United Counties Council--

3 villages and 11 seats to go? Council considers cutbacks

CORNWALL — The United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry could lose three municipal entities or 11 deputy reeves or both if recommendations aimed at reducing the number of representatives at the council table are brought into being.

In an attempt by the present 33 members of council, to reduce what they term "unwarranted numbers" to a somewhat more realistic figure, two proposals have been placed on the 1973 agenda.

Their goal could be achieved by: 1. obtaining a Private Bill and increase the number of municipal electors required to entitle a municipality to a deputy reeve to a number in excess of that which is presently provided in the Municipal Act; 2. by the possible amalgamation of certain of the smaller populated constituent municipalities.

The proposals were brought about simply for economic reasons. There are 33 members, reeves and deputy reeves, on council who represent 20 municipalities in the counties - a total of 48,146 people. The opinion of council was that this number could be reduced at a savings to the taxpayer and still maintain efficient service.

Three municipalities were considered for amalgamation - the villages of Finch, Lancaster and Maxville, with their respective townships of Finch, Lancaster and Kenyon. These three were selected due to their population of less than 1,000 each and assessment of under $1 million.

On the other hand a Private Bill could raise the number of voters qualifying a municipality for a deputy reeve to more than 2,500. At the present time 1,000 voters are required to constitute a deputy.

Eleven municipalities within the counties would lose their right to elect a deputy reeve if the minimum was raised by 1,500 electors.

Implementing either proposal would require the assistance of all provincial members of parliament in the counties, since the Ontario Government has to approve and pass legislation before any changes can be endorsed.

The ideas will undergo extensive consideration by council members before any action is taken.

Off to a bouncing start in 1973 Winchester Mem. records first birth

WINCHESTER — While most had a holiday Monday, the proverbial stork was kept uncommonly busy New Year's Day making no less than four trips to the maternity ward at Winchester District Memorial Hospital.

For the second year in a row, Winchester lead all other hospitals in the S.D.G. area with the first baby of the new year. At 12.29 p.m. Monday, Dr. Howard Justus delivered the first baby of 1973 to the proud parents, Mr and Mrs Brock St. Dennis of Vernon. The baby boy weighed 4 lbs., 12 oz.

Later that afternoon at 3.03 p.m., Mr and Mrs Erwin Picard of Morrisburg were presented with a baby girl. Dr Graham Houze delivered the 9 lb., 4 oz. infant.

Mr and Mrs Keith Hess of Elma were next in the unprecedented lineup of new arivals, as again Dr. Howard Justus brought a 7 lb. baby boy into the world at 3.30 p.m.

Last but not least was a little girl for Mr and Mrs Gerritt Sluikus of R.R.1, Wiliamsburg, delivered by Dr. Wayne Domanko at 7.12 p.m.

According to Winchester Hospital spokesman, this was the most number of babies born on New Year's Day in recent years, and with the hospital working with a skeleton staff "just enough."

The Morrisburg Loyalists weren't quite as lucky as Greg Sullivan last Thursday night when they met the Embrun Panthers, here in Chesterville Arena in an exhibition hockey game Morrisburg went home with a 7 - 3 defeat. while Greg, son of Mrs Betty Sullivan, took a brand new bicycle home with him. The Chesterville boy was winner of a draw sponsored by the Morrisburg team. The prize was donated by Charlie's Sport Shop, Morrisburg. Above Greg and his bike receive admiration from Murray Ball (left), team official, and Reeve Keith Graham, who made the draw. — Staff Photo.

Snow costs mount-Twps. spend $70M annually

It costs taxpayers approximately $70,000 in 1972 to remove snow from roadways in four townships in the Chesterville area. All projected budgets were overspent to some degree and the 1972-73 winter doesn't look as though it will be any less expensive.

Glen MacGregor, Clerk of Winchester Township, said his council had spent some $13,400 to keep roads open up to the end of November of this year. Although the December costs weren't calculated yet, it was estimated that at least another $3,000 would be spent.

Winchester Township Council had budgeted $12,000 for the annual job and were looking at a similar expenditure for 1973.

Mr MacGregor noted that the 1972 figure was lower than that of 1970 which reached an all time high of $22,000. The annual expenditure has increased steadily in recent years, costing approximately $8,000 a year in the late 1960's.

The Township has two plows and two graders engaged in the wintry battle.

Finch Township council had projected their costs at $14,000 but in actual fact, at the end of the road year, December 15, the sum had reached $14,437. This was also a substantial reduction from the unprecedented snowfall of two years ago where the cost surpassed the $30,000 mark.

Clerk Arnott Empey said the township employs one truck and one grader of its own and rents a grader and another snowplowing vehicle for the season.

Osnabruck Township hopes to stay within their budget of $20,000 in 1973 although the same figure last year was surpassed by actual costs of $22,348. Road superintendent Garnet Ezard said the township owns two graders and three truck plows.

Although actual figures for Roxborough Township weren't available Clerk W. E. Wright said the municipality had operated very close to the projected $15,000 expenditure. He said the 1973 costs would be similar. Roxborough owns two graders and one plow and hires by tender another piece of equipment to maintain about 25 miles of roadway.

One of the main reasons cited for the overspending was the substantial snowfall in December of 1972, betwen 36" and 40", compared to the almost nil amount during the same period in 1971.

Bits and Pieces

'Mercy Message' heard in Chesterville

During the days immediately following the devastating Central America earthquake, recently, the only reliable means of communication was by radio.

Following is a short wave radio message Tom Lapierre of Chesterville received on his set: "medical supplies, water purifiers, food, blankets — due to earthquake planes are unable to land and take off — the supply of gas and oil has been lost due to ruptured storage tanks — there is a mass exodus leaving the area due to the fear of more quakes — fire has broken out and is uncontrolled due to lack of water — there are cracks in the ground, some quite large — streets and roads have disappeared — there is no electric power."

Minister to be Inducted

Mr. George Tattrie of Montreal will be ordained and inducted as minister of Morewood - Chesterville Presbyterian Churches this Friday night in ceremonies in the Morewood Church. Born in Nova Scotia, Mr. Tattrie comes to this area from McGill University, where he studied for his Phd.

Officiating at the 8 p.m. service will be Rev. Leslie Renault of Brockville, Rev. L. J. Cowper of Spencerville, Rev. A. J. Ramsey of Westport, Rev. David Mawhinney of Prescott, Rev. Ralph Neil of Winchester, Mr. D. N. Henry, Clerk of Presbytery and Doug Hunter of Morewood. Mr. Tattrie will fill the positon vacated by Rev. E. Earle Eaton who retired two years ago.

Mark 55th Anniversary

Life long residents of the Chesterville area, Mr and Mrs Delbert A. Dillabough marked their 55th Wedding Anniversary quietly at their home December 26. Over the years, the couple have been active in church and community affairs and are well known throughout the area. Following World War I service, Mr Dillabough and his wife took up residence at the family home south of Chesterville. They have two daughters, Mrs Don Carlyle (Berneyce) of Morewood, and Mrs Martin Ballantyne (Doonie) of Ottawa.

Hockey enthusiasts reap benefits

A number of Chesterville and area residents were lucky winners of draws sponsored by the Morrisburg Loyalists Hockey team during an exhibition game at the Chesterville Arena on Boxing Day. Greg Sullivan took home a brand new bicycle donated by Charlie's Sport Shop, Morrisburg, while Brian McMillan, Chesterville, won the 50-50 draw the same night claiming $41.25. Three other team draws included $75 donated by the Loyalist Hotel, won by Harry Thompson, South Mountain; $50 in clothing from the Clothing Barn, won by Ruth Campbell, Morrisburg; and $15 donated by Cruikshank Construction won by Saul Rosenfield, Morrisburg.

Loyalists returning on Sunday

Senior Hockey will return to Chesterville this weekend as the Morrisburg Loyalists host the Gananoque Merchants, Sunday, January 7 at 7.30 p.m. in the Chesterville and District Community Arena. Officials, pleased with the turnout at the Boxing Day exhibition game, are looking for a crowd to at least equal or surpass the 650 in attendance December 26.

Area couple honoured at Winter home

Arthur and Eurith Ball, long time residents of Chesterville, were honoured at a dance in their winter home of Zephyrhills, Florida, on the occasion of their 50th Anniversary, December 13. The affair was held in the Zephyrhills Tourist Club.

Promotions reflect growing complexity of Nestle (Canada) Ltd. plant operations

Two Nestle (Canada) Ltd. employees have taken a step up the promotional ladder, it was announced this week by Chesterville plant manager J. D. Moonie.

H. Fay Shaver, factory accountant since 1956, will be assuming duties in a first time position as factory comptroller while Frank Cook, assistant accountant for the past five years, will begin the new year as chief of that department.

The position of comptroller was created at Nestle due to the growing complexity of the food processing plant. In recent years the company has expanded substantially, until today it is manufacturing 80 percent of all Nestle products sold in Canada.

Mr Shaver, in his new capacity will virtually be a herdsman of the entire plant operation, guiding certain financial policies, making special studies of financial systems and in plant procedures.

He joined the firm in 1940, working initially in the production end until 1952 when he moved to cost control. Four years later he became factory accountant.

Mr Shaver has taken several Registered Industrial Accountants courses and in 1964 studied at a special standard costing course in Switzerland.

A native of Brockville, Frank Cook joined the firm in 1967 as assistant accountant. Previously employed at Phillips' Electric and Dupont Canada Ltd., he will be assuming Mr Shaver's duties as manager of the day to day financial operations, in charge of cost and ledger controls. Mr Cook has also studied Industrial Accounting Courses.

Both promotions were effective January 1st, 1973.

No serious mishaps holiday weekend

Provincial Police detachments in Stormont and Dundas Counties report a relatively quiet holiday weekend with only a few minor accidents attributed mainly to the treacherous road conditions.

Winchseter Provincial Police say they had no accidents at all from Friday night until Tuesday morning with only the theft of a tape deck from a parked car creating an investigation.

Morrisburg detachment was kept humming Sunday with a rash of cars which had skidded from the Highway 401 arena into the median.

The most serious accident was a one car crash on Highway 2 west of Iroquois which resulted in two minor injuries and some $200 damage.

Const. John Watson who investigated said an eastbound car driven by Ewan Graham, 21, of Woodstock, Ontario, collided with some wooden guard rails two miles west of Iroquois, around 2.40 p.m. Sunday.

The drivers' wife, Julie, aged 19, and another passenger, Mrs Beverley Good of London. Ontario, suffered shoulder and whiplash injuries and were treated at Winchester District Memorial Hospital and later released.

At 3 a.m. Sunday a two car collision two miles north of Osnabruck Centre on County Road 14 resulted in no injuries but an estimated $800 damage.

Long Sault Prov. Police said vehicles operated by Ronald MacLeod, 22, of Finch, and Gerald Sullivan, 20, of Finch sustained $400 damage each in the mishap.

A complete police report was not available. Const. Terry Rutherford investigated.

One-East patients entertained at Auxiliary Christmas Party

The Volunteers of the Winchester District Hospital Auxiliary who work on the One East (Chronic) Wing of the hospital, held a Christmas party for the patients on Wednesday, December 20. The wing was gaily decorated with garlands and wreaths many of which were made by the patients and volunteers who have been working hard for the past few weeks.

Violins, clarinets and an organ provided the accompaniment for the Christmas carols that were sung enthusiastically by the patients, staff, visitors and volunteers. Musical selections were played by the ladies from Chesterville who made up the orchestra.

The highlight of the afternoon was a visit from Santa Claus who had a little parcel and a tangerine for each patient.

A delicious luncheon of tea, fancy sandwiches and Christmas cookies was enjoyed by all present.

Editorial Comment . . .

The Monday Morning of a New Year

If you were educated at one of the now-extinct one-room schoolhouses you will probably recall the weekly practice of washing the blackboards and cleaning out the brushes every Friday afternoon in preparation for a new lesson in a new week.

Well, if you stretch your imagination you can probably liken the school day ritual to ending an old year in preparation for a new lesson in a new year. This past week-end everyone sort of wiped the 1972 slate clean and we're sure many had a heck-of-a-good time clapping out some very dirty brushes.

School is back in session again and we're about to pick up the chalk and outline a suggested course of study we wish everyone would at least read — and of course we hope some of it sinks in.

First of all, we might begin by recapping some of the lessons of '72.

Probably the most significant program was the new Chesterville and District Arena. We were glad to see everyone participate in the venture. It took a lot of studying and many hours of extra-curricular work but it certainly was worth the effort. As far as we are concerned everyone passed with honours, and it's one of those things where the value can't be measured in dollars and cents alone.

We've heard it said it's one of the nicest arenas in the Ottawa Valley and although we're not partial, we agree. We hope the facility is used to its best possible potential, even if it does cost the taxpayer a few dollars.

Another thing we learned in 1972 was that the people of Morewood can yell just as loud as we can. We sort of got on their bad side with an editorial comment and we'll be sure to turn our hearing aids down before we come out swinging in that area again.

We were sorry to see a few business drop-outs during the year — it's not only an economic blow but no one likes to see a vacant store. It's like seeing an old friend die. We hope in the new year the initiative of a couple of Chesterville merchants spreads into more new stores or extensive renovations. On the other hand we welcome our new business people and hope they enjoy continued success in 1973.

In social studies we took a couple of swipes at Family Fun Day and Chesterville Fair. Our main objective here was to generate some changes. With the annual meeting of the fair board coming up this month, we hope the executive will at least consider a few changes and improvements for the fair. And when the organizers of 'family fun day' put their heads together we hope they will contemplate the idea of raising rates, not just for the purpose of making more money, but also to create a day of quality entertainment.

We sincerely hope we have a dryer sumer than this past year.

Although the government was eager to look at the devastated farm lands, it was really just a day out of the office for elected representatives. If Mother Nature could strike a more even balance it would be greatly appreciated. She seems to be the only official who can offer adequate assistance.

Winchester Township Roads are in much better condition now, except for an excess of snow, and we also have put a cover on our garbage trailer. We're sure everyone appreciates both these moves — we do.

Now, projects and programs for the coming year — where do you begin? First of all we would like to see some thought given to doing something with the park pavillion. We've suggested a medical centre, but any other good idea would certainly be better than it sitting idle a good part of the time.

Maybe someone could write an essay of 250 words or less about "Why Chesterville Needs A Dentist". Holy toothache!, it would be nice to have a resident 'tooth puller' here — maybe he could set up an office in the medical centre.

To the snowmobilers we wish a safe new year. With faster, lighter machines flying around we've been lucky no one has been seriously injured or killed. One possibility is that more use be made of the snowmobile club house — more gatherings of the clan, more straight, clean and sober fun.

Maybe Chesterville Village Council could look into the establishment or enforcement of a by-law compelling all store and home owners to keep their properties in tidy and safe repair. We notice that some windows, damaged by Hollowe'en vandals, have still not been replaced. It's not really our business but it doesn't add anything to the shopping area and if the broken glass ever comes crashing out, someone could get seriously hurt.

We hope the by-pass operations have no ill effects on the village during its construction period. Some reovations are required in Chesterville and we would hate to see any slump in business like during the sanitary sewer construction days.

One suggested program which could cause some problems is the Nation River dredging plans. We sincerely hope that whatever happens it causes no ill effects for the community or local industry.

And while we're looking forward to another successful Winter Carnival we doubt that the problem of not enough snow will hamper activities this year. In fact we wish the darn stuff would lay-off until December of 1973.

What about the 'Record'? We're soon going to enter into the age of computerized production and our major problem will be in trying to keep up to the machinery. Early in the new year we hope to offer you (what we consider) a better product and continually provide better service.

BUILDING FOR POWER, 1972: A four-month strike had little effect on field construction of Ontario Hydro's generating stations to meet provincial power demands.

At Nanticoke generating station on Lake Erie, the final section of a second cooling water intake was installed (top left). First power flowed in January, and completion is slated for 1977.

Formwork progressed for turbine blocks (top centre) at Lennox generating station on Lake Ontario near Kingston. Hydro's first totally oil-fired plant is due to provide initial power in 1974.

The vacuum building internal structure (top right) for Bruce nuclear station on Lake Huron was completed in December. Sixty-four columns 4 feet in diameter support a dousing tank, part of the nuclear containment system. Construction at Bruce will continue through the late '70s.

Fresh and spent fuel for Pickering nuclear station reactors is handled by remote-controlled fuelling machines (bottom right). The plant, east of Toronto on Lake Ontario, was officially opened February 25 and is scheduled to be completed this year.

Use of a tree planter capable of moving trees twenty-eight feet tall (bottom left) is an example of Hydro's continuing aesthetic improvement program throughout Ontario.

Report from Queen's Park

by Donald R. Irvine

The Second Session of the 29th Parliament ended on December 15th after an exhausting all-night sitting. It is expected that the next session of the Legislature will open some time in February.

It occurred to me that you might be interested in a brief review of some of the important highlights of the past session.

Urban Transportation Policy

In late November, Mr Davis announced what may well become the most important single achievement of the present government. Hailed by municipal leaders and editorial writers alike as 'breathtaking' and 'imaginative', the policy can make Ontario a world leader in integrated transportation planning. The new transportation system will combine fast, silent, pollution-free vehicles with other transportation modes to provide an attractive alternative to high-rise, high-density living and suburban sprawl. Through a combination of planning, development and subsidy it envisions a 'people first.. transportation system which will permit orderly development, improve the quality of urban life and conserve our land resources at reasonable cost to the taxpayers.

Education

The Ministry of Education will not approve new school construction until it has been shown that the need for new accommodation exists and is not available from another school board in the same geographic area. This policy adopts the recommendation of the Committee on the Costs of Education and is aimed at avoiding waste and duplication in school facilities by ensuring that the public and separate school boards consult each other on a regular basis regarding enrolment matters and available accommodation.

The Ministry of Colleges and Universities announced a deceleration in the flow of capital support to post-secondary institutions. Essentially, building projects will be limited to those already under construction. This pause will provide the Government and the institutions with an opportunity to study current enrolment trends and to examine existing inventories of space.

Health

The major thrust of the Ministry is directed to change away from a hospital-oriented society. This has produced a new emphasis on such things as extended care service, home care, nursing homes, chronic care and self-care units. This was given further impetus by the limitation of capital funds for active treatment hospitals and the elimination or amalgamation of duplicated obstetrical facilities. The determination to control costs in the interest of taxpayers is evident in the proposal to restrain increased operation budgets to 5 percent of 1972 costs.

Legislation was enacted to create a new profession of denture therapists for the taking of impressions for, fitting and making removable dentures.

Economic Nationalism

Amendments to The Business Corporations Act which were introduced in the spring received third reading in December. This Act requires that a majority of the directors of Ontario incorporated companies must be resident Canadians and sets out January 1, 1975, as the date by which all companies must comply.

Winter Works Programme

The Treasurer unveiled a $50 million winter works programme designed to provide 29,000 temporary jobs during the peak unemployment months. Because of its proven success last year, the winter spending is concentrated on the Municipal Employment Incentive Programme which provides 100 per cent grants to local governments for hiring temporary workers who would otherwise be receiving welfare or unemployment insurance payments.

Boost In Social Assistance Payments

Increases in allowances under the Family Benefits Programme, effective January 1, 1973, were announced which will result in an additional expenditure of $16 million in the first full year. Approximately 82,000 Ontario residents benefit from the programme and the current adjustments are varied to ensure that those who are most afected by the rising cost of living will receive the greatest revision.

Disclosure of Political

In a statement to the legislature in December, the Premier announced that legislation would be presented in the near future to provide for disclosure of political donations. In addition to this committment, many other aspects of this question will be referred to the Ontario Commission of the Legislature. Mr Davis' purpose in creating such legislation is to maintain a political system in which the various political parties can function and campaign for public support freely and openly and . . . . in an atmosphere above and beyond public doubt, suspicion or cynicism."

May 1973 bring you a full share of happiness and prosperity.

Ann Landers . . .

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please print my letter as close to New Year's Eve as possible? Our dad and mom won't be here to celebrate this year because last New Year's Eve a drunk driver was going the wrong way on a one-way street. The result was a horrible head-on collision. Both Mom and Dad were dead when the police pulled them out of the wreck. The drunk driver didn't get but a few scratches. His wife, however, will spend the rest of her life in a wheelchair.

Nobody plans to get drunk on New Year's Eve. They just want to "let off steam" or "celebrate." So, please Ann, tell the celebrators to take a taxi or ask someone who doesn't drink to do the driving. It could save thousands of lives and a lifetime of heartache. — Uncounted Victims of a Drunken Driver

Dear Uncounted: Here's your letter - on December 31st. I am certain that somewhere, someone who reads your letter will be alive tomorrow because you wrote it. My thanks to you for saying something that needed to be said - and you said it in a way that only an "Uncounted Victim" could.

Dear Ann Landers: A sad thing occurred in our home a few days ago and I need to know what to do about it.

in the kitchen. A new friend of my son's stole the wallet. I realized it was missing shortly after he left our home. There was a slight possibility that I had dropped the wallet while shopping earlier that day, but I took a calculated risk and put it to the boy in a way that made him think I was positive he had taken it.

"I'll bring it right back," he said, "But please don't tell my folks." I promised I wouldn't say anything and within 30 minutes the boy brought the wallet to me.

Now the dilemma: The lad is only 13 years old. Should I tell his parents? I want to do the right thing, but I don't know what it is. Can you help me? — Concerned For Someone Else's Child

Dear Concerned: Do NOT, repeat, do NOT tell the boy's parents. Almost invariably, young people who steal are trying to compensate for something that is missing in their lives, usually parental love. If you betray the lad, you might completely destroy his faith and confidence in all adults.

Please invite the boy back for a private talk. Make a friend of him. Explain why what he did was wrong. Tell him how stealing can ruin his life. Let him know he has a problem that needs talking about. Encourage him to talk to his parents, and to confess, if possible. If he says he cannot talk to his parents, urge him to talk to his favourite teacher, or to an understanding clergyman. Here is a child who needs help. If you can lead him to it, you will have performed a most valuable service.

Dear Readers: Tomorrow is the beginning of a new year - a splendid time to make a fresh beginning. Here are a few suggestions from me to you.

If you eat too much, drink too much, smoke too much and aren't getting enough exercise, now is the time to resolve that you will start tomorrow to be good to yourself.

First: You know what and how much you should eat, nobody has to tell you.

Second: Throw away those coffin nails. Put an end to the hacking and coughing and the holes in your clothes. Reduce your chances of lung cancer and heart disease.

Third: Get going on an exercise routine - in other words, get control of your life. Do these three things and you will look better, feel better, play better, and live longer. Not a bad bargain in exchange for giving up a few gluttonous habits. If you get with it folks, 1973 is sure to be healthier, happier and more productive than 1972. God bless you all and may the New Year be your best. — Ann Landers

Unemployment Statistics Can Mislead!

The unemployment rate is one of the most closely watched and most talked-about statistics in Canada. It is also, perhaps, one of the least understood. according to the Statistics Canada official responsible for its compilation.

Since unemployment affects the lives of so many Canadians, it is not surprising that the figure which summarizes the employment and unemployment situation every month receives so much attention. And summaries, while essential for many purposes, can be misleading if they are not carefully interpreted.

"A summary figure like the unemployment rate" says Peter Hicks, chief of Statistics Canada's Labour Force Survey Section," "depends on so many variables that one must use care in drawing definitve conclusions from it. It is much better to look at changes in theunemployment rate over a number of months, rather than relying only on month - to - month comparisons."

When the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate goes up from say 5.8 per cent to 6.0 per cent over a given month, Mr Hicks says, it could mean any one or a combination of several things.

It could mean that a large number of men and women with families to support lost their jobs and were successful in finding new work.

Or it might simply mean that more students were looking for summer work that month than had been the case a month earlier.

Or some part of the increase might be due to an irregularity, such as the indirect effect of a strike in one industry which forced several plants to close down because of lack of materials normally supplied by the struck companies.

And the possibility must also be kept in mind that the "sample" of families interviewed to obtain these figures does not precisely reflect the national experience. Sampling variability as this is called. could account for a minor part of the change recorded, although the degree of error due to this cause is carefully controlled by Statistics Canada.

Since it would be manifestly impossible to interview every one of the nearly nine million men and women who make up Canada's labour force, Statistics Canada surveys only a sample of 30,000 households to produce its employment and unemployment figures.

Sampling is a tried and proven statistical technique which enables accurate conclusions about a whole society to be drawn from the replies of only some of its members. Thus, in the labour force survey, 800 field representatives interview 30,000 families every month. A questonnaire is completed for each member of a household 14 years of age or over, producing a total of more than 70,000 questionnaires per month.

Each family is asked general questions about the activity of each member over 14 during the preceding week. This is a short enough period to be readily recalled, but long enough to avoid the fluctuations which a reference period of only one day might produce.

The members of the 30,000 households are asked whether. during the past week, they were (a) working, (b) looking for work (including those who indicate they would have looked for work except that they were ill, were on a prolonged layoff, or believed no work available in the community), (c) employed but not at work because of illness or vacation, (d) permanently unable to work, (e) going to school, keeping house, retired or voluntarily idle. These replies are coded and used to determine whether a person is unemployed, employed. or not in the labour force.

Any member of the household who worked in the reference week, even for only a few hours, or who had a job but was not at work due to illness or vacation, is shown as employed. Anyone who was (a) without work and has demonstrated an immediate interest in finding work (either by actively seeking it or indicating that he would have looked for work except for special circumstances or (b) temporarily laid off from his job, is shown as unemployed.

Anyone who is going to school, keeping house, permanently unable to work. retired of voluntarily idle, is consdered not to be a part of the labour force.

The unemployment rate is a figure which shows the labour force as a percentage of the population aged 14 and over.

Each selected household stays in the sample for six consecutive months and rotation is staggered so that one-sixth of the households are new to the sample each month. This not only eases the burden on respondents by freeing them from the task of answering questionnnaires after six months but, by ensuring a constant change in the makeup of the sample, keeps the data fresh and dynamic, in keeping with the nature of the society being surveyed.

Keeping 360-65 Happy

"Well, I don't think we have to worry about machines taking over," said a forest technician who had just finished a short review course for scalers at the Larose Forest Headquarters.

"You can't get a computer to walk around the forest measuring logs," he chuckled.

Maybe not, but one computer - IBM 360-65 in a government building in Toronto somewhere - is making hundreds of Ministry of Natural Resources scalers go back to school, even if its just for one day.

Everyone wants to keep 360-65 happy about the information its getting. Take your average human machine. Ver-ry unreliable unit at times. There he is, clipboard and tally sheets in one hand, pencil in the other in front of a pile of freshly-cut logs in the bush. Maybe it's four below and he's shivering, maybe a mosquito sinks in just as he's about to write a zero which ends up looking like a figure six. Back in the office he might forget to write in the code number for his district in the district code box. Tiny mistakes that are very infrequent and always caught, but which may cost a minute's delay when one of the four keypunch girls in Toronto converts the information on the new special scaling tally cards to a computer card. 360-65 doesn't like delays. That's why scalers like the 16 who attended the Larose Forest review course are double checking the proper way to make out the new tally sheets.

Computer's aren't taking over, but they are changing the complexion of many government jobs, including some in the Ministry of Natural Resources. The Ministry manages hundreds of thousands of acres of Crown Land and the county and township forest land across Ontario. When it's time to thin stands or harvest mature trees, local companies bid on contracts and begin the cutting operation. The volume of timber that piles up on the skidways has to be measured before being shipped to the mills - and that is the job of the scalers. Some companies have their own scalers and the Ministry scalers double check so neither company nor the taxpayer loses. In the timber business, scaling is a crucially important job, especially when the margin of error must be low and like last year, approximately 400 million cubic feet of timber for primary use by industry is involved.

No one, especially scalers, really scoff at computers. With simpler tally sheets to complete and less arithmetic and writing to be done, everyone's happier. Tally sheets pour into Toronto from all over the province and 360-65 does all the addition, estimating and calculating with all the required variations in a flash. Before, harried scalers far too busy to keep a running count on each company's volume, had to spend a month including many weekends preparing figures and invoices at the end of the fiscal year. Now volumes, are calculated and invoices sent out monthly from Toronto to each company. Overtime is kept to a minimum and scalers are freed for other Ministry jobs. And the computer doesn't make mistakes. Every twist and variation of measuring any species of log volume has been built into its scaling program, plus safeguards to double check.

Just as important the Ministry has at its finger tips precise records on every phase of the public land timber harvest in Ontario for the past five years. The information is available instantly for research and program planning.

Everything is speeded up. Some timber companies are processing logs the same day they are cut in the forest. Also with monthly invoices the government collects almost immediatley and avoids losing the interest on money it once had to wait for because of a slower system. With a large part of the pulpwood harvest measured by weight now at weigh scales where company and Ministry scalers are on duty, the timber industry is moving faster and more efficiently.

No wonder everyone wants to keep 360-65 happy.
