Manitoba Minister Called To Winchester Church

Congregation Votes in Favour of Rev. W. S. Atchison, Manitou, Man.—Rev. R. C. Tait Presides.

Rev. R. C. Tait, interim Moderator for the Winchester United congregation, was in Winchester last week on Wednesday evening presiding at a meeting of the Official Board of the United church when it was decided to hear no more applicants for the pulpit vacancy. Other items of business were dealt with and arrangements made for a meeting of the congregation which was held Monday night. Rev. Mr. Tait was again in charge and when members and adherents of the church voted by ballot, Rev. W. S. Atchison, B.A. B.D., of Manitou, Man. was called.

Rev. W. S. Atchison is chairman of the Carmen Presbytery in Southern Manitoba, and his wife, who is a singer of merit, is president of the Presbyterial. They have a son who is 14 years of age, and Mr. Atchison has been seven years in charge of St. Andrew's church, Manitou. He will assume his duties in Winchester on Sunday, April 28th.

While the ballots were being counted, Rev. Mr. Tait gave an excellent address, taking for his theme: "Home and Mother." He bade a strong appeal for the maintaining of the family altar. In his closing remarks he requested the Winchester congregation to get behind their new pastor and support him in every way.

The engagement is announced of Anna Louise, youngest daughter of Mrs. Martin and the late A. J. Martin, to Harold Blake, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Allison, both of Morewood, the marriage to take place in April.

AN ALBINO ROBIN.

AMONG the birds which have come from the south to spend the summer with us is a white robin which has taken up quarters at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. McGee on College street and is attracting considerable attention as it is being fed liberally by members of the household. The breast, back and tail of the bird are quite white with markings of brown and it presents quite a novel sight.

Fine Bazaar and Tea by Trinity United Ladies' Aid

$140 Raised by Ladies at Sale Friday Afternoon.—Many Visited Tea Tables and Enjoyed Programme.

Friday afternoon the Ladies' Aid of Trinity United church conducted a highly successful bazaar and tea in the Sunday School rooms of the church which were tastefully decorated for the occasion. The proceeds amounted to more than $140. A large number visited the tea tables where Mrs. Ing. Cross, Mrs. Fred. Merkley, Mrs. George Hunt and Mrs. Harold Durant poured tea, while Mrs. Wales, Mrs. Rowe, Mrs. Helmer, Mrs. Clayton and Mrs. Wesley Fulton assisted Mrs. Fred Bolster, Mrs. Laurence Doering and Mrs. George Hunt who had the tables under their care.

The bazaar was declared open by the pastor, Rev. R. C. Tait, who gave a brief address and the members of the Society took advantage of the occasion to make the presentation of a very handsome quilt to Mrs. Tait, much to the delighted surprise of that lady. Mrs. Dixon, president of the Society, read the address, while Mrs. Geo. Barkley made the presentation.

An interesting and entertaining programme had been arranged during which Mrs. Geo. Reaburn contributed a piano solo, Miss Beth McKercher sang sweetly "I Love My Little Pussy," Miss Addie Campderros, "Easter Parade," Mrs. Fulton—"The Lost Chord," Mrs. Geo. Merkley—"As I Went A-roaming," Misses Marjorie Boyd, Doris McMillan, Mildred Merkley—"The Lilac Tree," Mrs. Percy Gilroy—piano solo; Misses Lillian Riddell, Shirley King and Vivian LaSalle, instrumental selections.

The different tables were in charge of: Surprise Table—Mrs. Jas. Smith and Mrs. Simeon Bogart; Towels—Mrs. Howard Fulton, Mrs. Wes. Fulton, Mrs. Dan McKercher and Mrs. George Barkley; Aprons—Mrs. Duncan McElheran, Mrs. Geo. Lacey and Mrs. Charles McMillan, Mrs. Haldane Durant; Miscellaneous Table — Mrs. M. Durant, Mrs. Geo. Reaburn, Mrs. Lyle Marcellus and Mrs. Slosser; Home-baking table—Mrs. Fred Smith and Mrs. Ward Johnston.

Maroons Sweep Stanley Cup Series in Three Straight

Mighty Montreal Team Takes World Hockey Title With Victory Over Toronto's Maple Leafs.

The Stanley Cup returned to Montreal Tuesday night on the crest of a 4-1 victory by Montreal Maroons in a fighting, brainy display of hockey that turned back the Toronto Maple Leafs for the third successive time.

Marvin Wentworth was hailed as the hero of the series and Manager Tommy Gorman as one of the great ice managers of all time as Maroons swept through the powerful Toronto squad in three straight games of a three-of-five series.

Wentworth scored a goal and an assist while performing heroically on the defence. Jimmy Ward and Baldy Northcott shared the honours, not only holding the Toronto bombers, Charlie Conacher and Busher Jackson scoreless, but scoring a goal and assist each. Northcott had two assists and Ward one. Gus Marker got the other.

Prospects Are Brighter For Community Hall Govt. Grant Received

Provincial Government Forwards Its Cheque For Grant at Week End and Construction Now is Definite.

BETTER BUILDING THAN EVER

Experience Gained in Work on Burned Structure Will Enable Officials To Improve on Plans.

Events leading to the re-building of Chesterville's Community Hall seem to be taking definite shape as at last week end a cheque for the grant for such purpose was received by Reeve Casselman from the Provincial Treasurer. This will probably be the last of such payments because the present government does not approve of such assistance. Chesterville's case has been looked on favourably on account of the special circumstances surrounding it Representations have been made several times to the Minister of Agriculture since the destruction of the almost completed hall on November 11th last year, and he has taken the view that only the burning of the hall prevented Chesterville receiving the grant which was made by the former government, and therefore had a very strong case for inclusion of the amount in this year's budget, which has been done and the amount paid.

With the experience gained in the building of last year, plans are believed to be going forward which will result in the erection of another building on the foundation already prepared, which will meet the requirements of this community to a far greater extent than would have been the case with the building destroyed, and the financing will be such that the prospective revenue from the use of the hall should eventually pay off the debentures which will be issued to take care of its erection without its cost being felt to any extent by the municipality.

Unique Numbers Feature Trinity Y.P.S. Programme

Court is Held for Certain Members and Prizes For Entrance Drawings Given by Society.

The Young People's Society of Trinity United met Tuesday evening. Mr. Jack Cross prepared a very unique and amusing programme. He considered it necessary to hold a court for various offences committed the previous meeting. The judge was Hubert Lloyd and the Attorney, Jack Cross. The jury consisted of five very efficient members. Mr. Tait gave an extremely interesting talk dealing with books. He urged the young people to begin now to build a library.

The entrance fee to this meeting was a drawing illustrating an author. Miss Vivian LaSalle received first prize and Miss Mary David, second. Eighty-five members enjoyed this outstanding programme.

The members will please note that the meeting next week will be on Monday evening at eight o'clock when the combined societies from Cornwall and Morewood will be entertained.

Trinity United is Thronged For "Fireside Service"

First of Series of Six Sunday Evening Services Took Form of Gathering in a Typical Livingroom.

Trinity United church was packed to the doors Sunday evening when the first of a series of six Sunday evening services took the form of a fireside service, when in keeping with the message of Rev. R. C. Tait, members of the choir and others sang familiar hymns in a typical livingroom arranged in the Sunday School room, revealed when the dividing curtain had been raised. Miss Marion Casselman contributed a violio accompaniment and also a vocal solo, while readings by Mr. P. S. Boyd and Mrs. D. McElheran were in keeping with the sermon theme.

Bogart invited the society to hold their next meeting at her home.

Brick House at Aultsville Totally Dsstroyed by Fire

Finwick Shaver Suffers Heavy Loss.—Bucket Brigade Keeps Back Flames Until Furniture Saved.

Starting shortly after 1.30 Tuesday afternoon, fire destroyed a solid brick residence owned by Finwick Shaver, Aultsville. The building was situated on the north side of the village, on the Station Road.

It is thought that the fire started from overheated pipes in a summer kitchen at the rear of the house and, before it was noticed had gained such headway that little could be done. A bucket brigade was formed and it succeeded in keeping the flames back until all furniture in the main portion of the house was carried out, but the supply of water was not sufficient to quench the flames. At 3.30, when the fire stopped, only the grim walls of the building were left standing.

No insurance was carried.

St. Lawrence Now Lower Than Last Year Same Time

Repetition of Last Summer's Poor Navigation Conditions Certain Unless Marked Rise Shown.

The level of the St. Lawrence River recently freed of its winter ice covering, is about seven inches lower than at this time last year, a season which struck a new low for the river's levels, according to readings taken at Brockville. Unless there is a marked rise in the level before mid-summer, a repetition of the unfavourable river shipping conditions of last year is anticipated.

N.H.L. Managers Pass Up Maroons on All Star Team

Rus Blinco is Only One of Stanley Cup Champions Chosen, and He is Drafted For Second Team.

Voting by secret ballot, the managers and coaches of the National Hockey League have selected an N.H.L. All Star team which will probably start a deal of argument in sports circles. Results of the vote as compiled by James C. Hendy and published in the current MacLean's Magazine show that not a single member of the battling Montreal Maroons has been placed on the first team and only one on the second.

Following is the line-up selected, with the points voted each player:

First Team.

Player	Points	Position
C. Thompson, Boston	14	Goal
E. Shore, Boston	26	R. Defence
A. Coulter, Chicago	18	L. Defence
F. Boucher, N.Y.R	25	Centre
C. Conacher, Toronto	27	R. Wing
H. Jackson, Toronto	27	L. Wing

Second Team.

R. Worters, N.Y.A.	11	Goal
E. Seibert, N.Y.R.	12	R. Defence
C. Day, Toronto	9	L. Defence
R. Blinco, Maroons	8	Centre
L. Aurie, Detroit	10	R. Wing
A. Joliat, Canadiens	7	L. Wing

Third Line—R. Weiland, Detroit (6), centre; A. Clapper, Boston (9), Right wing; P. Thompson, Chicago (6), Left wing.

General utility: E. Goodfellow, Detroit (12).

Mr. Hendy states: "As in the past, the major league pilots have named an entire squad of sixteen players instead of two teams. We waited until the last week of the schedule before asking each manager to look back over the entire season and carefully consider each player in the National Hockey League, and then from the entire personnel of the circuit select the squad he would like to have in his line-up in a world's championship series.

"The managers knew that their selections would be treated confidentially and therefore were in a position to give their true opinions—something which they seldom do when they know their individual selections will be published. Under the system of points used in arriving at the consensus, three points were allowed for each first-team vote, two for the second, one in the place of the third forward line, and three points for each general utility vote received."

All the members of the first and second teams are Canadians. Conacher, Jackson and Boucher are residents of Ontario; Thompson hails from Alberta, and Shore spends his summers farming in Saskatchewan.

All the members of the second team except Blinco, a native of Quebec who first played amateur hockey in Brooklyn, are products of the Ontario Hockey Association.

$2,000 Fire Damage to Morrisburg Church

Fire, Originating in Basement, Ate Through Walls to Main Body of Church, Partially Destroying Pulpit and Platform.

More than $2,000 damage was done to the large United church in Morrisburg by fire late Sunday afternoon originating in the basement and climbing through the walls to the main body of the building, where it partially burned the pulpit and platform.

Fire Chief Herb Clark abandoned efforts to check the blaze with chemicals and called the brigade who fought the fire in the walls through choking clouds of smoke for more than an hour. The fire was discovered by the caretaker, Clarence Beckstead, who entered the basement to prepare the church for evening services and saw the fire under the floor at the furnace.

He gave the alarm and two streams were necessary to extinguish the blaze.

The loss is covered by insurance.

Ontario Cheese Sales To Come Under Marketing Act

Minister of Agriculture Tells Committee Move to Come Within Two Weeks.—Challies Supports Act.

Toronto, April 5th.—Announcement that Ontario cheesemakers would move to bring the industry under terms of the Federal and provincial marketing legislation within two weeks was made by Minister of Agriculture Duncan Marshall to the committee on agriculture of the Ontario Legislature.

"We are well on the way to a reasonably satisfactory solution to their problems at the present time," said Mr. Marshall.

Departmental officials have assisted members to organize the industry and money grants have been given, Mr. Marshall continued.

"If this goes through satisfactorily they will be prepared to offer between 60 and 70 per cent of all cheese produced in the province for sale under the act and they should get a reasonable price for it," the minister said.

Mr. Marshall said cheese, like the tobacco industry, lent itself to orderly marketing under the Federal Act and estimated 80 per cent of the cheese output was exported to Great Britain.

George H. Challies (Cons., Grenville-Dundas), urged regulation of price according to quality.

"When you go downtown and buy eight or nine months old cheese at 28 cents there is something radically wrong," he stated. "There is too much spread between the consumer and farmer price."

Mr. Challies also urged a campaign to increase domestic cheese consumption.

Province Will Extend Farm Loans, But Maximum Less

Ontario Plans Longer Term, Smaller Amounts is Announcement of Hon. Duncan Marshall.

Toronto.—Extension of the period of farm loans from 20 to 30 years, with the maximum amount of the loan reduced from $10,000 to $7,500, is provided in an amendment to the Agricultural Development Act introduced in the Ontario Legislature by Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture.

The board is empowered to waive principal payment for a period of three years.

In future, loans issued by the development board, the maximum amount will be 50 per cent of the value of the properties, instead of 65 per cent as at present.

NEWS AND INFORMATION FOR THE BUSY FARMER

Furnished by the Ontario Department of Agriculture

Cultures for Legume Inoculation.

Farmers who are sowing alfalfa or other legumes this spring and who have not previously used cultures for inoculation may obtain enough to inoculate one bushel of seed by writing to the Division of Bacteriology, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Requests should be sent in early and should state approximately when the culture will be needed.

The Spring Seed Requirements.

Farmers who desire to assure their seed supply at minimum cost are already taking stock of their spring requirements. Those who have seed of their own will be taking steps to have it properly cleaned and graded before the spring rush. Others, less fortunate will be well advised this year particularly, to secure what they require as soon as possible, making sure that they are getting varieties which are most highly recommended for conditions such as theirs.

Starting Chicks.

Supply water with chill taken off in suitable vessels, charcoal, shell and grit or river sand. Feed the youngsters immediately on their entry to brood quarters. A good starting mash consists of: middlings, ground yellow corn, ground oat groats, each one part; shorts, alfalfa meal and animal feed mixture, each ½ part; bone meal 2 per cent; cod liver oil 1 to 2 per cent; and salt ½ per cent.

Seed Grain Crops Early.

The importance of early seeding cannot be stressed too strongly. An experiment carried on for 10 years at the Central Experimental Farm shows that wheat, oats, barley and peas seeded as soon as the land is ready to work give higher yields than when sown at later dates. The average increase of grain sown early over that sown two weeks later was 14 bushels for barley, 18 bushels for wheat and 4 bushels for oats.

Care of the New Pigs.

Nursing sow and little pigs require care and good feeding in order that the pigs will be strong and healthy, and the sow will be in fit condition to produce a second litter this year. It should consist of oats, middlings and skim-milk. Encourage the pigs to start eating at an early age by placing some feed in a low trough. As soon as weather permits, let them run outdoors in a fresh paddock.

Dairy Cattle Rings.

A common affection of cattle at this time of year is ringworm. This can be easily controlled if taken in time. Wash the part affected with soap and water to remove crusts, scraping if necessary, then dry the spot and paint with tincture of iodine, repeating the treatment daily until cured. Sulphur ointment or any good smothering ointment if used conscientiously will also give good results.

International Ploughing Match.

The International Ploughing Match and Farm Machinery Demonstration, organized by the Ontario Ploughmen's Association. will be held this year in Haldimand County, with headquarters on the farm of Louis H. McKibbon, Caledonia, R.R. 2 This location is near Caledonia and may be reached by Highway No. 6.

Haldimand is noted for its good ploughmen, and a large match is expected.

Inoculating Legume Crops.

When legume crops are being planned for spring seeding, consideration should be given to the question of inoculation. This is particularly recommended for such crops as alfalfa, sweet clover and soya beans, especially when seeding for the first time. Inoculation consists in adding a culture of the proper bacteria to the seed at sowing time. It is easy to carry out and helps to insure success with the crop.

HAY MARKET REPORTS.

Southwestern Ontario.

Sufficient hay is believed to be available in the district of north Simcoe to meet local stock feeding requirements this coming spring. In Lincoln and adjacent counties, however, there appears to be a shortage of hay at the present time. Enquiries are being received from dairymen and others as to outside sources of supply. The farmers in this part of Ontario are likely to be hard pressed in providing sufficient hay and straw for their live stock requirements during the coming month. There is a good demand for alfalfa hay in this part of the province.

Prices being paid growers, per ton, at principal market centres, less freight costs, are: for No. 1 timothy $15 to $16; No. 2 $12.50 to $14; No. 3 $11 to $12.50; wheat straw, $7 to $8, and oat straw $5.50 to $7.50.

Eastern and Northern Ontario.

Large quantities of hay are still in farmers' hands in the upper and lower Ottawa valley and in Northern Ontario. The growers are receiving from $7 to $9.50 per ton according to quality. The principal movement is to Nova Scotia for which over 1,000 tons have already been graded for shipment under the freight rebate plan. There is also some movement to Central and Western Ontario and to the United States. Plenty of hay is being offered in Northern Ontario, the growers receiving $9 to $12 per ton, according to type and quality.

Planning the Home Garden.

Where the area devoted to the garden is limited, careful attention must be given to such points as distance between rows and between plants, so that all space may be used to advantage. Each plant must have room to mature, yet gaps must be avoided. A study of rotation of crops and time of maturity is of great value in planning the small garden. Such crops as radish and spinach may be grown as inter-crops between the rows of later maturing crops like carrots and parsnips. Late sown crops may be planted between the rows of early maturing crops just before the latter are ready to harvest. Two or three crops of such plants as radish and lettuce may be grown on the same area. A succession of quick growing crops by planting at intervals is also desirable

Where land is cheap or where the garden may be laid out in any shape desired, ease of cultivation should be considered. All the rows may be placed the same distance apart, just wide enough for a horse cultivator, whether the vegetable requires little room or a great deal of room to mature. The rows should be as long as possible for horse cultivation and several kinds of vegtables may be planted in the same row. Less time is wasted in turning, and also less ground in turning ends which are often weedy. A few minutes with a horse cultivator will keep a farm garden reasonably free from weeds during the rush season in the spring when there is not much time for hand hoeing. Horse cultivation reduces the amount of hand labour to a minimum and brings down the cost of production. At the same time, it often means the difference between success and failure with the farm garden. For this reason, the garden should be located close to both house and barn. Being readily accessible from the barn may mean time would be taken to cultivate the garden when it would not if a special trip were necessary for the work.

Young Woman Discards Crutches After Two Locke Treatments

New Record is Set For Quick Benefit at Williamsburg's Famous Clinic as Young Californian Woman Walks After Being Forced to Rely on Crutches For Months With Crippling Case of Arthritis.

(The Williamsburg Times.)

On Tuesday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Peyton, Morton, Wyoming, arrived by automobile in Williamsburg. With them was their crippled daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Holsclaw, of Auburn, California. A young-looking girl on crutches, with her right knee drawn up and foot quite swollen.

Following their arrival they paid their first visit to the clinic. Mrs. Holsclaw took her first treatment and shortly after that she felt a warm, tingling glow in her feet. Her father, Mr. Peyton, who is lame, also took his first treatment.

Mrs. Holsclaw had come with high hopes and confidence. In the office of The Williamsburg Times we had listened to the history of her case. She first felt pains about a year ago. She tried every available possible source of help and got none. She became more helpless and crippled until, six months ago, she had to use crutches. Since that time she has been unable to walk without support. We assured her that she could expect speedy benefit by the treatments of Dr. Locke. We know how quickly early cases respond to the amazing touch of Dr. Locke. Thus we were confident and honest in extending this assurance but even our ideas of speedy help were far outdistanced as proven by actual fact.

After her second treatment Mrs. Holsclaw went to the clinic door on crutches. On reaching that point she felt that her right foot was able to sustain her weight and decided to test it out. Holding out her crutches, she carefully stepped ahead while an anxious mother and father watched, with dimmed eyes, their girl again stepped alone. Slowly but surely she stepped without support. Across the paved clinic she went until the sidewalk was reached. There she resumed her crutches. Walked alone after six months of support and following only two treatments. No wonder that tears of joy were plainly seen and easily understood but none could measure the thrill of joy which went through the hearts of the patient and her father and mother.

We shall follow the progress of Mrs. Holsclaw with great interest and make further reports as added improvement follows. In all our reporting life here we know of no other arthritis patient who has made such amazing progress in such a brief time.

WHEN fire breaks out, and valuable property and life itself depend on quick and concerted action . . . turn to your telephone. It gets help to you when help is most needed as thousands of cases on record show. On this one count alone, the telephone is indispensable: yet it serves you day by day in so many other ways as well.

His Excellency Hears Striker Tell of Relief Camp Griefs

Delegate of Malcontents Says He Was Received Courteously by Lord Bessborough at Vancouver.

Vancouver.—For some 10 minutes, the perfectly tailored Governor-General of Canada and a collarless, sweater-clad worker from a British Columbia relief camp conversed in a friendly vein over alleged "unfair conditions"in the camps.

As they paced the platform of the Canadian National Railways station here in the shadow of Lord Bessborough's private car, the representative of 1,200 camp strikers told the tall peer of camp life. Quietly His Excellency listened, at times dropping his arm across the shoulders of the camp representative.

The delegate, Matthew Shaw, handed the Governor-General a petition drawn up by the men in which they set forth their grievances. In accordance with the usual procedure in such cases, His Excellency will forward the petition to the Dominion Government at Ottawa.

When the interview was over, the striker returned to several companions oustide the depot and told them he had received a courteous hearing from the Governor-General.

Meantime the camp strikers, augmented by sympathizers and spectators, marched 5,000 strong to the city hall where a delegation interviewed Deputy-Mayor C. E. Tisdall with requests for immediate relief.

FAST GROWING

CHICKS

BRING QUICKER RETURNS

BUY chicks that put on weight fast. They mature earlier and begin earning money for you sooner. Bray's "Xtra-Profit" chicks are known for rapid growth—you can almost see them grow!

According to many of last year's customers, chicks from "Xtra-Profit" stock weighed more than a pound at 5 weeks old, and 2½ lbs. at 9 weeks old. And they kept on growing through the Summer months and made profitable, early laying flocks.

Take the flock of Bray pullets raised by Wm. Kirkpatrick at Burgessville last year. He had pullets weighing up to 6 lbs. 10 ounces at 6 months old—and they were giving him a 75 per cent egg yield at that age.

The success of Bray chicks is a direct result of careful selection of our breeding stock. Our breeders are chosen for their actual capacity for work. Bray chicks have the qualities that make for profitable poultry keeping, bred right into them. The cockerel chicks make early broilers or heavier than average Fall market chickens. The pullets develop rapidly and make early, productive layers.

We don't claim that every Bray flock will be laying 75 per cent at 6 months. But it is not out of the way to say that most flocks of "Xtra-Profit" pullets begin laying at 5 months old, and many of them are laying 50 per cent or better at 6 months old.

Stop in and get a copy of our Free booklet. See for yourself what Bray "Xtra-Profit" chicks can bring you in dollars and cents next Fall.

"I am glad to be back once more on Canadian soil and to join with the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides in celebrating the jubilee of the accession to the throne of His Majesty the King," Lord Baden-Powell said.

"Canada has given proof of her loyalty to the throne by making so splendid a contribution to the King's cancer fund. Also she has shown by her generous subscription her appreciation of the Boy Scout movement in its effort to train the on-coming generation to be healthy, happy and helpful men for the Dominion and good friends to other countries and, thereby, powerful agents to peace in the world."

They will remain here five days, during which time they will be guests at Government House. Public appearances of the distinguished visitors will be curtailed in consideration of Lord Baden-Powell's health.

Scouting is based on the sound assumption that boys will be boys —that the primal instinct of young humans is to group together in gangs for mutual support in noisy, healthy and active play.

EUROPEAN POLITICS DO NOT AFFECT BOY SCOUTS

Indicating that the political differences of their elders mean little to them. Boy Scouts of Britain, Hungary, France, Spain, Belgium, Holland, Poland; Sweden; and other European countries are planning their usual exchange of camping and hiking visits this summer. Troops of English and Scottish Scouts will be camp guests in Denmark, Poland and Hungary, and smaller units will visit other countries. Similar groups from those countries will visit England and Scotland.

Poland, which this summer is holding its second national Scout Jamboree, is the third strongest country in Boy Scouts.

The Danish Scout Association, or Det Danske Spejderkorps, is holding a 25th Anniversary National Scout Jamboree, July 27th to August 9th, near Copenhagen. As usual, Scouts from other countries are invited.

JUNIOR SCOUTS GROW RAPIDLY IN MANY COUNTRIES

In the British Empire and 35 other countries there were at the end of 1934, as reported by the International Scout Bureau, 336,694 Wolf Cubs, or junior Boy Scouts. Iceland reported 90; Iraq 2,000; Egypt 1,145; Japan 5.972. The total for the Empire was 264,108.

WOODCRAFT CALLS REPLACE BUGLES FOR THE SCOUTS

When Scouting was less well understood bugles were a frequent item of troop equipment. For some years they have been "tabu" as "neighbourhood nuisances," and because bird and wild animal calls are more consistent with woodcraft. Which explains why a Fort William man, seeking someone to sound a bugle, could not find a Scout who could blow one.

THE SCOUTS FOUND HER.

It has been almost routine throughout Canada to "call out the Scouts" when persons are lost, and the number found in a year would make a fair-sized group. The latest case was the search by Galt, Ont., Scouts for a four-year-old girl, when police and neighbours had failed, and her discovery in a remote corner of a large park at 10.30 p.m.

THE WEEK in OTTAWA

By
FREDERICK EDWARDS

ON TUESDAY, April 9th, the Mass Buying and Price Spreads Commission officially finished its job. The signed report was in the hands of Hon. R. B. Hanson, Minister of Trade and Commerce, at noon on that date

It is understood that practical unanimity on the report (except, of course, Free Trade-Liberal E. J. Young of Weyburn, Sask., who is submitting an independent report) was not reached without some discussion on the best method of protecting consumers from combinations in restraint of trade. Now it is believed the final report recommends that if combines of a certain character are in the general interest of industry and without harm to the consuming public, they should be permitted within certain limits. Their activities, however, would be controlled and such associations regulated by the Federal Trade and Industries Commission which the report recommends should be created.

* * * *

Determined to introduce it before the Easter recess if possible, the Cabinet sat for three hours Saturday studying details of the works and re-employment measure which involves, in addition to the extension of last year's Public Works Construction Act, assistance to certain industries normally employing numbers of workmen. It will not include the housing scheme, now being studied by a Commons committee, which will probably be the subject of separate legislation when the government receives the report.

* * * *

Latest reports are to the effect that Prime Minister R. B. Bennett will not leave Ottawa until he goes to London for the King's silver jubilee celebration. He has been allowed out of bed for a short time for the past few days, has suffered no ill-effects, and is steadily gaining strength.

* * * *

The House will step lively this week endeavouring to clean up the legislative slate before next Friday, so that the members may be home by Good Friday. Adjournment will be until May 20th, Acting Prime Minister Sir George Perley told the House last Friday.

* * * *

Investigation is to be made of the use of spotters and stool pigeons by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Minister of Justice Hugh Guthrie informed the House. This came about on complaint of a member that two men had planted smuggled liquor, cigarettes and a radio on unsuspecting merchants, caused their arrest, and split the fines.

* * * *

Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways, is doubtful that the long-projected St. Lawrence canal system will ever be built and told the House the Welland Canal, which cost Canada $130,000,000 should never have been built. The U.S. Senate had nullified the approving action of Congress. since which time negotiations had been carried on between Canada and the United States for modification of the entire scheme, he said.

* * * *

A Royal Commission to conduct a wide-open investigation of penitentiaries, which has been urged for two or three years, is under consideration by the Minister of Justice. He also offered to name an Ontario judge to probe the Hall-Dawson incident in which Miss Agnes Macphail (Prog.) was a central figure. At the same time, Mr. Guthrie said Canadian penitentiaries are a model for the world.

The Bennett government on Wednesday last won three divisions arising out of the Rhodes "poor man's" Budget. The Budget itself was approved by 98 to 74; the Liberal want-of-confidence amendment was lost by 104 to 73, one Progressive and five U.F.A.'s voting with the government; and Conservatives and Liberals combined to snow under the Progressives' social credit amendment by 165 to 12.

* * * *

During the past week, Minister of Finance Edgar N. Rhodes minted Canada's first silver dollar, to be mounted in a purple leather case and presented by Mr. Bennett to His Majesty at the silver jubilee celebrations. The new dollar commemorates the 25 years of King George's reign. The first issue of 100,000 will be available on May 1st.

Entrance Recommendation Extended to Rural Schools

Entrance Boards of County Extend Privilege to Rural Teachers Subject to Certain Regulations.

For two years now recommendations to the High schools have been permitted in the four village schools and St. Mary's Separate school, Chesterville. The provision now being adopted extends this privilege to the other schools where deemed advisable by the Entrance Boards.

The Entrance Boards of Dundas County have decided to extend the Provisions of the admission of Entrance candidates on the recommendation of the principal.

1. Except on the special recommendation of the Inspector, and with the consent of the Entrance Board concerned, the right of recommending candidates shall be restricted to schools in which the teacher has already had at least one year's experience in Entrance work.

2. The teacher must have proven her capacity to estimate reasonably well the abilities of her candidates for the Entrance Examination. Previous confidential reports to the Entrance Board will be one of the chief bases on which this factor will be judged.

3. The teacher's confidential report (Form 14) must be received by the Inspector not later than June 4th.

4. The certificates covering the work of Group I are to be sent along with Form 14.

5. The work throughout the school must be well balanced, i.e., progress must have been satisfactory in both Primary and Senior classes. This applies, of course, to one-room schools.

6. Teachers will be notified by the Secretary of the Entrance Board, not later than June 18th, of the name of pupils (if any) from their respective schools, who have been granted standing without taking the final examination. Teachers may then give this information to the candidates concerned; but they are not to give any information about it to the general public.

7. The fact that no recommendations are allowed from any school is not necessarily to be construed as reflecting in any way on the capabilities of the teacher. There are many factors over which the teacher has no control, any one of which might debar the pupils of a school from the privilege of recommendation.

8. The privilege of recommending Entrance candidates may be refused any teacher by the Entrance Board at their discretion.

Young Negro Executed As Clerk Forgets Appeal

Los Angeles Law Clerk Corrects His Error Four Days too Late.—Attorney Orders Appeal Filed.

Los Angeles.—A drama of legal errors reached a climax when court officials solemnly filed an appeal to save the life of a man hanged four days ago.

Rush Griffin, 19-year-old negro, died on the gallows at San Quentin prison Friday, with an appeal—already perfected, which made stay of execution automatic—resting in files of a lower court clerk's office, apparently forgotten. He had been convicted of killing a medical student.

Richard F. Bird, Griffin's counsel, received first news of the negro's execution in the newspapers. He promptly started an investigation to determine what happened to the appeal, which he had filed with a transcript of the record.

Court Clerk C. K. Boardman admitted the error. The appeal, made legally effective two months ago—so far as the defence could make it—was still in his office.

"I guess it was our fault," Boardman said.

And so, carrying the sequence of blunders to its grim conclusion, he ordered the appeal filed and transmitted to the State Supreme Court where—if legal machinery does not break down—a stay of execution will be issued to save the life of the dead man.

"It is particularly sad," Bird said, "because Griffin's plea of self-defence probably would have resulted in his sentence being commuted to life imprisonment."

FILTRATION.

ALMOST complete and efficient filtration system is at work in every normal human body. The kidneys contain several thousand filtration units through which the blood flows in order that waste materials may be filtered out and any excess of one or other chemical removed so as to maintain the proper chemical balance of the body.

These filtration units may be disorganized by changes which occur in them. The disturbance of the kidney function is called nephritis or Bright's disease. Richard Bright was an English physician who first described this condition; this is why his name is associated with the disease.

There are several forms of nephritis but they may all go into either of two groups, acute or chonic. The acute form, seen in children and young adults, is due to an infection (germs causing an inflammation). It is commonly seen following an attack of tonsilitis or scarlet fever.

Acute nephritis is recognized by the pallour of the patient with puffiness of the face and ankles. An examination of the urine shows that the kidneys are not able to do their work, and so waste material and an excess of fluid collect in the body. Acute cases usually recover under proper treatment. The most important item in treatment is rest in bed until the infection has cleared up entirely Some csaes pass into chronic nephritis.

Chronic nephritis in early adult life is usually the result of an acute nephritis. After that age, it is a part of a general change which includes the hardening of the smaller arteries of the body. For this reason, chronic nephritis is commonly associated with high blood pressure and arteriosclerosis or hardening of the arteries.

Chronic nephritis is not curable but under proper treatment, the progress of the disease is checked and the patient may live for many years. The earlier the disease is detected, the more can treatment accomplish. Chronic conditions steal up on the victim and their presence is likely not suspected. A periodic health examination is desirable because it reveals the presence of unsuspected chronic disease, including nephritis.

An accurate diagnosis of the particular form of the disease present must be made in order to institute proper treatment. Self-medication is, to say the least; highly dangerous. Plain simple foods; the avoidance of any excess in food or drink; the use of plenty of water; a quiet life with freedom from worry are essential in treatment.

From the point of view of prevention it is known that, after forty, most people eat too much put on weight and over work their kidneys in the effort to get rid of waste materials.

Questions concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

'SALADA' TEA

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

Conducted By
MISS HELEN LACEY, B. H. Sc.

MANY GOOD THINGS CA N BE MADE WITH CHEESE

THERE ARE MANY VARIETIES of cheese on the market and they represent an endless array of dishes with which to introduce variety into our menus.

Cheese is a rich source of protein, of vitamins and of minerals. It is also an excellent bone and tissue builder.

Many people complain that they find cheese indigestible but if it is given its proper place in the diet this should not be true. As cheese is a very concentrated form of food, it should not be eaten at the end of a heavy meal.

One pound of cheese will provide 1890 calories, which is somewhat more than the calories contained in a pound and a half loaf of bread.

CREAM OF CHEESE SOUP.

4 cups milk
1½ tablespoons flour
¾ teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper
1 tablespoon butter
4 tablespoons grated cheese

Melt butter in top of double boiler; blend in the flour and seasons. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly to prevent lumping, until thickened. Add grated cheese and serve at once. Yolks of two eggs beaten, may be added just before the cheese and cooked a moment.

STUFFED BAKED POTATOES AND CHEESE

6 large baked potatoes
2 cups grated cheese
1-3 cup hot milk
2 teaspoons salt
Paprika

Cut baked potatoes in half, lengthwise, and scoop out the centres and mash thoroughly. Add grated cheese to hot milk and beat with a Dover beater until smooth. Mix with ho mashed potatoes; add salt; beat until light and creamy. Refill potato shells; dust lightly with paprika; return to a hot oven to brown on top.

CHEESE STRAWS.

Delicious to serve with a salad.

1 cup grated cheese
½ cup butter
¾ cup flour
1 teaspoon mustard
4 teaspoons cold water

Mix and roll like pie crust. Cut into strips ½-inch broad and five inches long. Bake in a hot oven until light brown.

CHEESE SAUCE FOR FISH AND VEGETABLES.

Many vegetables and fish dishes are improved greatly by pouring a cheese sauce over them. The next time you serve cauliflower try a cheese sauce instead of the accustomed white sauce. Asparagus is another vegetable the flavour of which may be improved by the addition of cheese.

The following recipe may be used with fish or vegetables and when poured over toasted brown bread or crackers makes an easy supper or luncheon dish.

2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
Few grains cayenne
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup milk
¾ cup grated cheese

Melt the butter, blend in flour and seasonings. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly until thick. Add grated cheese; stir until melted.

HALIBUT WITH CHEESE.

Arrange half-inch-thick slices of halibut in a buttered baking dish. Pour a cheese sauce around them and bake in a moderate oven until halibut is tender. Place fish on a platter and surround with the sauce. Garnish with parsley and serve at once.

PINEAPPLE AND CHEESE SALAD

Make individual salads by first arranging crisp lettuce leaves in cups. For each salad use one slice of pineapple, two small balls of cheese rolled in chopped nuts, and one-half a maraschino cherry. Make one slit in the pineapple ring and place it upright on the lettuce leaves in a spiral position with the ends of the piece of pineapple pointing in opposite directions. In each of the two hollows thus formed place a cheese ball and garnish with maraschino cherry pieces. Add a spoonful of mayonnaise just before serving.

TOASTED CHEESE ROLLS.

Cut fresh bread in thin slices and remove crusts. Butter lightly and spread with grated cheese mixed with salad dressing. Roll each slice as a jelly roll and toast in a hot oven.

These rolls make an excellent party refreshment as they can be prepared ahead of time and then toasted quickly just before serving.

TOASTED CHEESE WITH BACON.

Butter slices of bread and spread with grated cheese mixed with salad dressing. On each piece of bread place a strip of bacon. Toast in the oven until cheese is melted and bacon is crisp. The bread may be left in slices and two strips of bacon used to a serving when to be served as a supper or luncheon dish. If for a party refreshment, cut bread in small sandwich size squares and use only a small piece of bacon on each square.

As cheese has a soft texture, it should be served in combination with a food of "chewy" or crisp texture, as crackers and cheese or salads and cheese.

* * * *

If you like cheese with your apple pie, try grating some right into the filling before applying the top crust.

* * * *

For spreading, as in sandwich fillings, a smoother paste can be made by grating the hard Canadian cheese and mixing with salad dressing, than in using the cream or soft cheese, which invariably become lumpy when trying to mix them to a paste.

Questions should be addressed to Miss Helen Lacey, Chesterville Record.

Owing Uncle Oliver

"WELL, MARY, how do you like my new hat?" asked Anita Hunt one Saturday afternoon as she burst into the little room that she shared with Mary Lindsay.

Mary, who worked in the same office, looked up with quick interest.

"It's very pretty," she said critically, as Anita pirouetted in front of the mirror. "I love to see you wear brown, but—"

Anita turned suddenly with flaming cheeks.

"But!" she echoed. "I know what you are going to say, Mary Lindsay, —that I couldn't afford it, didn't need it, and ought to be saving my money!"

"I was going to say just that," Mary admitted. "Of course it's none of my business if you want to buy four hats a season and never put a cent in the bank—it's your own affair. It's because I'm a wee bit older than you and know how things are likely to happen so that you will need the money. I don't blame you for wanting the hat, though; it's a beauty."

Auburn-haired Anita took the hat off and looked at it, with her brows still puckered. It was most becoming to her bright colouring. But now she wished she had not bought it.

"Oh, well!" she said in an injured tone, as she laid the hat on the table. "You've just about spoiled it for me now. If a person can't be a little extravagant once in a while- "

"O Nita!" cried Mary. "You know I didn't mean anything. It's just because I have to be so careful myself. If I had a family that could help me now and then, like yours, I guess I shouldn't be so prudent, either. Forget what I said. I wouldn't spoil that hat for you for anything."

Anita smiled shame-facedly. "I didn't mean to be horrid; it's just my fiery, red-haired temper and a guilty conscience. I shouldn't have bought the hat—I know it. But I can't return it now. I'll go out and get some sardines and things for supper, and we'll have a spread here. I'll be back in a few minutes."

"All right," Mary said. "Take my money—here—and get some apples. Spend as much of it as you like."

"No," said Anita, pursing her lips. "I'll be prudent; I won't spend a penny more than necessary." And she closed the door hurriedly.

But after she had reached the street Anita did not hurry. She walked slowly, with a pucker indicative of worry between her eyes. After all, Mary was right. She ought to save money; there was more need of it than Mary knew.

"Mary thinks my family can help me," she said to herself. "But I ought to be helping them instead."

She thought of her mother's careworn face and her bent little figure in the old black cloak. And then there was Beth, her little sister, so anxious for the music lessons that her family could not afford to give her. When Anita had left home she had meant to help them with money, but living in the city cost more than she had thought, and there were so many things that she needed or wanted to buy. Besides, there was Uncle Oliver.

Uncle Oliver was her mother's brother out West, and he was comfortably well off. He always sent them cheques at Christmas and wrote that if they ever needed anything they were to let him know, however; mother was too proud for that.

"Of course," she used to say, "if we were starving, or needed money for doctors' bills—but I shan't ask Oliver to pay for my daughters' education."

Although Uncle Oliver may have guessed their small means, he doubtless guessed their pride, too. So it went no further. But having an Uncle Oliver always gave Anita a feeling of potential wealth, and she often used him to excuse her extravagance.

"It isn't as if mother couldn't get money if she needed it," she used to say to herself.

Anita did send home occasional gifts,—gloves for her mother and a scarf for Beth, or a dollar bill tucked into a letter,—but she had no regular system of saving or of sending money to the family in the little gray house in Medwin.

Mary's words had given her something to think about. She ought to save a little for emergencies. She, who was earning, could not ask an Uncle Oliver to help her. Of course it was not likely that anything would happen, she was so well and strong. But she would try to save a little—a dollar a week at least. Heartened by this resolve, she bounded up the stairs and into the room with her arms full of bundles.

"I got cookies and sardines," she announced, "enough for a feast. Also a pound of tea. What's the matter, Mary? You look queer. Has anything happened?"

"Not exactly; only a telegram came for you, and I was afraid. Here it is."

As Anita read the message the bright colour faded from her cheeks.

"What is it?" asked Mary. "Not bad news?"

For answer, Anita handed her the telegram.

Mother ill, pneumonia. Come at once. Beth.

Anita sat down upon the bed and looked at Mary with tragic eyes.

"Poor thing!" exclaimed Mary. "Well, you must catch that ten-o'clock express. Don't cry, honey. I'm sure it will come out all right. I'll pack your suit case. Don't worry one bit. I'll have a cup of tea ready for you in a minute."

But Anita sat up white and dry-eyed.

"Mary," she said, "I can't go home. I have only three dollars in the world and the ticket to Medwin costs nearly twenty."

"I'll lend you the money," Mary said quietly. "I drew out twenty-five this morning to buy my winter suit. I have more in the bank. It's all right, Nita. Shall I pack your brown serge?"

"Yes," sobbed Anita. "O Mary, you are so good, and I—"

"S-sh!" urged Mary. "Don't think about that."

Very quietly and efficiently Mary made the preparations for Anita's departure. Anita herself was too completely dazed to be of much use She kept trying to realize what had happened. Mother ill! Why, mother had never been ill; it seemed impossibl. And little Beth alone with her! Then Anita was conscious of her own shame at having to use Mary's money. Mary earned no more than she did, yet she had money in the bank for a friend's emergency!

Mary took her to the train and saw her off with a comforting smile. All during the sleepless night and the half day of her journey to the Southern town that was home Anita kept recalling Mary's kindness and making bitter resolutions to save, to economize, and to send money home to her mother—if it were not too late.

When she reached home at midday a stranger—an old gentleman with a very rosy face and white chop whiskers—opened the door.

"Well, Anita!" was his greeting. "Your mother's better. But it's well you came; she'll want to see you."

"Uncle Oliver?" hazarded Anita.

"Yes, I'm your Uncle Oliver. I was in St. Louis, and I came as soon as Beth's wire reached me. Everything is all right; your mother has a good nurse and is doing well. You can see her soon. You look tired, child."

During the days that followed, Anita and Uncle Oliver became fast friends. He was in no hurry to go home, it appeared; indeed, he seemed thoroughly to enjoy this opportunity to make friends with his two nieces and to renew acquaintance with the little town that had been his boyhood home. Mrs. Hunt rapidly improved with the treatment he provided, and he planned a delightful surprise for her first day downstairs by having the shabby old living room redecorated.

Anita's employers had written her to stay as long as was necessary; so she lingered at home as long as she dared, even after her mother's recovery was assured. She hated to leave home and to say good-bye to this new-found, generous uncle; but the day came when she must do so.

As she sat in the living room, putting the finishing touches on a collar that she meant to wear, Uncle Oliver came in and sat down by the fire, watching her.

"How much do you earn, child?" he asked abruptly.

"Eighteen dollars a week," Anita answered, not without pride.

"Why—why—I'm planning to save two or three dollars a week, anyway. I haven't so far, because there were so many things I wanted, and I was pretty extravagant. But I mean to start a bank account."

"Have money enough to get back?" asked Uncle Oliver in a crisp and business-like tone.

"Why, yes, I—that is, I'm going to borrow it from Beth. I hate to; she had saved it for her music lessons. It's no use trying to hide it from you, Uncle Oliver. I'm a wicked, extravagant, selfish wretch, and I've never saved a penny. I had to borrow money from my roommate, Mary Lindsay, to come home. It's a lesson to me—I shall never be caught like that again.'

"I hope not," he said gravely. "But don't take Beth's money. I'll buy your ticket and you can pay me back in weekly instalments of two dollars each. I should advise your doing the same with the friend who lent you money to come home."

"I will," Anita agreed. "You're so good to us, Uncle Oliver."

But she wondered a little, nevertheless. He had given them money for other things,—he even meant to help Beth with her music lessons,—yet he wished her to pay him back the twenty dollars for her ticket.

During the weeks that followed her return to the city Anita found that it was not so easy to save several dollars out of every eighteen. Now that mother was well again and better off than ever before, thanks to Uncle Oliver, she could not feel that poverty pinched so badly. There were attractive things in the shops that she longed to buy, and amusement on which she had formerly spent her surplus; but she had to content herself without them now.

Forty dollars is not, after all, an interminable debt when disposed of at the rate of four dollars a week. Anita was surprised to see how quickly she reached the end of it.

"There!" she exclaimed, handing Mary her last two dollars. "I don't owe you another cent now, or Uncle Oliver, either. And it wasn't so hard to save. Just think how much I'd have had in the bank if I hadn't been paying off debts!"

"But would you have had it?" Mary asked, with a little laugh.

"Perhaps not quite so much, but I should have had some. You see, Mary, I've been saving a little as it is—a dollar a week. You're not the only person with a bank account."

"O Nita, I'm so glad!" Mary exclaimed with unexpected warmth. "Because—"

"Because what?" Anita asked quickly.

"I can't tell now, but you'll see," Mary promised, and quickly changed the subject.

A week went by and Mary said nothing more. When Saturday came, Anita added five dollars to her account in the savings bank and proudly carried the bank book home to show to Mary.

She found Mary at the table writing a letter.

"Look here, Miss Lindsay!" cried Anita. "Just see how rich I am! If you need to borrow money for anything, just come to me!"

Mary pushed aside her papers and examined the little blue book.

"Fine!" she exclaimed. "I wonder —" And she paused reflectively. "I guess it's time now. I have something to give you."

Mary opened her table drawer and pulled out a letter. The letter was from Uncle Oliver, unsealed, and Anita regarded it curiously.

"Why, where, how—"

"Read it," commanded Mary. The letter ran:

My dear Niece.—When you receive this letter I trust that you will be in possession of your own bank account. I have commissioned Miss Lindsay to deliver it to you only when you have paid your debt to her and to me—and, I hope, learned to save a few dollars for yourself. You thought it strange that I should exact full return of the amount I loaned you, but you can see now that it was because I wished you to learn the habit of regular saving! I have deposited the entire amount to your credit at my bank in Seattle, and I shall add an occasional bit to it at Christmas and your birthdays. This is on condition that you do your part by saving a little of what you earn. Don't deny yourself too many pleasures, but learn to use your judgment and be careful of what you spend.

As for the sum you borrowed from Miss Lindsay, I repaid it to her more than two months ago. She has been depositing the weekly two dollars for you, so that you would not be obliged to borrow in case of sudden need.

I don't doubt that you understand my motives in this matter. I want you to learn prudence, so that we shall all feel safe about your future. Of course if you are in real need at any time, you may call upon me without hesitation.

Your affectionate Uncle Oliver.

As Anita put the letter down slowly, her face flushed and her eyes filled with tears of love and gratitude.

"The old dear!" she cried, hugging Mary in lieu of her absent uncle. "Did you ever hear of anyone so kind and generous! Just wait until I write and tell him how much money I have in the bank! Won't he be pleased?"

"Yes," agreed Mary, "I think he will."

Threatens to Haunt Judge Slayer Doomed to Die

Gangster's Third Death Sentence Brings Forth Ten-Minute Speech and "Haunt" Threat.

Huntsville, Tex.—Raymond Hamilton, boastful little killer, received his third death sentence Monday, and threatened judge and prosecutors with "haunting" after his death.

The former lieutenant of Clyde Barrow was sentenced to die in the electric chair on May 10th with his companion, Joe Palmer, both convicted in the killing of Major Crowson, Texas prison farm guard.

Hamilton made a 10-minute halting speech before sentence was pronounced, addressing his remarks to spectators and District Attorney Max Rogers.

"Mr. Rogers," he said, "you and Mr. Simmons (general manager of the Texas prison system) have taken my life, for I am not guilty of this crime. If you enjoy my death—"

Hamilton paused to think and continued:

". . . You are going to be sorry when I am dead. If there is anything like haunting, I sure am going to come back and kick this bunch out of bed.

"They were afraid they couldn't hold me in the penitentiary so I got the chair. I can take it like a man."

STANLEY MAXTED'S BID FOR SUCCESS WAS THREATENED BY DRAMATIC EVENTS.

HAD HE BEEN a youth of less militant quality, Stanley Maxted, regional programme director of the Canadian Radio Commission at Toronto and conceded to be one of the most outstanding of Canadian tenors, would never have gravitated to the high place he to-day commands in the musical life of this country.

Attended by impediments that seemed to come with persistent regularity, Maxted's bid for success as a singer was of both a dramatic and a romantic nature. But the tenacity and perseverance so common in Britishers spurred him on and despite all handicaps that calculated to mar his progress he jumped the hurdle of obscurity into the field of fame. But certainly not without effort.

Maxted was only seven years of age when misfortune began to dog his trail. for it was at that time when his father was killed in the last of the Samoaliland expeditions. Coming to Canada to join friends in Toronto, young Maxted managed to continue his music lessons and was well on his way to an early success when the Great War intervened.

STANLEY MAXTED

Regional Programme Director of the CRBC and Considered One of the Most Outstanding of Canadian Tenors

He was seventeen when he joined the colours, and so worthily did he serve the C.E.F. in France that he was decorted for bravery and elevated to the rank of major, besides being wounded three times during conflict. Armistice arrived and as a disillusioned young man a little apprehensive about the future, he returned to England to continue his career.

The economic slump that immediately followed prevented Maxted from devoting his whole time to musical studies and after several years of tough sledding, during which he puddled at a Pittsburgh steel mill, he got his first real break as a staff artist with CBS. From then on he made rapid progress.

A nervous breakdown, however, forced him to return to Canada. In Toronto he joined the Radio Commission and his ability, showmanship, and versatility have since identified him s a valuable addition to that organization. t

FOUNDING OF SYDNEY TO BE BROADCAST.

One hundred and fifty years ago this coming summer, Sydney, Cape Breton, was founded; and to comemorate this important event celebrations are to take place. Considered too significant to ignore, the CRC is making arrangements to broadcast at least part of the ceremonies and these are certain to be of interest to Canadians in all parts of the country. Definite plans have not as yet been completed.

SPRING PROGRAMME LIST NEARLY COMPLETED.

Good progress is being made by the programme officials of the Radio Commission toward the completion of the spring season entertainment schedule and within a few days an interesting list of features for the coming months will be made public. Our spies tell us that some of the most accomplished entertainers in Canada are booked for engagements and that a number of unusual presentations of a highly entertaining character are in the offing.

"SCARLET PIMPERNEL" SUCCESSFUL PRESENTATION.

The dramatization of the "Scarlet Pimpernel," recently broadcast over the National Network of the Radio Commission, received favourable comment from uncompromising critics everywhere and scores of letters from appreciative listeners have been received by CRC officials. The presentation, which was one of the most pretentious of its kind ever undertaken by the Commission, required a cast of nearly one hundred people who rehearsed for weeks. Everything was carried out in an elaborate manner and the musical and incidental background, as well as the acting, was considered of an excellent character.

"SPORTS REVIEW" IN TWO PARTS

The hockey season is just about over and already that great summer sport, baseball, is returning to the limelight. Down in Florida, where they are having their annual practices, the big leaguers are churning up the diamond dust and reports indicate that an exciting season is ahead. Al. Leary, Toronto sports authority, spent three weeks in the South sizing up the teams and will give his impressions in a "Sports Review" that takes the air at 8.00 o'clock on April 13th and 19th over the CRBC's Mideast Network.

BILLIE BELL APPRAISED BY NBC PROGRAMME OFFICIAL

A New York executive of the NBC programme department breezed into Toronto t'other day and perhaps the one person who realized full his presence in the city was Billie Bell, popular blues singer who has been heard on Radio Commission programmes since the inception of the national service. The gentleman was Mr. Stein of the Music Corporation of America, who had been instructed to meet Miss Bell and make a report on her ability. Needless to say, he was not disappointed, for the audition was an overwhelming success.
