Local Businessman on 40,000 Mile Trip

George E. Beavers, President of Beavers Dental Products Limited. has just completer a visit to New Zealand, Australia, Japan, Philipines, Singapore, Malaysia and Hong Kong, contacting customers as well as leading dentists and dental universities in these areas for their made-in-Morrisburg JET Carbide Dental Burs. Using some ten different air lines, his journey took only five weeks which meant an average of 8,000 miles a week travel besides working every day.

Highlight of the trip was his attendance at the Japan Dental Exhibition, where over 10,000 dentists were registered and the firm's Canadian products were well received and prominently displayed by their Japanese distributors, Messrs Shofu Dental Manufacturing Company, of Kyoto along with thousands of other items of equipment and supplies used by dentists and chiefly made in Japan. It is a tribute to the manufacturing efficiency, high quality standards and outstanding performance values of the local factory that a professional precision product of the nature of carbide dental burs made in Canada can successfully compete with the best in the world's offerings in some 74 countries. In Japan, Mr. Beavers was joined by Mr. J. Hutchison Cottrell of London, England, president of their British JET sales distributors.

Mr. Beavers had an opportunity to travel on the newly completed Tokyo-Kyoto electric train which runs between Tokyo and Osaka at an average speed of 120 miles per hour and carrying some 1,000 passengers and electronically controlled throughout. Its comfort was amazingly good and a contrast to train travel in other areas of the world which in recent years has not kept pace with competition from aeroplane and auto transportation facilities.

In Australia, Mr. Beavers was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Colin Commie who has visited the local Morrisburg factory in July of this year. In Melbourne he spent an evening with Rev. and Mrs. Humphrey and their family, who are the parents of Mrs. Edgar Funke. In New Zealand, Mr .Leo Gross, manager of Dominion Dental is a friend of Dr. John Hardwick, formerly of Morrisburg. In the Philippines, the outstanding feature was his visit to four of the six dental universities with Dr. Camilo Aldecoa, whose father established the first dental school there. The East Asia University is almost exclusively taught by women and female dental students outnumber males by a wide margin.

Mr. Beavers was invited to spend a day with the dentists of Clark USA Air Force base where Dr. Miles Markley of Denver, Col., was giving lectures and demonstrations on cavity restorations using the air turbine dentistry. Eastern Dental of Singapore is managed by Madame Goon Rhye Choi, a competent and progressive Chinese woman, whose firm had featured the local products at the recent Asian Dental Conference. Malaysia uses a number of women assistants for dental work in clinics and Mr. Beavers visited their headquarters in the company of Dr. Hasson B. Mohamed of Kuala Lumpur. The last stop was Hong Kong where the local sales representative is Mr. S. Franken, a native of Holland, a[illegible] who for many years was in the dental business of Djakarta in Indonesia.

Mr. Beavers visit was just a few days in advance of the itinerary of President Lyndon Johnson of USA to most of these areas, where the elaborate preparations for his stay were quite evident.

Canadians generally are held in good esteem by the peoples of these countries, according to Mr. Beavers. With the obvious complementary economies of countries like Japan and Canada — the former having many millions of highly-skilled, industrious, well-educated peoples and few natural resources or land — and Canada possessing huge areas of land with surpluses of food and natural resource products, much of which awaits development by needed people — there seems opportunities for expansion of our general trading patterns in future for those who will aggressively cultivate these potentials.

Mr. Beavers also noted great interest in the East for Canada's World's Fair (Expo 67) in Montreal next year. The Japanese are already preparing for the next such world's fair, to be held in Osaka in 1970. It is being called Expo 70. Canada was the first country to officially sign up for participation in this coming world event.

Provincial Police Weekly Report

The body of George Frederick Babcock, who disappeared September 28th was found on Sunday, October 30th, 1966, on the farm of a neighbour approximately 1 mile east of the Babcock residence in Williamsburg Township. Mr. Babcock, 85 had been out walking and failed to return home. At that time a search party made up of approximately 40 O.P.P. officers and 100 men from the Williamsburg area combed the area for two days. The O.P.P. Aircraft and dog were also used. An autopsy ruled out the possibility of foul play and attributed death to natural causes.

Hallowe'en pranksters were out in force again this year, and each year they seem to be getting older. A few twenty year old teen-agers have been seen trotting about in the wee hours. The things they seem to get the most kicks from also create some hardships and in most cases are quite costly to a lot of people. It seems a pity that this wasted time cannot be put to more constructive use and leave Hallowe'en to the wee folk. A fire about two miles west of Morrisburg destroyed a huge stack of hay and took the lives of 14 horses. It could have just as easily taken a human life. Would that leave a person with a clear conscience?

The month of October has had the highest rate of injury accidents since this report began to appear.

Officers answered 20 calls which included illegal hunting and three fires which are presently being investigated.

No criminal cases were heard in the courts this week; 43 traffic convictions were registered.

These books are designed to supplement the existing stock of reference information at the library, to satisfy the needs of students and the general public.

Ralph Hurley Back To Coach Combines

Manager of the Morrisburg Combines, Bill Dillabough, informed The Leader on Wednesday that he had signed Ralph Hurley of Brockville, to coach the Combines again this year. Until this week there had been grave doubts that Hurley would return to that position.

Both coach and manager feel that this year's edition of the Combines is stronger than last year's aggregation, and they are hoping to show well against the National team when they meet in the Community Centre on November 13th.

Of the thirty-five players aspiring to make the team, at tryouts held during the past two weeks, 18 have been cut to date, and 14 have signed cards. Goalie Don Grant was one of the first to sign, and 2nd goalie is Gerry Devaney, who played last year with the Maxville Highlanders. Big Doug Casselman, Al Cameron, Bert Morrow, Arnie Lawlor, Mel Tomalty, Rowdy Gillard, Pat Brophy and Little Doug. Casselman, all of whom played last year have signed.

New members are Derek Holmes, who was picked up during playoffs last spring; Russ Harrington, who played last year for Howard Smith and several years with the Junior Canadiens; Rick Rushford, formerly with Cornwall and the EPHL Kingston Frontenacs and Arlie Parker of St. Lawrence University, who has played with the New Jersey Devils, of the Eastern League.

Satisfactory terms are yet to be arranged with several of last year's stars, among them Ed. St. Louis, Gord McMillan and Jim Forrest.

Two Get Life Terms In Teacher's Death

Two men who admitted the non-capital murder of former Morrisburg High School teacher Francis Desjarlais on July 16th each were sentenced to mandatory life terms by Mr. Justice W. D. Parker in Toronto on Monday.

Karl H. Frankl, 23, and John Collins, 33, sat impassively in the dock as Detective Sergeant David Saunders testified that the body of Mr. Desjarlais, 42 was found, covered with blood, on the floor of his hotel room on July 17.

The teacher had been on his way home to Windsor after teaching at Hay River, N.W.T. Sgt. Saunders said Desjarlais was discovered with his throat cut and his skull fractured after a hotel clerk had tried to reach him to tell him it was time to check out.

Frankl and Collins originally were charged with capital murder, but pleaded guilty to non-capital murder in a hearing lasting less than an hour.

Sgt. Saunders, called by Crown counsel James Crossland, testified that on July 16 a roomer in the Walsingham Hotel heard glass breaking and male voices.

He said Frankl and Collins later visited friends and said they had just killed a man. The investigation extended to Trenton where Frankl mentioned in a hotel that "me and another guy killed a guy and had to get out of Toronto", Sgt. Saunders testified.

On August 23, Frankl was arrested in the beverage room of the Bay House and Frankl then admitted being involved in Desjarlais' murder. Collins was arrested in Sault Ste Marie on August 24, and made a statement admitting his part in Desjarlais' death, the detective continued.

Persons sentenced to life imprisonment are usually eligible for parole after serving seven years.

SCHOOL REPRESENTATIVES VISIT SITE OF EXPO 67

Three representatives from SDD HS at Iroquois and three from MHS at Morrisburg were included in a group of senior students and teachers from architectural drafting and related courses, who were taken on a tour of the Montreal site of Expo '67 recently.

Grade twelve students Otto Bucking, John McCann, and their teacher Lionel Chartrand of Iroquois joined seventeen others from six Eastern Ontario schools as guests of Sorenson, Thompson, Laframboise ,and Mallette, architect and engineers of Cornwall and Kingston and staff.

David Mason, Jack Notman, and their teacher Ross Whyte represented Morrisburg.

Expo Commissioner-General Pierre Dupuis personally welcomed the group when the asignesd guide was delayed and conducted the pre-tour briefing in the administration pavillion auditorium. Mr. Dupuis provided a delightful introduction to Expo, spicing his remarks with humourous anecdotes and sidelights related to the gigantic undertaking.

He assured his listeners that his computer told him the great fair will definitely open as scheduled next April and that it 'hasn't been wrong yet.'

A three-hour tour of the site followed, during which students, educators and technical specialists examined at close range the many fine examples of architecture, engineering and construction techniques.

Guests on the tour were equipped with hard hats by courtesy of Doug Bremner Contractors, builders of a number of projects at Expo.

The host firm, Sorenson, Thompson, Laframboise, and Mallette designed the million and a half dollar additions to South Dundas District High School, which are presently under construction.

Weekly Report

WOODLOT MANAGEMENT PRACTICES

by: E.L. Kelly, R.P.F.,

Farm Forester

With the winter operating season approaching, Department Foresters are busy assisting woodlot owners with their timber operating plans.

Following an initia inspection of the bush with the owner a marking and voume estimating job is frequently recommended, and this is carried out by Department staff at no cost to the landowner.

Considering the landowners obectives and needs as well as economic maturity, spacing and quality of the trees, the Forester marks the trees to be cut. The diameter, merchantable height and cull factor are recorded and, when compiled, this will provide the owner with an estimation of the volumes of products which will result from the cutting operation. He can then approach a number of timber buyers, asking them to inspect the proposed cut and decide on a price per cord or thousand board feet.

A selective harvesting operation, where recommended, will help the farmer meet his present financial needs and still provide for future timber crops.

TIMBER NOTES

Congratulations to Elaine Seguin and Donald Conklin, members of the Grenville County 4-H Forestry Club, for winning the 4-H inter-Club Competitions at Guelph.

Commendations are also due to the Prescott Rotary Club, who sponsored this club, an dto Mr. John Robinson, and Mr. Alf Campbell, who were the Club leader and Zone Forester respectively. This year marks the third win for Grenville County 4-H Forestry Club in the provincial competitions since 1960.

LIVESTOCK AND DRIVING

Most drivers brake, of course, when they come upon cattle, other livestock or deer in their path. In a night-time situation, drivers should also dim their headlights and sound their horn. Bright lights often blind animals and cause them to freeze on the spot.

A day to remember

Another Remembrance Day is in the offing. As I write, two things evoke the particular mood that day always holds for me, or rather the combination of moods.

Outside, it's a gloomy fall day. The lowering cloud weeps a desolate drizzle. A handful of oak leaves cling to the stark branches and no bird sings. A typical Remembrance Day atmosphere.

But on my desk is a letter from an old friend, and the warmth, courage and indomitable spirit contained in it defy the feel of death and sadness outside.

His name is Alexander Forbes, Cannington, Ontario. We've never met, but have corresponded. We are both lovers of the printed word and about once a year, he writes a long letter, filled with reminiscences, wit and goodwill. His letters always give me a lift.

He has been in poor health in recent years, like so many of his old comrades. But this has not dimmed his spirit. His writing becomes increasingly difficult to read. Not because of infirmity, but because he is going blind.

Cataracts are forming on his eyes, and he will enter St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, after New Year's, for an operation. Does he complain? Not on your life. He can even joke about it.

The reason he wrote is that he had promised to send me a book, and wanted to get it off before his sight failed completely. It is based on a Yank's experience in World War I, and typically, he adds, "I believe it to be authentic and not a lot of Yankee bull . . . when you have read it, you might lend it to some old sweat at the Legion Hall, particularly if he served in the PBI." Short for Poor Bloody Infantry.

Each year, my mood on Remembrance Day is a mixture of sadness and admiration.

There's reason for the sadness. Twenty years ago, Remembrance Day was a vital and colorful affair. World War II was an immediate memory. The Legion Parade was striking. The World War I vets were barely middle-aged and their ranks were swelled by the youthful, swinging veterans of the second war, young, fit and full of beans.

But the grief was real. There were brothers, uncles, sons and fathers missing from the files of Legionnaires. And when the Last Post sounded, and the bell tolled in the hush, the tears ran free, and there was a communal lump in the throat.

Time passed. Grief eased. Things changed. A whole new generation grew up, to which even World War II was just something in the history books. The veterans of that war are middle-aged now and every year the ranks of old sweats of the first great war grow thinner.

There is something almost perfunctory about the occasion now. The veterans remember, and the women who lost their men remember. But it doesn't mean much to the kids, and for many others, it's just a day to go hunting, or put on the last of the storm windows.

But for me, the second emotion of that day — admiration — does not dim. As the tattered remnants of Canada's gallant lads of 1914-18 turn out for the parade, my heart is with them. There isn't much spring in the step any more, and backs are not as straight. But there is still a pride in their bearing.

And there should be. Their war was no Charge of the Light Brigade. There was nothing dashing about it. It was cold, wet, mud, lice, rotten grub and relentless pounding. It was a brutal, stupid war.

But they fought, and they didn't run. And they came home, those who were left. And they were shabbily treated. And they suffered their rotted lungs and their crippling arthritis. And they didn't complain much.

There aren't many of them left, but I hope I'm there to drink a toast to them on Remembrance Day, after the parade, as they swap lies at the Legion Hall.

Alexander Forbes is one of them. May he be reading his beloved books 10 years from now, and I hope some of my other friends among the old sweats will drop him a line.

It's lonely when you can't see.

THE SPORTS BEAT

By Glen May

Drunks and dumb blondes

It's soon going to be Grey Cup time.

This is the annual clash between Canada's two finest football teams who do battle for a battered chrome chalice. East finally meets West in one gigantic encounter, disproving Rudyard Kipling's theory that "East is East and West is . . .", ah well, you know the rest.

The sole sore point of the Grey Cup festival is the spectators. Many of the observers who obtain tickets aren't football fans and don't honestly give a fiddle who wins. They go so the next time they gather over a bottle of bubbly they can boast about attending the Cup game.

Most of the "real" fans miss the classic and are forced to watch from a sprawled position in the living room on the idiot box. The reason they can't attend is simple: they didn't have the "right contacts" to obtain a ducat or two. All year long they journeyed week after week to their own stadium to cheer their local heroes of the gridiron. But, when the biggest game of the campaign arrives, Joe Average Fan is left out of the ticket picture.

The Grey Cup contest is switched from city to city across the country each year allowing the faithful followers of the sport the opportunity of seeing the "big one" in person. The plan is excellent, but the result is failure.

Following is a typical scene of what it would be like if you were fortunate enough to have a ticket for the Grey Cup game at Vancouver's Empire Stadium this year. You're sitting about 30 rows up on the west side of the field below the press box and directly behind the bench used by the British Columbia Lions during season play.

At the opening kickoff two couples stagger into their seats in front of you blocking your vision for the next few seconds. Finally they are seated and you are astonished to see the ball being placed at the kicking team's 30-yard line. You muse: "Must have been some run?"

A few plays later a long pass is thrown and one of the women in front of you turns around requesting a match. As play continues the foursome loudly discuss the past week's social activities and the party planned after the game.

A halfback breaks into the clear pursued by two defensive players. Your vision is again impaired when one of the characters sitting in front turns and jams a flask in your face slurring: "How about a drink pal?"

You notice the couple sitting on your left. The guy's fallen asleep leaving his cute blonde companion on her own. Finally she blurts: "Excuse me, but I don't understand this game. I wonder if you could explain what's going on?"

Just before halftime two nattily dressed types behind you become involved in a stock market argument, and during the shouting a hotdog is deposited, mustard, relish and all, down your sleeve.

This malarky continues until near the end of the game, which by the way is tied, when suddenly a quick kick in the final 30 seconds results in a winning point. The guy with the blonde wakes up and grabs you by the neck demanding, "Who won?"

With a sick smile you catch your breath and tell him, then scramble quickly out of your seat to avoid being crushed by the heavy drunk who's tumbling down from Row 33.

Eventually you make it to the exit and overhear one of the chaps from the group who were sitting in front of you say: "Wasn't that baton twirler a real knockout?"

CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW OPENS THIS SUNDAY IN OTTAWA

This year's Chrysanthemum Show, opening next Sunday (November 6) at 1 p.m. at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, will be the biggest yet, reports the Plant Research Institute. The annual exhibit has become a popular autumn attraction for residents of the district.

The show, staged in the Institute's conservatories, will continue daily from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. until closing time on Sunday, November 20.

A Japanese Garden provides the setting for the colorful exhibit designed by Jack Walker, the Institute's landscape architect. Fifty per cent more space has been allocated this year to the exhibit to make it the biggest held so far.

A stream, pool and fountain, and an immense "hanging" basket of cascade chrysanthemums highlight the display in one of the two conservatories used for the show. In the other there are such attractions as a floral "waterfall" of cascade mums of various colours, a Japanese tea house beside a pool, a Japanese stone lantern, and "hanging' baskets of cascade mums. Entarnce to this conservatory is by way of "Blossom Arbar" — a long archway of cascade mums

About 15,000 blooms on 3,600 plants representing 125 varieties will be on show.

Twenty-five of the varieties are being shown for the first time. Among these is a 1966 introduction, the bronze pot mum Gay Anne.

Of special interest are some seedling mums so new that they are still unnamed. The seedlings, including five spider mums and two standards ,are a gift from the world's foremost chrysanthemum breeder, Yoder Brothers of Barberton, Ohio.

Among the varieties being shown for the first time are two white spider mums — Seiko-No-Susate, and Kay Taashime. There are also two new standards, the pink-hued Miss America and the orange-red Festival.

Among the pot mums on display will be the new Redhawk, Winter Carnival, and Yellow Star.

For the first time, yellow and white standby cascade mums are augmented by four new varieties and two new colors. The newcomers are Agapine and Anna. two new yellows; the pink-colored Christine L. Egger; and Gold Pin-Wheel, whose blooms have a dark centre and unusual paddle-shaped, golden petals.

Many old favourites are there too, including the standards J. R. Booth, Yellow Turner, Fred Shoesmith ,Eva Turner, Edith Cavell, and Bronze Turner.

Ken Willson, the supervisor of grounds and greenhouses at the Institute, is in charge of the 1966 mum show.

FARM OUTLOOK BRIGHTER, SAYS B OF M REVIEW

Record and near-record crops from the current harvest, higher productivity on the farm and favorable world demand indicate that the outlook for Canadian farmers is bright, according to the Bank of Montreal's Business Review for October, just issued.

The B of M notes that this year's wheat harvest, estimated at more than 840 million bushels, is 16 per cent more than the previous record set in 1963. "Average yields were about 21 per cent higher than in 1965 and at 27½ bushels per acre were the greatest achieved in Canadian history. Acreage seeded to wheat was also an all-time record".

Allowing for the large shipments earmarked for the U.S.S.R., China and Eastern Europe, the bumper crop this year is expected to leave a carryover of close to 600 million bushels, dispelling doubts that the stocks would be ample to meet all requirements.

Most of the recent increase in Canada's wheat exports is the result of the large sales in these new markets, while sales to the traditional markets are only marginally higher and those to Great Britain and E.E.C. countries have declined.

INCOME UP

"As might be expected from the good results from wheat, the yields and production of the other principal field crops . . . have on the whole been excellent also," the B of M continues.

Farm cash receipts from all farm in goperations were up substantially in the first six months of this year, compared with the same period last year.

"It is interesting to note some long run trends which have been evident in the distribution of farm cash receipts by source. In the period 1926-30, wheat receipts accounted for almost 4 0per cent of farm cash income but, by 1956, this percentage had fallen to 20 per cent and, in 1965, stood only slightly higher at 24 per cent. Even on the prairies, wheat's contribution has fallen from nearly 70 per cent in the late 1920's to less than 50 per cent in 1965.

— It is also noteworthy that, as sources of farm cash receipts, the relative positions of livestock and products on the one hand and crops on the other have been reversed since 1926-30 when the former accounted for 42 per cent and the latter for 53 per cent. By 1965 the contribution made by livestock was almost 56 per cent and that by crops only 43 per cent.

"Such shifts are to be expected in a world where consumer preferences are constantly changing and where eating habits tend to move away from grains toward meat as incomes rise.

"Nevertheless, in global terms, in a world in which population and effective demand are increasing, total markets for food of all kinds are certain to expan drapidly in coming years.

HIGHER PRODUCTIVITY

"Canadian farmers are aware of the possibilities inherent in this situation and are not just relying on favorable weather to produce bigger and better crops.

"In recent years, for example, besides adding substantially to the acreage under cultivation they have sharply increased their purchases of farm implements and equipment and bought fertilizers in record amounts".

In addition, federal and provincial departments of agriculture and research organizations of private firms and universities have been actively engaged in research designed to increase agricultural productivity.

"And, indeed, productivity in agriculture has been rising rapidly. In the post-war period agricultural output per man-hour has on the average risen by 5.5 per cent, compared with 4.1 per cent for all commercial enterprises, and growth in the sixties has been particularly good.

"With productivity up and world demand factors favorable, further gains in the agricultural sector of the economy seem assured.

"Indeed, newly-established production records in farming have not been able to stand for long in recent years, and in present circumstances, it will not be surprising if the records set by this past season's tremendous performance are significantly exceeded within the next few years", the B of M Business Review concludes.

Playoffs Start After Winning Season

On Friday, October 28th, Morrisburg High School Blue Tornados defeated N.D.D.H.S. in a sudden death, semi-final E.O.S.S.A. "B" football game. The final score was 33-0. The win enables Morrisburg to advance to the final game against Iroquois on Friday, November 4th at 2:00 p.m. in Morrisburg.

Last Friday's game saw Jack Notman score 3 touchdowns for the winners, with Micky Mabo and Jim Scott also crossing the North Dundas goal line for major scores. Steven Casselman kicked 2 converts and Henry Storgaard rounded out the scoring with a passed convert.

After five games this season, 28-O over Finch and 32-13 over North Dundas. This enviable record has been realized only after many long hours of practice under the expert coaching of Mr. Ed. Fluter.

Since 1966-67 is the last year for Morrisburg High School, the club will be trying very hard to retain the EASSA St. Lawrence Senior B Trophy for the last possible time. This trophy has been on display in the high school trophy case since the 1964-65 season.

Bryan Dawley and Jim Cameron missed Friday's game due to injuries, and both are expected to be out for Friday's game against Iroquois. Otherwise the team is in excellent physical shape and with the proper mental attitude and plenty of fan support should play well.

Now remember, come out and support the Blue Tornados on Friday, November 4th in the last football game of the 1966-67 season—and the last game in the history of Morrisburg High School.

Safety Week Is December 1-7

Canada's annual campaign to impress drivers with the vital need for constant attention to safe procedures in traffic, Safe Driving Week, will again be observed across the nation between December 1 and 7 inclusive. The campaign will be sponsored nationally by the Canadian Highway Safety Council with assistance from provincial and community safety organizations.

"The aim of Safe-Driving Week is not to eliminate death from the highways for one week," commented the Council's executive director, P. J. Farmer. "We know, probably better than anyone, that would be an unrealistic hope. Certainly we hope the campaign will reduce the number of road deaths, but its principal purpose is to get motorists to practic every known safe driving procedure for that week so they will better remember them for the other 51 weeks".

Mr. Farmer said Safe Driving Week, in the decade it has been held in Canada, has saved an estimated 24 0lives. He arrived at this estimate by comparing the actual deaths reported to the average expected for a week at that time of year. "The success of the campaign will be measured in the participation, interest and awareness of the motorist in regard to road safety all year long", he said.

The 1966 version of Safe Driving Week will stress defensive driving, the ability to know how to recognize potential road dangers, then know how to avoid them.

CANADA'S FIRST BANK, VOLUME I

By Merrill Denison

Today we take the bank on the corner of Main Street very much for granted. It has always been there, or somewhere close by, and it is a branch of one of the great chartered banks. The pioneer colonists of British North America only 15 0years ago, enjoyed no such re-assurance.

There were no banks. There was no Canadian currency. Instead there was a hodge-podge of currencies, English pounds and French francs, Spanish and U.S. Dollars, Portugese escudos and Mexican reales, the values of which fluctuated from place to place and week to week, to the understandable dismay of merchants and traders.

As one outspoken colonist put it, "our currency is like a Scotch haggis, made up of contradictions, of things good and bad, oatmeal, onions, hog's lard, butter, crumbs of bread, salt, pepper, garlic, leeks, parsley, etc., etc."

And then after a quarter of a century of effort by the father of Canadian banking, The Honourable John Richardson, and his associates, the first bank opened its door for business at 10 a.m. November 3rd, 1817 at 32 St. aul Street in Montreal.

This was the start of the Bank of Montreal, the history of which is now told in depth for the first time in a new book published by McClelland & Stewart Ltd., of Toronto, "Canada's First Bank" by Merrill Denison, dean of Canadian business historians. This is the first volume of a handsomely illustrated 1,000-page, two-volume history. Volume II is to be published in 1967

Why Wear a Poppy ?

By Don Crawford

Public Relations Officer, Perth, Ont., Branch R.C.L.

"Please wear a poppy", the lady said
And held one forth, but I shook my head.
Then I stopped and watched as she offered them there,
And her face was old and lined with care;
But beneath the scars the years had made
There remained a smile that refused to fade.

A boy came whistling down the street,
Bouncing along on care-free feet.
His smile was full of joy and fun,
"Lady", said he, "may I have one?"
When she'd pinned it on, he turned to say,
"Why do we wear a poppy today?"

The lady smiled in her wistful way
And answered, "This is Remembrance Day,
And the poppy there is the symbol for
The gallant men who died in war.
And because they did, you and I are free —
That's why we wear a poppy, you see.

"I had a boy about your size,
With golden hair and big blue eyes.
He loved to play and jump and shout,
Free as a bird he would race about.
As the years went by, he learned and grew
And became a man — as you will, too.

"He was fine and strong, with a boyish smile,
But he'd seemed with us such a little while
When war broke out and he went away.
I still remember his face that day
When he smiled at me and said, 'Goodbye,
I'll be back soon, Mom, so please don't cry'.

But the war went on and he had to stay,
And all I could do was wait and pray.
His letters told of the awful fight,
(I can see it still in my dreams at night),
With the tanks and guns and cruel barbed wire,
And the mines and bullets, the bombs and fire.

"Till at last, at last, the war was won —
And that's why we wear a popy, son".
The small boy turned as if to go,
Then said, "Thanks, lady, I'm glad to know.
That sure did sound like an awful fight,
But your son — did he come back all right?"

A tear rolled down each faded cheek;
She shook her head, but she didn't speak.
I slunk away in a sort of shame,
And if you were me, you'd have done the same;
For our thanks in giving is oft delayed,
Though our freedom was bought, and thousands paid!

And so when we see a poppy worn,
Let us reflect on the burden borne
By those who gave their very all
When asked to answer their country's call
That we at home in peace might live.
Then wear a popy! Remember! —and Give!

A house-to-house Poppy Canvass will be made in the Village by Veterans of the local Branch of the Legion the second week in November. Your response will be appreciated by those who are giving their time and eeffort to this cause.

REPORT FROM PARLIAMENT

By Mrs. Jean Wadds, M.P.

It seems clear that this week's Dominion - Provincial Conference is both timely and necessary.

There are many who believe in a permanent almost continuous meeting arrangement. Due to the increasing complexities of the Government at all levels, this would make good sense. Certainly there is a continuous study of Dominion-Provincial affairs anyway.

The free-spending tendencies of the present government in Ottawa already points to higher personal taxes, as Mr. Sharp has warned. Although he announced a 10 per cent drop of all federal government spending in his last budget, this has not come about. Far from any reduction, the original spending planned has been surpassed by the insiduous method of piling up supplementary estimates. Each supplementary may not appear alarming, but when they are added together, the total is.

It is quite right for Premier John Robarts to warn against the trend of Ottawa having more and more to spend while the provinces go further and further in the red. With education being given such priority and the well-known costs of building bigger and getter schools, provinces have been long worried on this one item alone. Also, there is the fantastic rise in cost of learning techniques, costly equipment, TV, and highly trained advisory experts.

Most parents quite rightly want the best for their children. To keep up with the best demands, constant researcr on education, not only techniques, but different types of education and their relationship to employment openings has to be made. There is also a frightening need for ever rising qualifications in teachers. It would seem that our teachers will need to be heavily endowed as well as highly educated to keep ahead of it all.

Premier Duff Roblin from Manitoba also stresses an important point when he requests that the report of the Federal-Provincial Tax Structure Committee be made public. It is inconceivable that any Federal Minister of Finance would have the arrogance to think of keeping this report secret.

This should be urged by Mr. Roblin and supported by Mr. Robarts, but should be demanded by all provincial Premiers of whatever poitical color. It seems obvious that this would tend to help the provinces in their very real financial needs, and protect them against extra-vagrant Federal spending, often for reasons of political popularity.

Federal Conservative Members ahd an opportunity to express their opinions to three of the most active Premiers Wednesday night.

Wednesday night being the traditional night of the week when Parliament does not sit, the Premiers were asked up to Parliament Hill. It is a good idea, because many Federal members, particularly the younger, or newer members had not even met premiers outside their own province.

The Hon. John Robarts is always amiable and approachable. He has a great ability in asking incisive questions and he listens carefully to the answers.

The Hon. Duff Roblin has a panying an outgoing personality, and an active slightly restless manner. He chatted brightly with other conservatives, equally at ease in English or French.

The Hon. Robert Stanfield is tall and thin and looks like he might be related to Abraham Lincoln. He obviously has no preference for social chit-chat, but he remembers names and who everyone is and what they do. His sincerety is unassailable and the twinkle in his eye heartwarming. It is said of him that if he personally ran in each riding in Nova Scotia he would win the whole province.

They were welcome guests and it was an encouraging occasion for divided, unhappy Conservatives.

NEW SURVEY SHIP FOR GREAT LAKES

A St. Catharines firm, Port Weller Dry Dock Ltd., will build a Great Lakes survey and research ship for the Department of Energy, Mines and Resources.

To cost $2,005, 636, the vessel is the first of several ships planned for use in the federal government's stepped-up research program on pollution and other problems in the Great Lakes.

The vessel was designed by the department's Marine Sciences Branch and the Montreal firm of Gilmore, German and Milne, naval architects.

The contract awarded by the Department of Defence Production calls for completion by May 1 of 1968.

The ship will be 147 feet long and will have a beam of 32 feet, a draft of eight feet and a displacement of 609 tons. She will have an all-welded steel hull, two 500-horsepower diesel engines and twin right-angle drive rotable propellors.

Her crusing speed will be 10½ knots, with a top speed of 11½ knots.

She will carry 11 scientists and technicians and a crew of 16.

A large laboratory aboard the ship will be used for physical, chemical, bacteriological and other biological studies. In addition, two portable laboratories may be installed on the deck.

Alternatively the ship may carry four 26-foot sounding launches for hydrographic surveying.

Two telescopic hydraulic cranes will be used for lowering scientific instruments and other equipment over the side.

A primary purpose of present Great Lakes studies is to help solve the growing problem of water pollution. For this year's programme the government chartered a 137-foot stern trawler, the Brandal from M. V. Tem Ltd., of Halifax.

NURSES AIDE COURSE BEGAN AT GENERAL

The second course for nurses' aides and orderlies sponsored by Canadian Vocational Training Programme 5 began September 7, 1966, at the Cornwall General Hospital.

Two men and fourteen women were selected from over thirty applicants. Applications were received at the Canadian Manpower Services office. The applications were sent to a screening committee consisting of Mr. Jack Haworth, Co-ordinator Programme 5, Mr. Peter Johnston, Assistant Administrator in charge of personnel at Cornwall General Hospital, and Mrs. Audrey Cumming, instructor for the C.V.T. course.

Mrs. Cumming is a registered nurse who has had ten years of nursing experience, which includes three years as an assistant head nurse on a male medical-surgical ward at Cornwall General Hospital. She has completed the one-year Nursing Unit Administration course

The course being taught by Mrs. Cumming includes Nursing Subjects, Science, English and Mathematics. Classroom instruction and supervised clinical experience will continue throughout the four-month course.

This aides and orderlies courseis one o ffive courses that have been conducted in the Province of Ontario. However ,this is the first area to conduct a course in a hospital.

The first course for nurses aides and orderlies was conducted at the Cornwall General hospital last spring and many of the sixteen graduates found immediate employment.

DEAR DORIS
advice from Doris Clark

Going "stir crazy"

DEAR DORIS — I live in an isolated spot in the northern part of Canada with my husband and one son. Visitors from the outside world are few and far between and sometimes it seems to me I'll go "stir crazy" if I don't get stirring a little.

I am in my middle forties and for the past six months have been very depressed. When I saw the doctor he suggested I have an outlet; some kind of hobby. He also suggested I write to you.

Please, Miss Clark, would you be good enough to suggest something? I am no good at handcrafts.

In The Dumps

DEAR DUMPS — Few, even the hermit-type, can stand too much solitude. Consider:

(1) Joining World Tapes for Education. Members record conversations on a tape recorder and send them off to someone in another part of the world. Then he talks back.

(2) Corresponding with a pen pal.

(3) Bird watching. You and your boy might combine this with photography.

(4) Studying the heavens. This calls for a telescope.

(5) Stamp collecting.

In all of these there are ways of linking up with others with the same hobby. Pick one and write to me for details.

DEAR DORIS: — My daughter's chum is going with a young man who is continually in trouble with the police. He has been in the army and cannot hold a job. Right now he is in jail awaiting trial for indec[illegible] assault on a married wom[illegible] to her his undying love, and she is adolescent enough and idealistic enough to believe him.

She needs help in understanding the tremendous difference between physical attraction and the kind of love which will last a lifetime; and in realizing that marriage involves cooperative hard work between two people who are willing to give it all they've got.

DEAR DORIS — We have had my mother (80) living with us. Our problem is we can't keep her clean. She will not wash herself or try to keep her clothes nice even though they are new.

Mother has caused so much tension at meals because she hums while eating and was always so hungry it was repulsive to watch. There was considerable wrangling over grocery bills. The doctor now finds she is diabetic and she is in hospital receiving insulin.

I think it would be kinder to put her in a home. She is able to pay and would get more attention than I could give her because my family resent having her. My husband won't sit at the same table with her.

Torn Every Way

DEAR TORN — I can't see how anyone, even Mother, could enjoy her return to your home.

A nursing home where she can pass the time with contemporaries and get the tending she needs, seems indicated. Discuss this with your county health unit.

Most elderly folk find these changes disturbing at first, but settle in when they discover how pleasant things can be in such a home. You can keep her from feeling pushed aside if you handle this gently, and keep your promise to come and see her.

Confidential To Sorry Now — A big person is the first to apologize. No reason you couldn't write Bruce a note to say you know how unfair you were. But don't expect to get him back — and don't even try to come between him and his new steady.

You have learned one lesson the hard way. Now come out of your slump and make some new friends.
