CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

The hardest part of any holiday is getting back to work. But back we are to the weekly task of getting out your favourite family newspaper. Everybody is full of beans, vigour and vitality and just bursting at the seams to get things done. That includes the half-million things that piled up in the week away from the mill.

But we did see a lot of interesting country, hear a variety of accents ranging from Eastern Ontario to Deep South and drive on some super dooper roads. We also discovered that Canada is noted almost entirely for its vacationlands. And after slicing south through 400 miles of settlements in one day we began to realize our peculiar geographic dimensions. We just might find it hard to find a cross-section.. of this country 400 miles deep with one tenth as many people in it. We are modest enough to grin at the motel keeper who had his ideas a little mixed. We said, "From Chesterville, near Ottawa in Canada." "Oh," says he, "that's where everyone speaks French, isn't it?"

The Ohio river is quite a stream. It is wide, not too deep, generally, and quite often muddy as it is possible to be and still flow. The U.S. army corps of engineers are slowly harnessing the river until it generally behaves and the riotous floods of just a few years ago are much less destructive. But like the mighty Nation river, there is an occasional problem of pollution. The mill towns spew out enormous amounts of waste and some of it eventually ends up in the river. Controls are not yet complete. Suckers and some of the biggest mudpouts in the world abound in the stream, but anything else including water skiers take their chances and usually don't survive.

The big river has a tremendous traffic in barge transport. Down there tow boats don't tow the barges; they push them. And when one sees the rafted barges, it is understandable. The barges, each, hold about the same amount of coal or ore or oil or alcohol or cooking fat that a small freight train carries. There might be as many as 20 barges in a string. When they are pushed into the narrow sections of the river, it is amazing to see the skill of the pilot as he eases the huge string ahead of his little tug, first carressing one bank and then the other. At times he resembles a champion plowman working out a narrow land, and if the river is in spate, his tug turns a good earth-coloured furrow.

It is 'mark twain" river indeed. Just overnight a traveller on a river bridge can notice the appearance of a new mudbank, not in being the day before. Nearly all the tow boats have a lookout stationed at the head of the tow scanning the stream for wandering mud banks. But the river is handsome, when in the mood. The green, soft countryside reflects in the gentle stream, and the waters shine with a seductive call. This ancient and hardened Crumb even felt the little breezes awaken the deep-buried Huck Finn ambitions to build a raft and float just anywhere on the beautiful Ohio.

But we were glad to get back to the weathered walls of the Castle. The grass had grown a foot, the v.p.'s beans had suddenly snapped into edible delights, all the S.C.'s friends remembered her, and one of our dynastic enemies had sent us a cheque just five years overdue. The only thing left is to get Percy back and get some reliable weather information.

Vintage cars allowed in Upper Canada Village

Fifty antique cars created an anachronism at Upper Canada Village this month when they visited the Ontario - St. Lawrence Development Commission's pioneer community on Lake St. Lawrence, seven miles east of Morrisburg.

Their procession across the 1840 toll bridge marked the first time automobiles have been allowed in the village since its opening in June last year.

The occasion was the sixth annual London to Brighton Commemoration Tour, sponsored jointly by the Antique and Classic Car Club of Canada and the British-American Oil Company Limited. Despite the fact the oldest car was a 1911 Model T, it was quite ancient enough to compete with the stagecoach and ox cart more in keeping with the 1784 - 1867 period of the village. Nonetheless, the touring vehicles were a colorful sight, not less so than their occupants, many of whom dressed according to the vintage of their cars. After the parade the group, numbering around 150, left their valuable vehicles under the watchful eye of a guard and walked the plank sidewalks to explore the authentically furnished buildings more thoroughly.

Of particular interest to the visitors was an inspection of the different modes of transportation uesd in Canada's pioneer days. One hundred and fity years ago the bateau, or boat, was the principal means of transportation as it plied the waters of the St. Lawrence and its tributaries. Now a replica of the bateau takes visitors on a waterborne tour of the village. Cook's tavern, near the Village entrance, was once an old staging inn, stopover both for coaches thundering along the King's Highway and bateaux doming up the river. Behind Christ Church, the Drive Shed displays a number of early horse-drawn vehicles. The Museum of Agriculture and Vehicles is housed in two barns behind Louck's Farm House and numbers an early fire engine among its attractions. The visitors also viewed the shiny new Upper Canada Village Mail Coach, built from specifications found in the archives of the Department of Agriculture, especially for the Village.

Members of the Antique and Classic Car Club of Canada and the Historic Vehicle Club of Ontario were joined by mebers of the Vintage Automobile Club of Montreal at the Village, midway point between Montreal and Toronto where the tour started. En route to the Village, stops were made at various points of interest along the way, including Old Fort Henry at Kingston. Some of the troup camped in the Commission's park at Ivy Lea.

After a stay of several hours at Upper Canada Village, the calvalcade returned to Kingston for the finale of their tour.

Holiday Monday

This coming Monday, August 6th, is annual Civic Holiday. All businesses of the village will be closed. It would be well for householders to remember the long week-end and stock up accordingly.

We would ask our correspondents and advertisers to please get their news budgets and copy changes to us as soon as possible on Tuesday. The short week will curtail our efforts if your copy is late.

Colquhoun W.I. holds July meeting

The July meeting of Colquhoun Women's Institute was held in the church hall on Monday evening. Fourteen members and three visitors were present.

Correspondence was dealt with. A number of Christmas stockings are to be made and brought to the August meeting. Each member is to bring 2 or 3 articles to fill the stockings for Overseas Save the Children. The short course aplied for will be available early in April.

The convener, Mrs Geo. Wright introduced Mr Graham Wells, Superintendent of Glen-Stor-Dun Lodge. He reviewed the stages of progress in providing a home for the elder citizens and stressed the need for organizations throughout the three United United Counties to provide entertainment. Bed patients enjoy visitors and most of the more active patients short car drives in the country.

Mrs Hummell, the chair, and a number of institute members plan to visit the lodge in August. Early in September a number of ladies will visit with the bed patients.

Mr Wells was thanked by Mrs Hattie McIntosh. Lunch was served.

DOG TOO ACTIVE

The Akron, Ohio, police department, in the process of establishing a canine corps, is recruiting dogs to accompany policemen on patrol duty.

A woman telephoned deputy chief Boyd Buck to offer her dog to the corps, explaining:

"I'm sure he'll do a good job for you. He's already bitten three children in the neighbourhood."

The dog was not accepted.

One of the aftermaths of Monday night's fierce electrical storm is a large death toll in dairy cattle. Our present count is up to six.

The bad storm whipped into the district at about 1 a.m. Tuesday morning. It put on a spectacular show of fireworks before fading out.

East of the village at Connaught Gerald Rady found three of his dairy cattle electrocuted. Henry Sauve, just south of town, lost one, Asa Shay, south-west of town, one and further up the Valley, Dwight Droppo, one.

SAFETY ON THE FARM

In England it is a criminal offence to operate a tractor without a takeoff shield. Other legislation is rapidly being formulated to insure protection on other farm equipment, and farmers failing to install such safety devices are liable to severe penalty.

In Ontario we do not have such legislation as yet, but the penalty is severe—it could be death.

The steel plant at Sydney, N.S., shipped a record total of more than 2,800,000 tons of steel in 1960.

OPINIONS . . . OURS AND OTHERS

Beautiful Ohio, etc.

We steered a southerly course into the Daniel Boone and Davey Crockett country last week. The annual vacation took the writer and his brood into the USA until the Red Monster came to a halt in Marietta, Ohio. The sleepy college town is on a bend of the Ohio river, well south of Youngstown and east of Cincinnati. We gladly vegetated for a week, surrounded by genial hospitality and soft southern air.

The Ohio countryside is a series of contrasts. Up on the Lake Erie shore, miles of vineyards stretch away out of sight over the next ridge. South towards the rolling hills the vineyards are replaced by big dairy farms, with the herds nearly always fed fresh cut hay in loafing pastures. It was not at all uncommon to see small planes parked alongside the big barns. Probably handy to get the cows in for milking.

Farther south, the land becomes a mess. Miles on end, one sees giant worm-like leavings of strip mining shovels. Coal is near the surface and the mining outfits, over the years, have bared the seams, then worked away to new coal beds. It looks awful, to a farmer's eye, to see the tortured heaps of slatey soil. Nothing but small scrub has started to grow on the spoil banks and the ponds of coppery blue water are anything but inviting. According to a formula, after coal of a certain thickness is found, it is profitable to remove a foot of overburden for every inch of coal.

The mill towns of Ohio are the heart of industrial America. From Youngstown, Canton, neighbouring Wheeling and Pittsburg, pour a river of processed metals. Lima, Euclid, Cleveland and Ashtabula all add their names to the roster of centres that make the steel sinews of a nation. They also raise a father and mother of a smog. The city of Canton, Ohio, lies in a traveller's path on the way to Marietta. There the chrome metal industries hold sway. And the sky is a yellow saffron, hard to believe. From a distance it looks as if the whole issue had turned into a pile of burning feathers. The sulphur smell is hard to get used to.

The city of Marietta is delightful. It lies on a bend of the Ohio where the river turns west as the southern boundary of the state and eventually joins the mighty Mississippi at Cairo, Ill. The city is proud of its pioneers who settled the town in 1788. It began as a fortified town, the first of the chain that eventually opened up the great unknown West to exploring frontiersmen.

Marietta College is the heart of the city. The pursuit of education has a tremendous influence on the city and its people and the college itself becomes a hive of many hundreds of students each term. We were able to admire at close range many of the old and new buildings of the campus and listen to enthusiastic plans for new additions and new courses. Without doubt, the unhurried life of the college educator, especially in the summer months, has an appealing and soothing effect. We absorbed the atmosphere like a tranquilizer. In no time at all, the tangles and snarls of running a competitive business seemed much less overpowering.

We hated to leave the city of elms. But in spite of built-in relaxing agents, we found the time had arrived to head back to the land of blood, sweat and fears. We upped anchor, took to the throughways, and suddenly were back in town, rearing to read the mail.

More warnings at Hy.'s 43 and 31

The accident at Highways 43 and 31 last week points to an increasing need at the intersection. More and better warnings should be placed on the corners for the safety of the travelling public.

Over the past year, traffic has been building steadily on the two roads. The opening of Upper Canada Village has had much to do with the increased traffic flow. Too, with Highway 43 declared a King's Highway, right to Perth, more through traffic is taking the centre route.

One would be led to think a traffic study would show a need for either a flashing warning light on the corner or a traffic-controlled set of stop and go lights. It would be useful to know what steps are planned for the intersection. More accidents are in the making there if something is not done at once.

"Going to the dogs" for so long

Some bright person once said that the only thing we learn from history is that we don't learn from history. However, observes the Hamilton Spectator, we do find from our history books that in some ways at least man remains consistent from generation to generation. Fathers in succeeding generations worry about their children "going to the dogs."

It was surprising to us recently to learn that the famous Dr Arnold Rugby, so wise and broad-minded in most things, could, 123 years ago, grow depressed about the same thing. In a letter written in 1839 he deplores the increasing childishness which he found in English boys of the period. He didn't know what to blame for it except the great number of exciting books of amusement like 'Pickwick' and 'Nickleby,' 'Bentley's Magazine,' etc., etc. These completely satisfy all the intellectual appetite of a boy, which is rarely very voracious, and leave him totally palled not only for his regular work . . . but for good literature of all sorts, even history and for poetry.

We wonder what Dr Arnold would think today if he were to see television, western and private eyes, horror movies and crime comics. Are our young people in danger of being totally "palled" for good literature, history and poetry?

We don't know. We notice that most healthy youngsters will desert television for baseball, a Saturday movie for a trip to the woods or the lake, and that they have a habit of becoming "palled" with comic books, western and soap operas as months or years pass. They have been "going to the dogs" for a long time, but somehow the best of each generation seems to survive the worst things their elders put in their way.

RUSSIANS FIND "CANADIAN" HAIRCUTS ARE IMMORAL

Trouble and strife have come to a tough industrial town in the Urals—over what the Russians describe as "Canadian" haircuts.

Comrade Vasily Dmitriev, deputy mayor of the copper town of Mednogorsk, recently called on all the town's barbers and banned "ducktail" haircuts, known in Russia as "Canadian-style" cuts.

He said they were "immoral" delinquents, and ordered the barbecause they encouraged juvenile bers to cut hair shorter.

It was reported that the first victim of the new decree was Ivan Timshenko, chief of the city's Young Communist League, who sat in a barber's chair, requested a "ducktail" and was refused.

Newspapers said the decree resulted in the city's barbers failing to fulful their haircutting plans because the men of Mednogorsk opposed the short crop and began to cut their hair themselves.

The Ontario Safety League reports a Yugoslavia driving practice and rather hopes it will stay in Yugoslavia. There, drivers wanting to turn right blow their horn twice; for a left turn they give a three-blast signal.

Central Canada Exhibition expects large entry

An exceptionally large entry for the Ottawa Exhibition is expected this year and exhibitors are reminded that entries for the horse department and horse show closed July 23, cattle, sheep and swine, as well as poultry and handicrafts closed July 27 and August 8 marks the deadline for home-baking, honey, vegetables, horticulture, highland dancing and dog show.

There will be many new features at this year's Exhibition which will feature a star studded grandstand show headlining Jane Morgan, George Gobel, the Harmonicats, the June Taylor Dancers and other acts that will prove most pleasing to those attending this great outdoor show.

Ladies' Day, which proved so popular last year, will be held on Tuesday, August 21, and all ladies will be admitted to the fair free until three o'clock in the afternoon and a free fashion show will be held in front of the grandstand at 2.30 p.m.

There will be more to see and do at this year's fair than ever before.

The BIBLE TODAY . . .

A world-wide research project currently is trying to assess the effective use being made of the Scriptures. Organized by the member groups of the United Bible Societies, this project has been issued in Bible Weeks in Germany, Great Brtain and the United States.

More than 200 participating churches in the U.S.A. are answering questionnaires designed "to discover the most effective ways in which the Bible is being used to deepen the spiritual life of the local church." The study secretaries are keeping in close touch with the denominational leaders and at the same time developing and using the creative project of Bible-use known as Bible Week.

Approximately 15 inter-church Bible Weeks will be held shortly in various communities of the United States, reports the American Bible Society.

HISTORIC ROCK MAY FALL IN OCEAN

A Newfoundland historian says a rock with an important place in North America's history is in danger of being lost.

Leo F. English, retired curator of the Newfoundland Museum, fears a rock at Greates Cove, which he believes contains an inscription by explorer John Cabot, might eventually fall into the sea.

Greates Cove is a tiny community on the tip of the Bay de Verde Peninsula 55 miles northwest of St. John's lying open to the Atlantic.

Mr English, who has three or four photographs of the rock, says the inscription reads: "GIO Caboto" with the date June 24, 1497. GIO is a contraction of Giovanni, Italian for John, he says.

Some historians believe Cabot first landed on North American soil at Cape Bonavista, across Trinity Bay from Greates Cove. But Mr English says that while Cabot sighted the cape when he reached the mouth of Trinity Bay, he ddin't land there.

TRIMMING HEDGES

If you have a hedge of deciduous plants such as privet or barberry that hasn't been trimmed yet, try to get at it right away advise horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Doing this job now has two big advantages. The season's growth is almost, but not completely finished so you will get enough new growth to cover the pruning scars and keep the hedge looking neat. Also, the new season's growth is still soft and easy to cut which makes the job a lot easier.

Make sure that your tools are sharp so that the young shoots are cleanly cut and not bruised. If possible, do your trimming during a period of dull weather to avoid burning of the freshly cut tips by bright sunshine.

When trimming, try to keep the hedge slightly wider at the top than the bottom. This will mean that your hedge has a better chance of remaining dense right to the ground, because the lower portio nis exposed to the sun. Also, in winter, snow damage is less likely to be a problem.

H. E. Whitteker

Friends in Cornwall, Williamsburg and throughout the district were sorry to learn of the death of Hermon Edwin Whitteker, an esteemed resident of Cornwall, which occurred at his home, 445 Third Street East. He had not been in the best of health for some time, but had been up and about until a few hours before his death, which same as a shock to family and friends.

Born in Williamsburg, Ont, 76 years ago, Mr. Whitteker was a son of the late Hermon J. Whitteker and his wife, the former Mary M. Whitteker, also deceased. He was married in Oxford Mills, Ont., in 1910, to Sarah Jane McNeil, who passed away in 1947. For 28 years before his retirement in 1954 he was on the maintenance staff of the Cornwall General Hospital. A member of Knox United Church, Cornwall, he attended services regularly as long as his health permitted. He had been a faithful member of St. Peter's Church, Williamsburg, before moving to Cornwall.

Surviving to mourn his loss are one son and two daughters — James H. J. Whitteker, Cornwall; Miss Ethel Whitteker and Miss Cassie Whitteker, both at home, one grandson, David H. Whitteker, several nieces and nephews.

He also leaves two sisters — Mrs Jason (Nancy) Whitteker and Miss Sarah A. Whitteker, Williasburg.

The funeral took place on Saturday from the home of his sister, Miss Sarah A. Whitteker, Williamsburg, to St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Williamsburg. Burial was made in Williamsburg cemetery. The service was conducted by Rev. A. C. Blackwell of St. Peter's church, assisted by Rev. J. C. Kellogg, of Knox United Church, Cornwall.

The pall bearers were Ross Beckstead, Walter Loucks Dwaine Hess, Williamsburg; and Ernest Humphreys, Ernest Stephenson and Angus Tobiason, Cornwall.

Many people from some distance attended the funeral.

MOST BIGAMISTS FROM TORONTO

Young travelling men from Toronto are more likely to commit bigamy than anyone else in Canada, Joy Carroll writes in the current Maclean's. In a study of the habits of Canadian bigamists, Mrs Carroll says most men with more than one wife never got past grade school.

Least likely to commit bigamy in Canada are Ontario and Quebec housewives who are over thirty-five and have university degrees.

Canada's cochampions of bigamy are Joseph LaVear of Winnipeg and Seward Garwood of Sudbury; each married six times without divorcing; each was serving a three-year jail term this year.

But LaVear and Garwood are part of the minority of bigamists — the 40 or more who get caught each year. The police can only guess at how many go free. "Thousands," said one veteran Toronto morality squad officer.

The motives for bigamy are obscure. LaVear gives two; sometimes a war injury caused him to forget previous marriages; sometimes, when he was drunk, he was seized by an irrepressible urge to marry. Garwood blamed his mothers-in-law; they dogged him so unmercifully he kept moving on. He also said, "I did it for the sake of the women."

"But probably", Mrs Carroll writes, "Thomas Simmons, the Uxbridge chicken farmer with a country wife and a city wife, spoke for most bigamists, when he told the court, with reference to his second wife: 'I don't know how I came to marry the girl.'

"QUIT PICKING ON TORONTO"

An ocean away from Canada, Blair Fraser, former editor of Maclean's magazine, has written a defense of Toronto in which he says it has the best food, best newspaper, best hotel and some of the friendliest people in the country.

"My two years in Toronto (as editor) are up and I find I'm no longer qualified for membership in Canada's largest and least exclusive fraternity, the Toronto-haters," Fraser writes in the current Maclean's. He sent the story from London where he is now Maclean's overseas editor.

Fraser says the Globe and Mail is Canada's best newspaper and the Park Plaza is Canada's best hotel. He adds that if Canada has two dozen restaurants worthy of being listed in the French Guide Michelin, half of them are in Toronto. "Only Montreal and Quebec, and only a few places there, can compete with Toronto's best food."

Fraser says the legend about Toronto's blue Sunday was never any more true of Toronto than it was of any other place in English-speaking Canada and that Toronto now has an almost wide-open Sunday.

He found Toronto people friendly. "It's not just the bus drivers who are human, it's everybody you deal with in a household way — the milkman, the laundryman, the grocer, the man who puts on the storm windows.

"Maybe if the rest of us Canadians spent a little less time telling each other Toronto jokes and a little more time contemplating the beam in our own eye, we could make Canada more fun to live in."

WATERING LAWNS

Now that the hot weather is here, your lawn will require regular watering if it is to stay in good condition. However, with water restrictions in many areas, it is important to make the best possible use of the water that is available.

Here are some tips from horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture which will help you to do this.

Insufficient watering can do more harm than good, so when you water your lawn be sure to give it a good soaking. Water has to penetrate several inches to be effective. Light applications of water just make the grass roots grow towards the surface where they are easy game for the hot mid-day sun. What's more, shallow-rooted weeds thrive under such conditions.

To know when the lawn is soaked, place several pans in the area to be watered. When they contain 1 to 1½ inches of water, you have applied enough.

terraces is slower than on flat

Water absorption on slopes and areas, so try to use a finer spray on these areas.

When should we water? Early morning or evening is best since evaporation is slower than at mid-day. However, if you have to water at mid-day, don't worry, the sun will harm the freshly-watered lawn unless the soil is poorly drained and compacted.

FIX WINDOW THAT STICKS

Windows sometimes refuse to budge, but there are ways to remedy the situation.

One of the most common causes is the presence of hardened paint in one or more of the grooves in which the window sash is set. The remedy is to insert a putty knife, floor chisel or any thin bladed tool under the sash and exert moderate pressure. Don't use a screwdriver, or you may leave conspicuous marks. Attack the window from the outside if possible.

If your attack fails, use the same procedure, this time between the sash and the frame at the sides, both inside and outside. Tap the knife handle lightly wth a mallet if necessary.

Another method is to place a small block of wood against part of the sash, tap lightly with a mallet, move the block a few inches and tap again. Repeat until the sash is worked loose.

If warping or swelling is the cause, the sash must be removed and excess wood sanded away. Remove the molding first. Don't remove too much wood or the window may rattle.

After repairing the window lubricate both the channel and the sides of the sash.

Mink ranches were by far the most numerous among the 2,323 fur farms registered in Canada in 1961.

POTATOES BIG BUSINESS IN BRANDON

Potatoes have become big business at Brandon, Man., since the opening of a new processing plant.

It uses potatoes grown in Alberta and Manitoba, processing them to be shipped out as frozen French fries or pre-mashed potatoes.

The process used in the preparation of the product has been kept a secret and will be until the official opening of the plant in September.

In operations at Brandon and Carberry, 25 miles east, the company employs 270 workers. It also farms on about 4,000 acres in the area, growing its own potatoes.

With 10,000,000 pounds purchased in Alberta this year because of poor growing conditions in Manitoba, the plants will have capacity of 6,000 pounds of French fries or 1,200 to 1,500 pounds of mashed potatoes an hour.

IN PARTY PAPER

The story comes from Hollywood that the latest thing to come wrapped in party paper is girls.

Designer Louis Margliano has come out with a $250 model in black transparent paper that he hopes will find favour with the high fashion set. And if the price tag sounds a trifle high, considering the material, hear this: You're supposed to wear it but once, then toss it in the waste basket!

Actress Stella Stevens wore it in a tryout. Typical reaction from males in the vicinity:

"It fits like wallpaper."

The paper is transparent, but you can't see through it as long as it retains folds that Margliano calls "sculpture."

"I call it my siren dress," he said. "I had someone like Stella in mind when I designed it."

It's a skin-tight number cut low enough in front to give the wearer ample breathing room.

"It has it's advantages," said Margliano. "The dress weighs next to nothing. It's great for travel."

Mused Margliano, "There is a complication. You can only wear it once. Cleaning it is okay. But when you press it, the sculpture comes out of the paper. You wind up with a big, flat strip of transparent cellophane."

HOW TO WASH WALLS

To wash walls, start at the floor for best results. If you start at the top the dirty water runs dwon over the dirty surface below and makes the dirt stick harder.

C.A.S. Social Worker begins work in Dundas

Mrs Constance Evans, the new social worker for the Morrisburg branch office of the Children's Aid Society of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, began her work in the Dundas County district on Monday, July 16.

Mrs Evans comes to Dundas from Yellowknife, North West Territories, where she was director of their Children's Aid Society for more than four years. Admiring the countryside, she recalled that on Great Slave Lake the nine-foot thick ice melted in June and the first snows of winter began in September.

Born in Hamilton, she graduated from the Toronto University School of Social Work and worked in Children's Aid Societies in Ontario, in the Department of Public Welfare in Toronto as well as doing volunteer work in settlement houses. In addition, she spent seven years in Montreal had expected to find this area familiar. However, the changes of the Seaway development have made this a new area to her. Above all, she noted, she looks forward to meeting the people of the community.

From the C.A.S. office in the Morrisburg Shopping Centre, Mrs Evans will deal with all people in Dundas County who wish to consult her; people interested in the adoption of a child or children; people who are having serious difficulties in raising their children because of illness, separation of parents, absence of a parent, or other problems which could mean that the children's health, life, education was being neglected; unmarried parents who need assistance in planning for themselves and/or the child who has been or will be born.

Every year a number of farm people are killed or injured while driving a tractor on Ontario highways and rural roads. Surely this slaughter can be reduced. A flashing amber light will give warning day or night, to approaching or overtaking traffic. Why not install such a light on your tractor when travelling the highway or township roads, say safety specialists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

The most expensive way to learn is through experience. This applies particularly to car driving, says the Ontario Safety League. It is an economy for would-be-drivers to be taught thoroughly by experts. High school driver education is the best. Next best is a course from a competent commercial driving school instructor. Youngsters who are taught to drive by parents usually start under a distinct handicap — because most parents have no special qualifications either as drivers or as teachers, and cannot give their children the full instruction they need.

You should make sure that your combine and swather are in good shape to go into the field and operate without breakdown, says Professor J. H. Lee of the Engineering Science Department, Ontario Agricultural College. Good use can be made of rainy days by inspecting and repairing your combine.

USE OF DRAINAGE TILE

Large numbers of farmers in Ontario are undoubtedly planning to do some tile drainage this year. A good tile drainage system requires high quality drain tile for long life and trouble-free performance. Just one broken tile near the outlet can stop the entire drainage system from working, report farm engineers with the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Several factors determine the quality of drain tile. Tile strength is important if the tiles are to stand up without crushing under the weight of heavy farm machinery. Drain tiles at normal field depth of 24 to 36 inches require a crushing strength of at least 800 pounds per foot in length. A survey of tile quality in Ontario, conducted by the Ontario Agricultural College's Engineering Department in 1957, showed that in general, drain tile was satisfactory as far as strength was concerned. Periodic strength tests are often a routine part of the manufacturer's quality control program.

Soundness of tile is important. A sound tile is one which is free from cracks, chips or broken pieces. These defects will allow soil to enter the tile, as well as reducing its strength. Some of these defects can be readily seen, while others such as fine hairline cracks can not. A simple test for soundness is to tap the tile with a piece of metal. A cracked tile will give a dull sound, while a sound tile will give a clear ring.

The other quality that should be checked by the buyer is regularity. By regularity is meant that the tile should be straight, with square cut ends having a smooth surface. The tile should be circular in shape not oval or egg-shaped. If the regularity of the tile is faulty, it is difficult to match the ends of the tile properly and openings may occur when the tile is laid in the trench. This is especially important when tiling in sandy soil.

Remember that cracked, broktn or deformed tiles are defective, and should be considered as culls. The use of culls in a drainage system will only be a source of continuous trouble in your farm operation.

Vacationing drivers, using rural roads, sometimes meet the unexpected hazard of livestock or deer on the road. If this happens at night, the Ontario Safety League recommends that you should sound your horn and dim your lights. Bright lights dazzle the animals. Dim ones allow them to decide which way to flee.

APPLIANCE MAKERS HAPPY

Sales of major appliance units are up 5% — 6% across the board at the halfway mark in 1962 compared to the same period last year, a Financial Post. One or two reported gains on total product lines of as much as 10%. In particular lines — freezers, air conditioners and dish washers — gains for the industry as a whole range even higher.

For the second half of the year: some manufacturers feel the pace can't be sustained while others are bullish. But on 1962 as a whole, all of them expect gains averaging 5%. Prices? Manufacturers are naturally reluctant to talk price increase, fearful that it might put a dampener on consumer desire. There's general agreement that recent "austerity" surcharge measures are bound to affect most manufacturers to a greater or lesser extent depending on the degree to which a firm imports its products or components or materials for those products.

Mrs Andrew Allison

Following a lengthy illness which she bore with patience and fortitude, the death occurred in Winchester Memorial Hospital on Tuesday, July 17th of Mrs Andrew Allison.

Born Alice Thom, daughter of the late MacKenzie Thom and his wife Mary Colquhoun of Elma, in June 1894. She married Andrew Allison in April, 1918 and lived her entire life in the Dunbar and Elma district.

Mrs Allison's friendly manner and kindly nature won her a wide circle of friends. She was a prominent church worker when her health permitted and for a number of years was president of the Ladies Aid in Dunbar Presbyterian church of which she was a member.

The funeral was held on Thursday afternoon from the Fairburn Funeral Home to Dunbar Presbyterian Church, where Rev. A. D. Sutherland conducted an impressive service. Gordon Thom of Morrisburg sang, "Lead Kindly Light" and the hymns were under the leadership of Mrs Arthur Thom, organist.

Interment followed in Williamsburg cemetery.

Many beautiful floral tributes testified to the high esteem in which Mrs Allison was held in the community.

BIG STEEL INDUSTRY STILL GROWS

Canadian steelmaking has moved into a new dynamic development stage, writes W. L. Dack in The Financial Post's feature report on steel. Sweeping technological changes, multi-million dollar diversification programs, he says, are changing the face of the industry. The economics of the whole steel making process are being altered, market potentials — both at home and abroad — are being widened. But the program is costing Canadian steelmakers around $140 million a year, will continue to exact heavy capital requirements for years to come. The expenditures on iron ore development in the Labrador-Quebec area alone will total more than $500 million by the mid-1960s. Total Canadian capacity could be boosted by 20 million tons a year by that date.

In the whole vast, integrated program, Canada is moving swiftly toward self-sufficiency in both steel and iron ore, the major raw material that goes into it. In the process, export potential is expanding. Industry research is being stepped up into methods of boosting iron and steel yields even further. Now, greater-than-ever emphasis is going into development of new and improved steels to meet the comptitive challenge of such materials as aluminum and plastics. One Canadian company has developed a new high-strength, lightweight steel for structural purposes that has received wide acclaim. Another has made an exciting forward step toward that long-cherished goal of all steelmakers — direct reduction steel (from iron ore to steel ingots in one continous operation).

Mainly About People

HUMAN RIGHTS MAINLY DUTIES

It is entirely appropriate that the mediator appointed to the Saskatchewan doctor row is a psychiatrist, says The Financial Post. Never has there been a public issue which has so obviously needed the ministrations of a dealer in brain and nerve disorders.

The medical legislation of the Saskatchewan government may or may not be good. But it is law. Civilized society finds that obeying laws is the convenient and tolerable way of life. If there is anything seriously wrong with the medical law, it is quite certain that it will be changed. That's the way democracy works. But society finds revolutions — organized bands defying laws — intolerable. Strikes, a nineteenth century contrivance, are increasingly anachronistic. In another generation or so, strikes will seldom if ever happen. In sundry occupations, strikes are now unlawful because the hazard to society is too great. The great power-lover who runs the railway unions has found that the public will not tolerate a complete tie-up of its transportation system. Whatever the medical politicians running the doctor strike think about the legislation, the strike they organized is an outrageous assault on organized society.

Individual freedom is much yodelled by some politicians but, in fact, it is quite a narrow and much circumscribed right. Nearly everybody who earns a living and tries to get along with his fellow man knows this very well. The doctors who don't like doctoring in Saskatchewan certainly have the right to decide they will move away or take up farming, plumbing or selling brushes. The organization of a strike, the deliberate manipulation of a strike, is something very different. No profession has, of itself, dignity, integrity, or any claim to public esteem. Those attributes come to it only through the qualities of its members. The medicos should not believe they are immune to the sanctions which society imposes on everybody else. Most of the western world has long since adopted the principle of insurance — regular saving to pay for unpredictable, painful or disistrous expense sometime in the future.

Do the Saskatchewan strike leaders think they can change the thinking, the practices and the attitudes of hundreds of millions of people? The American Medical Association, which is the richest and most active lobby in Washington, may be delighted with the Saskatchewan performance. Is anybody else? The striking Saskatchewan doctors in the months and years ahead will not be happy about their guinea-pigging for the AMA.

DEVICE TO PROBE MARS LIFE

A small device with a sticky string and a broth spiked with radio-active carbon will be sent to Mars in 1964 to answer the centuries-old riddle whether life exists on the small planet.

Current plans of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in the U.S. call for the de-nuclear, biological and space technologies, to be carried aboard a Mariner B space craft that will be launched late in 1964 for a rendezvous with Mars early in 1965.

The launching will open what scientists expect will be one of the most exciting chapters in space exploration—the search for extraterrestial forms of life.

Should life be discovered on other planets, it would have profound philosophical and religious implications as well as cast new scientific light on how life was created on earth.

TIPS ON PREPARING HOUSING FOR PULLETS

1. Clean out old litter—right down to floor.
2. Scrape off all clinging droppings; sweep down cobwebs and dust on walls, ceiling, etc.
3. Now is the time to make all repairs that are needed.
4. Apply Purina Insect Oil to all wood surfaces and dirt floors. It kills worm eggs, coccidia and other common poultry diseases.
5. Scrub feeders, waterers and all other equipment with Purina Disinfectant.
6. Spray house with Purina Disinfectant Concentrate. Mix one ounce to 6 gallons of water.
7. When house is dry put new litter down. 4 to 6 inches is fine.
8. Make sure you have a disinfectant pad or disinfectant brush at every door.
9. Call us for a Purina Laying Ration to fill the feeders and keep hens laying their best.

Why not give me a call today, or drop in at our Store with the Checkerboard Sign. I'd like to tell you about Purina Layena and Commercial Eggena; both are "research-formulated" to help keep good pullets at peak production for a long, long time. Each is a complete feed . . . containing everything that research has proved hens need to help you get fine-flavoured, tasty eggs, with uniform yellow yolks, and whites that are thick and upstanding.

PEEK AT BUSINESS AHEAD

Prospects for business in the months immediately ahead are reported by Dalton Robertson in The Financial Post:

There will be continued economic expansion through the summer and into early fall, characterized by lighter unemployment, gently rising sales and satisfying year-to-year gains in profits for a majority of firms. Few business planners are looking for any noticeable slow-down in business before October or November. The current expansion is only about 18 months old and, since the shortest in post-war history was 21 months, the implication is that there is still some time to go.

An inventory recession could begin sometime during the later fall, unless business spending o nnew plant and equipment takes an unexpected and sizeable forward jump and pumps new vitality into the current business expansion. But the indicators with a history of moving well in advance of general business activity suggest the end of the expansion can't be many months away. Of these nine indicators, six now are declining. By contrast: Most were on the uptrend throughout 1961, signaling expansion well into 1962.

There will be a big squeeze on credit in the very near future unless the Bank of Canada reverses its existing policies. Already interest rates are sharply higher than a month ago and indications are that credit supplies, hitherto little affected will be sharply less readily available in a matter of weeks. The Bank of Canada is now holding the chartered banks' cash base — the base that determines their lending ability — steady whereas throughout 1961 it was expanding the base and encouraging new loans.

A Detroit woman was granted a divorce when she testified that her husband not only beat her but, to make her feel worse, beat her Pekinese too.

Mr and Mrs Wm. Summers from the U.S., visited Miss Isabel MacMillan and Mr John MacMillan.

Feeds may contain all the necessary nutrients in proper balance and still not give satisfactory results, say livestock specialists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture. If a ration does not taste good, feed efficiency will be impaired. Not only will animals fail to eat the proper amounts of unpalatabie feeds, but digestion will be inhibited. Familiarity and habit are important factors concerned with the palatability of a ration. Avoid sudden shifts from one feed to another.

EVERYBODY EATS - TRY THESE

MODERN PACKAGING

I FOUND THE FOLLOWING ARTICLE which appeared in the June issue of the C.A.C. Bulletin so interesting I decided I should pass it on to you. It is a summary of an article on packaging in the United States by Dr C. E. Warne, president of Consumers Union, N.Y., and reprinted in the Canadian Packinghouse Worker.

Modern Packaging

Deception in modern packaging is all too common and the wary consumer will find many different examples in her supermarket.

Some common products take advantage of the hurried shopper by printing the net weight or net fluid measure in tiny type, on a non-contrasting colour and/or in an inconspicuous place. (In Canada this applies only to products not covered by the new labelling regulations of the Food and Drug Directorate.)

Standards Needed

Packagers often use odd weights and measures instead of standard units, such as 8 ounces or one-half pound, one pound, 8 fluid ounces, one pint, one quart, etc. This practice makes the determination of the unit price of competing brands or of different sizes of the same brand virtually impossible and facilitates hidden price increases.

For instance, the small bottles of four competing brands of soft drinks contain 6, 6¼, 6½ and 7 ounces respectively. One manufacturer packs 12 ounces of coffee in a can exactly the same size and shape used by others for one pound. Similarly, for the same price and in virtually identical bottles you can buy either "one quart" or "1 pint 12 ounces" of liquid cleaner.

Confusion Reigns

Confusion is also caused by such meaningless designations as "Giant" or "King Size." (There is no Small Size). Toilet soaps, not required by law to print the net weight on the label, carry only the designations "Hand Size" and "Bath Size." The confusion is compounded as the 'same' size in similar products, for example "Giant Size" detergents, may have different net weights. Also, such diverse products as detergents, cereals and toothpaste are all packed in "Regula Size" containers of vastly different net weights or measures.

Regular Price?

When a manufacturer offers a product at a special price it is usually impossible to find the same product at the regular price to check whether the sale price is genuine. Some brands seldom or never sell for the "regular" price.

The large size is not always cheaper. Complicated arithmetic occasionally shows that the per unit cost of a smaller size is lower.

A national manufacturer offers two brands of toilet tissue. The consumer is led to believe that she will save by buying the cheaper brand. Investigation showed, however, that the more expensive and presumably better quality brand had more sheets per roll and that the "cheaper" brand was actually 22.5 per cent more expensive.

Packaging to Price

Another practice is referred to by manufacturers and other in the trade as "packaging to price;" by consumers as "hiding a price increase!"

A well-known brand of shredded wheat adopted a new package with a face more than one half again as large as before. The price stayed the same but the net weight dropped from 12 ounces to 10½ ounces, representing an effective price increase of about 15 per cent.

The old box of one brand of paper napkins had a count of 80 which was prominently displayed on the face. The new box, exactly the same size and price, has only 70—and the count is printed in faint pink on white near the bottom of the back of the package.

Other deceptions are: packaging in exaggerated size and shapes; using misleading artwork on the package face; concealing the fat or bone waste in prepackaged meat; featuring boxtop premium offers of questionable value.

Read the Label

There are precautions the consumer can take. Always read the label on a package. Note the net contents. Buy the brand that declares its net contents in standard weights and measures and in large, clear type on the face of the package or bottle. Compare the unit prices of competing brands and of different size of the same brand to determine your best buy. Look for the slack fill in packages or bottles and buy the brand that appears to be fullest.

Complain

Tell your store manager and write the manufacturer about a package or bottle you believe is deceptively labelled, filled or priced. The consumer still has the major responsibility of protecting herself against deception.

DRAPERIES IN PANELS HAVE ADVANTAGES

Instead of usng two large traverse draperies across your window wall, try hanging your window dressing in six or eight small sections. Just slipstitch the sections together along the side hems.

Then when a soil spot shows up, you can simply remove that one section for cleaning.

It's a good idea, too, to have spare sections on hand. Replacing one small panel saves time and money.

EXCAVATION SERVICES

We have equipment to do your excavating and trenching. We are equipped with two back hoes and 'dozers to look after your primary excavation needs. Call us for estimates on cellar digging, trenching, supplying cement blocks, tiles, sand, gravel and fill.

Many cards of congratulation were received and a letter from his Excellency, the Governor-General and Madame Vanier, on behalf of Queen Elizabeth was read.

QUIET SQUEAKY STEPS

Squeaky stairs can usually be quieted by driving thin wedges between the under side of the stair treads and the bottom of the grooves in the stair casing.

If you can't get at the under side of the stairs try driving finishng nails through the top of the step into the riser. Drive the nails at an angle to get the maximum holding power.
