Roads, Refinery, Rec. Centre Matilda 1976 Priorities

Matilda Township Reeve, George Cooper listed upgrading of several township roads as one of Council's priorities for 1976, at the group's first meeting of the year last Friday. Other priorities for the present council to work on during this, their second and final year of office before this December's election, included efforts to get the IDA Oil Barge refinery project started, and a program to begin raising funds and getting some definite plans agreed on for the proposed recreation centre

The road jobs in Matilda that will receive attention this year include the blacktopping of the Hainsville road which was prepared last year and preparation of the road west of the Hulbert Church. Although the federal government has urged spending restraint, Reeve Cooper felt it would be a waste of money not to complete the work that had been started on these roads. On the whole he felt that the roads in Matilda were in quite good shape and that this work was necessary to keep the roads in that condition.

He noted that the building permit which was granted to the IDA Oil Barge people was still valid having been extended, and that council should do whatever was necessary and possible to get the project going. Reeve Cooper stated that the refinery could be the start of an important period of development for the area and that it should be encouraged.

As far as the arena project was concerned he felt that even if construction was not actually begun this year the idea should not be allowed to die He suggested that plans be agreed upon for the building and that a fund raising campaign be started to ensure that the arena will someday become a reality.

In other council news, a letter was read from Walter Baker, MP for Grenville-Carleton, regarding Matilda's application for a L.I.P. Grant. He explained that the application was refused due to the low unemployment rates in this riding. Grants are awarded more readily to areas of high unemployment and since we are in the same riding as part of Ottawa where the unemployment is kept low by the number of civil servants the grant would not be justified. Mr. Baker also made mention of how senseless it was to group this rural area in with a heavily populated area like Nepean township.

A resolution was read from the Matilda Womens Institute concerning what they considered the poor condition of the Matilda Memorial Hall and the number of dishes that are either broken or lost. Council agreed to meet with members of the W.I. to try to work out the situation.

A letter was read from Goulburn Township asking Matilda to concur with them in raising the fee for a land severance application from $40 to $100. Council could see no justification for this and agreed to send a letter back to Goulburn telling them they were not in favour of such a move.

Several by-laws were read and approved, naming various people to township positions for 1976. These included the library board, recreation committee, planning board, etc.

A by law was also approved covering the operation of snowmobiles on township roads The machines will be allowed on the travelled portion of any township road, but not including county roads or provincial highways.

Annual salary increases for all township employees were discussed, all increases being within the government's anti-inflation guidelines

Nursing Home Licence Granted

John Alguire of Ingleside has been granted a license by the Ontario Government to operate a 60 bed nursing home in Dundas County. The nursing home will be the only one in Dundas County which has been in need of such a home for some years.

Contacted by the Post on Monday Mr. Alguire reported that no decision had been made on where the home would be located, but he said that he hopes to be in operation by the end of this year.

The government decided last August to grant a license for a home in the county and at the time, applications were made by both Mr. Alguire, who formerly ran a smaller home in Ingleside, and by Dr. Richard Parisien who operates a nursing home in Cornwall.

There was a good deal of controversy regarding the issuing of the license last fall prior to the provincial election and a group of senior citizens was formed to put forth their opinions. Calling themselves "We Care" the group sent a petition to the Ontario government asking that Dr. Parisien be selected to operate the home.

Newspaper stories have appeared to the effect that Mr. Alguire had been granted the license, but as of press time, no official word had been received from the provincial government.

Hearings Held on Proposed Dyke

Hearings were held in both Cornwall and Watertown last week regarding a proposal to partially close the St. Lawrence River by building a dyke between the Islands of Presqu'ile and Toussaint, just west of Iroquois. The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority filed an application last fall to reduce the opening between the two islands to cut down on cross currents that affect boats entering Iroquois Locks from the west. The Authority stated that in the past few years, there have been a number of incidents that could have resulted in serious accidents, all attributable to the currents created by water flowing between these two islands

The work would include the construction of a temporary bridge or a causeway to permit access by equipment to the site, preparation of a road-bed to the scene of the dyke, and the actual construction of the dyke itself estimated to require approximately 50 000 yards of fill. The dyke would be constructed from fill that is presently stock-piled northwest of Iroquois Lock.

If approved construction of the dyke would start around the 1st of May and would take about a month to complete.

Proposals call for leaving an opening of 100 to 300 feet at the Toussaint Island end of the dyke to allow passage of pleasure craft and also to permit water to flow preventing possible stagnation.

Pledge Sheets in Area Stores

With the first major snowfall under their belts, snowmobilers throughout 15 areas in the province are enthusiastically preparing for Whipper Watson's second annual Snowarama for Timmy

By the time February rolls around, months of planning by snowmobile clubs and associations Easter Seal service clubs and associations, Easter Seal service clubs and the Ontario Society for Crippled Children should result in an even bigger mass rally than last winter's which netted $130,000 for crippled children.

As many as 5,000 machines are expected to embark on the 100 mile rally over any one of 15 official courses, each driver carrying the good wishes and financial backing of generous sponsors on a pledge-per-mile basis.

In this area the rally is being co-ordinated by the Iroquois Lions Club and the Haddo Sno-Drifters Snowmobile Club. The route will take snowmobilers from Iroquois to Brockville and back

Belt Law Enforced after Feb. 1

OPP Commissioner Harold H. Graham announced today that although seat belt legislation became effective on January 1st, 1976 by agreement with officials of the Ministry of Transport and Communications, members of the Ontario Provincial Police Force will issue warnings only to violators of the new seat belt legislation until February 1st 1976.

The purpose of this policy is to permit the motoring public to become accustomed to "Buckling Up" and to allow a period of grace from prosecution during which motorists have an opportunity to re-equip their vehicles with seat belts that were removed.

No stop-check program is contemplated by the OPP at any time to enforce seat belt legislation. Seat belt infractions observed after February 1st, 1976, will be treated as any other traffic violation by members of the force during the course of their patrols

The Morrisburg Lions Club Winter Carnival which runs this year from January 18th to Saturday the 24th is shaping up to be a memorable occasion for residents of Morrisburg and area.

There will be events that appeal to all ages and interest groups ranging from broomball and hockey to movies and suppers.

One of the highlights of the annual celebration will be a hockey game between the Morrisburg Old Timers and the Ottawa Old Pros. The Old Pros will be playing in Europe later this year, and will come to Morrisburg fresh from a game the previous weekend in Niagara Falls.

The game will see such names as Derek "The Duke" Holmes Gord Smith, Brian Smith, High Riopelle, Billy Watson and Edgar Blondin coming up against the Morrisburg Old Timers. Organizers of the event are enthusiastic about the game saying that it will be one of the most exciting evenings of hockey in the area for some time.

The game gets underway at 8:30 following a figure skating demonstration at 8 p.m. Children will be allowed in free, if accompanied by an adult. You can make a complete evening of it by coming out early for the Legion Bean Supper from 5 to 7 p.m.

Events are planned for each day of the week with a skating party to kick things off on Sunday afternoon the 18th. Music will be provided by Fawcett's Organ and all proceeds will go to the Figure Skating Club. Members of the club will be serving coffee Cokes, and doughnuts.

On Tuesday night, the Lions Club of Morrisburg will sponsor a Bingo and Casino night in the Civic Auditorium. Admission is free and everyone will have a chance on a door prize of $50 to be drawn for at 10 p.m. The evening gets underway at 7:30 and door prize tickets will not be given out after 8:30 p.m.

ANOTHER CHANCE AT THE MOUND

Hearings were held last week in Cornwall and Watertown to discuss the application to close off a section of the St. Lawrence between the islands of Presqu'ile and Toussaint. In outlining plans for the work, proposed to take place this May, mention was made that much of the necessary fill would be coming from the north-west section of Iroquois Point. That would seem to indicate that much of the unsightly mound of earth on the point could disappear.

The mound was a pretty hot issue in these parts for many years, even to the point of being an election issue several times. Then the fuss died down and we seemed to accept the whole thing as a fact of life. No one can deny that it is the biggest blemish on the landscape in the area, and the annoying part is that it could have been cleaned up. Now the chance for it to be removed is at hand and few people are even aware of it. Unfortunately it's removal won't come as a result of someone's desire to do a service to his fellow man. It just happens to be a handy source of fill.

Now we have another chance to get rid of the biggest eyesore in town. It's up to all of us and our local government to make our feelings known. We can't sit back and let that land do nothing but grow wild strawberries. At the least, it could be made into grassy parkland. At its best, it could be the site of the best campsite, marina complex in easern Ontario. But, whatever happens, we shouldn't have to look at a pile of rock and clay for another 20 years.

"I can't see what the environmentalists make such a fuss about — after all, we plant a new one for each one we cut down."

Report TO THE People

Walter Baker, M.P. Grenville-Carleton

Everyone criticizes a strike in the Public Service of Canada and most politicians will tell you that at least in essential service, strikes should be banned There can be little doubt about the importa nce of maintance of essential public service.

And what is essential ought not to be at the shim of the governors but ought to be decided in consultation. That is a separate problem however than what I would like to deal with in this column.

Today there is an option for the life of a collective agreement Bargaining units can elect either to take the arbitration route or the conciliation strike route. As a matter of principle it is important that they be urged and indeed convinced that the arbitra tion route is best from their po int of view as well as from the public's point of view

Leslie Barnes formerly the Executive Director of the Professional Institute of the Public Service and now a Visiting Senior Research Fellow at Queen's University together with Dr. L.A. Kelly Assistant Director of the Industrial Relations Centre Queen's University, are about to have published an important paper in which they set forth the methods by which arbitration could be the preferred remedy Their study is set against the back ground of some rather startling statistics.

Man-days lost as a result of strikes and walkouts be federal public service employees amounted to 261 180 in fiscal 1974-75 compared with 1 490 in 1973-74 Excluding the Post Office the figures were 84,130 and 840 respectively.

Further in 1970, 81% of public servants chose arbitration and on y 19% chose conciliation/strike whereas in 1975 only 36% chose arbitration and a whopping 64% chose conciliation/strike.

Clearly we ought to be careful about casting al of the blame on the Public Servant. Of course, they have their share of blame but Governments have a great responsibility which has not been met thus far.

Barnes and Kelly say the Arb itration Route has become less attractive and the conciliation/strike route with its definite deadlines for action has become the best weapon. It follows then that part of our remedy is to make arbitration a better method and a trusted tool. Their conclusions are to be pub ished later this month but they are so important that with their consent I have sent them to the Members of the Finkleman Committee and I have their consent to share them with you.

The factors that may have tipped the balance in favour of the conciliation/strike option include: a narrow and legalistic approach to the scope of arbitration, compared with the approach followed under conciliation;

- the fact that arbitration awards tend to follow a pattern together with the failure to indicate the criteria underlying awards;
- delays in the handling down of awards;
- a suspicion by employees that the arbitration process, at times has not been completely independent of government influence;
- a reluctance to invoke arbitration when the outcome of the process is dependent on data on which employees have less than full confidence;
- the evaporation of the informal consultative atmosphere of staff relations in the Federal Public Service following the establishment of an adversary system of collective bargaining;
- the opportunity available to un ions under the conciliation option to nominate representatives appropriate to particular disputes, and to have a voice in the selection of conciliation board chairmen.

All of these factors are not given equal importance but collectively, it is said to represent the main weaknesses of the Arbitration System. Having said that, the Study then concludes that something must be done and the fol lowing suggestions are made

Firstly They make the reasonable case that making the range of arbitrable matters narrower than those matters that can be the subject of collective bargaining, the Parties do not bargain realistically on matters excluded from arbitration. The ability to throw them into the lap of a trusted Tribunal would be the better course The fact is that conci iation boards can consider a much wider range of subjects. Therefore, those boards are chosen (together with the right to strike).

Secondly the study concludes that in the interest of developing more meaningful barganing relationships, bargaining units should be given the right to specify their dispute resolution process at the time of impasse rather than at the commencement of bargaining. This would eliminate the possibility that the employer might be reluctant to bargain once he knows that the employees have opted for arbitration

Thirdly, time limits should be introduced into the arbitration system. The suggestion is that in normal circumstances, the arbitration process should take less than three months from the date of request to the date of award. This is not the case now. It is a slow, tedious process.

Fourthly, the Tribunals should be required at least on matters relating to pay, to explain the reasons for its award - to give some veracity to the important con cept that justice not only be done but be seen to be done.

Fifthly, the Parties should be given the opportunity to nominate their representative from the employer and employerpanels in each case and the procedures ought to be conducted in a less legalistic way

Sixthly the Pay Research Bureau and its role should be revieed with the object of restoring employee confidence in the validity of data placed before the Tr ibunal.

Their suggestion is to have an advisory commission to consider the interpretation of statistics on outside conditions of employment and they opt for the independence of the Pay Research Bureau

Seventhly the authors suggest that attention be given to developing the facilities and machinery of the National Joint Council at both the central and departmental levels in order to encourage on going discussion and resolution of the large number of matters that could be removed from the bargaining table.

Lastly, they believe that the availability of the Courts to review the actions of the Tribunal be reconsidered. Their thesis is that the right of legal review has diminished the sense of finality which should be associated with the process. They argue that having voluntarily chosen the arbitration route, employees should be prepared to accept it as binding

They go much further than Mr. Finkleman and they tell us that time is of the essence and the statistics that have been quoted support them.

All Canadians should be grateful to Mr. Barnes and Dr Kelly for this review and I think we will hear more of it. I am personally grateful to them for the thoughtfulness in allowing its publication in this way and its circulation to the Finkleman Committee, of which I am a member on a pre-publication basis.

If you have any eye glasses that you no longer use around the house give them to any member of the Iroquois Lions Club or drop them off at the office of the Iroquois Post in the Iroquois Shopping Plaza.

That was some year

By BILL SMILEY

THIS is the time of year when instant experts and fallible fools such as newspaper columnists make idiots of themselves by predicting what the next 12 months will bring.

Looking into a New Year is rather like looking into an old rubber boot. It stinks a little, you can't see anything in there, and the thing probably leaks, heel and toe.

I prefer to do a little looking back and a little looking forward, make some hasty generalizations based on the arthritis in my big toe, and hope everybody will have forgotten what I said by the following week. Which they will.

Let's look back — 1975 was the year of The Big Strike. Everybody who was somebody, and a great many who were nobodies, went on strike at least once.

As a direct result, Canada's credibility as a producing nation, a reliable nation, a prudent, sensible nation, took a nosedive.

Foreign investors were heard saying things like: "Migawd, I'd be safer betting on the exact hour and minute of Napoleon's return from Eternal Exile than I would be putting money into that Crazy Canada."

It was also the year of the Grand Gimme and the Chronic Catch-up as everyone and his elderly aunt, clad in sackcloth and ashes, moaned piteously, beat bosoms, and scrabbled tooth and nail to get a bigger chunk of the national loot than everybody else and her elderly uncle.

It was the year in which the Montreal Olympics could no more have a deficit, according to that reincarnation of Moses misleading his people to the unpromising land, Mayor Drapeau, than a man could have a baby.

It was the year in which the Thansgiving roast turkey was transformed by our Grand Guru into boiled seagull.

It was the year of election upsets, political promises, union threats, dire warnings, insane headlines and callow assumptions. In short, it was a year much like the one before it and the one that is coming after it — an amusing and horrifying record of man's moral and mental weaknesses.

But that was the bad news. Now for the good news. It was also a great year, in some respects for you and me.

Personally, I had a fine year. Just listen to this list, and yours is probably better, if you think back.

I discovered a bracing, healthful new sport, cross-country skiing, and within a month was known as The Terror of the Trails (by two old ladies of 86 and 89).

I developed into Canada's most nauseatingly proud grandfather, as Pokey and I cemented an already firm friendship, culminating in an orgy of mutual admiration this past Christmas when the little devil got at least eleventy-seven presents. I love him because he is bright, lively, handsome, and a real hell-on-wheels kid. He loves me because he can get me to do anything, literally, that he wants me to do. In this league I am known as The Spoiler.

While we're all in the family, other things made it a good year. My wife and I stayed married and together, a rather unusual combination after a quarter-century. We even like each other, which is almost incredible, after what each of us has put up with.

My daughter, apparently celebrating Women's Lib year, or something, got herself pregnant again and I am expecting my first granddaughter (daughter underlined) any day now. Notice I said I am expecting. It used to be the mother who was expecting, but things are all cock-eyed these days.

Still in the family, I met a whole gaggle of cousins from the West I'd never seen before, cousins from the East I hadn't seen for 25 years, and sisters and brothers I hadn't seen for a couple. A great reunion, enough family stuff to do a fellow for the next decade.

There were many other high moments for me during 1975. Did some Auld Lang Syne-ing with newspaper friends. Caught a big pike and rode in a tiny Aeronca over the brooding, empty wilderness of northern Saskatchewan. Caught a big cold and rode in a taxi through the brooding, teeming wilderness of Toronto.

Beat my wife two-out-of-five in golf. Ignored the postal strike by writing 52 columns, even though some will never see print. Teetered through another three terms of teaching. Discovered that in another few years I would be eligible for a category-F pension. F stands for Five cans of pork and beans a week, which such a pension will provide.

All in all, a jolly good year, one for which I wouldn't trade anything, except a chance to do it over again.

Now for a brief look into the dim distances of 1976. Last year we were bored silly by Women's International Year. I predict that this year we will be bored right out of our skulls by two mountains of ennui — the American Bicentennial and the Canadian Olympic Games.

Not much else can be glimpsed there, in the murk and muddle. Unions will go on threatening, politicians will go on promising, the rich will get richer and the poor will get babies.

But, gloriously, people will go on being people: despicable and noble; anguished and triumphant; hating and loving; being born and dying. It's a great life, and the only one we have.

You go on doing your thing, and I'll go on doing mine. At the end of 1976 we'll make out our lists, and compare notes. I predict right here and now that we'll have just as many ups as downs, and will remember the ups and forget the downs.

Winners of the "B" Championship was the team from Chesterville who defeated Morrisburg 2 to 1 in their final game.

Both final games went into overtime periods and provided the crowd on hand with some exciting hockey action. The Cornwall team had Iroquois 3 to 0 at the end of the second period of their game, but Iroquois fought back in the third period to tie the game and force an overtime period which Cornwall won by virtue of their first goal.

A complete account of the scoring for all games can be found in the Post's Hockey Scoreboard.

TV RADIO NEWS

by Ross Mutton

Last fall, CBC announced that Viewpoint, which followed The National on week nights would be dropped as of the first week in January. Viewpoint has been a national joke for years now, as every night, out trooped all manner of people on network television to present their views. Many of them bumbled their way through their scripts, adding the only degree of excitement that the program could muster. In the last couple of years, some of the reports have come from various locations, with some of them even filmed outdoors dispensing with the plain background of a studio set. And admittedly, about once a week there was an interesting Viewpoint that would either inform, cause one to ponder or even invoke laughter.

Also a section in which Earl Cameron read letters from viewers was added. This was probably the most notable change for it was interesting, and often the Canadian sense of humour bubbled forth. On nights when the commentary was dull, dull dull you could always look forward to the letters. And that was followed by Earl's little twinkle of the eye and reassuring "Good Night". CBC Radio's "As It Happens" organized a "Save Viewpoint" Campaign but to no avail.

As of January 5 Viewpoint was no more, and Special Assignment took its place. Special Assignment is a nightly examination of various current news topics by a different CBC reporter each night. So far it has been more interesting than Viewpoint but the topics covered have been to broad to cover in the al otted five minutes. And then there was Jim Bitterman's versed look at Woman's Year which looked just like Viewpoint except that we were watching a CBC reporter Oh well, the opening's nice.

Last Sunday night, CBC FM Radio pioneered the use of the kunstopf microphone. This German microphone is actually shaped like the human head. The stereo sound from this device is reported to be spacially very realistic CBC FM are using the microphone in their series, Best Seat in the House, which features drama, classical music and jazz. For best listening results headphones, particularly the open-air type, are recommended.

If things go as planned for the CBC, FM radio reception could be improved for the areas west of us. CBC has applied for permission to put up a 460 foot tower just east of Maitland near Highway 2 to re-broadcast programs of the CBC FM stations in Ottawa. While it isn't really necessary for listeners in the Iroquois area, it will make quite a difference to those in Prescott and Brockville who are on the outside fringes of the Ottawa signal.

Nova has returned to PBS on Sunday nights at 8 p.m. It's an excellent science series and is repeated Tuesdays and Saturdays at 6:30 p m. PBS has also debuted a new series devoted to poetry. "Anyone for Tennyson?" is broadcast at 10 p.m Sundays.

what'S COMING

This Land at 8 p.m. Wednesday night on Ch. 4 reports on how mercury-poisoned water has affected the people of Grassy Narrows and the White Dog Reservation in northwestern Ontario. At 10 p.m. Barbara Walters hosts a special on how children are affected by parents' seperation or divorce. That's on Ch. 5.

The postponed edition of Maclear dealing with aircraft pilot fatigue will be aired on Ch. 13 at 9:30 Thursday night. At 10:30 on Ch. 4 Peep Show presents "A Country Fable", portraying a young man who has fallen in love, via television with Mary Tyler Moore.,

On Friday, Popi, a series based on the '69 movie of the same name, debuts on Global at 7:30. At 9 p.m. the Canadian Figure Skating Championships from London Ontario can be seen on Ch. 13. The Friday night program includes Senior Pairs, Senior Dance and the Senior Men's Short Program. It continues on Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m.

On the Friday late show scene, The Scarlet Pimpernel starring Leslie Howard, Merle Oberon and Raymond Massey is on Ch. 4 at 11:50.

On Saturday night at 8 p.m., CTV's movie is the assassin thriller, The Day of The Jackal. This '73 movie stars Edward Foxx. Ch. 24's double feature is devoted to special effects. At 8 p.m. they present Mighty Joe Young a 1949 updated version of King Kong. That is followed by Lost World, which is based on the Sir Arthur Conan Doyle story of an expedition into the depths of the Amazon Jungie. This one is a real oldie from 1925.

Unless you are a football fan, I don't suggest television for Sunday afternoon. Ch. 13, Pbs and Global are the only stations not carrying the Super Bowl from Miami. The Pittsburg Steelers meet the Dallas Cowboys at 2 p.m.

Baled Paper for Bedding

Rooney Feeds of Iroquois is offering a new service to area farmers with the sale of bales of shredded paper to be used as animal bedding. The bales produced by an Ottawa firm, Vanada Bale Mart, weigh 50 pounds each and are ideal for use as bedding for cattle, sheep, chickens, and other livestock.

Len Marcus, general Manager of Canada Bale Mart stressed that tests have been carried out on the bales to prove that they do not cause harm to cattie if the shredded paper is eaten along with hay. The paper is primarily used newspaper which is shredded and baled at the Hawthorne Road plant of Canada Bale Mart.

The bales will be delivered and stored at Rooney's in a large transport trailer and will be delivered to area farmers as they need them. Rooney Feeds have been granted distributorship for a wide area stretching from Brockville to Cornwall.

Aware of the present shortages of straw and shavings for animal bedding, Frank Rooney contacted the Ottawa firm and arranged for a load of the bales of shredded paper He is impressed with the fact that the paper breaks down completely when put back on the land with manure and sees the bales as filling a definite need for area farmers. The bales are available for delivery by Rooney's and it is expected that the dem and will exceed the supply.

Matilda Farmer Finds Success with Milk Program

A Matilda Township farmer John Vanderspank, and his son Bill have completed half of a milk improvement program made available to a number of eastern Ontario farmers. The program offered to around 140 farmers was taken advantage of by only 63 farmers, 13 of them in Dundas County. It was made available to farmers whose milk production was less than it should have been for the size of the herd.

Changes had to be made in the milking equipment, record keeping and sanitation. At the beginning of the program 44 out of 55 cows in the herd were suffering from mastitis. One of the most expensive aspects of the program was the dumping of all the milk produced for three days while the cattle were treated with penecillin to clear up the mastitis

By adhering closely to the milk improvement plan, milk production has risen from around 7 thousand pounds annually to around 13 thousand pounds. With improved record keeping the Vanderspanks are able to determine exactly what each pound of milk is costing them.

In addition the program has made such a difference that although they are now milking 47 head of cattle per day 11 less than last year the milk production for the month of December was 1000 pounds more than last year.

New Hydro Pole Policy

A broader and more flexible policy to compensate property owners for use of land required for low-voltage wood pole distribution lines is being implemented by Ontario Hydro. The policy, designed to ensure that every one directly affected is dealt with openly and equitably, encompasses land values, crop losses and inconveniences in working around power line structures.

Low-voltage lines are in most cases carried on single or twin wooden poles in areas directly served by Ontario Hydro. They are usually outside the boundaries of distribution systems operated by more than 350 municipal electric utilities and the majority are normally located on road allowances.

The program includes provision for securing easements on residential, commercial, industrial, and cottage properties, as well as farmland. Easements are negotiated only where Hydro lines physically occupy or overhang private property along boundary limits.

Approximately 6,000 property owners grant easements each year for low-voltage lines serving their communities. Normal width varies with line voltage, location and other factors, but 20-feet and 33-feet are most common. Underground cables require only a 10-foot easement.

An easement allows Ontario Hydro limited rights of land use. It may build a power line, enter the property from time to time to inspect, repair, maintain, or remove the line and do essential tree-cutting or trimming. Owners are paid for the easement and are fully compensated for initial tree-cutting and any crop or other damage caused during such work. Although not permitted to erect buildings on the easement area, owners retain ordinary use of the land along with the rest of their land rights.

The new policy became effective January 1, 1976 and will be reviewed every three years. The policy complements Hydro's property acquisition program for high-voltage transmission lines which was established in 1974. It was drafted following discussions with major farm organizations, the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Farm Credit Corporation and individual farmers.

Excited citizen on the phone: "You'll never believe this, but there's a bird in my house!" We believed it. After all, this was a very reliable source of information. The bird turned out to be a hawk who thought he was Santa Claus. For reasons known only to the bird, he came down the chimney landing in a flurry of soot on the hearth.

It is hard to say who was more startled the lady of the house, or the hawk who found himself in very strange surroundings; he tried to get out through the window, but only succeeded in bumping his head. Eventually he was grounded when a towel was thrown over him, and after being described in detail, the frightened bird was set free. A colour-scheme of grey and brown steaks large eyes a turned-down" beak and big feet left no question that it was a small Hawk probably a Sharp Shinned Hawk about 10 1/2 inches

This seems to be a hard winter for the small birds. As if roving hawks were not enough to contend with the Shrike appeared again on Sunday staying around for quite some time affording ample opportunity for a good look This was a Northern Shrike, which breeds in the North and comes to Southern Canada and Northern States in winter. It is a handsome bird but not at all popular near the feeders because of its inclination to prey on small birds

The first Redpoll arrived and although seen only once, is hopefully, part of a flock. Last year they did not come until the end of the season, and were just passing through to breeding grounds in the Arctic

The Bluejay has told his neighbours, and now there are five of them, screaming for service bustling back and forth like the proverbial blue streak.

A Chickadee condescended to "come to hand" and happily selected a fat sunflower seed from the bowl offered to him then with a chickety-chick comment which could only be interpreted as "thank you", he flew off to the shelter of a hedge to enjoy his prize

Lloyd—Baker Vows Heard

On Saturday, September 27th, 1975 at 3 p.m., Paula June, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Lloyd of Iroquois, and David Godfrey, son of Mrs. Ann Baker, Cardinal were united in marriage at St. Paul's Anglican Church, Cardinal. Rev. James Riesberry performed the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Riesberry was the organist for the occasion.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a long lace gown adorned with a pink floral trim and carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses miniature white carnations and baby's breath. The bride's headpiece consisted of pink and white mums with long flowing ribbons of the same colour.

The bride's best friend, Gwen Smollett of Iroquois was maid of honour, wearing a floor length powder blue empire waist dress with puff sleeves and carrying a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses, white and blue carnations and baby's breath. Her headpiece was identical to the bride's, only in blue and white.

Brant Davy, R.R.#3, Prescott, was best man. The ushers were Garry Tracey brother-in law of the bride, and Steven Liezert, both of R.R.#1, Cardinal.

The bride's mother wore a long blue, empire waist gown with matching jacket and a corsage of pink and white sweetheart roses. The groom's mother wore a long pink gown with matching jacket and a corsage of white sweetheart roses

A dinner reception was given by the St. Paul's Anglican Church Women in the Church Hall and an evening of dancing followed at the South Edwardsburg Community Centre.

After a brief honeymoon the couple are residing in Cardinal. Showers were given for the bride by Mrs. Jane Ewing and Gwen Smollett, Mrs. Marjorie Davy, Mrs. Ann Baker and Heather Baker and Mrs. Annette Tracey.

Guests came from Toronto Port Hope, Ottawa, and local areas.

In Memoriam

KELLY In loving memory of Charles J. Kelly who departed from this life January 22 1974. This month comes with sad regret
Recalling a day we'll never forget
He lived a life of kindly deeds
A helping hand to those in need
A pleasant smile a heart of gold
No finer Husband and Father this world could know
So treasure him, Lord, in your garden of rest
For when on earth, he was one of the best.

Iroquois U.C.W. Hold Jan. Meeting

The January general meeting of the Iroquois United Church Women was held in the church parlour on Thursday, the 8th, with an attendance of 14

The worship service on the "Heights of Christian Experience" was well taken by Joan Gee and Judy Payne. Mrs. Gee then continued with the program "Remembering events taking place over the last twenty-five years." Small discussion groups were formed to discuss the following questions and to report their findings: What changes have you seen at a local or personal level? What changes have you seen nationally? What changes have you seen world-wide? These changes seen world-wide? These three changes were in regard to the Church.

We also discussed: Changes in our own lives in the last 25 years and Significant changes, in general, in the last 25 years.

After our worth-while discussions, we enjoyed delicious refreshments served by Edith Thorpe Judy Payne and Joan Gee.

Annual Meet

Annual meeting of Pittston United Church was held Sunday afternoon, 2 p.m at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Webb with a good attendance. Mr. Fred Patterson presided over meeting with Mrs. Reg Conners as Secretary: Several reports and the Treasurer's report were read, showing a very satisfying balance on hand.

General business and plans for Church Anniversary early in May. A committee named to have an outside plaque made for the Church Sunday School reported a good year, it too had a balance.

The meeting adjourned and a social time followed with serving of sandwiches, fancy cakes, tea and coffee by the hostess Mrs. Webb.
