Anniversary Days Here Again!

Here & There

by Kay Kay

This is the time of year to keep the lawn mower hot. . . . the grass grows so fast in the back forty that by the time you get the whole lawn cut, it is time to start all over. We've watched the wife do it and we know that the grass actually grows that fast! She even took some of the storms oiff the other day and put on the screens. I tell you fellows you can learn a lesson from us. . .

We don't always get off so easy. Like the time we were talked into building a cottage. . . or the time we wound up painting the house. It took from Spring to snowfall but it got done. Those things take a lot of planning and we hate to rush into things.

Mind you we're not the only one in this frame of mind. There's the odd one in our neighbourhood who sets a bad example by doing things when they should be done, but believe me he's not as popular with the men as he is with the ladies! Understandably.

If ever a rocket to the moon is shot from our street, he's apt to be in it.

Our parent, on the male side of the house, has a sort of green thumb. It has been our contention that all he passed on to us was thumbs when it comes to planting and growing things. We never could seem to get the hang of it. Women, however, take to growing things — the way they take to getting on meals, washing clothes and dishes—and chewing. It's seemingly a natural part of their nature and we have every respect for their ambitious endeavours, as long as their plans don't include us.

It's a pleasure each spring to walk around the house taking stock of what is still growing and what should be done. We like planning these things and giving our fullest moral support. And we wish that p e s k y, nature-loving neighbour with the green thumb would stop showing the neighborhood women what men can do!

Iroquois' Oldest Resident Passes Away

Iroquois' oldest and lifelong resident, Mrs. William C. Gregory, passed away at the Brockville General Hospital early Friday morning, May 12th, after being a patient there since July 3, 1960.

Mrs. Gregory was in her 100th year, having celebrated her 99th birthday on April 25th of this year. Although confined to hospital for a long period of time, Mrs. Gregory enjoyed fairly good health until the past two weeks before her death.

Deceased was born at Point Iroquois on April 25th, 1862, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Serviss. She was the last member of a family of eight.

She attended schools at Iroquois and on September 21st, 1897, she married William C. Gregory, also of Iroquois. They took up residence at Point Iroquois and where they resided until the St. Lawrence Seaway locks and canal construction began and they were forced to move. They then moved to the new Iroquois to reside, and where Mr. Gregory died on April 18th, 1958. Mrs. Gregory, although in advanced years, continued residing alone in Iroquois until, due to ill health, was taken to Brockville General Hospital. Her memory of days spent at school, her old friends and the good times spent in the old village were keen in her mind prior to a few weeks previous to her death.

Well known and highly respected, Mrs. Gregory leaves many friends who learned with regret of her passing.

In religion she was United.

Surviving are several nieces and nephews.

The remains rested at the W. E. Fitzsimmons Funeral Home, Iroquois, where the funeral service was held on Sunday afternoon, May 14th, at two-thirty o'clock, with Rev. J. Leslie Dean, minister of the Iroquois United Church, officiating. By special request Mrs. Orean English sang a solo, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere", accompanied by Miss Margaret Kaine.

Interment took place in the United Cemetery, Point Iroquois.

Pallbearers were Messrs. Lloyd C. Davis, Kenneth Thompson, Richard Whittle, Allan St. Pierre, Howard Fawcett and Murray Storey.

The many floral tributes and the large number that called to show their last respects testified to the high esteem in which Mrs. Gregory was held in this community.

CAPITAL CONCRETE APPOINTMENT

J. R. Kogucki, B. Sc.

Mr. C. Mooradian, General Manager of Capital Concrete Products Ltd., Iroquois, Ont. announces the appointment of Jerry R. Kogucki as an Ottawa Sales Representative. $250.00 Cash Prizes Being Given Away

Anniversary Bonus Days are here again and come bigger and better as Iroquois merchants enter their fourth anniversary Bonus Days, giving away a total of $250 in cash. Sponsored by the Iroquois Businessmen's Association, the anniversary last year attracted hundreds of people to Iroquois for the three-day sales period.

Again this year, the event has already created considerable interest and with the printing of over 5,000 10-page circulars at the commercial printing department of The Iroquois Post, many new faces are expected to be seen in the community this weekend. The Bonus Days run from Thursday until Saturday.

Special Draw Slips

Those people in the area who have been taking part in the weekly Bonus Buck drawings will be more than interested in what Iroquois merchants have planned for this weekend. First of all, the merchants participating in Bonus Bucks will give out Blue Draw Slips all day Thursday and Thursday night. These slips will be used in a special drawing for $200.00 on Friday night at 9 p.m. It will pay you to do your shopping on Thursday so that you can get in on this special draw on Friday. The $200.00 will be split as follows: $100, $50, $25, $15 and $10. You must be in attendance to win and slips will be drawn until all the money has been won.

The weekly Bonus Buck draw for $50 will be held this one week only on Thursday night. Green draw slips will be used for Thursday night's draw. They are the regular slips given out all week.

A bingo will be held Thursday and Friday nights starting at 8 p.m., conducted by the local Legion branch. The bingo will be set up on the parking lot.

Pony rides and helicopter rides have also been planned. The helicopter will arrive Staurday morning.

MORE BROKEN WINDOWS - - -

The Bowling Club in the village has just about reached the limit of their patience when it comes to replacing glass in windows at the clubhouse. Located at the corner of Elizabeth Drive and the Carman Road (also affectionately known as "The Queen's Road), the clubhouse is a fair distance away from homes in the area and seems an ideal spot for youngsters to play—out of earshot and out of sight of their parents.

The parents are sometimes the last to know when their youngsters get into trouble but it would be well if parents kept closer tabs on their wandering offspring. The clubhouse and the Forward Home, the latter just a stone's throw from the clubhouse, have been the target of stones and to much damage being done.

It is only fair to warn parents that both these properties are not derelict buildings—both are under the care of responsible people who will no longer tolerate damage being done.

Police action will be taken against anyone caught doing damage to either building and a word to the wise should be sufficient.

The building known as the "Cooper House" on Elizabeth Drive, is being torn down. The stone shell remains up and until it falls or is demolished completely, it would be well for children to stay clear of the building. It certainly is no place for youngsters to be playing and serious injury could result if a wall section should fall unexpectedly.

All things considered, we are treading heavily this week on youngsters' toes and perhaps just a little on the toes of a few parents. If the shoe fits, wear it!

WATCH THAT POWER MOWER - - -

Lawn cutting time each year brings its share of accidents. The power mower's advent a few years back, brought with it the mixed blessing of being able to cut the lawn with greater ease and more quickly but as well brought the danger of losing a hand or foot, among its more serious liabilities. Used properly by careful people, the power mower is a great work-saver; used carelessly it can create great heartache and pain.

If young people are allowed to use the power mower, we would advise parents take time to show them how to safely handle the machine—what not to do if they wished to remain intact.

The old hand mower has faded somewhat over the years; they still make them and sell them and for our money they still do the best job on a well-kept lawn.

We own a power mower.

Mrs. J. Casselman Reports From The Capital

Many Members of the House of Commons, previously unfamiliar with its processes, have found themselves irritated and frustrated when first elected.

Our democratic system is built on the belief that every individual has a right to express his or her opinion. Through universal franchise and the whole election process Canadian citizens have this privilege available. The extent to which this privilege is used denotes the basic strength and reliability of our way of life.

Members elected to represent the 265 ridings, or voting districts of Canada, have their own theories as to how this representation can best be accomplished.

It is quite possible to accomplish many very worthwhile benefits through the Government Departments direct. In fact, it is quite possible to be busier and more productive of results working quietly and undramatically in one's office, than by making speeches in the House of Commons.

There are those however, who do not feel this undramatic approach is effective enough, and who like to make speeches. Very frequently such speeches tend to be repetitive, as there is little new that can be said about most Bills, after the fifteenth or twentieth speaker. However, it is always somewhat interesting to hear the presentation of one's colleagues, and ordinarily one becomes accustomed to repetition and takes it in stride as part of the job. It does become burdensome when a closing date is in sight and great concentration of effort put forth to meet this arrangement.

In order that the Members from far distant parts of Canada have any time at all in their constituencies or with their families, there are tentative plans this year to close during part of July and August. If necessary work will be resumed in a Fall Session as it was last year. At present this means that the House is in Session from eleven o'clock in the morning until ten-thirty at night, every day including Saturdays, but on that day, we have the benefit of finishing at six o'clock.

At the same time, there is a greater frequency of Committee Sittings, so that reports and recommendations may go before the House of Commons. This means that Committees start at nine or nine-thirty in the morning, often two or three at a time. If one is on several Committees it is quite possible to endure the disappointment of having studied and prepared questions for one Committee, only to be persuaded to leave it and proceed to another in order to keep it operating, since no Committee can sit without a quorum, which is usually two-thirds of its membership.

During this time, correspondence and the usual reading schedule does not lesson, so that in order to keep up with this, it is almost essential to be in the office at least at eight-thirty in the morning, and preferably at eight A.M.

Likewise, at the other end of the day, reading should continue until midnight, and could well continue long past to keep up with the news commentary. Small wonder that at this period some of us do lose patience with repetitive speeches and have to remind ourselves frequently that this is part of our system of respecting individual rights, and everyone is free to do the job his or her own way.

SUGAR and SPICE

By Bill Smiley

There's something missing in my life this spring. I've been feeling restless and unfulfilled lately and didn't know what was the matter. But I've realized what it is. I'm lonely for my old house.

Since we moved here last September, we've lived in a rented place, and while it's a good house, it hasn't the character of the old place. There's nothing falling down, or heaving, or torn up. Everything is as neat, tidy and uninspiring as the exterior of a shoe-box.

Other years, about this time of year, I'd be excitedly planning all sorts of repairs, renovations and improvements, as I walked around my haggard half-acre. Once the first fever of the trout season had abated, I'd make a tour of inspection, usually on a sunny Saturday in May.

First, I'd check the ruts in the lawn, made by the coal truck. Depending on what kind of a winter we'd had, these crevasses ran from a few inches deep to more than a foot. I'd measure their depth with a practised eye, shake my head admiringly at the skill of the truck driver in hitting the softest spot in the lawn, and mutter, "If a fellow just had about a truckload of fill and some grass seed . . ."

Then I'd mosey around to the back and check the clothes-line. The Old Lady used to give me quite a bit of trouble over that. About four times each spring, she'd haul me into the backyard, wave hysterically at all the fine, sturdy, upright clotheslines of our neighbours, and point speechless with rage and shame at ours.

It wasn't the rust that made her so mad. It was the way the line gently sagged in the middle, as soon as she put anything heavier than a pair of panties on it. Pole at the far end was rotten, and kind of leaned toward the house, letting the line down to about two feet off the ground. And every May, I'd look at it and murmur, "If a fellow could just get hold of a good, straight cedar pole about 15 feet . . ."

Then I'd poke around into my patio and look at my shingles. They fell down there when I had the new roof put on, seven years ago. Each spring I'd kick them over, so they'd dry on the bottom. I always figured that when they were well dried, I'd tie them in bundles and sell them for kindling. "If a fellow could get 10 cents a bundle for them, even . ."

Then I'd turn over a few spadefuls of earth in my garden. I had dug that little plot, the whole four square feet of it, six years ago. It wouldn't grow carrots or radishes or green onions but it produced some of the best fishing worms you ever saw—those skinny, red ones that the trout really go for. "Say, you know, if a fellow started breeding those things seriously . . ."

Satisfied that my worms had wintered well, I'd give the cedar hedge a routine check. When we first moved to the old house, it was about twelve feet high. Every spring I'd try to figure out a way of trimming it. And every spring it was a foot higher. Then the maples and spruce started growing up through the cedar, and it was so pretty I just let it go. It must be twenty feet high by now. "But, if I wanted to thin it, I'll bet I could get some good timber out of there . . ."

Next part of my annual inspection was the cellar. I'd go down there ready for anything. And that's just what I'd find in t—anything from a beaver pond to potatoes right out of the cellar floor. I used to pick up a shovel, move some ashes from here to there, then get absorbed in restuffing the broken window with a burlap sack, and finally, head upstairs mumbling, "If a fellow could just get somebody to take those ashes out of there . . ."

There were dozens of other little jobs to plan:—painting the trim; putting up that section of fence the kids knocked down three Hallowe'ens back; putting new panes in the storm windows; tearing down the leaky drainpipes. Each of them took careful, accurate figuring on time involved, and money for materials.

And you know, I miss all that. There's something about that good, old spring tour of inspection that is vital and satisfying. It just makes you want to get right at things and plan them. After years of planning, this year I feel like a gentleman farmer without a farm. I never got around to doing any of those jobs around the old place. But if I say it myself, there was nothing wrong with the plans.

TODAY!

Approximately 60 delegates met in Leopoldville recently when the Congo Protestant Council held its annual meeting. The Conference was marked by an optimistic faith that the work of the church would continue. The delegates emphasized the unity of the work. The increased distribution of the Scripture was seen as a means of transmitting the truths of the Word of God to the people who are living in a very confused state.

It was also learned the Bible Sunday had been observed. One Congolese pastor brought the gifts of three BMS churches to Bible Society headquarters in a large bundle. The total was 2,400 francs or about $48.00 mostly in one franc pieces.

The churches in the lower Congo are trying to distribute a larger number of Gospels and the pro-

New Library Books

The new books to arrive at the Iroquois Public Library this week consist of two non-fiction, five fiction and four juvenile.

The non-fiction books are "All Men Are Brothers" a Unesco publication, containing the life and thoughts of that great man who did so much for India, Mahatma Gandhi, and "The Great Swindle" in which Virginia Cowles has recreated with lucidity and humour one of the most dramatic events in English History, the South Sea Bubble, 1720.

In the fiction class are five novels "The Sea Urchins", "Heaven Has No Favourites", "The Wax Foundation", "The Big Family" and "Marnie".

'The Sea Urchins" by Violette Jean, first published in France and translated by Mona Andrade, is a remarkable story set in Northern France during the German occupation and the Allied landings in Normandy.

"Heaven Has No Favourites" is by Erich Maria Remarques, author of "All Quiet On The Western Front". With Southern Europe as its background it tells of a strange and desperate gamble with death, of a surprising discovery of love and of the unpredictable ironies of chance.

"The Wax Foundation" Gwen Davenport's new novel, relates the consequences when Mrs. Wax bequeathed six million dollars to establish a foundation where selected applicants could develop their ideas for benefitting mankind.

Vina Delmar's new novel "The Big Family" is the romantic and fundamentally true saga of John and Jane Sliddell and their descendants. Its locales range through New York, New Orleans, Washington, Paris, Japan and the sea. The time goes from the Revolutionary War to the present.

"Marnie" by Winston Graham is about Margaret Elmer, charming, well-spoken, efficient, outwardly a perfect business girl, inwardly a rebel against society and the law, bitter, unscrupulous, cynical.

"Patrol To The Kimberlys" by Fred Lane and "Canga" by John Arthur Vaughn are recommended for boys aged 13 to 17. "Patrol To The Kimberlys" is about a six-teen-year-old boy's adventures in lonely Western Australia on patrol with mounted police. "Canga" is the true story of 17-year-old Nelson Vaughn and his father, who explored an upper tributary of the Amazon River to find a mysterious island.

For boys aged 11 to 14 is "Secret of Donkey Island" by Lavina R. Davis, the thrilling account of a boy's adventrous summer and his secret island.

For children a little younger is "Golden Mare" by William Corbin, a wonderful story of a boy's love for his horse.

M.D.H.S. STUDENTS LEND A HAND

"One Good Turn Deserves Another" is the motto of the Graduates of 1961 at the Mountain District High School and they illustrated on Saturday that they exercise no hesitation in living up to their motto.

Upon learning that the Town Fathers of the village of South Mountain were greatly concerned over the accumulated sand and loose gravel on their streets and sidewalks, almost one-half of the student body marched on the village with brooms, shovels, tractors and trucks early Saturday morning and with much vigor and determination began their project to make the streets and sidewalks in South Mountain the cleanest in Eastern Ontario.

Four o'clock in the afternoon found the boys and girls of M.D.H.S. with numerous blisters, aching muscles and dusty faces, but still in boisterous spirits as they shovelled the last of the piles of sand on the waiting vehicles and they had the satisfaction of knowing they had performed a much needed service to the village of South Mountain with a job well done.

The townspeople made it known that they greatly appreciated the efforts of the hard working students by showering them with expressions of thanks and encouragement as well as softdrink, ice cream, hamburgers from Waddell's Restaurant and cookies from Robinson's Bakery. Town Fathers D. L. Berry and Carman Crowder, who stayed by the student workers throughout the day assisting in any way they could, expressed their pleasure in the excellent job that the students had done and assured them that their efforts would not be forgotten and promised that their kindness and thoughtfulness would be amply rewarded at graduation time.

The goodwill project was aptly summed up by one of the students who said "It was a long, hard, hot and dusty job but the feeling that we have done some good for the people who have always supported our school activities makes our efforts worthwhile. It may have been hard work but we still had a lot of fun".

I.H.S. News

The Bake Sale held May 5th was a success and thanks are paid to those who made the sale so. Students, Parents and those who bought the goods are to be warmly thanked for their support of this recent drive. Deany Zandbergen, President of the Junior Red Cross, reported that in all $62.00 was taken in. This amount of course will be forwarded to the headquarters of the Red Cross.

Cadet Inspection

The Cadet Inspection held May 10th. went very smoothly, as Mr. Bray echoed Captain Evans' remark that this was by far the best showing in the life of the Cadet Corps at I. H. S. and that it was a very impressive show for a school this size. Captain Evans, along with the interested townsfolk was shown the various displays prepared for this event. These included Gymnastics, map and compass reading, Bren gun display and foot and arms drill.

Toward the end of the inspection Mr. Jones was called upon to present four Marmanship Awards to the students who had attained honours in this field. Keith Barkley claimed three, the remaining went to Alan McQuigge.

As in past the best girl and the best boy on parade were presented appropriate awards by the Ladies Auxiliary and the Canadian Legion. Mr. Leonard Roberts presented to Ron Johnstone a cup and a plaque for his efficiency, Pat Sisty received the same from Mrs. Hadley.

Bill Millar was this year's Cadet Major receiving assistance from Cadet Captain Barbara Fetterly.
