Scouts hang hopes on bottle drive

Shayne Larabie, Tommy Levere and Peter Vanderlind were among the members of the First Chesterville Scout Troop and Wolf cub Pack who were out in force Saturday conducting a bottle and wire coat hanger drive to raise funds to send members of the troop to the Canadian National Jamboree (Can-Jam) on Prince Edward Island whis summer. Over $200 in bottles were collected and the boys gathered up over 1,000 wire hangers, which have not yet been disposed of. Their main fund raising effort, the Can-Jam Benefit Dance, will be held in the Chesterville Community Hall this Friday night and plans are being made for a car wash to be held in May. -staff photo-

Villeneuve ready to run

(Staff) - MLA Osie Villeneuve has stated he will again contest the Progressive Conservative nomination for Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Riding.

Announcement that the riding's PC nominating convention will be held Wed., May 11 was made Monday by association co-president Bill Gorrell of Morrisburg as speculation continues to mount that Ontario voters will go to the polls in June for a provincial general election.

The vetaran MLA's intention to seek another term of office is an about-face for him. Last summer ill health plagued him and Mr. Villeneuve said this was his last term at Queen's Park. But in the intervening year his physical condition has improved to the point where he is ready to give politics another go.

"I meant what I said a year ago but I'm in number one condition now. I've lost 25 pounds and I'm feeling great," he told The Record in a telephone interview from his Toronto office Monday afternoon.

No other names of potential candidates have been mentioned at this point.

With rumors of a June election mounting, Mr. Villeneuve said a feeling of election fever surrounds Queen's Park. An elected representative since 1948, he says he has been around long enough "to recognize some of the maneuvring in government" which usually precedes an election.

Mr. Villeneuve was first elected as PC MLA for Stormont and Glengarry in 1948 and sat as its member until 1957 when he resigned and turned to federal politics, being elected to office in the wake of the Diefenbaker Tory tide. He was re-elected the following year and lost his federal seat in the 1962 general election. He went back to provincial politics in 1963 and has represented various parts of the United Counties ever since.

In his last election campaign, he defeated former MLA Peter Manley in the newly-created riding of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry.

If there is an election, Mr. Villeneuve said the Conservatives will ask for a majority government to give them a better bargaining position in the debate with Quebec on Canadian unity.

He said Premier William Davis gave an indication of the stand his party will take at last week's speech at the Toronto Empire Club in which the government leader attacked the Parti Quebecois' version of the mutual benefits of Confederation and stated that an independent Quebec could not expect to maintain a customs union with the rest of Canada.

Mr. Villeneuve said the last 18 months of minority government have been difficult ones as the opposition parties "try to put themselves in the driver's seat and tell us what to do". This is especially true in the numerous committees of the legislature and Mr. Villeneuve said he has seen it in the committees - social development and natural resources - of which he is a member.

In the event of Quebec's separation, areas like SD&G would be particularly hard hit. The riding has a large number of dairy famers who traditionally rely on the Montreal market to sell their mikl and this would be lost if the country were fragmented.

One of his immediate concerns is the apparent cancellation by the Patri Quebecois government of the agreement between Ontario and Quebec to forgive gasoline taxes for truckers plying roads between the two provinces. The unilateral action by the Quebec government is causing serious hardships for Eastern Ontario truckers, Mr. Villeneuve said, and has created a situation in which some now refuse to enter the province. This is interrupting the flow of goods out of the area, he explained.

Tories get the jump

(Staff) - The SD&G Progressive Conservative riding association has stolen a march on its Liberal counterpart, announcing the date of its nominating convention for the expected June provinical general election.

The meeting will be held Wed., May 11 in the Finch Arena and the Chesterville association will hold a meeting next Wednesday night in the Community Hall to chose voting delegates for the convention.

The Liberal association has not yeat set its nomination meeting date and an association executive session will be held early next week to set a time and place.

Mrs. Jill Lamb, secretary of the constituency organization, said Tuesday afternoon that although the party has several persons in mind for SD&G, no one has yet announced his or her candidacy.

Teachers voting Wednesday

(Staff) - SD&G's 553 secondary school teachers are expected to turn down the county board of education's latest contract in today's (Wednesday) Education Relations Commission-supervised voting.

Both sides in the 23-day old strike modified their positions slightly at last week's marathon mediation session in Cornwall with the board changing its stance on the salary issue.

Board negotiatiors offered teachers a 10 per cent pay increase this year, eight per cent next year and a Cost of Living Allowance which would kick in at an eight per cent increase in the consumer price index. The COLA clause would come into effect in the second year of the proposed agreement.

The board assumed it had a tentative agreement with its teachers and reports last week indicated that both sides were hopeful of a quick settlement to the strike, now in its fourth week.

However, at their meeting in Cornwall Monday night, teachers indicated that a quick return to classrooms at SD&G's 10 secondary schools is unlikely.

In a press release issued after the meeting, teachers stated that the issues which first led to the strike April 4 remain unresolved. These include guaranteed lunch periods; number of teacher-student contact hours, and the number of students to be faced in a teaching day.

The negotiablility and grievability of these conditions are guaranteed in letters of commitment offered by the board to the end of the 1979 school year and renewal of the letters of commitment is subject to negotiation between board and teachers.

The board's offer states that if a satisfactory renewal cannot be negotiated before March 31 in the last year of the agreement it will impose its own settlement.

Teachers argue that such a settlement would constitute unilateral action on the board's part and a spokesman said Tuesday that if teachers accept this offer, she wouldn't blame SD&G parents for "kicking my butt from one end of the counties to the other. It would mean that we kept their kids out of classes for four weeks for nothing."

The letters of commitment the board has sent to the teachers would achieve the same effect as a contract but would not be included in the collective agreement. Working conditions have been at the heart of the dispute since teachers first voted for strike action March 17.

Both sides have made some consessions on them since, with teachers saying they were willing to have Pupil Teacher Ratios written into a rider attached to but not included in a new contract. They have been without a contract since September 1, 1976. The letters of commitment represent as much softening of its position as the board is willing to give.

The full page advertisements which appeared in area newspapers last week represent the board's last offer, The Record was told Tuesday.

When asked if the board's negotiatiors would be making a statement following the release issued by the teachers Monday night, a board spokesman said nothing would be said before teachers vote on the offer.

The board met last night and in closed session received the latest recommendations from its salary negotiating committee but no public comments were made on it.

If, unexpectedly, the teachers do accept the board's offer they could be back in the classroom within 24 hours of the announcement of the results of the vote. Results are expected by Wednesday night.

Street facelift

(Staff) - Residents of South St. should be singing a happy tune this summer when badly needed work to the street is carried out.

The street will get a complete overhaul, from storm sewers to curb and guttering in a construction project which is planned to take two years to carry out.

The reconstruction is the main reason the village mill rate shot up so much this year. Total cost of the two phases of construction is now estimated at about $180,000, $92,000 of which must be raised through local taxation.

The village will be spending about $45,000 on the first phase this year and an additional $44,000 in 1978. Added to the actual costs of construction are $3,000 in engineering fees.

Fifty per cent of the total is expected to come from the province.

The first phase will get underway this year with the completion of design and construction of storm sewers and a granular road base. Next year, the street will receive the finishing touches of curbs, gutters and asphalt paving.

A prophet without honor...

(Staff) - The Seaway Valley Tourist Council is going to change its emphasis from reaching out to bring visitors to the area, to educating the local population on the value of tourism and how to be friendlier to tourists. This was the upshot of last Wednesday's SVTC executive meeting in Morrisburg as members discussed the recently-stressed lack of friendliness by Canadians to American visitors and the poor attendance at this year's annual dinner meeting. The poor attendance at this year's function "indicates a lack of awareness of the value of tourism to the lcoal economy," the association's latest newsletter states.

Road improvements

(Staff) - Five projects for the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry have been scheduled for this year by the Ontario Ministry of Transportation and Communications. Grading, drainage, granular base and paving are slated for highway 31, from highway 2 northerly to .9 miles south of the South Nation River Bridge, a distance of 11.8 miles; on highway 34, from .1 miles north of highway 401 northerly to Lancaster North limits, distance of .6 miles; and on highway 417, Truck Inspection Station, one miles west of highway 138 on the north side. Improvement of structure and approaches are scheduled for highway 34 at the Delisle River Bridge, 1.6 miles north of highway 43, one half mile of grading, levelling and repaving. Also planned is resurfacing of highway 2 from Morrisburg west 10.7 miles and from Ingleside, easterly to Cornwall west limits, a distance of 8.4 miles, and also from Summerstown Road 27 to Lancaster, on highway 2, a distance of 6.4 miles.

Handicrafts bazaar

(Staff) - The 13th Annual Exhibition and Bazaar, presented by the Seaway Valley Handicrafts Association, will be held at the Bob Turner Memorial Centre, 504 Fourth St. East, Cornwall, May 3 to 5. this year's show, the biggest ever, will feature 42 booths of arts and crafts including displays of soapstone carvings, basketry, copper enamelling, ceramics, paintings and prints, beads, jewellery, bird houses, weaving, toys and more. The show is open from 6pm to 10pm Tues., May 3, and from 2pm to 4pm and 6pm to 10pm Wed., May 4 and Thurs., May 5.

Quebec imports 'normal practice'

(Staff) - The importation of surplus industrial milk from Quebec into Ontario is nothing new, according to OMMB regional marketing director Sarsfield O'Connor.

Mr. O'Connor was responding to claims made at the regional milk committee meeting in Spencerville last week and to a story appearing in an Ottawa daily newpaper which claimed he said some of the milk being brought to Eastern Ontario plants was of poor quality.

Mr. O'Connor said the situation is nothing new. "It's been going on for years and it's a known fact there are different standards for industrial bulk milk at the farm level in Quebec."

He said standards regulating milk houses, bulk tanks and pipeline systems are higher in Ontario than in Quebec but the difference in standards has no bearing on the fact that milk plants are bringing in Quebec milk since the flow of industrial milk is under the jurisdiction of the Canadian Dairy Commission.

"It's a federal program and the province has no control over the flow of milk from plants in Quebec to Ontario."

Mr. O'Connor said the practice has gained more prominence recently because of the tight quota situation in Ontario.

At the same time as surplus Quebec milk is coming into Ontario, fluid milk is being shipped from this province to Montreal. Fluid milk is administered through provincially-run programs, he pointed out.

Eric Johnson, manager of Kraft Foods, Ingleside, emphasized that the Quebec milk his plant uses is not of "poor quality" as was maintained at last Wednesday's meeting.

The use of a poor quality raw material would hurt his company's final product - cheese manufactured for further processing in Montreal - and would result in poor sales.

Kraft is now using about 250,000 lbs. of Quebec milk per week. This is only a fraction of the total 3.75-million lbs. the plant processes in a week, he pointed out.

Quebec milk is used only when there is not enough Ontario malk available to keep the Ingleside plant running at peak efficiency. He explained that through quota requirements, processing plants must first accept Ontario milk and if there isn't enough to keep plants running surplus milk can be brought in from Quebec.

This little girl went to market...

A large number of parents attended the open house at Chesterville Public School last Thursday to see the student displays during the school's observance of Education Week. Among the students who took part in the displays were, from left, Shelley, Shannon and Daphne Weaver, daughters of Mrs. Alice Weaver, teacher of grades one and two at CPS, and Laurie Buske, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Buske, Chesterville.

Rent control issue forces difficult decision

(Staff) - SD&G Progressive Conservative MLA Osie Villeneuve said the confidence motion now before the Ontario Legislature on rent control presents the minority government of Premier William Davis with a thorny problem.

While the government wants to hold rent increase to eight per cent for the coming year, the opposition, in a motion sponsored by the Liberals, wants increases restricted to six per cent.

This is the Anti-Inflation Board guideline for wages and the opposition contends that Ontario residents should not have their wage earning capability outstripped by rising costs of accommodation.

Mr. Villeneuve said his party realizes that its rent increase proposals are in excess of AIB wage guidelines but the costs of keeping up properties are in a different category.

With increases in the cost of natural gas, heating oil and electricity in the last year, rental property owners are entitled to a larger increase, he said Monday.

Unless landlords can get a fair return on their investment dollars they will take them out of housing and put them into the "bank or a mortgage company where they can easily get eight or nine per cent". This would have the double-barrelled effect of creating a housing shortage and slowing down a recovery of the economy since so much of the province's prosperity is tied to the construction industry.

Local Brownie Pack at third annual 'Revel'

(Special) - The Bake and Craft Sale recently held by the First Chesterville Brownie Pack and the First Chesterville Guide Company was very successful. Despite the unpleasant weather, the turnout was good and sales were brisk. The winner of the door prize was Mrs. Elsie Graham of Chesterville. Her prize was a doll donated by Mrs. Virginia Patenaude and the winning ticket was drawn by Brownie Nancy Dingeman of Finch.

Part of the Brownie portion of the proceeds will go to the "International Camp Fund", set up to help girls going to international camping events.

The Brownies and their leaders would like to extend thanks to the Chesterville Chamber of Commerce for their donation of $25 to the Pack. As camp and summer outings are fast approaching, this will be put to good use.

Three car loads of Brownies, leaders and Girl Guide helpers spent a busy day in Prescott Sun., April 17. The occasion was the third annual Dahoneh area Brownie Revel. Almost 405 Brownies from 18 packs in the area attended. Nation Valley District led the Brownie's Own Service, then, singing a special song, the girls deposited their World Friendship Pennies in a large barrel. These pennies will assist Guiding in other lands. After lunch, a series of eight plays were presented, one from each district in the area. Nation Valley district, represented by Packs from Morrisburg, Chesterville, Winchester and Williamsburg, put on "Snow White and the Seven Dwarves".

Chesterville Brownies attending were Lisa Bakker, Kristina Boulanger, April Countryman, Sarah Derks, Nancy Dingeman, Jennifer Ganter, Jennifer Gillard, Sherry Jordan, Kerry Lynn Kennedy, Tracy Moran, Bernadette Patenaude, Micheline Patenaude, Anne Van Delst and Lise Van Kessel. Guide helpers were Carol Johnson, Monique Patenaude and Cynthia Whetter. Leaders were Mrs. Marilyn Johnson and Mrs. Virginia Patenaude.

Seaway story presented

The Dialogue Theatre Company won applause and approval for their performance of "The Seaway Story" in Ingleside last Saturday evening. The saga of the St. Lawrence Seaway was effectively told in song and story and the audience laughed and cried at the vivid dramatization of local history. In the picture above, people from a soon-to-be-flooded village, Marion Leonard, James Tait, Velma Blake and Michael Evans, meet "The Man From Hydro", John Nolan, extreme left.

The Maple Ridge Senior Public School band, under the direction of Dave Irwin, blasts out a tune as part of last Tuesday's Education Week program. Also included in the program were public speaking and a gymnastic display.

Mrs. June Thompson, teacher at Chesterville Public School, uses "Georgie" to demonstrate the parts of the human anatomy at last Thursday night's open house which marked the school's observance of Education Week. Listening to Mrs. Thompson are from left, Mrs. Mary Harris, her daughter Lorrie, Mrs. Wayne Jordan and Rhonda York. In front, Sherry Jordan is a bit hesitant as she checks out Georgie's rib cage, held by Sean Davies.

As Education Week activities were conducted at elementary schools across SD&G last week, Roxmore Public School's "option classes", held every Wednesday afternoon, took on a special significance. The classes are conducted by adult volunteers from the Avonmore and area community and the basics of first aid, cooking and handicrafts are taught to the children. Here, Mrs. Sue Chipman demonstrates some of the intricacies of macrame to three students.

FRIENDLINESS IS OUR TRADEMARK

Dear Ann Landers

Dear Ann:
A recent column made me furious. I refer to the one in which you upbraided women for wearing flimsy negligees in elevators of high-rise buildings, to and from laundry rooms. Your insinuation that they were "looking for trouble" was enough to turn my stomach.

You, of all people, should know that rape has nothing to do with attire. It is the by-product of a sick society which regards women as sex objects and vulnerable playthings. Many rape victims are housewives who are attacked in their homes, in broad daylight, while fully clothed, minding their own business.

How paradoxical that the very women who are encouraged by advertising and the media to look sexy and behave seductively are also expected to clamp on their chastity belts and combat boots when they do downstairs to do the laundry. Your suggestion that more modest apparel will rescue them from trouble is nonsense.

Raped Elsewhere

Dear Elsewhere:
Granted, most rapes are acts of hostility, related to ANOTHER female, not the one attacked - and most rapists are mentally unbalanced. BUT, sexy and provocative attire just might trigger something in a man's head that could excite him sexually.

Many experts will not agree, which is OK with me because I'm beginning to rely more on logic and common sense than on the double-dome material put out by the "experts".

Dear Ann Landers:
I'm a 15-year-old male. My problem is too much kissing. Ever since I was born, my parents have kissed me to pieces. I love them a lot but I think being over-kissed has damaged my love life. I don't get a very big charge out of kissing girls. When I hear the other guys brag about the turn-on THEY get, I think something must be wrong with me.

I'm no psychiatrist, but I'm afraid too much home-style kissing has deadened me to the whole thing. Am I worrying needlessly?

Over-Smooched.

Dear O.S.:
Yes, you are. A 15-year-old kid should not expect it to be Saturday night in Sioux City every time he kisses a girl.

There's a big difference between being kissed by Mom and Dad and the romantic variety. One has nothing to do with the other. So stop worrying and give yourself a few more years, Bub.

Dear Ann Landers:
My "special friend" passed away three years ago. He was married and had grown children. I've always had good jobs and paid my own bills. When my friend died, his wife got everything.

We spent three evenings a week together so she must have known he had an outside interest.

The problem: I visit this man's grave every few weeks and there is no headstone. I'd like to put one up but no one must know I did it. Is this possible?

Sweet Memories

Dear Sweet:
Unless his wife is an idiot she will guess who "did it."

Do yourself and the man's family a favor and leave his grave alone. If you have some money you don't know what to do with, make a donation to a worthy charity in his name.

Flood-weary want help

BERWICK (Staff) - Flood-weary Matilda Township farmers are determined to find out who has the responsibility for municipal drain installation.

The farmers have met with the Matilda Township Council and will continue their answer-seeking mission at 8pm Thursday when they meet with the executive of the South Nation River Conservation Authority at the SNRCA office here.

The farmers want to learn first hand the status of a scheme to dredge the South Nation River which was first proposed 30 years ago.

Every spring, the concerned Matilda farmers have most - in some cases all - of their land under water and they're claiming municipal drain programs do more harm than good.

A petition objecting to proposed drainage projects has been presented to Matilda Township Council and Reeve George Cooper is worried now that a pro-drain faction will present a counter-petition.

The farmers say the South Nation River can't handle the existing water flow and will be even more overtaxed if additional drains are approved.

They say the cart was put in front of the horse by building drains before dredging the river. SNRCA chairman Cecil MacNabb, a former Winchester Township reeve, agrees that drainage in Matilda and other municipalities has been done backwards.

The problem, however, is only curable by an estimated $15-million dredging program for the river.

Municipalities crossed by the South Nation River are prepared to contribute 10 per cent of the cost but it was municipal bickering over cost-sharing that prevented launching of the project several years ago when the federal and provincial governments had pledged the remaining 90 per cent.

Over the years, the senior governments have changed their stand and Mr. MacNabb says n order to revive the project, the 32 municipalities belonging to the authority have agreed to share equally 10 per cent of the cost - if senior governments can be persuaded to pick up 90 per cent.

The old arrangement called for the largest contribution from municipalities with the most to gain from alleviated flooding and one of those is Matilda Township.

Village of Chesterville

FINANCIAL STATEMENT

for the year ended December 31st, 1976

The Members of Council,
Inhabitants and Ratepayers of the Corporation of the Village of Chesterville

We have examined the 1976 financial statements of the Corporation of the Village of Chesterville and its local boards, which are listed on the attached index. Our examination included a general review of the accounting procedures and such tests of accounting records and other supporting evidence as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion, these financial statements present fairly the financial position of the Corporation of the Village of Chesterville and its local boards as at December 31, 1976, and the results of their operations for the year then ended, in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted for Ontario municipalities applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Improving garden productivity

It's no secret that Canadians are becoming energy-conscious. Also it is common knowledge that home production of garden produce has increased spectacularly in the past two years. What steps can we take, not just to maintain but to increase the present level of garden production?

One obvious means for improving the productive level of the garden is by improving the plants -- that is, better varieties. Seed firms fill this need by vying for our interest in new garden improvements. Not always are we satisfied with the performance of some new, highly promoted tomato or rose variety, but generally, the advertised new sorts are better in one or more respects than those they will replace. So by all means, continue to seek an increased value from your garden through the use of new varieties.

The second means used to improve the garden is the more important; it is by improving the soil itself. Several methods come to mind: by adding fertilizer, by adding a mulch of some kind, and by improving the facility for adding water when this is in short supply. These are indeed important techniques, but before they are undertaken, we should consider the conditions that relate, for example, to whether or not garden plants are going to benefit from additional soil fertility.

We need to know what sort of basic soil structure we are dealing with. Has it been impoverished by lack of care and over-production to where the organic matter has been depleted? If so, not only may it lack percolation ability for water and the natural soil nutrient solution, but a compacted, poorly managed soil may even interfere with normal root growth.

There are at least some steps any gardener may use to maximize his or her gardening efforts.

First, have a soil test done. Send or take about a half pint of garden soil, taken as a composite topsoil sample from several sites in the garden, to the Soil Testing Laboratory, Ontario Agricultural College, University of Guelph. Inform the laboratory of your intention to use the soil for general garden use. They will provide information on the present nutritional and acidity status of your soil, and will offer recommendations for improvement. It may take some time to get these results, however, since agricultural samples have first priority in the laboratory.

Next, take steps annually to add organic matter to your garden soil. Each growing season means that normal microbial activity in the soil "burns up" the organic components in the soil. Your management program should aim to replace the used-up organic matter. Better still, add a little surplus each year, which will improve the physical, as well as the chemical, condition of your garden's growing medium.

Thirdly, if the organic matter is increased, there may be little or no need for adding chemical fertilizers. However, if the soil has been heavily cropped with little attention to improvement practices, the quickest and most effective way to put in good heart is to add a chemical fertilizer as well as incorporating stable manure, compost, lawn clippings or other source of organic matter. A good recommendation for such a fertilizer application is a 5-20-20 formula, with 2.5 pounds of this mixture evenly distributed over each 100 square feet of garden and dug in to spade depth, preferably a week or so before planting. It may be that your soil test results will provide a more precise recommendation, in which case this should be followed.

Gardening, like any other activity dealing with climate and biology, will require frequent doses of good judgement and common sense. For instance, just what is a "little surplus" of organic matter? We learn to rely heavily on our own observations and the results of year-to-year operation. Using these, and paying attention to the few steps enumerated above, will make your healthful gardening exercise pay big dividents - dividends in food and beauty and self-satisfaction.

Pre-plan garden

Are you thinking of planting a vegetable garden this summer? If you are, with hopes of home freezing or canning the crops, be sure to plan your garden with two things in mind. First, make sure the produce will freeze well or that you have the equipment to can it safely. Second, be certain that you will be able to use the grown quantity within a year of preserving.

According to food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food, it seemed that everyone with a garden grew zucchini last summer. And it grew beautifully in vast quantities. Then the problem arose. Many people wanted to know how to preserve it as there was no way they could eat such quantities within the recommended storage time of one week. "We advised them to freeze the zucchini slices after blanching for three minutes," say the food specialists. "But we warned that it wouldn't be like fresh zucchini." This is because fresh zucchini has a high moisture content - as do cucumbers and lettuce - and loses its crispness in the freezing process.

Home canning of all vegetables requires processing in a pressure canner. The hot water bath is not safe for canning any vegetables - including zucchini; and vegetables with a high moisture content often become mushy when canned. Consequently, it was not wise to plant great numbers of zucchini for home preservation.

The other thing to remember is to plant according to your needs, and to how much you can use. Guesstimate according to pattern. Let's assume your family of four eats peas once a week, plant only enough to give you 52 pounds of peas when frozen, plus of course some for eating fresh. If you'll serve corn every four weeks, plant for a crop of about 52 cobs plus what you'll serve company and eat fresh.

Hexline thrives on neglect

Baby's Tears, or Hexline, is one of those plants that seems to thrive on neglect or improper care, says Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food Horticulturist R.A. Fleming.

This plant, which is also called Japanese or Irish moss, has very small leaves, low growth and a creeping nature.

Baby's Tears prefers a humid environment, but direct sunlight is not necessary. And because this plant thrives in cool, moist, moderately lighted environments, it is a favorite kitchen plant. Most kitchens will have enough light to ensure good growth, and cooking helps keep the humidity high.

A small, shallow azelea pot set in a pan of water is ideal for Baby's Tears. According to Mr. Fleming, a good coarse-textured soil will produce the optimum growth.

Use your head when planting a tree

That title does not mean that you should use your head instead of the shovel to plant a tree, but it does mean that planting a tree is a fairly simple operation, -- so simple that many people have trouble establishing one. Mainly it requires a little common sense for success.

A garden center operator's biggest complaint on returned dead trees is that in most cases the customer simply dug a hole and stuck the tree in without too much thought for the tree or what conditions it was expected to survive in. Trees are living things and while they can stand a lot of abuse there are a few rules that should be used to ensure success.

Most trees do not do well in either poorly drained locations or in heavy compacted clay. This does not mean, though, that if your yard is composed of poorly drained, heavy compacted clay soil that you cannot grow trees. You can! There will be a little heavy digging to do, but with proper preplanting preparation, trees will grow in most locations.

On heavy clay soils, particularly in new subdivisions where the soil has been compacted by machines, the existing soil should be removed from the planting site. Dig the hole larger than the root system. A good rule of thumb is a hole 18 inches deep and 18 inches in diameter. However, the larger the tree, the larger the hole is needed. The hole is then filled with good, well-mixed top soil. Where drainage is a problem, dig the hole even deeper and add six to eight inches of stones or crushed rock. This will provide some drainage for the tree. This preplanting preparation is very important in establishing a tree. It gets the tree off to a good start and once it is growing well it will thrive even in clay.

In sandy soils, the preparation is not as important as they often are well drained and do not compact. However, mixing the soil from the planting site 50-50 with peat moss benefits the tree by increasing the water-holding capacity of the soil.

If the sites have been properly prepared, the type and size of the tree selected is not important. Most varieties will do well. Many people prefer to purchase fairly large trees which gives the effect of instant landscaping. This is quite satisfactory but it is expensive. They do withstand more physical abuse than a small tree and in many situations this is desirable.

But if cost is a factor, a small tree will be very satisfactory; in fact, a small tree is much easier to establish than a large one. Because there is less root damage when the tree is dug and less foliage to sustain after transplanting, a small tree will grow much quicker than a large one. With good conditions, it will outgrow it within a short period of time. Therefore, the size of tree you select is not important but do be sure that it has a healthy appearance and it has a good root system.

Trees are sold at the garden centers by three methods. In the early spring, before the leaves appear, you will receive them with no soil on the roots or "bare root". After the leaves appear, they will either be sold in a plastic, fiber or wood container or balled and burlapped (B & B). Planting the tree for all three methods is basically the same but for each there are some small variations.

Regardless of how the tree is purchased, it should be planted as quickly as possible. If there is a delay, store the plants in a cool location and keep the soil ball or roots moist until planting time. Never let the roots dry out.

In planting the tree dig the hole deep enough so that the tree is planted at the same depth or slightly deeper than it was in the nursery. This is easily detected by a ring on the trunk of the tree. Center the tree in the hole and start replacing the top soil. If the tree was received in a container, particularly plastic, this should be removed carefully so as not to disturb the root ball. The burlap on a B&B tree does not need to be removed but after the soil has been partially replaced in the hole the burlap around the trunk should be loosened and rolled back.

As the soil is being replaced, be sure that the soil is firm around the roots. With bare root trees, the tree should be shaken gently as the soil is replaced to avoid air spaces around the roots. This can be done with the hands or the foot but use a little discretion as too much pressure can break roots and this is to be avoided. Once the soil is firmly around the roots, soak it well and the tree is ready to grow.

A question that gardeners often ask is--"Should I fertilize the tree at planting time?" If good top soil is used, the tree should not need to be fertilized. Some gardeners still like to use it and in this situation it should be applied after the tree is planted. Never place fertilizer in the bottom of the hole!! This could cause the roots to burn and kill the tree.

Staking the tree is the last operation that should be considered. If a small tree is planted this might be necessary but if a large tree is planted, it is very important. Until the tree is firmly anchored high winds will cause the tree to move in the ground and this will have a detrimental effect on the tree's ability to become established. Where the single stake method is used, the stake should be placed before the roots are covered. This avoids damaging the roots. It should also be located on the side of the prevailing winds to reduce the chance of the tree rubbing on the stake.

Now all that remains to be done is watch the tree grow and dream of relaxing in the shade. Of course, you should water it regularly during the first year and keep the kids pets and lawn mowers away from it. These latter three hazards can sometimes be the most destructive factors in establishing a tree.

Nitrogen- most essential

The fertilizers commonly used on lawns contain three plant nutrients -- nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium -- and are sometimes termed "complete fertilizers". The concentration of these nutrients in the fertilizer is given by the numbers which occur on the fertilizer bag, indicating the fertilizer grade or analysis. Common examples are 10-6-4, and 7-7-7. The first number refers to the percentage of nitrogen (percentage N), the second to the percentage of phosphorus (percentage P205), and the third to the percentage of potassium (percentage K20).

Nitrogen is the most essential nutrient for the growth of grass and as a result generally controls the rate at which a fertilizer is applied. Nitrogen imparts the rich green color which is so desirable in a turf in addition to increasing the thickness of the sod through increased tillering. Nitrogen also stimulates the growth of the grass resulting in more frequent mowing.

While phosphorus and potassium are also required by grass species, their requirement is adequately met by most commercial lawn fertilizers. Continued use of a complete fertilizer, coupled with leaving the clippings on the surface, however, can build up the soil test in a few years to a level where only nitrogen is required for two of the three yearly applications of fertilizer.

Nitrogen should be applied at a rate of 1.5 to 2 pounds of nitrogen (N) per 1,000 square feet per application. This rate of application would require 15 to 20 pounds of 10-6-4, or 21 to 28 pounds of 7-7-7 (rate of application of N x 100, divided by the N analyses). The first application should be made in late April or early May followed by a second application in early to mid June. The third application is made in early September.

What's in it for your lawn?

When a lawn is in a good state of phosphorus and potassium nutrition, a fertilizer containing only nitrogen may be used for two of the three applications. Most pure nitrogen fertilizers (34-0-, 46-0-0) must be applied with care and thoroughly watered in as they can cause severe burn to grass foliage. The rate of application of 34-0-0 would be 4.5 to 5.9 pounds of material per 1,000 square feet per application.

Watering, weed, insect and disease control are also important factors in good lawn care. A good, systematic fertilizer program however will provide a healthy, vigorous turf which will be more resistant to shortages of water or infestations of lawn pests.

Fluoridated water harmful to houseplants

Fluoridated water, used in many Ontario municipalities to benefit dental health, can be harmful to some houseplants, says Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist John Hughes. Spider plants, palms, and lilies are particularly sensitive to fluoridated water.

Damage resulting from fluoridated water first appears as burned tips at the ends of the leaves of the plant. To help prevent this type of damage, Mr. Hughes advises indoor gardeners to maintain even soil moisture at all times. Caution must be taken, however, not to overwater the plant.

Low humidity and high temperatures will increase the amount of damage. Mist the plant to help keep the leaves from drying out. Temperatures of more than 25 degrees C (80 degrees F) will cause stress to the plant, and will also increase the transpiration rate causing the plant to draw up more water.

Other methods of reducing damage from fluoridated water include keeping calcium levels high, and maintaining a soil ph (or acidity) level of above 6.5. However, these methods are difficult for the average indoor gardener.

If damage from fluoridated water persists despite these precautions, Mr. Hughes advises using distilled water for plants sensitive to fluoride.

Strawberries easy to grow, require little space

Looking for a plant which produces delicious fruit, is ornamental, requires little space, and is easy to grow in your garden? You can't beat strawberries! Just thinking of the delicateflavoras a freshly picked berry melts in your mouth sets taste buds watering. Also, berries are delightful from your freezer as winter winds whistle outside, or as sprightly jam on a hot piece of toast.

Strawberries can be grown anywhere in Ontario. A bed 25 feet by two feet can give 20 to 25 quarts. You don't have that much space you say! Then, consider an everbearing variety for your flower border or window box. The glossy green plants, abundance of white flowers and red fruit are all attractive.

Of the regular or June-bearing varieties, 'Veestar' is the best for home gardens. 'Vibrant' is also good. They start to ripen in mid-June at Vineland. 'Bounty' is a good variety ripening one to two weeks later. 'Sparkle', an old variety, performs well, especially in northern Ontario. These varieties all bear over a three-week period. Everbearing varieties such as 'Centennial' bear a light crop in late June, and fruit again from August until freezing weather. However, the total crop is often no greater than for June-bearers.

Pick a sunny location with well-drained soil. Planting on raised beds helps if the soil is poorly drained. Work plenty of organic matter into the soil, preferably in the fall. Also, work in one to one and one half pounds of 10-20-20 fertilizer per 100 square feet several days before planting.

Plant in the spring as soon as the ground can be prepared. Use 'certified' plants. Information about them is available from the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food. The depth of planting is very important. After the soil has been firmed around the plant, the middle of the crown should be level with the soil surface. Water after planting.

Set plants eight to 12 inches apart. Remove new plants formed from 'runners' during the summer. A few weeks after planting, blossoms appear. With June-bearers, a few berries can be allowed to develop, but a full crop is not produced until the second summer. With everbearing varieties, remove all blossoms until mid-July. The plants will then bear in late summer and fall.

For larger areas of June-bearers, set plants two feet apart in rows four feet apart. Allow new plants produced from runners to fill out the row. Space the runner plants six to eight inches apart. For these it is best to remove flowers produced the first year.

Water plants during prolonged dry periods in the summer. For winter protection, mulch with straw after two or three good frosts in the late fall. Remove most of the straw in late April or early May.Leave some around the plants to keep berries clean.

Plants bloom in late May and June. Cover them on frosty nights to prevent injury of blossoms. During the period berries are developing, plants need about one inch of water a week (from rain or your tap), but don't overwater.

Healthy, vigorous plants can be kept for several years. After the last picking in July, apply one to one and one-half pounds of 10-10-10 fertilizer per 100 square feet. Spread it over the plants when the foliage is dry and brush it off. Water plants if the soil is dry. Leave the original plants and remove any new runners which form. Mulch with straw again in the late fall.

More information on growing strawberries in home gardens is available from offices of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Weather controls the fate

April is the time when our anticipation for spring flowers is at its keenest. However, I have seen some pretty rough Aprils, so let's take into consideration what the weather has to offer and not really go by what the calendar says. The wise gardener keeps and "eye" to the weather and works with it.

Transplanting time is usually April for such dormant stock as roses, trees and shrubs. It's too early to transplant out-doors those vegetables and annuals you've started indoors. But you should visit your favourite nursery to select trees and shrubs you require to add extra beauty to your home.

Nothing makes a house more of a home than a shade tree or two properly placed to get the most shade around your home. Trees to consider would be birch and maples. There is a most beautiful maple which I favor often overlooked by home owners; the most beautiful "Three Colored Tree", the "Shwedler". It's not really expensive - about $20.00 for a ten to twelve foot specimen. In the spring, as the foliage appears, it's red, then as the leaves mature, they turn green, and finally in the fall, a most beautiful golden color - so it's my "Three Colored Tree".

One point to keep in mind, never plant any tree deeper into prepared soil than the tree growing in the nursery. This is especially a rule to follow if you are thinking of planting a Mountain Ash. You'll see the mark around the tree trunk where it was growing in the nursery, and that's as deep as it should be when placed on your property.

Don't let roots of trees, shrubs or roses dry out. Place them in a bucket of water and while you're at it, add a tablespoon of Pink Vigoro fertilizer so the roots can absorb it and remove the shock of transplanting. Then what's left in the bucket may be poured around the plant to give it a faster start. Plant right - dig a good deep hole and feed.

If lawns have not been given their spring feeding, better get this done. This really is most beneficial to the lawns good growth all summer long. Do, please, follow the directions on the bag. It took a lot of research to determine just how much of the product you should use.

Crabgrass

This "Old Bugaboo" usually appears and starts growing before the lilacs come into bloom. However, a lawn needn't be the home of this unwanted weed, and once established and allowed to grow on, creates problems. The first year you'll have a little of it. Then as it matures in the fall and if controls haven't been applied, they produce thousands of seeds that will blast, not only on your lawn, but your neighbors as well. My recommendations are to use crabgrass controls at a time when it is going to do the most good.

If you have lilacs or Mockorange in your property, get down Vigoro Crabgrass Preventer before either is in flower. Be sure to spread it evenly over the entire turf area. No point in putting a little here and there; it's a waste of time, energy and money. So for the best control of crabgrass, apply it at the proper time, and you and your lawn will be happy.

Spraying

Not a bad idea to spray delphiniums with insecticide and fungicide to keep insects and fungi from your plants. Have a real good April and let's make Canada beautiful in gardening.

If you have any questions, write to me at the Garden Information Centre, 165 University Avenue, Toronto, Ontario M5H 3B8, enclosing a stamped self addressed envelope.

Tests prove insecticides act as fertilizer in cases

It's said that every cloud has a silver lining, and recent work at the Agriculture Canada Research Institute here shows that at least one common pesticide is no exception.

As well as effectively and safely controlling bugs, a carbamate insecticide may actually enhance plant growth under certain conditions.

T.T. Lee, a biochemist at the research institute, started to investigate various scientific reports that certain insecticides affected plant growth. There were instances of yield increase in corn, radish, and rutabaga in some locations after the carbamate insecticide was applied.

"We have proved that some metabolites of a carbamate insecticide exert direct effects on plants," Dr. Lee says.

Metabolites are produced when the insecticide breaks down during biochemical processes in plants and soil. Dr. Lee tested five metabolites of the insecticide, and found three stimulated plant growth.

"Some of these metabolites interact with a plant growth hormone and we believe this is the reason for growth stimulation." Dr. Lee says. "In plants, enzymes break down growth hormones, but the metabolites of the carbamate insecticide inhibit the enzymic reaction, thus preserving the plant growth hormone at a critical level required for growth stimulation."

But to increase yields by affecting the plant's growth hormone is not simply a matter of applying the insecticide at any time.

"There is a link between the time of application and the effect on the plant," the biochemist says. "The growth hormone must be active and at a critical level in the plant when the metabolites of the insecticide become available at the active site."

While his finding with carbamates is a recent advance, Dr. Lee has spent the past five years studying insecticide-plant interactions, adding to man's knowledge of environmental changes caused by chemicals added to the plant-soil environment.

His early work centered on some vinyl organophosphorus insecticides.

"One vinyl organophosphorus insecticide retards plant growth by interfering with the functions of cell membranes in the plant," Dr. Lee says.

Your pocket calculator indicates cheap seed is rarely a bargain

A big sack of flour will always go farther than a small sack. And 10 gallons of gas will take you farther than six. Why then isn't a big box of grass seed always a better buy than a smaller box?

First of all, size and weight of the package doesn't tell a thing about how many seeds it contains. And since each square foot of lawn area being seeded should get a fairly standard number of seeds, the more seeds in the package, the greater the lawn area it covers.

There are many kinds and varieties of grass seed, with widely varying weights and sizes. For example, a ryegrass seed weighs about six times as much as a bluegrass seed. A pound of bluegrass, therefore, contains about six times as many seeds, and thus covers more ground.

For this reason, it's very possible (and quite common) that a relatively large package of grass seed might cover only 500 sq. ft. while a smaller box weighing less might cover 2500 sq. ft.

Most (but not all) grass seed packages indicate the lawn area its contents will cover. By dividing that figure into the purchase price, and then multiply by 1000, you can get the cost per 1000 sq. ft. of lawn coverage.

An unknowing purchaser of a bigger, heavier box of "cheap" seed sometimes ends up paying about three times more on a square foot basis.

But that's only part of the story. What kind of plants the contents will grow or not grow is, in the long run, the truest measure of value received.

Will the grasses be perennial (long-lasting), or will some or all be annual (die out after a year or two)? Will they be fine-textured, or coarse? Deep green, or pale green? Flexible in adapting to natural conditions, or limited to a narrow environment? Able to withstand adversity well, or more likely to "cave-in" when the going gets rough?

Much of this kind of comparison is difficult to tell from the label. That's why unknown brands are riskier than a brand with a reputation. And why the newer superior performing exclusive seed varieties are good things to look for in the analysis printed on the seed package.

Many packages, especially the so-called "bargains", contain seeds that never should be introduced into a home lawn. These are known as "crop" seed, a catchall classification for anything grown commercially by farmers, but which is an undesirable problem plant in a lawn. Even a small percentage can bring trouble that might take years to eliminate.

Ontario horticulturist claims Geranium requires little care

The versatile geranium is one of the most popular garden flowers because it will bloom all summer long with little attention.

R.F. Gomme, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist, says it is easy to take cuttings from over-wintered geraniums to replenish the supply for this year's garden.

The traditional method of over-wintering geraniums was to hang the plants in a cool, dark place in the fall. In early spring the plants were potted, watered and cut back. After the new growth began, the plants were replanted in the garden.

Mr. Gomme says a more vigorous plant can be produced by taking cuttings from these over-wintered plants.

He suggests watering the old plants and taking six-inch long cuttings when the new shoots grow.

Remove the lower leaves from the cutting and dip the end in a fungicide such as Captan. Plant the cuttings about two inches deep and two inches apart in a six-inch flower pot.

Mr. Gomme advises using a soil mixture of coarse sand mixed with peat moss or vermiculite. Water the soil mixture thoroughly and place the container in a clear plastic bag under a lighting unit or in a window protected from direct sunlight.

Once the cuttings have rooted apply a week fertilizer. The cuttings should be ready for transplanting in about one month.

Geraniums can also be grown from seed. However, if you have a strain of geranium you like, cuttings are best.

Geraniums are available in a range of colors including red, pink and white and are attractive in patio pots or window boxes.

Mowing lawn grass only for appearance

Once the choice of a mower has been made, it is important that the cutting edges be kept sharp. If this is not done, the dull cutting edges tend to break and shatter the grass blades. This eventually leads to a graying and subsequent browning of the grass tips.

Mowing is done for the sake of appearance only. While there may be some advantage in encouraging rhizomous grasses to spread out, the cutting removes a portion of the food producing part of the plant; this disturbs the normal growth pattern. To minimize this upset, no more than one-third of the leaf blade should be removed in any one cutting.

All too often people mow a lawn incorrectly and too low. There is no reason to cut most lawn grass any shorter than two inches. Thus the grass should be cut when it is three inches tall.

Some very fine turfs, such as those on golf or bowling greens, made form bent grasses are cut very short and quite frequently.

If desired a Merion bluegrass lawn may be cut down to a height of one an a half inches. This will mean cutting when the grass is about two and a quarter inches tall. Since the closer one mows, the less is taken off at each cut and the frequency of cutting must be increased. For this reason, cutting when the grass is three inches tall and removing one inch is strongly suggested.

If vacation takes you away for an extended period of time and on your return you find tall grass awaiting, do not cut right down to two inches. Only take off one-third of the growth. In two or three days cut again.

If frequent mowing is practised, the short clippings do not have to be removed. They will act as a mulch, provide organic matter and return some plant food to the soil. Where the clippings are long, however, they should be removed to prevent smothering of the grass.

Whether you remove the clippings or not you probably should still use a verti-mower or power rake for thatch removal. Thatch is not just a buildup of clippings. It is tightly intermingled layer of dead and living stems and roots that develops between the soil surface and the grass blade. Some amount of thatch is desirable since it adds to resiliency of the turf, increases the wear tolerance and aids in insulating the soil against extreme temperature changes.

Thatch provides an ideal environment for the development of disease organisms and insects, localized dry spots, proneness to scalping as well as decreased heat, cold and drought resistance. Once the thatch layer reaches a half an inch on a Kentucky bluegrass sod steps must be taken to reduce the problem.

The best time to use a vertical mower, or power rake, is in the late summer. Early spring, before the initiation of grass growth is also a good time - probably the most common time. After vertical mowing the lawn will look rough for a week or two, but will soon come back and with an improved appearance.

Lawns cut with a power rotary-mower sometimes develop a series of wavelike ridges which run at right angles to the direction of the cut. To avoid this appearance each cutting should be made at right angles to the previous one.

If at all possible alternate your direction of cut each time you cut, no matter what type of mower you use. This will prevent the grass from developing a lean in one direction.

Do not mow wet grass. It is not only easier to cut dry grass and not clog the mower, but this leads to a finer appearing lawn

Old practice rediscovered

The use of a mulch is an old practice intended primarily to conserve mositure by preventing the soil near the surface from drying out. This was probably discovered years ago by prehistoric man as he or she scraped away some litter and found that the soil beneath had not dried out. But whenever this discovery was made, it is likely that it happened independently in many parts of the world because we know that the practice of using a mulch has been in use since long before recorded history.

Just what are the benefits of using a mulch? First of all the soil beneath an effective mulch does not dry out so that there are fewer checks in growth during the growing season. Most garden plants have a large proportion of their roots in the soil layer near the surface. If this layer remains moist, more roots will continue to grow and the whole plant will benefit.

Secondly, the soil temperature can be controlled to some extent. In winter the soil temperature under a mulch about fruit trees and ornamental shrubs will be higher than the temperature at the same depth in an area where the ground is bare. In late winter and early spring, damage caused by alternate freezing and thawing can be reduced as the soil temperature will not fluctuate as much. Another advantage is that the soil under a paper or plastic mulch will be warmer in early spring. These additional heat units will encourage growth of transplants in their early stages of development and thus ensure larger more productive plants.

Another benefit derived from the use of a mulch is the control of weeds. This has, however, frequently been overemphasized. The amount of weed control provided will depend upon the depth of mulch applied and the kind of material used. The application of straw or bedding must be heavy to control annual weeds. Established perennial weeds will usually grow through such a mulch. Sawdust can be effective but added nitrogen is needed as the organisms responsible for its breakdown require nitrogen and its use will reduce the amount available to the garden plants. Chipped bark does not break down so quickly and tends to remain in place.

Under some conditions a mulch may add to the weed control problem since cultivation will not be possible. If a few weeds grow through the mulch it may be practical to pull them out by hand. If there are a large number, a non-selective herbicide like paraquat (GRAMOXONE) or, for the home gardener the mixture of paraquat and diquat (WEEDRITE or WEED-BAN) may be used.

A recent development is a paper mulch. This is a heavy paper with a thin plastic coating which extends its life through most of the growing season. The paper or coating is usually a dark color so that it tends to absorb heat from sunlight and warms the soil beneath. Plastic or polyethylene films have also been used with encouraging results.

Is it better to spring-feed a lawn before the first mowing - or after?

This is a question commonly asked. But it's a little like that old chestnut, "Have you stopped beating your wife?" It's a trap. If you say "After," you fly in the face of well-informed practice. But if you say "Before" you seem to imply that that is the only feeding a lawn needs.

A prominent non-commercial authority says flatly, "Fertilizing before the grass starts its normal growth in the spring will produce stronger roots and a turf better equipped to survive adverse conditions." We agree completely. However, it really doesn't answer the question - and wasn't intended to.

The only sensible answer: If you are going to feed your lawn but once during spring, any time is good but the earlier the better. Far more productive, however, are two spring feedings - the first before mowing starts, the second in late spring.

The early feeding helps the grass green up as early as possible. The second feeding helps it build new vegetative growth, a valuable asset during the challenging summer months ahead.

Moreover, this two-step spring feeding program encourages grass to multiply itself, resulting in denser, more weed-resistant turf.

"What kind of fertilizer?": Should you use a straight fertilizer, or one which also provides weed control? The choice really depends on individual needs and goals. If weed control is desirable, a weed-and-feed product will save spreading time, and also money (the combination product costs less than the components bought separately). If weed control is not wanted, then straight fertilizer should be used.

In any case, the use of a slow-release source of nitrogen is important. Rapid release fertilizers stimulate more upright growth then is desirable, resulting in extra mowing; and the grass plant can be weakened by growing too rapidly and by having too much leaf area cut off at one time.

Garden work easier with proper tools

Gardening is much easier when tools are in good working order, says R.F. Gomme, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist.

"If you didn't prepare your garden tools last fall, now is the time to clean, recondition and repair them."

Metal parts should be cleaned with steel wool to remove the rust. Rub all metal parts with an oily cloth to prevent further decay.

Mr. Gomme says edges of shovels, hoes, spades and lawn mower blades can be sharpened easily with a file.

"Lawn mowers will use less fuel and will be more efficient if they are well maintained."

To get your lawn mower back in good working order, first wash the visible parts with kerosene or fuel oil to remove the dirt, grease, oil or clippings that may have accumulated last season.

Remove the air cleaner and clean it according to the manufacturer's instructions. Drain dirty oil from the crankcase and replace with fresh oil of the proper weight.

Clean or replace spark plugs. Check the blade with the spark plug wire disconnected, and sharpen the blade out of balance.

Mr. Goome also suggests washing all plastic garden tools such as hoses, and storing them out of direct sunlight.

"Simple care and maintenance of garden tools now can save a great deal of time once the gardening season begins," he says.

Prepare soil now

Now is the time to begin preparing your garden soil for the coming season, says T.J. Blom, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist.

"It is important to make sure your soil is in good condition before sowing vegetable or flower seeds."

Good soil drainage is one of the most important factors. If the soil is of the clay type, add strawy manure and sand to improve water and air movement through the soil. Sandy soils tend to dry out quickly and require the addition of peat moss to increase the water-holding capacity.

To determine the fertilizer requirements of your soil, Mr. Blom advises taking soil samples for testing. A soil test will check levels of phosphorous, potassium, magnesium and pH in the soil.

Soils that are too acidic require the addition of about five lbs. of limestone per 100 square feet.

"Late fall or early spring is good time to spread some manure on the garden," says Mr. Blom.

"If using swine or cow manure apply about 30 bushels per 1,000 sq. ft. If you use poultry manure, apply about seven bushels per 1,000 sq. ft."

If manure is used, it is not necessary to apply chemical fertilizer.

Mr. Blom suggests rototilling the soil or turning it under as soon as it is dry enough to work.

Weeds, particularly those which propagate by root, should be removed from the soil before planting begins.

Strawberry production decentralized

The strawberry industry in Ontario is decentralizing, says Dr. Lew Ricketson, horticulture researcher for the Ontario Minstry of Agriculture and Food.

Traditionally, strawberries were grown primarily in the Norfolk and Niagara regions. Now 20 percent of the Ontario crop is grown in Middlesex, Elgin, Lambton, Huron and Oxford counties.

According to Dr. Ricketson, the main reason for the decentralization is the general trend from the shipping and processing of strawberries to pick-your-own near centers of population. In the early 60s, one-third of Ontario strawberries went to processing. Now less than 3 percent of the crop goes to processing plants.

Although the bearing strawberry acreage has remained stable at about 2,000 acres since 1976, yield per acre has increased. Dr. Ricketson says 11.5 million quarts of strawberries were produced in Ontario in 1976.

the farmer's wife

by wyn thompson

Last week found me sitting in the spectator's gallery at Queen's Park. The Honorable Roy McMurtry, attorney-general, was speaking on the subject of Freedom of Information legislation.

Twenty-five honorable members were in their seats, two of which were of the ruling power. We were pleased to see that our member was one of the ones present at this Fourth Session of the Thirtieth Parliament.

The Farmer found the name of his uncle James A. Sanderson recorded as a member of the 18th Parliament 1929-1934 and the names of others from our area recorded for history's sake for all time. It gave one a good sense of the feeling of history as one walked about those hallowed halls.

Floyd Laughren, NDP Nickel Belt, delivered an impassioned plea for the North noting that the north had a new Ministry and a new Minster the Hon. Leo Bernier, I pointed my ears because he had so recently been our Minister.

The session over, we re-entered the world of spring and sauntered back to the hotel and swam and swam and swam. As was the case the evening before, we had one swimming companion, a boy of about fourteen, from all the inhabitants or guests of such a large hotel.

We humans demand so much but an analysis of use, perhaps, as in the case of swimming pools in high rises, would not justify their existence but my, we did enjoy the use of this private pool.

Dressed, we decided to savor the delights of Hungarian food at the Hungarian Village on Bay Street. The cabbage rolls were, indeed, excellent, the haunting Hungarian music, refreshing. The pool was closed when we returned so we returned to the street for a long walk to again savor the delights of spring in the city.

It had been a long day. Sleep came easily. Then "Tingle, tingle, tinggggleeeY," yanked us from our beds on the 17th floor. We jumped into our clothing, grabbed our wallets, my partial denture (not necessarily in that order either), and got out. Shortly thereafter, over the intercom came the message, "This is a false alarm, please return to your rooms." Thank god!

However, on our way out, we had discovered that in Room 1724 (ours was 1721) that a man could not get out of his room. We fiddled at the door from the outside, advised him to call for assistance. Of course, all the extensions to the front desk were busy so we told him we would report his plight in case he was unable to get through while we were en route down.

We went immediately to the front desk and the Farmer said, "Did you get a call from a man in Room 1724 - he cannot get his door unlocked."

"Yes, yes," said the clerk.

However, a little red light must have gone on in his mind for we heard him call an assistant who dashed to the elevator with his belt full of keys jangling, meeting a bell hop emerging from the elevator who when queried replied, "Everything's fine" and walked on to the front door. We followed him for fresh air and being curious country folk said, "You got the man out of 1724."

"Yes, everything's okay in 824," he exclaimed.

We looked at each other and shrugged, rode the elevator back to our room and stood and looked out at the Sunoco building the inside of which the Farmer described to me, as he had been over to see his nephew who is Director of Planning and, was just pointing out to me the fact that the nephew's office was directly across from ours, when a commotion broke out in the hall almost outside our door.

We opened our door to see and hear. By this time we were beginning to feel somewhat like the Snoop Sisters. This is what we heard. "Yes, yes sir, we'll have you out shortly sir - there appears to be something wrong with your lock, sir." Weeellll, ye gods! That comment was attributed to myself.

"I'll have to go and get the master master key (I'm not sure if he was stuttering or not) but I'll be right back, sir!"

It was 1:10 a.m. - fifteen minutes after we first knew the poor bloke's lock wouldn't work. Weeeeellll now! The attendant returned and in a matter of ten or so minutes the emergency was over.

The object lesson was - be explicit in your directions - for in the keefluffel of the fire alarm Room 824 had been noted instead of 1724 or so I am assuming. Apologies were noted all around.

We returned to our room, the excitement over for the night, we hoped. However, with scenes from Arthur Hailey's HOTEL, too vivid in my mind, sleep refused to come, so I sat and wrote a letter, listened to television, and generally made a nuisance of myself to the Farmer who was ready to return to sleep.

Tomorrow, god willing and the lock on 1721 working, we will leave this exciting world of skyscrapers and fire alarms and return to the pastoral peace of poor old depressed Eastern Ontario, I thought as I dozed off.

Morning came with spring still in full bloom. Windy. Sunny. One hour after breakfast, a last swim was in order, we decided. To my query as to how could I ever be expected to swim in the weedy Rideau again, the Farmer replied, "With difficulty, as usual."

And so we look toward May, the month for dreaming. May is the mystery of blossoming. May is poetry, and it is the time to read. I always re-read Yeats in May:

"I will arise and go now, and go to Innisfree,
And a small cabin build there, of clay and wattles made;
Nine bean rows will I have there, a hive for the honey bee,
And live alone in the bee-loud glade."

Of course, I know that in May we get all kinds of weather. We often used to have to turn the furnace up high in the old house, and the next day it would be humid and hot.

One day we eat on the gallery, and the next we sit by the open fire and toast our toes. But it is apple-blossom month. All over the greening hills and along the concession roads, the old apple trees are young with pink and white drifts of bloom. There may be something lovelier in the world somewhere, but I can't think what it would be.

Playing at the Picadilly Theatre in Williamsburg this weekend is The Glass Alibi, a melodrama starring Anne Gwynne, Paul Kelly and Douglas Fowley. Also playing is Sioux City Sue, a Gene Autrey picture with seven catchy new tunes, also featuring Lynne Roberts. Easter lilies and daffodils formed a lovely setting for the annual Easter bazaar of the Women's Association of Trinity United Church, which was officially opened by Rev. E.B. Bugden in his warm and friendly manner. The guests were welcomed to the concert which preceded the event by Mrs. Bugden and Mrs. A.E. Jarvis. The toothsome goodies in the home baking booth were attractive to the eye and plate and it wasn't long before Mrs. W.O. Dixon, Mrs. Campbell Thompson, Mrs. W.A. McLaggan, Mrs. Eric Casselman, Mrs. Graham Durant and Mrs. Gerald Gilbert had sold the last of the bread, cakes and cookies and satisfied customers were taking home extra and superlative baking for their Easter meals.

the editor's notebook

ALTHOUGH THE EMPHASIS THIS WEEK is on the Ontario Progressive Conservatives as the clouds of election rumor continue to father, the Federal PCs still deserve a share of centre stage if for nothing else than that they are once again engaged in their favorite 'twixt-election game. While cabinet solidarity and keeping one's mouth shut while in public place are still the cardinal rules for the Federal Liberals' version of Blind Man's Bluff, the Tories are again engaged in what can best be described as Swallow the Leader. This year it's Joe Clark's turn to play Duncan to the party's Macbeth in the longest running national tragedy on the Canadian political scene. First it was John Diefenbaker, whose irascibility and inflexibility caused first his cabinet, then his party, to force him into "rexile". Now, Banquo-like, he haunts party gatherings. Then came Robert Stanfield - too decent and honest a man for federal politics. He was first ravaged by the press then savaged by his own advisers. Now the game regicidal tendencies are being displayed in the party's attitude to the Man from High River. Dissension in the ranks seems again ready to rob the PCs of the chance to deal with their main enemy - the Liberals. The dissension goes far beyond the Jack Horner affair which, at the most, was only a catalyst for the criticisms being levelled at the party leader. The disenchantment has spread to the party's rank and file, who are second-guessing and belittling Mr. Clark at every turn. It seems that every time someone climbs above the party herd, there's a Horner, Tom Cossitt or Diefenbaker ready to reach up and pull him back into the morass. Perhaps the Conservatives' fratricidal tendencies are symptomatic of a more serious problem. Maybe they are genuinely afraid of tackling the job of running the country and their Swallowing the Leader is the game which allows them the semblance of being a serious politicial contender without forcing them to take on the substance that such a responsibility entails. -robin morris-

Canada is one family

Families quarrel but with love and willing hearts the quarrels are resolved, because the family is important. So it is with our country with its beauty, freedom and diversity. With one of its members gone, Canada is imcomplete. It was a French Canadian, born in Quebec, who composed "O Canada".

Ingleside 'Star of the Festival'

Inside Ingleside

by Jean Jeacle

Of couse I love to talk...but lately I enjoy listening even more. It is not scandal that I am hoping to hear, however, nor any new of dreadful, hurtful happenings. Instead, I am interested in knowing that someone else's child has brass rings on her fingers and dirt rings around her neck.

When I am told that someone couldn't find a pair of runless pantyhose in the house, I grin. When I learn that someone's bright and articulate youngster acted deaf dumb and slightly retarded in front of company, I smile... and when I hear that someone else's husband never passes on messages and never believes that he didn't, then I laugh out loud and rejoice in the fact that maybe my life is normal after all.

At the dinner table, my meals sometimes flop... and my jokes always do. It is most gratifying to find out that this happens to other mothers as well.

I have sometimes felt I am the only person in the world who always has unexpected company when the house is in a mess but I was assured recently that such is not the case. This knowledge has buoyed me up for days.

It is true, indeed, that misery loves company, so if you have any little troubles, tell them to me. They will cheer me up considerably.

BITS & PIECES

- Because she cares for kids as well as music, and because her heart is big and her patience endless, my nominee for the MOST VALUABLE PERSON OF THE WEEK AWARD is Joan McEwan, coach and conductor for all our music festival entrants.

- Rothwell students did well in choral and solo sections of the Kinsman Music Festival.

Special congratulations to Jennifer Gillard, Julia Plumadore, Shelley Acres, Belinda Armstrong, Natalie Thompson, Martha Jeacle, Scott Markell, Patti McEwan, Nancy McEwan, Brian Konink, Kendall Cameron and Trevor Nickerson. They all received recognition for their solo selections.

- Donna Lynn Wells deserves a BIT & PIECE all to herself. Her mark of 94 was the highest awarded in the festival for a girl's vocal solo.

- All the choristers would like to say thank you to Alice Schultz for her work as accompanist.

- John Schultz would probably like to thank Alice too... for helping him keep the home fires buring while Dorothy was away in Toronto at the semi-annual get-together of the Provincial Board of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario.

- Daylight Saving Time is here again. Now we will have time in the evening to go for a walk and visit with our neighbours, here "Inside Ingleside."

Error

(Staff) - The Record errored in the accounts of two funerals in its April 13 issue. James McMillan was mistakenly omitted as a pallbearer in the account of the funeral of Dwayne Munroe and alf Jarvis was named as a pallbearer at the funeral of Collin Shay. Mr. Jarvis was not a bearer. The name of Howard Smith, who was a pallbearer, was omitted from the story. The Record apologizes to those concerned and hopes its errors didn't cause any embarrassment.

Channel work for Nation

CRYSLER (Staff) - The South Nation River Conservation Authority will be undertaking channel improvement work here early this summer.

Ken Musclow, SNRCA Resources Manager, said Friday housekeeping chores on the south Nation River below the Crysler bridge will probably start in June when the water level is down.

He called the work routine with Finch Township work crews employed and the municipality reimbursed financially for cleaning out sandbars, small islands and trees and that block the normal flow of the water.

This year the SNRCA budgeted $50,000 for improvement work on the river in Finch and Matilda Townships and tributary work on the Scotch River in Kenyon Township, Caledonia Brook in Caledonia Township and Castor Creek in Osgoode Township. There will be emergency land slip work in other municipalities.

Eight receive County Honors

(SPECIAL)—The 4-H Homemaking project "Consider Your Clothes" drew to a close Saturday for about 60 Dundas East 4-H club members at North Dundas District High School.

Each member had to complete a record book, as well as a blouse co-ordinated with her existing wardrobe. These projects were on display for the public to see in the afternoon and all agreed the girls had done a terrific job and many were able to get new ideas for their wardrobes.

One part of the afternoon program was the presentation of five skits - and three exhibits. The exhibits were presented by:- Chesterville, with Janice McCadden commenting; Williamsburg, with Anne Lortie acting as commentator, and Winchester Number Two with Rhonda McKee commenting. The skits were presented by Winchester Springs, Riverside Heights, Morewood, Winchester Number Three and Ormond. All members in each of these clubs acted as participants in each of the skits.

Each of the girls was also required to model the blouse she had made.

The remainder of the afternoon consisted of the presentation of awards. One very special award was presented to Mrs. Betty McIntosh of Chesterville for the five years of leadership she has given to the 4-H Homemaking Clubs.

Provincial Honor certificate and pin was presented to Nancy Stewart, from the Ormond Club, for successfully completing 12 projects. Eight girls received County Honor pins and certificates for successfully completing six projects. They were Leona Moss, Chesterville, Janet Hunter, Morewood, Cheryl Erratt, Heather Hart and Brenda Henophy - all from the Riverside Heights Club - Mary Mesman, and Vicki Stone both from the Winchester Number Two Club, and finally, Rose Vanden Broek, from Winchester Number Three.

All leaders and members who completed the project were given a silver spoon in recognition of their work upon completion of Achievement Day.

Mrs. Alison Murray, from Martintown, the visiting Home Economist, helped with the morning activities and commented on the exhibits and skits presented by the girls.

Miss Mary Michels, SD&G County Home Economist, conducted the Achievement Day proceedings. She informed the girls that the Fall Project will be "Club Girl Entertains". This project looks at flower arrangements, table settings, general etiquette and party foods and menus. All present members and especially new members who have turned twelve by September 1, 1977, are welcome to join the new program.

The Achievement Day was concluded by the 4-H Pledge.

Portable classroom addition officially opens at St. Bernard's

FINCH (Staff) - St. Bernard's Separate School, has a new resource room and general purpose room and over 100 persons were in attendance Friday night for the addition's official opening.

Prinicipal Mrs. Kathleen MacNaughton said the addition, three portable classrooms attached to the south end of the school has been open to the school children since December.

Mrs. MacNaughton explained the existing classrooms were not overcrowded but the school's library books were kept in the corrider.

The addition, 2,300 sq. ft. in size, will give youngsters more educational opportunities. SD&G County Separate School Board was $10,000 fro transportation and renovations. That figure does not include the cost of the portables, which were already in use.

In the opening remarks, Mrs. MacNaughton commented the school can now celebrate mass together in the general purpose room.

F. Roch Bougie, St. Bernard's Catholic Church, Finch, blessed the addition and then assisted Mrs. MacNaughton in cutting the ribbon for the official opening.

The ceremony and program presented by the students was a part of the school's Education Week activities.

Guest speaker Armand Leroux, professor of economics at the University of Sherbrooke, spoke on the week's theme of "Growing with Dignity".

He said dignity is something positive and is acquired at home, at school, at church and in society.

During the program, which included public speaking, poetry reading, folk dancing and a gymnastics display, awards were presented to winners of contests held during the week.

Jimmy Lefebvre was presented with a trophy by Mr. Leroux for his speach on ghosts.

Winners in the poster competition were Avonne Chambers, Peter Patenaude, Mary Lynn Moore and Elaine TePlate.

Cathy Clement, Carrie Moran, Jackie Boulanger and Ann Brugmans were tops in their class in the poetry competition and the team of Tony Westonbrook, Susan Curran, Jackie Boulanger and Paul VanVliet won the science quiz.

Official ribbon cutting

St. Bernard's Separate School principal Mrs. Kathleen MacNaughton, left, cuts the ribbon with assistance of Fr. Roch Bougie to officially open a two room addition to the Finch school. Over 100 persons attended the official opening as part of Education Week observances to watch a program prepared by the children and to view their work on display. -staff photo-

Donation for arena project

Chesterville Recreation Director Rick St. Dennis, right, accepts a $1,000 cheque from president Bill Parks, left, and secretary-treasurer Mrs. Ruth Mitchell, centre, of the Chesterville and District Minor Hockey Association for the installation of polythylene puck boards at the local arena. The project will cost an estimated $4,000 and a majority of the funds will be received in grants from Wintario and the provincial government's Community Centres Act.

CDMHA pledges $1,000 towards installation of polythylene boards

(Staff) - Chesterville Recreation Director Rick St. Dennis has cleared the second hurdle in having his proposed installation of polythylene puck boards at the local arena become a reality.

Mr. St. Dennis' project was given approval by Village Council in early April and the Chesterville and District Minor Hockey Association gave its blessing along with a $1,000 donation at Thursday's annual general meeting.

Estimated cost of the project, noted the recreation director, is $4,000.

He said 25 per cent, or $1,000 can be received in a grant under the Community Centres Recreation Act and 50 per cent of $1,500 of the remaining funds can be received from Wintario.

The donation from the CDMHA reduced the balance to $500 for Mr. St. Dennis to come up with.

Bernie Harper, coach of the Bantam A Flyers hockey team, strongly endorsed Mr. St. Dennis' idea, saying minor hockey should put something back into the arena because it has always been on the receiving end when funds were transferred.

In summarizing the past season, president Bill Parks called it "successful" with membership reaching a record high of 182. "I'm sure it's going to grow", he said.

With the high number of registrants, the association was able to ice two teams in each of the atom, peewee, bantam and midget divisions and have almost 50 boys playing in the novice division.

Mr. Parks said the association received $2,415 from Wintario for in-province travel and purchase of new equipment.

It was decided that Chesterville's only other night to host CDMHL games is Friday.

All division conveners are responsible for getting coaches to return borrowed equipment to the arena by May 15 or take an inventory and have the equipment signed out if not returned.

Secretary-treasurer Ruth Mitchell reported eight tournaments hosted by the village association resulted in a profit of $2,387.33. Mrs. Mitchell was also instructed to write letters of thanks to the organizations and persons who help sponsor the tournaments.

Bernie Harper and Doug Mitchell were granted $100 each to pay for tuition fees at a National Coaches Clinic Level Four to be held in Kitchener in the summer.

Prior to Bob Youmelle being named Chesterville's representative to the Carleton-Dundas Minor Hockey League for a second straight season, he was authorized to vote against amendment to that organization's constitution which would call for the president's term of office to be extended to two years.

Mr. Youmelle also reported the Wednesday home ice night for league play conflicts with Winchester's and both municipalities should endeavor to change their times.

UNLUCKY 14

The population of Chesterville is about 1,300 but only 14 persons were interested enough to pry themselves away from their living room easy chairs to attend Thursday night's Chesterville and District Minor Hockey Association annual general meeting.

Of that 14, almost one-half do not even have children registered in the program.

Granted the television was carrying the Toronto-Philadelphia playoff game but we strongly believe that the National Hockey League contest will not do anything to alter plans for CDMHA next year or any other year.

A second excuse that could possibly be aired is that the meeting was not publicized well enough in advance. Balderdash. Notice of the meeting appeared in three places in the last two issues of this paper.

Prior to the meeting while setting out chairs, one person commented "just set out half as many as you think are needed. Then the newspaper will report attendance was overflowing because more chairs had to be set out".

That was a nice thought but less than one-half of the chairs set out were used.

We can conclude by the attendance at the meeting the past hockey season ran smoothly and parents have no complaints and are quite satisfied to sit back and send their youngster to the rink again next year and be under the supervision of the same handful of hard-working volunteers.

ADDITION TO HEAD TABLE

The Chesterville Minor Sports Awards committee has confirmed the village's own Kevin Gillis, host of CTV's Bang, Bang You're Alive, will be included as a head table guest for the May 29 event.

DOWN THE LIME LINE

The Dundas Fastball League has released its regular season playing schedule but not a word has been uttered in regards to organization of the North Stormont Men's Fastball League.

We learned recently Ingleside's Villa Nova will not be returning because it has been accepted into the Grenville-Dundas Intermediate Fastball League to compete against such teams as Spencerville, Morrisburg, Mountain, South Mountain and Brinston.

If this is so, the North Stormont league will be reduced to four teams - Berwick, Avonmore, Newington and Finch.

But everyone knows league play is more enjoyable with more than four teams and that is just what the circuit is in search of.

CDMHA executive has vacancy

(Staff) - The perennial problem of not being able to fill the four executive positions on the Chesterville and District Minor Hockey Association has cropped up again.

The association held its annual general meeting at the Community Hall Thursday night and only 14 persons attended as two new officers were named to the executive for the 1977-78 hockey season.

Bob Youmelle was acclaimed as president to succeed Bill Parks. He was also named the village's representative to the Carleton Dundas Minor Hockey League.

Also acclaimed to the executive was Peter DeRooy Jr. as vice-president.

Four persons, all absent from the meeting, were asked to assume the secretary-treasurer position and Mrs. Susan Stevens has come forward to succeed Mrs. Ruth Mitchell.

Remaining to be filled is the position of referee-in-chief.

Town league registration set for May 10

(Staff) - Chesterville recreation director Rick St. Dennis has announced that registrations for this summer's town league minor softball program will be accepted at the fairground ball diamond from 7-9pm, Tues., May 10.

Mr. St. Dennis said registrations for boys eight years and over and girls 10 years and over will include a small fee of 50 cents.

The season will run from may 16 to the end of June with games to be played at the Chesterville Public School diamond. At the end of June, travelling teams will be selected and will start inter-municipality league play.

DFL sked opens May 17 with six teams competing

WILLIAMSBURG (Staff) - The Dundas Fastball League will open another season of play Tues., May 17 with more teams vying for the league crown than originally anticipated.

Finalists last year and perennial contenders Domville Aces were first reported as not having a team but club officials quickly found enough players when they heard of the news.

The Aces, along with the Kemptville Squires, had been granted a one year of absence by the league but Domville has since been voted back into the fold by a 3-1 majority.

With Domville back in, the league will open the season with six teams.

Since the league's organizational meeting in early April, renamed vice-president Bob MacDonald, Brockville, has also resigned his post on the executive.

Competing for the F.M. Cass Trophy will be the defending champion Brockville Commercial Stars, Cardinal Pats, Domville Aces, Maynard Roadrunners, Iroquois Maroons and Williamsburg Pioneers.

The Pioneers open the 20-game regular season in Brockville against the Commercial Stars Tues., May 17. Williamsburg is in Iroquois Wed., May 25 and Maynard Thurs., June 2 before playing their first home game against Cardinal Fri., June 3.

All games start at 8pm except Sunday afternoon games set for Cardinal which start at 2pm.

ODSHL expansion program hopeful for 1977-78 season

OTTAWA (Staff) - The Ottawa District Senior Hockey League will in the next few months enjoy an overdue feast or suffer a famine that will send the league into submission.

League vice-president Hubert Bertrand said in a telephone interview Monday the fate of the league will be decided June 1 when all entries for next season will be accepted.

"The league will fold with three teams" said Mr. Bertrand, and it would like to have at least five teams.

The league met last Wednsday and only the Gatineau Nordiques and Embrun Panthers were positive about playing again next year.

The Ottawa Cougars and Potsdam Pioneers were undecided by Mr. Bertrand has beeen in contact with other communities to determine interest and probable entry into the league.

Pembroke is very interested and representatives attended last week's meeting. Mr. Bertrand said he has not heard back from them but expects to this week - hopefully with a $1,000 performance bond which is a strong indication they will enter.

Concordia University, formerly Loyota and Sir George Williams, has indicated an interest in joining the league and Ottawa's Carleton University has expressed interest, possibly for the 1978-79 season.

Brockville has been contacted but entry is doubtful and Cornwall has also been contacted.

Mr. Bertrand also noted there has been talk but no conversation with him about Maniwaki seeking entry into the league.

The league has had its problems with teams suspending operations in mid-season and it would like to remedy the problem. The league started with five teams this past season but was reduced to four when the Gananoque Islanders were forced to disband.

Renfrew has too much "Lion", lead Morrisburg by three games

MORRISBURG (Staff) - The Morrisburg Lions appear to have met more than their namesakes in the Renfrew Lions.

The well-disciplined Renfrew club has rolled up three straight victories and could possibly claim the ODHA Junior B Hockey League championship in straight games when they play at 8pm Wednesday (tonight) at Morrisburg.

Renfrew doubled the defending champion Morrisburg squad 6-3 last Wednesday before winning 8-7 Friday and 7-4 Sunday.

Renfrew has made the most of powerplay opportunities in the series, scoring nine times while enjoying a man advantage.

The rugged boys from the Upper Ottawa Valley have also left their mark on Morrisburg with Bob McNairn suffering a dislocated collarbone in the first game.

The second game was injury free but Billy Morrow received a bruised shoulder muscle in Sunday's game at Renfrew.

After a scoreless first period in the opening game in Renfrew last Wednesday, Morrisburg fell behind 3-0 before Bob McNairn scored in the last minute of the middle stanza.

Glenn Butler, Lennox Sterling and Chris Hinsperger got the Renfrew goals.

Renfrew's Don Reid increased the margin to 4-1 at the 47-second mark of the final stanza on a powerplay. Reid later got his second goal of the period and Brian Moran got the final Morrisburg goal.

Renfrew enjoyed a 51-36 shot advantage while being handed eight of the game's 19 minor penalties.

In game two with over 1,100 persons at the Morrisburg arena Friday night, Renfrew exploded with four quick goals early in the final period and then had to withstand a Morrisburg resurgence to claim the 8-7 win.

The teams each scored three times in the opening frame with Morrisburg claiming an early 3-1 margin before Renfrew bounced back. Each team scored once in the second period to go into the final frame tied 4-4.

Renfrew snapped the tie with four straight goals, two by Bob Friend and singles by Don Reid and Bob Mosco, in the first half of the period. Friend's first goal and Mosco's goal were on powerplays.

Ernie Duval, Kevin Mackler and Kevin Duvall replied for Morrisburg as time ran out, cutting their drive short.

Dennis Smaggus scored a pair of powerplay goals earlier in the game and singles went to Larry Wall and Glenn Butler.

Morrisburg got goals from Pete McIntosh, Robbie Reynolds, Doub McNairn and Kevin Mackler.

Officials called 16 minors against Renfrew and 15 against Morrisburg.

Sunday's game was the roughest of the series and prompted Morrisburg coaches Ken Morrow and Brian McNairn to take the team to the dressing room with 11 seconds left in the game in protest against the officiating.

At that time, fights broke out on the ice and it took officials some time to get order restored.

Morrisburg finished the game with three players on the ice and two on the bench with the trainer as the remainder of the team started to pack for the homeward trip.

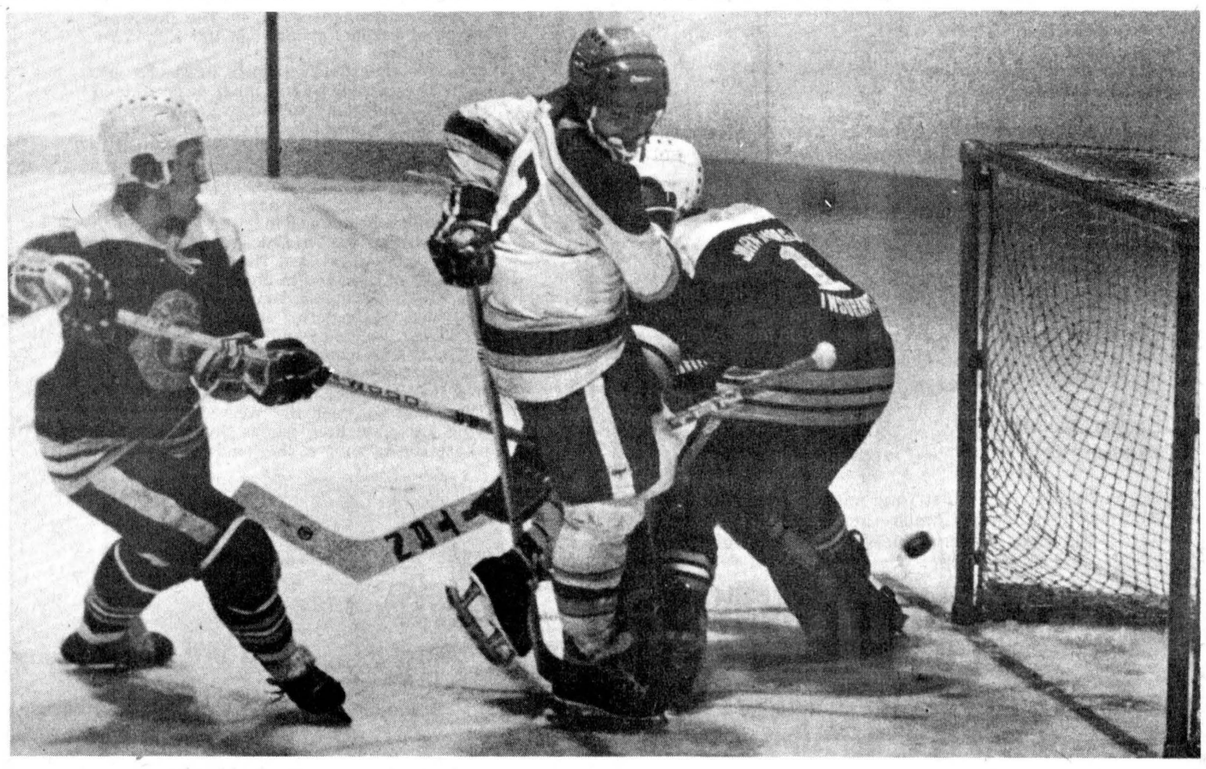
Renfrew was handed 12 minors, four majors and a game misconduct while Morrisburg was tagged with eight minors, three majors, a 10-minute misconduct and two game miscondcts.

A high-sticking major to Robbie Reynolds early in the second period provided Renfrew with the margin of victory as Dennis Smaggus, Kerry O'Reilly and Larry Wall all scored to snap a first period 2-2 draw.

Wall completed his hat trick later in the frame and O'Reilly scored in the third period. Glenn Butler got a first period powerplay goal.

Contributing singles for Morrisburg were Tim Cassell, Robbie Reynolds, Pete McIntosh and Kevin Duvall.

Remaining games in the series have been scheduled if Morrisburg should stave off elimination tonight. They are Friday, at 9pm at Renfrew, Sunday at 2:30pm at Morrisburg and next Monday at 8pm at Renfrew.



From both sides

Morrisburg's Ernie Duval (7) had pressure from both sides on this play but it didn't stop the shifty little forward from getting the puck behind Renfrew's Doug Bochert and into the net. The goal, midway through the third period of Friday's game, got a Morrisburg rally going but time ran out on them as Renfrew won 8-7. Renfrew claimed a 7-4 victory on home ice Sunday to move into a 3-0 lead in games in the ODHA Junior B Hockey League final series. The fourth game of the set is set for 8pm tonight (Wednesday) at Morrisburg.

Sewer charges could be raised

(Staff) - Chesterville must increase the revenue on its sanitary sewer system or face a deficit in village spending this year.

The village has been hit with increased gallonage charges by the Ministry of the Environment and there are three options open to collecting the extra money needed to meet these charges:

More homes in Chesterville can connect to the sanitary sewer system; all homeowners, whether connected to the system or not, can be charged for its use, or sewage rates for those already on the system can be raised.

The first choice is covered in the Ontario Municipal Act, section 36, 2A, which states that the municipality can oblige all homes to hook into the system or be subject to a charge. The others aren't stated specifically in the act but can be legislated into being by bylaw.

There is a problem in the village now with some residents allowing their sump pumps to force water into the sanitary system. This is raising the gallonage charge borne by the village and in turn shared by all those hooked into the system and will soon be corrected if members of council and village employees conduct the house to house inspection they are planning to carry out to see who is abusing the system.

Village clerk treasurer Lloyd Graham said all homes could very well be forced into hooking into the system and such a move would niether overtax the existing sanitary sewers nor create a greater cost since the extra amount the system would be expected to handle is within its capacity.

Blue Jays Chatter

By Peter Johns

..The widest grin in old New York spread across the face of Blue Jay Otto Velez. He had just hit one out of Yankee Stadium and the Jays had done what the experts had thought impossible. The score-board read Jays 5, Yanks 1.

Otto had struck out in his first two at bats. "I was trying too hard," said the ex-Yankee, "and Billy Martin had been riding me pretty good from the bench."

Martin, the Yankee manager, was having second thoughts right about that time.

Velez has now hit over 100 homers in his professional career, eight in the majors. But there was no doubt in his mind. "This was the one that gave me the biggest thrill of my life."

Winning pitcher Dave Lemanczyk, 27, almost as excited, had another concern... his wife is expecting their first child. Dave worried that the suspense might have hurried the new arrival.

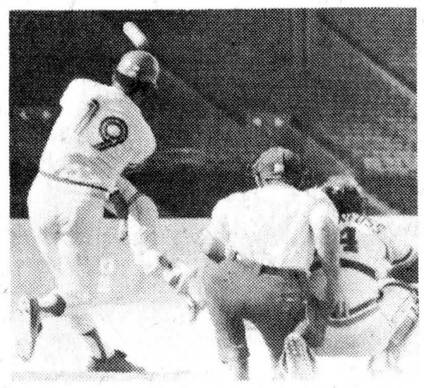
Next day was Jerry Garvin's turn to grin. The young lefty (21) had beaten the Yanks 8—3 as he scattered eight hits without walking a man, taking his season record to 3—0. The Jays were assured of a split, at least, in the New York series.

Manager Hartsfield's biggest headache just now is the failure of his most experienced pitcher, big Bill Singer, to find his groove. Singer says he feels great, but can't get comfortable with his delivery. He suffered a similar spell at Texas last season. Never did find out why. He just started throwing strikes again. Jays fans hope the same thing will happen again soon.

Bill went to the bull-pen to try and work things out after being lifted in Chicago.

Several Jays feel that Hartsfield and his coaches have managed to meld the club into a team. "Team spirit and teamwork have brought us our successes to date," one of them told me. "It's all very well to pay millions for big names. But if a big star takes a while to fit into the club, or causes dissension, the won-lost record soon shows that, too. So what have you gained?"

The White Sox lead the West division now, having lost only three games this year... two of those losses came at the hands of the Jays.



Our photographer got lucky with this picture. It shows the ball leaving Otto Velez' bat on its way over the wall. This was the shot that beat the Tigers.

More people than ever want to own their own home.

Ontario has a plan to make it easier.

AHOP/HOME (Assisted Home Ownership Program/ Home Ownership Made Easy Plan) is a federal-provincial program designed to bring home ownership within the reach of moderate and lower income families by offering financial aid in the form of loans, subsidies and grants. How much aid you receive depends upon your household formation, income and the monthly carrying charges for your new home.

All types of new houses are eligible for assistance as long as they are AHOP qualified by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and are sold within the maximum AHOP prices in your municipality.

Through an AHOP Interest Reduction Loan, the first year's mortgage payments are reduced to an 8% interest rate. An AHOP subsidy of up to $750 is available during the first year of occupancy so you would not spend more than 25% of your household income on mortgage payments and municipal taxes. You may also qualify for a Provincial HOME Grant of up to $750 in the first year should your mortgage and tax payments still exceed 30% of your household income. Subsidies and grants are not repayable. Loan repayments begin in the seventh year of the mortgage.

If you are interested in buying a home under the AHOP/HOME Program, look in the real estate section of your newspaper for participating builders.

Morewood volunteers raise over $1,500

Sixteen members of the Morewood Volunteer Fire Department raised $1,506 in a 20-mile bike-a-thon Saturday morning to purchase equipment for the department. The bikers rode from Morewood to Embrun then to Russell and back to the fire hall by noon in their fund-raising effort. Frank Merkley and Gerald Carruthers accompanied the riders checking pledge sheets and had three extra bicycles on hand in case of breakdown. It turned out that the riders backsides suffered more than their vehicles and the extra bikes weren't needed.

Maxville arena blitz reaches halfway point

MAXVILLE (Special) - Despite the vagaries of the weather that altered last week's three-day blitz raising funds for the proposed Maxville and District arena complex; a Monday survey indicated approximately 50 percent of the $109,000. objective had been subscribed. Included in this amount are personal donations of $100. to $500. Several $1,000 gifts, one of $2,000 and anonymous donors of higher amounts.

Last Thursday, being an ideal spring seeding day even the canvassers were manning their tractors tilling the soil, this forced the workers into a revamped soliciting pattern.

Friday and Saturday, in the prevailing showers, considerable territority was covered. However, the Roxborough, Maxville and Kenyon captains and workers realized complete and thorough coverage for such an important undertaking would require at least this week. The final stage will be contacting distant residents of the area who maintain their home ties and would be anxious to aid their community project.

The captains and workers are also fully aware that the home stretch drive aiming to raise the final 50 per cent will be the most difficult of the campaign. But chairman of the drive, Garry Smith, and his colleagues feel certain of ultimate success.

The chairman summarized by commenting, "Victory will give all of us a great feeling of satisfaction and pride. Especially when you take into consideration that we are strictly a farm community without a solitary industry. We have only one service club, Maxville Lions, 27 members. The remainder is made up of the six villages, Moose Creek, Monkland, Apple Hill, Greenfield, Dunvegan and Maxville."

"Everyone's cooperation and generosity is still greatly needed and will be sincerely appreciated," the chairman concluded.

WINCHESTER (Staff) - Children have been popping up during the last week up at the Winchester District Memorial Hospital like the first flowers of spring. The maternity ward handled seven new arrivals between Wed., April 13 and Mon., April 18; and like a rose between thorns, only one was a girl:

To Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Collison, RR2 Iroquois, a son, Sat., April 16.

To Mr. and Mrs. Gary Pemberton, RR1 Williamsburg, a daughter, Sun., April 17.

To Mr. and Mrs. John Neville, RR1 Finch, a son, Sun., April 17.

Chesterville woman installed as Presbyterial head

(Special) - "Our faith and how to relate it to today's society is just naturally on everybody's mind these days." These were the words of Janet Somerville as she addressed 262 UCW members at the ninth Annual meeting of the Seaway Valley Presbyterial in Spencerville Wed., April 20.

Miss Somerville is a Roman Catholic lay theologian deeply involved in the ecumenical movement and has participated in many United Church conferences, including the 1976 Summer Event '76 in Ottawa.

Presbyterial president Mrs. Jean Scott conducted the day's proceedings. Worship services were led by St. Eugene UCW (afternoon) and Hallville UCW (evening). Mrs. Scott in her remarks reiterated that women hold a very important role in the church.

Her term of office ends in June and she welcomed the incoming president, Mrs. Lillian Allison of Chesterville and vice-president Mrs. Mary Wall. The president of the Montreal-Ottawa Conference UCW. Mrs. Miriam Woodland, brought greetings and conducted the installation service for the new officers of the Seaway Valley Prebyterial. Music for the day was under the leadership of Mrs. Enid Arscott of Prescott and in the evening the audience was entertained when the "Melody Makers" from Prescott brought a meaningful message in poetry and song.

Miss Somerville reminded the gathering of two ways of looking at change - the optimistic, exhilirating, stretching, challenging, healthy way or the pessimistic, unhealthy way when people feel they are managed, manipulated, disoriented, weakened and conned. She used as an example of these changes King David as representing good change and King Solomon as one who finally destroyed Israel because of his shrewd and manipulative ways.

Jesus was a very pro change man Who did not manage people but stands lovingly and patiently by them as they go through the painful, human, maturing process of change in the "quick grabbing" age.

B-ball try-outs Sunday

(Staff) - Try-outs for the Eastern Ontario Provincial boys and girls basketball teams will be held at Bishop Macdonell School, 300 Adolphus St., Cornwall, this Sunday.

Girls 18 and under as at December 31, 1976, are invited to try out between 10am and noon and boys will take to the court from noon to 2am. There will be a registration fee of $5 for everyone attending.

Those making the team will have a chance to try out for the Ontario team and perhaps play in the Canada Games, Commonwealth or Olympic Games.

Eastern Ontario is one of six regions in the province in which try-outs are being held and this marks the first time they are being held in SD&G, according to Alan Haskvitz said the try-outs are sanctioned by Basketball Canada and Basketball Ontario and are a way of recuiting the country's top young talent for future national teams.

Diamond Club hosts Moose Creek seniors

AVONMORE (Special) - The members of the Avonmore Diamond Club entertained members of the Moose Creek Sunshine club recently.

Clifford Hewston, president, welcomed the visitors then turned the meeting over to the program committee, Mrs. Jean Ferguson, Mrs. Clifford MacElheran with Mrs. Eva McHugh assisting, for the evening.

The program opened with the singing of O Canada, followed by Mockin' Bird Hill and Silver Threads Among the Gold by the Avonmore Choral group.

Raymond Delaney and Dale Robertson pleased the audience with their display of tap dancing. Mrs. Jas. Tinkess gave humorous readings reminding all of by-gone days. Grant MacRae on the violin, accompanied by Ronnie MacIntyre on piano, set toes tapping with several old time favorites. A trio, Mrs. Eva McHugh, Mrs. Peter Sinclair and Mrs. Clifford MacElheran rendered Amazing Grace and Easter Parade.

A reading, Go Wash Your Duty Face was given by Mrs. Hewston. Dale Robertson and Judy Lang, accompanied by Wendy Lang on piano sang, This Land of Ours.

Edwin Waldroff, warden of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry counties, brought greetings then favoured the Seniors with a solo, I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen. Mr. Waldroff and Maldwyn Watkins sang a duet, Koom By Yah. In keeping with the Easter season, Mr. Waldroff sang the beautiful hymn, Alone, with Mrs. Watkins as accompanist.

The choral group sang You Are My Sunshine and Springtime in the Rockies. The audience enjoyed several mouth organ selections by Mr. Waldroff, Garnet Robertson, accompanying him on the piano. Bits of an, gave the group many smiles.

Mrs. Jean Ferguson thanked all who had given their time and talents to make the evening an enjoyable one. After the singing of God Save the Queen lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

Special library exhibit coming to Avonmore

AVONMORE (Special) - A special exhibit, Photomicrographs, will be on view at the Seaway Valley Libraries' Avonmore branch from May 4 to May 28.

Described as "science for art's sake" photomicrographs taken through a stereo-binocular microscope at high magnification. They reveal small mineral crystals otherwise invisible to the naked eye.

Of value both scientifically and artistically, the exhibit shows gold crystals from Romania as well as mineral samples from Tasmania, South West Africa and quarries near Montreal.

An "Outreach Ontario" project of the Ministry of Culture and Recreation, the exhibit was prepared by the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto
