of Technology, Ottawa, is goat major. He is responsible for the care and training of the goat.

Demo said, "I enjoy working with animals and appreciate the opportunity of carrying on the tradition."

Attired in a scarlet coat and navy trousers, each man carries on his back a battle tack knapsack, a cartouche for cartridges, a bullet pouch and water canteen.

Pipers wear white coats. Four color sergeants and two ensigns, carrying the regimental brigade flag and Queen's colors, compose the color party.

At the mall in Crysler Park, the fife and drum band presented a program of martial and memorial music with counter marching. The band retired to the strains of the United States Marine Hymn indicating its affiliation with the United States Marine Corps since the restoration of the Old Fort Henry Guards.

The infantry detachment presented a display of drill and battle tactics.

Members of the guard are Ontario university students posted to Old Fort Henry during the summer. They have appeared at the Royal Tournament in England and at many United States and Canadian Centres.

PLANT CROCUS NOW

Autumn - flowering crocus should be planted in August, advise horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food.

This will provide colour in the garden long after most of the other blooms have faded. Three of the suggested fall-flowering crocuses are medius (lilac blue), speciosus (bright blue), and zonatus (lavender pink).

Remember that garden annuals will provide a longer, more vigorous show of bloom if the blossoms are picked off as they fade. Removal of dead blooms prevent seed production and lengthens the period of bloom.

PLANT A SPECIAL TREE FOR CANADA'S BIRTHDAY

Canada's Centennial can take on special significance for your family right in your own yard. Plant a Centennial tree, and, for her debts, she inserted a make Canada's birthday a memorial notice: "Dear Theo, have orable and lasting event, at the same time adding a beautiful specimen tree to your landscape plan.

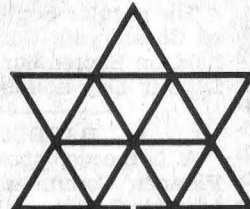

The flowering crabapples "Almey" and "Royalty" have been chosen to commemorate the event, according to horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food. The Almey grows to 15 or 20 feet at maturity, with a slightly pendulous form. The large purplish flowers and red fruit will add an attractive focal point to any home grounds. This tree is very hardy, and grows well throughout the country. The Royalty makes an excellent specimen tree with its dark reddish purple foliage and purple flowers. This tree is noted for its freedom from disease.

Fall months are ideal for tree planting. After the leaves have fallen, the trees are dormant and readily planted without loss of vigour. Begin planning now for your Centennial tree. Consult a local nursery to make sure of supplies. Decide on a location where it will provide maximum enjoyment for you, and also provide the required conditions for the tree. A sunny location with well-drained sandy loam soil is desirable. Fertilizer will ensure that adequate nutrition is available. With these preparations looked after, your family will be well prepared for the planting of your Centennial tree.

RETORT

An Ebinger, Germany, wife of a local man, announced in the local paper he would no longer be responsible for her debts. She inserted a make Canada's birthday a memorial notice: "Dear Theo, have orable and lasting event, at the same time adding a beautiful specimen tree to your landscape plan.

Centennial Report

by JOHN W. FISHER
CENTENNIAL COMMISSIONER

RCAC planes flying over Canada's isolated communities in the far north are going to be dropping some unusual cargo in the months ahead.

During the coming school year the planes will be making air-drops of bright new medallions, souvenirs of Canada's Centennial, to the school children of the north. Why air-drops? Well, some of those communities are so isolated there simply is no other way for deliveries to coincide with distribution of the medallions to the rest of Canada's school population in time for presentation in class rooms by June 1, 1967.

federal schools, the mint will make direct shipments to those schools operated by the federal government. The Department of National Defence will distribute medallions to all Canadian school children at military bases overseas.

The medallion design, shown here, was recommended this past spring by a special advisory committee to the Centennial Commission. The choice of the design was made following a contest conducted last year among five experienced Canadian designers. Winner of the Commission's award for the obverse side of the medallion was Thomas Shingles of Victoria, B.C., and for the reverse side, Mrs. Dora de Pedrey Hunt of Toronto, Ontario.

The medallions will be of lasting significance to all in the new generation. Perhaps they will be passed along from generation to generation of families and a number will appear again on the 200th anniversary of Confederation.

"PEEPING TOM" PROJECT TO IMPROVE COD FISHING

The results of an underwater "Peeping Tom" project by fisheries department divers should reduce the number of cod escaping the traps of East Coast fishermen.

The annual Canadian cod catch is the greatest of any species and second only to lobsters in dollar value. The department, reporting recently on the results of a two-month study, predicted "the traditional Newfoundland cod trap, always an effective type of fishing gear, should become even more efficient" as a result of the underwater observation.

A diving team working from the tender St. Brandon first surveyed traps at Carbonear in Conception Bay, Nfld. Photographs were taken showing the physical condition of the netting and the berths, and the activities of fish inside and outside the traps.

The team learned the manner in which large numbers of fish are able to escape after they enter such trap nets. Fishermen had little knowledge of how their prey had been eluding them.

At St. John's, Nfld., the divers, who operated under a contract with the department's industrial development service, surveyed traditional cod traps and studied the functioning of new traps made entirely of synthetic fibre. For Indian children, attending Six million of the Centennial medallions for school children are now being produced for the Centennial Commission by the Royal Canadian Mint at Ottawa. Each medallion, one inch and a quarter in diameter, will be packaged in a special envelope bearing the Centennial symbol on the outside.

The first delivery of medallions from the mint will be a special one — 2,000 to the Centennial Commission at the end of September for the air-drop allotments. Then the mint will make direct shipments to all the provinces and territories by April 1, 1967. Departments of education will redistribute to all schools for presentation toward the end of the school year.

SUPPER SANDWICHES

HEARTY MAN-SIZED SANDWICHES make good supper or luncheon meals. Easy and quick to prepare, they include an almost unlimited combination of foods and flavours.

French Chicken Sandwiches

This recipe makes two sandwiches.
Butter
4 slices white bread
2 large slices chicken
2 thin slices cooked ham
2 slices Swiss cheese
1 egg
1/4 cup cream

Butter one side of each slice of bread generously. Top two slices with a slice each of chicken, ham and cheese. Top with remaining slices of bread and fasten securely with toothpicks.

Beat egg and cream together lightly with a fork in a flat dish. Dip sandwiches quickly into mixture on both sides. Brown them in buttered heavy skillet until golden on both sides.

Hot Salami Sandwiches

1/4 lb. salmon
1/4 lb. cheddar cheese
1/4 tsp. pepper
2 tps. prepared mustard
1 tps. catsup
Dash of tabasco
6 weiner buns

Chop salami and cheese, add pepper, mustard, catsup and tabasco. Blend well. Spread generously on buttered buns. Wrap buns in aluminum foil and heat 15 minutes in moderate oven.

Grilled Ham-Salad Sandwiches

1 cup ground cooked ham
1/4 cup chopped sweet pickles
1 tps. catsup
1 tsp. prepared mustard
2 tps. mayonnaise
8 slices bread
2 eggs

1/4 cup milk
2 tps. butter
Combine ham, pickles, catsup, mustard and mayonnaise. Spread between slices of buttered bread.

Beat eggs and milk together lightly with a fork in a flat dish. Dip each sandwich into mixture quickly on both sides.

Heat butter in frying pan and brown sandwiches on both sides. Instead of dipping sandwiches in egg and milk mixture, butter bread on both sides and brown in frying pan.

Bean Sandwiches
Use either kidney beans or brown baked beans. You will be surprised how good these sandwiches are.

1/2 cup beans
1/2 cup diced celery
1/4 cup diced sweet pickles
1/4 cup chopped ripe olives
2 tps. chopped green onions
1/4 cup mayonnaise
3 tps. chili sauce
1/2 tsp. salt
Butter
16 slices bread
Leaf lettuce

Drain beans and rinse under cold water. Drain well again. Mash with a fork to make a paste.

CONTROL TECHNIQUES FOR WASPS AND HORNETS

"A push-button can of insecticide will kill a nest of adult wasps or hornets," reports entomologist Professor W. C. Allan, Ontario Agricultural College, University of Guelph.

"However, that doesn't kill the larvae. Therefore, residual insecticides like chlordane should be sprayed on the nest immediately after the adults are killed and this residual treatment should be repeated the next day," Prof. Allan continues. "To use chlordane, dilute one part of chlordane concentrate with approximately two parts water. A plastic squeeze bottle such as an empty detergent container is a good application tool to direct a stream of this insecticide right into the nest. However, it is important to remember that chlordane is poisonous to humans, so it should never be used around the house."

Other wasp and hornet removal methods are listed in Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food Publication 157, "Removal of Bees from Buildings and Trees." Whatever the removal technique, it should be carried out at night when the wasps or hornets will all be in their nest. Since these insects are not so active at night, the danger of being stung is also reduced. Always remember to read the label carefully before applying pesticides.

BEEF FLAVOUR DEPENDS ON CARCASS MERITS

Beef flavour according to gender or carcass merits was the topic of discussion highlighted at the Ontario Beef Improvement Association Field Day in Guelph last month.

Ontario Agricultural College meats specialist Dr. R. H. Ingram told 150 beef producers: "It is not possible for the consumer to detect differences in the flavour of beef from bulls, steers and heifers if the age, finish, marbling and texture of the lean meat are similar."

"Bulls, steers and heifers may be sold with the same grade stamp in the same retail counter," Dr. Ingram continued. "The live classification used in market reports does not correspond with carcass grades." The reason is that carcasses are not graded by sex, but by their merits. The first requirement to make a carcass eligible for the top three grades is evidence of youth, indicating tenderness of the meat. "The grader estimates youth by the presence of pearly white cartilage tips and red, porous bone. Sex can only affect flavour when it is an old animal," Dr. Ingram added, "but old animals seldom appear on our retail counters."

Before flooring is laid in exposed locations, the joists supporting it should be cross-treated with preservative or painted on the job. Or a factory preserved wood can be used.

Instead of using ordinary nails, those who strive for long-life structures use galvanized nails, since much of the rotting occurs about nails that rust and corrode, allowing water to seep into the wood.

Before wood flooring is laid in exposed locations, the tongue and groove joints should be painted with a good grade of exterior paint or with a colourless preservative.

Better still if each board is painted on both sides and along the tongue and groove a superior job is assured.

Specially prepared porch paints, that dry to a hard, shiny finish are available. Many householders wax wooden porch floors so that they shed water rapidly.
