Joint Walk To Aid Projects In Community

A joint "walk" between Br. 370 Canadian Legion and Iroquois Lions Club will be held here September 19th as both organizations seek the help of all citizens in their efforts to raise money for their separate projects.

The local Legion Branch is building an extension to its facilities for a general meeting and diningroom area on Dundas St., and the Lions Club have erected lights at the ball diamond in Central Park which are to be turned over to the village this Thursday night. Both projects require a great deal of money and the support of the entire district is being sought to help finance them.

Several meetings have already been held between the two groups and by this weekend registration forms will be available for those who wish to join in the Walkathon on behalf of either organization. The forms are available from Thursday on, at the following: L.C. Davis Insurance Agency, Bennett's Market in Brinston, Rooney's Feeds, Prunner's Esso Station, Bev Hutt's, Iroquois Motor Hotel, The Daffodil and The Iroquois Post.

PRESIDENTS TO WALK

Already $50.00 has been placed on the feet of the two presidents of the sponsoring groups: Legion President Ray Delegarde and Lions President Alex Banford and they, along with Lions, Legionaires and possibly a small group of pipers will lead off the walk at 9:30 September 19th from Iroquois Shopping Plaza.— The route will run from Iroquois to Dixon's Corners, West to Hanesville and South to the village.

First aid stations will be set up along the route with a nurse and two helpers at each 5-mile station and a registered nurse will be continually driving the route checking on the walkers' condition. Food and drink will be prepared and distributed along the route free to all walkers.

PRIZES OFFERED

To add a bit of interest to the campaign for funds, prizes have been offered by the sponsors. The oldest walker will receive $25.00, the youngest $10.00 or equivalent and the first walker in with the most cash turned in will receive $25.00. In addition, any merchant wishing to donate prizes is asked to contact Ray Delegarde.

Letters will be going out ot all business places in the village and district soliciting their financial support of these community projects.

All proceeds will be divided equally between the two organizations at the conclusion of the walkathon.

DR. MALCOLM MARSTON

DENTIST OPENS IN SHOPPING PLAZA

Dr. Malcolm Marston officially opened his practice in Iroquois this week, much to the pleasure of the village and surrounding community and The Post extends a sincere welcome on their behalf. Dr. Marston had difficulty in getting equipment as had been scheduled and making arrangements but was finally able to open for business this week.

We welcome the Dr., his wife and family to the community and wish him every success in our community. (See advt. elsewhere for phone number).

Donkey Baseball Thursday Night

Donkey baseball has again been scheduled for Iroquois, this time set for this Thursday night following a rain-out last week. The donkeys and the Lions and Legion members will be out there ready to entertain from 7:30 p.m. on. A softball game starts the evening off as the Lions and Legion members put on a display of softball that should end all doubts about how the game should be played.

As the darkness falls the lights will be turned on and officially presented to the Village of Iroquois. Then the game of donkey baseball will get under way with Iroquois and Winchester Lions Club members providing the entertainment. Assisted by 11 willing (or otherwise) donkeys.

The same evening, a representative of Caldwell Linen Mills will be turning over to the Village a new set of bleachers as a donation towards the betterment of facilities at the ball diamond. Accepting fo rthe village will be Recreation Association Chairman Mrs. Helen Smith. Reeve Ken Kirkby and Councillor Jack Saver will be accepting the lights on behalf of the village from Lion President Alex Banford and the Lions Club.

An admission of $1.00 for adults and 50c for children will be charged, with proceeds of the evening going towards paying for the lights in Central Park.

So come on over to the park, just off Victoria Street, for an evening of fun. And bring the family along to enjoy the fun.

Providing it doesn't rain again of course!

Youth Camp

An area young people are invited to attend a Youth Camp Weekend at the Rideau Hill Camp, Friday through Sunday, September 11-13th, sponsored by the United Church Hi-C Fellowship of the Seaway Presbytery.

The programme will include swimming, campfires, cookouts, group discussions, recreation, etc., with the Reverends Brian Thrasher and Cecil Dawson of Kingston as guest leaders.

A registration fee of $5.00 should accompany application forms for this Camp Weekend for young people, sending same to Miss Linda Berry, South Mountain, before September 1st.

A Poster on the Camp and Registration Forms will be available at the morning worship service, Knox Presbyterian Church, Sunday, August 30th, or by notifying the Rev. J. J. Hibbs before then of your interest.

Girl Guide Dies In Car Crash Sunday

A Pennsylvania Girl Guide died just west of Iroquois Sunday morning as she was heading towards a bus to take her home after a week's exchange trip to visit Canadian Guides in Eastern Ontario. Kathleen Sayer, 14, of Bethlehem, Pa., along with Bonnie Hersch, 14, of Wescoesville, Pa., had been staying with Judith Ann Miller, 13, of Metcalfe, and Jennifer Pyne, 13 of, Edwards.

James Kenneth Miller, father of Judith, was driving the girls to Carruthers Point, west of Kingston, to catch the buses back to the U.S. The accident occurred a short distance west of the Iroquois Interchange on 401 at 6:30 a.m. when a car driven by Joyce Bradley, 29, of Brockville, hit the Miller car from the rear.

The impact spun the Miller car, a small foreign make, into the north ditch. Mr. Miller, his daughter and the Hersch girl were thrown free before the car rolled over and caught fire. Two passengers in the Bradley car, Vincent and John Rooney, of Brockville, ran across the road and managed to drag the girls clear before the car exploded in flames. The Sayer girl was pronounced dead on arrvial at Brockville General Hospital.

Iroquois Fire Department was called to put out the fire.

Girls from the U.S. and Canada were exchanging visits and three of the Pennsylvania girls stayed at homes in Iroquois for four days following three days of camping along the Ottawa River. The girls visiting here stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Eddy, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Casselman and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Kirkby and all three cars passed the accident scene early Sunday morning not realizing that the other girls were involved in the accident.

Three Iroquois girls, Gwenann Eddy, Lorraine Casselman and Laurel Kirkby are in Pennsylvania this week visiting with Girl Guides in the Allentown area and will return home at the weekend.

Double Ring Ceremony At St. John's, Cardinal

On Saturday, August 15, 1970 at twelve o'clock noon, Sarah Anne Rae (Sally) Shaver, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shaver, Cardinal, became the bride of Grant Stephen Jenner, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. John Jenner, Islington. The Rev. Keith Whitney, cousin of the bride, from Metropolitan United Church Toronto, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Pember MacIntosh, Ottawa, aunt of the bride, was soloist and was accompanied by Miss Margaret Kaine, the church organist who was also in charge of the wedding music.

The church was tastefully decorated with mid-summer flowers of white and contrasting shades of pink.

Escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father, Sally wore a white floor length Ligoda gown fashioned with an A-line skirt, empire waist, high neckline and long lily point sleeves. The Chantilly lace which overlaid the skirt and the bodice and was inserted in the sleeves, was seeded with miniature pearls and crystal as was the cathedral train which fell from the back. A four tier waist length silk illusion tulle veil edged with Chantilly lace was held by a crown of Chantilly lace, pearls, and crystals She carried a white Bible decorated with deep pink roses and stephanotis Candy pink ribbon with stephanotis fell in a cascade from the bouquet.

Miss Joan Ralph, of North Augusta, as maid of honour, wore a floor length candy pink Ligoda gown, with an A-line skirt on an empire waist. A sash around the waist formed a bow and streamers at the back accentuating the deep inverted pleat. The gows was enhanced with Chantilly lace on the mandarin collar and on the short bouffant sleeves. She carried a cascade bouquet of deep pink mums with candy pink satin streamers.

Also attending the bride as bridesmaids were Mrs. Duncan MacKay, Prescott; Miss Debbie Jenner, Islington, sister of the groom; Miss Sharon Robertson, Iroquois; and Miss Leslie MacIntosh, Ottawa, both cousins of the bride. Their gowns were of deep pink Ligoda and fashioned identically to that of the maid of honour. They carried cascade bouquets of candy pink mums with deep pink satin streamers.

Miss Laurie MacIntosh, Ottawa, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl and was dressed identically to the bridesmaids and carried a basket of mid-summer flowers of white and contrasting shades of pink.

The ring bearer was Master Timmy Shaver, Iroquois, cousin of the bride, and carried the wedding bands on a pillow of white satin and lace.

Carman House Data

The Carman House Museum has been open daily the past two months, and Cathy McGahey and Don Fisher, who have been showing visitors through the house report many hundreds of interested visitors, many from Europe as well as from across Canada and the United States.

Restoration work on the house is proceeding and specially formulated paint has arrived for painting the woodwork and some walls.

A meeting is planned for September 28th, at which time representatives from Iroquois Council and restoration architect Peter J. Stokes will meet with interested citizens with the purpose of forming an Historical Committee to help plan and carry out future activities and work at the house. If you are interested, feel free to attend. There will be a discussion of work already done and a question period at which anything regarding the restoration will be explained or clarified.

This IS Community Spirit!

The announcement this week that the Iroquois Lions Club and Branch 370 Royal Canadian Legion are entering into a joint walkathon for two separate community projects in Iroquois should be welcomed as good news for more reasons than seeing the projects completed and financially sound.

For years we have preached community spirit and co-operation between organizations, as well as individuals, and it gives us great pleasure to see these two groups joined together in a common cause; that of providing facilities for public use within the community.

Both the Legion and the Lions have an enviable record of service in their own fields of endeavour but this is the first time the two have joined actively together in common planning and organization to sponsor an event in Iroquois.

Looking back over the years and the many works of public good carried out by each organization, it can be readily seen that a joint effort can only enhance the community's already high regard for each of them.

Because of their past records of performance alone it would be easy and indeed compulsory in our thinking to support them, but in light of this joint effort on behalf of all in the community it is even more compelling hat we offer them our support and call upon all within our village and district to support them both in this forthcoming walkathon. Our congratulations are offered at this time, because this truly is "community spirit". Let the rest of us show just how much we appreciate seeing this kind of comradeship, within our community, by supporting them financially on September 19th.

Pack Up Your Troubles In Your Old Kit Bag and . . .

When last week we suggested every reader write their federal Member of Parliament asking that immediate action be taken to bring to an end the deplorable situation with our mails, we neglected to mention that unless you had other means of sending that letter, there was no use using the present mail system. Your letter couldn't go anywhere even if you did mail it.

When the post office department started closing the small post offices across the country and started building new small post office buildings we had dillusions that the quality of service would indeed be better for all of us. Even though the railways were taking away our small stations and the trains didn't stop any more and a trucking service took over the trains task of carrying our mail, we still thought that it may well all be for the best. Even after we had problem after problem with the mail service we still clung to the beaten theory that those boys in Ottawa, specialitss as they must be, were right and we were wrong.

If you keep telling yourself something long enough, it is possible to believe it. In this we feel we are partially to blame for the problems of the post office department and its "service". Had we not been so gullible we would have realized long ago that the updated mail service was worse than back in the "good old days", that just because a change was made didn't necessarily mean that it was for the better.

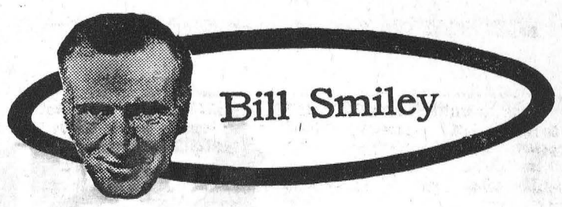
After a phone call a year or so back to the post office boys in Ottawa suggesting that the system along the "front" wasn't all that it could be, we were politely informed that their study and findings proved to them that the system was all right. In other words they don't even have the guts to admit that they just might have been wrong and someone else might be right. What we were after was a small change. If you mail a letter to any point east of Iroquois the letter first goes to Brockville, then to Cornwall, and then on to wherever you addressed it. That is, if the truck was running. We suggested the truck that comes to Iroquois from Brockville could be sent on to Morrisburg to join with the truck that leaves there ard goes to Cornwall, thus providing better service.

The only problem with offering something that sounds logical is that it seems to fall on deaf ears and after a number of phone calls to a government office to register some slight dissatisfaction, one tends to throw up his hands and say "to H . . . with it".

That's where we make our mistake. In a society such as ours, every person has a say. Every person pays the bills and every person should get what he's paying for.

We're not trying to beat a dead horse; just trying to understand in our own mind just why we have put up with this nonsense for so many months. Are we Canadians getting so docile that we won't stand up and be counted. It's easy to be agreeable and on the winning side, but in a situation such as the postal crisis we are all the losers and this is about all we can agree with. There have been developing alternative mailing services in our cities but the rurcl areas, because of scattered populations, are going to be struck with whatever service the post office will provide. We wish the private enterprises well, even though we know that if they succeed and prosper it is going to cost us even more for less in our mailing service.

There's one thing about Canadians that some Canadians seem to forget; push us a bit too hard and we can become the most disagreeable lot in the world. That fine line between revolt and seeming complacency is getting closer together and the public of Canada can very easily step over the line.



The Jet Setters Who Stayed Home

Once upon a time, summer travel was for the very rich.—They went to Europe on a luxury liner, ate eight times a day, stayed at fashionable places on the continent, dressed for dinner, and all that jazz, while the rest of us sweated it out.

The not quite so rich, but still wealthy, flocked to the great lodges and summer hotels: St. Andrews by the Sea; Manoir Richelieu; Jasper and Banff. They were safe there from the hoi-polloi and subserviently served by secretly insolent bellboys and waitresses.

The moderately well to do had a cottage, perhaps a day's travel from home, with a backhouse, an ice box with real ice in it, coal-oil lamps and a rowboat. They lived quietly, simply, and went to bed with the whippoor-wills.

The poor, the working class, picniced in the park, attended ballgames, and watched parades, In the evening, they sat on the front porch, murmuring gossip, drinking lemonade, and listening to the cries of their young, playing run sheep run or redlight in the velvet dusk.

Things have changed. The rich now fly to the Greek Islands, or Japan, or Rome, where they can live exactly as they could at home, but with slavies of whatever nationality assuring them that they are still the very rich.

The not quite so rich have deserted the big hotels and lodges, most of which are on the verge of bankruptcy. These places have in desperation, become a haven for conventions and middle class poor tippers. The original inhabitants have fled to Mexico City, Scandinavia or the Carribbean, where they can still escape the hoi-polloi.

The moderately well to do still in many cases, have a summer cottage. But it is now two or three or more hours of maniacal driving. They now have indoor plumbing, a refrigerator, electric lights, and everything from a power cruiser to a canoe. Some are bereft because they receive only one TV channel. They seldom get to bed before three a.m.

And the working class, as they used to be called when they worked? They hire a trailer and cover two thousand miles. Or they rent a cottage and sand-and sun it for two weeks. Or they get together and fly in to a fishing lodge once reserved for millionaires.

There are a lot of reasons for the change. Everybody has a car, Highways are better. Holidays are longer and you even get vacation pay. And, of course, air travel on chartered flights has made it possible for people with nothing to go almost anywhere.

The only people who are poor enough today not to travel are the young people. But that doesn't stop them. With rucksack and sleepingbag, they can cross the country on next to nothing.

I'm not knocking all this. I think it's great. But I'm just beginning to wonder where and why I missed the boat, in this travel boom.

We just go home from our big trip for the summer — 110 miles to visit Grandad. My sister and her husband are in England. My brother and his wife send a card from a cruise on the Rhine. A colleague, with four children, drops a card from Virginia. A reader, Bob Cunningham of Omaha, has just encircled the Great Lakes. An old friend and wife are spending three weeks in Europe. And I sit in the back yard, with a six-mile trip to the beach as my Great Expectations.

There's something wrong some where. Each and every one of those people has been telling me how broke he is for years. However, I mustn't be bitter. Just because none of those people can afford what they're doing doesn't mean I should be envious.

I was a bit burned by a card from my daughter. She set off two weeks ago to hitch-hike to Vancouver with a friend. Her card says they are just about to leave Cape Breton, by ferry, for Newfoundland. Seems a rather circuitous route to Vancouver. With no money.

Well, they may all think they're really seeing the world, but there are some pretty exotic things right around here. For example, we might slide out tonight to a little fresh vegetable roadside stand, four miles out of town, pick up some sweet corn eat it, and have a whiz-bang of an evening watching a re-run of Green Acres. There's not a one of them who can do that.

Dollars and Good Sense

This column is a regular weekly feature prepared by the Family Financial Counseling Service of Avco Financial Services, P.O. Box 2820, London, Ontario. All questions submitted to the above address will be answered in print or by return mail. Names will not be used in print. — However, all questions should be accompanied by a complete name and address.

Since many letters we receive indicate an awareness of practical buying and saving techniques, the column this week will be devoted to some "do's" and don't" of planning, buying, and saving. The following suggestions should help you solve some of your money problems:

DO

. . . keep track of your income for at least two months so that you'll know where your money is going.

. . . determine how much you have left after all the necessary expenses (rent, food, clothing, payments, etc.) are taken out.

. . . set up a regular saving program to cover extra things in the future — vacation, car repairs, insurance, etc., so you will have enough cash to pay for them.

. . . plan your spending by pay periods so you won't run out of money between paydays.

DON'T

. . . spend more than a week's pay in cash or sign up for any major purchase on credit without thinking aboot the situation over night. You'd be surprised how less attractive the offer or deal looks in old light of morning.

. . . purchase anything you don't need — no matter how inexpensive it may be — or just because it's on sale.

. . . buy any item just because you can get it on credit — or because no down payments are required — or because payments are small. Whatever the case, remember that you'll pay the full price in the end plus the cost of the credit which, of course, will be more if no down payment is required or if payments are so small they will extend over a longer period of time. Make sure you can keep up with the payments before you sign up for credit (and be sure you understand everything before you sign).

. . . panic if you run into a financial crisis and can't meet your payments because of illness or injury to the family breadwinner. Keep in touch with your creditors; tell them the facts, and perhaps something can be worked out for you.

Following these simple rules may not lead you into a financial utopic, but they may help keep you from running headlong into a financial quagmire.

Keith is a lovable four-year-old with a disposition as engaging as his smile. Canadian Indian in descent, he is a slim, wiry boy with hazel eyes, brown hair and olive skin.

He is a quiet youngster, shy at first, but soon makes friends. He enjoys other children and gets on well with them. Like most small boys, Keith finds cars and trucks the best of all playthings. He is an active young fellow but happy to be quiet if somebody will read to him.

Keith has some eczema and occasional attacks of asthmatic bronchitis, usually associated with changes in the weather. His allergies are being helped by a desensitization program and he is now able to eat foods that previously upset him. He still must avoid chocolate, cheese and citrus fruits and is also allergic to cat hair, dust and some weeds.

This fine boy needs loving, relaxed parents in a home without pressures. His new family, especially his mother, needs to be prepared to wait for signs of affection.

To inquire about adopting Keith please write to Today's Child, Department of Social and Family Services, Parliament Buildings, Toronto 182.

This is Mary Sue. She has nice clothes and good food. I know, because sometimes I help feed and dress her.

What she doesn't have is a mother and a father. Oh, she has parents, but they're judged unfit to care for her.

Things must have been pretty bad for her at home. It took a long time to win her trust. The day she smiled was a major triumph for us all.

I'm a teen-age volunteer at a foundling home operated by our church. For most of the youngsters, this is the first experience with love and kindness, good food and clean clothes. Now I realize how important is our church's mission work.

Your church interprets God's love in its ministry to the sick and starving, the aged and the dispossessed.

Care In Re-fueling

Re-fueling is one of the most critical operations that the operator of a power boat can undertake. An enclosed boat such as a cabin cruiser with built-in tanks and inboard-powered naturally requires the greatest care in this regard, but even an open runabout powered by an outboard and portable tanks presents a hazard. The Ontario Safety League warns that unless proper techniques are followed, explosion and fire can be the tragic and costly results.

On an open boat such as an outboard-powered runabout, gasoline spilled in the bilge is the greatest hazard. So always remove portable tanks from the boat before filling and wipe clean of gasoline before replacing in the boat.

On a boat which is enclosed by a cabin or powered with an inboard engine which is installed under decks or hatches, gasoline fumes and resultant explosion is the great danger.

The Ontario Safety League warns that gasoline fumes bing heavier than air will flow into a hull and find the lowest level which is the bilge. Sparks from the engine or an electric motor will ignite these fumes causing an explosion which will blow a boat apart.

Filler pipes should be installed on a deck where fumes will flow overboard. Be sure there are overflow pipes that will vent excess gasoline overboard, not into the hull. Before commencing the re-fueling operation, close all hatches and windows to prevent the wind from carrying fumes into the boat. On complet ion of re-fueling, open up windows and hacthes and turn on blower to ventilate the hull and expel any fumes which may have collected.

Eight U.S. States, three provinces to meet on pollution

Eight U.S. States and two Canadian provinces will join Ontario in a Great Lakes Environmental Conference to be held in Toronto September 9-10 dealing with air and water pollution in the most heavily industrialized and populated region of North America.

All eight governors of the states bordering the Great Lakes —Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Minnesota — have said they will either attend the conference or send senior representatives.

Quebec and Manitoba will also send representatives as will the Canadian and United States federal governments.

Ontario Prime Minister John Robarts called the conference to discuss "common environmental problems" faced by state and provincial jurisdictions surrounding the Great Lakes.

"The public in both our countries is showing an increasing awareness of the problem and is expecting an unprecedented degree of co-ordination of day to day activities by our jurisdictions," he said in a letter to governors and premiers.

The two-day conference will be held at the Ontario Science Centre in Toronto.

First day of the conference, September 9, will be a closed technical session in which senior officials involved in environmental maagement in each jurisdiction will meet to discuss current problems, existing channels for the exchange of information, and developing new methods of co-operation.

This closed technical session will produce the agenda for the following day at which time the leaders of all governments involved, or theri personal representatives, will meet in public to discuss and indicate their support for a co-ordinated program of environmental management of the Great Lakes basin.

"At this session", said Mr. Robarts in his letter to governors and premiers, "we might carry forward policy matters discussed by officials the previous day and emphasize the need for and means of achieveing close co-operation to deal with the preservation of the environment we share in the Great Lakes basin."

The Great Lakes basin ha sa population of about 32,000,000; one of every three Canadians and one of every eight Americans live there. The population is expected to reach 57,000,000 in the year 2000.

Mr. Robarts said in his letter that the time allotted governments to find solutions to pollution problems is becoming shorter with each succeeding year.

"For example, in recent weeks great concern has been expressed over the effect of phosphates in the lower Great Lakes and the continued use of this substance in detergents has been called into question.

"More recently, the discovery of mercury pollution has caused two states and our own province to ban fishing in some sections of the Great Lakes system."

How much home are you missing through outdated wiring?

When this house was built it was hard to imagine all the wonderful ways in which electricity would be serving us today. That's why the wiring in so many older homes just isn't adequate for today's needs.

There are many signs. Fuses blowing. Lights dimming. Appliances performing sluggishly. Cluttered extension cords. Not enough outlets.

So, if you're planning to modernize your home, think first of the wiring. Have a qualified electrical contractor check it. You'll be surprised at how easily and inexpensively it can be updated. The Hydro Finance Plan makes it easy to get started right away. Just ask your Hydro.

Lands & Forests Report

BEFORE YOU SIGN ON THE DOTTED LINE

The sale of timber from your woodlot is a major financial step. Like buying a house. it usually occurs once in a lifetime and deserves all the legal advice you can get.

All too often the unwary wood lot owner will allow himself to be talked into signing a contract based on berbal promises. This leaves him open to all sorts of abuses which, unfortunately, he tolerates with great misgivings. The landowner may be a non-resident unable to keep a close eye on the cutting. He may be a busy dairy farmer who rarely visits the woodlot, and in many cases hasn't been back there for years. A lump sum price, cash in-hand looks pretty good; the woodlot is only a nuisance anyway.

In any case a good woodlot is a definite asset to the farm. In the past it heated the house, built the barn, fenced the fields, provided maple syrup, and supplied cash products in a crisis.

Today it may not represent most of these but it still is worth money, it is a cash crop which you will harvest only once in a generation. Your decision, as was your fathers, will decide whether your son will benefit.

Foresters with the Department of Lands and Forests will be pleased to help you make that once in a lifetime decision. They will give you an estimate of the saleable timber and mark the actual trees to be cut if necessary. They will assist you in formulating a suitable contract which you in turn should turn over to your lawyer for a final scrutiny.

Remember you are not only interested in realizing the true value of the products but in protecting your property from damage and ensuring a crop as good or better for your sons or daughters.
