Where is democracy?

The House of Commons gave final approval last Wednesday to the free trade deal with the United States.

The bill received an overwhelming vote of support by the majority Conservative government with the final tally 177 for, to 64 opposed.

It is difficult for the average Canadian to really understand what this bill will mean to him or her. All three major political parties in Canada have their own economists, their own projectionists and each one has come up with a different answer.

But Canadians should be concerned with a far more important issue than free trade — their right to vote on the most important piece of legislation since the British North America Act.

Prime minister Mulroney, while leader of the official opposition, took a stand against free trade and he was not given a mandate to negotiate a deal when he was elected in 1984.

Whether the deal is good, bad or indifferent, Canadians should be given the right to voice their opinion and the best way to do that is to vote for the party which best represents the views of the country on free trade.

Many have criticized Liberal leader John Turner for telling the Liberal-dominated Senate to stall the bill until an election is called. Those same critics have said the Senate is an unelected body which is interfering in democracy.

In this case, Turner made the right choice. By trying to pass the bill without a mandate, before an election is called, Mulroney and the Conservative party are interfering with democracy.

The reasons behind the deal, to protect bilateral trade and to shelter Canada from increasing U.S. protectionism, may be very noble and quite possibly the spark Canada's trade needs to enter the 21st century, but still aren't sufficient excuse to pass legislation without a clear signal from the people.

The unelected Senate is an antiquated form of government but in this instance is serving an invaluable function. If Mulroney calls an election soon and is returned with the confidence of the voters then by all means let the deal proceed.

Until then, no matter which side of the fence you're sitting on, the view looks the same.

Is our society weakening?

The Editor:

Over the last six months to a year I have become increasingly aware of the escalating breakdown in morality and many other areas of our Canadian society. The strength of any society is only as strong as its basic unit, which is the family.

There has been and is continuing to be, tremendous pressure put on the family unit here in our country.

Our federal prime minister refuses to take a stand on abortion. I suppose he's afraid of losing support and votes. Our provincial premier refuses to take a stand on Sunday shopping, also I suppose afraid of losing support.

Now the United Church has as much as okayed homosexuality. I don't know what they're afraid of losing.

These three areas, along with others of course, are causing a moral decay in our families and therefore our society like we have never known before and it promises to only get worse I can assure you.

The family unit is sacred. It was created and instituted by God and was intended as a place for children to grow up knowing first of all the love of God, secondly the love of a Mom and Dad, and as well an environment to learn and grow together as a unit.

Because of this family breakdown resulting in a weakening of our society many people both young and old all around us are caving in under the pressures of life. They turn to such things as alcohol, drugs, and even attempt suicide as a means to escape but it does not work. In fact it only adds to the problem.

We have identified the problem, but what is the solution? Governments do not seem to have the answer, some sectors of the church obviously do not have the answer. In fact they're only adding to the problem. The making of a strong healthy family comes from I believe, first of all the need of a solid foundation on which to build and that comes from a personal relationship with God our creator through His son Jesus Christ. Secondly a strong family unit needs a mother in the home. Lastly there needs to be lots of love and time spent together.

These ideas may seem outdated and old-fashioned to many and you are right they are old-fahsioned but the unique thing about them is, they work. If we as a country are to remain united and strong we must return to some of those old-fashion values.

APEC president's remarks devisive

The Editor:

In the Aug. 31 edition of the Morrisburg Leader, staff writer, Catherine Thompson, reported on the demonstration by N.A.E.R. (National Association For English Rights) at Upper Canada Village.

In this article she referred to some comments made by Bob Noble, president of A.P.E.C. Cornwall. Noble said among other things that "We will maintain our promise made to the commission Aug. 5, not to picket the village again". He went on to say that "A.P.E.C and N.A.E.R. are different in their principles" — "N.A.E.R. is a more radical group".

By implication it would seem, according to Noble, that N.A.E.R. as a radical group somehow has different objectives than A.P.E.C. This statement is a rather surprising one since the objectives of both groups, to my knowledge, is the elimination of "enforced" or official bilingualism. Further to this, I do not believe that either group objects to social bilingualism, nor should they. We in N.A.E.R. feel that communication in different languages is part of the fabric of this country, and that is as it should be. However, when one language is imposed at the expense of another, as it is in Quebec, and is spreading to the other provinces, that fabric referred to earlier will not stand the test of time. Returning to the remarks made by Noble, I can only say that those same remarks are devisive in nature and tend to set one organization against another, and that is a tragedy.

Noble also said, "A.P.E.C. is getting some recognition, people are looking at it more positively and I don't want it to get a bad name." I fail to see how making derogatory remarks about a parallel group in any way enhances the image of A.P.E.C. I would hope that the views expressed by Noble are his own and do not reflect the views of the general membership of A.P.E.C.

Before closing I would like to say that there is a possibility that Noble was quoted out of context, and if that is the case I apologize. On the other hand, if the interpretation of his remarks are taken literally I would hope that Noble would have the grace to print a retraction or clarification.

Mrs. William Gardner entertained a number of high school boys and girls on Wednesday evening in honor of her grandson, Bill Agnew, who leaves tomorrow for Kingston, where he intends entering Queen's University. At the close of the evening Melvin Scott, on behalf of those present, presented Bill with a beautiful pair of gold cuff links, wishing him every success during his college career.

The stork flew a marathon for Mr. and Mrs. Ward Whitteker, of Winchester Springs, on Sunday morning when twins were born to them at two different points in the Ottawa district, 40 miles apart.

The first, a fine baby girl of six-and-a-half pounds, was born at the Whitteker home in Winchester Springs at 5:30am Sunday morning. Mrs. Whitteker was immediately transferred to the Ottawa Civic Hospital in the automobile of Dr. W. Gross, the attending physician.

Apparently left behind by the speed of the doctor's automobile, the stork caught up with Mrs. Whitteker an hour after she had been admitted to the hospital and presented her with another baby girl, also weighing six-and-a-half pounds.

Winchester and District Memorial Hospital board of directors have given final review to plans and figures for the proposed $483,000 expansion and will start the task of raising needed funds in October, providing there is a warm reception from the various municipal councils approached. Directors are reasonably confident that a start on construction will be made next spring.

Of the total $483,000 cost, it is expected that grants and other revenue will reduce the actual fundraising program to $163,000.

Once again many area schools are literally "bulging at the seams" as students of all ages surge back in action, with ratepayers echoing the same old beef — why can't school boards work out some agreement that will eliminate the passage of several buses on the same stretch of road? When questioned, some boards agreed there was too much duplication, but felt since great area boards would soon be taking over, they might find a quick solution.

The difficulty of unbelief

by Gordon C. Smyth

People are often quite impressed by the difficulties of religious belief. They find it hard to reach any absolute, convincing faith. Indeed there are doubts and obscurities that everyone feels.

And yet, did you ever squarely face the thought of a logically completed unbelief, with no region of spiritual hope in worship, a universe absolutely without a God, a permanently faithless world?

What is the difficulty here? The difficulty is that these aspects of life, though they are often hard to hold, are harder still to let go. Faith has its perplexities. However, no sooner do we eliminate the spiritual than we are confronted with a series of experiences, emotions and intimations that are simply inexplicable.

Let me put the situation in the words of Dr. Ignace Lepp — who passed away in 1966. He became an outstanding Roman Catholic priest, in Paris, psychotherapist and author.

Dr. Lepp wrote, "Long before I became a Christian, I believed in the world. But I was also vaguely aware that there was something deficient in a world of constant changing or becoming. For a long time, I believed that evolution reached its omega in social revolution. Gradually, I came to see that revolution could not justify the marvelous and ever-increasing spiritualization of the universe. Only after I understood the Christian message did everything become clear."

What is, on the whole, the best working theory of life? Upon what view of life do the facts, on the whole, best fall? Especially, what conception of life holds the highest facts, the great, irresistable spring-tides, that sometimes rise within the soul; of hope and love and desire? These questions turn the critical temper back on itself.

Seventh Column

by Joe Rowan

A very welcome package, addressed to this column, arrived at the Press last week. The message, from cowboy country (Edmonton, Alta.), began like this: "Dear Joe — Enclosed is a complimentary copy of my Dad's second book..." It was signed Peter H. Dawes. Almost a year ago (perhaps some readers may remember) we told of having received a book so interesting we read all 221 pages in one day. That exciting autobiography traced the life of a boy, born in England (July 7, 1911), who would spend his boyhood and youth in the province of Quebec; accept a call to the ministry, then dedicate 45 eventful years serving the "Master" right here in the Ottawa Valley before easing quietly and without fanfare into deserving semi-retirement at Kingston. The manuscript, unfortunately, ended before this Man of God reached our valley but, very fortunately, promised (like the Johnny Carson Show) there was 'more to come'. That 'more' was enclosed in the above-mentioned package. Another 228 pages in the life of our very dear friend Rev. Charles Dawes. "Just Being Around — (Reminiscences of a Small Town United Church Minister)", like its predecessor "Answering the Call — (A United Church Minister in the Making During the 1920's)", is the type of inspirational saga one doesn't lay down until the last chapter unfolds. Because 'his' church and 'ours' were on the same street our paths crossed many times during his memorable years at Metcalfe. Consequently we thought we really knew and understood this kind and gentle crusader who used 'the sound of music' to blot out all traces of bigotry and racial discrimination while bridging that much-talked-about 'generation gap'. His second book, however, introduces us to a young cleric we wish we had known — the entertainer with his accordian, eagerly welcomed by young people attending religion-oriented summer camps who lovingly referred to their troubadour as 'Uncle Charlie'. It goes without saying the venerable clergyman left lasting memories in every community he so diligently served (Moulinette, Milroches, Wales - 1930-1943); Aylmer (1943-1953); Alexandria (1953-1962); and Metcalfe (1962-1975). In this area books are available here in Winchester (Lighthouse Christian Bookstore, The Book Place); at Metcalfe, call 821-2075 and ask for 'Nelda' (Isaac); at Edwards dial 821-2018, most likely 'Elsie' (Patterson) will answer. Our fondest memory of the White Church parson? Permit us (with apologies to the illustrious Edgar Guest) to paraphrase:

When Rev. Charlie walked leisurely in,
The organ bench was the place for him.
And you'd never know if you'd see him there
In neat black suit and tousled hair,
That he was the Minister down the street
Guiding all faithful he chanced to meet.

Thanks Rev. Sir for sharing your wonderful memories.

Sorry - but we just can't get too excited about news of an OMB hearing (Oct. 3) regarding a proposed mini-shopping mall in our village. Metcalfe has been this scribber's 'hometown' for 73 years (plus a few days). Perhaps it has something to do with that much-maligned 'old-age factor', but we fail to understand how a small, much-needed, shopping plaza on the outskirts will, as Edwards resident Roger Dixon suggests, "Village the Country Atmosphere... ". It has been our good fortune to watch that 'country atmosphere' being 'violated' (we like changed better) many, many times over the years. First they tore up our 'board sidewalks'; then they dug holes in the street and erected unsightly 'hydro poles'; still not satisfied they denied us the aroma of blinding, choking dust clouds and covered the roads with 'asphalt'. As if that wasn't enough they replaced our beautiful, healthy outdoor rinks with community indoor recreation facilities. Next they denied hungry cattle the lush fairgrounds pastureland to make way for lighted parkland, and they destroyed our quaint country-atmosphere school and built super-modern halls of learning. Yes, Mr. Dixon, we can remember when our town even had a country atmosphere 'smell'... pigs and poultry in back sheds, cattle grazing along the roads. Little by little they took it all away from us. Know something? We're sure glad they did! Recently Elizabeth Chalmers of Thunder Bay was awarded top honors in the "Especially for Seniors" writing competition. Those who would impede progress might learn a valuable lesson from this gifted senior citizen... "The past", she writes, "is a great place to visit but to live in it defies life, for life is never stagnant. The present has been given to us to select the memories to be stored and the dreams to be woven". Think about it Mr. Dixon.

The MCS operator who puts this column in proper perspective each week wonders why everything her husband hears at work is 'news', while everything she hears during her working hours is 'gossip'. Sorry Louise, but we think your husband has a profound mastery of the English language.

Beggs crowned Ontario princess

Donna Beggs, Ontario Dairy Princess.

NORTH GOWER — For Donna Beggs, becoming a princess is more than fantasy — it is reality.

The 17-year-old North Gower resident was selected as the 1988-89 Ontario Dairy Princess in Toronto last week. Representing Carleton County, Beggs was chosen from among 42 county contestants to succeed Andrea Lange as provincial princess. She is the first princess from Carleton County to win the title in 32 years.

"I didn't think I would be the winner," said Beggs following her triumphant return home. "I was the youngest one there and I didn't think the judges would pick me."

Beggs had to pass a number of gruelling tests to make it to the finals of the competition. Each contestant was required to present a speech to the judges during the first round.

"The topic I picked for my speech was the family as a thing of the past," said Beggs. "During the semi-final round we had to give an impromptu speech and we were only given two minutes to prepare."

Her semi-final round speech was a discussion on why the Ontario Milk Marketing Board should promote its products.

"The semi-final was difficult," she said. "We were given only two minutes to write our speech and I wasn't sure what I was saying."

In addition the contestants were interviewed by the judges and questioned about their knowledge of the dairy industry. Her final speech to the judges discussed milk as a versatile food.

"I am very nervous," she said. "Everything has come down all at once but once I get everything started I will be fine."

Beggs credits her family and her boss at North Gower grocery with helping her to win the crown.

"Two weeks before the competition my boss was nice enough to let me off to study," she said. "And now he has no employee."

The oldest of four children, Beggs is the daughter of Eric and Ruth. She lives on a Jersey farm and is a Grade 13 student at South Carleton High School.

She began her official duties on Sept. 1. The next year will be a busy one for her, travelling across the province and spending two weeks in Great Britain in May, working for the dairy industry there.

For now her high school studies have been put on hold. Following her year as Ontario Dairy Princess, Beggs will return to high school for her remaining Grade 13 credits and intends to pursue a career in public relations.

"It's a great work experience," she said. "I'm 17 and I have a full-time job. I hope it will lead to bigger and better things."

She also received some sound advice from last year's princess.

"She said don't get discouraged, it's not all milk and honey," recalls Beggs. "But she also told me I'm going to have a great year."

Arden Schneckenburger

Brazil next on Sneckenburger's agenda

MORRISBURG — When Arden Schneckenburger heads to Brazil for 19 days in January, he'll be doing a lot more than just sightseeing.

Schneckenburger of RR1, Morrisburg, is part of an advanced agricultural leadership program that studies how local, provincial, federal and international politics affect the agriculture industry.

He is one of 30 participants enrolled in a two-year course. In July the group toured the United States and recently returned from a trip to Nova Scotia.

The group is made up of bankers, businessmen, farmers and members of the agri-business industry.

"We study how to set goals, how agriculture inter-relates to society, group dynamics, how to influence, how to lobby," explains Schneckenburger. "The trip to Brazil is part of the international portion of the study."

The group will study how local and federal governments in Brazil work together and compare to the Canadian system. They will also study the importance of Brazilian agriculture to the country.

"We'll learn how their agriculture exports affect us and how they work on trade," said Schneckenburger. "They are a major exporter of soybean and we are just starting to get our soybean business going. Brazil also exports corn."

The majority of the 19-day excursion will be spent in the central region of the South American country.

The program is jointly sponsored by the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, the Foundation for Rural Living and the University of Guelph.

Paul Meldrum of Long Sault is the only other participant from the local area.

Schneckenburger also serves as the provincial director for Dundas County with the Ontario Federation of Agriculture and vice-president, Dundas County, beef management board.

Moriarty dominates heavy horse classes

CHESTERVILLE — Louis Moriarty of Chesterville pulled away from four other competitors to come up with 11 first-place wins during the heavy horse show here Saturday.

Moriarty's Percherons dominated the event which featured five exhibitors showing a total of 30 animals, down considerably from the 14 exhibitors and 94 entries last year.

His horses took first place for Percheron foal, yearling and brood mare, as well as first in eight of the 12 performance and driving skills classes.

Carlin Kelly of RR2 Brockville, placed first in three of the performance and driving skills classes and placed second in four others. Allison Fawcett of Winchester netted one first-place and one second-place finish in the classes.

Trevor Wilson of Merrickville fared well in the first half of the competition, placing first for two-year-old and three-year-old Percheron filly and first for yeld mare, get-of-sire and progeny of dam. He also placed second for Percheron yearling and Percheron foal.

Roy Sherrer of RR2 Mountain was the only entry in the Belgian class and won for his entries for foal, yearling, three-year-old filly and brood mare.

John Bates of RR3 Merrickville, placed second for Percheron brood mare and yeld mare, third for progeny of dam and third for Percheron foal.

Winning first for junior showmanship was Doug Wilson with Nick Coleman placing second and Greg Bourbonais placing third.

The junior competition open to boys or girls under 16 years of age was won by Nick Coleman with Erin Sherrer placing second.

The lady driving competition was won by Mary Moriarty with Sheryl Graham placing second and Doris Baker placing third.

It was Moriarty's first competitive driving test.

Kiwanis workshops prepare princesses

MANOTICK — The Kiwanis Club of Manotick is fast approaching 25 years of involvement with the Ontario Dairy Princess competition, and Kiwanian Bert Milward says all girls who take part in the contest are "winners."

Every year for the past 24 years, the Manotick Kiwanis have held special workshops for the Dairy Princess winners in Eastern Ontario. The workshops, according to Milward, are designed to give the young ladies a fighting chance at winning the coveted Ontario Dairy Princess crown.

"The workshops are usually held on a Friday night, followed by an all-day Saturday session," said Milward. "They are held in Manotick and we invite the Dairy Princess winners from the 11 counties of Eastern Ontario."

At the workshops, the girls are put through their paces in areas such as public speaking, personal interviews and impromptu speaking. The Saturday sessions even give the princesses a chance to view themselves on closed-circuit television, to better improve their speaking skills.

"The Saturday sessions are held at Kemptville College," said Milward. "It really gives the girls a chance to improve their presentation."

Obviously the workshops have paid dividends, for this year Carleton Dairy Princess Donna Beggs of North Gower, was awarded the Ontario crown at the CNE in Toronto.

But Milward says the workshops are designed to enhance the personal development of the girls, and not just to produce winners. "Our young lady (Donna Beggs) has a lot of talent," he said, "and we hope our instruction helped to prepare her for the competition. But we consider all the girls to be winners."

Milward says the Ontario Dairy Princess is chosen "to represent the Ontario Milk Marketing Board and promote the consumption and use of milk in the province of Ontario."

"The function of the Dairy Princess is very valuable," he continued. "If the Kiwanis as a club helped contribute to the development of young ladies, as well as help produce a winner from Carleton County, then that's just terrific."

Shared risk mortgage rate

OTTAWA — The Farm Credit Corporation has announced that the interest rate on shared risk mortgages approved after Aug. 26, 1988 has been increased to 12.75 per cent from the previous 12.25 per cent.

Shared risk mortgages are funded by a combination of long and short-term borrowing. While long-term interest rates have remained steady, short-term rates have risen, making it necessary to increase the lending rate.

Passing on the plow

Jill Patterson, left, 1987-88 Ottawa-Carleton ''Queen of the Furrow'', coaches the new queen, Trudy Hughes of Dalmeny at Saturday's Ottawa-Carleton plowing match held at Patterson's Berry Farm, north of Metcalfe. Hughes, 19, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Hughes and is a graduate of Osgoode Township High School. At present she works in the accounting office of Drummond Fuels in Nepean. The Hughes family settled in Eastern Ontario in the 1820's and every generation since that time has farmed.

Kemptville College opens doors to showcase Ontario foods

KEMPTVILLE — Families can take a holiday from the home and kitchen on Sept. 11 when the Ministry of Agriculture and Food and Eastern Ontario farm groups host a Harvest Showcase at the Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology.

Along with giving a new look to beef and new ways to serve the durable potato, farm groups will demonstrate ways to cook lamb and pork. Ontario farmers will provide a gourmet's delight by offering some of the finest food produced in the province. Visitors will also see some new twists to cooking an old product when maple syrup goes into a microwave.

''The purpose of the day is to highlight the quality and variety of Ontario food,'' said Harvest Showcase chairman Basil Wren.

The morning pancake breakfast will be followed by a barbecue chicken lunch from noon to 5pm. Those who like a hands-on approach to eating out can choose an ear of corn and have it boiled at no cost.

Plenty of family activities will be offered. A video theatre will be open all day, along with a computer game room. A giant sandbox will be erected and buses and horse-drawn wagons will take visitors on a tour of the college farm and campus.

Young children can enjoy a petting farm. Musical entertainment will be provided by the Acres Family Singers, gospel singer Homer James and the Singing Farmers.

Stuart James, Eastern Ontario's champion auctioneer will auction food baskets with proceeds donated to the Ottawa Food Bank.

One of the highlights of last year's showcase, the farmers' market, will again return in an expanded form at the college's horticultural complex.

''Consumers will be able to shop for the best in Ontario foods,'' said Wren.

All college facilities, including the dairy and research divisions will be open for public viewing. A cheese-making demonstration will take place at Gibson Hall.

Contests and demonstrations will include the biggest pumpkin competition and computer diet analysis. The 21 food-producer exhibits will provide plenty of free samples and demonstrations.

Admission, parking and transportation are free. The showcase is open from 10am to 5pm.

Wise responds to CFA letter

OTTAWA — Federal agriculture minister John Wise has issued a statement detailing actions the government has undertaken to safeguard the interests of Canadian agriculture under the bilateral trade agreement with the United States.

The statement was issued in response to a letter from Canadian Federation of Agriculture president Don Knoerr informing the minister that the CFA could not support the implementation of the agreement in its present form.

''The agreement will provide significant economic benefit to Canadian agriculture and ensure more secure and predictable access to our largest agricultural export maket,'' wrote Wise.

He said the government has addressed the concerns of the CFA including those about the agreement's effect on supply management programs, the Canadian Wheat Board and maintenance of Canada's agriculture and food quality standards.

Wise pointed out that during the trade negotiations, primary producers were members of the Agriculture, Food and Beverage Sector Advisory Committee on International Trade.

The Chesterville area woman placed first in both the fruit and vegetable class, which last year were won by her daughter Lori and in 1986 by daughter Leslie.

Interest in this year's vegetable class was down slightly. Twenty-three exhibitors entered 75 exhibits in the vegetable class, down from 111 entries last year.

But participation rose slightly in the fruit section, which attracted eight exhibitors and 11 entries, four more than 1987.

Durant collected 74 points in the vegetable class. Lorilee Erratt was a distant second with 23 and Elva Rutters, a new exhibitor at the fair, was third with 19.

In the fruit class, Durant came out on top with 15 points, followed by Erratt with six and two Winchester area women, Louise Moore and Mary Vanderlaan, were tied at five.

Winchester trainer seeks racing career

Horses have been a part of Wayne Hay's life for at least a decade but in the future he is hoping to make the animals become part of his career.

The appropriately named Hay, 23, spends between 10 and 12 hours daily, seven days a week, training and maintaining race horses on his parents' Winchester farm.

About five years ago he began racing horses at Rideau-Carleton Raceway. Hay hopes he will eventually be able to purchase a competitive race horse in the $10,000 range.

Hay admits he has a fair bit of farm work ahead before he has the money needed to buy a good race horse.

"You can make good money at Rideau-Carleton but you need the cash to buy a horse."

Describing the lifestyle of horse racing as "a hard one," Hay says he must accept working long hours knowing some nights at the race track "the pay isn't too great".

Hay says it is essential to enjoy horses to offset the "tough" work involved in training and racing horses. But, he adds, with horse racing "you're your own boss."

He admits it would be ideal to have someone else do the dirty work — cleaning the horses and stables — while he is left to just train and race.

But for now, Hay, who began riding when he was 14, it's the daily grind to take care of everything. Hay has eight horses now that he is training, cleaning and feeding.

Trial run

Wayne Hay, 23, finishes up a training run at his track on his parents' Winchester farm with his race horse, Leafwood Brandy.

The reward of the labors of farmers and millers will be reaped throughout the village on Saturday and Sunday from 10am to 4pm. Bread will be baked in a brick oven at the Tailor's House, over an open hearth at the Tenant Farm and in an iron cookstove at Loucks Farm.

In addition, bread will be prepared as usual in the bakery from 9:30am to 3:30pm daily, with the freshly-baked results heading to the village store.

We each shall find our own.

Durant is big winner

Chesterville area resident Mary Durant scored big during the Chesterville Fair, winning the Bank of Nova Scotia silver tray for most points in the women's class. Durant prepared 57 samples, showing her best in baking and green thumb skills.

Chesterville Fair

Durant tops women's division

CHESTERVILLE — Two weeks before the opening of the Chesterville Fair, Mary Durant wasn't going to prepare exhibits for the women's division.

On Sunday afternoon, the Chesterville area woman picked up the Bank of Nova Scotia silver tray as the winner of the most points in the entire 85-section class.

Durant also took home a new plaque donated by Mike Dean Butcher Limited as the exhibitor submitting the most entries. Durant prepared 57 samples showing her best in baking and green thumb skills.

A former silver tray winner, Durant said she stepped out of the competition a few years ago to help her daughters, Lori and Leslie, make their mark on the fair.

But with both teenagers working this summer, Durant decided to return.

Durant collected 227 points on her way to the silver tray and was the top exhibitor of fruits and vegetables, flowers and baking.

Entering the women's division classes is just another way for Durant, who this year was a member of the decorating and entertainment committee, to contribute to the fair she enjoys.

"I like to help the fair out, I guess. And it's pride in the stuff you grow."

Durant succeeds Audrey Cross, three-time winner of the tray, as the leader of the division.

Overall entries in the division were down this year by about one fifth, to 1,113. There had been a surge of interest in the division last year, when the number of entries jumped 91 to 1,361.

Part of this year's drop could be blamed on heavy rains during the days prior to the fair, which cut the number of flower entries to only 58. Last year, the exhibition hall had bloomed with 163 entries in that class alone.

Baking was also down slightly from 215 to 171 entries but the greatest decline could be seen in the arts and crafts class, where the number of entries dropped almost 60 per cent to 168.

Division president Marilyn Johnson said interest in the home craft and domestic science classes is cyclical.

"It goes like that. One year you'll be way up and another year..."

Returning to the division's winner's circle this year was Mary Waldroff. The Newington grandmother placed second overall, collecting 193 of her 205 points total in arts and crafts alone.

Doreen Marcellus was third overall with 113 points, winning a gift certificate from Black Lumber Co.

Elva Rutters was the most successful newcomer to the fair with 47 points. It was only at the insistence of friend Elizabeth Vingerhoeds that the Chesterville area woman decided to enter. But her enthusiasm was infectious.

"I got the kids to enter, plus I got the school (Elma Public) to enter, so I thought I better eat my own words," Rutters said Sunday afternoon.

Thanks to Rutters' encouragement, Elma Public submitted entries in the educational class and placed fourth overall. Rutters children also fared well in the girls' and boys' arts and crafts classes.

"It's just fun getting ready. I enjoyed that," she said .

Joyce Whyte placed second among rookie exhibitors with 32 points and won a gift certificate from Roy and Shirley Fawcett.

Edna Smirle was third with 26 points, winning a Nestle gift box.

Successful newcomer

Elva Rutters was the most successful newcomer to the Chesterville Fair, placing third in the vegetable class and racking up 47 points overall.

Dance company offers fall classes

METCALFE — If you want to cut a mean figure on the dance floor the Bolf Dance Company may be the ticket.

The non-profit organization has been providing dance lessons to smaller communities for the past 12 years.

A wide variety of courses are offered to all ages. Preschool classes teach creative ballet, mime, improvisation and folk dancing to children four years of age and up. Classes are also offered to children, pre-teen, teens and adults.

"The courses are excellent for figure skaters and gymnastic teachers," said company director Ingrid Bolf.

Registration will be held at Holy Trinity Anglican Church in Metcalfe on Sept. 13 from 6 to 8pm. Classes begin Sept. 20 and last for 30 weeks.

Following the end of classes, students are invited to stage a recital for family and friends. Tuition costs $230 but this year Bolf said the company is offering an incentive. Anyone who brings along a friend to register will receive $10 off the tuition cost — and so will the friend.

"Sometimes people motivate each other and this is why we decided to do it," said Bolf.

Course instructor Rosemary Bolf has been with the company for four years. The Bolf Dance Academy has been in operation for 32 years.

Classes for pre-schoolers are approximately 45 minutes, and one hour for others.

"We are doing this as a community service," said Bolf. "The course costs $30 less than in Ottawa and we are teaching in communities that might not otherwise be able to provide this training."
