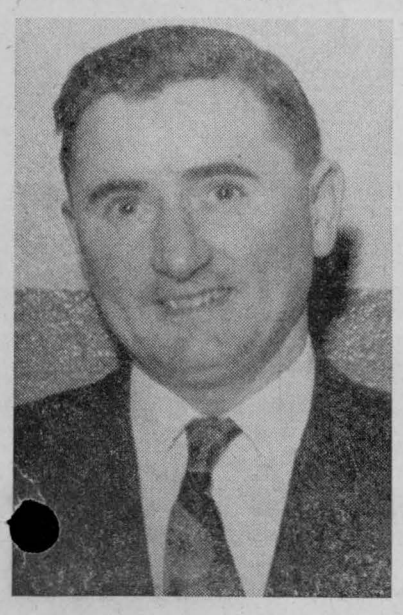
Education Topic in Rotary Address
M. N. Hutchinson Guest Speaker

"Changing conditions have made many changes in education" said M. N. Hutchinson, Monday night. "The narrow concepts of Ryerson have been broadened to make education today as modern as the times will allow." Mr Hutchinson was speaking at the regular meeting of Chesterville Rotary Club on Monday night. He was the guest of Howard Fulton and introduced by him. President Hosea Droppo was chairman for the evening. He welcomed as guests members of Chesterville Public School board, James Fyke, Dr B. W. Lapp, Stuart Allan and Jack Doering.

The speaker stressed the basic provisions education is to provide. They include the acquisition of knowledge, training of the intellect, moulding character and providing skills to lead the good life.

The old pattern of a class as a unit has given way to more interest in each student as an individual worthy of receiving individual attention in teaching. It must be recognized, the inspector pointed out, that no two students were alike physically, and neither were their intellectual abilities alike. Grouping becomes necessary very early in the teaching process particularly in the early grades.



M. N. Hutchinson

Modern times seem to be pushmore of the training of character in our children into the hands of the teachers. War, working parents and greater demands for luxury goods seem to be diverting attention away from character building at the home level and diverting it into the hands of the teachers. These general needs of the school children are being recognized more and more by the teaching profession and teachers are accepting them as part of their chosen profession.

Modern industrial expansion means there is more and more need for industrial skills. To help in this field, urban public schools offer complete industrial arts courses that take care of the students who do not take readily to further academic training. It was the speaker's opinion that similar school units would soon be more common even in the rural areas, especially with the growth of central schools.

Mr Hutchinson spoke ruefully of the apparent reluctance on the part of the public to understand some of the changes that have taken place in education. He remarked that just ten years in school history have made many great changes in method. He felt that constructive criticism was most important, but destructive criticism was damaging to many dedicated persons and ideas.

The speaker closed his remarks with a plea to the public to hang onto their good school teachers. He felt they were a prize and must be nurtured with care with adequate salaries, good working conditions and a demonstration of interest on the part of the tax-paying public.

The speaker was thanked on behalf of the club by Keith Graham.

Mrs Louis Dame Hostess to Ladies' Guild

The monthly meeting of the Anglican Ladies' Guild was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs Louis Dame. The president opened the meeting with the Guild Prayer.

Reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and adopted and Mrs W. Hummel reported on the activities of the sick committee.

The president announced that the local service for the Women's World Day of Prayer would be held this year in the Anglican Church on February 21. Full arrangements for this event are to be made at next meeting.

The Guild decided to plan a euchre party on January 21. Arrangements were made for the annual vestry meeting. The time for this important meeting has had to be altered; it will be on Wednesday evening, January 15, at 8 p.m. in the library.

The meeting decided to continue the practice of donating and buying mystery gifts at Guild meetings in aid of the organ fund.

The president closed the meeting with prayer, after which the hostess and her helpers served an appetizing lunch.

The next meeting is to be held Wednesday, February 12. at the home of Mrs S. Morris.

FINCH AYRSHIRE WINS PRODUCTION SHIELD

Donholm Lucky Seven, an Ayrshire cow belonging to Donald A. MacIntyre, of Finch, has won a production shield from the Ayrshire Breeders' Association of Canada for the second successive year.

She scored 14,122 lbs. milk, 589 lbs. fat, testing 4.17 per cent butterfat in 305 days for a score of 176.5.

Lucky Seven is classified Excellent and was reserve grand champion at the 1955 Ottawa Winter Fair.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETS FOR JANUARY

Chesterville Chamber of Commerce met in the clerk's office last week for the first meeting of the year. President Howard Hough was in the chair.

Minutes were quickly disposed of. Main business centred around discussion of recommending a building and zoning by-law for the community and final decision saw a committee formed to meet with council and suggest the formation of such a by-law.

Review of the past year's efforts in town planning led to several suggestions for implementation. A bowling alley project will receive further attention after a special meeting January 23 when a representative of a supply company will be present.

Children of the Church Hold Initial Meeting

The first meeting of the newly-formed "Children of the Church" was held on Tuesday afternoon, January 7, at the Presbyterian Manse, Chesterville. Ten boys and girls were present for the meeting.

This year the children are going to learn about the great continent of Africa, and to begin the meeting the boys and girls played an African jumping game.

Following the game, the children listened while Mrs Fry read the first two chapters of the study book "Mpengo of the Congo," telling the story of an African boy, Mpengo, who lives with his Christian family in the Congo.

A new song, "Before Dinner," was sung, followed by a short worship period conducted by Mrs Fry. At the close of the worship service the members repeated a "Thank You" verse in unison.

The offering, amounting to 74 cents, was dedicated.

A poster map of Africa was made and pictures of African animals were pasted on it. Jimmy Allan placed stars on the attendance card opposite the names of those present.

Mrs Douglas Fry and Mrs Harold Loughridge are the leaders of the group.

Final Tribute Paid Mrs Isaac Garrow

Final tribute was paid the memory of the late Mrs Isaac Garrow at the funeral which was held Sunday, December 29, in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Chesterville. Although in failing health for some time, news of her death came as a shock to her family and friends.

Born in Fourth Concession of Roxborough 79 years ago last June 8, Mrs Garrow was the former Anna Bella MacMillan, a daughter of the late Duncan A. MacMillan and his wife, Christena MacMillan. Her early years were spent at Avonmore.

She was twice married. Her first husband, Robert C. McElheran, whom she married February 2, 1898, died on December 2, 1912. Her second husband was Isaac Garrow. Mr Garrow passed away October 31, 1930.

Mrs Garrow was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Chesterville, and a life member of the Woman's Missionary Society.

Surviving are one daughter and three sons, Mrs W. A. Samworth (Janie), Ottawa; Duncan M. McElheran, Calgary, Alta.; Ethan McElheran, at home; R. Cecil McElheran, Ottawa; four sisters, Mrs Catherine McElheran, Massena, N.Y.; Miss Margaret MacMillan, Cornwall; Mrs Roy Poapst, Kenmore; Mrs Herman Brown, Monkland; one grandson, Robbie McElheran, Ottawa.

The service was conducted by Mr Douglas Fry and Rev D. Anderson, Ottawa. The hymns sung were favourites of the deceased.

Pall bearers were Harold Poapst, Kenmore; Gordon Brown, Monkland; Allan McIntyre, Avonmore, and Angus Smith, Chesterville. Interment was made in Maple Ridge Cemetery.

Many beautiful floral tributes testified to the esteem in which Mrs Garrow was held.

Relatives and friends attended from Massena, N.Y., Carthage, N.Y., Ogdensburg, N.Y., Ottawa, Cornwall, Avonmore, Finch, Newington, Moose Creek and Winchester.

Quick Looks at Tons of Books

POST OFFICE PEOPLE look over the first of the new catalogues that flooded the post office this week. They arrived in cartons of 15 books, each book weighing three pounds. By the time Harold Greer had delivered all the boxes there was a pile of nearly three tons of paper on the floor. Postmaster Stuart Allan, left, is pictured here showing a copy to employees Mrs Harold Loughridge and Wendall Harper. Mrs Marie Racine, also on the staff, was on her day off when the picture was taken. Catalogues this year were sorted for Mountain, South Mountain, Inkerman, Winchester, Chesterville, Morewood, Embrun, St. Onge, St. Albert, Crysler, Berwick, Finch and Vernon.—Record Photo.

OPINIONS . . .
Ours and Others

A New Liberal Leader

This week Liberals choose a new leader for the national party to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of the Hon. Louis St. Laurent. Tonight, after three days of smoke-filled rooms and hard chairs, delegates mark the ballots that will have much to do with the party's fate for the next few years. Two strong contenders, Messrs Pearson and Martin, are in the running; the winner is not for us to predict.

Liberals throughout Canada had a rude awakening last June 10th. All the sinecures, built up over 25 years of office, suddenly turned out to be not quite so secure as they appeared. Slothful habits that led to neglect, particularly in local political organizations and associations, paid unpleasant dividends. Young voters without hesitation decided it would be the thing to change the pattern of government; old voters decided it was time to lower the boom, led by the siren cry of more for nothing. Out of it all came defeat and a whopping challenge to the Liberal party to clean house of dead wood; resolutions and designs are of little value unless an evangelist is found to match the dedication of the present Prime Minister who would appear to hold the touchstone of success.

It will be interesting to follow the efforts of the old Liberal party in the next few months under a new leader. More than glands will be needed to rejuvenate the slightly shaken political body. A good, loud, roaring infusion of enthusiasm is needed first along with a lively leader to make things hum.

'F.O.B. Moscow, Tax Included'

The United States is not the only country in which new automobiles cost more than last year, says the Christian Science Monitor. In the Soviet Union, where the government is the only manufacturer, prices have been raised not merely around 3 per cent but by 25 to 35 per cent—and with no changes in models.

This does not represent an item in the cost-of-living index of so many people in the Soviet Union as in the United States, since the total output in the land of the Communists is about 100,000 cars a year, compared with prospectively more than 5,000,0000 in America even after a pullback of production schedules.

The disappointment of a Soviet citizen who, having saved up 22,000 rubles for a four-cylinder Pobeda, finds it will cost 30,000 may be imagined. Except that perhaps it was going to cost him close to that figure anyway if he bought from a speculator instead of waiting several years for his name to be reached on the list.

Part of the object of the increase, according to the explanation in Pravda, is to "combat speculation." At any rate, the move will make revenue for the government out of the scarcity of transportation. This obscurity between price administration and taxation appears especially in a rise of prices for vodka and wines, which is evidently a kind of excise to discourage consumption.

If the combined trade monopoly and government in Moscow wished seriously enough to put the automobile black marketer out of business it could do so by diverting steel from munitions making to supply the demand for family cars. But, apart from that consideration, the puzzlement of the American car buyer over hidden taxes is as nothing compared to the effort of the Soviet consumer to figure out how much he pays for communism.

Bits and Pieces

A bit of publicity material from the legation of South Africa in Ottawa intrigued us this week. Everywhere in the releases they speak of the Whites and Non-Whites in Africa. We are not experts on colour but it has occurred to us that a truer method of dividing the colour there would be the Blacks and Non-Blacks.

This open weather leaves much to be desired for those of us who like our winters to be winter. This year will be classed as the year of no snow when we quaver stories to our small grandchildren.

A New Look at Dew

Hard-headed scientists are elbowing poets aside to admire the dew.

Glistening droplets on grass and leaves, it has been learned, make up an important cog in Nature's machinery. In some semi-arid places, dew is vital to plant life.

Dew does not fall from "the wings of clouds," as Shelley put it. It does not fall at all. It is formed in the same way that water films a pitcher of iced tea.

When the sun goes down, the air cools and no longer can hold as much water vapour as it did during the day. The moisture condenses on leaves and other objects. When the temperature drops below freezing, dew becomes frost.

Dew is formed most heavily on clear nights of fall, when there are few clouds to interfere with the radiation of heat from the earth's surface. Muggy or windy nights also hamper dew formation.

Ancient peoples were wise in the uses of dew. Significant current experiments were inspired by the reputed use of dew in the imagery of the Old Testament.

"I will be as the dew of Israel" promised the Lord in Hosea 14 : 5. Moses, just before his death, blessed the tribe of Joseph with the words, "Blessed be his land for the prescious things of heaven, for the dew . . ."

Pondering such statements modern Irael has set up a network of dew-measuring stations. Experiments there show that certain plants can grow twice as fast with dew as without it.

In California it has been discovered that certain plants grow much faster if they have dew regularly. On dewless nights, a fine spray using much less water than customary irrigation, keeps them healthy.

Dew is especially beneficial to young leaves. It comes at night, when plants do most of their growing. Scientists often find old leaves wet in the morning and young ones dry.

Young leaves can take in the dew directly and use it. Moreover, many plants can reverse their whole pumping systems, absorbing water through the leaves, distributing it to stem and roots, and even pushing it out into the soil to await a time when it is needed.

Some early peoples used much the same principle to provide water for crops and for themselves.

On a plain near Jerusalem, for example, mounds of pebbles can still be found. Centuries ago, they were "aerial wells." The pebbles cooled rapidly at nightfall, condensing quantities of dew. The earth around became wet enough to grow figs and grapes.

Similar pebble mounds in Feododiya in the Crimea were equipped with pipes that carried the condensate to public fountains.

AFRICAN VIOLETS EASY TO RAISE

Few house plants are more popular than the African violets, and they are among the best all around greenery for the home.

You don't have to be an expert to grow them, yet they're tricky enough to reward you with a feeling of accomplishment when you succeed.

In growing African violets, you should see that they maintain growth and stay in bud or bloom all year round, says Lillian Foley, Chapleau, Ont., one of Canada's experts on the culture of this lovely plant.

Mrs Foley says that soil is the least important part of growing good violets. She recommends soil coarse enough to allow air to circulate between the particles. This will also allow the roots to travel freely.

She prefers a good clay loam base, with enough sand for drainage, and peat moss to supply humus. She suggests a mixture of three parts of loam, one part peat and one part sharp sand.

Too much water is the biggest enemy of the African violet. Water from the top, covering the top soil generously and make sure it penetrates to the roots. Cold water causes ring spots. The first sign of over-watering is the rotting of outside leaves.

Good light is a must if your plants are in bloom. They will grow in any exposure as long as the light intensity is strong enough.

To keep the plants growing evenly, give the pots a quarter turn twice a week. Also, if you grow them in windows, shift them around occasionally so that they will get a turn in the best light.

African violets do best in a temperature range of 68-74 degrees. Draughts will cause premature fower drop and handicap their growth. Too much heat or dryness will develop flower buds too rapidly. The plants need humidity.

To feed plants, Mrs Foley recommends a mixture of hymin at the rate of one-half teaspoon to a pint of lukewarm water. Feed by covering the top soil.

Single blooms require food every second week. All double blossom varieties and singles with thick, hairy leaves should be fed weekly.

If the whole plant is wilting it means that crown rot has set in. Cut through the main stem with a razor blade, well above the rotted areas, remove the lower leaves and insert the stem in a clean pot of fresh soil or sand. In a month or so the plant will be off to a new start.

A well fed, carefully watered and adequately lighted African violet, potted in suitable soil in a red clay pot, requires little extra care, says Mrs Foley. In fact, so little that once you have mastered these few simple points, you'll find the plants bloom all year round.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

By Lillian Allison

This week there won't be much in the papers, on the radio or TV except the big clambake in Ottawa—the National Liberal Convention which will choose a new party leader. And I'll wonder as I've wondered before why would anyone really want the job? Why would any man in his right mind WANT to be Prime Minister?

It isn't the money. A man with enough brains and education to be chief of Canada's sixteen million people could use his abilities in a dozen ways and earn the comparatively small salary we pay our Prime Minister.

I hardly think it is the idea of power that persuades men to aspire to sit in the highest seat of the land. Our Prime Minister isn't the big boss, as a dictator is. He hasn't nearly the authority that the President of the United States has. In fact, according to our constitution, he has relatively little power at all. It can't be power that is the magnet which attracts men to the Prime Minister's desk.

Is it glory? Partly. There is no denying that there is a considerable amount of glory in occupying the No. 1 position in a large, prosperous country. The Prime Minister lives in the nation's luxurious house. He rubs shoulders with the heads of countries from every quarter of the globe. He sits at dinner with the Queen and the Governor-General. He is recognized everywhere he goes. There is certainly glory connected with this exalted position. But that glory or prestige must be off-set a hundred fold by the burden or responsibility. Just think of the awful task that is his.

How can he sleep at night knowing that war that would end civilization is hanging over the entire world suspended from a spider-web thread? How can he bear to read and hear the cruel words that are spoken against him? How can he ever relax even for a moment knowing that tomorrow a schedule of meetings, speeches, press conferences and so on will confront him and that if he should say one wrong word it will be flashed from coast to coast inside of minutes?

How can he endure the lack of ordinary home life? How can he stand to live in a fish bowl aware that the Press and the Opposition are watching him almost as he sleeps to pounce on him if he makes a false statement in a nightmare?

Why would any man in his right mind ever want to be Prime Minister? I've often wondered.

But then, why should anyone desire to be a member of parliament? It isn't a full-time job. It is simply more work and more worry added to the load which the member carried already. And with it goes the impossible task of trying to please that demanding master —the voter—who handed out the job in the first place.

Why, too, would any man want to be reeve? Goodness knows the pay doesn't amount to anything. The glory is almost non-existent while the worries, the criticism and the enemies a reeve acquires add up to a considerable amount.

People are really hard to understand, aren't they? Why does a big manufacturing company that is showing a satisfactory profit suddenly decide to make and [illegible] line of merchandise and thus increase the headaches and responsibilities of all concerned? Why would the owner of a successful business open branches in other cities?

Why do the wives of men who are earning a comfortable livelihood go out to work and thus double their responsibilities? Why do teachers want to become principals or inspectors, ministers long for big, city churches and highly paid executives strive to become chairman of the board?

It seems folks lack whatever St. Paul had when he said, "I have learned in whatsoever state I am therewith to be content." They are downright ambitious.

And those of us who have neither the ambition nor the ability to stir from the comfortable seat of the lowly should be truly thankful that there are capable people who are willing to accept the burdens, the worries and the ulcers that accompany positions of responsibility. We should thank our lucky stars for men who want to be Prime Minister.

CART-MARTS

The grocery "cart-napper" is costing millions of dollars annually.

He (or she) is the person who makes off with those four-wheeled carts used by the supermarket customer to haul groceries.

Southern California, which has some of the largest grocery chains, is hardest hit. Market owners in four Southern California counties last year had $1,671,750 worth of carts stolen. The carts disappear at the rate of 1,000 a week. More than 55,000 carts were taken in Los Angeles last year. The carts cost about $30 each.

REALLY FLAT

Farmer John Albright, 35, of Royalton, Minn., stopped his truck on the railway tracks the other night to fix a flat tire.

He crawled under the rear end to set a jack under the axle, heard a loud crash, looked up and the truck was gone.

The Northern Pacific Railway's Mainstreeter passenger train from the west coast had roared down the tracks at 70 miles an hour and pulverized the truck, leaving him only slightly injured on the ground.

Report Issued on 1957 Deer Season in Province Ontario Department Lands and Forests Makes Survey

A comprehensive survey and careful assessment of the 1957 deer season in Ontario has brought the following report on most of the deer hunting areas from the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests:

On November 25, the 1957 deer season closed in northern and western Ontario, and in the area south of the French and Mattawa Rivers hunting ceased on November 16.

On the whole it was a disappointing season for many because of the poor hunting weather. This was particularly marked in the eastern part of the province.

Of particuuar interest this year was the high percentage of fawns recorded in the kill of nearly all districts. This ranged from 28 to 38 per cent and indicates that there was an excellent fawn crop. It will be remembered that warm weather came early in the spring and there were no late storms or cold, wet periods during the fawning period to cause mortality.

The survival of this good fawn crop will depend a great deal on the type of winter we have this year. If snow depths of over 24 inches do not persist for long periods we can expect plenty of yearlings next fall.

Hunter success in the western region was lower than in either 1956 or 1955, running at 43 per cent in Sioux Lookout and 48 per cent in Kenora for the 621 hunters checked. No figures are yet available for Fort Frances but indications are that hunters had slightly better luck there than last year. The age composition of the deer killed in Kenora and Sioux Lookout explains the poor success. There was a shortage of yearlings and 2½-year-old deer. These were the deer born in the springs of 1955 and 1956 which suffered so heavily during the winter and spring of 1955-56. These two age classes together should provide about 40 per cent of the total kill, as it happened this fall they contributed only about 20 per cent. If this winter is an easy one for the deer of the western region there should be some improvement next fall, because the 1957 fawn crop was very large.

There were, apparently, fewer non-resident sportsmen hunting deer in the western regions this year and only 1,257 deer were exported to the United States. This was 515 fewer than a year ago.

The season in the Sault Ste. Marie District was a disappointment, partly spoiled by weather, but with a scarcity of deer in many areas; 477 deer were exported to the United States, 38 fewer than a year ago. The exact figures of hunter success are not yet available.

On St. Joseph's Island the season was shortened and a $26 moose-deer licence was available entitling a hunter to take either a deer or a moose but not both. Twenty-one moose were taken on this licence and a total of five deer were killed.

Hunter success in the Sudbury district was affected by weather. On the mainland about 27 per cent of the 1,024 hunters checked got their deer, a slight improvement over 1956. The persistence of snow may have helped.

On Manitoulin Island bad weather spoiled the hunt. Heavy rains during the first week and sleet and winds of gale force during the last few days discouraged hunters. The success of the 1,166 hunters was about 25 per cent, well down from last year. Two-and-a-half-year-old deer were less abundant than they should have been, perhaps a reflection of the hard winter of 1955-56 when they were fawns. The fawn crop was excellent on the mainland and good on Manitoulin Island, constituting respectively 38 per cent and 32 per cent of the total kill.

About 100 sportsmen took advantage of the special archery season on Manitoulin Island, but so far only one deer was known to have been taken.

In the North Bay area, 1,020 hunters who operated from organized camps achieved a success rate of 38 per cent. Those who hunted on a more casual basis had very poor luck, only 1.5 per cent of the 1,514 checked got their deer.

South of the French and Mattawa Rivers hunting conditions were not good. Rain and poor weather reduced the kill.

In Parry Sound the total hunter success was 28 per cent. As in North Bay, organized parties did better than the casual hunters. Of the 2,811 checked, 36 per cent got deer while only about 9 per cent of the 1,113 casual hunters were successful.

There was great variation in daily success during the season owing to the weather, the first day of the second week, November 11, giving the highest figure. The 20 per cent success on this day was almost double that on the opening day in spite of the lower availability of deer.

Pembroke district checked 719 organized camp hunters, 44 per cent of whom got deer. Only 17 per cent of the 296 casual hunters checked were successful. Total success, inluding a few non-resident hunters, ran at 36 per cent.

In Lindsay district the hunt was enjoyable but only moderately successful, again owing to poor hunting weather. Deer were reported scarce in a few areas, but this certainly was not so over most of the district. Organized camp hunters, some 1,587, were interviewed on the checking stations and 30 per cent had killed their deer. Only 8 per cent of the 909 casual hunters checked were successful. The total success rate was 23 per cent compared with 24 per cent in 1956.

Hunters in Tweed district complained about the poor hunting weather but many said that in spite of their poor success there were more deer present than in 1956. It is apparent that the rut was at its height on the opening day of the season. Many complained that dogs cannot be used successfully when deer are mating. Of the 3,360 hunters checked 24 per cent killed their deer.

Although hunter success in the Kemptville district appeared to be lower than in 1956, most hunters interviewed stated that deer were present in good numbers over most of the district. No figures are available because a complicated road system makes it impossible to set up checking stations. However, 390 deer were checked by Department staff on patrol and 365 of them were aged. It is evident that there was an excellent fawn crop.

A four-day season was declared in Orillia and Matchedash Township of the Lake Simcoe district. Department staff estimate that about 100 deer were killed, 25 of them in Orillia Township. Perth, Bruce and Gray Counties in the Lake Huron district were open to deer hunting for four days this fall. In spite of the extremely poor hunting weather there was a great improvement in hunter success. Twenty-three per cent killed their deer compared with 13 per cent in 1956.

Over 17,300 hunters were contacted in the field or on checking station operated across the province during the deer season. Nearly 5,000 deer were checked of which the age was determined in 2,315 adults. A great deal of additional information was collected which will enable biologists to plan further study and undertake management programs designed to maintain and improve Ontario's deer herd.

Mrs Jacob Garlough

A lifelong and highly respected resident of Williamsburg, Mrs Jacob M. Garlough, passed away suddenly at her home. Although not in the best of health for a few years, Mrs Garlough had recently recovered from the 'flu and pneumonia, and was active about her home until a few days before her death. She was in her 81st year. Born and educated in Williamsburg, she was the daughter of the late Thomas Merkley and his wife, Clara McIntosh. Her maiden name was Zala Merkley. In 1903 she married Jacob M. Garlough, also of Williamsburg, and since that time they had lived on the Garlough farm.

Surviving besides her husband is one son, Wilburn, with his wife and five children at the farm home; one brother, Dr Wm. Merkley, now retired and living in DeBary, Florida. Another brother, Mahlon, predeceased her 15 years ago.

On July 1, 1953, Mr and Mrs Garlough celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage, when they welcomed many friends to their home.

The funeral was held from her home to the United Church, the service being conducted by her minister, Rev Douglas Ramsay, assisted by a former minister, Rev C. A. Adey, of Brinston. The choir, under the direction of Mrs Maefred Merkley, sang "Does Jesus Care?" and the congregational hymns were "The Lord is My Shepherd" and "Rock of Ages."

Interment was made in the family plot at Boucks Hill Cemetery.

Pall bearers were Clair Alguire, Glenn McIntosh, Gerald Garlough, Weldon Beckstead, Oscar Barkley and Dewart McPherson.

AN EXAMPLE

Clayton Harmon, Asheville, N.C., arranged a program on traffic safety for his men's club meeting the other night and was to introduce the speaker, a highway patrol sergeant.

The red-faced Harmon apologized for being late. In his rush to get to the meeting, he was arrested by the highway patrol for speeding.

GETS JAIL TERM FOR ATTEMPTED ROBBERY

Glen Earl McMillan, 30, of Chesterville, was sentenced Friday to five months in jail by Magistrate Sauve for trying to rob an Ottawa restaurant on Christmas Eve.

McMillan was grabbed by two teenage customers of the "31" Restaurant, Bank Street, Ottawa, after he handed a note to cashier Mrs Marie Halliday, demanding $200 and saying he had a gun.

The man fled from the restaurant when Mrs Halliday handed the note to Eric Lum, the proprietor, and two 17-year-old youths, John Wesley and Robert Lafortune, both of Ottawa, had come to her assistance.

Lafortune told the would-be robber that he had better leave and that there was a policeman on the corner. McMillan tried to rip out the telephone before leaving. The two youths followed the man into the street and held him until Constable James Ferguson arrived. No gun was found in his possession.

High-frequency lighting, the first in North America, will be installed in Hamilton's new city hall, city architect Stanley Roscoe said the other day.

The revolutionary new system uses 1,500-cycle power instead of the standard 60 cycles.

"WHALE OF A CHANCE"

Up around James Bay and far into the Arctic Andy Gagnon is known as the man who tickled the white whales.

Andy was born in Quebec, moved into Connecticut, and returned north "as soon as I was old enough to have anything to say about it."

Now he is a game warden of the Ontario Lands and Forests Department.

"Andy," says Alex Henessy, one of his northern cronies, "was one of the best poachers who ever lived. They couldn't catch him, so they hired him."

Andy admits only: "I used to trap down around Kapuskasing for about 15 years."

The incident which made him famous occurred two years ago in Hudson Bay when Alex and Andy were on a trip.

"I saw whales cavorting around," said Andy, "so I decided to paddle out and see how close I could come to them."

He came too close.

"They closed in on me. There were about 25 of them and they kept surfacing under my canoe, scratching their backs on the keel. I was lying flat on my belly in the bottom and praying hard. I never got close to a whale after that."

The early gardens in Greece were mainly confned to plots of vegetables.

Mrs Donald Dillabough, Mrs Wilfred McMillan and Mrs Harold McIntosh were named the nominating committee to present the slate of officers at the April meeting.

Mrs Egerton Barkley, in charge led in a series of readings given of the topic "International Day." by Miss G. Barkley, Mrs H. McMillan, Mrs H. McIntosh and Mrs Don Dillabough on "People the World Over Set to Mark Christmas," depicting the various ways and customs that the different countries observe to celebrate the holy day.

Continuing on the same theme, Mrs D. A. Dillabough, Mrs W. Harper, Mrs B. Beckstead, Mrs Mel. Dillabough, Mrs A. Carkner and Mrs B. Froats gave readings on "Christmas 'Round the World."

Mrs Egerton Barkley read "Janus Looks Two Ways" and Mrs H. McMillan gave the origin of several California fruits.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem, after which a delicious lunch was served.

Meeting will be discontinued in February and March and will resume again with the annual meeting in April.

Township Council Holds Inaugural Meeting At Williamsburg

The initial meeting of the municipal council for 1958 for the Township of Williamsburg was held recently in the IOOF Hall, Williamsburg, with the following members taking the necessary oath of office: Donald Kyle, reeve; M. O. Robinson, deputy reeve; Johnny Whittaker, G. R. McIntosh and Graham Hess, councillors.

Reeve Kyle welcomed the members and asked for their co-operation during the coming year. Rev Andrew Blackwell, St. Peter's Lutheran Church, gave in invocation and expressed his best wishes for a fruitful year in 1958.

By-laws 1298 and 1299 for the borrowing of $40,000 to meet current expenditures for the year and appointing township officials, were read and adopted.

The clerk was instructed to contact the municipal solicitor in regard to the preparing of the township's zoning by-law.

The clerk was instructed to request the council of Morrisburg to ask the Department of Highways to construct a stop light on both Highways 401 and 31 at the junction for protection of north south traffic.

The clerk gave a financial report which indicated that although there would be shown approximately an $8,000 debit, a cash receipt of $9,700 as yet not paid would actually make a surplus for the past year of approximately $1,700.

Welland Canal Tolls May Injure Ontario Industry

If tolls are charged for ships passing through the Welland Canal, their cost will affect every industry in Ontario, Stuart Armour, economic adviser, The Steel Company of Canada, Limited, told the Windsor Rotary Club the other day.

Mr Armour said that, since 1904, all Canadian inland waterways had been toll-free. The Welland Ship Canal, completed in 1932, has never had tolls levied upon cargoes passing through it.

The great industrial growth of Ontario, the speaker said, has centred on heavy industry. "It is axiomatic that you cannot have heavy industry unless you have a basic steel industry; and it is no accident that the industrial growth of Ontario, and the progress of all Canada, have both been based on steel made in this province.

"Ontario today produces more than three-quarters of all Canadian steel, and most of it is consumed within this province. Hence virtually everything that is produced by Ontario's great and growing industrial complex is affected by the availability, the quality and the price of steel made in this province . . . Anything that raises steel prices directly affects all heavy industry in Ontario, and in the long run indirectly affects the price of virtually every article produced in this province."

Mr Armour also said that the three integrated steel mills in Ontario, which together produce more than three-quarters of the country's steel, were located on the Upper Lakes navigation system, at Hamilton and Sault Ste. Marie, because of the availability of water-borne coal and limestone and iron ore, which have passed through the whole of the Upper Lakes Navigation System toll-free ever since 1902.

When the United States agreed to join with Canada in the construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway, she did so on the understanding, Mr Armour said, that tolls should be collected to cover construction, maintenance costs and operation of the Seaway proper, the section of the St. Lawrence from Iroquois, Ont., to Montreal. There was never in Washington's mind any idea that the Welland Canal, always toll-free, would be included in the Seaway for toll purposes.

The Welland Canal, at its present depth, Mr Armour said, is suitable for the industries now using it, whose ships have been designed for that depth. Deepening of the canal for the use of ocean-going traffic would bring no advantage to present users, and it seemed unfair to saddle them with the cost of the deeepening.

Another danger to industry that Mr Armour saw in the proposal to collect Welland Canal tolls lay in the fact that the Ontario Hydro had recently announced the building of two new steam electric plants, which would depend on coal. Thus tolls on coal traffic would be passed on to users of electricity. A further danger lay in the fact that, if Canada imposed tolls for the Welland Canal, the United States might consider putting tolls on the canal at Sault Ste. Marie. Thus every industry in the Great Lakes area of Canada and the United States has an interest in the matter.

Mr Armour closed his address by urging the business men of his audience to study the question and inform and arouse public opinion about what he termed a real peril to the national economy.

FERGUSON TRACTORS TAKE HILLARY TO POLE—Tractors similar to those used throughout rural Canada were employed in the Hillary expedition to the South Pole. The Ferguson system tractors, known as model TE-20, are basically identical with the world-famous Ferguson "35" used on Canadian farms. The only modifications made were to electrical and cooling systems. While the above photo shows a unit with a half-track, the final stages of the journey were accomplished with full track supplied by the manufacturers. (Photo courtesy A.N.A.R.E.)

ROYAL RODENT CONTROLLER

The appointment of an official rat catcher to Queen Elizabeth was announced the other day.

The announcement was contained in a list of those British tradesmen entitled to display the Royal crest and the words "by appointment suppliers to H.M. the Queen."

The British Ratin Company was named as "contractors for rodent control." Others on the list of 202 firms include a horseshoe fitter, a bagpipe maker and a poultry plucker.

DIDN'T WORK

Henry Ferrie, of London, sadly reported the other day that getting your face tattoed is no way to win back a girl friend—unless maybe you are a Hottentot.

Ferrie, a 38-year-old janitor, recently had a spat with his steady, Tilly Farrell, 40. Explaining to a reporter what happened next, he said:

"I once told here, 'Tilly, if you ever leave me, I'll have my whole face tattoed so that no other woman will ever look at me'."

Ferrie went out and and had a butterfly tattoed on his nose, a tree on his forehead, a coiled snake on his left cheek and a flying drag-on his right cheek. Then he went to see Tilly.

"I thought he had taken leave of his senses," she said. "I'm afraid it is all up between us."

"The tattoo are permanent," said Ferrie, "so I think I will get a job with a circus to help me forget."

He opened his shirt collar, revealing a tattoo across his throat saying "Cut here."

Facilities at Saint John, N.B., a year-round port, include the largest dry dock in the British Commonwealth.

FINED $5 FOR TV IN CAR

Harold W. Smith, Hamilton, was fined recently for operating a car equipped with a television set. He was fined $5.

The Highway Traffic Act says no person shall operate a motor vehicle equipped with a television set. The set Smith installed under the dash of his car could not be operated unless the car was stopped with the gear-shift lever in park position and the ignition turned off.

Defence counsel D. S. Stephens said that because of these precauntions it would be innacurate to say Smith operated a vehicle equipped with a television set.

Said Justice of the Peace Wm. Farquhar: "We can't help but admire the technical knowledge and genius of Mr Smith, but my job is to administer the law, not to change it."

CULL POULTRY FLOCK TO CUT COSTS

Keep your feed costs down by culling non-laying and off-condition birds, says R. H. McMillan, Alberta's poultry commissioner.

Although picking out undesirable and unthrifty birds is a year-round job, major culling operations takle place firstly, when hens go into the laying house in the fall and secondly when pullets are 7-8 months of age. Birds that are not producing by seven months of age are not worth keeping. Even if they do start later, laying will most probably be spasmodic. Given the proper feed and management a flock should give an average 70 percent production. If output drops to 50 per cent or lower more culling is needed.

Some of the most easily detected qualifications of a good layer are: a flat skull of medium length and width with a stout beak; comb, full, waxy and bright red ; eye, large, prominent and bright; body, medium depth and well fleshed with the back long, broad and flat. The bird should also have an overall appearance of health by being active and alert.

Scottish traditions are strong in parts of Nova Scotia, where highland games are popular.

The climate of Nova Scotia is without extremes of heat and cold.

EVERYBODY EATS-- TRY THESE!

By Helen Graham

GINGER IS A POPULAR SPICE

GINGER IS A GOOD winter-time spice. It combines so well with apples and pears that it can be used to add zest to any number of cold weather desserts. I am thinking particularly of powdered ginger but there is also preserved ginger which is a great favourite with many people.

Ginger Apple Shortcake

Use a gingerbread mix or the following easy hot-water recipe:

½ cup butter
½ cup brown sugar
1 egg
2-3 cup molasses
2½ cups flour
2 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. baking soda
1½ tsps. ginger
½ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. cloves
1 cup boiling water
1 cup sweetened apple sauce
Whipped cream

Cream the shortening, add sugar. Add well-beaten egg and molasses. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with the boiling water. Stir until smooth. Pour into greased cake pan and bake in a 325 degree oven about 50 minutes. When cool cut in squares and using one square to a serving make short cakes as follows: Cut cake in half and put together with layers of applesauce and whipped cream. Put on top slice and finish with more applesauce and whipped cream.

Indian Pudding with Vanilla Ice Cream

2 cups milk
1-3 cup molasses
3 tbsps. sugar
¼ cup yellow cornmeal
¼ tsp. cinnamon
⅛ tsp. nutmeg
½ tsp. salt
2 tbsps. butter

Heat milk and add molasses, sugar, salt, cornmeal, spice and butter. Cook over hot water until mixture thickens. Pour into a baking dish. Place in a 250 to 300 degree oven and bake for three hours without stirring. Serve hot topped with vanilla ice cream.

Plan to make this pudding when you are using the oven for a roast.

Old-Fashioned Gingersnaps with Apple Jelly

½ cup butter
½ cup molasses
1 cup brown sugar
2 tsps. ginger
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp soda
1 egg
3½ cups flour
Apple jelly

Combine butter, molasses, sugar, spices, salt and soda. Heat to boiling. Add slowly to beaten egg, stirring constantly. Stir in flour to make a stiff dough. Chill in refrigerator; roll very thin, cut in circles and bake in a hot oven. When baked and cool put two cookies together with apple jelly.

Boughten gingersnaps may be put together in the same way with apple jelly. The children will like them in their lunch boxes.

Frozen Ginger Pear Salad

2½ cups cooked pears, drained
2 3-oz. pkgs. cream cheese
6 tbsps. mayonnaise
1 tbsp. chopped preserved ginger
1 cup whipped cream

Blend cheese and mayonnaise. Fold in whipped cream and ginger. Pour over pears cut lengthwise and arranged in a refrigerator tray. Freeze till firm. Serve on crisp lettuce, garnished with maraschino cherry slices.

NEW SILVER DOLLAR UNPOPULAR IN B.C.

Mint master A. P. Hilliams said the other night that the Royal Canadian Mint is turning out British Columbia centennial silver dollars at a 40,000-a-day rate.

Mr Williams, one of seven easterners who chose the coin's design last February, said British Columbian complaints that it has a burial connotation came almost a year too late.

"We released pictures of the design then and they widely were reprinted with nothing but most favourable comment," he told a reporter.

In Vancouver, Guy Williams of the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia had called the coin "memloose chickman"—death money. He said the totem depicted on the coin is the mortuary pole of the Tsimpseam tribe in B.C.

Mr Williams said no west coast Indians would handle the coin "because it carries death."

The centennial coin was designed by Toronto artist Stephen Trenka who copied his totem from a photo of a Haida Indian totem pole.

Seaway Valley Parks Nearing Completion Summary Shows Project Will Be Tourist Attraction

A summary of the work carried out by the Ontario-St. Lawrence Development Commission during 1957 and its plans for 1958 indicate the parks in Seaway Valley will be well on the road to completion this year. A copy of the report was released last week by Dr J. A. Phillips, Cornwall area member of the Commission.

The report indicates that grading and building of culverts in the Long Sault parkway is 95 percent complete. The contract for three bridges is complete except for the painting of railings. This scenic drive will connect to the mainland 10 of the 20 new islands to be created in the Long Sault area by flooding when the power pool is raised in 1958.

Placing of sand for beaches on Woodlands and Mille Roches Islands has been completed.

On completion of grading and culverts, the parkway road will be paved and the slopes seeded and landscaped.

Access roads will be built to the beaches at Woodlands and Mille Roches Islands and parking lots, picnic grounds and bath houses will be provided at three points.

Shore improvement work at Crysler's Farm Battlefield Memorial Park is 95 per cent completed. The mound on which the monument is to be placed has been constructed.

The road along the west boundary of the park, to provide an entrance via new No. 2 Highway from 401, is almost complete. Part of the main park road and roads in Upper Canada Village have been built.

The pioneer cemetery, with 300 headstones from the earlier graves in the cemeteries affected by the St. Lawrence power project, is 95 per cent completed.

In 1958, the main park road will be extended easterly and westerly and an entrance constructed from No. 2 Highway. Additional internal roads will be built.

The Loucks house and Crysler house, two of the most important historical buildings, will be moved into Upper Canada Village. They will be the last two houses to be moved there from the area to be flooded.

Work of restoring and furnishing the approximately 25 historic buildings in the village will get underway.

The canal will be completed and a replica of a small lock built.

The memorial mound will be finished and the battlefield monument removed to the site. A military museum building will be constructed and the iponeer memorial cemetery completed.

Water and sewage systems will be installed for some of the buildings and Hydro service extended.

Among the historical buildings moved into the Upper Canada Village are Cook's Tavern, Robertson house, the White House. Kirkwood barn, McIlwraith log house, Lutheran parsonage, Christ Church, Loucks shed, Aultsville station, Forget-me-not house, schoolmaster's house and store.

The canal in front of the village is 80 per cent completed and a lagoon dividing the village from the rest of the park has been completed.

Since its opening in June, some 6,400 persons have visited the temporary museum. The nearly 2,000 objects collected will be used to furnish the historic buildings and, with other acquisitions, will form a museum depicting the life of the pioneers in the settlement of the St. Lawrence Valley.

A bathing beach is to be constructed, along with docks for pleasure boats.

An extensive program of clean-up, reforestation and landscaping will be started.

In conjunction with the Department of Travel and Publicity, the Commission intends to develop a park, information centre and reception centre on No. 2 Highway near Lancaster, at the site of the former Boffin farm. The shore will provide an attractive bathing beach and the entire project is expected to provide a suitable eastern entrance to the province.

Chalmer's W.A. Appoints Committees For Bazaar

The January meeting of the Woman's Association of Chalmer's United Church, Finch, was held at the home of Mrs Dolton Henry on Wednesday afternoon. The newly-elected president, Mrs Lynden Hough, conducted the meeting assisted by the secretary, Mrs Ellery Ouderkirk.

The meeting opened with a hymn and the Lord's prayer repeated in unison. Scripture was read by Mrs W. C. Johnstone and the lesson thoughts on the theme "Another Way" was read by Mrs J. L. Nephew. Roll call was answered by the payment of fees for the coming year.

Mrs Ellery Ouderkirk and Mrs Dolton Henry were appointed the sick visiting committee for the village and Mrs R. Droppo and Mrs W. Burd for the country. The W.M.S. were given permission to have an apron table at the St. Patrick's tea as usual. The treasurer was authorized to buy ten pounds of sugar and cranberries.

Attending Course At Cornell

Dr Dalton R. Docksteader, of Chesterville, is attending the 50th annual mid-winter veterinary conference of the New York State Veterinary College at Cornell University, Ithaca, New York. This year the conference is being held at the new 19-building veterinary college.

This convention enables veterinarians to keep up-to-date with new developments in treatment procedures, control and prevention of diseases of domestic animals, as well as public health problems that insure human and animal well being. The meeting has an all-time attendance record of around 600 doctors interested in the welfare of the livestock industry.

A wide field of veterinary practice activities is being discussed by approximately 40 speakers. Subjects cover a new poultry disease in New York State, foot and mouth disease, bovine mastitis, anesthesia of large and small animals, canine distemper and hepatitis, heart disease of animals and various other equally pertinent subjects too numerous to mention.

A highlight of the meeting will be the presentation of a portrait of the Dean of the Veterinary College, Dr W. A. Hagan, to Cornell University by the Veterinary College Alumni Association. This portrait commemorates Dean Hagan's 25 years of distinguished and highly successful service as Dean of the New York State Veterinary College.
