JAS. CURRIE - CRYSLER

Sapper Warren Rae Welcomod Home.

A royal welcome home was given Sapper Warren Rae who has recently returned home from France, in the hall at Winchester Springs on Thnrsday evening Mar., 13th. After a few hours of social intercourse, words of welcome were spoken by prominent men of the community followed by an address and presentation of a purse of gold.

A short programme consisting of recitations, etc., was enjoyed by all, after which lunch was served.

The young people then took charge and etertained with a social hop.

Hummel-Henderson

The marriage of two of Chesterville's most popular young people took place quietly at the Manse on Tuesday afternoon last, when Nettie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Henderson, became the bride of Mr. Willie Hummel, son of Mr. and Mrs Hermon Hummel, Rev. Charles Mullin officiating. The bride was attended by her cousin, Mrs. J.H. Hanes, while Mr. Hanes acted as best man. After the ceremony they returned to the bride's home where dinner was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Hummel left on the westbound train amid showers of confetti for Toronto, Niagara Falls and other western points.

The Record joins their many friends in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

Evangelistic Serviees in Winchester

This is the third week of a series of union meetings held in Winchester, the first week in the Baptist church, second in Presbyterian and this week in the Methodist church, conducted by the pastors of these three churches, excepting last Friday night when Rev. Wesley Mc Gaw of Ottawa, delivered an earnest message especially to the young people. He is expected to speak again on Friday night of this week. So great an interest is being taken in these meetings by the citizens that all the stores will close at 6 p.m. every evening this week but Saturday. A great many decisions have been made for Christ and there is a marked spiritual awakening in the town.

Reception at Berwick

On Friday evening March 14th, a pleasant gathering took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Hutt, the occasion being a reception in honour of their son C. Q. M. Sergt. Wilfred Hutt, who on the preceding day was married to Miss Jessie Richardson of Kingston. Sergt. Hutt since his return home from overseas in March 1918, has been attached to the Discharge Depot, M.D. No. 3, Kingston, and during that period has won for himself many friends in the Limestone City. His relatives and friends of his home town to the number of about fifty extended to him and his bride, their heartiest congratulations and best wishes for future happiness in their new sphere of life. The evening was pleasantly spent in music and singing, after which all partook of a delicious and appetizing menu. The happy couple were the recipients of many useful gifts and several substantial cheques. All join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Hutt a long and happy wedded life.

Has Chesterville Forgotten?

What is wrong with Chesterville in the matter of extending a welcome home to her returned soldiers? As nearly as we can recollect, not one thing has been done since the signing of the armistice to show the boys who have come home that the people of this place ha ve any appreciation of their services rendered overseas. Almost every other town in the country is doing all in its power to show its men that their sacrifices are not forgotten. Chesterville was proud of the fine lot of men who went from here and proud of their record overseas, but it seems to be a different matter when receiving them again to the life these men gave up for the sake of their country. Is Chesterville going to prove ungrateful? Quite a number of onr boys have come back and there are many to follow, all men to be proud of, and it is time Chesterville sat up and took notice as to what is doing.

Care of Empty Milk Cans

Unclean milk cans, returned by farmer, constitute a serious source of contamination, being sufficient to seriously injure and completely ruic milk. even though prepared under most sanitary conditions. Cans should be inspected by Patron, and when necessary shoule be washed thoroughly with hot water, using washing powder.

Cans should be then rinsed in clean water and exposed to sunlight. This method will usually insure milk to be delivered in clean cans. Cans thus treated afford no opportunity for bacterial activity-

Carlyle and Nadeau turned in a superb defence game for Cannamore, while Campbell in the nets was unbeatable. Marcellus scored the winning goal for Cannamore. Hummel and Clarmo were best for Chesterville.

Sold Again.

A bunch travellers were standing around Scotia Junction waiting for connections when a rural youth, who had been sizing them up, picked a likely one winked mysteriously and tapping his hip pocket, whispered: "Want to buy some tea?" He did, and a consultation behind the station resulted in change of $3.00 for a promising looking bottle. He tipped off others, and four other deals were put through. That night at Parry Sound allprepared to make merry. The cork was pulled in No 1. And at the first "swig" a look of dismay came to the face of the "swigger." Great Scott!"he roared, "it is tea." And it was.—Parry Sound North Stor.

Would Prepare for George.

George had not been overkind to his wife when he left for camp. And the prospects for her when he returned werenot any brighter when she got this note from nim :

"Them white folks here put some sirup in my arms from the blood of a mad bull and a game chicken that will make a nigger fight a cannon and I is already feelin like fighting. When I come home wid that fighting blood in me, if I finds out you aint been right, watch out for George; and I knows how big your are."

The wife took the note to the judge of the county in which she lived.

"Well, Eliza," said the judge to the colored wife, after he read the letter, "what can I do for you about this?"

"Judge replied Eliza, "I'se wan' a divorce or sum of dat sirup."

Morewood High School Notes

The medals for the prize essay competition were awarded as follows. Middle School:—First, Nora Swerdfeger; Second, Clara Allison.

Lower School:—First, Norma Loucks.

Just a word re pupils writing on the final examinations. We shall hold the usual test exams commencing May 1st, for the Lower School and a little later for the Middle School. In order to pass the finals the total is 480 in both these forms and 720 for Jr. Matriculation. Where the pupil makes a poor showing at our tests we do not want him to ask for a chance to write. Lower School fee is $3, Middle School $5, Jr. Matric $8. It is simply throwing money away. We are particularly anxious that all write, but the neg ligent pupil cannot hope to compete successfully with the hard worker. We are ready to assist the pupils in every way; we even urge pupils to present any difficulties. Now if pupils do not avail themselves of their advantages they surely will not talk of writing on the finals, especially when we see no chance whatever of their passing.

In Form I. Mental Arith. there was a close run among three boys—Joe Parkin came first with four points, followed by Jas. Cheney and Kenneth Moffat each with three points.

How You Can Make Mischief

The following is taken from an exchange and contains more truth than poetry:—

"Keep your eyes on your neighbor. Take care of them. Do not let them stir without watching. They may do something wrong if you do. To be sure you never knew them to do anything bad, but it may be on your account they have not. Never mind your own business—that will take care of itself—he is looking over the fence—be suspicious of him; perhaps he contemplates stealing, some of these dark nights; there is no knowing what queer fancies he may have got into his head.

If you find any symptons of any one passing out of the path of duty, tell every one else what you see, and be particular and see a great many. It is a good way to circulate such things, it may benefit yourself or any one else particularly. Do keep something going silence is dreadful it is said there was silence in heaven for the space of half an hour, do not let such a thing occur on earth; it would be too much for this mundane sphere.

If, after all your watchful care you cannot see that they have done anything bad, throw out hints that they are no better than they should be—that you should not wonder if the people found out what they were after a while, then they may not carry their heads so high. Keep it going, and someone may take the hint and begin and help it along after a while—then there will be music and everything will work like a charm.

Follow the above directions and you will be pretty sure to make plenty of mischief."

WEATHER INSURANCE

Owing to the periodical recurrence of Windstorms and Cyclones, farm buildings being more exposed are often wrecked by these visitations

Protect Yourselves Against These Heavy Losses by insuring in your home company

THE ONTARIO FARMERS' WEATHER INSURANCE CO.

We will give you a blanket policy covering loss or damage in any form to buildings and contents including loss or damage to roof by hail storm and broken windows from the same cause.

We don't advertise cheapness, as some American companies do. but we carry no restricting clauses in our policies.

All loss or damage in or about the buildings, includieg live stock and implements, are paid to full value.

Our rates are as low as is consistant with fair dealing and is the minimum placed by the Department of Insurance for Ontario.

"Premium note liability" used by those stock companies across the line as a bogey, is merely German gas sent over to stampede farmers who have been using this system over sixty years with perfect satisfaction.

We are not a money making institution. We are operating to give protection complete to farmers at lowest possible cost.

Rally of Finch Pig Club

On Saturday, March 8th, 1919, Finch was the scene of a stirring event. This was the Rally of the Pig Club. Its object was the introduction and organizatian of the Pig Club in connection with the Merchants Bank of Canada, Finch. Great credit is due Mr. H. R. Mimms, the energetic manager of the Bank, for the successful and interesting programme which was offered those present.

Between 1 and 1.30 p. m., sleighload after sleighload drove into town, decorated with evergreens and flags. At 1.30 a procession of the children was formed at the school under the direction of Mr. Mimms, Misses Armstrong and Smirle of the Finch school staff and Mr. James Stark of Berwick. The procession then marched down to the Red Cross Hall which was kindly donated for the purpose by Mr. H. K. McLean. Two performances were necessary and the hall which seats three hundred people was filled to capacity both times.

The Rally opened with the Maple Leaf sung heartily by all present. Mr. Mimms then in a short address stated the aims of a Pig Club. These in brief are:—

(1). The increase of swine production.

(2). The education of the children of rural Ontario in commercial banking.

Each child is furnished sufficient money by the Merchants Bank to purchase two pigs. One of these, at the end of the season must be sold to repay the bank. The other may be kept for breeding purposes for another year.

Lantern slides of local interest, including the Bank building, two churches, pupils of the various rooms of the Finch school were next thrown on the screen.

A solo entitled "The Little Irish Girl" (which naturally mentioned pigs) was then given by Miss Daley of the Finch school staff, after which came moving pictures of educative value. These were given by Mr. Wiggins, who follows Mr. Bradt as District Agricultural Representative, Morrisburg. Mr. Wiggins very kindly explained the pictures as they appeared on the screen and afterwards spoke for a few minutes on his School Fair Work. He also advocated the purchase of one thoroughbred female pig by prospective members of the Club.

At the beginning of the second performance the prizes for the Essays were distributed. These had been written during the latter part of February by pupils in the schools of Finch Township. The first prize of $5.00 was awarded to Miss Sadie McRae of Goldfield; second prize of $2.50 to Miss Dorothy Casselman of Form 1 Continuation School, Finch Village, and Honourable mention was awarded the essay of Master Thomas Carr of the same school. Captain E. H. Marcellus, of the Medical Corps, lately returned from France, awarded the prizes. The programme closed with God Save the King.

After each performance tea was served to the teachers in attendance by the ladies of the staff of the Merchants Bank, Misses McMonagle, Casselman and Cameron, in their apartments above the Bank. The latter were assisted by Misses Dorothy Marcellus, Velma McMonagle and Beth Mimms, all in pretty red dresses. The flower decorations were daffodils and cyclamens.

All who were present hope that such an event may be repeated next year and unite in expression of their appreciation to the Merchants bank and its Finch manager, Mr. Mimms.

Rutely-McLeod

An event of interest took place on Wednesday, March 12th, when Miss Edna McLeod, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McLeod of Crysler was united in Holy Wedlock to Mr. Alex Rutely of Berwick.

The marriage was solemnized at the Manse, Finch, by the Rev. Mr. McCurlie. The bride was becomingly dressed in white brocade satin.

After the ceremony the happy couple left for Ottawa, on their return they were tendered a reception at the bride's home. Among the numerous and costly gifts was noticed a beautiful oak dining room suite from their immediate associates. The young couple left for their home near Berwick amidst a host of good wishes for their future welfare.

To The Women of Canada

The subjoined letter is being addressed to the Presidents and Secretaries of women's clubs and organizations throughout Canada in the hope that it will be widely read and discussed.

March 17th, 1919.

Madam:

The Canadian Trade Commission is undertaking an extensive inquiry into conditions in the Dominion for the purpose of promoting an expansion of "after-war" trade. It is felt, for reasons which will be easily understood by all women, that a return to pre-war standards in trade, as in all other national aims and aspirations, even if it were possible, would not meet the new need, as the huge financial burdens of the war and its consequences will have to be borne for many years to come.

The women of Canada, singly and through their organizations, have shown by the whole-hearted support given to national effort in food how great their collective influence may be in other directions. In every national undertaking during the war, the sympathy, understanding and active co-operation of women were proved to be essential. For the present and immediate future, there is on women especially to see that purchases for the homes are made in such a way that the effect will be to stabalize Canadian trade. Wherever possible, they should be only Canadian produce and Canadian products, because this will give employment in additional lines of production to returned soldiers and to those, many thousand in number, who were formerly occupied in war work. In this way they will not only insure employment for our workers, but they will help also to lessen the financial pressure which is likely to be increasingly felt,

Without entering exhaustively in to the field of national economics, women will quickly realize that every dollar sent out of the country for commodities which can be produced at home will affect the financial situation adversely and at once As the women of Canada purchase about 90% of the commodities used in our domestic life, a realization by them of their power to re-make and vitalize Canadian trade and finance is a first step towards relieving the situation and safeguarding the national future.

For every million dollars retained in Canada by a refusal to buy other than Canadian goods, a year's continuous employment can be given to at least 1,000 people.

The Canadian Trade Commission is endeavoring by other means to encourage and develop our domestic manufactures and to utilize every reserve of resource in the Dominion. To do this it will be their aim to turn to the best account the work of Canadians in the factory as well as the field—to induce our people as far as practicable to make at home the things we need at home.

The figures given on the attached list, taken from the Trade Report of the Department of Customs, show the large quantities of goods, which are of special interest to women, imported into Canada from outside sources in 1918. The Canadian Trade Commission believes that if the majority of Canadian women would study the items of expenditure on this list, the effect would be highly beneficial to the finance and trade of Canada and to the employment of our workers. The same spirit of patriotic support shown from day to day in the purchase of things made at home as was shown during the food campaign and in all national efforts for war, would remedy much of this great adverse trade balance without further machinery. An adverse balance means a lessening of our power to reconstruct Canadian trade, and to maintain and promote good wages and favourable living conditions. It is therefore an immediate and important duty for Canadian women wherever and whenever possible to insist on Canadian-made goods, and to help in making the national trade-mark, "Made in Canada", one of a high standard of excellence in our domestic as well as in foreign markets.

Yours faithfully,
THE CANADIAN TRADE
COMMISSION.

Daylight Saving Now Not Likely

Ottawa, March 17—Government supporters, subsequent to the adjournment of the Unionists' caucus to-day, asserted the belief that a daylight saving bill would not be introduced this session. They based their statements on the amount of criticism of the measure heard in caucus. According to these members practically no one spoke in favor of Canada again adopting the experiment of last year. Members representing city constituencies, where daylight saving is in favor, it is understood, did not seriously attempt to meet the avalanche of objections registered by the representatives of rural constituencies. In some cases they stated that if the feeling of Parliament was so strongly against the reintroduction of the measure the cities would introduce the scheme on their own account.

The development of so much opposition to daylight saving creates a difficult position for this Government It has generally been assumed that Canada would follow the example of the United States in this matter. While daylight saving was strenuously opposed across the border by the agricultural interests in Congress, they failed in their effort to have the measure killed, and when that body adjourned some days ago the bill providing for a change in time on March 30 was still intact.

It is probable that considerable pressure will now be brought to bear on the Government by the railways, boards of trade, etc., to have Canadian time conform to that of the United States. It is admitted that if it does not, much confusion will result at the border in connection with the operations of the train service. In this connection the suggestion is made by those who favor daylight saving that if the Government fails to introduce a bill the railways will be compelled to make their time conform to that across the border. Should the railways do this the cities would be almost certain to follow their lead, with the result that people in the country would in some respects be placed in much the same position as they were last year when the Daylight Savings Act was in force.

Soldiers Will Get Farm Implements at Reduced Prices.

Ottawa, March 17.—Soldiers who participate in the benefits of the land settlement provisions will have the advantage of considerable reductions in price on the purchase on the price of agricultural implements, live stock and harness.

Mr. W. J. Black, chairman of the Soldier Settlement Board, announces that very favorable arrangements have been made with manufacturers of implements and harness, by which soldiers will be given a wide range of choice implements at prices substantially below those quoted to civilians. The manufacturers also have guaranteed that soldier settlers will receive from any of their agents the same service and consideration in the setting up of their machinery and in supplying repairs and spare parts as is given civilians who pay the regular retail price.

Arrangements also have been made whereby stock, particularly horses, will be purchased through the board's own agent, a man of outstanding ability and intergrity.

The live stock branch of the Department of Agriculture is assisting the board by placing at its disposal its entire personnel in the West to act in an advisory capacity and to assist settlers in the selection of cattle, sheep and swine. Settlers will have the opportunity of selecting their own horses from the large numbers assembled at certain points. The horses will be tagged with their prices. Settlers will be able to procure serviceable teams at an average of about $350. Further, they will have the opportunity of putting their teams in harness and satisfying themselves that they are what they want before concluding purchases.

All stock purchased through the board is absolutely guaranteed. In eastern Canada, where it is not necessary to assemble stock, settlers will be advised and assisted in making their purchases by expert stock men of the locality.

Lady —"I want a pair of shoes for this little boy."

Much Ignorance on Victory Bonds

Those who are in a position to know—to exact bankers in the smaller communities who are coming directly in touch with the people—state that there is a widespread lack of understanding of Victory Bonds. One bank manager advises that he was recently astonshied to have a farmer of the community come to him and say that the Government had not sent him a cheque for the interest on his bond. On making inquiry the bank man found that these were coupon bonds and that the farmer had not clipped the coupons. He had not understood that these should be clipped, but had thought the interest would come to him without any such clipping—that the coupon was merely a promise to pay, an indication of the amount and date.

It would seem from what this bank manager states, and from what is learned from others that there is a widespread lack of understanding of just this nature. That such would be the case is, after all, not so strange, for prior to the war the general public knew comparatively little about the bonds and perhaps tho A. B. C.'s of the bond business have not definitely brought out as could be desired.

Some of the bank managers who have come in touch with the people of the farming districts, and of the smaller communitiies are of opinion that the Government should take steps to educate the holders of bonds as to just how these should be handled. There is a considerable tardiness in receiving the interest coupouns.

Working and Saving

"Every workingman a capitalist and every capitalist a workingman," as Sir Herbert Ames recently said, is one of the results hoped for from the War Saving Plan. The workingman who saves thereby becomes a capitalist so it is quite withiu the reach of all workingman to become capitalists. In doiug so they are better off and better able to face future.

Every capitalist should also be a workingman. Canada has no place for idlers. No mattet how well off he may be. the man who will not work is a detriment to the community The more a person becomes an investor the more likely is he to work.

Through buying War Saving Stamps the workingman may easily become a capitalist, for he thereby becomes an investor. He buys somethiug that pays well,—4½ per cent com-pounded half-yearly—and backed by the best security in the world for there is is nothing better than Canada.

Woman Cause of War

The New York War Camp Community Service sent out the following yesterday with this note: "This may add to the gayety of nations:"

It was a woman who caused the great war, and the secret was disclosed last night at the Hayward Unit of the New York War Camp Community Service, when two members of the "Old Fifteenth", (colored regiment,) got into an argument about the causes of the conflict.

"Doan' you know who started this yere war?" one asked.

"Shuah; reckon the Kaiser did", answered the other.

"Kaiser!" retored the first in scorn. "I done got inside information about dat, and I found out de war started about a woman, just like all de other wars. Yassah, my Captain says so dis morning. He says: "Dis yere war was started all on account of Alice Lorraine!"

"Corse, I dunno who Miss Lorraine is, but I know she's de lady that made all the trouble."

Invulnerability

A bricklayer was laying brick on the third storey of an unfinished house, and unfortunately dropped a brick on the head of a colored man who was mixing mortar down below.

The bricklayer, his heart was in mouth, craned over the parapet. He thought he had killed the poor colored man. But the latter looked up at him with a good-natured and forgiving grin.

"Hey, what you doin', white man?" he shouted. "You made me bit mah tongue."

The Lady and the Gleam

Once upon a time there was a lady. This is a true story and the Lady never originated a thing. She always believed what she was told and was A1 on the Copy. She followed the Gleam, if you want to Talk Highbrow.

She heard that it was Wonderful how many Cents you would have if you Kept Every One that came your way and put it into a Jug till there was not even Standing room inside. She believed the tale and hunted up the Jug. Then she pestered the life out of Shopkeepers and curled many Grey Hairs around her temples in the effort to make all her change come to Pennies. What did you say? Honest? of course! Everything's honest in Love and War.

Well, the Jug became Full instead of empty. And where did the Gleam lead the Lady? You'd never guess! Straight across the Continent! She started in Boston and Gleamed all the way to California on that Jug full of Pennies. Honest, she did!

What a Lady has done another can Gleam. Just think of the Possibilities in Thrift Stamps.

Where Yo' Been ?

Aunt Mary Wells is one of the few "befo' de wah" darkies left in a litte Kentucky town. Recently she was discussing with her employer the merry-go-round that was running on the corner.

"Nawsuh, Mr. Malcolm," she said, "nawsuh, I don' ride on none o' dem things. Why, Mr. Malcolm, I've seen some o' these fool niggers git on dat thing and ride as much as a dollars worth and get off at de very same place gits on at an I sez em, 'Now you spent y' money, nigger, whah yo, been?'"

In the Midst of Life

So frequently a man meets with death when apparently in health and looking forward to years of activity.

The income stops. His affairs disclose no resources whice will carry on the home and keep his widow and children.

In a case like this a policy in the Sun Life Assurance Co. of Canada, will promptly meet the financial necessities.

A Perfect Treatment For This Distressing Complaint

WASING, ONT.

"I had an attack of Weeping Eczema; so bad that my clothes would be wet through at times.

For four months, I suffered terribly. I could get no relief until I tried 'Fruit-a-tives and 'Sootha Salva' The first treatment gave me relief.

Altogether, I have used three boxes of 'Sootha Salva' and two of 'Fruit-a-tives', and am entirely well"

G. W. HALL.

Both these sterling remedies are sold by dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

"Fruit-a-tives" is also put up in a trial size which sells for 25c.

Best Annuals for the Home Garden

(Experimental Farms Note)

Annual flowers succeed exceptionally well in nearly all parts of Canada. For the "Home Garden", whether it be in the city or the country, the best annuals are the old favourites which have become so popular because they have fitted in with the needs of a large class of flower lovers The reason for the popularity of the "annual" is that it can be raised easily and grown with very little expense or labour. A few packages of seed costing five or ten cents each, a garden patch and someone interested in flowers form a combination which in the space of four or five short months may produce the most delightful results.

The old favourite annuals are the best because they have stood the test of time. In addition, they have been improved and increased in size, form and colour by the plant hybridist and by the seedsman so that to-day they have almost reached perfection. In one hundred years or less they have made as much advance as most other forms of life have made in several thousand. The "poor man's orchid" is the descriptive term for the modern sweet pea of to-day is wonderful. It is a new creation as compared with the sweat pea of a century ago. The same is true of many other annuals.

The favourite annuals are those which can be depended upon to give results. The final results will depend upon: 1. Seed; 2. Culture.

1. SEED. Some annuals are difficult to raise from seed and, therefore, the best for the home garden are those which produce seed that will germinate well. The seed of such annuals can be dealt with in two ways: (a) It may be sown in pots or flats in the house and the seedlings transplanted to the garden or (b) it may be sown direct into the garden. Latitude and climate must settle which method is better for the greatest success although with many annuals either method might give good results.

2. CULTURE. The culture of an annual flower is not a labourious task or trial of skill. The cultural directions are generally printed on the seed packages. Soil, cultivation and rainfall are three factors of importance. Soil should be of garden loam quality, and neither too sandy nor too heavy. Barnyard manure will stimulate good growth. Cultivation will keep the growth vigourous and healthy. Rain or artificial watering not less than once a week in the early stages of growth is almost essential.

Annuals are splendid for purposes of cut bloom. Some of the best for this purpose as well as for garden display are as follows: China Asters, Sweet Peas, Nasturtiums, Sweet Sultan, Sweet Scabious, Snapdragons, Everlastings, Zinnias, Pot Marigold or Calendula.

Other good annuals are:—

LOW GROWING: Pansies, California Poppy, Mignonette, Petunias, Portulaca, Pinks, Drummond Phlox, Verbenas;

MEDIUM HEIGHT: Everlastings, Balsams, Coreopsis, Larkspurs, Gaillardia, Clarkia, Salvia, Stocks, Poppies;

TALL GROWING: Cosmos, Helichrysum, Tall Larkspurs, Nicotiana, Salpiglossis, Sunflowers.

East Africa Campaign

Described by General Who Defeated Germans

A DISPATCH from Brigadier General Northey, C.B., dated Ubena, German East Africa, March 10, 1917, was published in a supplement to The London Gazette recently.

The dispatch, which is very brief, deals with the operations carried out by the forces under General Northey's command, based on Lakes Tanganyika and Nyasa, from January 1916, to February, 1917, in German East Africa. It was forwarded through the Governor of Nyasaland, who transmitted it with a covering letter in which he gives expression to the feeling of security experienced by himself and all in Nyasaland throughout General Northey's operations and refers to the record as being "one of consummate success at all times and at all points, the more so when regard is had to the small striking force at his disposal, the large area involved, and the difficulties in establishing and maintaining long lines of communication in a wild and unhealthy country.

The dispatch commences with a reference to the "list of officers, N. C. O.'s, and men recommended for mention in dispatches for their splendid work during the past year." A brief summary of the operations given is as follows:

From January to May, 1916, the time was spent in reorganizing the forces on the border, converting the garrisons between Lakes Nyasa and Tanganyika into mobile columns, and arranging for supply and transport. The results since obtained reflect the greatest credit on the administrative services. I think the difficulties to be overcome can hardly be realized by any but those who have experienced them.

Arrangements were made by which we were able in a few months to deploy, feed, and munition columns operating 100 miles north of Bismarckburg, at the east of Iringa, and 50 miles east of both Lupembe and Songea. The distances by road from Bismarckburg to New Langenburg; thence to Iringa, and from Iringa to Songea, are each about 200 miles. None of the roads are more than improved native paths, and the country is all hilly or mountainous, "much of it being dense bush and very unhealthy." It must also be remembered that, up to our own frontier, all supplies had to be brought either through Rhodesia, some 600 miles from the nearest railway, by native porters, or from Chinde up the Zambesi through Nyasaland and up the lake a distance of 700 miles, with constant transfers from seagoing ship to sternwheeler, railway, motor, carriers, and lake steamer. In addition to the troops with columns, many thousands of carriers had to be fed, and it must be borne in mind that each carrier eats the equivalent in weight of his own load in three weeks.

This solossal task was considerably helped later by the arrival of light motor lorries, but the untiring efforts of the mechanical transport units, and splendid work of the South African engineers, under Maj. Colin Clark in cutting and maintaining roads through most difficult hilly country. In six months 450 miles of motor road were made, and from Mwaya to the Poroto Hills, just north of New Langeburg, the road level varied from 1,500 to 8,000 feet above sea level.

On May 25 we attacked the enemy all along the frontier and by the end of July had cleared him out of the whole of the New Langenburg and Bismarckburg districts, occupying about 20,000 square miles of very rich and fertile country, and capturing many prisoners and much war material.

During August and September we made a complete wheel to the eastward, pivoting on the north end of Lake Nyasa and driving our enemy, who had now been reinforced from the north, eastwards from the districts of Iringa, Ubena, and Songea, the occupation of Iringa being timed to synchronize with the arrival of General Van Deventer at Kilossa.

From October to February, the troops under my command had some very hard fighting. In addition to our original opponents we had to deal with Major Kraut (the late adversary of the second division) on our right while the Tabora forces, under General Wahle, ordered to join Kraut, came down on our left and across our lines of communication. Kraut, in his attempt to contain Colonels Hawthorn and Murray, suffered very heavily on the Ruhudje river, and the Tabora forces lost about half their numbers in getting across.

Between Oct. 30 and Nov. 26 we inflicted over 600 known casualties on the enemy. The known enemy casualties we have inflicted up to date are: European, 56 killed, 275 captured; native soldiers, 336 killed, 1,093 captured. To them must be added the many hundred askaris wounded and deserters, who have got away. Our casualties have been slight in proportion.

We have also captured two out of four 10.5 cm. howitzers, one 8.8 gun, one 6 cm. gun, three smaller guns, nine machine guns, and forced General Wahle to abandon two naval 12-pounders soon after he captured them from us near Iringa on his way to join Krout.

The enemy companies which recently escaped southwards to the Portuguese border under Kraut, have been reduced to an average of 10 Europeans and 50 askaris each, about one-third of their strength in September.

The dispatch concludes with references to the various officers and officials and services, to whom General Northey finds himself specially indebted.

ENVER PASHA'S GUILT.

Was Responsible for Massacre of Armenians.

Enver Pasha, the Turkish Minister of War, like his associate, Talaat, did not hesitate to take full responsibility for the extermination of the Armenians. "In protesting to Enver against these outrages, says Ambassador Henry Morgenthau in the World's Work, "I began by suggesting that the Central Government was probably not to blame for the massacres. I thought that this would not be displeasing to him.

"'Of course I know that the Cabinet would never order such terrible things as have taken place,' I said. 'You and Talaat and the rest of the committee can hardly be held responsible. Undoubtedly your subordinates have gone much further than you have ever intended. I realize that it is not always easy to control your underlings.'

"Enver straightened up at once. I saw that my remarks, far from smoothing the way to a quiet and friendly discussion, had greatly offended him. I had intimated that things could happen in Turkey for which he and his associates were not responsible.

"'You are greatly mistaken,' he said. 'We have this country absolutely under our control. I have no desire to shift the blame on our underlings and I am entirely willing to accept the responsibility myself for everything that has taken place. The Cabinet itself has ordered the deportations. I am convinced that we are completely justified in doing this owing to the hostile attitude of the Armenians toward the Ottoman Government, but we are the real rulers of Turkey, and no underling would dare proceed in a matter of this kind without our orders.'

"Enver tried to mitigate the barbarity of his general attitude by showing mercy in particular instances. I made no progress in my efforts to stop the program of wholesale massacre, but I did save a few Armenians from death. One day I received word from the American Consul at Smyna that seven Armenians had been sentenced to be hanged. These men had been accused of committing some rather vague political offence in 1909, yet neither Rahmi Bey, the governor-general of Smyrna, nor the military commander believed that they were guilty. When the order for execution reached Smyrna these authorities wired Constantinople that under the Ottoman law the accused had the right to appeal for clemency to the Sultan. The answer which was returned to this communication well illustrated the extent to which the rights of the Armenians were regarded at that time:

"'Technically, you are right; hang them first and send the petition for pardon afterward.'

"In all my talks on the Armenians the Minister of War treated the whole matter more or less casually; he could discuss the kind of a race in a parenthesis and refer to the massacre of children as nonchalantly as he would speak of the weather.

Mark Twain's Friend.

Apropos of the death of the Rev. Dr. Joseph Twitchell, of Hartford, friend of Mark Twain and original of "Harris" in the latter's "A Tramp Abroad," the Philadelphia Public Ledger tells a story: Some years ago Dr. J. M. Buckley, the noted Methodist editor, took some of his clerical brethren severely to task for their tendency to draw on the ideas and even the language of Joseph Parker without due acknowledgment. While the discussion was at its height Mark Twain attended "Joe" Twitchell's church, and heard one of the latter's finest efforts. After the sermon he came forward, grasped the preacher's hand and said: "Joe, that was a good sermon, but I have a book at home that contains every word of it." Dr. Twitchell was taken aback—and then he waxed indignant. "If you can show me the book, I'd certainly like to see it!" he rejoined. "I gave a great deal of brain- sweat to that sermon." The next day Mark Twain sent him a copy of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary.

Had No Gas Mask.

The war being now virtually over the following story, recently related with great gusto by Gen. Petain, is perhaps a bit out-of-date. But it is a rattling good one, so here goes:

An American soldier in a front line trench (said Petaiin) was smoking furiously one of those big, black cigars our trans-Atlantic allies so greatly favor.

Suddenly he took it from between his lips, and offered it to a French soldier standing next to him.

"Here, Leon," he said, "hold this cigar a moment while I heave a bomb into the German trench."

But the Frenchman recoiled in dismay.

"Non, non, monsieur!" he loudly ejaculated. "Non, non! I will hold zee bomb, while you throw zee cigar."

Argentina Wants Fleet.

Argentina appears to be taking measures, in accordance with formulated plans, for the building of a merchant marine. As a preliminary step, President Irigoyen has asked Congress for power to requisition steamers of Argentine register and place them under Government control. Furthermore, he would have the sale of Argentine vessels to other nations prohibited. Some concern with regard to fuel supply for the Argentine fleet is discernible in President Irigoyen's message to Congress, but why his thoughts should centre upon the future of the fleet, at this time, is one of the inexplicable things about his policy.

In Maiden Meditation.

Beneath the trees I love to lie
And gaze up in the summer sky.
My soul is thrilled with thoughts sublime,
Beyond all bounds of space or time.
I am uplifted! I expand
With thoughts so beautiful and grand!
My heart responds like vibrant strings
Of golden harps and all such things.
I cannot put my thoughts in words.
They're like the raptured songs of birds.
Subtle yet daring fancies seem
To be the fabric of my dream
And this the burden of them all—
What fashions will be worn this fall?
