Bell telephone business rates could skyrocket in rural areas

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

STORMONT DUNDAS—A Bell telephone proposal now before the CRTC threatens to leave rural residents as "road kill on the information highway," warns a farmers' lobby group head.

Ontario Federation of Agriculture President Roger George said his organization is "furious" with a Bell proposal to seek dramatic increases for monthly rural telephone rates and to charge for local calls.

Not only are the huge rate hikes unwarranted, the OFA leader argued, they're also unjustifiable, given the present services available for most farmers.

"Communication services in many areas of rural Ontario are archaic and outdated, yet Bell telephone has the audacity to suggest we should pay more for less. If they really want to even out payment for services, then let's see them put party lines in urban areas. That would be equality."

George's anger stems from a Bell proposal first presented to the CRTC on April 10.

Under the terms of the plan as now written, business rates for local companies would close to double in the next two years, with Morrisburg and area business rates rising from the present $25.80 to $39 by July 1996 and $48 by July 1997. Trunk line rates (those used for higher capacities), would jump from $48.75 to $50 over the same time period, a closing of the gap to correspond to the actual cost of providing the services.

Bell Communications Manager Marilyn Koen said the proposed changes reflect a policy change within the company to charge based on a "cost-based" approach as opposed to the traditional "value-based" approach.

"Right now, we have 19 different rate groups, determined by the number of calls locally. What we're proposing is to change that to four rate groups based on a density of phone lines."

In effect, Bell wants to eliminate present "subsidies" to less densely populated areas, — which they argue are more expensive to maintain — and to push the "actual cost" back to the consumer.

By doing so, the telephone company can lower their urban rates to remain competitive in the evolving marketplace, Koen said.

"Right now, we have a monopoly in local service. But the government has opened the market to competition, and it's just a matter of time before changes would have to come."

Bell estimates it has two years before major competitors emerge in local service, especially in the more densely populated regions. By that time, the telephone utility must eliminate any subsidies which would put them at a competitive disadvantage with new businesses, Koen said.

"It just doesn't make sense anymore."

In attacking the proposed hikes, George and the OFA question Bell's contention that rural Ontario businesses presently are being subsidized. At this point, many farm operations still can't even equip their offices with something as simple as a fax machine because the phone service available is so obsolete.

"Ontario does not just resolve around the urban centres. Rural quality of life and rural jobs depend on a communications infrastructure," George said.

Bell's financial figures especially are flawed because they fail to consider the amount of money rural residents spend on long distance calling, the OFA leader concluded.

"In the country, it's not uncommon for your neighbor across the road to be in a long distance calling area, let alone your closest equipment dealer, feed store, or your bank manager. Long distance payments rural residents make to Bell more than subsidize the current monthly rate."

User Fees

Besides restructuring business rates, Bell also is looking to start charging business 1-2 cents a minute "user fees" for outgoing local calls both in Ontario and Quebec.

Should the CRTC approve this separate request, Bell would deduct 30 per cent (or $16.80) from the flat rate charges, bringing the new rural business rates to $32 per month for regular service and $33 for trunk access, plus the user fees.

"It's important to note, these user fees wouldn't apply to residents," Koen concluded. "And from the studies we've done, more than half the businesses effected would see no change to their bottom line."

Bell plans to offer a one year "shadow bill" to costumers before the changes take effect. In this way, businesses would have a chance to project the new numbers into their budgets.

For their part, the OFA plans to "seek status before the CRTC hearing to oppose Bell's proposal. George is encouraging rural residents to contact the CRTC, their members of parliament, Bell Canada and their municipal councils.

Williamsburg Yard Sale

WILLIAMSBURG—The Business Improvement Association's Fourth Annual "Giant Yard Sale" could be it's best yet, says president David Lapier.

At this point, organizers are busy confirming which groups will be participating, and who will run the various scheduled events. More than 30 households and 30 businesses took part in last year's successful event, plus a number of churches and services groups.

Besides the great deals on yard sale treasures, the different organizations held a number of draws, bake sales and barbecues throughout the afternoon.

"It's basically going to be the same as past years," Lapier said. "We've added a few new things, taken away others that weren't working."

The BIA still have a few household items left to sort out before bringing the event to fruition. A more detailed description of the day's events will be made public later this week. The event is scheduled to run Saturday, May 6, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. throughout the Hamlet.

Appreciation for volunteers

Harmony Six, a musical group which has been performing for nursing homes, churches and seniors centers for many years, played to an appreciative crowd at the Park Lane Seniors Support Center Volunteer Appreciation Night last Wednesday. A total of 156 volunteers helped out with Community Support Services last year, while 92 attended Appreciation Night.

Not all agree with policy

Garbage issue contentious

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG—The handling of commercial garbage may not be as clear-cut an issue as outlined in a recent policy.

The Village of Morrisburg recently changed the pick-up for commercial garbage from the town crew, awarding an agreement to Hume Waste Systems Ltd.

The policy states that any establishment which consistently puts out refuse in excess of three bags will now have to make an arrangement with Hume at their own cost, or arrange to have a different contractor pick up their garbage, also at their own expense. Information on Hume's costs for additional garbage was not obtainable by press time.

While some businesses may in fact produce only three bags of garbage a week, and will be handled by Hume, others produce in excess, and for the first time will be looking at paying for garbage pick-up. And while some material may be handled through recycling to meet the three-bag limit, recycling will not look after all the excess, and thus the policy change will definitely affect larger producers of garbage. As may be expected, there have been rumblings of discontent from the affected businesses.

Coun. Cam Martel, in charge of public works, said averages were worked out when the plan was worked on. Each bag or container is to hold a maximum of 23 kg of garbage, or about 50 pounds. "What we're trying to avoid is heavy 45-gallon drums stuffed to the gills, which you can't handle."

"There's not that much of a change," Martel said. The new plan would start out with a couple of trial passes, followed by review and discussion. "It may go very well. There'll be more review in a year or so."

Public works Keith Robinson also had received a few complaints and inquiries, but regarded this as normal with any change.

50 bags for the plaza

As a general goal, the Village would like the shopping plaza to produce an average of no more than 50-60 bags a week.

Robinson said most businesses produce less than three bags of office garbage a week, with the exception of Mr. Grocer's and some restaurants. Some restaurants produce only three bags, some as many as five or more.

In addition, some residents have complained about the change in the garbage pick-up day which was moved to Friday from Thursday.

A blue box program of recycling materials similar to household recyclables will be set up for businesses both within and outside the plaza, and managed by TDC, a locally-based firm. Recycling for both business and households will be every second Thursday, starting May 11. Robinson said people may put out as many recyclables as they wish.

Reeve Gord McGregor, also owner of the restaurant Gregor's Place, said he has had mixed responses on the new policy. "What it will take is a trial run to see how it goes. We're getting a lot of negative reaction, and that's understandable with any change."

"But if everyone downloads on us, people will have to do their share," McGregor added with reference to new provincial government regulations.

McGregor said he was getting most of the argument from people who put out a lot of garbage. And some have a difficult time in adjusting to changes.

For example, "some people don't break down their boxes," McGregor said. "You shouldn't put out boxes with junk in with the cardboard."

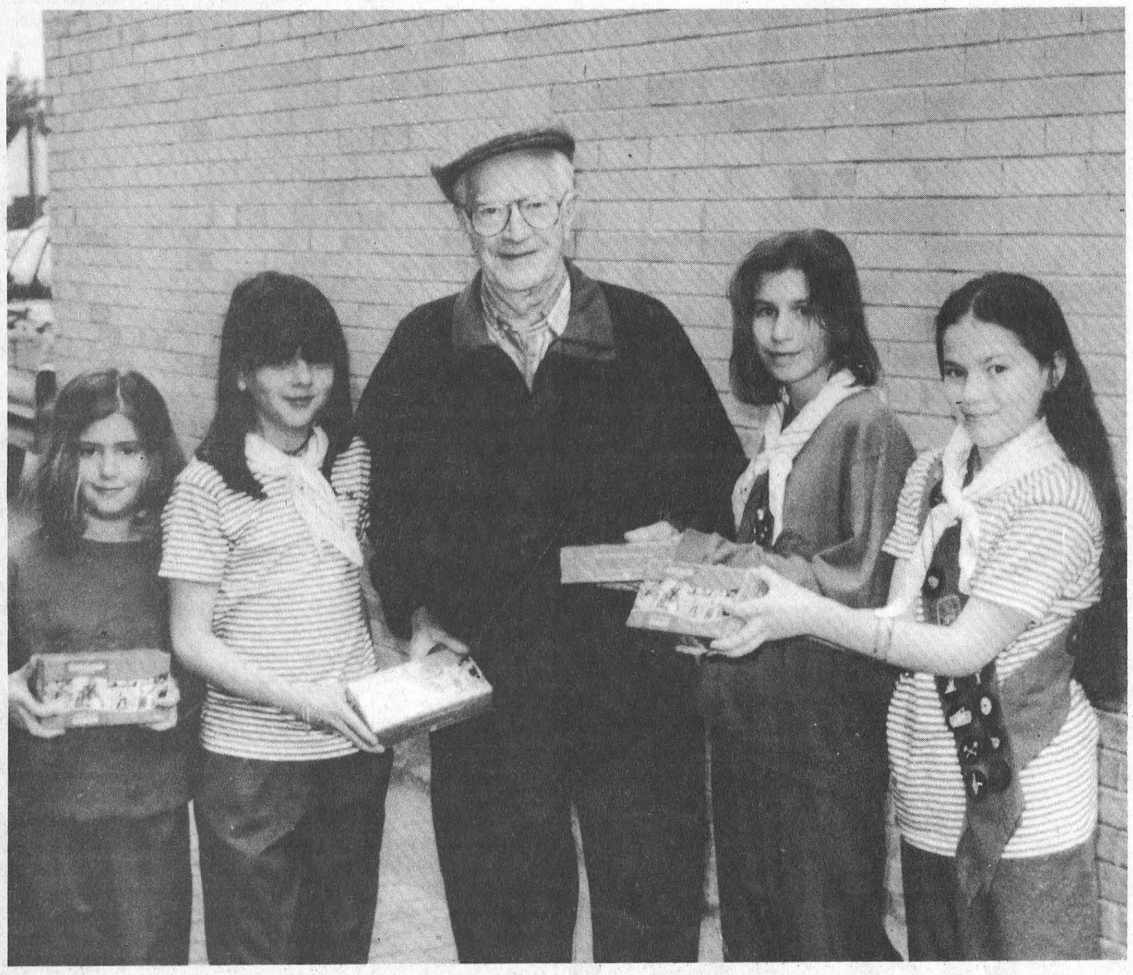
Ideally, cardboard is a recyclable material, and should be broken down and bundled. Only corrugated cardboard can be recycled, not wax, and no garbage or other materials should be included.

As a businessman, McGregor said he would accept the new three-bag limit if it affected him. "If I'm putting out a lot of garbage, I'll pay for it. Is it fair to put out a lot of garbage and not pay for it, and pay the same as someone who put out three bags?"

While smaller businesses who may produce excess garbage are still deciding upon contractors, larger industries are also coming to a decision. Previously, Beavers Dental Ltd. had garbage picked up by the town crew, and now is looking at paying for the same service. In absence of general manager Bob Leroux, maintenance superintendent at Beavers Dental Products Ed Rice said the company is looking at another contractor, and must have a plan in place by May 5.

While having a contractor will be an additional expense, it is nothing the company can't handle. And the company will make sure costs will be reasonable and competitive.

Asked for the company's reaction towards the new policy, Rice said: "Beavers is proactive in change. We try to adjust and adapt to whatever is going on in society."



Girl Guide cookies are here again

Art Laurin, editor and publisher at The Morrisburg Leader, is traditionally the first to purchase Girl Guide cookies from the local Girl Guides and Brownies. On Friday last week, Liz Laurin, Amber Cunningham, Laurie Irvine and Shona Blatch were at the office to give Mr. Laurin the first crack at the cookies once again. Friday the girls will be out selling their cookies in the mall from 6-7:30 p.m. Saturday, they will be travelling the area door to door. If you would like to purchase some Girl Guide cookies you can also call Catherine Blatch at 543-4478 to reserve your box.

Winchester man charged

WINCHESTER—A Winchester Township man has been taken into custody following a domestic incident involving the use of firearms.

Douglas John Lafave, 31, or 12860 Hwy. 43, Winchester Twp., has been arrested and charged with a number of firearm related offences, including assault, uttering threats, possession of a firearm while prohibited, careless storage of a firearm, and cultivation of narcotics.

Morrisburg OPP made the arrest at the resident's home in the afternoon of April 21, 1995 after a domestic investigation. The bail hearing was set for Monday, April 24 at the Cornwall Court Office..

The Garden hits magazine racks

MORRISBURG—There's a new Canadian magazine on the shelves this week, and featured inside is Morrisburg's own frugal gardener, Jeff Arsenault.

The magazine sells for $4.95 a copy and articles inside cover the gardening scene from coast to coast.

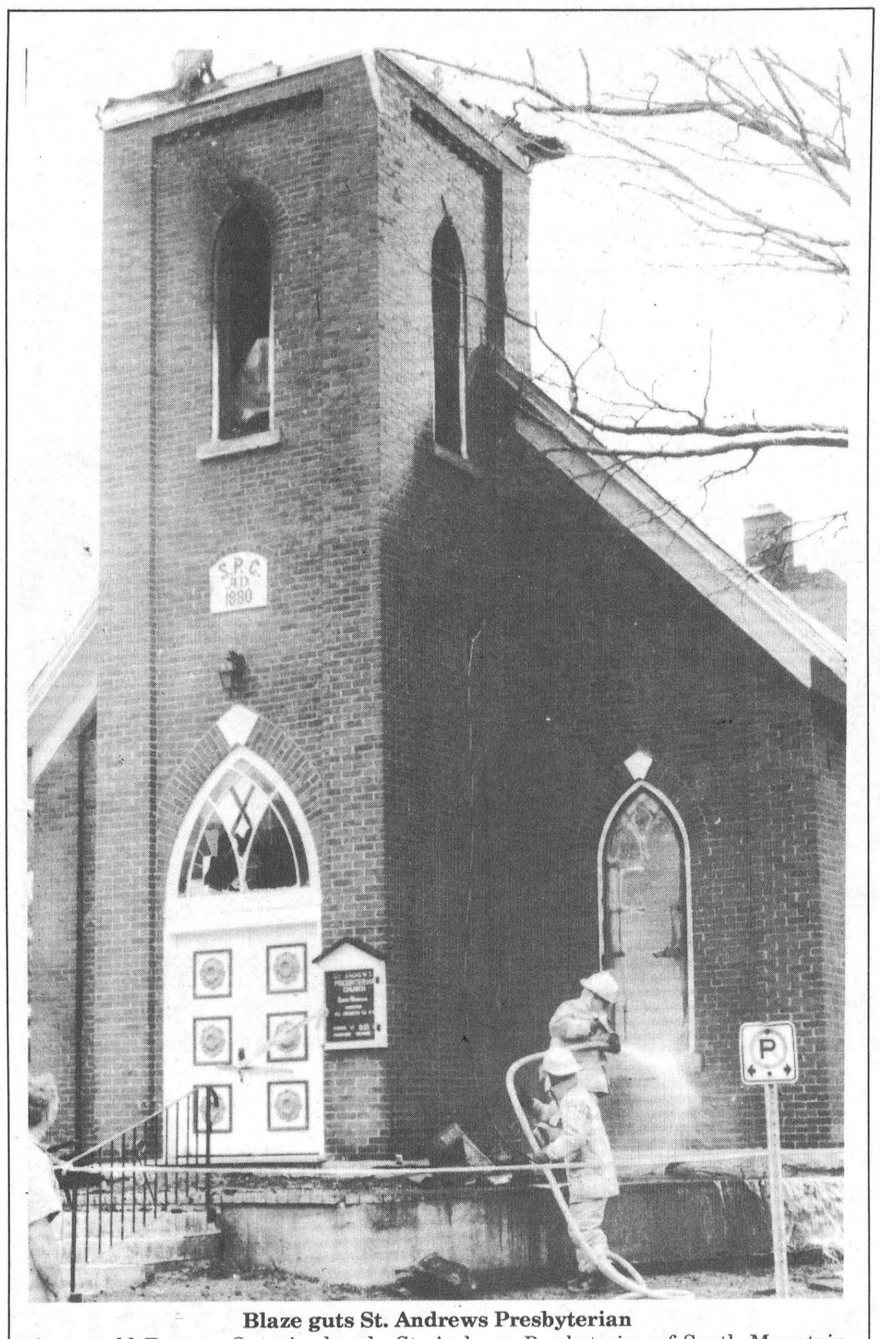
Arsenault prides himself on having created a show garden without owning so much as a shovel.

Using borrowed land, this irrepressible tenant gardener is now the custodian of a tourist attraction that draws over 2,000 visitors a year.

How he manages to keep everything grown on less than $100 annually is revealed in "Showpiece on a Shoestring (page 58).

Arsenault's talents don't stop there, as he is also responsible for inventing the "Magic Seeds" that appear on the kids' page (page 12). The seeds, within three days after being microwaved, sprout into seedlings that collapse on touch then magically spring back.

These seeds will be available at Wheeler's Mr. Grocer as well as the Garden Centre (Wheeler's) very soon.



Blaze guts St. Andrews Presbyterian

A very old Eastern Ontario church, St. Andrews Presbyterian of South Mountain was gutted in a fire early last Wednesday. Residents heard lightning strike the steeple about 4.00 a.m., and South Mountain and Kemptville Fire Departments were called to the scene, and had to be recalled five times as wind fanned the flames. The Church would have celebrated its 115th anniversary in September.

C.W.L. seeks new members

IROQUOIS—At the April 17th meeting of the St. Mary's/St. Cecilia's Catholic Women's League held in Iroquois, members were informed of the upcoming membership drive and asked to become involved directly with the campaign or to encourage potential members to think about joining.

Co-ordinator of the campaign, Debbie Byvelds, says that every woman in the parish will be contacted by phone and invited to become a member. "The League has something to offer every woman," says Debbie," it provides a chance for personal spiritual growth and an opportunity to make a difference, a contribution to your community or society at large. Our meetings are the third Monday of the month and are a social event where you can visit with friends or make new ones. The meetings are educational, often with guest speakers, and members are encouraged to express their ideas and opinions," says Debbie.

The Mission Statement of the League is: "The Catholic Women's League is a national organization rooted in Gospel values calling its members to holiness through service to the people of God."

As well as the personal phone call approach, there will be tables set up at the back of both churches after the April 29/30 weekend Masses for information, membership renewal and new memberships. Membership fees are $12.

Other items on the evening's agenda discussed by the 25 members present included a $200 donation of health care products and necessities to be sent back with the Russian children, victims of the Chernobyl nuclear disaster, who will be visiting Canada again this summer. Odonto Corporation has donated floss and over 200 toothbrushes to the cause via the CWL.

A $200 donation was also made to Camp Trillium, an Ontario organization operated by the Cancer Society for patients and their families.

The ladies decided by vote not to cater to the Upper Canada PLayhouse as there is always difficulty in getting enough volunteers to help over the summertime and, this year, there are many other events within the parish they are involved in. Also of note was the end of year dinner which will be a pot-luck held June 5, 7 p.m. at St. Mary's School, Morrisburg. First Communion celebrants will each be given a present from the CWL on their big day, Sunday, June 11.

The meeting was then closed by President Sandra Brunt and Rena Groninger, Education convenor, introduced the evening's guest speaker, Dairy Educator, Anja Berends. Ms. Berend's job included going into the classrooms to teach children about the farmer's everyday life; about how the cow produces milk and what products are made of milk: how milk and milk products benefit us with their nutrients: and what various ways we can take in these products. Ms. Berends says that it is estimated that at least half of all Canadian women are not getting the calcium they need each day.

Ms. Berends encouraged audience participation by having four of the ladies produce an impromptu milk commercial (much to everyone else's delight), and a game of "dairy balderdash," a challenge for any townslicker.

A delicious lunch was prepared by Joyce Easter, Clara Pepers and Heather Helmer. The next meeting, the last for the year, is May 15th in Morrisburg.

Morrisburg Public School going green for Earth Day

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG—Morrisburg Public School marked "Earth Day" celebrations last week by embarking on a "Green school" project.

To qualify as a "Green school", the students must complete 100 "green" projects that will help preserve and maintain the natural environment. Some schools have completed as many as 1000 - 1500 projects, but to be eligible the minimum requirement is 100.

"Earth Day is a very special day. We'd like to make Earth Day every day of the year," teacher Ron Gillard told an assembly of students.

Projects can be as simple as raking the lawn, planting flowers and be part of any subject, language arts, arts or science, as for example a talk about the environment. To be eligible, it must in some way enhance the environment.

When a single project is complete, the class receives a trophy for the day, and then o the next class which finshes a project.

After the first 20 projects, list is sent to the sponsors nd the school receives a colred banner. As it goes hrough each stage, it reeives a different colored anner. When 100 are finhed, the school gets a green anner to indicate its new atus. A log book with a dcription of completed procts will be kept on display the hall.

"It's a worthwhile goal. Ve have to be aware of what e're doing to the environent. We have to start to elp the environment at ome and in the school," llard said.

The SNRCA will be helpg the students kick off the dertaking with the plantg of trees.

Elma Public School recently completed its 100 projects, and will celebrate "Earth Day" (officially April 22), May 1, by an assembly marking its status as a "Green School."

During the assembly, the Green School banner will be unfurled and a wall hanging the students have been working on. The mural features recycled and reused materials in the color green, with the letters "Elma Goes Green."

The School has completed 105 projects, and hasn't stopped yet, as a list is lined up for the future. "When we got done, we just kept on going," principal Dolores Green said.

Also on May 1, a representative from the South Nation River Conservation Authority will be coming to help students plant trees. The day's theme is "Save the Trees" and all day, students will use as little paper as possible.

""They'll try to get away from using it for writing. They'll read from paper not write on paper. They'll write on alternate surfaces like small slates and chalkboards," said teacher Judith Welland, who is organized the campaign to go green.

There was a wide range of projects the school could work on, the majority had to do with reusing materials from home, and school, or continuing with materials which the children or teachers had already brought in for an educational project.

Kleenex boxes, paper towel rolls, backs of paper, cellophane, plastics, and egg cartons formed the learning materials for school subjects and also for "green" projects.

Another group of projects featured learning about the environment through trips to the Forestry Station in Kemptville, the Upper Canada Bird Sanctuary, and local hikes. Afterwards, students would draw a poster or write about the experience.

Another project was a heat survey which students took home to determine the amount of heat lost through drafts.

Elma School also attempted to reduce the amount of water use by placing weighted milk bags in the toilet tanks.

Other schools who have turned green are Chesterville Public, and East Front School in Cornwall while other schools like Vincent Massey are working on the new status.

Pitch In Week, May 1-7

Pitch-In Week may be the largest and fastest growing environmental program in Canada. Each year, hundreds of thousands of Canadians, many of them young people, donate millions of dollars in volunteer labor by participating in thousands of projects helping to clean up and maintain the environment.

This year's Pitch-In-Week will be held May 1 through May 7.

Hundreds of youth organizations, from Scouts Canada and the Girl Guides, to schools, sports organizations, 4-H clubs and daycares, support Pitch In Week, says Terry Smeltzer, President of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, the conservation organization which has spearheaded the campaign since 1979.

"Pitch-In's message is clear and concise. It encourages people to respond by getting involved in environmental solutions. Young people, especially, want to participate in a tangible activity that provides them with the satisfaction of knowing that they have made a difference."

Pitch In Week was first held in British Columbia in 1969. From the beginning, youth groups have been the cornerstone of Pitch-In Canada's programs. Pitch-In Canada's president and national coordinator, Allard van Veen, was a founder of the organization in 1967 at age 17. Pitch-In Week programs are used by thousands of youth leaders and teachers to emphasize the importance of personal involvement and dedication to resolving environmental problems.

"Pitch-In Week encourages a personal sense of environmental awareness," van Veen says. "Every day, humans make choices which affect the environment. That's why it's important that both young people and adults become knowledgeable so that we can better understand the implications of our actions."

People in more than 1,000 communities across Canada support Pitch-In Week by becoming actively involved in cleaning up the environment. The Ontario campaign, the country's largest, receives enthusiastic support throughout the province. The value of last year's labor for Pitch-In Week is estimated at $22 million in Ontario alone.

"Participating in action programs such as Pitch In Week helps us realize how much waste we produce, how many products we can recycle or make from recycled material, and how much waste we improperly dispose into the environment," says Ben Kruser of Scout Canada. "Young people also take the message home to their parents."

This week, a number of pre-school and elementary school children will be cleaning up their neighborhoods as a gesture of goodwill to their community. Youth groups will be cleaning the grounds of their meeting places to thank the church, school or community group which provides the meeting place. Other organizations will "adopt a park" as part of their activities, which include habitat preservation and improvement projects in those parks with wildlife habitat.

How will you participate in Pitch In Week this year?

Oklahoma Bombing

When will terrorists learn that cowardly bombing attacks on innocent bystanders isn't the best way to make friends and influence people?

Far from frightening Americans into submission, last week's outrageous bombing of a government building in Oklahoma aroused Americans to defend their traditional values and way of life.

The national press exposed the fraudulent and twisted leadership of the lunatic right, totally discrediting any legitimate grievances or agenda these fringe groups might have put forward. And an overwhelming majority of disgusted Americans have demanded those with blood on their hands be held totally accountable for their actions — with absolutely no mercy.

There's little chance these "militia" groups can make a recovery, despite the optimism of certain of their leaders.

Times have certainly changed, as Americans grow older and wiser. No longer will a Che Guevera or a Black Panther group be able to romanticize "revolutionary covert action:" we as a society are totally fed up with the idea of senseless killing to further a "cause."

The real question most Americans are asking is "Why?"

History has taught us that there are other, more persuasive ways of bringing grievances to the public's attention.

The beauty of democracy is that the majority rules. To attract needed followers, a movement must justify both the legitimacy of its cause, and the capacity of its leaders to make wise judgments.

In both cases, the Oklahoma bombers failed.

This Week In Morrisburg's History

Compiled from The Leader's fyles by Catherine Thompson

1985

The April 24th edition of The Leader reports the province's refusal of funding for phase three of the proposed three-phased trunk sewer project.

The $2.5 million project was intended to alleviate overflow and infiltration problems in the antiquated, under-sized existing system. It would also solve flooding in the village's west end, as well as relieve the load on the system in the east end, allowing for potential expansion north along Hwy. 31.

Phase one would extend the current line from the filtration plant to Ottawa Street, with phase two taking it north across Hwy. 2 along Hwy. 31. The belated third phase, not part of the original request to the Ministry of the Environment, would see the line extended along Hwy. 2 west of the intersection, to help developers there. But MOE spokesman Charlie Letman said, "There's no present-day need for the thing. We try to address funding issues on what we perceive as a need and in this case, the answer we've given the village indicates there's no real need."

The Morrisburg unit of the Winchester District Memorial Hospital Auxiliary played host to over 300 auxiliary members from Pembroke to Cornwall at the Royal Canadian Legion. Winners of the hat contest for district auxiliary presidents were Ann Heney (Pembroke General Hospital), Betty Dinovitzer (Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario), and Aline Grenier, St. Vincent's Hospital of Ottawa.

An all-candidates debate in Alexandria for the province drew a turn-out of less than 100 people to hear candidates square off. Incumbent Tory Noble Villeneuve, elected in a by election 16 months ago, said he would try to get help for the financially troubled Mount Carmel House. NDP candidate Rudi Derstroff said an NDP government would ensure treatment for alcohol addiction was covered by OHIP. Liberal candidate Bill Dillabough said the problem was not unique to Eastern Ontario, but all across the province. Eastern Ontario municipalities he said, should unite and attempt bail out Mount Carmel House.

The April 25th edition reported an evaluation of the French intensive program in the SD & G County Board of Education at the kindergarten level. Dr. Merrill Swain, Dr. H.C. Barik and Dr. Sharon Lapkin of the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education noted that the results showed no adverse effect on mental or intellectual development.

Kindergarten children from Morrisburg were among those in the control group of six schools where the French kindergarten program was not offered. School trustee, Joan Findlay, commented on the report. "It is interesting to note that the report showed children attending French only or English only kindergarten scored equally as well as those in the double program."

Rev. Francis N. Gooch was inducted as Rector of St. James Anglican Church, Morrisburg, St. John's Church, Iroquois and Holy Trinity Church, Riverside Heights.

The Morrisburg Chamber of Commerce met to discuss future plans of the Chamber, including projects during Old Home Week: namely the beef barbecue and pancake breakfast. Also discussed was the annual Trade and Home Show to be held from September 25 to 27.

The April 30th, 1965 issue of The Leader reported that Knox Presbyterian Church, Iroquois was to commemorate its 91st anniversary May 2nd, with special services.

Charles Farlinger, Morrisburg, provincial director of Dundas County Junior Farmers Organization, was Prime Minister for the day at a Leadership School held at Vankleek Hill High School.

Morrisburg Golf Club memberships were $22 for men, $12 for ladies and $30 for man and wife.

At Brinston's Allied Food Market two four ounce packages of Tang orange crystals cost 39 cents and watermelon were 79 cents each.

Headlines in the April 29th, 1955 issue of The Leader read Fire Chief rushed to Cornwall Hospital with serious heart attack. His many friends learned that Fire Chief Herbert L. Clark 65 of Morrisburg had to be rushed to Cornwall General Hospital following a serious heart attack suffered at the scene of a farm house fire. The local brigade had been called to extinguish a blaze at the farm home east of Morrisburg, owned by Colborne Hess and occupied by Victor Crowder. Although unable to save the home which was completely destroyed, the local brigade did manage to save several barns.

At the annual meeting of the directors of the Dundas County Federation of Agriculture, held in the Agricultural Office Morrisburg Hume Grisdale was elected president for the 1955 term.

At the Dominion bologna was 21 cents a pound and pineapples three for 89 cents.

The Aultsville correspondent wrote: We noticed one enterprising young man busy mowing the lawn and we hear some potatoes have been planted.

Young at Heart starring Doris Day and Frank Sinatra was playing at the Cameo Theatre and the Picadilly in Williamsburg was showing Crest of the Wave with Gene Kelly and John Justin.

At Brook's Store, Main Street, Morrisburg men's sturdy work shoes were $6.95 a pair and children's corduroy pants $1.39.

The Shell Service Station, Morrisburg was now under the management of Lorne Brown.

1945

The May 4th, 1945 edition of The Leader reported a Liberal convention had been held in the town hall in Spencerville for the purpose of nominating candidates for both the federal and provincial elections in the Dundas Grenville riding.

Mahlon Zeron, farmer of Iroquois and Reeve of Matilda, was selected for the provincial and Frank Casselman, Williamsburg was declared the candidate for the federal election.

A.C. Casselman, Progressive Conservative party whip in the House of Commons and Hon. George H. Challies, Minister Without Portfolio in the Drew Cabinet of Ontario were chosen federal and provincial official Progressive Conservative candidates respectively at a joint meeting convention for Grenville-Dundas riding at Spencerville.

Both Casselman and Mr. Challies were given acclamations by the convention which was the largest in the history of the riding.

At Morley's Store onion sets or multipliers were 28 cents a pound and shellac, a quart bottle, was $1.30.

At Brinston Ralph Innes had treated himself to a new car.

The celebration of the King's jubilee in Morrisburg was to take the form of entertainment for the children at the Cameo Theater.

R.H. Bradfield was selling garden seed in packages for three, five and 10 cents.

1925

Headlines in the May 1st, 1925 issue of The Leader read first step toward rebuilding our Collegiate. A committee consisting of Mr. J.L. Casselman, chairman of the Board of Education and Mr. I. Hilliard, K.C., went to Toronto where they interviewed the Department of Education with a view of obtaining all necessary information preparatory to enlightening the citizens on their future plans for replacing the Collegiate Institute.

Fire wiped out the saw mill and cheese box factory operated at Iroquois by Fred Roach and caused considerable damage to Alex Sharkey's cheese and butter factory.

A historic old stone building, a storey and a half high, on the edge of the St. Lawrence River at Point Iroquois was to be converted into a clubhouse for a Hawaiian musician and his seven piece orchestra. The building was a landmark, having been built more than 100 years earlier by Michael Carman, one of the oldest settlers and afterward used by Peter Carman as a store.

At L.J. Barkley's East End Meat Market T-bone and tenderloin steak was 25 cents a pound and beef stew 10 cents a pound.

The Williamsburg correspondent reported that weather conditions were making it possible for farmers to begin seeding.

Letters to the Editor

Editor, Morrisburg Leader
Dear Sir:

Monday, May 8 this year marks a special anniversary; it will be 50 years since VE-DAY, the day that the Second World War ended in Europe. Canada Remembers, a committee working under the auspices of Veterans Affairs Canada to honor and remember the wartime effort and sacrifice made by Canadians overseas and at home, would like your assistance in making this May 8 a day of special significance for Canadians of today.

In 1945, Canadians learned via their radios that peace had returned. When they heard the news, everyone driving cars began honking their car horns, church bells rang and all types of sirens were sounded. Soon people were pouring out of homes and office buildings and the celebration began. Spontaneous street dances started in many towns, and celebrations continued throughout the day. However, for the friends and families of the Canadians who had lost their lives in the war, there were also thoughts for those who would not be coming home.

The outbreak of joy tapped a well-spring of pent-up emotion. Canada had offered up more than a million of her sons and daughters to defend peace and democracy, and over 45,000 of them had died. As of May, 1945, Canadians could look forward to the future with optimism, secure in the knowledge that peace had returned (at least in Europe.)

At the same time, Canada as a nation had changed irrevocably. Our country had contributed magnificently to the cause, and had grown as it contributed. From a depression-wracked predominantly rural nation in 1939, Canada had developed by 1945 into one of the industrial giants of the world, and had become a significant player on the world stage. The country also was on the brink of another major impact of the war—the huge wave of immigration that has made Canada the multicultural nation it is today.

We are encouraging Canadians of 1995 to mark the anniversary on May 8 in a special way. We have asked all radio and television stations to carry out a countdown to 12:00 noon (local time) on that day (as is done on New Year's Eve), at which time everyone would be encouraged to honk their car horns for up to two minutes. We have also proposed that at the same time bells on churches, etc. would ring and sirens would be sounded.

With this in mind, we ask that you advise your readers of this proposed activity, so that they will be aware of it when it occurs and will perhaps join in the celebration.

The addition of up to two minutes of joyful noise to our day on the 50th anniversary of the end of the war in Europe will certainly be an important step towards increasing the awareness that today's Canadians have of the accomplishments of the Canadians of half a century ago. It will also be a lively way to honor them.

Yours sincerely,
Lawrence MacAulay, P.C., M.P. Secretary of State (Veterans)

Volunteers are the main support of community hospice organization

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

WILLIAMSBURG—Last week's theme of volunteer appreciation was repeated at a delicious pot-luck dinner for Dundas County Hospice volunteers on Saturday.

Attending the dinner was a turn-out of approximately 60, volunteers and partners included. Rev. Heather Jones organized an amusing entertainment with Family Feud, with participating teams competing to answer questions on a "survey" of Dundas County, while Craig Hussey held the answer board.

Spokesperson for the Community Hospice Association of Ontario guest speaker Heather Balfour who frequently speaks on behalf of volunteers for Hospice, said: "I'd like you to have some sense of the value of what we're doing and what we're involved in planning for the future of health cars service delivery."

Balfour described changes the organization has undergone since she joined in 1991. In four years, CHAO has grown from 30 agencies to 73, and 25 other agencies, while not actively providing care are gearing up towards this activity.

Balfour commented on the significance of the volunteer to staff ratio, at 95 per cent to five, and the importance of the volunteers help to the community, and in relieving demand on government serivce.

In 1994, there were over 6,800 volunteers in Hospices throughout Ontario, serving terminally clients and their families. Based on 41 out of 62 hospices in 1994, a total of 3,782 clients and 1,718 family members are being helped.

"And the actual numbers are greater than that," Balfour said. In Dundas County there are currently 54 trained volunteers.

Among support services provided by volunteers are emotional, physical, practical and spiritual and bereavement support.

Coordination and linkage is an important of hospice service. People on hospice boards are from a wide variety of backgrounds, including physicians, nursing agencies, and clergy to mention a few. As such they can provide a linkage with clients, needed services and the community.

Continuity is another important feature, as the hospice volunteers are sometimes the only people who are with a client from day one of a palliative care program, as patients are frequently referred to one program from another.

Education is provided in training to hospice volunteers as well as to the general public.

"A lot of hospice volunteers around the province provide a lot of education about terminal illness about death and dying issues, bereavement support," she stated. The biggest areas where education is needed is the client and family, helping them to know what kind of services are needed and available and what will happen.

Empowerment is another service the Hospice provides. Hospice volunteers help people to know what questions to ask, and where to find the information and help.

CHAO is entirely funded by sponsors and donors, although it has frequently applied for and been denied government funding. Balfour said the situation is not expected to change, and is bracing for funding cuts resulting in staff cut-backs. Nevertheless, individual agencies have been lucky to obtain funding.

In the past the Dundas Community Hospice has received some government assistance, but may not be able to rely on this in future. Hospice director Alison Tucker said they may come to expect 100 per cent funding from donations and sponsors. Fundraising will be relied on to raise almost all of their small budget of $40,000 and will include a dinner in October 22, planned for Matilda Hall.

Edwardsburg Twp. not interested in pool project

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

SPENCERVILLE—The Township of Edwardsburgh has no interest in helping fund a proposed pool project at Seaway District High School.

In fact, the Seaway swimming pool concept never even has been discussed at an Edwardsburgh council meeting, nor with any members of that township's staff, said Edwardsburgh Reeve David Dobbie, in a memorandum to the four participating SDRC municipalities.

"Edwardsburgh Township has never expressed an interest in the South Dundas Recreation Committee," the reeve wrote. "(It) will not be sharing any recreation costs outside its municipal boundaries."

Dobbie felt compelled to "clarify" his council's position so that "all residents" would know where the township of Edwardsburgh stands on the issue."

He said it was "unfortunate" that certain "perceived notions" within the SDRC membership managed to find their way into a local newspaper, especially since nobody had bothered to contact anyone on his staff to get their position.

"Edwardsburgh Township funds its own recreation facilities with a part time Faculty Coordinator. These recreation facilities being; the arena in Spencerville, the swimming pool in Johnstown, ball diamonds in Spencerville and Johnstown and a variety of parks throughout the municipality."

For months now, the SDRC has been looking for alternative funding sources to offset construction and maintenance costs for a scaled-down swimming pool complex. Members believe finding new partners might be essential to secure the necessary provincial/federal grants.

In a joint council meeting last winter, Cardinal Reeve Larry Dishaw expressed interest in his municipality perhaps joining the SDRC pool proposal rather than one being organized through the YMCA in Brockville. A number of SDRC members favored the proposed Seaway location as a means of encouraging such participation, and hopefully induce other eastern townships in Leeds & Grenville, and the SD&G school board to join the fold as well.

Dobbie's letter, however, could force the SDRC to reconsider other alternatives.

"Needless to say, tax dollars have to be spent wisely in these tough economic times," the reeve concluded. "This mandate has been given to each elected member by the residents and property owners of their respective municipality."

Local trucking firm operator dismisses recent bad publicity

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

MORRISBURG—The recent wave of bad publicity surrounding the trucking industry doesn't sit too well with local businessman Randy Veinotte.

The co-owner of the Morrisburg-based transportation company Harland-Veinotte Limited and his brother Terry believe they run a tight operation, with a well-trained staff and tough safety regulations already in place.

There might be some "bad apples" within the industry, Veinotte admits. But the overwhelming majority strictly follow the rules imposed by the provincial government.

"I'm not happy to be tarred with the same brush. We run a good business here, a safe business. There's a lot of good quality trucking companies out there. But there's some bad ones too, and that's all we seem to be hearing about in the last few weeks."

The furor over truck safety began several weeks ago after an Ontario mother and her young family died on the highway after being hit by an errant tire from a big transport vehicle. Later published reports from a subsequent government crackdown which followed revealed that as many as 60 per cent of trucks surveyed had at least some areas in neglect.

While acknowledging that a serious problem exists within the industry, Veinotte dismisses the accuracy of the numbers, based on how the survey was conducted. Inspectors apparently were being selective in the trucks-they looked over, choosing only those they believed might have problems.

"They weren't pulling in any of our staff because I asked our guys. They were only pulling in the real serious stuff, and that's why the ratio is so high."

Good safety record

Harland Veinotte Ltd. consists of about 25 trucks, and 29 drivers — an expanding but still small-to-medium-sized business within the trucking industry.

Randy handles the administrative side of the business, including driver training and hiring. Terry runs the garage, and supervises the licensed mechanics on staff. The shop remains open 24 hours a day. When a truck needs repairs, it's done immediately to keep them fully in use.

By today's business standards, the company's business territory remains small, extending from London to the west, to Trois Rivieres to the east, to upper New York State and Vermont to the South. Rarely does a Veinotte truck make an overnight stop, which is exactly the way the owners want to keep it.

"More than half our guys were trained by us. That's why we haven't had a lot of trouble.'

Like most other trucking businesses, Harland Veinotte has written up an extensive "Company and Policy Manual." Based on regulations imposed by the government, the guidelines explain driver conduct in terms of such wide-ranging subjects as obligations,employment policies, loading and unloading, logs, payrolls and preventive maintenance.

"Their rules are incorporated into our rules," Veinotte points out. "Our policy either meets or exceeds the governments."

By law, drivers must keep a log book, describing where they went, how much mileage was used up, and where they purchased gasoline. Workers can be on duty no more than 60 hours a week, and 70 hours in one eight day period. In one 24 hour period, a worker can be on the job for 15 hours and drive for 13.

"We have no choice but to adhere to that. The government will come in and do periodic facility audit checks of our log books."

Before and after each trip, drivers also must file two daily trip inspection reports. All potential defects are to be looked over — from exterior features such as the lights and reflectors, wheels and fasteners, tires, fuel system, suspensions, air brake adjustments — to inside components such as the mirrrors, heater and defrosters, horn, warning lights and windshields.

"The drivers have a vested interest in making sure their vehicles are safe," Veinotte said. "Their lives on on the line."

Trucking companies also are looking to protect their expensive investments. In Harland Veinotte's case, the company has built in a $50/ a month bonus policy for safe driving records (put into an account and paid at the end of the year). The company also has built into each truck a "tachograph" electric recoding device to measure speed and RPMs. Harland drivers aren't allowed to exceed 100 km/h.

In both weekly and monthly maintenance programs, a truck's oil is changed regularly, tires are rotated and retreaded as needed. Any savings from trying to stretch out a worn out tire would be more than offset by the added expenses of cleaning up an accident, or having the business insurance premiums raised, Veinotte said.

"It costs so much money if there's an accident, so much more than any maintenance expenses. It's just not worth it to be negligent."

Veinotte's crew never use retreads on a steering position or at the back end. They won't buy anyone else's casings either because they want the security of knowing the exact age and previous application of the materials they're using.

However, it's not blown tires which have been causing most of the problems, but rather loose lug nuts which have led to several tires and rims actually coming off.

Part of the problem, Veinotte believes, is that there are so many new and inexperienced truck companies on the market. In 1985, the government decided to deregulate the trucking industry to make it easier to get into the business. Hundreds of new players opened shop, which drove down prices in a recessionary economy.

"There are a lot of trucks chasing a little freight. Profits have dropped, and to keep costs down, some aren't putting money back into business."

At the same time, however, the government has been forced to downsize its enforcement department to keep control of costs. Veinotte says the government really isn't in the position now where it can create even further restrictions

"What else can the government do other than have the inspectors in the trucks riding with the drivers?

"The legislation they have in place now is fine. It's fair what they're asking us to do. If they had enough resources to enforce it, we'd all be better off."

Repairing the roads might help somewhat. The deteriorating state of Canadian highways takes a beating on a truck's wheels and tires, especially on the few times when the driver must return home with an empty trailer.

Most importantly, however, Canadians must keep things in perspective and not panic, Veinotte concluded. Considering the growing number of transports running up and down the highway each year, it shouldn't be surprising that reported accidents continue to escalate.

"Nobody's perfect. We're human beings, and on any given day we could have trouble too. But we're trying the best we can."

Volunteers celebrated at Park Lane Center

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

WILLIAMSBURG—A wholehearted thank-you was extended to volunteers at the Park Lane Senior Support Center last Wednesday.

A total of 156 volunteers helped out with Community Support Services last year while 92 volunteers attended their Appreciation Night.

On behalf of the Board of Directors of the Township of Williamsburg Non-Profit Housing Corporation, Board chair Trevor Tolley spoke in appreciation of those who gave freely of their time and effort.

In her address, Janet Levere, coordinator of the Support Center, graciously thanked the volunteers. "Every day you go out into the community of South Dundas to make someone's life a little easier, a little more comfortable, a little less lonely. The volunteers are the backbone of our community and of the support services which we offer from this lovely centre."

The services are called "Community Support Services" to reflect the manner in which the Center reaches out to meet the needs of seniors and adults with disabilities in the area, Levere noted.

Continued efforts to reach more seniors in South Dundas have allowed the Center to expand the Diners Club program into Morrisburg, Iroquois and Matilda Townships. The Club provides seniors the opportunity to enjoy a hot nutritious meal in a social setting, while offering a monthly contact to learn about available services.

The newsletter produced every two months by a volunteer news team had many positive comments. And with the help of volunteers, another nine programs have enriched the community.

From April 1, 1994 to March 31 1995, the budget year of the Center, volunteers contributed significantly.

Through Meals on Wheels, they transported 2,559 meals to 57 different individuals in Williamsburg and Matilda Townships. A total of 440 seniors enjoyed the Diners Club at the Center, at the Brinston IOOF and Rebecca Hall in Matilda, and at the Morrisburg and Iroquois Legions, where 4,143 meals were served.

The Adult Day program expanded under a part-time coordinator and volunteers: nineteen seniors used the service for 114 half-days.

Health Promotion including foot care, chair exercises, information speakers, social and recreational events was provided to 361 persons through 1,843 units of service. Volunteers assisting with health promotion were easy-going and flexible as they served refreshments, encouraged others, stuffed envelopes, called bingos and made decorations, Levere said.

The weekly Friendly Visitors program matched one to one 11 clients and provided 397 hours of visits. "I'm always thankful for the Friendly Visitor dedication, as there is a waiting list," Levere said.

"Information and Referrals keeps the staff hopping here at the Center," she added. Over 2,000 calls were logged last year, and a second phone was installed, with an answering machine as back-up.

Respite care which uses staff to relieve caregivers provided 3,956 hours relief for families of 30 clients in Dundas County. Thirty-nine clients were served by the summer student program in July and August, and some contiued to receive help with heavy housework until March 31.

Programs and activities needing volunteers include Meals on Wheels, Transportation, Friendly Visitors, Newsletter, Adult Day Program, Foot Care, Social Events, Crafts, Exercises, Health Promotion, Helping Hands (miscellaneous), Board of Directors and Advisory Committee.

Entertaining the crowd were case managers from the Home Care Office in Winchester, and Harmony Six, a musical group which has been performing for churches, nursing homes and seniors centers for over 20 years.

Performing hilarious skits depicting typical scenarios were case managers from the Home Care Office. Clients are referred to managers for services such as home-making, or dietary counselling through the Park Lane Seniors Support Center, while the managers assess, obtain and monitor these services.

Health Unit

Colour contest a big success

INGLESIDE—There are no trips to the Bahamas, no new car giveaways, yet the Eastern Ontario Health Unit's Healthy Column contest is a success, because participants win something more valuable than big-ticket prizes: tips for healthier living.

The health columns, introduced in January for the health unit's 60th anniversary, are published monthly in about a dozen local newspapers, and feature a health question. Readers answer the question on a ballot available in all home hardware stores in the five counties. The column and question also appear in each of the stores. A monthly draw for the correct answer is held in each store and a monthly winner receives a gift certificate from that Home Hardware Store.

"We're delighted with the high level of public participation in this project. People can't seem to get enough valuable information about maintaining or adopting a healthy lifestyles. These newspaper columns are really helping to provide a public service," said Doreen Blais of the Eastern Ontario Health Unit.

Blais said she's also grateful for the ongoing support and cooperation of all Home Hardware owners. "This is an important year-long commitment for Home Hardware owners. We're asking a lot of them and they've been helpful right from the start. We can't put a price tag on this type of community involvement."

Certificate winner

Shari Boyd of Home Hardware in Ingleside draws the name of Carol Froats, the March winner of the Home Hardware gift certificate. The Easter Ontario Health Unit publishes a monthly health column and questions in local newspapers. Readers may deposit answers in ballot boxes in Home Hardware stores in the five counties.

V.E. Day Celebrations

MORRISBURG—Branch 48 of the Royal Canadian Legion will hold a ceremony at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall on May 7th, at 2:30 p.m. to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II in Europe.

Legion spokesman Ross Hummell said the ceremony will follow as closely as possible the order of service from fifty years ago. On the eight of May, 1945, practically the whole town turned out to celebrate.

"The branch is hoping for as big a turn out as possible to honour the surviving veterans of the conflict. We realize that times have changed. We no longer have a town band, reserve army detachment or a cadet corps to march in a parade to the rink, and we no longer have a wooden rink. But it is hoped that surviving members of the Morrisburg band and members of the reserves and of the Morrisburg Collegiate Cadet Corp will attend."

The Legion also will try and collect as a memorial for future generations of Morrisburg, a recollection of the memories of those old enough to remember that day. Those who would like to contribute are asked to put their recollections of a sheet of paper 8 1/2" by 11.' Hummell suggests participants give their name, occupation, where they were on that day and any recollection of that day (how they heard the news, what they felt, how they celebrated).

The Legion choir will be in attendance. It is hoped as many veterans with their families, as well as the families of former veterans will attend. This 50th anniversary celebration of the end of W.W.II in Europe is part of the celebrations that the Royal Canadian Legion had held to honour the volunteers who served their country so well.

Nothing that future historians can write will honour them more than a grateful nation can honour them by attending the services held this year.

Energy efficient team targets Osnabruck

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

OSNABRUCK—Energy efficiency experts now touring township homes believe they can save each local resident about $150 on their annual energy consumption bill.

What's more, they're prepared to tour each Osnabruck home from top to bottom, making minor upgrades where necessary, and providing advise on bigger jobs where huge money savings could come in.

For just over a week now, the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry energy efficiency team have been touring the local area, visiting various homes and making upgrades.

Last Thursday, a group led by Project Coordinator Cy Page was at Reeve Jim Bancroft's home, installing energy-saving shower heads, aerators for water taps, a water heater blanket, water dams, furnace filters, receptacle air seals, as well as weatherstripping, caulking and pipe insulation where necessary.

"Our goal is to do 50 per cent of the homes in SD&G, about 20,000 in total. What we're finding is that once people find out about the service, everybody wants in. They can't lose, and they can actually measure the savings they get."

The program is partially funded through the Ministry of Energy-Efficiency Community Program, with 48 additional partners, including a number of local utilities and energy suppliers, who've supplied vehicles, equipment and office space. For every provincial dollar the team spends, project managers match or surpass that with outside donations.

Some municipalities have picked up part of the material costs needed to upgrade the homes. Osnabruck elected to let participating residents make their own decisions.

But at $48 per resident, the service is still an exceptional deal for homeowners. The fee does not even cover the materials used, much less the labor costs of bringing in the specialists for the service.

Page says there are a lot of simple, little things the group can do to reduce energy output. One of the biggest areas of potential improvement is at the hot water heater.

Heating water for an average five minute shower takes up more energy than leaving on all elements in the stove plus the oven for that same time. Energy-efficient shower heads cut water volume by more than half (from 6-7 gallons down to 2.5) and can put more air into the water to make it heat faster.

Other areas the teams explore include: the attics of a home, to check the insulation used and for adequate ventilation; the windows, to look for caulking and signs of humidity; the plumbing systems, (especially the toilets) to install water saving devices; and the lighting systems, to determine if more efficient systems might be warranted.

After making the necessary installations and completing a checklist for suggested improvements, the team will do a home environment assessment.

Experts explore how hazardous waste is disposed; examine the types of household cleaners used; and if necessary, bring the household it's own composter.

There's no obligation on participating residents. However, most take advantageous of the recommendations offered because they will save money in the long run, Page said.

"People are using the stuff we put in. Energy costs are becoming so high, they can't afford not to."

The group has developed a working relationship with several banks. Individuals taking advantage of the Green Team's recommendations can take advantage of one per cent (plus prime) interest loans for big jobs.

The energy efficiency program started as a pilot program in Cornwall. Eventually, they'll be approaching other local municipalities, including Matilda, Morrisburg and Williamsburg.

IROQUOIS, ONTARIO

with johnnie watson

IROQUOIS—Well, another week has flown by and winter is still here. The course is slowly getting into shape but we need some heat to get things going. Hopefully, the weather will change for this weekend and we can get things going full swing.

Clubhouse

The current hours of operation for the clubhouse and pro shop are: Monday to Friday, from 9:00 a.m. and Saturday, Sunday and holidays, from 8:00 a.m.

The closing changes daily depending on the usage of the facility. The hours could change as the season progresses. We will look at that later.

We are currently interviewing clubhouse staff and hope to have them in place for the beginning of May. To answer a lot of questions, yes, we will be having breakfast available on weekends, and yes, food will be available on men's night. Also there will be fresh sandwiches available during busy times.

This past weekend saw the outside of the clubhouse building get cleaned and pressure washed. This is the start of improving the outside appearance. Hopefully, you will see a lot of painting during the early season, both inside and out.

While on the subject of the clubhouse, I would like to say a big thank you to all the people who have helped us since we have been in Iroquois. I won't mention any names in case I miss anyone. Again, thank you for your help. The club also wishes to thank all the volunteers who have helped in recent times. Without people like you, some things would not get done.

Course Construction

As you all know, the club is currently expanding to 18 holes and construction is happening. Some rumors are floating around saying the construction will make the course unplayable this year which is NOT TRUE. Yes, the new nine is going in between and around the existing nine, but will be out of the way as there was a lot of unused land that will be used for the new nine.

At times you will hear the machinery but it will not affect your playing. It will give you an excuse to blame your bad shot on.

The contractor, Rick Fleming, has been contacted and will be here when the weather straightens out. He will be finishing the dirt piles on #9 fairway first thing, so construction happening on the existing nine will be next to nil.

Hubert Barkley, the course superintendent, has been busy getting the course in shape and preparing for the upcoming season. In he spare time, he is a pretty god carpenter as he finished of the enlarging of our bar opening. Thanks Hubert for a job well done.

Junior Golf

The dates of our program have not been finalized yet, but will be coming soon. As we approach the start of this program, we are in need of some clubs for the kids who don't have any. We are asking you to donate some old clubs you may have laying around your house that you are no longer using. Individual clubs will help this program as much as sets will. I will cut them down and put junior grips on them. These will remain at the club for future use by the juniors taking up the game. The club will issue receipts for a fair market value of which you should be able to claim a deduction next year on your income taxes.

Pro Shop

The greenfee rates for the 1995 season have been set and are as follows: weekdays, $10 for nine holes, $15 for 18 holes; weekends and holidays, $12 and $18; junior and seniors, $1 off above prices; twilight (2 1/2 hours before dark) $12 for 18 holes. These rates take effect may 1. Our opening special of $10 is still in effect. All taxes are included in these prices.

We still have a few available dates for outside club tournaments, but they are filling up fast. Give the club a call for details. Package deals with food are now available.

As the season progresses, we will highlight some of the goings on at the club and harass some of the individuals so as a work of warning, don't do anything stupid or everyone will know about it.

A couple of things come to mind, but I won't go into a lot of detail, except to say that Paul McCaslin came into the shop last week after playing and was covered in mud. Seems he slipped retrieving a golf ball. Another incident involved Brooke Leightizer breaking a putter, not in anger, but by leaning on it. Aid it wasn't the shaft he snapped, but the putter head itself.

Till next week!

Killer Bees sting town league

The Killer Bees (aka: Castles) stunned town league this season after finishing the league schedule with the worst record. They shot back and stung the Flyers with a 6-3 win a few weeks ago to win the best of three series, two games to one. Pictured with their party favors are: (front) Tug Mullin, Darren Mullin, Gary McInnis, Allan Castleman, Dave Lapier and Kevin Keyes; (back) Bill Bennett, Pat Brugmans, Pete Carruthers, Jason Smith and Doug Wilson. Diane Orlicky wins $150 shopping spree

MORRISBURG—The local Community Snow Suit Fund recently awarded a $150 shopping spree at Swenssons to a lucky Iroquois winner.

Diane Orlicky's name was drawn at the Morrisburg and District Minor Hockey Association awards banquet last month, by now past president, Bob Boivin.

"We were very pleased with all the community response," said Barb Levere, one of the volunteers with the group.

A big thank-you is expended to Iroquois Public School, Bill Morrow, Morrisburg Lions Club for cash donations, she said.

"And a very special thanks to Shona Blatch and Ashley Edwards of Morrisburg Public School for decorating the raffle box and making signs for us."

Levere stated that she would also like to remind people that spring is coming and if you don't want to store that winter outerwear, then you can send it into one of the following four schools: Morrisburg Public School, Iroquois Public School, St. Mary's Separate School (Morrisburg), or St. Cecilia's (Iroquois).

The Snow Suit Fund also greatly appreciates monetary donations to help with their organization.

For more information, you can contact Connie Adlington at 543-3694 or Barb Levere at 543-4486.

Mustangs show promise with help from Morrisburg lads

The Midway Sports AAA Novice Mustangs showed some promise as they began exhibition play in their summer hockey schedule.

In a barn-burner at the Smiths Falls Youth Centre Sunday, the Mustangs were beaten 4-3 by a quick-skating, hard-shooting St. Lawrence Islander squad.

Bryn Johnson of Smiths Falls pounded one home from the edge of the crease for the Mustangs with Kemptville's Clay McFadden and Morrisburg's Robbie Waddell the only other shooters able to tickle the twine.

The home team found themselves on the doorstep several times, but were unable to find mesh. Brockville's Derek Jager had two assists.

Brockville's Lucas Donovan and Derek Jager, along with Kemptville's jeff Coleman and Brandon Thomlinson of Smiths Falls each lit the rid light once in the 11-4 romp.

Johnson picked up three helpers in the game.

New Hartford, new York made the best of their chances in a recent exhibition game as they won 7-3.

Kemptville's Clay McFadden showed firepower for the Mustangs by scoring a pair, with Morrisburg being represented on the scoresheet by Travis Baldwin's goal and Waddell's two assists.

Shawn Workman of Morrisburg is also off to a good start against the stiffer competition.

Goaltenders Joey Juddleston of Smiths Falls, and Mike Robillard of Kemptville have worked hard in practice and appear ready to tangle with the bigger and strong shooters in AAA summer hockey.

Huddleston was hot in Long Sault playing shutout hockey for his half of the game, while Robillard displayed lightning quick reflexes on a pair of saves against the Islanders.

Colts win first CJHL title since Cornwall Royals in late '60s

OTTAWA—The Cornwall Colts won the Central Junior Hockey League title here Saturday afternoon with a 4-2 upset over the Ottawa Junior Senators.

That gave the Cornwall Colts a 4-2 series win—their first CJHL title since the Cornwall Royals won it in the late 1960s.

Yves Leger was outstanding in the crease, stated Ken McLaughlin, the team's media representative. He made several saves from point blank range.

Shane Gibbs scored an empty net goal with three seconds to go to send the Cornwall fans into a frenzy as they streamed onto the ice to celebrate the victory.

Instead of facing off again with three seconds remaining, officials just let the clock wind down.

Adam Morris, Martin Leblanc, Barry Kilbourne scored the other three goals in the victory game.

The Colts now go on to play in the Big East Championship in Joliette, Quebec.

All games will be heard live on 1220 CJSS AM.

The schedule for the Big East Championship is as follows.

April 25: Moncton vs. Valleyfield, 5 p.m.; Cornwall vs. Joliette, 8 p.m.

April 26: Moncton vs. Cornwall, 5 p.m.; Valleyfield vs Joliette, 8 p.m.

April 27: Cornwall vs. Valleyfield, 5 p.m.; Joliette vs Moncton, 8 p.m.

April 29: semi final at 2 p.m., third place vs. second place.

April 30: final, 2 p.m.; semi-final winner vs. first place.

Novice A Lions fair well in Arnprior

The Morrisburg Novice A Lions travelled to Arnprior over the Easter weekend to take part in the ODMHA Tournament of Champions.

Once again, the determination and team efforts of this group of young hockey players are things that South Dundas communities should be proud of.

While the team did not advance to the semi finals, they did manage to keep the fans in suspense well into the afternoon of day two of the tournament.

Morrisburg tallied a total of three points in the three game round robin which gave them the third best record of Division 1 and 2.

It wasn't until South Ottawa, Division 4, won their third game that the Lions were eliminated from the Wild Card slot.

In their first game, Morrisburg played to a two-all deadlock with the Osgoode Rideau Senators.

Robbie Waddell counted both goals in the game, while Kyle Jarvais assisted on both.

In their second match, they won 5-3 over the West Carleton Warriors, led by Tyler Lafortune with two goals.

Singles came from Waddell, Jarvais and Richard Banford. Lindsay Johnston notched three assists in this one.

In their final match, the Lions lost a 3-2 heart breaker to the Arnprior Packers.

The Packers came out smoking in the first period and scored all three goals.

For the remainder of the game, Morrisburg tried to play catch-up but fell just one short.

Johnston and Banford had the goals, with assists coming from Waddell, Lafortune and Cody Casselman.

The entire team would like to extend a thank you to all of the local businesses and fans who have supported them throughout the season.

"See how they grow!" That's what Christian schools do, assisting the home and the church in seeing to it that children receive superb nurture. In a culture where nasty winds of impiety and immorality bend the stoutest plants, children need solid Christian training in order to grow tall and strong. Christian schools nurture young plants for a harvest of righteousness. See that they grow by supporting your local Christian school. God's children need you for good growth.

Local man honored

Grenkie appointed chair of Judicial Committee

TORONTO—Morrisburg lawyer Douglas Grenkie, was recently honored when designated chair of the Judicial Appointments Advisory Committee, and re-appointed to the committee for a two-year term.

Douglas Grenkie, QC, is a partner in the firm of Gorrell, Grenkie, Leroy and Remillard, with offices in Morrisburg, Cardinal and Ingleside. He is also a partner in the firm of Cass, Grenkie in Chesterville and serves as a part-time assistant Crown attorney both provincially and federally. He is a past president of the Canadian Bar Association (Ontario).

He was appointed to the committee by the Canadian Bar Association (Ontario), and was designated chair by the Attorney General.

On April 19, Attorney General Marion Boyd announced the appointment of 12 individuals to the committee, which submits names of candidates to be considered for appointment as judges in Ontario Court (Provincial Division).

The Judicial Appointments Advisory Committee was entrenched in law upon proclamation of the Courts of Justice Statute Law Amendment Act (Bill 136) and seven members from the public. The committee is the first in Canada to have a majority of non-lawyers.

"Members of the committee are appointed to reflect the province's diverse population. They have developed an open, merit-based process for recruiting provincial judges and have been applauded by the public for their efforts to change the demographic makeup of the provincial judiciary," said Mrs. Boyd.

The committee was established by the government in 1988 as a three-year pilot project. It developed criteria for selecting potential candidates for appointment, as well as for advertising vacancies and reviewing and interviewing applicants.

IN MEMORIAM

FERGUSON–In loving memory of a dear husband, James W.C. (Bud), who passed away April 26, 1994.
Gone are the days we used to share,
But in my heart, you are always there.
The gates of memory will never close,
I miss you more than anyone knows.
With tender love and deep regret.
Grant him God, Heavenly Rest.
–Always remembered and loved by your wife Emily 17p

FERGUSON-In loving memory of Bud.
The way he walked, the smile he wore
And all the thousand things so dear
We loved about him while he lived
Haven't really gone with him from here.
The little place on earth he filled
Is vacant now we know
His work is done, his voice is stilled
His feet no longer go
Why he had to leave so soon
We really still can't see
But in God's plan for every man
What is to be, will be.
–Sadly missed and always remembered by his family 17p

CASSELMAN–In loving memory of a dear father, father-in-law and grandpa, Bert.
Come unto me all you that are heavy laden and I will give you rest.
My dear dad laboured for years with his physical illness until on Sunday, April 24th, 1994, one year ago.
God said, no more, come home and I will give you rest.
So dad gave up the fight and now is resting in the arms of Jesus.
Leaving behind loved ones who are looking forward to joining him one day.
–Ever loved, sadly missed by daughter Jean and family 17p

IN MEMORIAM

CASSELMAN–In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Bert, who passed away April 24, 1995.
We knew some day some time some year
The day would come when you'd no longer be here
But the memories of your laughter and the closeness we shared
We thank you Dad for always being there.
Though you never told us, but we always knew
That you loved us Dad as much as we loved you.
–Daughter Faye, Harold, Randy, Jordan and Reilly 17p

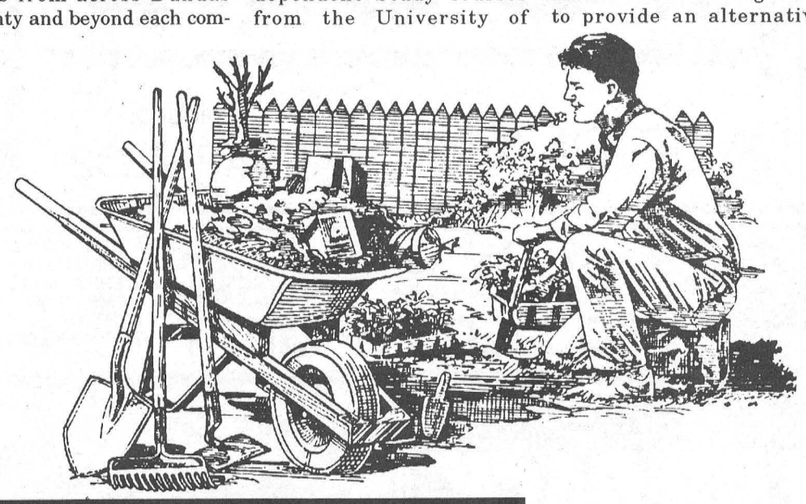
Master Gardeners complete one year

MORRISBURG—The Dundas County Master Gardener Program has successfully completed one year of operation. The dedicated group of volunteers from across Dundas County and beyond each completed a minimum of 20 hours of home gardening advice in the community. Participants have also been working hard to complete the required Independent Study courses from the University of Guelph. Several technical training seminars were also attended by the Masters Gardeners-in- Training.

The purpose of the Ontario Master Gardener Program is to provide an alternative source of home gardening advice and to develop a technical resource base in horticulture for use by media and other organization. the program also provides the opportunity for volunteers to improve their leadership and communication skills. the program is co-sponsored by the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs and the local Horticultural Society.



Last year the volunteers participated in a wide variety of activities providing assistance to the home gardener. this year they are hoping to do even more. The master Gardeners and Master Gardeners in Training are willing to take part in such activities as garden problem clinics at libraries, fairs, and garden centres, answer telephone calls at home, and work with youth groups such as guides and scouts by giving demonstrations and talks. The possibilities are really quite limitless.

This year the group will be writing a monthly newspaper column providing helpful seasonal information. Under the title "ask A Master Gardener" seasonal gardening questions will be addressed. Various clinics will also be held at local nurseries and numerous gardening lectures are planned.

To find out more about the program or to seek help with a home gardening problem please contact one of the volunteers listed below. Remember that we are volunteers and that we don't have all the answers, but will do our best to answer all that we can.

Ask a Master Gardener

Q. How do I go about attracting more butterflies to my garden in town?

A. Whether you garden on a balcony or in a large backyard, you can attract butterflies provided you meet a few requirements. Plan to locate your butterfly garden in a sunny sheltered spot. Butterflies prefer direct sunlight and heat. If you have an exposed windy site, plant your garden next to a a fence, building, hedge or larger plants that will form a windbreak as they grow (i.e. sunflowers).

By doing a little research, you can find which butterflies are native to your area. Decide which ones you aim to attract and find out what their food preferences are. While butterflies will feed on an assortment of flowers, the larvae are generally very choosy. The Monarch sips nectar from many flowers but will only lay its eggs on members of the milkweed family because the caterpillars that emerge will only feed on those plants.

Remember to include nectar plants for each season so there will be a sequence of flowering from spring to fall. Favorite butterfly annuals include: Zinnias, Cosmos, French Marigolds, Gloriosa Daisies, Strawflowers, Globe Flowers and Sunflowers. Favorite perennials include: Butterfly Weed, Lavender, Purple Coneflower, Yarrow, Asters, Helianthus, and Sedum. Buddleia (Butterfly Bush) is one of the most successful plants for attracting butterflies. In small gardens, try to add more dual purpose plants. Lilacs will provide nectar and play host to Swallowtail larvae. Choke Cherry will offer nectar and play host for the White Admiral. Plant some extra cabbage, dill and parsley to feed hungry caterpillars. Wildflowers are some of the best attractants. Goldenrod, Queen Anne's Lace, and yes the lowly dandelion — which provides nectar for at least eight types of butterflies in this area.

Provide some flat stones or a board in your garden, for the butterflies to warm themselves on. A shallow birdbath or a puddle (shallow pan or dish filled with sand or pebbles and kept damp) will be especially appreciated.

Most importantly, avoid using pesticides or herbicides on your garden and lawn. Even slug pellets and some "organic" pest-control methods have been found to be harmful to butterflies. Butterflies prefer "weediness" and will be encouraged by a few dandelions and clover in your lawn. far too many neat, tidy, "perfect" gardens are also biological barrens. A compromise would be to plant the weedier plants and grasses in beds adjacent to but separate from other flower beds. The beautiful fluttering butterflies of summer are not only a delight to behold, but when highly visible, signal that your backyard ecosystem is relatively sound.

Williamsburg Seniors April meet

WILLIAMSBURG—On Tuesday, April 18th, the Williamsburg Township Seniors held their monthly noon dinner and meeting that followed. Twenty--five members and one visitor attended. President Hilda Garlough opened the meeting with O Canada, followed by two short readings, "Time", and "You".

The guest speaker for the program was Eldon Horner, a lawyer with McInnis & McEwen Law Firm in Morrisburg, speaking on powers of attorney. His presentation consisted of up-to-date info on what will happen to one and their property in the case of inability to look after oneself, or property.

On April 3rd the government of Ontario brought into force new laws, including the "Substitute Decisions Act", the "Consent to Treatment Act", and the "Advocacy Act". Valuable information was learned, and many questions were answered.

The business followed with reports being heard, and the correspondence included a "Thank you", from the Heart and Stroke Foundation, and a letter from "Info Action".

One Get-well card was reported having been sent to Harold McRae who is a patient in the Ottawa Civic Hospital.

Twenty members will be going to the Morrisburg Legion Seniors' party on May 9th, as of their invitation on April 5th.

One Wedding Anniversary was recognized. new members are welcome and invited to our group, and Dwain Hess, (535-2073), and Ed Thompson (535-2484) have volunteered to pick up anyone who is without transportation, and would like to come. Following the meeting, the afternoon was spent playing euchre and bridge. The next meeting will be held on the third Tuesday in May.

Seaway Dance for the Deficit

IROQUOIS—Seaway District High School is hosting a "Dance for the Deficit" this Friday, April 28, from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m.

The costs stands at $4 per person and $6 per couple.

Student organizer Sylvia Bouchard said the purpose of this dance is to show Canadians that young people who can't yet vote are about to take control of the country's future.

"We know that the money raised won't even place a dent in the deficit, but we hope to continue this yearly," Bouchard said. "We hope to see this spread throughout the province of Ontario, and hopefully farther."

Local bands have donated their time for the event, feeling this is a worthy cause.

Instead of tax hikes and job cuts, these participants feel a more humane fund-raising approach might be better, one which adds "the enjoyment of dancing while raising money for the debt that will affect our generation in the years to come."

Music Show

INGLESIDE—The St Mathew's Bi-Centennial Committee is hosting a musical presentation at the Presbyterian Church in Ingleside on Sunday, April 30, at 2:30 p.m.

The show will feature world class organist Sharon Adams and the Glengarry Gaelic Choir.

Tickets are $8 for adults and $4 for children.

For more information, contact Jean B. MacDonald, St Mathew's Bi-Centennial Committee.
