Carman House Museum Committee is Formed

A small but enthusiastic group of interested citizens met at the Carman House a week ago Tuesday to form a committee to work in conjunction with the village council in the operation and future planning for the Carman House. As formed, the group will make recommendations to the council regarding the various phases of operation, upkeep and restoration

The committee will be composed of 8 members seven interested people plus one member representing village council Those who agreed to serve for the first year are Mesdames C McGahey, E Norton, B Jackson (secretary), S Kirkby and Messrs K Fisher, M Saver and R Martin, chairman Mr J Saver will represent council on the committee

It was felt painting of the downstairs of the Carman House should be started after Christmas so as to allow any village groups who wished to hold their Christmas party there.

The house was already used for this purpose once when the Iroquois Women's Institute held their annual Christmas party there in Centennial Year.

Another Remembrance Day...or is it?

On Sunday afternoon, November 8th, the annual Remembrance Day 'Memorial Service' for the community of Iroquois will be held in the Civic Centre Auditorium, beginning at 2:45 p m

The question can be asked, "Is this 'just another' Remembrance Day observance?" And it can be put this way, because for those who are sensitive to the word 'sacrifice' and rememl ber 'the many' whose memorials are inscribed with this word, the human freedoms they safeguarded for 'other generations' are so integral to civilization. that to give only a 'nodding acquaintance' to the Day in which both the persons and the liberties they won are remembered, is to do grave injustice to self, loved one, neighbour, country, and the whole family of mankind

Events of 'our generation', world-wide in their implications concerning such civilized principles as law and order, justice, human rights, economic parity and freedom of assembly. . . events which have not left our nation 'untouched', have called forth a new sensitivity to the phrase 'what others have done for us', and a new awareness of the responsibility the family of man has to repair and to maintain the foundation stones upon which civilization was built

No ! THIS IS NOT 'just another ' REMEMBRANCE DAY OBSERVANCE !

CANADA COMPARED TO ALGERIA

By Bill Smiley

In the past few weeks, Canada has gone through an emotional catharsis which may yet, despite the bitter medicine which brought it about, turn a psychotic nation into a strong and healthy one.

Our emotions have run the gamut of shock, despair and shame to a deep anger and determination. There is something of the feeling of 1939 in the air, a feeling that wild beasts, when they are infected by a type of rabies, must be destroyed.

Canadians, at all levels, have realized that it is rather silly to preach either Christian brotherhood, or democracy, to a mad dog.

What we are going through is something that never has happened in this nation before. There have been many crises in the growth of our nation. We had our Plains of Abraham and our War of 1812. But these were fought by soldiers.

We had our rebellions in Upper and Lower Canada. Both served a purpose, but they were comic opera, compared to what's happening today. If I'm not mistaken, the F.L.Q. has murdered more men than were killed in William Lyon Mackenzie's attack on Toronto in 1837.

We had the Riel Rebellion, a tragic farce for a tragic people, led by a tragic hero without a real hope of knocking over the establishment.

But none of them came close to the senseless violence, the vicious, amoral destructiveness that we have experienced in this autumn of 1970.

The comparison that comes closest, perhaps, is that deadly period in Algeria a few years ago, when the French withdrew. French Algerians and Arab Algerians killed each other with a callous impersonality that shocked the civilized world.

That was not war. It was assassination. People were blown up at lunch in a restaurant, or attending the theatre. Others were shot down in the streets, for no reason except that they were on the other side. Pray that this never happens in Canada. But it could, unless the nation unites to smother the blaze and deal firmly and finally with those who would throw oil on it.

I don't want to sound like a Cassandra with hindsight. I don't think it can happen in Canada. But it will take courage, and calm, to prevent it.

How did it happen? It is obvious that the government, and certain police forces, were caught with their pants down. They were warned by the press and by the actions of the F.L.Q. itself, that this was more than "a little trouble in Quebec".

They must have known that this was a body of warped men, and women, dedicated to the destruction of Canada. There was ample evidence of the violence perpetrated by similar groups of fanatics around the world. It demanded swift and drastic measures. Where were they?

Then, when the horse is gone, the barn door is locked. The War Emergencies Act is imposed. While a majority of Canadians, in my opinion, would support the government on this point, in the minds of many it has raised a fear, an uneasiness that is not dispelled by government platitudes.

This move was like declaring open season on anybody the police might suspect, or even dislike. Friends of mine who have lived in police states in Europe are particularly dismayed by it.

Indicent. Three police cruisers drew up at the home of a widow with three teenage kids, on the Saturday morning the Act was imposed. Without a warrant, they searched the house for drugs, even examining all her plants to see whether she was

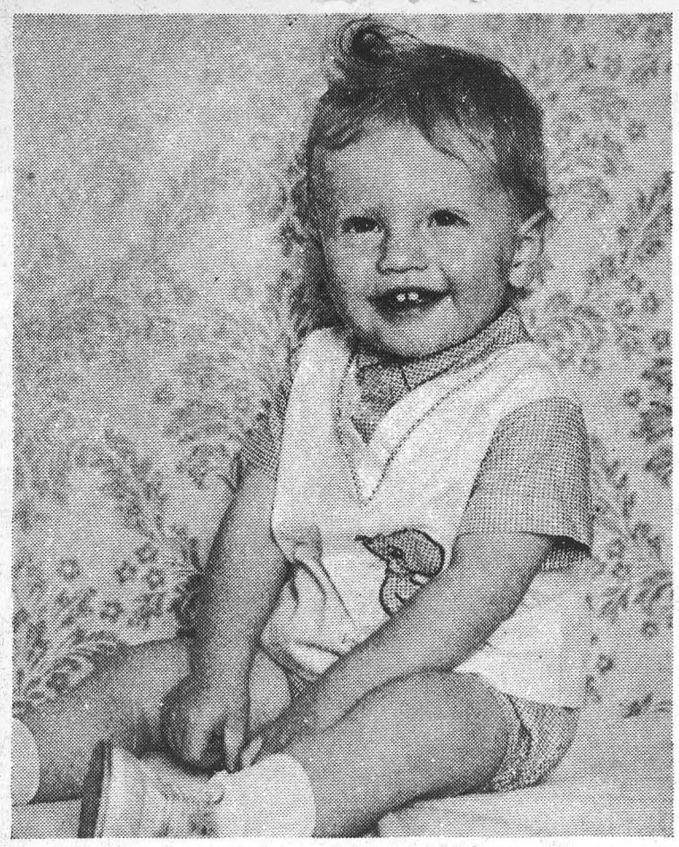
TWO OF A KIND



This laddie with the winning smile is Ian. He will soon be two. He is a happy, cheerful boy who plays contentedly by himself and gets on well with other children. He loves attention, but does not demand it.

Ian was born prematurely, but has come on well and is in good health. He is alert and active and keeps himself busy exploring. He loves the outdoors. He is a bit slow in talking, but since he seems to have made up for his prematurity in other areas, he is expected to catch up in language development, too.

Ian's background is Austrian, Yugoslavian and Scottish. He is medium-size for his age, with blue eyes, reddish-blonde hair and fair skin.

This appealing child needs parents who will not push him or set too high expectations for him, but will enjoy him for his sunny personality. To inquire about adopting Ian please write to Today's Child, Department of Social and Family Services, Parliament Buildings, Toronto 182. For general adoption information ask your Children's Aid Society.

Now there are two "snaggletooths" in the family. What fun Jerry had trying to duplicate his own toothless grin!

I smiled, remembering his first "jack-o'-lantern" and how he had howled with fright at the eerie smile of the funny-faced vegetable. Jim and I had to work hard to convince him that "jack-o'-lanterns" were fun. Now, just a few years later, the "jack-o'-pumpkin" is one of his special delights.

How easy it is to shape the attitudes of a little child. It seems to Jim and me that Jerry is like a sponge, soaking up thoughts and ideas from the things we do and say. His points of view reflect our own.

That's why we know how important it is for all of us to go to church every Sunday. It was there we learned the love for God that enriches our every day. We want this dominion and joy to become a part of Jerry's life, too.

Poppies for Remembrance

This November it will be 49 years since the custom of wearing a poppy replica for Remembrance was inaugurated in Canada From a modest beginning in 1921 the custom has become general throughout the country, and this year - with careful preparation and planning by Legion Branches everywhere - millions of Canadians will be wearing the familiar symbol

Remembrance and the poppy are irrevocably bound together because the Memory of Canada's fallen can best be honoured by ensuring that none of their comrades or their dependants still living is allowed to suffer want and distress Poppy Day has become the one annual appeal which the Legion makes to the public to provide funds for the relief War Veterans and their families.

There are three distinct phases to the observance of Remembrance through the Poppy. First there is the Act of Remembrance itself, symbolized by wearing the emblem derived from the blood-red poppies which grew in such profusion on the graves of Canada's dead in Flanders The wearing of the Poppy and the display of wreaths on Memorials or in windows are tributes to those who paid the supreme sacrifice in all the wars in which this country has been engaged

Second there is the way in which the money raised by the Poppy Campaign is spent It is a firm rule that the proceeds derived from the Poppy Campaign Must be spent on the Relief of distress among Ex Service men and their dependants

Third, there is the employment given to disabled Veterans who make the Poppies under the supervision of the Department of Veterans Affairs, since the inception of the Poppy Campaign on a national scale the Legion has had a contract with the Department of Veterans Affairs for the distribution of "Vetcraft" Poppies and wreaths, thus ensuring a livelihood for the men employed in these shops.

The national distribution is carried out through the Dominion and Provincial commands of the Legion and its nearly 2000 Branches which are charged with the duty of carrying the message of the Poppy to all sections, classes and communities throughout the country

With this threefold significance, each item in itself being important and extremely worthwhile, Poppy Day again makes its appeal to the people of Canada. Its success, however, depends not only on the generosity of the local citizens but also on the competance and vigour with which it is organized and conducted by Legion Branches

In helping to achieve this great objective, the thousands of volunteers who lend a hand in Poppy Campaign are fulfilling two sacred duties required of them by the constitution of the Legion - Remembrance of the dead and practical assistance to the living

So at this time I would like to call on all Legion Members and other organizations as well as the citizens of Iroquois and surrounding Communities to assist me and my committee in making this years Poppy Campaign the success that it has been in years past if not more successful Your assistance in the past has been greatly appreciated by myself as well as the rest of the Members.

This year we declare the week of November 1st to November 8th as Remembrance week as well as Poppy Week

Starting on Thursday November 5th until Saturday November 7th members of the Ladies Auxiliary will be making a door to door canvass with the various Poppies that we have for sale Please assist them as much as you can in this worthwhile cause

Our Remembrance Day service will be held on Sunday November 8th at the Civic Centre at approximately 2:45 in the afternoon.

We of the Iroquois Branch 370 extend a cordial invitation to all citizens to attend in this Day of Remembrance to honour those of our fallen Comrades who paid the supreme sacrifice for their love of their country

Hallowe'en Relatively Quiet This Year

Perhaps due in part to a combination of circumstance but Hallowe'en was celebrated in a rather quiet way in Iroquois over the weekend certainly the quietest in many years

With members of the Ontario Provincial Police on duty as well as Auxiliary Police personnel, and with it being made known that no nonsense would be put up with, there were few incidents of damage within the village proper.

A few nights prior to Hallowe'en some damage was done but the people responsible were caught and made to repair the damage.

In Matilda Township the event went off much as usual but there too, it was reported that incidents weren't as serious as in the past few years

F. M. Cass--the Legislature
Does the quiet mean an early election?

The work of the Members during the Third Session of Ontario's 28th Parliament is rapidly nearing an end as during the past week spending estimates of all Departments for the current fiscal year were completed This was undoubtedly due almost entirely to the new House rules which, with approval of all parties, has placed a reasonable limit upon the number of hours of debate to be allowed the Committee on Supply for consideration of estimates.

Many Members are now participating in the annual budget debate. The most intriguing of these budget speeches was that delivered from time to time just like a serial story, by the Member for High Park on his views about the ramifications in Ontario of the Cosa Nostra or Mafia From his remarks, which appeared to be documented, it appears that more stringent anti-crime laws and enforcement a few years ago might have had a most beneficial result

The House spent one full day in debate on the Ontario proposals for tax reform in Canada This gave the opposition parties full opportunity, in the case of the Liberal opposition to attack the Robarts proposals and support the Benson ones, and in the case of the N D P to attack each proposal equally. A great deal of information was placed before the Members during this debate from which the only unprejudiced conclusion to be drawn would appear to be that everyone believes tax reform is essential but no two taxing authorities or political parties can agree either in principle or on procedure as to how this reform can or should be accomplished.

At the end of last week's sittings there remained only on the Order Paper two supply concurrence debates, a few government bills in various stages of progress and a scattering of Members wishing to speak in the budget debate. Hence the end of the present Session can be seen early in November. And, of course, all Member and their respective party organizations and workers are readying for the anticipated general election next year. The recently elected leader of the Ontario N.D.P. has sketched an ambitious schedule to enable him and his Party's program to become known throughout the Province while the Liberals are no less active. The quiet prevailing in Conservative circles, however, would seem to preclude any early provincial election here in Ontario

The hour of remembrance

By: Allan Rogers

With countless others, I want to set aside a time of Remembrance during this next week, especially to pay tribute to those who have paid the great price in the cause of freedom and peace

Perhaps the greatest respect or praise we can offer to the unnumbered who have paid the supreme sacrifice is the time of silence that we shall keep together, silence in which we catch a glimpse of Eternity, the deep convictions of our faith; and a sense of holiness for the quest for love, and peace, and brotherhood.

I remember those who mourn mothers, sweethearts, families whose lives are shaped so differently because they have entered into great sorrow. Some were unable to accept their bereavement, while others seem to have translated their grief into enrichment of their personal lives

I remember those who carry the visible marks of war in their daily life, and the patience and loving care that so many have offered, and will continue to offer in hospitals and other places of mercy

It pleases me to number among my best friends some who have returned to civilian life, marked by the hand of war but somehow refined through its adversity. They are people who live with respect and mutual recognition of their fellow men. These are the citizens of stature who are found giving life and meaning and hope to every community

With acute sadness I recall there are others too, who were able to take the great risk of death itself, but who are unable to accept the test of life, and the responsibility that it demands of every man For these especially we bow our heads in prayer, and we remember with many the price of empty victory.

Finally, I would remember the lovely little ones who know relatively nothing about the violence and hatred and murder that is acted out in war. May they too be our serious Remembrance on Sunday afternoon at 2:30 in the Iroquois Civic Centre.

Each year, at the time of Remembrance either we pass or fail our pledge of loyalty to the brave, to our true selves, and to our personal endorsement of peace and brotherhood.

Tea at St. John's

Lands and Forests Report

Horses and Trees

Have you ever longed to visit a place where you could walk among the pine and maple and hear nothing but the breeze in the trees, choirs of songbirds and where you could have a few moments of peace.

On October 3rd, 1970, sixty-four members of various horse riding associations did just that The plac was Larose Forest, 26,000 acres of forest approximatel 30 miles east of Ottawa

The object of the trip was to acquaint the riders and mounts with a real trail ride (even the roads were hard to find) and too, at the same time raise funds for the Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario

Both goals were well achieved

The trail was marked out prior to the ride with the bulk of it being confined to the back roads in order to give the riders the true feeling of roughing it There were streams to cross, hills to climb. areas of heavy brush where it was advisable to walk the horses and even a rough bridge over a beaver pond. However, these tough spots were well interspersed with areas of good riding. Also to insure that the riders and mounts were in condition to continue, there was a veterinarian and / or an experienced rider at the 10, 20, 30 and 40 mile points to assist in removing the saddlesores

At the same time as the riders were obtaining their blisters and the horses their sore feet, they were helping the Children's Hospital The riders were sponsored by various people and groups at so much a mile similar to a "Miles for Millions" walk At each checkpoint, a card was marked by the official, the horses and riders took a break, were checked and then mounted up again and rode off into the autumn colours

To give you an idea of the endurance of these people, 16 persons finished out of 64 starters with 26 passing the 20 mile point. Also, all riders were reported in fair to good condition at the end of the day after raising $2,000 00 for the Children's Hospital and enjoying a day with nature

Can You Help?

By: Bruce Turner
Wildlife Management Officer

Deer hunters in the area have turned their thoughts to that big buck they hope to bag between November 2 and November 5 in the Kemptville District.

All types of reports have been coming into the District Office regarding the deer situation. Many think that there are no deer while others believe there are a few and some say more than ever It all depends, however, on where you have been looking.

In view of the large number of known deer killed by dogs during last winter- which, no doubt, will have a serious effect on this year's fawn crop - the Department believes that there will be a decrease in hunter success this fall

We are now in the process of compiling the past six years' records These records contain the number of deer killed, their age, and sex and are compiled in order to ascertain the reproduction, sex ratio and age classes trends in the deer herds

At the present time we are unable to determine the exact reason for the decline of the herd, but we do hope that this year's data will provide us with an answer to this problem

The Department has received numerous recommendations in order to remedy the decline - no season for 5 years, no dogs, bucks only, resident hunters only, a restricted number of hunters per area, shotguns only, rifles only, etc. Some of these suggestions would, no doubt, have a bearing on the deer herd. However, would it stop the out-of-season kill by poachers, dogs, cars and trains or would more deer be killed by these means?

At this time, we are appealing to everyone- the hunters, newspapers, TV and radio stations to assist the Department in the collection of information on the deer hunt in the Kemptville District. The following information is required Where did you hunt? How many days did you hunt? Sex and age of the deer you killed? The age can be determined only from the amount of wear on the teeth from the lower jaw If each and every hunter in the Kemptville District were to supply the nearest conservation officer with the above information and the lower jaw, we here at the Department would hope to gain more insight into the decline problem. By implementing the proper legislation, we would be able to assist the herd and in a few short years, hopefully, return to the highly successful deer hunts of the past.

Won't you help?

R M. Christie
District Forester

United Nations After 25 Years

GORDON BLAIR M.P.
GRENVILLE-CARLETON

Room 532c, Centre Block Parliament Buildings, Ottawa, Ontario, 992-0511

As a fulltime Delegate I have returned to the United Nations General Assembly after a long absence. I attended the first meeting in London in 1945-46 as a very junior member of the Department of External Affairs and also a large part of the 1952 Assembly in Paris. This year the United Nation celebrates its 25th anniversary; it is looking back on its accomplishments and ahead to its future . I have had a chance to observe some changes made over the span of years.

The United Nations was founded in the high hope that countries which had united in War would cooperate in Peace The Charter gave a special role to the great powers in the belief that they would become the guardians of international peace and tranquility. These hopes were dashed at the start The Cold War and the continuing polarization between East and West is a matter of common Knowledge We have not had peace A speaker from Singapore estimated that there had been more than 80 wars since World War II, but at the same time we have averted major conflicts - an achievement not to be forgotten when we recall the 25th Anniversary of the founding of the League of Nations occurred just as World War II was ending

The achievements of the United Nations have been great in other fields, many of which were only dimly appreciated when the Charter was written in 1945. Through the United Nations more than 70 countries have been brought from the status of colonialism to independence. The organization has made an immense contribution to economic, social, health, agriculture and many other practical improvements in the condition of the peoples of the world. It has also provided a meeting ground for all countries and more important a forum through which the public opinion of the world can be expressed The weight of this opinion has great moral force and undoubtedly has restrained countries from greater violence and the risk of major conflict.

I have two personal observations In the previous Assemblies I attended, the abuse and invective hurled by the Soviet bloc against Western countries almost had to be heard to be believed. There was intense hostility and there was no personal contact between the representatives of East and West. In those days the Eastern delegates used to be literally platooned out of the meetings and were not seen until the next day. Obvious differences still exist, but there is much cooperation and consultation In fact, I have found that smaller countries fear that there is too much collusion between the U S A and the U.S S R in enforcing their views on particular matters. Altogether, the disappearance of the attitude of icy hostility which prevailed through the Cold War is a hopeful sign

Canada's reputation at the United Nations remains very high It is particularly true in dealings with the newer countries of Africa and Asia No one fears us and over the years we have been helpful to other countries and to the United Nations in many ways There was a very striking demonstration of Canada's importance a week ago The United Nations wished to reaffirm and restate its principles for the 25th Anniversary but a tremendous wrangle developed about the wording of the document to the extent that on the eve of the ceremony it appeared that it could not be completed. At this crucial stage our people in External Affairs re-wrote the contentious passages, spoke to all the contending countries and piloted the new draft successfully through a special five hour evening session of the General Assembly surely one of the most dramatic meetings I have ever attended. Although hardly noted at home, there was not a country that did not compliment Canada on its contribution.

Perhaps we should recognize the United Nations for what it is It is a young organization, It has endured many disappointments, It has achieved great things, it holds out hope for a better future for all of us

Ontario.
Is there any place you'd rather be?

Ontarians are the kind of people who wouldn't be here if there was any place better. We are people who came from a hundred lands and stayed to build. People with backbone and brawn and a hunger to succeed. Men and women who've created a standard of living in decades that other lands worked centuries to build. If we have a flaw it's our chronic modesty. Ontarians may be proud to be Ontarians and Canadians . . . they just seldom tell anyone. From an economic point of view that's wrong. The more people we have boosting Ontario and Canada the better it is. And we've got a lot to boost with. In the fight against pollution for example, Ontario has become a world leader. Everyone talks about pollution, we do something. More than a billion dollars has been invested to date to build water supply and sewage systems in dozens of communities throughout the province. We've got laws to prosecute industries that pollute the air and water; loans and grants to help industries that want to do something to stop it. We need a vigorous economy of course, to support these important programs. And, that's where you come in. Though our productivity has doubled in ten years and our incomes in twelve, Ontarians don't sit on their successes. There's a demanding decade ahead full of challenges and opportunities to make the quality of our lives better yet. To meet these challenges we've got to believe in ourselves. Which, when you think about it, isn't such a bad idea.

Everytime you boost Ontario . . . Ontario and Canada get a little stronger.
Government of Ontario John Robarts, Prime Minister.
