All dressed up & no place to go

A wedding dress donated to the Carman House Museum finally has somewhere to be displayed, with a donation of a used mannequin from Ogilvy's Rideau Street store. The dress was worn by Maud Effie Conklin Young when she was married on May 4, 1904. Born in Prescott, she lived and was married in the house on the point, now owned by the Seaway Authority and occupied by the lockmaster. In this photo, Christine Prins examines the 75 year old dress. The donation of the mannequin was arranged by Shelly Prins of the museum board and by Jean Desrochers, display manager for Ogilvy's.

Plant to be re-designed to cut costs

Town to build sewage plant without grants

Iroquois village council has decided to go it on their own, without a provincial grant, to build a new sewage treatment plant. At a special meeting on Wednesday night, council met with consulting engineer Sebo VanIngen Schenau to review the facts and made the decision to re-design the plant to cut costs and to do the project without a grant of $215,000. from the Ministry of the Environment.

Tenders have already been called on the original plans that called for a plant that would handle a population of 2,000 people and more industry. In the belief that the Ministry of the Environment would help fund the plant, well over $125,000. has already been spent on design and engineering fees. When it came time to award the contract, council learned from the Ministry that although the local project has been approved for funding, there was no money available and the village is on a low priority to receive a grant.

The plant would be financed by a CMHC grant of $125,000. along with the approximately $400,000. in the bank (left from the Ontario Hydro settlement of 1975) and the Ministry of the Environment grant of $215,000. The original design of the plant would have cost close to a million and a half dollars, and council was planning to debenture to raise the extra money, a figure of about half a million dollars.

Plans now call for re-designing the plant to handle a population of 1,600 people. The smaller plant will cost in the area of a million dollars and will make necessary borrowing about half a million dollars. The down-sizing of the plant will mean a saving of almost $400,000. in long term debts in comparison to what it would have cost if the village had proceeded with the larger plant without government assistance.

According to the village's consulting engineer, there were only three alternatives open to council. They could forget about any modifications and continue to dump raw sewage into the river. They could wait and see if any money will be available within a few years to go toward the large plant. Or they could down-size the plant and build it without provincial help.

Reeve Rooney noted that he had been in touch with MPP Osie Villeneuve on the matter and had been told that there was little chance of getting any provincial money now or in the future since the province is trying to balance its budget. He added that the need in Iroquois is just not as great since there are other communities where an urgent situation is being created with spetic systems fouling wells. Mr. Rooney told council that he had been told that just in this area alone, both Morrisburg and Winchester were also counting on grants to help them through problems and they had not received much encouragement.

Compounding the situation is the fact that if the CMHC grant is not used by the end of the year, it could be lost as well, under a new program whereby the federal government will turn such funds over to the province for administration.

Councillor Jim Styles stressed that he would like to see council continue to put pressure on the province for funds, in an effort to keep costs as low as possible.

Other counillors agreed with the idea, but felt that it was a useless battle. John McAllister pointed out that the amount that would have to be borrowed has not changed significantly with the decision to go to a smaller plant. The smaller design merely takes up the slack left by the loss of the provincial grant.

Reeve Frank Rooney told council that he was in favour of going ahead with the scaled down plant and awarding contracts very soon for the new force main and outfall pipes. These two aspects have already been tendered on and will not change regardless of the design of the plant itself.

According to Mr. Van Ingen Schenau, the prices that have been quoted are good and will never be cheaper. "Even if you turn back and build nothing," he said, "the force main and outfall lines will always be needed." They could be paid for with what is in the bank and would be eligible for subsidy. The two projects would cost around $160,000.

Councillor Peter Swank felt that the village must go ahead with the project, saying that if we can get more new homes, it will spread out the tax load. "and if we don't start this year," he added, we will lose the CMHC grant too."

Council agreed to proceed with the re-design of the plant and to demand a meeting with the Minister of the Environment to make one last stand for the grand funds. It was noted that the village is putting raw sewage into the river, with just a token chlorination before it goes.

The new designs would be for a plant that would accomodate a population of 1,600 people, as opposed to the original design that would be for a village of 2,000. The larger plant would have handled the village for up to 25 years, while the smaller design is expected to see the village through the 1980's.

Just how bad is the pollution?

Although few residents of Iroquois are aware of it, this village is putting more raw sewage into the St. Lawrence than either Cardinal or Morrisburg. Both those communities have sewage treatment lagoons where the worst of the sewage sttles to the bottom.

Iroquois has no such lagoon. The treatment plant, according to village works foreman Ray Delegarde has not worked for years. It is completely obsolete, under-sized and is not operational. Mr. Delegarde added that on the instructions from the Ministry of the Environment, chlorine is added to the sewage before it is discharged into the river, in an attempt to kill bacteria.

During a flood or heavy rain when the force sewer has to be pressed into action, there is not even any chlorine being added and raw sewage is going into the river.

The alternative to building a new plant is allowing the situation to continue, says Reeve Rooney. That would mean that we were swimming and drinking water from a river into which we are dumping raw sewage. It would also mean that there could be no more development of any kind in Iroquois until the situation is corrected.

Lumley meets voters at Dixon's

Despite poor weather Matilda residents turned out in good numbers last Thursday evening to meet Ed Lumley, liberal candidate for the Stormont-Dundas riding.

The first political rally for the Matilda Township Hall attracted 300 local and area residents, both Liberal faithfuls and curious voters, as local politians voiced their support for Lumley between sets of entertainment by the stage band from Seaway District High School.

George Cooper, Reeve of Matilda Township, and Mahlon Zeron, past reeve, and still a strong voice in local politics, praised the Liberal hopeful for the assistance that they had received from Lumley's office in seeking financial aide for the building of the hall.

Ed Lumley greeted the crowd his first heavy thrust into the Matilda section since his federal riding was expanded to include it and the village of Iroquois and Mountain Township.

While no questions were posed to the incumbent, Lumley made no qualms that he wanted to win and represent Stormont-Dundas on May 23rd.

Trudeau's economic and unity stances were defended by Lumley as he brought home the reasoning behind his leaders political style of electioneering.

"Trudeau did not make national unity an issue," he said, "he is pointing it out to people."

Furthering the cause of that issue, Mr. Lumley said that here in this riding we live the challenges of the country everyday and French and English live and work side by side.

Having been attacked by his opponents on the question of talking local issues because he could not defend his governments past record of performance, Mr. Lumley said that he was proud of what the Trudeau team had done and when compared with other western countries, Canada was on the top of the list.

"We should be very proud of our government, Canada is the only western country that has

Clark boosts Aubry campaign

Conservative leader Joe Clark appeared in Cornwall last Thursday to give a boost to the campaign of local PC candidate Dick Aubry. The rally, held at Cornwall's Civic Complex drew more than 2,000 people to hear Mr. Clark's speech.

The Tory leader said a Conservative government would stimulate the economy through a $300. income tax reduction to low and middle income Canadians. He noted as well that if elected, his government would encourage small business, although he offered no details on how that would be accomplished.

In his 40 minute speech, Mr. Clark said the Conservatives would reduce the annual quotas on imported cheese from 45 million to 35 million pounds. He also promised that the Tories would make it possible for those who wanted to work past the age of 65 to do so without losing pension benefits.

Mr. Clark said the Conservatives would seek an arrangement with the provinces whereby spouses who do not work outside the home can contribute to the Canada Pension Plan. Both other major parties have made similar pledges.

Mr. Clark's speech was interspersed with criticism of Mr. Trudeau and his attitude to his responsibilities. "He has been a prime minister who attacks rather than unites".

He also blamed Mr. Trudeau's attitude for the loss of more than $4 billion that has left the country since 1974 and has gone to foreigh investment. "People who make investment decisions feel they can't have confidence in the prime minister", said Mr. Clark.

He added that the prime minister was also responsible for a complete breakdown between the provinces and the federal government.

Mr. Clark attacked Prime Minister Trudeau's style of leadership, saying that "it's necessary to return to the practice of recognizing that government in Canada is not a one man show." He added that one of the biggest failures of Mr. Turdeau has been his inability to attract and keep people of talent. He took advantage of the situation to state that he has been able to recruit people with a great deal of talent since assuming office and is prepared to form a strong government.

Speaking of local candidate Dick Aubry, Mr. Clark said, "I think I have in Dick Aubry, an outstanding candidate and I intend to put his talents to work. I won't let those talents be wasted as Mr. Trudeau has let the talents of too many people be wasted."

Also present at the rally in Cornwall was Edith Morrison who turned 103 on Monday. Mrs. Morrison is a longtime resident of the Iroquois area who is now living at Glen-Stor-Dun Lodge. She noted that she has always been a Conservative and wanted to hear the next prime minister speak, a comment that prompted Mr. Clark to respond that her comments prove that she is not only in good health, but has good judgment.

Many expected for Spin-in Sat.

All that's needed is co-operation from the weatherman to make this Saturday's Spin-in a success. Approximately 40 exhibitors are expected to take part in the event, sponsored by the Carman-Forward Weaver's Guild.

The last Spin-In was held in 1977 and drew enthusiastic crowds to see a variety of the finest craftspeople in the area. The demonstrations, to be held again this year on the grounds of the Carman House and the Municipal campground will feature displays of weaving, macrame, rug hooking, wood carving, quilting, fleche, and others.

One of the day's highlights will be the shearing of a sheep by Trudy Van Stralen of the Spencerville area. Mrs. Van Stralen operates her own shop and specializes in all natural dyes and materials.

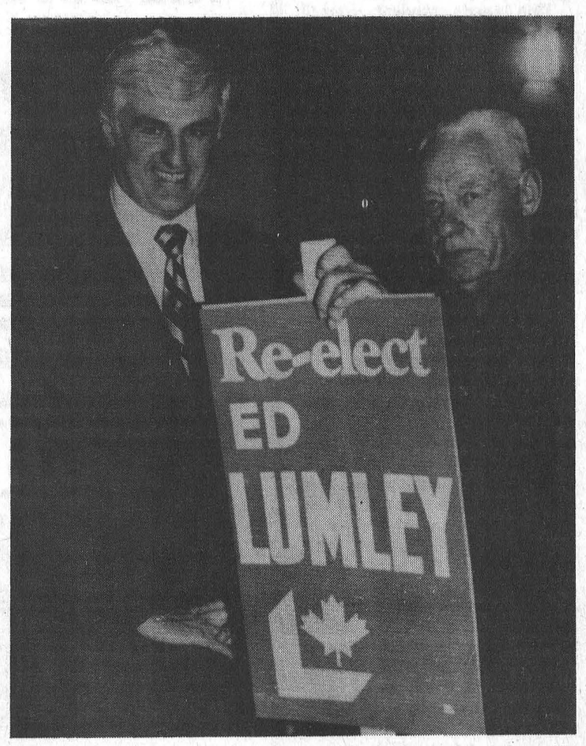
In case it does rain, the day will still take place as planned, with everything moving under the cover of the arena at St. Lawrence Stables.

There will be displays of books, tables of houseplants for sale, pottery displays by St. Lawrence College students and displays of craft supplies.

Several draws will take place throughout the day, with the highlight being the draw for a spinning wheel, donated by Toronto wool dealers Ted Carson and Gerald Whitteker. A handmade wooden stool has been donated by Mr. J. Robidoux of Cornwall and that will be raffled off, as will a sample of work from the Guild craft table and a book of the winner's choice.

Craft guilds from all over the area have been invited, along with members of the general public and craftsmen are coming from all over Ontario, from Quebec and the U.S.

There is no admission charge to the Spin-In and members of the Iroquois Women's Institute will be on hand to serve coffee, cold drinks and snacks.



Liberal candidate Ed Lumley poses with veteran Matilda politician Mahlon Zeron, at Thursday night's Liberal rally held at Dixon's Corners.

Taxes up $40.

Taxes in Iroquois will be up this year by about $40. for the average homeowner, following the setting of the 1979 mill rate at Wednesday night's council meeting. Again this year, the school system takes the lion's share of the tax dollar. Of the $40. increase, $33.25 will be going to the schools. The increase for Iroquois municipal expenses is $4.40 and for the Counties is $2.28.

Fifty-three per cent of the tax bill is made up of school taxes, with the rest going to the United Counties and the operation of the village of Iroquois.

The mill rate for residential public school supporters is 146.68 and for separate school supporters is $144.17. The increase for the separate school levy this year is $30.25, three dollars less than for the public school system.

For commercial ratepayers, the public school rate is 167.44 mills while the separate school rate is 164.66.

The municipal budget calls for Iroquois to collect a total of $515,974. in taxes, with $195,000. for the operation of the municipality and the local library, and the rest for the school system and the United Counties.

Average assessment for the village of Iroquois is $3,260. A one mill increase or decrease in the tax rate will therefore mean a change of $3,260. An average tax bill this year in Iroquois will be $478.

Downtown grant for Iroquois plaza

Iroquois has received word of approval of a Downtown Improvement grant, under the Experience '79 program operated by the provincial government. A total of $3,600. has been authorized, to employ 3 people, one of whom will be a working supervisor.

The grant was applied for by the village council, and will be administered by the village with co-operation and input from the local business association. The funds will be used for such things as promotional events for the plaza, and beautification projects.

The flesh is weak

There will be plenty of action and laughs, beginning on Thursday night when Seaway High's drama club presents "The Butler Did It", a two act mystery-comedy. The play runs for three nights and tickets are available at the door for $1.75 each or $8 for a family. In this scene, Glenn Warner looks for Divine assistance as Marian Herriman tries to tempt him and Linda Claxton looks on.

Aubry favours capital punishment

P.C. candidate Dick Aubry has come out in favour of capital punishment. In a statement issued on Monday morning, Mr. Aubry stated that it is his view that a member of parliament should reflect the view of his constituents. Frequently, he noted, it is difficult to ascertain what the constituents feel, primarily on highly technical issues.

"In the matter of capital punishment," he added, "the views of the people have been well documented by an overwhelming majority." "Thus I would represent that position and vote accordingly," he said.

Mr. Aubry's campaign office assured that this was to be interpreted as support for the re-instatement of capital punishment. The spokesman noted that the public had voted 83 percent in favour of capital punishment in a poll conducted in the riding in the past and in spite of that, the incumbent member had voted against capital punishment.

Mr. Aubry is the only one of the three candidates favouring the death penalty. Both Liberal candidate Ed Lumley and NDP candidate Brian Peters have stated they are opposed to the death penalty, feeling it is not a real deterrent.

Mr. Aubry has been asked on several occasions about his views on capital punishment, and declined, until now, to make a statement. He said at the time he wanted to do so when the time was right for adequate and accurate press coverage of his views.

Advance poll

Voters who will be out of town on the 22nd have their chance to take part in the advance poll in the next few days.

For Iroquois and Matilda, there will be only one location for the advance poll and that will be in the Iroquois civic centre. The poll will be open on Saturday and again next Monday and Tuesday from noon to 8 p.m.

Other advance polls in the area will be in Morrisburg and Winchester, but voters must attend the poll where their name is on the list.

P.C. candidate Aubry to visit Morrisburg May 19

Dick Aubry, Progressive Conservative candidate for Stormont-Dundas will be in Morrisburg on Thursday May 17th at the civic centre. He is expected to arrive at 8 p.m. and the public is cordially invited to attend.

New format for Seaway High elections

Students at Seaway High will soon be electing a new executive to lead them through the next academic year. This year, a new approach will be followed, more closely approximating party politics.

Students voted 80 per cent in favour last week of accepting a proposal to do away with the old head boy and head girl positions and to adopt a new presidential system. According to a spokesman for the school, this was a result of a survey of other school districts in Ontario where the presidential system is being used successfully. Getting away from the head boy and girl provides for more flexibility and potential party politics, since the new system will allow for a president, 1st and 2nd vice presidents, of either sex and from any grade.

Although the junior students will be elegible for office, it is expected that few will run, since the job demands some age and experience. A secretary, and a treasurer will be appointed by the executive after the election.

Also to be elected are a chairman of the boys and girls athletic associations and representatives and co-representatives from each home room.

The new executive allows for replacement of the old social convenor position with one of the vice presidents each being responsible for dances and entertainment.

The election is being held on Friday May 18th in a setting that will approximate the upcoming federal election. Polling stations will be set up in the gym and the organization will aim at being more close to the real election format.

Nominations will be held next week, with the campaign slated to run from the 14th to the 18th. The election week finishes off with a disco dance on the 18th with music by CFGO radio of Ottawa.

Seaway this week

by Neil Patterson

Saturday May 5 saw four members of Seaway's track and field team performed very well at the Thoursand Islands Track Meet. The team of 19 runners, jumpers and throwers from Seaway competed against teams from all over Ontario and New York State. Among Seaway's top finishers, Kathy Picotte did well in two events, placing 2nd in her heat of the 100 m semi-finals and taking the 3rd place ribbon in the high jumpw ith a leap of 1.50 metres. Clayton Barkley, who by the way is running for the position of Chairman of the B.A.A., placed 3rd in the 1500 m. run with a personal best time of 4:15.5 minutes. Wesley Douma jumped to a 5th place ribbon in the long jump while Lori Debellefeuille ran to a 6th place finish in the 1500 m. run with a time of 5 minutes and 48 seconds.

On Monday May 7 the Moderns Department presented what they hope will be an annual affair; a French Assembly. The main purpose of the assembly was to present certificates of merit to those french students who achieved a high standing in their french classes. Seaway's Dance Band played several selections, followed by a series of skits performed by members of this semesters classes. The highlight of the assembly, however was a short speech given by the guest speaker Mr. Dave Powell.

This year's student council elections are coming up and everyone is waiting to see how the new system, to be instituted next year, will work out and be accepted. The duties of next years council will be distributed in the following manner:

The President will preside over all meetings of the student council. He will have to see that all the members of the council perform according to the constitution, all duties accorded to them. The president will be ex-officio, a member of all student council committee and will have the authority to call special meetings.

The first vice-president will also be ex-officio and a member of all committees. Like the president, the first vice will have the authority to call special meetings. He will be the acting coordinator of the social committee in charge of such events such as the winter carnival, orientation, and public relations. He will work with the dance convenor and promote school rings, jackets, etc. as well as help with the Cancer and Heart Fund drives.

As with the president and 1st vice-president, the 2nd vice president will be ex-officio and a member of all committees. He will be the acting chairman of all assemblies and the coordin-

Members of the Iroquois Girl Guides got together last week to make a presentation to Danny Robertson, campaign chairman for this year's Cancer drive in Iroquois-Matilda. Members of the Iroquois Cub pack will be among over 100 boys who will take part in the annual St. Lawrence District Cub-a-ree to be held this Saturday in Prescott. The Cubs will take part in a parade through the town and will assemble on the grounds of South Grenville District High School for a picnic lunch and an afternoon of field events.

About fifteen members of the local pack will be taking part in the program, which has as its theme this year "Canada". Each troop will be representing a different province, and the Iroquois boys will be taking the part of Manitoba.

Members of the Boy Scouts will be visiting Iroquois from Pennsylvania on the weekend of May 25, 26, and 27. The visit will be a return trip for the Pennsylvania scouts, following a visit there by the local boys last Thanksgiving. That visit is still in the planning stages.

Tent theatre fate undecided

The fate of the Prince of Wales tent theatre near Upper Canada Village won't be known for another week or so, with a shortage of funds plaguing the operation. According to playwright and composer George Blackburn, there is just not enough money available to mount this year's production.

Mr. Blackburn who wrote and produced last year's critically acclaimed "A Day to Remember" has been trying to raise the necessary funds in Toronto, but is still looking for up to $80,000. to make the show a reality again this summer. Without the necessary funding, the play just might not open this summer. Mr. Blackburn says he simply can't invest any more money in the production and needs financial assistance.

If the money can be raised, the theatre will open around the 1st of July and run till Labour Day.

Last year, approximately $300,000. was spent on the tent and steel theatre on Upper Canada Road and the play was performed to poor audiences until the last couple of weeks of the season. At that point, a publicity campaign began to have an effect and optimism ran high that this year the play would draw a full house every night.

Wintario and other grants last year helped with financing, and this year Mr. Blackburn and his associates have been busy since the 1st of the year with fund-raising campaigns in the lower gentres. However, according to Mr. Blackburn, people have been very slow in responding to the appeal. Mr. Blackburn is looking onto the possibility of the theatre obtaining a small grant from the Ontario Arts Council.

Bird Notes

The weatherman delivered the first bright Spring Sunday, and everyone found a way to enjoy the pleasure of being out in the sunshine. Automobiles were beating a path to the Locks as a steady steam of ships passed through; bicyclists were giving their machines a good work-out, and even a few brave souls set out on foot to explore the state of the park area, the golf course and other beauty spots.

The first visit to the trail yielded few birds, but we did manage to spot a pair of Veerys, these are small members of the Thrush family, light brown above, with streaked breasts. One little Phoebe posed on a twig, giving an excellent view of its attractive greyish-buff plumage, light-coloured front and dark head.

Brown Thrashers could be heard but not seen in the thick tangle of trees, and Red-winged Blackbirds protested our invasion of their territory.

The special bird we saw last week was a Towhee; when we noted in the Ottawa paper that someone had seen a "sparling" we realized that these things sometimes happen!

Wild flowers are beginning to blossom, too, and the carpet of Marsh Marigold is something to see; the Trilliums are blooming on the high places, Everyone's favourite Spring Flower. There is a busy tree which our grandmthers used to call Balm of Gilead, it has aromatic leaves, which give forth their pleasant scent when the weather is warm, or after a rain, and we could smell it as we passed the spot where it grows. Honeysuckle leaves are just unfolding, as are Wild Raspberry canes; the Strawberries are already in bloom, and we also came upon a patch of May Apple.

ED LUMLEY and the FEDERAL GOVERNMENT WORKING for RURAL SD & G ACTION + CO-OPERATION = RESULTS

The true test of an elected official is not just being elected but far more important, are the accomplishments generated during one's term of office. Although it takes the dedicated work of many people to achieve positive results, a good M.P. acting as a catalyst, negotiator, following up, etc. can be instrumental in assisting his constituents with the many government programs available to the people of Canada.

One of Ed Lumley's resolutions upon being elected in '74 was his commitment to ensure that the rural areas of his constituency would have greater access to Government assistance. In some cases this meant a great deal of work and co-operation between the Federal, Provincial and Municipal Governments and/or the local organization.

Although the following is only a sample of the Federal assistance to rural SD & G during Ed Lumley's term of office we believe that it demonstrates conclusively that he has more than fulfilled his commitment to the rural areas of his constituency.

Ed Lumley is the only M.P. in Canada's history, outside of the Minister himself, to have initiated 3 Federal-Provincial multi-million dollar General Development Sub-Agreements. The first, commonly called the Cornwall Infrastructure Agreement ($1.7 m.) is completed and the second, commonly called they Hybrid Poplar Agreement ($4.7 m) is presently being implemented.

The third and by far the biggest agreement is now being negotiated by the Governments of Ontario and Canada. This Agriculture and Forestry based Sub-Agreement for Eastern Ontario which will include financial assistance for the South Nation River project, was announced in principle by the respective Ministers late last year.

As the Mayor of the City of Cornwall and as an Eastern Ontario M.P., Ed Lumley has spent countless hours on these agreements. As the Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Regional Development and the Minister of Finance, he not only worked directly on these three Federal-Provincial agreements but also he was very instrumental in obtaining 2 extensions to the ARDA program after it was phased out in other parts of Canada. Further when this program was finally terminated Ed spearheaded the recently announced decision by the Federal Government to extend over 1 million dollars of assistance for drainage projects not completed by the original finalization date.

In the last 5 years almost $3 million has been allocated to over 170 projects in just the Job Creation - [winter/ student summer] and Senior Citizen 'New Horizon' programs alone.

Add the above to the 5 new Senior Citizen Public Housing projects, plus the numerous approved projects under various government departments such as Agriculture, Secretary of State, etc. and it is easy to see that the Federal presence has been felt in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry since Ed Lumley became our M.P.

Following is the breakdown by Township:

	Projects	$
Winchester Twnp. including Chesterville, Winchester & Morewood	30	$420,735
Williamsburg Twnp. including Morrisburg & Winchester Springs	32	422,046

AN UNHAPPY SITUATION

There's nothing a politician can do that will make him fall out of favour with his constituents faster than raising taxes. In Iroquois, council is putting the final touches to a plan that will see the taxes and water rates rise by about $120. per household. The tax hike won't take effect til next year, but the water rates will be going up shortly.

There's no doubt that the cries will be loud and clear. Those on a fixed income will be among the loudest and with good reason, but the die is already cast. A special public meeting is being planned to explain the situation, but there appears to be no turning back.

Council has little choice but to forge ahead and build a new sewage treatment plant, with or without financial help from the province. Without it the village will never grow, and what's worse -- Iroquois will continue to put raw sewage into the St. Lawrence.

Attempts to convince the Minister of the Environment that some financial help is necessary have been met with sympathy, but little else. The money, they say, is just not there for places like Iroquois, where the priority is lower than for a community whose water supply is actually being fouled.

The project will put Iroquois in debt, for the first time in many years, a situation that is not uncommon for municipal governments.

Those who think we should sit back and ignore the situation should examine their consciences and ask themselves if they would feel the same way if they had children swimming in the river or if a community upriver from Iroquois was putting raw sewage in the river.

No one wants to be the bad guy, although it appears that council will be cast in that role when taxes go up. But no one wants to swim or drink from a toilet either, and that's the alternative.

ANOTHER BLUNDER

In its most recent proposed reforms for CBC programming, the CRTC has committed one of its worst blunders to date (and it has made some dandies). It all comes down to the old question of someone else telling us what we will and won't enjoy on television. If the commercials and popular U.S. programs disappear, it will end up costing us more in tax dollars to support a network that few people will watch.

It won't matter a hoot, here along the border. It will just strengthen the U.S. stations which are already rubbing their hands with glee at the prospect of more viewers. Where it will hurt is in more remote areas that have only CBC and CTV service. Those people will have to rely on one network for their "popular" programs.

A Jarvis farmer who sued a farm equipment dealer for $52,400 over machinery he claimed was defective has lost the court case.

In the judgement, he was ordered to pay the farm equipment dealers $16,400. It began when the farmer bought a four-wheel-drive tractor worth $45,000 in 1975, a sprayer and a cultivator. The farmer claimed the tractor and the other equipment broke down just when he needed it most and he lost $22,000 a year for two years.

The disgruntled farmer took the equipment and dumped it back in the dealer's yard and refused to pay for it. He refused to make more than one payment on a total purchase of $69,407. He paid only $10,000 because, he said, the tractor did not have enough power to pull the equipment and the other implements wouldn't do the job they were supposed to do.

The farmer lost 140 hours of use of his tractor because he couldn't get it repaired after rocker arms broke a week after he bought it. It was also out of commission for five weeks, he claimed, at a time when he needed it 12 hours a day.

The equipment dealer denied the tractor was defective.

They said they repaired it 14 days after it broke down and did not charge the farmer for repairs because the tractor was still under warranty. They also claimed they lost more than $21,000 when they resold all the equipment.

The judge agreed with the company although the farmer was allowed to deduct $4,500 for lost time.

Another case is before the courts to be heard in June involving a leased tractor, also supposed to have broken down when needed.

These are only two cases. Hundreds of others could be cited.

Ontario farmers are spending $240 million a year on machinery with no guarantee the equipment will do the job they bought it for.

Farm equipment warranties claim the companies will repair a tractor for any defects during the first two years. But the dealers and the manufacturers spell out in no uncertain terms that no money will be paid for time lost or crop losses if the equipment will not do thejob.

In Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba, government legislation forces farm equipment manufacturers to replace defective parts within 72 hours or pay for crops or time lost.

The only recourse farmers in Ontario have is the toothless tiger called the farm machinery review board. Its five members can only investigate and make recommendations. They have absolutely no power to do anything. This board's clout is so minimal that the Ontario Federation of Agriculture doesn't even bother to refer cases to it because the federation believes -- although it has no legal powers with farm equipment manufacturers and dealers either -- it can get more action on its own.

Farmers are not included in the Consumers Protection Act and have to fight warranty battles on their own. The urban consumer who gets a defective car or an appliance has a warranty backed by the act. Companies which do not honor their warranties can be charged and the province will help the consumer fight the case.

Legislation has forced manufacturers with farm dealerships in western Canada to keep large inventories of parts on the Prairies.

I agree with Ed Morden, secretary-manager of the National Farmers Union regional office in Guelph: "A tractor that used to cost $10,000 now costs anywhere from $40,000 to $70,000. If it doesn't do the job, there isn't a thing you can do except sue. The Ontario government just won't move in the direction of government warranties."

A promise to help farmers was made in the Throne Speech when this session of the legislature opened. Nothing has been done so far.

The budget for agriculture in Ontario increased less than three per cent. If the government is not going to do anything in these times of restraint, then it could certainly give thought to putting some teeth in the toothless tiger.

Bypassing The Issues

By W. Roger Worth

Canada's politicians are shortchanging the public, failing to even raise the major issues facing the country, let alone suggesting solutions.

Day after dreary day, it seems, the media has been reduced to reporting the latest sniping effort by one or all of the four party leaders.

Mostly, the would-be prime ministers are acting a great deal like schoolboys, engaging in a national shouting match over who is the smartest, strongest, or most decisive.

After listening to the petty name calling and rhetoric, an outsider might be excused for assuming the campaign has been reduced to such a level because the country has few basic problems. Sadly, this is not the case.

Roger Worth is Director, Public Affairs, Canadian Federation of Independent Business.

Consider some of the important issues that are apparently too hot for the politicians to handle, even though they have a dramatic effect on the quality of life enjoyed by the Canadian public:

- None of the parties appear concerned about the country's rapidly rising current account deficit, perhaps the best indication that Canadians are living well beyond their means.

While the intricacies of the system may be difficult for ordinary Canadians to fathom, the current account operates much like an ordinary bank account. Canada takes in money by selling goods and services internationally. As a nation, Canadians send money abroad when they buy imported goods. In addition, the money spent on such items as foreign travel as well as dividends paid to foreign investors and interest on our international debt is included.

What's important to understand is that the deficit reached $5.3 billion last year, a dramatic turnaround from an $86 million surplus in 1973.

Something's clearly amiss in the Canadian economy, yet the politicians appear little interested in the subject.

- Even the disquieting number of major corporate takeovers and mergers in the last year hasn't been enough to bring the competition policy issue to the fore.

Canada has the weakest competition legislation in the industrialized world, yet none of the parties seem overly concerned that larger and larger conglomerates in some sectors will restrict competition, squeezing smaller businesses and eventually driving up consumer prices.

- While the major parties have at least offered a few incentives for small business in their quest for votes, it seems clear the politicians still don't understand the importance of Canada's independent businesses in creating badly needed jobs.

With unemployment topping 974,000, it's perhaps necessary to again point out that small businesses, not the large conglomerates, are providing most of Canada's new jobs.

As a consequence, discussion of policies to overcome the difficulties facing this dynamic sector should be key issues in the campaign. They're not.

Rather than participating in name calling and debates over how and when to hold a television debate, Canadians deserve to know how their politicians would tackle these and other serious national problems.

Safety is the Key

Dear Sir,

Having read about the latest developments on nuclear news: the real safety of nuclear plants being questioned, secret documents having surfaced, the near-tragedy of Harrisburg, I begin to wonder about the faith or trust I put in the people of leadership or responsibility.

I have been led to believe that a nuclear energy centre would be absolutely safe, or almost. The Harrisburg incident could not be more timely and really added to the drama of the whole situation. Since then, the newspapers and television have been so insistent in explaining, that one gets the impression that someone is trying to hide something from the public, that all the so-called accidents in the nuclear plants are simply routine.

In the light of this troubled situation, I think it is proper to stall all new expansion in the nuclear field until the scientists can ensure an absolute control of the reactor and a safer disposal of the waste. Why not request our governments to develop on a larger scale, alternative forms of energy?

In conclusion, I would like to give credit to the people concerned about the well-being of the population.

Sincerely,
Lionel Chartrand

by J.M.

When the metric system was dumped on Canada a few years ago, they told us it would be easier for everybody. Uniformitv. precision, accuracy, logic -- all those words. Since the start I've been skeptical but I still tried to approach it with a fairly open mind. Last week's Post listed specials in the grocery stores, including such items as detergent measured in litres, ounces and millilitres. It looked pretty confusing, particularly if you wanted to do a little unit pricing and comparison shopping. A closer study in the store revealed that it can be a challenge but there is some logic if you dig it out. The powdered detergents such as Tide are sold by both weight and volume. A 1½ litre box of one detergent can weigh twice as much as the same volume of a competing brand. The liquids are sold strictly on the basis of volume. Now, lest you get the impression that you're reading the Ladies Home Journal, we'll move on to something a little more dramatic.

And speaking of drama, The Butler Did It opens on Thursday night at Seaway High. The two-act play is a real classic whodunit, with a satirical character to poke a little fun at every mystery that was ever done. The play has a Charlie Chan type, an Agatha Christie type and the usual assortment of villians, damsels and heroes.

Thursday nights at our house have been a little hectic lately as we gobble supper and race to Winchester for the pre-natal classes that are hopefully preparing us for the blessed event that is happening this summer. It's amazing what a difference a few years can make. Not too long ago, if I'd been seen leaving town with a lady who was carrying a pillow and blanket it would have made for quite a scandal. Now nobody turns an eye. The pillow and blanket are vital to the exercise period that is part of the class. We learn to breathe properly, to time imaginary contractions and what to expect when the big day comes. For those of us who are a little squeamish about operating rooms, blood and such things, it is a special challenge. This past week, I passed up the Liberal rally at Dixon's Corners to attend class because the program was to include a tour of the delivery area and the film. I'm pleased to report that no one in the class, including this writer suffered any fainting spells either during the tour or throughout the entire filmed birth. That doesn't qualify me for the Ben Casey award of merit, but it is a start.

Last week's column included comments about Iroquois being overlooked in a feature on area campsites in the Ottawa Citizen. We noted that a similar situation had occurred last year with the Journal, and that Iroquois council had written to correct them on their omission. We have learned that the letter to the Journal was written by Mrs. Ruth [Jack] Fetterly and that council was sent a carbon copy of her letter, for which they thanked her. It looks as if she will have to get out her pen and paper this year and set the Citizen straight.

The popularity of the community bulletin board on the mall in the shopping plaza is beginning to pick up dramatically. In fact there is so much information to be displayed there that those in charge of it have asked us to pass along the word that there just isn't room for a lot of larger posters. They suggest that if you want your message posted, it be kept to nothing larger than about 12 inches square.

Year of the child . . . Bill Smiley

So this is the Year of the Child. Well, you can have it. And them. Our society is breaking up fast. First, in the 60s, the teenagers took over. They got into drugs and politics and violence and dropping out and communes and health food and free love and ripping-off the government and driving their parents to drink and depression.

Then we got into Women's Liberation Moement. Raucous and intelligent women trying to upset a perfectly good system that has been working well, on the hole, for about 20,000 years. We should never have given them the vote back in '21, or whenever.

They have wrecked family life, population growth, and the economy by their ridiculous demands. They have psychologically castrated their husbands and turned the occasional kid they had into a whining brat who thinks that love and whatever else he wants are more inportant than a good whack on the bum.

They have sent the unemployment rate soaring by sailing into the job market in their hundreds of thousands. Just because they have high skills or a university degree, they think and say, quite openly and without shame, that they should be considered on the same level as, or even higher than, a Grade 10 dropout male who can barely tie his shoelaces. Sheer arrogance.

They have wrecked the educational system by refusing to remain baby factories. This has caused rapidly falling enrollment in our schools and a lack of jobs for male teachers, whose wives are among the worst examples of tiny families and hitting the job market.

And now it's the year of the kids. There are series on child-battering in the papers, articles about one-parent children, and even child symposiusms in which the little turkeys are asked to comment on how their parents should behave, what's wrong with the world, what freedoms they should have, and any other insane question a smarmy, patronizing interviewer can think up.

We are smothered by stuff from the media about children: day care centres, inner city schools (slums), special education, gifted children, obscene T-shirts for kids. We are harassed and harangued by priests who have never had a child and social workers up to their ears in stale psychiatry, and politicians who know that kids can't vote, but grab the coat-tails of any issue that receives media attention.

And what good is all this going to do the kids? Not much. They'll go right on doing what they've always done: dreaming, fighting, playing; being the happy, morose, belligerent, shy, cruel, gentle, brilliant, slow, and utterly delightful little animals they've always been.

In Canada they'll be over-fed, over-spoiled and over here. In Africa they'll be over-starved, over-populated and over there. And in both places they'll be over-loved with that weird, irrational love of children that prevails throughout the world, civilized or uncivilized.

Oh, a few laws might be passed, and many resolutions approved. But the drunken mother or father who beats a child will go on doing so. The ultra-permissive parents will go on turning out monstrous teenagers. The over-protective parents will go on turning out still more monstrous teenagers.

But the great mass of kids in this Year of the Children will be much like every other generation: curious, resentful of things that they don't understand, ready to fight to death for ideals, gradually conforming and compromising to the realities of life, and going on to become monstrous parents themselves.

Now I don't speak from the seat of the Old Philosopher, or any such hypocritic elevation. I recently had a visit from my Grandboys. I speak firsthand.

It was Easter weekend, and we're still scraping chocolate off the woodwork and picking up squashed jelly-beans and ripped rabbits' ears.

But it was a great weekend. That marvellous alchemist, Time, has wrought a great change in them. They are becoming personal friends, instead of sibling rivals.

The destruction was down about 800 per cent. True, Nickov kicked a ball into a collection of Doulton figurines, but nothing was broken, I took the ball away, and he didn't even have a tantrum.

But the TV is still working. A few doorknobs are missing, but not all of them, as on previous visits. They can eat without bibs, though Balind did get about 80 grams of relish and ketchup down his front when mangling a hot dog.

However, he's only two and has a grin that would disarm the devil. And he said something that so shook me that I went down in a faint, and my old lady had to pick me up. I'd plunked a peanut butter and honey sandwich in front of him, and he said, "Thank you Grandat," as casually as though I were a waiter. I'd never heard either of them say "Please" or "thank you" before.

They didn't sprinkle even one can of powder, mixed with toothpaste, on the hardwood floors. They didn't break a single window. They didn't anoint the TV with cold cream. They took off their muddy boots when they came in, instead of marching over the Indian rug.

And when I said, "Don't wreck my typewriter," or something of the sort, they didn't blurt, "....you,"; they said, "OK, Grandat," or something of the sort.

Maybe this Year of the Children has something going for it, a whole lot more than Sixties Sulks or Women's Lib Nerve-Wracking.

But when is the Year of the Man? I hope I'm around long enough to enjoy it.

Hydro plant debate continues

Dear Sir:

With Regard to the recent letter from A. Fraser, the Association of Concerned Ratepayers would like to make a number of points. We agree with Mr. Fraser that it would be absurd for a town such as Iroquois with a peak electrical load of around four megawatts to invite Ontario Hydro to construct a station of up to 12,000 megawatts in Matilda Township. However, that is precisely what Iroquois council did. As recently as April 19th, Reeve Rooney stated that such a station was needed so that we wouldn't be "chopping wood" in a little while.

As for the contention that the construction of a generating complex would bring "prosperity", Mr. Fraser would be well advised, as would some others, to take the trouble to independently investigate the kind of "prosperity" which comes with such a development. He might also refer to the Canadian Council of Rural Development for a description of the type of development which would be truly beneficial to an area such as this.

If power from the R.H. Saunders hydroelectric plant is not being "exported", perhaps Mr. Fraser would advise us where, exactly, it is going. He might reflect for a moment on the fact that total installed capacity in eastern Ontario is almost 4000 megawatts while maximum peak load is a little less than 2000 megawatts. We have been unable to determine how this translates into an urgent need for more capacity. Perhaps Mr. Fraser would enlighten us.

In criticizing the article "The costly reality of Hydro", Mr. Fraser could more accurately direct his attack towards the Globe and mail which published the article. He should bear in mind, though, that the Globe is, beyond all question, the staunchest defender of Ontario Hydro in the Canadian media.

Mr. Fraser asks why Ontario Hydro was not warned, in advance, of the oil crisis. Aside from the fact that Mr. Fraser is placing the onus on the wrong people since Ontario Hydro and the various governments have all the staff, money, equipment and access to information with which to forecast the energy situation, he is totally ignoring the fact that Ontario Hydro and others in the energy business were warned in the 1950s and 1960s of an impending energy crisis. In a speech delivered in April 1961 E.F. Schaumacher, chairman of the British Coal Board and one of the world's leading economists, stated that "a continuation of rapid growth (in oil consumption) beyond 1980 would be virtually impossible." He went on to say that "There may be a world wide scramble for oil reflected possibly in greatly enhanced oil prices." Ontario Hydro ignored such warnings, as did other utilities and all governments, as they are ignoring the warnings which are being given today.

New Lions Club members

Members of the Iroquois-Matilda Lions Club celebrated the 32nd anniversary of the granting of their charter on Saturday night with a dinner-dance for members and friends. Guest speaker for the evening was Bruce Murray of St. Mary's Ontario. During the course of the evening, four new Lions were inducted into the club. Seen here with Past Governor Archie Sayant of Metcalfe who conducted the ceremony are (left to right) Albert DeJong, Ross Dulmage, Bob McIntosh and Jim Locke

Sewage plant could cost homeowners $120. yearly

The proposed new sewage treatment plant could add around $120. to the annual costs of taxes and water for village homeowners. The tax increases won't take effect until 1980, but local residents can expect to see water rates tripled within few months as council gears up for the project.

Village consulting engineer Sebo Van Ingen Schenau is preparing a summary of costs and an explanation of the financial aspect of the plant and that will be published in the Post, quite likely next week. As well, council is planning an information meeting to acquaint people with the facts.

However, it will be largely an information session, since council is committed to proceed with building a new plant. The only alternative is to ignore the fact that raw sewage is going directly into the river, a fact that the Ministry of the Environment would likely not accept for long, knowing that there is close to half a million dollars sitting in the bank and earmarked for improvements to the plant.

The plans for the larger plant would have cost about a million and a half dollars to put into operation. That would mean, according to the engineer, that the mill rate could rise from the present 134 to approximately 164. For the proposed smaller plant, it would rise to about 151 mills.

If the large plant were to be financed completely by the village and the CMHC grant, water rates could rise to $117 per year. For the smaller plant, they could rise to $86. per year up from the present $30.

For an average home in the village, assessed at $3,550. the taxes and water bill now total about $505. per year. If the larger plant were to be built without the Ministry grant that figure could rise to $698. For the smaller plant it will probably rise to about $621., a rise of about $115. or $120. That represents an increase of about 25 percent in water rates and taxes.

The figures must be reworked, according to the engineer, because they represent only a 10 percent increase for Dominion Textiles, the largest water and sewer user. Before an application can be made to the Ontario Municipal Board for a debenture the figures will have to be revised to show a more equitable share of the load going to the Caldwell plant.

According to the engineer, work should begin immediately on preparing the application for a debenture, since there will likely have to be an Ontario Municipal Board hearing to settle the issue. The OMB is running behind schedule and it could easily take up to four months to get a hearing, meaning that the plant could not get started until late fall.

All candidates

All three candidates running for election in Stormont-Dundas will take part on Thursday night in an all-candidates meeting in Cornwall. The meeting is being sponsored by the Cornwall Chamber of Commerce and will be held at the St. Columban's hall.

The meeting is open to all and gets underway at 7 p.m.

not had a decrease in jobs or growth since the oil embargo of 1973", he said, "We have come out ahead with the greatest potential for the 80's.

Citing his position as Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Finance, Jean Chretien, Mr. Lumley said that his knowledge of the financial position of Canada had improved greatly, and having worked on three budgets in one year with Mr. Chretien, private investment was up.

The dollar and it's position on the world market was no longer mentioned, remarked Mr. Lumley, accusing the media of burying it in the classified section.

"The Progressive Conservatives don't mention the dollar very much now, since it has started to gain on the international market, and the media downplay it. The government didn't have anything to do with the dollar going down in the first place and didn't have anything to do with it going up. I as an individual am proud of our economic record," Lumley said.

Local municipal governments got a pat on the back when the liberal hopeful said that recent remarks by the Brockville mayor that the Stormont-Dundas riding got grants while they received little. Mr. Lumley defended his territory by saying that he had done only what local people had requested of him in the way of assistance.

Mr. Lumley said that he is expecting Jean Chretien to be present with him on May 12th in Cornwall when the official opening of the Transport Canada Training Institute is held.

Village grant confirmed

Four students to be employed over summer

An official confirmation has been received by Cardinal acknowledging that the village being awarded a grant of $3,030.00 by the Ministry of Culture and Recreation.

Although council had been informed at the last meeting the Kingston office of the ministry had passed the application on to Toronto, the confirmation was still required.

Reeve James McLaughlin had worked with Dave McBride, field consultant with the ministry, in obtaining the grant which will see 4 students hired over the summer.

One student, over the age of 18, will be paid $3.00 per hour for a period of nine weeks while three other students, under 18 will work under the leadership of the older one, will be paid $2.15 per hour for 8 weeks.

The village is hoping to begin receiving applications within a few weeks and once the selected students are hired, they will be required to spend 3 days and nights at Albert College in Belleville in a program designed by the ministry to make the students more effecient in their duties.

Taught by Nanette Cuddy, also a ministry employee, the student will learn over the 3 day period leadership, discipline programme planning and the games that will be played.

The village is hoping to have a variety of sports to offer kids in the community, including basketball, volleyball, badminton, floor hockey and tennis.

While the students are at Belleville, the village will absorb the costs involved in sending and housing the workers.

Equipment to play the summer sports will also be supplied by the village and at a cost of $1.00 per head for the total 8 week package of summer activity, the village is hoping that parents in Cardinal will take the opportunity to have their children involved in the program.

Students meet with seniors

The Cardinal Senior Citizens Club met at St. John's on May 3rd with 41 members in attendance.

The meeting was brought to order with singing 'O Canada'. Business was dealt with and reports of the committees were made.

About 60 children from Benson Public School arrived to entertain the Seniors under music director Diane Hoy. Vice Principal Getty Donaldson was also in attendance and the senior's thoroughly enjoyed a melody of their old time favourites, and were high in their praise of the high quality and total participation of the children.

President McIntosh extended his warmest wishes to the children and teachers for providing them with a most enjoyable afternoon.

A lunch was served by the committee to which their young guests were invited and enjoyed to the fullest.

Open House marks Police Week

May 12 to 18th has been earmarked as Police Week in Canada and the Cardinal Village Police will be holding an open house to help inform the public of their role in the community.

Scheduled to be held from 3 - 8 p.m. on Thursday May 17th the open house will be at the police headquarters on Walter Street in the village.

The public is cordially invited to drop in and speak with the men and learn about their duties, functions within the village.

All - candidates meeting tonight

While two candidates out of three have confirmed their attendance at the all-candidates meeting tonight, the Progressive Conservative candidate was still unsure of his appearance.

Both Mildred Smith, NDP candidate, and Gerry McKee, liberal hopeful, have confirmed their appearance at the meeting to be held at the Anglican Church Hall at 8 p.m.

But Tom Cossitt's campaign headquarters only said late yesterday that Mr. Cossit was changing his schedule and that there was a strong possibility he would be in attendance.

The candidates will be allowed each to speak for a limited time and the public will be given time to question candidates.

Winter navigation

Last public meeting scheduled for tonight

The United States Army Corps of Engineers will present their findings at the last public meeting tonight for the area in Massena at the Town Hall before presenting their final draft on winter navigation to Congress. It is expected that the Corps will meet heavy opposition from both government and public organizations.

As scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. the gathering will be the remaining opportunity for those with either positive or negative thoughts on the concept of having ships navigate the Seaway System year-round.

Opponents such as the Save The River Committee and the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation are expected to be on hand to voice their opposition to the scheme that has been nine years in the planning.

The mandate for the crops, ends this September and the corps will be asking for a one-year extension and additional funds to continue their studies.

One of the major contentions opponents have continually brought up in meetings has been the fact that Canada to date has been taking a non-interested role in the studies, and according to opponents, their participation must be included to even begin the task of studying winter navigation.

In the latest draft, the corps acknowledged Canada's non-involvement and stated that steps should be taken to bring the neighbouring country into participation.

BRIAN PETERS NDP

A FAIR DEAL FOR
STORMONT - DUNDAS
THIS ELECTION IS ABOUT PRICES

So was the last one. We opposed the Conservatives' promise of wage and price controls. So did Trudeau, but he and his M.P.'s introduced them after the election. Shouldn't this make you wonder about Liberal promises this election?

IT'S TIME WE GOT SERIOUS ABOUT PRICES

Trudeau's Anti-Inflation Board strictly controlled your wages, but allowed prices to soar (though not at the farm gate)
BRIAN PETERS and the NDP want to introduce legislation to ROLL BACK any unfair price increases by large corporations
We can do this, because we don't accept campaign funds from them, as do the other two parties

Knights continue winning streak, down Cardinals

The 1979 portion of the 1978 / 79 season opened Saturday with three Senior Division games at the Canal field and two Junior Division games at Benson School field.

Reeve James McLaughlin dropped the ball for the opening game at 9 a.m. when the Jays took the field against the Eagles. This turned into a close contest with the Jays winning 2 to 1 on goals by Mike Farmer and Robert Hall. Tommy Dishaw scored the only goal for the Eagles.

The 10 am game saw the as-yet unbeaten Knights facing the ever dangerous Cardinals. The first half saw end to end action, with the Knights having sightly more of the play but being unable to put the ball in the net and the half ended scoreless. Unfortunately for the Cardinals they were shorthanded and the pace and pressure began to tell in the second half with the Knights going on to win on goals by three players: Danny Grisdale (2), Alan Grant (2), and Rodd Stitt.

In the final game, again an end-to-end contest, the Hornets survived to win 2 - 1, against the Snowbirds. This to was a well played game with the Snowbirds pressuring right to the final whistle but unable to gain the equaliser. Scoring for the Hornets were John Sherman, Kevin Patrick with Terry O'Connell replaying for the Snowbirds.

Art Dawson, the League Chairman, thanked the Reeve on behalf of the League and said he also wanted to welcome and to thank Bob Scott, who has stepped in as coach of the Cardinals. Mr. Scott is going to ba an asset to the league and will no doubt give the Cardinals the life they seem to need at the moment, and we predict they will win more games than they lose during the rest of the year.

The Junior Division also saw two close games and lots of enthusiasm at Benson field. In the 10 a.m. contest Ricky Amell scored two goals for the Hornets while Steve Byers and Darnel Hall each scored one for the Eagles for a 2-2 final result. In the second game the Cardinals took a squeeker from the Jays by a 3-2 score. Scoring for the Jays were Brian Mills and Andre O'Brien while for the winners Mike Rylands scored twice with the other goals coming from John Hanna.

The League was pleased to see all the senior teams taking the field Saturday with new shirts. A generous donation from the Canada Starch company enabled the Committee to go ahead with this purchase for all six teams and other approaches are being made for additional funds to meet the total cost. These new shirts bear the players numerals and enables the Junior division to have their own shirts and, of course, saves the running from one field to the other which was necessary last year when a Junior game followed a Senior games at a separate field. Art Dawson expressed and indicated that if the other approaches they have made result in additional funds to meet the cost of the new shirts for all six teams the league might be able to purchase an additional set of nets required for the Junior division at Benson School field.

School board policy amends police acess

Leeds-Grenville County Board of Education will allow various law enforcement agencies in their jurisdiction access to students in schools on condition any police inquiry begins with the principal.

In their policy statement, the board instructed its principals, or their designates, to pursue a policy of co-operation with police if there is a request from them to interview a student, or a request is made to police for their assistance.

But, principals are to attempt to seek prior parental permission for the interview if the student is under the age of 16, and where the principal is unable to contact the parent, the principal will act in "loco parentis,".

In such a case where the principal is acting in loco parentis, he shall be present during the interview between the student and investigating officer.

In the event a student is the age of 16or over the permission of parents will not be required or the presence of the principal be necessary.

The principal will be given the option of deciding whether the inquiry is for information purposes only and not of an urgent nature, and he may request that the inquiry be conducted outside of school hours.

If a warrant is produced for the questioning or arrest of a student, the principal is to cooperate fully.

Where a request is made for a search of a locker or lockers or personal belongings, a search warrant shall be produced unless, in the case of students 16 years of age or over, approval has been obtained by the student or students involved. In the case of students under the age of 16, prior approval must be given by the parents of the student, or students if no warrant is produced.

BRYSON COMRIE OFFICIAL AGENT CAMPAIGN HEADQUARTERS 502 PITT STREET CORNWALL ONTARIO

Students studying French and German at Seaway High took part on Monday morning in a special assembly at the school. The program included selections by the stage band at Seaway and presentation of certificates of merit for those students who participated during class over the year. Guest speaker for the occasion was Dave Powell of the Ottawa office of the Ministry of Culture and Recreation. Mr. Powell told the students that Ontario is no longer a one-language province and stressed the need for fraternity with those speaking another language. He commended the students for their far sighted attitude in taking a second or third language and impressed on them that studying a new language was not just a technical thing, but was a matter of attitude and culture. Seen here with Mr. Powell is French department head John McAllister (left) and several of the 52 people who received certificates.

Investigate B & E at Texaco

Provincial Police are investigating a break and enter on Saturday night at Mac's Texaco. The thief entered by way of window in the service station and, according to police, made off with $181. in cash.

Police are also investigating a car-bike collision on Friday. Troy Bailey of Broadway Crescent received minor injuries when his bicycle was in collision with a car driven by Mack McQuigge of Iroquois.

Charges of impaired driving were laid on the weekend against Donald Veinotte of Morrisburg. Chargs were laid under the Liquor Licensing Act were laid against Carol Jackson of Brinston and against Ralph Hamilton of Alberta.

On May 5, OPP at Morrisburg recovered a car stolen in Kingston and the two young men in the car were turned over to OPP at Cornwall where they were charged with possession of a stolen vehicle.

K of C car raffle for Arthritis

Members of the Morrisburg-Iroquois council of the Knights of Columbus were busy on the weekend selling tickets on the three new cars being raffled off by the Knights across Ontario with proceeds going towards Arthritis research. Those who would like a ticket on the draw, which takes place on the holiday weekend, can stop in at the Bank of Montreal or can visit the booth on the Morrisburg mall this weekend.

Iroquois, Matilda among Canada Works recipients

Young Canada Works grants have been approved for several area communities, with Iroquois and Matilda on the list. The village of Iroquois will be receiving $7,860. for a summer recreation project and Matilda will receive $6,360. for a similar project.

Ed. Lumley was advised on Tuesday of the approvals by the Minister of Employment and Immigration, the Honourable Bud Cullen. There are 49 projects in all, creating over 220 jobs in the riding of Stormont-Dundas. The projects were made possible through the $312,000. allocated to this riding under the federal student job creation program.

In the next few days, it is anticipated that an additonal 5 projects will be announced under various student summr programs in other federal government departments. These projects will receive over $50,000. and will employ over 20 more students.

The Iroquois grant is about one third of the amount applied for, while Matilda received half of the $12,300. they sought. Both grants are in line with the amounts allocated to other applications from the riding.

The grants in Iroquois and Matilda will be used for the operation of such things as playground supervision and activities programs, water safety programs, the re-writing of the history of Iroquois and a variety of other projects.

Other area communities and their grants include:

Dundas County Association for the Mentally Regarded - Summer recreation program $5,088.;

Winchester Springs Recreation Association - summer recreation program 4,452

Village of Morrisburg - construction of a bicycle path and landscaping 9,774;

Prince of Wales Theatre - Upper Canada Road - stage production apprenticeship program.

Village of Chesterville - summer recreation program $6,360;

South Willimasburg Township Recreation Association - combined arts, crafts and recreation program $4,560.

Stormont, Dundas & Glengarry County Board of Education - inventory and identification of furniture and equipment $8,646.

Village of Winchester - landscaping and renovation program $7,992.

Glen-Stor-Dun Lodge - energy conservation project - $7,552.

Township of Winchester - updating of fire reporting system and traffic information $5,088

Mountain Township Recreation Committee - summer recreation project - $8,424.

St. Lawrence Branch of United Empire Loyalists Association - historical research project - $4,860.

Seaway Community Services - Dundas - arts and crafts program $4,374.

The Young Canada Works Program is designed to provide employment opportunities for students during the summer months through the implementation of community-based projects. Emphasis is placed upon the origination and organization of projects within the community, a feature which enables local individuals and groups to tailor projects to meet the special needs and particular circumstances of the community in which they live.

Mr. Lumley was very pleased with the number of projects approved, indicating that "this will contribute significantly to alleviating the student summer employment /problem in our area." We have been most fortunate in these student summer employment programs as we have received over $1.5M in the last five years alone.

Then, as now, it was "growth" at all costs and the future be damned.

As to knowledge of oil reserves, Mr. Fraser is again ignoring the fact that government has all the resources with which to estimate oil reserves. If he feels that incompetence has been demonstrated in this area, he may wish to direct his concern to his elected representatives. On the question of fossil fuel reserves, Mr. Fraser should be aware of the fact that Canada has such vast reserves of natural gas, a clean and relatively inexpensive fuel, that the National Energy Board has authorized the export of massive quantities over the next twenty years. Gas has very considerable advantages over both oil and electricity as a means of heating and is now, and will continue to be, the preferred fuel.

We understand the disappointment of those who believed that Ontario Hydro would be buying their land holdings at generous prices.

Such disappointments should not, however, be allowed to cloud our vision or create bitterness. We must join together to ensure that the development of eastern Ontario proceeds in such a way as to guarantee that our social and economic structure is stregthened, not destroyed, and that we have a healthy and safe environment in which to live.

Yours truly,

ator of all fund raising drives and events. His final duty will be to wrk with the chairman of the entertainment committee.

Two of this years positions will remain the same as far as duties are concerned and they are the chairpersons of the G.A.A. and B.A.A. This system is presently being used by many of the schools in Ontario and should fit in well at Seaway. It will replace the old system of head-boy and head-girl and distribute their authority and duties more evenly and hopefully will prove to be a better form of student government.

Students at Seaway raised $63. for the local Cancer Campaign, following a tag day held last week at the school. Under the guidance of Connie Brown, the event was co-ordinated by head boy Bob Duvall and head girl Noreen MacGregor.

The gymnastics team from Iroquois Public School took part in the recent gymnastics meet for S.D. & G. held in Cornwall. The group worked for several weeks prior to the event under the training of Lori DeBellefeuille and came home with a number of top place ribbons to attest to their skills. The team posed for this photo on the lawn of the school and the pyramid disappeared moments after the shutter clicked.

by Ross Mutton

The CRTC has decided to renew the license of the CBC until 1982. In so doing, however, the Commission has asked for unheard of performance from the CBC. They have suggested that the network ignore "commercially-oriented mass entertainment programming, in a continuing series" in the 6 p.m. to midnight prime-time slot. What the Commission is basically saying is, increase your programming to your objective of 80% Canadian in prime-time, and use the remaining 20% for the finest of import programming.

This idea raises several questions. First of all, does the CRTC have the right to dictate to the CBC exactly what kind of programming the network may run? Up to now, it has restricted its origin and its genre, but it has not gone so far as to say that you should dump M*A*S*H and Happy Days in preferance to a BBC symphonic special. Al Johnson, presiden tof CBC, has taken exception to this interference, and has requested a meeting with the CRTC.

Secondly, the CBC reaches 1 million Canadians that receive no other television service. Should this 5% of our population not be given the option of seeing programs like Barney Miller, M*A*S*H and The Muppets?

Thirdly, such programs generate revenue for the CBC. This revenue offsets some of the costs in producing other programming. It also provides revenue for a large number of provately-owned CBC affiliates. You can bet your bottom dollar they won't want to wave goodbye to revenue, which means either the CBC will have to compensate them for the loss, or the network will start to fall apart. For instance, in Ontario the CBC owns stations in Toronto, Ottawa and Windsor. The rest of the province is served by affiliates. If they leave the fold, the network reach won't be anywhere near 95% of Canada.

Interestingly enough, the CBC has made a proposal that should obtain the objectives the CRTC is seeking. The network wants to begin a CBC-2, programming more cultural and high quality material. Such a network could be extended to just the major centres where such a service would have some market. The idea is not terribly radical, since the CBC is already providing a similar service with radio. The more popular programming is on AM, with the classier stuff relegated to FM. The BBC has also been providing a similar television service in Britain, with BBC-1 and BBC-2.

Who knows why the CRTC turned down this suggestion, and came up with their dump Mary Tyler Moore Theory. I wonder if CTV is rubbing its hands with glee as the CBC disappears as a competitor, or are worried that the CRTC axe is going to fall on them next?

I must confess to leading you astray last week. In one of my weaker moments, I thought that a program entitled The Ropers was a BBC import featuring the downstairs neighbours from Man About The House. I was, of course, thinking of the BBC spin-off, George and Mildred. The Ropers is an American imitation of George and Mildred. So now we have an imitation spin-off. And we have imitation acting to imitation scripts with much imitation laughter.

If you liked George and Mildred, by all means don't watch The Ropers. It's a pale, silly imitation. Also, I've seen better acting on a high school stage then the performance turned in by Audra Lindley (Mrs. Roper). The Ropers is on Ch. 4 on Wednesdays at 10 p.m.

WHAT'S COMING - Raquel Welch is the guest on The Muppets on Wednesday at 7:30 on Ch. 4. At 8 p.m., Live from Lncoln Centre presents the American Ballet Theatre in a performance of "The Sleeping Beauty". That's on Ch. 18. At 9 p.m., Omar Shariff narrates The Mysteries of the Great Pyramid on Global. Monty Python's Flying Crcus returns to Global at 10 p.m. weeknights. At 11 p.m., Dick Cavett presents the first of a two-part interview with Bob Hope. Part two is aired Thursday evening. That's on Ch. 18.

On Thursday night at 9 p.m. NBC presents An Hour of Satire and Slapstick, with who else but Chevy Chase. That's on Ch. 5. At 10 p.m., Ch. 19 presents the first of a six-part television version of The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie.

On Friday night at 9 p.m., NBC presents a two-hour perspective of The Dean Martin Show which ran from 1965 to 1974. This is also carried on Ch. 13. Also at 9:00, Ch. 4 repeats Liona Boyd's special.

On Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m., CBC presents the F.A. Cup final on Sportsweekend. At 8 p.m., Ch. 13 presents "The Cassandra Crossing" starring Sophia Loren. At 11 p.m., Ch. 18 presents Tom T. Hall on Austin City Limits. At midnight, Ch. 18 runs Adventures of Sherlock Holmes, one of the Basil Rathbone-Nigel Bruce movies. Also at midnight, Ch. 13 runs "Paint Your Wagon", starring Lee Marvin, Clint Eastwood and Jean Seberg.

On Sunday afternoon, CTV provides live coverage of the Memorial Cup from the Montreal Forum. That's on Ch. 13.

On Monday at 8 p.m., Leif Garrett has his first television special on Ch. 4. Guests include Bob Hope, Brooke Shields, Marie Osmond and Flip Wilson.

On Tuesday night at 9 p.m., Ch. 18 presents From China to Us, presenting precision acrobatics, virtuoso musicians and mime from the Performing Arts Company of The People's Republic of China.

In the courts

In provincial court at Morrisburg last Tuesday Peter J. Durant and Jeffrey Austin Murphy were convicted of having open liquor in a motor vehicle and were fined $38. each. Peter Allen Corry of Iroquois was given a one-year conditional discharge, following his conviction for theft under $200. and James B. Crummy was fined $38. for having liquor in a place other than his residence.
