A person who flies in a rage sometimes lands in trouble.

CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

We staggered home to the Castle bearing the scars of battle and a noble bend in the sacroiliac. Hunting the lithe red deer has certain fascinating aspects, not the least of which is the debris it leaves behind. In this shuddering instance, the debris resembles a cross between d.t.'s and a train wreck. And all because of one moment of careless rapture over a dead moose.

Did you ever, dear reader, gaze upon a large, very dead, very completely dead moose half buried in a balsam swamp? Did you ever become so interested in the struggles of a mess of Lilliputians trying to haul the beast into more seemly territory you forgot yourself and decided to lend a puny hand? Did you ever drag, pant, grunt and scratch so hard your eyes got tangled in the underbrush and your tongue resembled the handle on the pump? If you ever did, you should know better the next time.

It all happened because the noted garage owner and school bus operator of the camp laid his reputation on the line and decided to try his eldest scion's new rifle. When it came testing time, father lined up the smoke pole against the target of a large, cranky, bull moose. The moose came out second best, but the location of the joust was just about as poor a selection of location as possible. There wasn't even a tree big enough to hang the beast. Like most balsam swamps the nearest thing to a big tree was fish-pole size. Finally the monstrous hunk of wild beef was hung in a tall pine, the hunters were all hung in the shrubbery like limp wet wash and everybody was happy.

Our own particular contribution to camp lore and fireside chats is one of some small notice. This writer met up with a bear, the bear resented the appearance, but ran from the encounter. With considerable aplomb we raised the trusty Savage, laid the crosshairs of the 'scope on the south end of the north-travelling bear and touched her off. The results were as expected and the changes in that bear's anatomy were immediately apparent.

There are times when the v.p. and child take our heart-rending cries of misery to their compassionate bosoms. But not after our valiant efforts each year in the woods to get meat to eat for the cold winter months. It seems we have yet to convince the women we go up there for reasons other than their health and welfare. And when we suffer in the process, they seem to disbelieve us. We have even related of times when a small amount of anaesthetic would be necessary at night to quell the pain so we could settle down to a quiet book or a calm discussion of the role of the male and female termite in modern ranch-type houses. None of our cries are heeded, and anyway this year's hunt has made enough conversation to last all winter once again. A double-barrelled bear, three bull moose and a mess of deer should make quite a nugget to start any hot-stove discussion.

F. M. Cass to new post in Ontario Government

Last week premier John P. Robarts made his expected announcements of changes in the make-up of his cabinet. The new minister of Highways is the former minister of Agriculture, William Goodfellow. Fred M. Cass, Q.C., and member for Grenville-Dundas, becomes minister of the important department of Municipal Affairs.

Hon. F. M. Cass

Mr Cass held the Highways portfolio under Mr Frost since 1958. He was first elected to the riding seat in 1955. Other members of the new cabinet are as follows:

Archibald Kelso Roberts, Q.C., Attorney General and minister in charge of Dept. Insurance; Chas. Dailey, minister without Portfolio; Louis Pierre Cecile, Q.C., minister of Public Welfare; William Kenneth Warrender, Q.C., minister of Labour; James Noble Allan, Treasurer; William McAdam Nickle, Q.C., minister without Portfolio; Bryan Lewis Cathcart, minister of Travel and Publicity; Thomas Ray Connell, minister of Public Works; Matthew Bulloch Dymond, M.D., minister of Health; Joseph Wilfred Spooner, minister of Lands and Forests; John Yaremko, Q.C., Provincial Secretary and minister of Citizenship.

Robert William Macauley, Q.C., minister of Energy Resources, minister of Commerce and Development, minister in charge of Dept. of Economics and 1st vice-chairman, H.E.P.C.; George Calvin Wardrope, minister of Mines; Henry Leslie Rowntree, Q.C., minister of Transport; Allan Grossman, minister without Portfolio; William Atcheson Stewart, minister of Agriculture; Charles Steel MacNaughton, minister without Portfolio; Irwin Haskett, minister of Reform Institutions.

Fred M. Cass, new minister of Municipal Affairs.

Hunters report small success red deer scarce

Hunters down from the North bush report a very poor kill of red deer this year. Reasons given range from heavy winter kills from deep snow and late springs to area flooding by busy beaver. White cedar swamps suffer most when the big rodents get in their dams across the swamp outlets.

Chalk River gangs had few deer to show for the first week. Finch hung three, Clear Lake a pair and a calf moose, Egan Lake had two bucks and three bull moose. Smith Falls camp got tired of luckless days and pulled out last Thursday empty-handed. Ross Cass formerly of this town is one of its members. Wm. Nash and Ab. Merkley had a bear and a deer up by Sunday at Bass Lake. The Calabogie crew came home on Sunday with two big does, one over 135 pound according to reeve Carl Merkley who is a member of that hunt.

Down here in the townships the luck was much better. Nearly all the day hunters report just as many deer as usual and the luck about the same. Hard hunting seems to have produced a deer for about every three hunters locally.

Commencement Fri. night students to receive awards

This Friday night, principal Allison Graham has arranged for the annual commencement of Chesterville High School to be held in Community Hall. A bumper crowd is expected for the affair and for the dance that will follow.

Every year at Commencement, students receive their graduation diplomas, scholastic awards and athletic trophies. This year the featured speaker will be the Hon.

Mrs Wesley Cross injured now in hospital

This week, on Tuesday, Mrs Wesley Cross suffered an accident to her right hand that may lead to serious complications.

She was operating her washing machine when in some manner her right hand became caught in the wringer rollers. She managed to free herself, but not before the right hand fingers had suffered much damage. She crossed Water Street to the residence of Eric Casselman where Mrs Casselman called medical aid.

Mrs Cross was taken to Winchester Hospital, where she remains now. She is under the care of Dr Duane Justus. She is 92 years of age.

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to extend my sincere thanks to my friends, relatives and neighbours for their cards, flowers, treats and visits while I was a patient in Winchester Hospital. Special thanks to my doctors, nurses and ministers.

Dundas Holstein Club holds banquet

The annual Dundas Holstein Breeders' Club banquet was held in the hall of Iroquois United Church. Even this spacious room was filled when 240 persons turned out for the event. The ladies of Brinston United Church provided the ample supply of turkey, pie and confections.

A relaxing evening of entertainment and trophy presentations followed the banquet. Basil Dawley, Winchester, president of the club, was chairman of the program, while Bernard Brunt, Williamsburg, club vice-president, introduced head table guests.

John Thompson, deputy-reeve of Matilda, welcomed the gathering to the township.

Lorne Henderson, Brinston, was this year's winner of the Biccum Trophy for the Premier Breeder Award at the Dundas Black and White Show. Howard Biccum, Winchestre, a former president of the club, made the presentation.

The banners to the county's premier breeder and premier exhibitor for 1961 were presented by Grant Smith, fieldman of the Holstein-Friesian Association. The winner of the exhibitor banner was Hugh Blaine, Mountain. Mr Smith also presented over 20 certificates of production to the owners of cows which had produced more than 100,000 pounds of milk.

Some very enjoyable singing was supplied by Master Roger Morrell, accompanied by his aunt, Mrs Ken McGowan, and Gerald Adams, accompanied by Mrs Maefred Merkley. Mrs John Thompson added to the enjoyment with a humorous recitation on the trials of farm life.

Finch cow sets new record sweeps board at Royal

Mr and Mrs Don MacIntyre of Finch are feeling proud of their well-known prize winning Ayrshire, Sunnydale Alice 7th. Alice went to Toronto Royal this week after her triumph at Ottawa. Tuesday she copped the Grand Championship ribbons for the fourth time in a row. This is a record that has never been equalled in Royal history.

Another interesting note is that her two-year-old daughter, Donholm Cindy 7th, was declared reserve Grand Champion and her yearling daughter, Donholm Luck Pretty Girl, won he Junior Championship.

Among the awards received by the MacIntyres is the Balig Challenge Trophy, presented in person by John McIlwraith, Scotland, to the grand champion and the Erle Kitchen Trophy for the first prize cow with the highest ROP record.

High School News

At the beginning of last week, Mr Blondin of C.H.S. staff was absent but soon came back with a big, big, smile and lots of cigars. The reason, an addition to his family, namely a lovely new baby girl. Hearty congratulations go out from all the students to Mr and Mrs Blondin on this happy moment.

On a more serious note, Mr Graham gave out the October test results. Some students were quite pleased and others saw more work in store. Letters have been sent to all parents.

In the Remembrance Day ceremonies, the Chesterville High School band accompanied by the majorettes played and marched in the parade. Paul Wright sounded "The Last Post" in a very moving manner.

The students are looking forward to the end of the week when Commencement exercises will take place. There are many awards to be presented, among them the trophies for field day and the various academic awards for the past school year. During the programme the Hon. F. M. Cass will speak to us. The Commencement will end with a dance for students and guests.

On Friday last, Grade 12 students held court and tried Napoleon. Students acted as judge, lawyers and witnesses. Grade 13 students made up the jury. The verdict was that Napoleon must be exiled. A good deal of history was learned in a pleasant manner.

The trial was recorded on the new Students' council tape recorder and was checked over by Mr DeRoo for errors. Miss Montcalm also uses it for instruction in languages.

OPINIONS . . .
OURS AND OTHERS

A shot in the arm for Municipal Affairs

Much speculation has come to a sudden stop with last week's announcement by Premier John P. Robarts, Ontario's new helmsman. As was expected a number of changes have been announced in the cabinet. The one that was of most interest to this riding and district was the spot reserved for Fred. M. Cass, Q.C., former Highways Minister of the Frost cabinet.

Mr Cass becomes the new Minister of Municipal Affairs, and his many admirers are more than pleased to see him retained as a minister, and especially to be offered the strong one of Municipal Affairs.

These columns, of late especially, have offered considerable criticism of some of the seeming slip-shod methods local municipal officials have encountered when they have had to deal with the office of that ministry. Our close acquaintance with the cabinet minister, as well as some personal knowledge of his administrative ability, leads us to think there will be some changes made. One of the first is apt to be a general tightening of office routines to disallow such things as misplaced or lost local municipal money resolutions and by-laws.

Mr Cass is to be congratulated on his continuing importance in the seats of the mighty in Ontario political circles. The governing Conservatives hold strength in depth that will make it difficult for the Opposition to assault the strongholds. We wish Fred well in his vital and important post of Minister of Municipal Affairs.

Christmas treats and parades this year?

A small community crisis has arisen. For the first time in many a day, it would seem there will not be a sponsor for the annual Christmas treat program and parade. Sponsored of late years by the local Women's Institute, supported by money and help from other organizations, the ladies have done the bulk of the work. They took over the job when the Rotary Club finally let it drop. This year the W.I. will help, but feel they must expend their energies in other directions.

Chesterville Chamber of Commerce will probably offer all the limited support that group can muster. But the membership rolls show a disappointingly small number of active members for 1961. President Brian Coyne is willing to bend every effort to make the Christmas affair a success, but as he says, his group's resources are limited.

Other communities make an outright canvass of their business community for the big Christmas treat day. Parades are formed up, prizes given, stores run special promotions, some towns have Santa airlifted to the village green by helicopter. Generally a sudden lift is given to the last few days of the Christmas shopping season. In each successful promotion, the businessmen of the community dug down and came up with a fat chunk of the promotion costs. A central planning and operating committee is chosen to take the thing in hand. Like most well-oiled machines, the Christmas visit of Santa to the village then becomes a real whoopdedoo for the kids, and a few sheckels reach the businessman's till.

It would appear to this newspaper, a general meeting of those interested should be called fairly soon. The Chamber of Commerce seems the logical place to look for initial leadership, but they must have full and complete support of all the businessmen and organizations of the community.

There is little enough time left now.

Young Canada Book Week

This coming week is the one week of the year we would like to call attention to a municipal unit in Chesterville worth its weight in solid gold. Young Canada Book Week takes on added emphasis here when we take a peek at the number of youngsters who patronize the library.

Every year's end it is worth a moment's thought to note the number of books that have entered the hands of the young people. We say that thousands of books have been read and the figures are there to prove that by far the greatest proportion of books taken out are by youthful readers.

It seems to this writer there is considerable satisfaction to be gained when we think for a moment on that cold statistic. Every book that is read will add something to the stature of the reader. If the book is good, the effect is good. If the book is bad, we hope the reader will have the developed reading ability to discard the bad parts. But as the grist for the reader's mill continues, he will begin to pick and choose and absorb the all-important thoughts and ideas that are communicated only through the repetition of the printed word. A book read is a treasure added to life's store. We here are fortunate to have an Aladdin's Cave of good books available for the youthful not only during Young Canada Book Week, but all year.

The BIBLE TODAY . . .

When Reverend A. W. Marthinson, Bible Society Secretary in the Congo, visited Reverend A. Graber, Director of the Congo Protestant Relief Agency in Bakwanga, recently, he was present when an old Congolese chief called on Mr Graber. He told how he had lost everything. His wife, who belonged to the Luluas, was "stolen" and his children were taken away. He lost his goats and his sewing machine. Then he said, "I lost my Bible, now I am a refugee here. I own nothing. I can't find my family and I can't start a new family. I have nothing to buy a wife with."

A new copy of the Holy Bible was placed in his hands. His face shone as he took the Book into his hand with loving care. This was to him a most prized and precious possession. Mr Graber also supplied him with some food and this poor, deprived man went away greatly comforted.

Mr Marthinson has supplied many copies of the Scriptures in the refugee camps in the Congo and more recently for the Umbundu people who have fled to the Congo from the persecution in Angola.

NAMING THE PUMPKIN

Did you ever wonder how the pumpkin got it's name? It is derived from the Greek "pepon," a large melon, says Dr R. J. Hilton, head of the Department of Horticulture at O.A.C.

The Latin form changed from "pepon" to "pompon" to "pumpion." Finally, the name pumpkin was reached by changing the ending to the diminutive "kin." The name means "mature when cooked by the sun."

SNAILS AT WAR

A small war has broken out in the Seychelles; but the contestants are snails, which presumably will fight only at their own pace.

Vegetables, fruit and rice crops on these islands of the Indian Ocean have been devastated by hordes of giant snails, most of them as much as eight inches long. Teams of men have worked hard to check them by using poison spray, but this method had to be abandoned when water supplies were likely to be affected. Then someone remembered a spcies of small snail which preyed on the crop-eating type.

An army of these little snails was flown in—a sort of airborne invasion—from the island of Mauritius, 1,200 miles to the south of the Seychelles. Watch is now being kept on this Battle of the Snails, but if it is fought at a snail's pace, results may not be evident for some time. In the meantime, another airlift has brought much-needed food to the people of the villages most affected by the ravages of the giant snails.

Snails have also crept into the news in another part of the world—in the Philippines. There on the island of Guimaras giant snails have destroyed crops over some 400 acres, and 8,000 families face difficult times.

Damascus, capital of Syria, has existed as a city for more than 4,000 years.

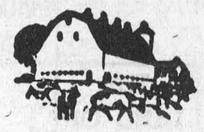
FRENDLEE FARM CHATS



By Lillian Allison

It's over nineteen hundred years now since women began to come into their own. Oh, there were a few won a place in history before that time. Eve made it by eating the forbidden apple. Delilah won doubtful glory by cutting off Sampson's hair. Bathsheba was quite a gal in her day as was Ahab's wife, Jezebel. But it wasn't until after the beginning of the Christian era that women began to be regarded as a little more than walking incubators.

In most parts of the world women enjoy an entirely different life today. But many women in some areas haven't quite made it yet. In certain eastern countries women still wear veils in public. Many East Indian women live in purdah and must not permit any man, except their own husbands, to see them. These customs, fortunately are changing every day.

In fact these women are gaining their rights faster than we in the western world gained ours. It took centuries for us to reach our present standing. For years education was denied women. They couldn't own property. Their place was in the home and they were expected to stay there. As late as the 19th century a woman writer didn't dare sign her name to her work. Books written by women would never have sold. When Mary Ann Evans wrote her novels she used the name George Eliot. She wouldn't have dared try to sell a book under her own name. There were male nurses, male teachers, male clerks, women stayed home and that was that.

Florence Nightingale was among the first with the courage to enter a vocation completely foreign to her sex. She went as a nurse to the soldiers in the Crimean War. And that was just over a hundred years ago.

Other women then jumped onto the bandwagon. They began to nurse, to teach. By the turn of the century they were going to the universities — a few of them that is. They weren't very welcome, of course. The men students tried to elbow them out but the hardy ladies stuck to their guns. So in due time the colleges graduated a few lady doctors and lawyers.

Then the women really got the bug to do things. They events that occurre during the wanted to vote. Some of the women's suffrage movement are a discredit to both sexes. The girls were adamant, however, and they finally won. In Canada they cast their first ballot in the general election of 1921.

Given an inch they wanted a mile. They wanted to sit in parliament and in the Senate. First of all legislation had to be passed admitting that women were "persons." It was a happy day for Mrs Emily Murphy who had laboured so hard for women's rights when Parliament in London passed the Bill. But it was a disappointment for her when Hon. Cairine Wilson was named first Senator.

It was indeed a hard climb up to the plateau which women now enjoy. Today it is possible for women to hold almost any position open to men. There are a few exceptions, however. One that comes to mind is the fact that some churches will not yet permit women members of their clergy.

We have reached the plateau, though. And a plateau it seems to be.

We have a few women lawyers in this country. There is the odd woman doctor and obstetrician. We have women professors. There are some women in the field of real estate and insurance. A few have entered the world of finance. Several have Reverend in front of their names. They are in entertainment. Quite a few sit on school boards and municipal councils. A limited number have been mayors and reeves. Some half dozen are in the Senate. Five sit in the House of Commons. One is a member of the Cabinet.

We're quite pleased with ourselves. We've really got it made. We can go back to th kitchens now and pat our own backs.

United Nations Report

By Mrs Jean Casselman, M.P.

In so many different ways there has been a breath-taking piece of history writing itself at the 16th Session of the United Nations.

In spite of all efforts at disarmament so admirably led and cleverly promoted by Canada, the U.S.S.R. continues nuclear tests. By undertaking the 50 megaton test the U.S.S.R. deliberately overrode world opinion as expressed in the United Nations overwhelminging vote against further nuclear testing on October 28. It seems that Russia cares nothing for world opinion. Still this opinion is forming fast and may be more effective against them than the Communists realize or expect.

Meanwhile more quietly but nonetheless important new nations join the Parliament of the World here in New York. With the entrance of Outer Mongolia and Mauritania there are 104 members, more than twice the original membership of the United Nations.

Although membership in the United Nations is to be open to all peace-loving states which accept the obligations contained in the Charter, these last two entered in a complicated balancing of power. China was persuaded to abstain from using her veto against Outer Mongolia in the hope that Mauritania's African friends would not go against her and support Red China in the struggle for Chinese representation.

If the arrival at the U.N. of these last two nations has somewhat bewildered the idealists, for the 100th nation, Sierra Leone, there was a clear unadulterated welcome.

Sierra Leone is a little state in North-West Africa between Liberia and Guinea. These neighbouring states co-sponsored Sierra Leone's application for membership, as did members of the Commonwealth.

In his speech of welcome to the new nation Lord Home, the United Kingdom Foreign Minister, referred to the long history of this land known to the Carthaginians 500 years before Christ. He continued with a short synopsis of the intriguing contribution of this country to the problems of displaced persons, long before this terminology was used in discussing readjustments to strife which has always afflicted mankind.

Lord Home states "But it is really the name of the capital, Freetown, which tells us more than anything else about Sierra Leone. Because Freetown was just that—a place where the slaves were brought back to start life afresh and be free. And when they came back and they gathered together under a cotton tree, I believe, 175 years ago, they started the first tentative experiments in self-government and democracy. So, Sierra Leone comes to us as a country which not only welcomed people back home who had been slaves, but brought into their country, too, and welded them together with the people from inland; and so they have an experience in harmonizing the interests of different peoples within a single community."

The representative from Ghana mentioned what a tower of intellectual strength Sierra Leone had been to the other African nations.

In keeping with her long tradition of education and development, this state entered the United Nations with the utmost dignity. Her able and respected Prime Minister Sir Milton Margae, in marked contrast to the bitterness of some new naions, expressed his thanks to the United Kingdom who made their transition from a colonial dependency to an equal member of the Commonwealth such an orderly, peaceful and friendly process. He stated "We have no territorial ambitions, and we seek not position of leadership. We ask only that, as we request the sovereign rights of all countries, our own sovereignty will be similarly respected. With this assurance we offer our co-operation, first to our neighbours in Africa and then to all other countries in every effort to restore and maintain human dignity everywhere, to establish firm foundations for peace, and to improve the physical, social and spiritual well-being of all mankind.

"Finally, it is because we had confidence in the aims and objectives of the Charter of the United Nations that we sought membership in it. This confidence, now that we are members, inspires us to look beyond the mists which appear to dim the road immediately ahead. Although the future seems dark, let us not let go of each other's hands, and let us collectively put our hands in the hand of God who alone can bless our efforts by leading us through our present difficulties to lasting peace and goodwill."

Fine and splendid sentiments, with which all agree, can come from any part of the world.

The ten delegates from Sierra Leone entered their seats dressed in togas of white, blue, green, some plain, some patterned in flowers or in gold. Each wore very individual headgear, turbans, a high large net pink one and richly decorated pill boxes with gold tassles.

The greatness of the United Nations is the proof that differences of fashion, colour of skin, and historical background can be encompassed naturally by people looking to the future with hopes for peace and tolerance between all human beings.

Thompson–Gain

Friday evening, November 10, at 8 p.m., Morewood United Church was the scene of the marriage of Alice Patricia Gain and J. C. Stephen Thompson. The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Allan Gain and the groom is a son of Mr and Mrs Lorne Thompson.

The double-ring ceremony, conducted in candle light, was performed by Rev D. L. Gordon. Baskets of white chrysanthemums and red oak leaves decorated the altar.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white velvet gown, ballet length, tight bodice and gored skirt with rosettes in the back at the waistline, and with long sleeves coming to a point at the wrist. Her shoulder-length veil was of silk net, dotted with pearls and held by a small crown trimmed with pearl beading. She wore a pearl necklace and ear-rings and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and trailing ivy.

Mrs Eric Thompson was matron of honour. Her gown, of candy pink velvet, was similar to the bride's in design. She carried a bouquet of pale pink and candy pink carnations.

Best man was Eric Thompson, brother of the groom. Ushers were Douglas Thompson and Alvin Gain.

A solo, "I Love You Truly," was sung by Miss Carol Countryman.

The bride's mother wore a deep blue two-piece Jersey dress with beige accessories and a corsage of red carnations. The mother of the groom wore a blue flowered print dress with black accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations.

CFRA builds tower in sky with aid of helicopters

"Operation High Tower" the first commercial construction project of its kind in Canada, was carried out successfully in the Gatineau Hills North of Ottawa, recently.

The operation, which involved four helicopters and precision engineering techniques, was conceived by the President of CFRA Broadcasting Limited, Frank Ryan. His idea was to facilitate construction of CFRA's new 146,000 watt FM transmitter tower and building.

Within the amazingly short space of three days, the helicopters airlifted almost 150 tons of crushed-stone fill and concrete for the base of the transmitter building, a three hundred foot steel transmitting tower, and a 16 -by- 36 foot transmitter house.

Taking part in "Operation High Tower" was Vertol Aircraft of Arnprior, Spartan Air Services of Ottawa, E. Quipp Construction experts of Ottawa and CFRA engineers.

Contractor Eddie Quipp said that the project would have taken at least two months without the service of the helicopters, if he and his men had had to transport heavy materials up the mountainside by conventional methods.

On Monday, November 6th, the Vertol 42A twin-rotor helicopter from Arnprior airlifted between 60 and 80 tons of crushed-stone from a gravel pit on the Gatineau River bank to the site of CFRA's new FM installation on the Skyline Ridge atop the ski hills at Camp Fortune.

Tuesday, another 75 tons of specially-treated concrete was transported by the "flying banana" from the Amyot Ready-Mix Plant in Hull to the transmitter site, ten miles away, the way the crow (and helicopter) flies.

Thursday, the critical, but most exciting phase of "Operation High Tower", was watched by thousands of Ottawa-Hull and area residents. One mother told CFRA she kept her young son home from school to witness the exciting spectacle.

The Vertol 42A 'copter, escorted by two Bell whirlybirds, hooked on to one-half of the CFRA-FM transmitter building at Kilreen Farm in the West end of Ottawa and lifted it dramatically and securely to the top of Skyline Ridge, 20 miles away, but closer to 30 miles in flying distance because the heavy cargo load, suspended by steel cable and buffeted by the wind, was taken by a roundabout route to avoid passing over the city. This procedure was repeated with the other half of the building.

The 4 ton steel building was manoevred into position so that only six inches separated the two sections, making it simple for the engineers to put them together again.

The Vertol work-horse then returned to Kilreen Farm, and flew the three - hundred - foot broadcasting tower in dangling sections to the top of the mountain at Camp Fortune. While the Vertol 42A 'copter hovered overhead, Ajax Tower enginers, fighting the 100-mile-an-hour downdraft from the twin rotors of the helicopter, guided the 107-foot main tower section onto its tiny base, quickly fastened guy wires to the swaying one-ton steel tower and secured them to guy blocks around the base of the tower. It was a breath-taking moment, filled with suspense.

The climax came with the sliding home of a cotter pin, which required accuracy of placement by the helicopter within a fraction of an inch.

All concerned with "Operation High Tower" termed the three-day history-making construction job, a tremendous success.

Mr Ryan, pleased and excited at having been on top of Skyline Ridge broadcasting his "Farmer's Notebook" "live" when the first section of the transmitter house was put down from the sky, paid tribute to the skill of the pilots and the engineers.

He said that, thanks to the co-operation of Vertol Aircraft of Arnprior, Spartan Air Services of Ottawa, and E. Quipp and Company Construction Engineers, CFRA-FM will be serving Eastern Ontario and Western Quebec with 146,000 Watts of high-fidelity broadcasting from the unequalled vantage point on the Gatineau mountaintop.

Mr Ryan said that the success of "Operation High Tower" meant that CFRA-FM will be able to increase power through the use of the new transmitter facilities at Camp Fortune, some time before Christmas.

English has been adopted as the second tongue in the Indonesian Republic, formerly the Dutch East Indies.

Wells–Casselman

A quiet wedding was solemnized at Williamsburg Lutheran Church when Rev A. Blackwell joined in marriage Mary Ellyn Casselman and Donald Lloyd Wells.

The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Eric Casselman and the groom is the son of Mr and Mrs John H. Wells, all of Williamsburg.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length gown of white satin brocade. A tiara of seed pearls held her shoulder-length veil and she wore a corsage of red roses.

Miss Myrna Casselman, sister of the bride as bridesmaid, wore a mauve velvet street-length dress with white accessories and a corsage of white chrysanthemums.

The groom was attended by Glen Casselman, of Inkerman, as best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Colquhoun hall where the mother of the bride received the guests wearing a plum coloured crepe dress with black accessories and a corsage of yellow carnations.

She was assisted by the mother of the grom who chose a dress of olive green wool with matching accessories and a corsage of bronze chrysanthemums. After a wedding trip to Northern U.S.A., the couple will reside near Williamsburg.

IN MEMORIAM

BARKLEY—In loving memory of our dear Dad, Grant Barkley, who passed away suddenly November 13, 1953.

Since you've gone first and we remain
To walk the road,
We live in memory's garden dear
With happy day's we've known.
We want to know each step you take
That we may walk the same,
For some day down that lonely road
You'll hear us call your name.
Keep him, Jesus in Thy keeping
Till we reach that shining shore,
Then O Saviour let us have him
And love him as we did before.

Always remebered by the Family.

Don't saddle Dobbin with a leaky roof!

Poor horse. His reward for a lifetime of hard work is rain in the face. Why doesn't the boss get the roof fixed? Even a horse knows that leaks left unattended just get worse. If money's the problem, all that's needed is to apply for a Scotiabank Farm Improvement Loan. A Scotiabank Loan is available easily and quickly for repairing buildings, buying new machinery, upgrading livestock, and many other worthwhile projects.

New Night Economy Plan and Other Long Distance Reductions

On our new Night Economy plan you can now call your out-of-town family and friends in Ontario and Quebec at less cost! On any Bell Company station-to-station call within Ontario or Quebec, placed after 9 p.m., you will pay the low night rate for the first five minutes—but don't hang up yet; There is no additional charge for the next five minutes, and then for each two additional minutes, you will be charged only one.

Increased automation has enabled us to pass along to our customers the economies on station-to-station calls. Calls requiring the services of an operator will, however, now reflect more closely their actual costs. For example, Person-to-Person calls are more expensive for distances up to 276 miles, with reductions for greater distances. The Night and Sunday discount for Person-toPerson calls is also eliminated, and the surcharge for third member or "collect" calls has been increased from 10 to 20 cents. I know you will enjoy being able to talk more for the same charges.

Santa is feverishly working on his Christmas list—just as you and I are. Speaking of remembering folks at Christmas, one of the finest ways to make a lasting impression on your loved ones is to provide them with a thing of beauty that will give them year-round convenience and pleasure—a constant reminder of your thoughtfulness. May we suggest that an extension phone in colour in the bedroom, kitchen, den or basement workshop would give this sort of pleasure and convenience. Why not provide someone dear to you with extension telephone service this Christmas? It's something that's sure to be well used and appreciated throughout the year. And, as an added feature, this year we will Christmas-wrap the extension phone of your choice—Princess wall or table phone, to put under the tree. One of our installers will come after Christmas to connect it where it's wanted. If the extension service is for relatives or friends, you can arrange payment on your own phone bill. To order, just call our Business Office at Zenith 60,000 or ask the man in our green truck.

BE CAUTIOUS WITH ELECTRICITY

While the average homeowner is quite capable of changing a burned out light bulb or replacing a blown fuse, any changes or repairs to the electrical system of a house should be entrusted only to a qualified electrician, warns Central Housing and Mortgage Corporation.

This is particularly important if additional outlets are to be installed as each electrical circuit in the house is rated to carry only a limited power load. If extra outlets are to be provided it may be necessary to alter the circuits or install a fuse box that will accommodate more circuits. In certain cases, lead-in wires may have to be replaced with wires of a heavier gauge.

Proper precautions should be taken when work of any type is to be carried out on the electrical system. For instance, the main switch should always be thrown off before replacing a burned out fuse as accidental contact with any live part of the circuit could result in a severe electrical shock or even prove fatal.

The use of fuses of the proper rating is essential for overrated fuses will cause the wires in the circuit to heat when too many appliances, or appliances which use a large amount of electricity, are connected. When electrical wires get overheated a real fire danger is created. This is especially hazardous when the wires are enclosed in walls and ceilings constructed of lumber or other inflammable material. Fires from this cause rank high in the number of Canadian homes damaged or destroyed by fire each year.

A 15-amp fuse is sufficient for most lighting circuits but higher rated fuses may be used for those circuits serving heavy appliances provided adequate wiring has been installed. Under no circumstances should a coin or other piece of metal be substituted for a fuse.

If the lights dim when an appliance such as a refrigerator starts, it is an indication that the circuit is overloaded. Another symptom is when an electric iron or toaster heats slowly or a motor seems to have trouble starting. Do not hesitate to call a qualified electrician if you are not sure where the trouble is. His experience is your protection.

GARDEN HOSE

With a little care, your garden hose can come through the winter in good condition. Hang it up carefully, and avoid sharp bends or kinks. Be sure there is no water in it that may freeze.

TRACES ORIGIN OF FISHING BOAT

The origin of the fishing boat, like that of the fish-hook, is hidden in the dim past, T. C. Cusson, Conservation Officer with the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, points out.

Many centuries after some prehistoric man first discovered that a dry log would assist him in crossing a stream, he lashed two logs together with flexible roots and the raft was born. This permitted the operator to sit or stand upright and, by paddling with his hands and feet, he gained some control over the craft.

Later, he learned to use a pole to shove the raft and, by flattening the ends of the pole, he formed a paddle. Ever since that time, the boat has been as indispensable as the fish-hook, for many kinds of fishing.

Dugouts have been used by primitive people for thousands of years. This development was a logical step from the single dry log as a means of transportation. These were constructed from large trees hollowed by fire and crude tools.

The birchbark canoe used by the northern Indians is probably a modification of the dugout. The kayak and umiak used by the Eskimos probably originated in a similar manner. Lack of large trees forced these Arctic dwellers to use other materials. Seal skins became the standard covering for these seaworthy little boats in which the Eskimo still braves the icy waters.

Boats of fitted planks and timbers were developed soon after the invention of metal tools. The modern sport fishing boat has been subjected to many radical changes. Both inboard and outboard motors demand boats of special design and construction.

The ancestors of the modern sport fishing boat were the dugout, the birchbark canoe, the kayak, the punt, the pram and the whaleboat, all of which were designed for a particular use and frequently meant the difference between life and death to the hunter, the sealer, the whaler and the modern sport fisherman who uses an adaptation of the craft developed long ago for other purposes.

Heat butter and oil in large, heavy skillet. Add garlic . Add chicken pieces and cook until browned on all sides.

Add onions, green pepper, tomatoes, tomato sauce, parsley, salt, pepper, oregano and paprika. Cover tightly and simmer 30 minutes, turning 2 or 3 times.

TREE CARE

Don't use paint to cover bark wounds on trees; it's a common, but useless, remedy that often does the tree harm. Horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture suggest the following procedure:

Trim the bark off with a sharp knife, to form a boat-shaped wound rather than a ragged one. Coat the bark and cambium with shellac. Smooth off the wood and paint it with a disinfectant such as creosote or corrosive sublimate. Avoid the use of these materials on the cambium itself.

Vallance and Mrs William Vallance, Natley and Sharon, Cornwall.

McMillan–Gray

Rev. William Sutherland, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Winchester, officiated at the double-ring ceremony, uniting in marriage Marian Grace, only daughter of Mr and Mrs Neil Gray of Winchester and John Hyndman, only son of Mr and Mrs Hyndman McMillan of Elma.

The church was decorated with potted ferns and chrysanhemums. Mrs Hugh Wilson presided at the organ. Mrs Orean English, aunt of the groom sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "I'll Walk Beside You."

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white velvet. The fitted bodice was styled with a round neckline and long lily-point sleeves. The bouffant skirt extended to a short train. Her shoulder-length veil of silk illusion fell from a crown of rhinestones and pearls and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and Stephanotis.

Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls and matching ear-rings a gift of the groom.

Miss Judy Geggie was maid of honour, while the bridemaids were Miss Mary McMillan and Miss Helen Allen. The bride's attendants wore identically-styled gowns of blue velvet, fashioned with full skirts, draped necklines and long fitted sleeves. They wore small bow hats of the same material, blue shoes and carried rd and pink roses.

Mr Earl Gray was best man and ushering the guests were Mr Gordon Whittaker and Mr George Carruthers.

The bride's gift to the groom was a diamond tie bar and to her attendants silver broaches and ear-rings.

The groom's gift to his attendants was tie-bars and suff-links.

Mrs Gray, the brid's mother, wore a dress of green brocaded satin with green accesories, Mrs McMillan, the groom's mother chose brown brocaded satin with gold accesories.

Following a reception in the church hall, the couple left on a wedding trip to Western Ontario and United States. The bride travelled in a light blue two-piece wool suit with white accesories, and wore a corsage of white orchids.

On their return Mr and Mrs McMillan will reside in Chesterville. Guests from Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto, Kingston Brockville Iroquois, Morrisburg Hallville and Chesterville attended th wedding.

Holstein Breeders of Stormont hold annual banquet

The Holstein cow, and farmers who maintain the dairy herds which make the breed important, had their special evening of public acclaim at Newington last week. The annual banquet of the Stormont Holstein Club in the United Church Hall was attended by officials of the national association, the Ontario government and representatives of other breed associations in the county.

In an after-dinner review of accomplishments during 1961, W. W. Henry, of Berwick, club president, paid special attention to the annual Black and White Show at Newington Fair, which he described as one of the largest in Eastern Ontario. Support for 4-H Calf Club members, with a Stormont bred calf leading the field at Ottawa Winter Fair this season, a number of meetings at local farms, and a field trip into Quebec were highlights of the season, he said.

Guest speaker was Dr W. L. MacLellan, minister of St. John's Presbyterian Church in Cornwall, who spoke of "revolutions" in various aspects of life. "Times or revolution are times of fear," Dr MacLellan told the audience, "and this a time of revolutionary changes. But not more revolutionary than the times of the French revolution which turncd governments upside down, or the American revolution that seemed to many almost the end of the world."

Taking his theme from farming to transportation to international affairs, Dr MacLellan treated his subject in a humorous manner. But, he added: "I hope you won't mind if I get to preaching for a minute. I don't know what will happen, but I like to quote the remark of a friend, that this is a time for prayer. That is the only way I know to counteract the fear that has become such a prominent feature of our time."

Dr MacLellan was introduced by K. E. Best, Stormont agricultural representative, who pointed out the minister is chairman of the agricultural committee of Cornwall Kiwanis Club. Mr Best also spoke of the farm management program which is becoming important in the area, and described the achievements of 4-H work in Stormont. In an amusing aside, he paid tribute to the club leadership activities of Roy Simmons, of Finch, who was present as a representative of the Stormont Ayrshire Club, and, with Buddy Thompson, one of the leaders of Newington Calf Club, which won high honours at Ottawa. Mr Simmons was described as representing the excellent leadership given the county clubs.

Peter Manley, M.P.P., Stormont, expressed himself as glad to join in congratulating the Stormont Holstein Club, and "especially the 4-H Club boys and girls." He mentioned Donald Snetsinger who showed the top Holstein calf at Ottawa, a calf from the Charles Baker herd at Finch

The guest speaker was thanked by Mr Henry. Head table guests were introduced by club vice-president John D. McLellan, of Maxville.

Greetings to the Stormont Club were brought by National Association directors Marland Murray, Martintown, and Sam Rathwell, Navan. Mr Murray also expressed the thanks of the club to the ladies who served the banquet.

Basil Dawley, president of Dundas Holstein Club, brought greetings from his club and called attention to the sale of Holstein cattle planned by his club.

Grant Smith, fieldman for the Holstein Association in Eastern Ontario, presided over the award-giving portion of the program, presenting the premier exhibitor and premier breeder banner, won at Newington, to Elwood Thompson, of Finch. Mr Smith spoke in glowing terms of the efforts of Newington Fair Board to improve grounds and facilities for the annual show, describing it as of "very high calibre" and attracting 159 animals.

Production certificates were awarded, honouring cows belonging to J. Howard Morrow, of Maxville, Wesley Ferguson, of Avonmore, J. D.Shaver and Son, Finch, and Stanley Nugent, Berwick.

Entertainment was provided by Miss Lillian Ross and Edwin Waldroff, Newington.
