Rev R. A. Mitchell Receives Call to Magog

At their quarterly Official Board meeting the officials of Trinity United Church were advised by their minister, Rev R. A. Mitchell, that his ministry in Chesterville would terminate on December 31st next. Mr Mitchell has received a call to St. Paul's United Church, Magog, Que. He will terminate his work in the United Church here on the completion of five years as the minister of the church.

The treasurer, Mr Arnold McLaggan, reported that the annual canvass is nearing completion and that the response received to date is very gratifying. It is anticipated that enough money will yet be received to bring the total above last year's income. This is necessary because of the repairs undertaken to the church during the year.

The meeting was in charge of the chairman, Rev R. A. Mitchell, and Mrs Lyle Marcellus acted as secretary.

Canvassers for the District Memorial Hospital named were Mrs Harold Marcellus, Mrs Wes. Moke, Mrs Bernice Froats, Mrs Arthur Barkley, Mrs Maurice Beckstead, Mrs Burton Beckstead, Mrs Melvin Dillabough, Mrs Donald Dillabough, Mrs Wilfred Carruthers and Mrs Harry Carruthers.

It was decided to hold a food sale in the near future. Mrs Egerton Barkley and Mrs Graham McPherson are to canvass the Elma district for the C.N.I.B.

The roll call for the December meeting is to be answered with a cheer sister's name and a small jar of jam, jelly or relish to be used in Christmas baskets for the shut-ins.

Each member is asked to bring a gift to the next meeting, not to exceed 59 cents, gift wrapped and no name on the outside of the parcel, but the donor's name on the inside.

Mrs Harold Marcellus, convener of Agriculture and Canadian Industries, opened her programme with a reading, "It's Always Better with Butter. Readings were also given by Mrs Arthur Folkard, "Song of the Lazy Farmer" and "Remembrance Day—Lest We Forget;" Margaret Dillabough played two lovely piano solos, "Shanty in Old Shanty Town" and "Winter Wonderland."

Mrs Egerton Barkley introduced the Rev N. Bowering who showed an interesting and educational film on Eastern Canada.

Mrs Marcellus expressed thanks to Mr Bowering and all those who had added so much to a fine evening's entertainment.

Film Shown At November Meeting Of Elma W.I.

Mrs Egerton Barkley, 1st vice-president, took charge of the November meeting of Elma W.I. held in Dunbar hall. The president, Mrs McPherson, was unable to be present.

The roll call was answered by 19 members. Ten visotors were also present.

Explorers Group Host to Mothers, W.M.S. Mothers Twelve Girls Initiated into Group at Regular Meeting

Mothers and W.M.S. mothers were guests at the regular meeting of the Explorer group held in the dining hall of the United Church on Monday evening. The guests were welcomed by Chief Counsellor Mrs. F. M. Cass.

The members then proceeded with the formalities of a regular meeting, which included a period of recreation; a business period, led by Chief Explorer Janet Black, assisted by Keeper of the Log, Lorna Casselman; and a worship service on the theme "This is My Father's World," in which Carol Cuff, Marion Fleming, Jane Hutt, Carolyn Arnold and Margaret Jones took part.

In the absence of Keeper of the Treasure, Lorraine Brownlee, the offering was received by Suzanne Olsen and dedicated by the people.

Twelve girls, having successfully completed the study requirements, were initiated into the group and received their pins, Purpose and first Red Star. This group included Joan and Margaret Mitchell, Pat Smith, Lynda Hutton, Ruthie Bailey, Ruth Baker, Mary Graham, Gay White, Patsy Henderson, Pauline Dame, Jewel Shay and Lynn Marriner.

During the Star ceremony the Intermediate group, consisting of Diane Arnold, Brenda Merkley, Jane Hutt, Carol Cuff, Barbara Smith, Ann Smith, Theresa McMillan and Jean Ouderkirk, were awarded their first Blue Stars, while the Senior group, Suzanne Olsen, Marion Fleming, Lorraine Brownlee, Lorna Casselman, Carolyn Arnold, Janet Black, Margaret and Sharon Jones, completed the requirements for their first Gold Stars.

These stars on the uniform of a member are symbols of achievement and development in the life of the girl as she advances in the 3-year course of the Explorer programme. The requirements include regular attendance at Church and Sunday School and at Explorer expeditions; practice in leading in recreation and worship, and an honest and sincere effort to follow the Purpose.

Candy was served at the close of the meeting and guests and members joined in the friendship circle for the singing of "Taps".

Social Evening Much Enjoyed At Grantley Church

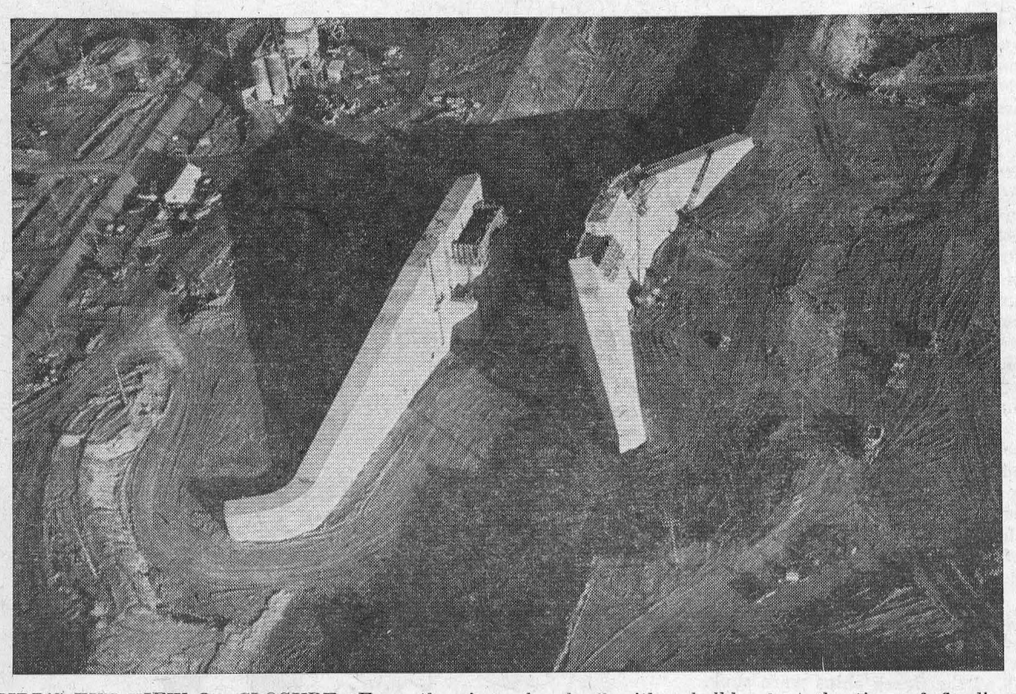
On Wednesday evening a social gathering at Grantley United Church was much enjoyed. The programme was opened by Mrs Fred Cass, of Chesterville, with an appropriate solo "Golway Bay," with Mrs Hosea Drppo at the piano.

Miss Ada Adams, of Cornwall, who visited Europe recently, took her listeners via vivid pictures over her tour again and showed beautiful gardens in Holland, scenes from Switzerland, Italy, France and other countries. She gave a French Department of C.C.V.S., her trip through France was of special interest. She had mentioned having views of the Longue Sault but feared the hour was growing late, however all begged to see again the beautiful rapids so soon to be stilled forever, then someone asked if her tour had taken her to Britain, so those fortunate enough to be present were again taken by pictures from Bonie Dundee and the hills of heather down through to the Tower of London and Big eBn.

A solo, "Sing Me to Sleep," by Mrs Cass, brought the pleasant evening to a close. Rev Cecil Dukelow expressed the thanks of those present.

After lunch Mrs Gordon and Mrs Wilburn Robinson presented Miss Adams, Mrs Cass and Mrs Droppo with gifts in appreciation for their kindness.

Closure Structure for Diversion Canal



BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF CLOSURE—From the air, the concrete closure structure for Cornwall diversion canal indicates the passage which ships will be using to get through the power project dyke area commencing next spring. This concrete structure will be closed off with a bulkhead at the time of flooding the powerhouse headpond area in the summer of 1958. Until then, ships will use the mile-long diversion canal to get through the bustling work area.—Ontario Hydro Photo.

She has been invited to represent Chesterville at the first annual school patrol rally to be held in Toronto on December 1. Finch Twp. Area Teachers Conduct Discussions On School Problems

The regular meeting of Finch Township Area Teachers' Association was held in Berwick School Friday afternoon, November 16. The president, Miss Bella MacLeod, conducted the meeting, assisted by Mrs Ina Crump, as secretary.

Mrs Irma Steven took charge of the opening exercises. A musical programme was presented by the pupils of Berwick School.

Mrs Leitha Casselman, president of the Stormont Teachers' Association, made some announcements. The teachers were then given time to inspect a display of art, writing and notebooks contributed by the Berwick pupils.

The highlight of the afternoon was an interesting discussion conducted by Mr P. H. Torrance, B.A., B. Paed., Inspector of Public Schools. His main topic was testing and examinations. Mr Torrance spoke of three types of tests: Essay, teacher-made objective tests and standardized tests, outlining the defects and values of each.

The essential characteristics of good tests were discussed and a system of improving grading of tests was drawn up.

During the rest of the afternoon, several suggestions picked from a question box were used as topics for discussion.

Lunch was then served by some of the teachers.

Mrs Walter Smirle gave reports on the grandmothers' meeting, catering weddings and the Hallowe'en dance. Mrs John Bogart reported on the wreath bought for the Legion.

Mrs James Pollock thanked the branch for sending her as delegate to the Ottawa convention and gave a report on the meeting.

Mrs Mills Foster, convener of Home Economics and Health, opened her programme by observing two minutes' silence. Mrs George Pollock, at the piano, played "Abide with Me," and all joined in singing. Mrs Foster gave a health talk on insulin.

The winer of a contest on domestic animals was Mrs W. W. Henry.

Mrs Foster thanked Mrs Anderson for the use of her home. A social half hour was spent and lunch was served. The meeting closed with ',God Save the Queen."

Next meeting will be held December 13 at 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs Elwin Pollock.

United Tyro Group Attends Fall Rally At Iroquois

The annual fall rally for the boys of the Dundas-Grenville Presbytery, United Church of Canada, was held recently in Iroquois United Church. The convener of the Christian Education committee for the Presbytery, Rev F. C. Rice, Cardinal, was in charge and welcomed the boys, over 50 of whom registered for the rally. The opening worship service was conducted by the Tyro group of Trinity United Church, Chesterville. Those taking part were: Ken Baker, Dick Testerink, Doug Fry and Bob Mitchell.

The boys enjoyed a round of games led by Rev Murray Jose, of Prescott. Rev R. A. Mitchell introduced the Tyro programme, and the field secretary of Christian Education for the Montreal and Ottawa Conference, Rev Geo. C. Connolly, the Sigam-C programme for older boys. Mr Connolly also addressed the gathering. A lively sing-song was led by Rev Gordon Dangerfield, of Iroquois, with Rev F. E. Rice assisting on the piano, after which the boys enjoyed a film.

The boys enjoyed the box lunches they had brought with them, and chocolate milk was supplied by the committee in charge.

Other ministers who were present included Rev W. H. LeGrow and Rev N. Bowering. The members of the Chesterville Tyro group attending were Brian Docksteader, Peter Merkley, Doug Fry, Ken Baker, Dick Testerink and Bob Mitchell.

The meeting concluded with a visit to the Iroquois Seaway lookout.

OPINIONS . . .
Ours and Others

Another Municipal Year Looms

Chesterville will stage her annual guessing game at the end of next week when nominations for the slate of city fathers will be called for in Community Hall. Needed will be the names of one reeve and four councillors for the year 1957.

Every town, large or small, has its civic problems that seem larger than any other town's. Regardless of the solution of those problems there is always opinion that feels there was a better way of doing it. Nomination night is the time to get those gripes out of the system and get after the man of your choice to stand and run for office. There is no other time. Chesterville has yet to hold her elections on the street corners or in the Record office. The appointed time and place is set out in the bills and the public is well aware of that fact.

We have had a good council this year in most ways, in this observer's humble opinion. Many things were accomplished, some through force of habit and some through force of circumstances. Force of habit didn't keep the fundamental housecleaning done on our streets this year for the first for some time and merchants paid with extra dust and litter. Progression was shown in the approach to the water problem for the community—the Water Resources Commission may have had something to do with that. The wheels are set in motion for next year's council to make a momentous decision on the matter. Streets and sidewalks received a modicum of work, with much done but a lot to do if we are to at least keep our investment up to par. Of course work around the clock on the part of councillors, reeve and the town employees would not satisfy all of us, but things are humming along in the old groove in a reasonable shape.

The coming year, Reeve McMillan will be in line for the wardenship of the counties if he is re-elected here. We think he should have that honour to top off a long line of service in the No. 1 spot in the village. Councillors come and councillors go, and what will work out on the night of the 30th is in the lap of the gods and those that get out and work up some enthusiasm may come out on top.

Light Along The Way

When the Centurion asked Jesus to help his paralyzed servant (Matt. 8) he received this direct answer: "I will come and heal him." There was no consideration except for the need. Jesus was not concerned with the race or the religion of the servant, with his social status, his ability to pay, or any other thing but his need. So God is always ready to meet the needs of His children. His concern is for them, not for what they are.

Sickness is a terrible blight upon man. Disease and illness are only dimly understood, and medical science no sooner conquers one sickness than a worse one seems to take its place. There have been remarkable inroads made by science into such diseases as tuberculosis and poliomyelitis; but a survey made in the Old Country, claims Dr Carroll A. Wise, shows increases in the amount and duration of such illnesses as peptic ulcers, nervous debility, bronchitis, anemia, rheumatism, and cardiac debelity.

We might ask ourselves why Jesus was so limited in the use of his wonderful healing power, and why God permits such a dreadful thing as pain and suffering to be visited upon so many good people. While the problem cannot be completely answered two important things, at least, can be said. The first is suggested in the New Testament itself. Man must have faith. In most cases where Jesus used His power to heal, He used it on those who sought Him out. It must always be remembered that God's power is limited by man's freedom, and if man does not choose to seek God he will not find Him. Jesus often turned away sorrowing because of the harlness of men's hearts, a barrier He could not break down.

A word of caution must be added, however. God never promised man what man sought, but only what God has prepared for him. "Seek and ye shall find," certainly. But what shall be found? Not man's desire, not his will, but God. It must be recognized that faith is not a guarantee of healing, nor of anything else. It is only a guarantee that the believer will find God.

It is becoming very clear, however, that this is the essential thing in illness. Man is his own worst enemy. Illness is no longer considered "a specific disease of a particular organ. It must be considered a manifestation of the whole person," to quote Dr Wise again. This suggests the strength of the Christian claim that man is not all right until he is right with God; and that without a faith which brings peace and strength "in the inward parts" life cannot be a happy exeprience.

As Jesus clearly showed, God is only too willing to meet the needs of His children, but when their will is not His there is little He can do; and the very nature of man's greatest gift, his freedom, produces suffering and sorrow.

Use of Steam Power

Chugging, smoke-erupting machines of strange invention, ancestors of both the automobile and the locomotive, founded the "horseless-carriage" age more than a century and a half ago.

Long before that, men had dreamed of some form of land conveyance not pulled by animals. Sails were tried, and even a windmill-powered wagon in 1475; Leonardo da Vinci proposed a spring-wind carriage, and Isaac Newton designed one pushed by a steam jet.

But it was a French military engineer named Nicholas Cugnot who built a wagon that ran. In 1770, he produced a steam-powered artillery carrier—the first successful mechanically propelled vehicle in history.

Cugnot's cart, with three wooden wheels and a huge copper boiler suspended out in the front, whizzed along at a theoretical 2¼ miles an hour. After 15 minutes, however, it would run out of steam. One day it upset on a Paris street and caused a panic. Never used to carry guns, it still exists in a Paris museum.

In 1803, a steam carriage ran in the streets of London. With wheels more than 10 feet high, it was patented by Richard Trevithick and Andrew Vivian. An earlier model, the partners noted for history, "sank in the road." Another burned up.

Two years later, in Philadelphia, the inventor Oliver Evans put a steam-powered dredge on wheels to take it to the Schuylkill River for launching. He named his weird contraption in Greek, Orukter Amphibolos, the "Amphibious Digger." To get enough money to pay off his workmen, he exhibited it "moving around Centre Square" for several days while he collected 25-cent contributions from spectators.

Evans, pioneer in use of high-pressure steam, thus became the first American to build a self-powered vehicle that moved on a road. He was far from the last. For a century, the steam car led the field.

England had steam passenger coaches running on regular schedules until outrageous tolls— and a law that required a man on horseback to ride ahead waving a red flag—forced them out of business.

In New York, Richard Dudgeon built a ten-passenger road locomotive in 1868. Ten years later steam carriages set out from Green Bay toward Madison, Wisconsin, in the first automobile race. The winner took a week to cover the 210-mile course; it averaged six miles per hour.

In 1886, Ransom Olds produced a coal-fired steam tricycle in Lansing, Mich. (and went on to build his "Merry Oldsmobiles"). Even in 1902 more than half the motor vehicles registered in New York State were steam driven, and it was a Stanley Steamer that held the world's land-speed record from 1906 to 1921—121.57 m.p.h. at Daytona Beach.

By the zenith of the steam car, the gasoline buggy had long since been born. Etienne Lenoir successfully ran a gas wagon in France in 1863, when Abraham Lincoln was in the White House. Siegfried Marcus built a car in Vienna a-few years later, and in 1865 both Karl Benz and Gottfried Daimler built their first successful cars. The gasoline engine age had arrived.

On the Bookshelf

Living in a country like Canada, with its vast agricultural development and knowing how farmers struggle along with inadequate help, it is of interest to note that in Chaucer's England (1388) Parliament laid down a satute decreeing that at harvest time journeymen and apprentices should lay aside their crafts and be compelled "to cut, gather and bring in the corn," and the mayors, bailiffs and constables of the towns were empowered to see the rule obeyed.

In this manner the town dweller shared in rustic life and was conscious of the natural beauty of the country and this affected the language and thoughts of all. Chaucer writing of a young woman said "Her song was as loud and brisk as any swallow sitting on a barn."

The rigid division between urban and rural did not prevail until after the industrial revolution. In Chaucer's day no one thought liberty consisted in avoidance of obligations on the doing of which the cherished liberties of the town depended. Self help and self governmen were taught for centuries and the people early learned there were no rights without duties.

In the City of London clergy and nobility were complaining of coal smoke. Thatched roofs were being replaced by red tiles to lessen the danger of fire. The streets were ill paved and had no sidewalks, the crown of the road sloping down to ditches known as the kennels into which the refuse ran, and the weakers persons traversing the streets were shoved from the centre and "went to the wall" where they splashed through the mud. (This literally happens still in countries where the weaker ones are dominated by the aggressive.).

"Gold in the Grass"

Margaret L. Leatherbarrow tells the story of their struggle to develop a worn out, badly eroded and weed-infested farm into "Gold in the Grass."

She and her husband, Alfred Leatherbarrow, have made "Friendship Farm" famous and it is the hope of the writer to help people to realize that our very existence depends on the fertility of the good earth.

"Lovely is the Lee"

As is [illegible] and sure when a gifted writer as Robert Gibbings undertakes to describe it and recount for you the lovely Irish legends he hears and tells you of the call of the seagulls and you see with him the peat, the Claddagh and the ruined castles, you will be delighted with the book and the Irish people all over again.

The woodcuts with which the book is illustrated are fascinating too.—S.C.

FIND HULKS OF ANCIENT GREEK FLEET IN BAY OF SIRACUSA

Divers have found water-logged hulks which experts believe are those of a Greek war fleet lost 2,000 years ago in one of the greatest naval defeats of ancient history.

The first skeletal wreckage was sighted by men who have been working for almost a month in the silt at the bottom of the broad Bay of Siracusa, on the south-east coast of Sicily.

They described the gaunt ribs and sharp prow of what appeared to be an ancient trireme, a galley with three banks of oars. The wooden wreckage crumbled at their touch.

"There can be no doubt," said Prof. Luigi Barnard Brea, director of the historical museum at Syracuse, Sicily, "that the wreckage is from the Athenian fleet that bessieged ancient Syracuse.

"We stand at the threshold of a discovery of perhaps the most ancient warships ever found on earth."

The search for the sunken fleet was started by the Italian navy and the Sicilian Department of Antiquities on clues furnished by Arthur Baker, British Consul in Syracuse and an ardent student of Sicilian history.

Last summer Baker figured out from ancient records where the 119 Athenian ships probably were sunk in 413 B.C. He fished around the bottom of the bay 100 yards off the Ortigia Islands and brought back pieces of ancient pottery. That spurred Italian authorities to send down divers.

The war fleet was sent by Athens against Corinthian-held Syracuse, once Greece's greatest colony, in the days of Alcibiades.

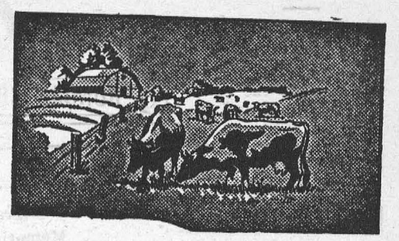
The Siracusians defended themselves well in their fortress-guarded bay, and the Athenian commanders decided to withdraw. Because of superstition, however, they waited until after the eclipse of the moon on August 27, 413 B.C.

By then it was too late. The Siracusians trapped them by blockading the mouth of the harbour with the hulks of old ships. All but 15 of the Greek ships were sunk.

The Athenian shore force of 6,000 men was decimated and its survivors were sold into slavery.

Many historians have called the defeat the beginning of the end of the power of Athens.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS



By Lillian Allison

The man in the television said that this was City-Farm Week or Farm-City Week or something like that. Anyway it is this week that city folks and farm folks are supposed to get together and try to understand each other's problems. The man suggested that if the city organizations were having meetings during the week they should invite their farm friends. And likewise the farmers should ask their city cousins to their dinners and meetings. It sounded like a good idea—an idea that should not be confined merely to one week in the year.

There is certainly need for a little more understanding among rural and urban people. We have to depend upon each other as a baby depends upon its parents. The city people would soon starve to death if it weren't for the farmer and the farmer would be out of business before spring if the city people didn't buy his products. We all know that as well as we know the alphabet. Yet we continue to misunderstand, envy and blame each other for existing conditions.

The city housewife pays very high prices for the farm products she buys in the supermarket. Immediately she more or less begins to hate the farmer for taking so much of her grocery dollar. While we in turn get as mad as bears when she complains, individually, or through the Canadian Association of Consumers, about high prices. We aren't getting nearly enough for our produce.

The city people envy us our "free" food. They see our thriving gardens, our strawberry patches, the milk and eggs we have in abundance, our freezers full of fresh chicken and meat. They think how wonderful it must be to have all that food without having to pay for it. We know perfectly well how we happened to get it free. We got it by a lot of good, hard work.

Then in turn we envy the city worker who goes to work at nine and comes home at five and hasn't a worry in the world from Friday night until Monday morning. He gets two whole weeks off with pay and several Mondays during the year as well. We seldom get any farther from home than we can go between morning and night milking. We work ten- twelve- fourteen-hour days most of the time with no hope of cutting it to eight by going on strike.

Yet we seldom realize that all city men don't get by with an eight hour day. Management works early in the morning and often on into the night day after day. The "white collared" chap often puts in as long hours as the average farmer—hours of hard, mental work crouched over a desk in a crowded office.

On the other hand he doesn't understand what it means to the farmer when the weather is too hot and dry or too wet. He doesn't realize how often a farmer has to bury a valuable cow and pay a big veterinarian fee besides. He doesn't understand how farmers plan and work to put across some new idea like the Brucellosis Control plan that has just come into effect in Dundas County.

If city business men could sit in at the annual meetings of the Federation of Agriculture, the cattle breeders' clubs and the Agricultural Society they would learn much of the problems farmers face. Likewise the farmers could profit from attending a meeting of the Board of Directors of some big business firm. Even though much of both types of meeting would go over the visitors' heads.

Often it has been suggested that farms near the city sponsor "Visitor Days" when the city folks could go out, take the children and see how farming really is done.

But now a new idea is gaining in popularity. I understand many city people are spending their holidays as paying guests at farm homes. I doubt if there is any better way to build up an understanding among rural and urban people. For the best way to get to understand each other's problems is to get to know each other. And living together for a few weeks a year would be one of the best ways for city people and farmers to become good friends.

NOT DEAD —SO GETS BILL

A 44-year-old Australian housemaid who was pronounced dead in Melbourne but woke up as she was being put into a refrigeration chamber in the city morgue, has been sent a bill for her ambulance trip to the morgue.

Mrs Sheila Baulch received a bill for £3 at her home in Balranald, New South Wales.

"I am certainly surprised to get it, but I am not complaining," she said. "After all, it is pretty nice to be in position to pay it."

After a fall Mrs Baulch was pronounced dead by a doctor in the Royal Melbourne Hospital and was taken to the morgue. There a policeman noticed her cheek twitch. She was taken back to the hospital, reinstated as alive, and released.

ROTATING LIVING ROOM FOLLOWS SUN

The world's dream of a house with a view has its climax with the construction near Columbus, Ohio, of a house with a rotating second-storey picture-window living room.

The room, 18 by 18 feet, is driven by an electric motor and gives its occupants a potential 360-degree view of the countryside.

Clark Ranney, 68, the builder, has dubbed it the "sceneramic house." He says he has applied for patents in the novel dwelling and that other builders, particularly in Florida, have asked for the rights to put up similar homes.

The house has a brick first floor containing three bedrooms, two baths and a kitchen.

The rotating upstairs living room is reached by a spiral staircase in the centre of the house. It revolves on 24 wheels which ride a circular track and can make a revolution a minute at top speed.

The living room turns in either direction and can be automatically timed to follow the sun across the sky or track the moon at night.

Asked about the cost, Ranney estimated the rotating living room would add about $1,500 to $2,000 to the overall cost of constructing a house.

THIEF ON ICE

An ice-vending machine in Harrisburg, Pa., delivered to a surprised customer a bonus of one slightly chilled 10-year-old boy.

The boy told police he had climbed into the machine to pilfer its coin box. When the customer dropped a coin in the slot, the boy came out of the chute with a 50-cent bag of ice.

"I was never so scared in my life," he reported.

The news sure gets around, Professor.

CARNIVAL AT QUEBEC—Winter sports, colourful parades, masquerade balls, Mardi Gras and general merry-making begin January 13 with the official opening of Quebec City's annual winter carnival. Unofficial headquarters for the seven-week winter festival is the famed Chateau Frontenac Hotel overlooking the historic French-Canadian city along the banks of the St. Lawrence River. Bonhomme Carnaval—the jolly king of the carnival—is the centre of attraction for a myriad of pretty French-Canadian demoiselles in the upper right photo. One of the most spectacular and dangerous events is the two mile small boat race between the twin cities of Quebec and Levis across the St. Lawrence—part ice, part water and part ice floe during the race. In the lower left photo, a young lady tries her hand at sculpting a snowman with the Chateau Frontenac in the background. Even city thoroughfares are not safe during the merry making, as steep streets in the centre of town are turned into slalom runs for the ski competitions.—C.P.R. Photo.

Dr R. Westwater Guest Speaker At Teachers' Banquet

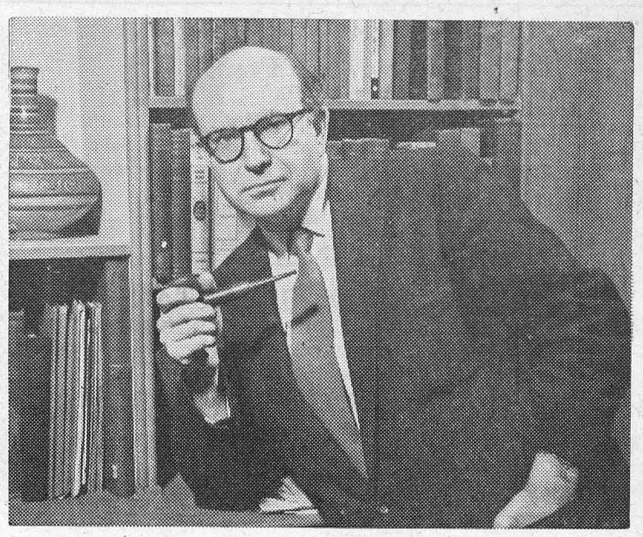
Members of Dundas Women Teachers' Federation were hostesses at a turkey banuet in the basement of St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Williamsburg. Guests included 100 men and women teachers and their friends from Dundas County. The guest speaker was Dr Robert Westwater, of Ottawa, retired chief inspector of that city, who told the large gathering about refugee work in the Middle East. He also presented films which tied in with his topic.

Dr Westwater was introduced by W. J. Stewart, of Winchester, and thanked by Graham Casselman, principal of Winchester Springs Public School.

Greetings were brought from the Provincial Women Teachers' Federation. by Mrs Flora Fader, of Marevlville, who spoke in the absence of the representative, Miss E. Rankin.

During the evening Mrs Florence English delighted the audience with two vocal solos, accompanied by Mrs Edith Murdock.

Lutheran Women of the Church catered to the banquet and they were tendered a hearty vote of thanks by the attending teachers and their friends.



TV HOST—Mavore Moore, the well known actor, writer, critic, executive and producer, is the host on the new CBC television show called "Explorations." This show is CBC-TV's boldest venture to date in the documentary field and will deal with a great variety of subjects—from history to mental hygiene.

Church Women Send Clothing Overseas

The vice-president, Mrs J. L. Kirchhofer, was chairman of the November meeting of the Lutheran Women of the Church, held in the church hall, had 21 members and one visitor attending.

The worship period consisted of a hymn, Scripture reading and prayer. The topic, "Next Door to My Neighbour," was presented by Mrs Kirchhofer, assisted by Mrs Garnet Weegar. This was followed by a discussion and concluded with prayer in unison. The members responded to the roll call with a Scripture verse containing the word "Neighbour."

Substantial balances were reported by the mission treasurer, Mrs Irwin Empey, and the current treasurer, Mrs Arthur Loucks.

It was announced that a box of clothing had been sent overseas.

Mrs Floyd Whitteker, Mrs Ross Beckstead and Mrs J. L. Kirchhofer were appointed a committee to see about new church tables.

A Bible quiz was conducted by Mrs Lloyd Whitteker and won by Mrs Kirchhofer.

A cordial invitation was extended by Mrs Arthur Loucks to hold the December meeting in her home.

The meeting closed with the Missionary benediction, after which lunch was served by the committee in charge.

Unity is something every church wants—and just about every one of them will be glad to have the others join them.

Closure Structure Completed for Diversion Canal Work Finished Months Ahead of Schedule

First concrete structure to be completed at the St. Lawrence Project, the closure structure for Cornwall diversion canal, now has been completely built.

Ontario Hydro's project director, Gordon Mitchell, said that the structure was finished several months ahead of the original schedule, which called for a completion date of early spring of 1957. The construction of these two large concrete walls that will give entrance through Cornwall dyke for shipping during powerhouse building, and will act as a closure when flooding of the powerhouse headpond takes place in the summer of 1958, was accomplished in five months.

A total of approximately 135,000 cubic yards of concrete, enough to build a standard sidewalk for 540 miles, the distance from Windsor to Montreal, was put into this permanent structure. It consists of four wing walls and a centre main block and will enable the south end of the dyke to be built from the end of the powerhouse across the present canal.

Cornwall dyke will be built right into these walls which have been designed to take the slope of the dyke on either side. This section will be one of the highest parts of the dyke, where it will rise up nearly 80 feet. The concrete walls of the closure structure are about 125 feet high and are approximately 400 feet long. The width of the opening for the passage of ships, which will start to use this entrance when navigation season begins in April, 195, is some 50 feet. At the time of flooding the powerhouse forebay, the canal will be sealed off here with a concrete bulkhead.

Excavation Progressing

Excavation of the mile-long diversion canal, to link it up with Cornwall canal near Lock 19 at the east end and Lock 20 at the west end, is well advanced. More than half the 1,300,000 cubic yards of rock and earth that will be taken out for this diversion canal already has been removed. The contracting firm building this important channel to detour ship traffic is C. A. Pitts General Contractors Ltd., Toronto. The work in the field has been directed by Joe Beauclair, project manager, and Bill Cole, project engineer, for C. A. Pitts. Walter Dechman, one of Ontario Hydro's project divisional engineers, supervised construction for the Commission.

Project Director Gordon Mitchell praised the work that had been accomplished to date on this important canal link. He said that it was gratifying to have this structure completed ahead of schedule, and pointed out that it was necessary to have the diversion canal ready in advance of the beginning of the 1957 navigation season. Shipping must be kept operating during the building of the St. Lawrence Power Project and this canal diversion will help to accomplish that.

TRAGEDY AT DEWSBURY

Dewsbury, Eng., mill owner John Day installed a new set of automatic fire extinguishers in his place of business and called on local police and firemen for a demonstration.

Beaming, he kindled a blaze under an expensive carding machine and stood back.

Automatic jets were supposed to squirt carbon dioxide gas on the flames. They didn't.

Day hurriedly pulled a hand operating lever to set the fire fighting equipment in operation. Nothing happened.

Oslo, capital city of Norway, reported no murders and only 67 robberies during 1955.

PROTECTIVE PAINT FOR NEEDY PORCH

Home owners are especially conscious these days of porch floors that are foot-scuffed and weather-worn. If, in some places, the paint is gone entirely, they know that the wood will rot and require expensive repairs. A protective coating should be applied before such replacement becomes necessary.

Porch-and-deck paint— which is suitable for cement floors as well as wooden ones—will provide attractive protection.

If the steps have a tendency to sag a little in spots and often retain puddles of water after a rain, it's usually a good idea to drill half-inch drainage holes at strategic points before the paint is applied.

When painting the steps, incidentally—if you have no other access to your home while they are drying—remember to paint every other step during your first painting session. When these are thoroughly dry, coat the alternates.

AN OTTOMAN EASILY MADE

A sturdy ottoman, or upholstered foot stool, is easily made of 1 by 4-inch lumber for the frame and spring slats, and 2 by 2-inch lumber for the legs.

Taper the legs, first marking on the upper part of each 12-inch leg the width of the side and end boards to indicate the upper limits of the tapering. Use ⅜-inch dowels and glue to fasten the frame together. The glued frame should be kept in clamps until the glue has set. Reinforce each corner joint with inside corner braces.

Coil springs or foam rubber may be used. If springs are used they are stapled to the spring slats, tied together and covered with burlap. The top cushioning material, such as kapok or cotton batting, sewn into an attractive tough fabric, is attached to the side and end boards withornamental upholsterer's tacks. About 2½ inches of the wood of the side and boards should be exposed.

LOSS OF MONEY TOO EMBARRASSING

Clay Denham was "too embarrassed" to report the loss of $6,580 so he waited six weeks before telling police about his misfortune.

Denham needed only to give a more detailed list of the number and denominations of the bills to pick up $6,475.11 of it.

Denham, a maintenance man at a downtown hotel, explained how he lost his savings after drawing it out of a bank for a trip. He put the money in a fruit jar wrapped in canvas and tossed it in his pickup truck along with some other gear.

When it started to rain, Denham took the canvas from around the money, put the fruit jar on the grass between the curb and the sidewalk ,and spread the canvas over his suitcases.

Then he drove a few miles outside of town before remembering the money. When he got back, the jar was gone.

"I have been too embarrassed by my forgetfulness to report the loss," Denham said.

The money waiting to be claimed was surrendered by Ivan Smith after questioning. He said he found it in a vacant building.

Mr, Mrs E. McMillan Honoured on Anniversary

Mr and Mrs Ellery McMillan, of Finch, were honoured Sunday evening at the home of Mr and Mrs Albert Mattice, Newington West, on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary. The guests were the immediate families of both Mr and Mrs McMillan.

The bride, the former Muriel Mattice, is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Albert Mattice, Newington. The groom is the son of Mr and Mrs Sandy O. McMillan, of Finch. Mr and Mrs McMillan were married at the bride's home by the Rev J. Roberts, pastor of Newington Presbyterian Church, November 11, 1931. Their attendants were Miss Dorothy Steele (Mrs Kenneth McMillan) as bridesmaid and Kenneth McMillan, Cornwall, as best man. Following their marriage, they resided at Winchester for two years, moving to Finch where they still live. Mr McMillan spent four years in the service of his country, serving in the Air Force at home and overseas. They have one son, Dalton, and two dauhters, Jean and Valerie, at home.

The occasion proved a surprise to Mr and Mrs McMillan. During the evening they were the recipients of a beautiful rocking chair, which was presented by Mrs Dalton McMillan and Mrs Rex Mattice, while Kenneth McMillan read an appropriate address.

Mr McMillan expressed his heartfelt thanks. Lunch was then served.

John A. MacRae

John A. MacRae, a former resident of Finch, died suddenly at his home at Dundas, Ont., on Thursday, November 15. He was in his 77th year.

The funeral took place at Finch Presbyterian Church Monday, November 19, with Rev Mr Bell officiating.

Left to mourn are his widow, a daughter, Verna, of Kingston; one son, Douglas, of Dundas; five sisters, Mrs W. A. MacMillan, Finch; Mrs Flora Pink, Montreal; Mrs Katie Giffin, Toronto; Mrs Maggie Stacey, Toronto; Mrs Jack Clarke, Toronto; also a twin brother, Neil MacRae, of Crysler. Also surviving are several nieces and nephews.

Pall bearers were Basil Gillies, Lindsay Hutt, Harold Cameron, Burns Hutt, Ellery MacMillan and George Rupert.

Many beautiful wreaths were received from the family, Dundas neighbours, Mr and Mrs W. A. MacMillan and family, Finch neighbours, Mr and Mrs Kenneth MacMillan and family, Kingston General Hospital, Mrs Kenneth MacRae and family, Mr and Mrs Neil MacRae and family.

Relatives and friends from Toronto, Maxville, Cornwall, Chesterville, Crysler, Montreal, Ottawa, Hamilton and Avonmore attended the funeral.

Managua, the modern capital of Nicaragua, was specially planned to withstand earth tremors and fire.

"I can't seem to find any cause for your sickness," said the doctor. "Frankly I think it's due to drinking!"

"If that's the case, I'll come back when you're sober."

House Moving Completed At New Town 2

House moving in Hydro's New Town 2 is completed for the present, with 105 houses now in the village exclusive of those erected by private contractors.

Hydro will now take its house-moving machines to Ingleside where moving operations will go on throughout the winter months.

Also under way at the town to be called Long Sault is the building of the new shopping centre. This structure, measuring some 200 by 80 feet, will be the new home for the merchants of Moulinette and Mille Roches, most of whom are changing their businesses from general stores to specialize in one type of product.

The move to New Town 2 is on schedule, as Hydro engineers had hoped to get all the houses in the Mille Roches-Moulinette area moved before the really cold weather set in.

There still remain many buildings in the two villages, some of which can not be moved and others that have been sold to Hydro. These wil be demolished in another stage of the rehabilitation work.

House moving to Ingleside will start from the Dickinson's Landing area and the dwellings will be carried up the Wales Road to the new town. Operations here will be finished some time in late spring.

There will still remain one or two buildings to be moved into New Town 2 but these will be placed after the main work in Ingleside is finished.

No completion date for the shopping centre has been set as it is not yet known how many merchants will have been accommodated.

Friend: "Shame on you! Do you think getting drunk is the way to remember your wedding anniversary?"

Man: "Who'sh trying to remember?"

Little girls to parents, re eating: "I don't want to grow up big and strong. I want to be pale and intersting."

FOLLOWS INSTINCT

What's a gal going to do when she notices her slip is showing?

She's going to pull her skirt down, even if she happens to be driving a car at the time, Mrs Violando Embricos explained in a London, Eng., court the other day.

And that, said Mrs Embricos is how she came to swerve and hit a parked car.

The judge agreed that pulling down her skirt was "an instinctive movement." Just the same, he fined her £10 for careless driving.

JUVENILE PROSPECTORS RETIRE EARLY

Dewey Blackwell, 6, and brother Wayne, 4, Miami, Fla., were "digging for gold" in an unpaved strip between the street and their home in suburban Hialeah.

Mother, Mrs C. D. Bladkwell, left them alone because it kept them occupied and happy and soon their toy shovels had produced a respectable hole about three feet deep.

Then they struck not gold but copper. In the form of a cable, Phone service was knocked out for blocks around and the boys immediately became former prospectors.

IN MEMORIAM

LISCUMB—In loving memory of a dear brother, uncle and brother-in-law, Dayton "Doc" Liscumb, who died November 24, 1949.

Time rolls on and we are reminded
Of a day our hearts were crushed,
When God took you, oh so quickly,
And we all in gloom were thrust.
In the bloom of life, Death claimed you,
In the prime of manhood days,
But we hope some day to meet you
And to be with you always.

Evelyn, Gordon and family.

DEER HIDES

There's a lot more to a deer than roasts of venison. If you get your buck this year, don't waste the hide. That is the advice of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

The hide of the deer can be used for almost anything from the manufacture of bucktail streamer flies for speckled and lake trout to moccasins, gloves, vests or jackets.

Hides may be tanned at home or commercial firms in larger cities offer such services. But if you are a do-it-yourself fan, here is the Department's recipe for tanning:

Salt the hide if it must be stored for any length of time. It should be soaked in clean water until soft. Slake five pounds of lime with 30 gallons of water. (Wood ashes can be used, too.). The hide should be soaked in this solution until the hair can be removed. This process may take eight to ten days. After the hair is scraped off, soak the hide again in the lime solution until the thin layer of skin on the hair side can be slipped off.

Then immerse the hide in one gallon of vinegar and 25 gallons of water. Stretch it. Careful smoking of the hide or hides now with green hardwoods will give the colour effect and appearance you want—also give it a permanent smoky smell to bring back memories of the day you got your buck.

BLIND MAN MAKES GAVELS

Joseph F. Clunk, managing director of the Pennsylvania Association for the Blind of Philadelphia, keeps about 2,700 pounds of tawny cedar wood behind his home in Erdenheim, out of which he has been slowly and artistically turning out beautifully grained gavels.

The task, though difficult, keeps Clunk happy enough. Now 60, he has been blind since 1918, when he awoke one morning in Cleveland to find he had lost the sight of both eyes. But he was and is determined to keep himself busy.

Quiona for Greenland

Quiona, hardy nutritive plant eaten since unrecorded times in the high Andes of South America, is being sent north as a possible new crop for Greenland's thin, stony soil.

The experimental seeding, a polar project of the United States Navy, may bring a staple food plant to an island that grows mainly lichens, mosses and bright summer-time flowers.

Thousands of miles south-westward, the upland natives of Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador still use quiona as a basic food, as familiar to them as corn is to many nationalities. Its seeds are ground into a cereal. The leaves are eaten raw, cooked as a pot herb, made into beer, soup, and poultry feed. Indians chew the stalks along with cocoa leaves to reduce hunger and fatigue on long journeys.

Providing minerals, carbohydrates and proteins, the quiona plant has been consumed since Inca times by hunters and soldiers. A thick-stalked, herbaceous shrub, it grows to a height of three to six feet, resembling lamb's quarters. It is sometimes called the pigweed of the Andes.

Quiona helps to sustain life in regions where milk and green vegetables seldom are part of the Indian diet. Raisin-speckled cakes of quiona keep for lengthy periods without spoiling. It serves as a dessert when made into a pudding with eggs and sugar.

Introduced into the United States experimentally in 1899 by the government, quiona was tested as a possible substitute for spinach, but without great success. On the high altiplani of Southern Peru and Bolivia, however, it is a major crop, growing well at altitudes up to 13,000 feet.

In rotation, fields are first planted to potatoes, then quiona, then barley—to be followed by a rest for several years before plantings begin anew. The grain ordinarily is planted from September to November. A loose soil rich in silicates, calcium, potassium and manganese is preferred, though some experts maintain that quiona will grow in almost any soil.

The seeds may germinate in about two days, but eight to 10 days are ordinarily required. The plant matures to a height of up to six feet within five or six months. Then it is cut, placed in piles and left for several days to dry in the sun. Reapers beat individual stalks on the ground to release the tiny kernels.

Quiona is believed to have originated in the vast basin of Lake Titicaca, on the Peru-Bolivian boundary, famed as the highest navigable lake in the world (altitude 12,500 feet).

The ingenious Incas drew strength from quiona in building their cities and massive monuments, authorities say. The plant was sacred to the ritualistic nation. To demonstrate their respect for quiona's nutritive elements, the Incas went to the fields on the first day of planting and ceremoniously opened the furrow with a golden digging stick.

The condor, a large South American vulture found high in the Andes, is in danger of becoming extinct.

Webs spun by black widow spiders are used for the cross-hairs of U.S. Army gunsights and other instruments.

EVERYBODY EATS-- TRY THESE!

By Helen Graham

WHEN THE HUNTER COMES HOME

HUNTERS! Don't spoil your venison when you get it home, Ontario Department of Lands and Forests experts advise. They point out that deer meat can be cooked by the same methods used for beef of a similar grade.

"Some prefer to remove the fat before cooking," they say. "Suet, pork fat or bacon may be mixed with ground venison or strips of bacon or salt pork may be placed over the outside of roasts to keep meat from becoming too dry.

"Tender cuts of meat are cooked by dry heat and the less tender portions by moist heat. While young bucks and does furnish the more tender meat, the meat from an aged animal can be made appetizing and tender if cooked correctly.

"Tomatoes, onions, spices and herbs are often added if the venison flaviur is objectionable to anyone. A tablespoon of vinegar may help destroy the 'wild' flavour.

"Tender cuts, such as rib and loin chops, round steak and leg roasts, can be pan or oven-broiled or roasted. The less tender cuts such as neck, shanks, chuck and breast, should be cooked with moist heat or ground for 'deerburgers' or meat loaf. They make particularly good mincemeat."

Since Christmas is not too far off, here's a tried recipe for venison mincemeat:

Use two pounds of lean venison from the neck, one pound of beef suet, six pounds of apples, two pounds of currants, one pound of sultana raisins, two pounds of raisins, half pound citron, six cups of brown sugar, two teaspoons nutmeg, one tablespoon allspice, one tablespoon cinnamon, one teaspoon ginger, one tablespoon salt, two oranges, eight cups cider or grape juice.

Bake the venison in the oven for 40 minutes, using moderate heat—about 350 degrees—then cool and chop. Mix with chopped suet, pared, cored and chopped apples, currants, raisins and citron. Add sugar, spices, juice of two oranges, finely chopped rind of one orange and the cider or grape juice. Simmer for 30 minutes.

Pack hot into jars, seal and process—60 minutes for a pint jar and 70 minutes for a quart jar at 15 pounds pressure, or three hours in a boiling water bath. The quantity shown makes enough for ten to 12 nine-inch pies.

For roast venison—the loin or round—the experts suggest that it be sprinkled with salt and pepper over all sides of the meat. Place on a ack in an uncovered shallow pan and put in a pre-heated, slow oven at 300 to 325 degrees. Do not add water and do not cover. (That is most important, they say.) Allow 20 to 25 minutes to the pound.

CHIMNEY CROWN MAY SOLVE DRAFT PROBLEM

Buying a new hat isn't ordinarily thought of as a way to save money, put it can do that if you put it on your chimney instead of your head.

A chimney hat—more properly called a chimney crown—is a short metal stack that fits on top of the masonry. It solves the problem of down draft regardless of wind direction or other weather conditions. A good draft results in better performance from the heating equipment, and that lowers fuel consumption.

A chimney crown keeps rain and snow from entering the chimney. A dry chimney means a better draft, too.

To test the draft of a home chimney, this test is recommended by some engineers.

Place a wad of newspaper in the vent opening at the base of the chimney and ignite it. The draft is strong enough if every particle of burning paper is carried up the flue. If bits of paper go up part way, then drop down, there might be loose bricks or other openings in the chimney. This indicates that the chimney should be prepared.

KITE-FLYING RULES

Are the children kite-flying enthusiasts. O. L. Hogsett, University of Illinois safety expert, has a few suggestions for making sure the fun is not turned into tragedy.

He said to emphasize to your children the need for keeping the kite string dry. A wet string is a good electrical conductor.

If the string does become entangled in power lines, leave it there, don't try to disentangle it.

Encourage children to fly their kites in fields where there are no stones, stumps, ditches or other obstacles for them to trip over.

In English law children under seven are incapable of committing any crime.

C. J. Bigelow, CPR Engineer Completes Last Run

Canadian Pacific Railway engineer C. J. Bigelow, of Smiths Falls, braked the Toronto-Montreal passenger train No. 35 to a stop in Smiths Falls to end 44 years and five months of service with the CPR.

Mr Bigelow's wife, two sons, Jack and Jim, made the trip with him from Montreal, while a brother, H. G. Bigelow, a well known Chesterville druggist, and his wife boarded the train at Chesterville to go to Smiths Falls.

Mr Bigelow entered service with the CPR July 6, 1912, in Smiths Falls as a fireman. A year prior to that he worked with the Grand Trunk Railway from Brockville to Montreal.

Mr Bigelow has been an engineer for 16 years and has handled Montreal-Smiths Falls passenger trains Nos. 21, 22, 35 and 36 for the past six years.

Also on hand to meet him at the Station Wednesday last were CPR superintendent A. W. Harris and locomotive foreman Jack Smallshaw, as well as a host of fellow railroaders.

Messages of congratulation were also received from CPR officials. Mr Bigelow, who just plans to relax and enjoy his retirement, married the former Ernestine F. Corke of Smiths Falls in Smiths Falls September 19, 1915. They have three sons and 10 grandchildren.

Robert Smith Acclaimed Reeve of Finch

Robert Smith, a long-time member of council for Finch Village, was elected reeve of Finch by acclamation on Saturday.

H. H. Ouderkirk, who has been reeve for the past 12 years and who is completing a term as the warden of the United Counties, failed to qualify at the nine p.m. deadline.

Also elected by acclamation were four councillors and a Hydro commissioner. They were Merritt Campbell, Lynden Hough, Ellery Ouderkirk and Gilbert Henderson.

W. C. Johnston was unopposed at the nomination meeting last Friday in his bid for the Hydro Commission post.

Williamsburg W.M.S. Plans Annual Meeting

The W.M.S. of Williamsburg United Church met at the home of Mrs Hilda McMillan. The president, Mrs Wilbur Garlough, presided. The roll call showed 23 members and two visitors present.

A short item was read by the citizenship secretary and members were asked to think of an answer to a question for the next meeting.

Collectors of the dime cards were appointed.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs Strader McIntosh. As this will be the annual meeting, there will be an election of officers. Mrs Wilbur Garlough will lead the Christmas worship at that meeting.

Mrs Hutchins and Mrs Deeks conducted the November worship service. This was followed by Mrs Lyle Hess with the study period. A life membership certificate and pin were presented to Miss Catherine Wilson in memory of the late Mrs E. H. Thompson, a gift from Mrs Thompson's family.
