The president reported an excellent time on the bus trip to Ottawa.

Grandmothers' Meeting

It was decided to hold the grandmothers' meeting on the afternoon of Friday, October 1st, as there were too many conflicting things on the regular day. It is expected Dr. C. Neville-Smith, assistant M.O.H., Cornwall, will be one of the guest speakers.

Misses Joan and Audrey Casselman delighted everyone with a piano duet and Mrs. Jim MacMillan introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Crozier, Agricultural epresentative who spoke on "It Pays to Advertise," taking the production and sale of cheese as an illustration.

Mrs. Casselman thanked the speaker.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Droppo, assisted by Mrs. Donald Casselman, Mrs. Edgar MacLean, Mrs. Duart MacLean and Mrs. Rupert MacIntyre.

New Degree Earned By Wm. Hough

Wm. Hough, B.S.A., son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hough, of Chesterville, has earned his Master's Degree in Animal Physiology from Cornell University, Ithica, N.Y. He is now back at the Dominion Experimental Farm, Ottawa, as an Animal Physiologist in research.

Nearly a year ago "Bill" received a leave of absence from the Farm staff to continue his studies. He was already a graduate of OAC with a B.S.A. degree. The M.A. degree, hard-earned by many 16- and 18-hour days of work, will mean much to him in his chosen field of study in Canadian agriculture. We join his many friends in congratulating him on his new honours.

Monster Marcellus Potatoes Twelve Weigh 15 Pounds

Wm. F. Marcellus, of R.R. 3, brought us a sample sack of potatoes at the end of the week. While there were only 12 spuds in the bag, they weighed just under 15 pounds. Each potato is the size of a melon and red skinned and very firm.

Mr. Marcullus had an interesting story to tell about the tubers. In 1952 Mrs. Marcullus received one sample of the unknown variety from Mrs. Don Runnions. She planted it and harvested 59 in the fall. The following spring all the potatoes had wintered well and were planted to yield a bag. These were kept and planted this spring and to date, the Marcellus' have dug thirty-five bags. Not a bad return from one seed. The red variety has proven a very good keeping and eating spud.

New Paper Drive Day Saturday, September 18

A new day has been set for the beginning of the fall collection of paper and rags by the Chesterville Scouts and Cubs. Starting this week, the drive will be made on Saturday morning, September 18. This is a departure from the old system of collecting on Wednesday afternoons after school. With the shorter days, it was felt the daytime hours on Saturday would allow the boys a better chance to complete their rounds.

Householders are asked to have their tied bundles of papers and rags available by at least 9 o'clock this coming Saturday morning. If the new days works out, the collections for the following months will probably be made on Saturdays.

New Column for Record

We take pleasure in announcing the beginning of a new column to appear each week in the Record. It will appear on Page Two and will be called "Light Along the Way." The new feature will be of a religious nature and each week will endeavour to pass along some thoughts that we hope will prove of value to our readers.

The column is written locally, and we will welcome comments by our readers on its reception. The new series will join those other popular scribes on Page Two, and, in the near future, we plan to add a locally written "Homemaker's" piece each week by a former writer for the Record, 'H.L.G.'

So Dumb!

Sailor: "They took six weeks to paint that new battleship."

Dumb Blonde: "How silly! Why didn't they photograph it?"

Big Small-mouth Bass Caught by Art Julyan

Art Julyan and his companion had better luck than most last Sunday fishing on the Rideau in the Lighthouse area. They landed several pike in the six- to seven-pound class and topped off the catch with a very fine small-mouth bass. The big, lively fish measured 18 inches long and tipped the scales at three and three-quarters pounds.

Dr. Chas. Donald, Ottawa Speaks at Rotary

Chesterville Rotary Club started the fall term of weekly meetings with almost a full house of members and guests at their regular meeting last Monday evening. President George Barkley was in the chair.

The Dance Committee announced their plans complete to hold dances on Friday, October 1st and on Thanksgiving, October 11th. Russ Hay and his orchestra will provide the music for the events.

Dr. Charles Donald, minister of Southminster United Church, and a past-president of Ottawa Rotary Club, was the speaker for the evening. He was introduced by programme chairman Leon Marcellus and thanked on behalf of the club by Dr. S. H. Hutt.

Dr. Donald reminisced on his experiences in Rotary and what they have meant to him as a minister. He stressed the value received by membership in a service club and pointed out that benefit could only be gained by giving. Humourous sidelights by the speaker proved amusing and instructive to his listeners.

D. R. Dick Nominated PC Candidate For Stormont By-Election

Donald R. Dick, 53-year-old industrial relations manager of Howard Smith Paper Mills, Cornwall, was nominated Progressive-Conservative candidate to contest the forthcoming Federal by-election in Stormont.

Three other prominent PC members from the district were nominated, but all declined in favour of Mr. Dick. They were Frank T. Shaver, Autsville, a former MP for Stormont; John Lawrence McDonald, Harrison's Corners, a former MPP for Stormont; and Ovila Larin, a former city treasurer and tax collector.

When nominating Mr. Dick at the convention in Finch Community Arena, Mr. Larin pointed out that he had known the nominee as a great worker for the PC party for a great number of years. He said Mr. Dick had been with the Cornwall paper mill for 34 years and during that time had served the community well.

Mr. Larin said Mr. Dick is a trustee of the Cornwall Collegiate and Vocational School and the Cornwall YMCA, that he has had an interest in sports and youth work. He is a former town councillor and a former commanding officer of the SD and G Highlanders.

Annnouncement Cheered

Mr. Dick's announcement of his acceptance of the nomination was cheered by the 500 persons who croweded the Arena.

He said he hoped to meet all the people in the riding during the campaign, and promised to serve the riding to the best of his ability.

"I will fight," he declared, "and will speak of the problems of Stormont in the House of Commons after I am elected.

"From now until the day of the by-election, if the government ever gets around to setting the date, I plan to work day and night and together with you we can elect a PC in this riding."

Three members of the Opposition at Ottawa addressed the convention last Friday night. Speaking in both French and English, as did Mr. Larin and others, were Geo. Hees, president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, William Hamilton, Notre Dame de Grace MP, and L. Balcer, Three Rivers MP and Federal PC leader in Quebec.

They all urged voters in Stormont to register a protest against the government in Ottawa by voting for Mr. Dick in the by-election.

Mr. Shaver said that if a PC is elected it will not defeat the government but will serve notice that the people of the area do not like the treatment they have received from the Liberals.

"It is common knowledge there will be no seaway construction in Stormont. It has gone by the board and Mr. Seaway is gone, too. We have a good opportunity to register a protest against the way things are being done. It is time to put aside personal differences," Mr. Shaver said.

Hees on Seaway

The national president of the association, Mr. Hees, said the United States has the right to build part of the seaway if it wishes to do so.

"However, I believe that Canada should not allow the U.S. to have a stranglehold on the whole canal system by having the right to make unilateral decisions regarding the regulations controlling what ships shall have the right of passage through an important part of the system," he declared.

"Canada must insist on being at least an equal partner in the seaway," he added.

C. A. Markell, president of Stormont PC Association, was chairman of the convention.

Mr. Dick's nomination was seconded by J. L. Nephew, Finch.

Fire Call Extended

In this issue of the Record will be found an advertisement placed by the Township of Winchester. It calls attention to members of the township community of steps to be taken in the event of the need of Chesterville Fire Brigade. A list of names to call in the event of fire is printed.

It is heartening to see that council has amended the first list of names to include a blanket phrase that will the pumper to be called by anyone responsible. In the event there is not a fire, the person making the call must be responsible for the cost of the pumper's services. The added item to the list of names will do much to stifle the criticism that has been heard during the week when the news of the new method reached the public.

It would be well for the readers of the Record to clip the list and hang it near their telephone. The phone numbers are there for ready reference. For those who wish it this office can supply the list on a small card. Just drop us a line or come in and we will be glad to let you have one or more, at no cost, of course.

The Joys of Farming—In the Rain

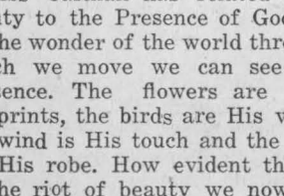
Eastern Ontario has had remarkably even weather all summer —completely unsatisfactory from a farming point of view. Rain has plagued the countryside from the beginning of the crop season until now. The continuous rains and showers have made harvesting of the crops a struggle.

Rain began in the early part of the haying season and that with the resultant lush growth made curing of the crop a guessing matter. Barns are full of hay, in spite of the length of time it took to fill them. The long hay season extended well into the time of the grain harvest. Some grain has been cut and thresehd but a great deal is still standing in stooks or even uncut. Fields are so soft it is nearly impossible to take tractor equipment out without getting mired. And corn is ready to be cut.

The corn harvest this year will recall the difficulties in 1945. That year saw small lakes and ponds in many corn fields. Blacksmiths and garages were busy making oversized cleats for binder wheels so the crop could be bound. Filling silo time saw the field gangs well covered with mud after the first half dozen sheaves. A repeat is possible this year.

Western Ontario has had the opposite condiiton, with hardly enough rain all summer to mature their crops. Certain of the cash crops such as tobacco have been sadly hurt from the lack of rain. Too bad we could not have redirected some of our surplus moisture up there.

A victim of the weather the farmer has been this year. His cash return has been something like 20 per cent less for his work. As a result many of the industries who depend on the farmer and his income for their livelihood have felt the pinch. So now is a good time for the employees of one of the largest farm machinery manufacturers to strike for higher wages. Might be a good idea to offer the strike leaders a few days work in the corn field. Possibly it would dampen their ardour for more money for less work and put them in a more appreciative frame of mind for some of the problems of the industry.



Light Along The Way

"I like the fall, the mist and all."

Many, such as this poet, see the fall as the loveliest time of the year. Certainly there is nothing more beautiful than its riot of colour. The turning leaves, the ripening grain, the contrasting green of the conifers and the vivid colours of the late summer flowers make a picture of glorious beauty. How rich and peaceful the landscape is in the last orange light of the setting sun and the bright twinkle of the evening star!

Bliss Carman has related such beauty to the Presence of God. In all the wonder of the world through which we move we can see His Presence. The flowers are His footprints, the birds are His voice, the wind is His touch and the sunset His robe. How evident this is in the riot of beauty we now behold. So, we agree with the writer who said: "I like the fall, the mist and all."

But God is more than a Presence without and apart. He is the very breath of life. His love overshadows His children, who are always His concern, and His mercy is continuously manifested towards them. This the poet recognized in the concluding lines of "Vestigia" —"I know God dwelt within my heart." Is not this what the Psalmist wrote many eons earlier? "I am continually with thee."

Yet many go through life as if God were far removed, or not at all. Perhaps they are deluded in thinking that it is enough to behold the wonder of nature. This is not enough, for to know God man must live in His Presence. Just as we know those with whom we are familiar, so we must become familiar with God to know Him. We must live as though we knew He was continually with us, striving to do every task as though He shared the responsibility and the effort, which, in very truth, He does.

To those who so live, God is recognized for what He is—a living Presence in the midst. Was not this exemplified b y Jesus Himself? Can we do better than He who truly knew the meaning of the Psalmist's words? "I am continually with thee."

Brief Honeymoon

(Christian Science Monitor)

Mr. Attlee has now reported on the visit of his Labor Party deleg-ation to Peking and Moscow—and Moscow has reported on Mr. Atlee's visit may have had its uses de-American relations.

Whether on balance the journey has served or disserved western peace interests as a whole it is too early to say. But as of now this is how things stand:

The Soviet Communist Party newspaper, Pravda, has launched a bitter attack on Mr. Attlee for and then called a totalitarian spade a totalitarian spade, just as if he had never been wined and dined.

For this and other things Mr. Attlee gets from Pravda the label of American stooge—the one label least likely to stick to him at home, where it might hurt him.

In view of the typical mildness of Mr. Attlee's reports on both Russia and China, the violence of the Pravda response is worth noting. It is either clumsily undiplomatic or deliberately designed to undermine the central purpose of the trip—an increase in Anglo-Chinese understanding. This latter possibility should not be ruled out. Moscow may suspect Mr. Attlee of seeking closer contact with Peking in order to drive a wedge between the Communist capitals.

Many will see in Moscow's too massive retaliation signs not only disappointment that communism failed to beguile this influential spokesman of western liberalism but a feeling that the Britons' visit has added to Peking's prestige at the expense of Moscow's.

It may well have done so. Even Mr. Attlee's passing observations on the crudity of Russia's rulers as compared with those of Communist China must strike sensitive spots in Moscow.

In both China and Russia Mr. Attlee found such great differences between Communist and western thought as to make anything more than armed coexistence for the indefinite future. But in China he found some of these differences arising from a more anciently civilized way of life than Russia, or even western nations can claim.

He found more tolerance, modesty, urbanity and charm among the Chinese—all of which are qualities westerners and Far Easterners alike value. Not only did he find these things—but he candidly reported his findings to the world, and if his trip in the first place disturbed Washington, it turns out in the second place to have disturbed Moscow a good deal more.

Before the final score is chalked up it may appear that the visit only added to British support for United Nations membership for Communist China, and thus sharpen a touchy issue between Britons and their American allies.

But it may also be recognized that the trip is in line with what should be one diplomatic objective of a peace-seeking West. That objective is to offer contacts in which Peking can find reason for—and aid in — keeping maximum independence from Moscow.

Taken together with the western aims newly embodied in a Southeast Asian Treaty Organization, the winning of neutral opinion in Asia, and the strengthening of non-Communist Asia economically as well as militarily, this objective makes considerable sense. It can not in this context be called appeasement of Communist expansionism. But it fits realistically into the only foreseeable pattern for "peaceful coexistance" between the two worlds.

To judge from Mr. Attlee's reports ,he and other Labor Party leaders may well have revised some of their ideas about what coexist-

Pasteurization Again

A study of vital statistics will always offer evidence in favour of compulsory pasteurizationof milk. Whenever a city or a province makes pasteurization of milk compulsory, infant mortality rates drop almost immediately. Canada's poor showing with respect to infant mortality (some 13 other nations have lower rates) may be attributed entirely to those provinces in which pasteurization legislation is most strenuously resisted. Ontario and Saskatchewan, which have province-wide pasteurization regulations, have comparatively low infant mortality rates. In fact, if the infant mortality rates in all the provinces were as low as in these two, Canada would rank among the top four or five nations in the world.

This sounds as though the whole business of infant mortality is a sort of golf game, in which low score is the goal. Actually, however, it is extremely important. Canada needs manpower. Canada maks a great effort to attract immigrants for this manpower, and spends agreat deal of money helping these immigrants through long and torturous periods of adjustment. This is sound policy from a point of view of economics, but it seems odd that so much time and toil should be put into procuring manpower from other countries, when so little effort is put into saving the lives of our own Canadian children. In one year, 1951, some 20,000 Canadians died before reaching maturity. It is of course almost impossible to judge just how many of these might have been saved by compulsory pasteurization. Many of the listed causes of death might or might not be milk-borne. It is possible to state conservatively that about 3,000 of these deaths might have been prevented by a combination of pasteurization and immunization.

Imagine what 3,000 additional native-born citizens every year could do for population-hungry Canada. Yet the objections to pasteurization keep coming up:

QUESTION:

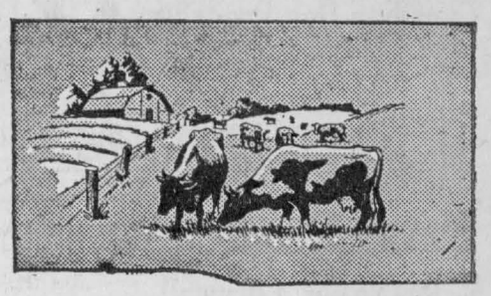
"I have heard that pasteurization destroys disease-producing bacteria, but that it also destroys the organisms which form lactic acid, and also most of the vitamins. If we have to ruin the value of our milk just to prevent disease, why not go one step further and outlaw milk altogther?"

ANSWER:

There is just enough truth in this claim to make it difficult to refute. Some of the lactic acid forming organisms are undoubtedly destroyed by pasteurization, with the result that the souring of the milk is delayed and therefore pasteurized milk will stay sweet considerably longer than raw milk will. Whether this improvement in the keeping qualities of pasteurized milk can be considered a serious objection or not is a matter of opinion. If you really want sour or acidopholous milk, it is a fairly simple matter to obtain it.

As for the vitamins, the principal ones found in milk are Vitamin A, riboflavin and niacin. Milk, which has not been especially treated, contains a negligble quantity of Vitamin D and only small amounts of Vitamin C and thiamine. In feeding infants and small children, it is necessary to supplement milk with cod liver oil, orange juice or tomato juice and whole wheat products to supply the deficiencies of these vitamins. It is true that pasteurization does affect Vitamin C and thiamine, which are both thermolabile, and also destroys about 2 per cent of the riboflavin. But since milk does not provide enough Vitamin C or thiamine to be a reliable source of these vitamins, and since it is so plentifully supplied with riboflavin that the loss of a mere 2 per cent is negligible, the objection that vitamins are destroyed by pasteurization, while true, does not carry much weight, because those vitamins that are lost must be supplemented even when unpasteurized milk is used.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS



By Lillian Allison

There's something about Toronto that really fascinates me. Not that I have any desire to live there. Far from it. The rush and scramble would wear me out completely in six months or else drive me to a mental institution. But I always enjoy a visit in our provincial capital. It's exciting.

The thing that never fails to amaze me is the size of the place. Now I know that compared with London or New York it is only small-town stuff, but in my country eyes it seems absolutely immense.

On my way up recently the conductor told us west of Oshawa that the next stop would be Danforth. That was where I got off so when the train began to slow up I, and a lot of others with me, started for the door. When the train finally stopped we realized we weren't at a station at all and in a minute we continued on our way. "We must be almost there," a man who was standing at the door remarked.

But we went on and on. Through lumber yards, factories, houses, past golf courses, over ravines and little streams. Over and under roads and streets and on and on. And when we eventually reached the station I was still three miles from my destination.

Next morning I left by car for Union Station. It was a drive of about ten miles. And in the morning rush too. What a rat-race!

The unbelievable thing is that hundreds of cars aren't smashed beyond repair every day in Toronto. For there we were driving 35-40 miles an hour, two, three or four cars abreast and bumper to bumper. Cars were winding in and out among buses and streetcars, stopping in the centre of the street to make left turns and always driving like mad.

The fortunate thing is that everybody seems to know where he is going. For, believe me, it would be the wrong idea to have to stop at an interesction to consult a city map for directions.

Inside Union Station I wondered who had been driving all those cars for it would seem in there that everybody travelled by rail. There was a line-up waiting for every train. I found my line for Stratford and was soon in the depths of a foam rubber seat.

We started west and north. Why every single product we Canadians use isn't marked "Made in Toronto" I'll never know. For I'm sure there are enough factories to supply our every need. We passed machinery plants, cookie factories, chocolate factories, places where they make wire and cable and everything under the sun.

We'd gone so far I thought we must be near open country but when we slowed up for a station it was only Weston. After that there were new factories in every stage of construction and new housing areas that stretched in all directions. Still this was metropolitan Toronto. After a while we came to Malton and the wide open spaces beyond. And I remembered having been told that it is twenty miles from Union Station to Malton. I had travelled thirty miles that morning and was just getting out of the city. Toronto is really immense.

In spite of the smoke and the morning haze I like downtown Toronto. I like to look in the beautiful store windows on Yonge St. I love to wander around Eaton's and Simpson's stores—up and down escalators, through tunnels and back and forth until I wonder just where I am.

Bay Street is exciting too. Just to walk along that man-made canyon and look up to the tops of the many-storeyed buildings of brick and concrete makes me feel about the size of a spider and a little bit afraid.

When I see the crowds of people downtown I think that everybody must shop there. But when I drive around the city I wonder why any-

Calling All Sportsmen

* O.W.A.A.

Do We Need More Fish and Game "Cops"?

I don't think so, yet over and and over again I've heard the cry go up in both small and large gatherings of fishers and hunters for more wardens, more prosecutions—that we must crack down hard and oten on the violators of we wish to preserve the sports of fishing and hunting. Laws are of little value unless folks obey them and the presence of an enforcement officer in a general area does not prevent violation if the people tend to ignore the laws. The mere fact that a province has wardens (conservation officers, rangers) offers no assurance that violations will decrease. Even a doubling of the warden force will not prevent violations from taking place. We do obey those laws which we respect. There are few people who would knowingly drive through a red traffic light, even though there was no traffic, and even though it were obvious that there was no traffic cop in the vicinity. It all adds up to the fact that we obey a law if we believe in it. If we don't believe in a law, we tend to ignore it even though an enforcement officer might be somewhere in the county (though, obviously, not in sight at the time of the violation). We want to be well thought of; that's human nature. If it's unpopular to violate the fish and game laws, we'll tend not to do so. If we want less violation, we sportsmen can bring it about; the warden alone without our active support can do very little.

More Prevention Less Need for Detection

For many years the majority of sportsmen have supported the theory that we should agitate with the provincial authorities for the employment of more and mor fish and game "cops," whose sole duty would be to detect violation of fish and game laws and make arrests. We now realize that this system is of limited value, and that the number of arrests made by the warden is of secondary importance. In the more progressive provinces, and the same also goes for certain of the states across the line, emphasis is now on prevention of violation, rather than on detection. Prevention is brought about through these two activities:

1. A sound, practical fact-finding programme to determine which laws are really needed.
2. A sound, effective education programme aimed at enlightening the public on the need for the regulations.

Once the public recognizes and respects the need, violations will decrease.

Proper Selection and Training Of Wardens Important

The change in concept, from emphasis on detection to emphasis on prevention, imposes one basic problem. The old-time fish and game "cop" who enjoys making arrests is, necessarily, anti-social. There is serious question as to his effectiveness as an educator. The modern warden must be able to educate the public effectively, arresting only the habitual violator who can't be educated. Too, he can do a good job only if the laws are sensible. In some provinces, the intelligent warden knows that some regulations do more harm than good. He can't sell effectively something which he knows is wrong. The warden is an important figure in fish and game conservation. He will be an even more valuable figure when he has only properly tested regulations to enforce, and when he directs most of his activities toward prevention, less toward detection. In some instances this change in programme may call for a change in personnel because the temperaments of "cops" and of "preventers" and "educators" may differ somewhat.

Canadian Hog Producers to Get Lower Prices Outlook Not Bright for Coming Year

Canadian farmers, crowded by more hogs than usual, are taking a good sober look at market prospects. Lower prices are likely.

The big bugaboo of the hog situation is the fact that American farmers have been producing pigs like crazy. They're expected to market 91,000,000 hogs this year, or 13% more than last year.

For weeks now U.S. observers have been talking about troubles to come. Some think the decline will be spread out, some know the decline has started and some think it will be the biggest bump in history with hogs down to 17 and 18 cents a pound in Chicago.

The Canadian picture is not so pronounced but it admittedly has hog men worried. Because of one prohibition and another there has not been much competition between the U.S. and Canada for their respective markets but there is no assurance this will continue. Then the Canadian export market generally has been falling off and American surpluses could further condition prices in this country.

"United States production is estimated at 91,000,000 hogs and would indicate lower prices for the latter part of 1954," an Ontario Hog Producers Association statement says. "Some forecast the American market will drop to 22 to 26 cents a pound dressed weight. The effect this will have on our market will depend upon the surplus position in Canada.

Faults in Canadian Market

Well, there are a few things wrong with the Canadian domestic market. Last year the average Canadian ate 57 pounds of pork, down 8.9 pounds in a year. Beef was cheaper and less top grade pork was available."

"There has been a steady decrease in the percentage of Grade A hogs in Canada," says the statement. "In 1946 there were 32.4 per cent of our hogs in the top grade. By the end of 1953 this has dropped to 27.3 and there was a further drop in the past year. In the same time Ontario dropped from 41 per cent to 32.2 in 1953."

However, the $1 a hundred weight differential that began last April is expected to perk up quality and new grading rules may help. The move now is to turn out better hogs.

This is a whopping big year for Canadian hog production but marketings in the west were down 9.1 per cent for the first six months of 1954 and down 11.3 per cent in the east.

There were 274, 636 fewer hogs sold in Canada during 1954's first six months. Exports were down nearly 7,000,000 pounds. This trend is disturbing hog producers so they're talking about a campaign to get Canadians to eat 4 pounds more pork a year. It's a tiny morsel when you consider that its just an extra slice of bacon a week.

Hope to Avoid Price Break

Ontario especially hopes to avoid a price break. A year ago Ontario Hog Producers' agents diverted hogs to the Montreal market and eased the downward curve. Recently the Ontario group has succeeded in organizing commission men at Montreal as United Livestock Sales Ltd., of Quebec. This is a similar set-up to that in Toronto during the past two years where all hogs have been marketed at an average of about 25 cents per hog. This puts added strength in the selling end. Then a new sales division has been set up at Kitchener, marketing centre for such top hog counties as Waterloo, Wellington, and others in southwestern Ontario.

Ontario producers hope that by stretching out deliveries there'll be no price break for several months. Price average for Ontario B1 hogs during the first six months of the year was $35.08.

There is little hope of holding anything like this. There's just an idea that regulated deliveries may keep the average above some of the giveaway talk forecast for Chicago.

Fowler—Wert

In St. James United Church, Avonmore, the marriage took place recently of Miss Marjorie Carolyn Wert to George Thomas Fowler.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce H. Wert, Avonmore, and the groom is the son of Mrs. W. H. Fowler, Iroquois, and the late Mr. Fowler.

The ceremony was solemnized by Rev. C. R. Sutherland. Mrs. E. R. McMillan, Avonmore, was soloist and organist was Miss Marlene Marjerrison, Cornwall.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by Miss Dorothy Fowler, sister of the groom, while Clifford Collison, of Mallorytown, was best man. Ushers were John McClintock, Brockville, and J. L. Wert, Avonmore.

For her wedding, the bride chose a floor-length dress of nylon tulle and metallic lace. The dress was designed with a fitted bodice, portrait neckline, long sleeves ending in points over the hands, and a full circular skirt of tulle. The dress featured metallic appliques. Her veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a pointed demi calot of the same lace. She carried a bouquet of white roses, gladioli and stephanotis.

Following a reception held at the home of the bride's parents, the young couple left on a honeymoon trip to the Maritimes. For travelling the bride wore a mulberry full-skirted wool dress with black accessories and a corsage bouquet of yellow roses.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Fowler will take up residence in Iroquois.

Final Tribute Paid Mrs. Thos. McBride

Relatives and friends throughout Avonmore district were saddened to learn of the death on Sunday morning of Mrs. Thomas McBride, highly esteemed resident of the village for many years, who passed away at Cornwall Genueral Hospital after and illness of three weeks. Born at Tayside, Ont., 79 years ago, Mrs. McBride was the former Christy Anne Lavigne, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Lavigne.

Mr. and Mrs. McBride operated the Grand Union Hotel in Avonmore for many years.

Rt. Rev. J. A. Goulet, pastor of Holy Rosary Church, Crysler, was elevated Sunday to Domestic Prelate in impressive ceremonies in his own church.

Assisting Most Rev. Rosario Brodeur, DD, Bishop of Alexandria, at the throne were Rt. Rev. J. A. Brunelle, of Nativity Parish, Cornwall, and Rt. Rev. R. J. MacDonald, St. Columban's.

Also present at the sanctuary were Monsignori P. E. Brunet, of Embrun; J. E. Secours, Alfred; V. Croteau, Buckingham parish priest and Rev. H. Beaulieu, CSSY, Ironside College, Que.

A large congregation, including Sisters of the Holy Cross, members of Msgr. Goulet's family, other relatives and friends saw a presentation made on the occasion by S. M. Delaney and J. H. Lehoux.

More than 400 guests attended a banquet in the adjoining parish school. Rev. Aime Leduc, Moose Creek, was master of ceremonies.

Msgr. Goulet replied to brief addresses by Bishop Brodeur, Msgrs. Brunet, Brunelle and Secours, Father Beaulieu, and Stormont MPP Peter Manley.

J. N. Wallingford

Funeral service for Joseph N. Wallingford, one of Perkins Mills' prominent citizens, was held Monday last with Rev. C. Duquette, a cousin of Mr. Wallingford's, officiating. Interment was in Buckingham Cemetery.

Born at Perkins Mills, son of Oliva Loyer and the late Edward Wallingford, Mr. Wallingford was educated in Ottawa and Montreal. Upon completion of his education, he turned to a mining career and gained recognition as an authority in that field.

In latter years he was mining superintendent for E. Wallingford Ltd.

Mr. Wallingford is an uncle of Mrs. W. C. Pedley, Chesterville.

Economy

The Scottish farmer had fallen into the well. Treading water vigorously, he shouted for his wife.

"Hold on!" she cried, "I'll get the men from the field."

"Watit a minute," he said. "What's the time?"

"Eleven-thirty."

"Then bide a wee. I'll swim roon' till their dinner time."

Avonmore Lady, 80 Paints as Hobby

Painting has become the interesting hobby of one of Avonmore's grand old ladies, Mrs. Thomas Sutherland, who is 80 years of age. She is sharing the products of this hobby with many of her friends from coast to coast. Mrs. Sutherland, who lives with ehr son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard McIntosh, resides at "The Pines," the family home in which she was born, two-and-one-half miles west of Avonmore.

Mrs. Sutherland, as a ycung girl, enjoyed art in school. Later she attended the Ottawa Ladies' College where she received some instruction on the fundamentals of art. However, at that time she did not pursue art as a hobby and for the years following her Ottawa training her early interest in art was neglected. An so it was for 60 years.

Two years ago, Mrs. Sutherland finding time somewhat heavy on her hands, took up the brush and palette again and found joy in her planning which she had never hitherto experienced.

The result has been the production of many beautiful canvasses which not only grace Mrs. Sutherland's home but also those of many of her friends.

Versatile Painter

In the scope of her work, Mrs. Suthrland shows great versatility. While she does not appreciate art in the abstract, the themes of her paintings are centred in landscapes, plant and animal life. She particularly enjoys original themes, although occasionally she does a copy of another painting.

Painting is only a part-time diversion for Mrs. Sutherland. Being quite active, she helps in all the work about the home as well as in many activities in the community.

Mrs. Sutherland stresses that her interest in art does not stem from any desire to paint on a commercial basis. Yes, she has heard of Grandma Moses, but she has no similar objectives.

Her artistic interests have brought her into interesting correspondence with others similarly engaged in painting. Among these is an old lady in Toronto who is deriving a similar enjoyment from her hobby.

Mrs. Sutherland is the former Miss Mary McRae and is well known throughout the district.

NOVEL WAY TO HUNT HUSBAND

Hundreds in Baroda, India, watched recently as Hamida Banu, a woman wrestler, beat Bab Pahelwan, a male matman, in her third bout to decide who should be her husband.

The heavyweights clashed with the promise by the woman to marry him if he got the better of her and an undertaking by Pahelwan to retire from the wrestling arena if he went down before her.

The bout lasted one minute and 34 seconds, when the woman won a fall and the referee declared him out of Hamida's wedding range. Pahelwan immediately announced he had had his last match.

He was the third wrestler to undertake the strange wooing of Hamida who has downed two other men wrestlers, a Sikh and a Hindu.

Just a Brute

"Brown is a good fellow, really," said one man, "but he treats his poor wife miserably."

"Does he beat her?"

"No. He refuses to argue with her."

3,000 Attend Final Day of Newington Fair Live Stock Judging, Races, Entertainment Featured

Threatening skies and chilling winds failed to curb the enthusiasm of some 3,000 persons who were on hand Wednesday last for the final day of Newington Fair. It was generally agreed that poor weather conditions did not have an adverse effect on the attendance at the two-day fair.

Visitors from the district thrilled at the many fine exhibits seen at the fair. Hundreds were seen watching the judging in the live stock rings. While the number of cattle exhibited showed a decline this year, the quality was nevertheless there. The Holstein and Ayrshire breeders of Stormont were out in force for their annual championship shows.

Members of four 4-H Calf Clubs paraded their calves under the close scrutiny of the judges. Competition was close and all of the young people shared in the generous prizes offered.

Entries in the live stock departments were well maintained.

Entertainment

There were three fine horse races during Wednesday afternoon. There were others who took advantage of the various midway attractions on the grounds. Others enjoyed a cup of coffee or a hot dog at the various church booths and concessions on the grounds.

From the grandstand, erected on the grounds, a fine programme was presented under the chairmanship of Peter Laflour, a veteran fair official. Garfield Baker, Cornwall, was master of ceremonies. Artists sharing in the afternoon's programme included Ernie Baribeau and Orchestra, Cornwall; Bobo, the clown; the Great Donald, magician. Mrs. Foster Bowman, North Lunenburg, and Mrs. Chas. Oudkerkirk, Finch, directed their pupils in many old time dances. Dancers were Beverley and George Rutley, Richard and Gloria Bowman, Gail, Dawn and Garry Hanna, Paulette Chevrier and Brian Flegg. Piper Jackie MacRae, Crysler, added the Scottish flavour to the activities.

The main agricultural hall was crowded throughout the day by visitors. Others were attracted by the fine displays of farm machinery that were on the grounds.

A dance was held in the Orange Hall on Wednesday night as a climax to the 1954edition of the fair.

SELLS 20,000 GALLONS GAS AT NINE CENTS

An irate gasoline station operator got rid of 20,000 gallons of fuel by cutting the price to nine cents a gallon.

Edwin R. Butterworth, Wantagh, N.Y., said he was irked because the oil company hebuys from has been heckling him for not selling that quantity every month, and he decided to unload his quota over the Labour Day holiday.

A steady stream of motorists rallied to help him, but pump congestion ended Monday afternoon when the 20,0p0 quota was gone. Butterworth put his signs back to the regular 25.9 cents a gallon.

The dealer said the sale cost him about $2,0000 but that he intends to charge it all off to "advertising and entertainment."

ence can mean and what it must entail. The Pravda attack can only show them that neither real objectivity or even neutrality are appreciated today in Moscow, and therefore presently offer little hope for finding a longed-for common ground.

These facts are surely of vital interest to Asian neutrals like India's Premier Nehru, as well as to European seekers for peaceful coexistence. They call for never-ceasing efforts for western unity. The British visit to the Communist world has—with Moscow's help—it least highlighted their true meaning.

FRENDLEE FARM—

one would bother to go to the big stores. The entire city seems dotted everywhere with complete shopping areas. And now new shopping centres with acres of parking lots are being built at every main suburban intersection. I cant' help wondering who buys all the things that are on sale in Toronto.

And who patronizes all the entertainment spots? For there is a theatre about every second block on all the main streets besides the sports centres, the music places, the night clubs and so on. And it would seem that8 out of 10 houses have television.

I've been in Toronto a lot of times. I've seen a great deal of it too. But there is still a list of things and places that I want to get a look at. I want to see the inside of Maple Leaf Gardens and the new market in the west end. I want to see some of the big churches. And I'm very interested in the development of a new, planned community, Don Mills.

Besides, I didn't get a ride on the new subway when I was in Toronto recently.So I'll just have to go back—soon.

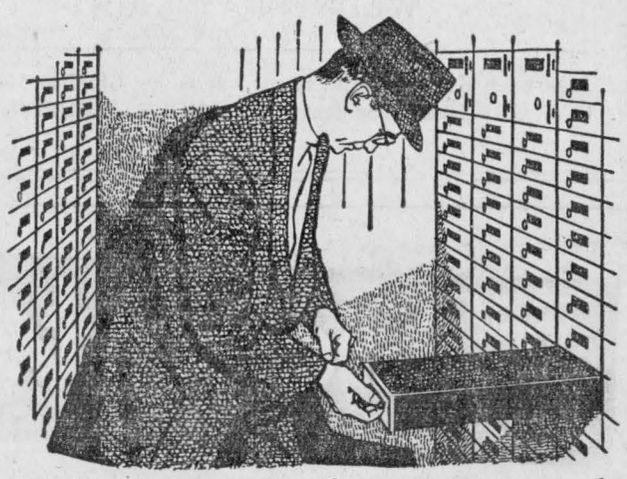
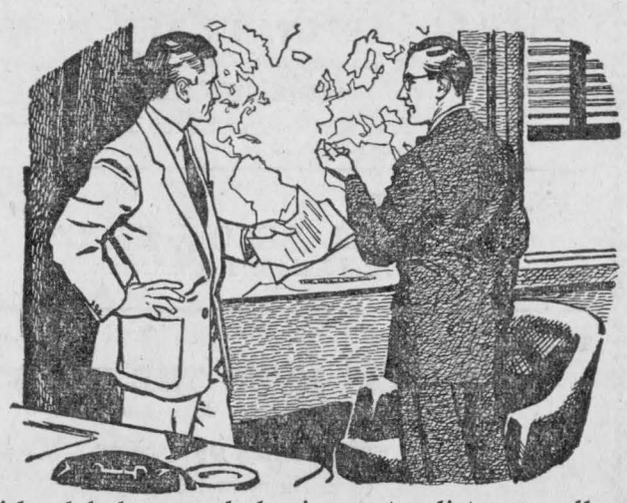
A Bank is useful in so many ways...



At a bank, you can keep important papers and other valuables in a private safety deposit box.

Travellers Cheques and Letters of Credit provide a safe, handy source of funds when you travel.



A bank helps you do business at a distance; sells exchange, transfers funds, makes collections.

A bank is much more than just a place to cash a cheque or deposit your savings. The many services it provides are designed to help you handle money matters more simply, safely, easily. You will find bank people courteous and efficient in handling routine banking matters and helpful, too, when unusual problems arise. Don't hesitate to "see the bank about it."

CARD OF THANKS

Dear Friends: When my strength was at low ebb, your prayers and loving concern sustained me, the letters and cards you sent me brightened my days, the many and varied gifts cheered me and the lovely flowers were a delight to my eyes and spirit. It was my hope to write to each and every one of you but as you overwhelmed me, I find it physically impossible to write the hundreds of notes necessary.

Will you please accept my gratitude through this media. I have been happy to live in Chesterville for the past 12 years and I thank you and shall remember and cherish always the kindness and regard you lavished upon me, the stranger within your gates.

Stella Campbell.
