Chesterville council holds inaugural meeting

Positions, payrolls, problems extends meeting to Thursday

Chesterville council, the new two-year variety, was sworn in Monday night at 8 p.m. by clerk Lloyd Graham. Reeve James Brannen and councillors Harry Allison, Fred S. Coons, Ernest Kelly and Archie Black were elected by acclamation. Archie Black, although new to council, has had considerable school board experience.

Father J. J. Collins of St. Mary's church led in prayer at the inaugural meeting. In a few brief remarks, Father Collins commented on the new forms of government slated for the province and observed that democracy was once more losing a foothold in the guise of progress.

Council passed a by-law authorizing the borrowing of up to $60,000 to meet current expenses until taxes are collected. The rate of interest, incidentally, on this amount is 6¾%.

It was decided to charge the Conservatory of Music $100 for business tax for the year 1969. If the public wishes to use the new photostat copier in the clerks' office there will be a charge of 50c per sheet.

Andrew Jennings will receive 2% holiday pay for the year 1967.

The clerk announced that the Ontario Municipal Board hearing re sewers will be held at 11 o'clock, Thursday, January 30. Representatives, including a consulting engineer, are expected to be in attendance. Those appealing against the proposed sewage system, 57 in all, will be notified by registered letter of the hearing. Council will also advertise the event in the "Record."

A report was available concerning the low rental housing survey of 1962. It was found that demand was practically nonexistent, with three questionnaires returned. It was apparent that a sewage collection system must be available in the village before such a proposal would be considered by government officials.

Council will be represented at the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities convention in Hamilton February 10-11 and at the Good Roads Association convention slated for Toronto February 24.

Harold Sharkey, town foreman, was authorized to attend a five-day road course at Guelph.

Salary Changes

Clerk-treasurer Lloyd Graham will receive $1,000 per annum more this year, bringing his salary to $7,000. Mr Graham is also entitled to 20 days sick leave per 12-month period.

Clerk's assistant Mrs Marlene Bazinet will now receive $70 per week, an increase of $10 per week, on a proposed two-year basis. She is entitled to one day per month sick leave in any 12-month period.

Due to increased operating costs, council agreed to comply with garbage collector Willis Cross' request for an increase to $280 per month from the present $260. Christmas tree pick-up will be on Tuesday, January 14.

N.D.D.H.S. Board holds final meeting

On Thursday, December 19th, the North Dundas District High School Board met officially for the last time. The ollowing Board members were present, namely, Frank Casselman (chairman), Leonard Moriarity (vice chairman), Ralph Allison, Eric Casselman, Gordon LaRose, L. Gallinger, Warren Jackson, Roger Warner, Ronald Lynch, Lloyd Dixon, Ian Reid (Business Administrator). Mr Jack Hatcher and Mr Angus Smith were present to represent the Advisory Vocational Committee. This final but momentous meeting was held in the library of the High School and chaired by Mr Frank Casselman. Although some unfinished business was completed the meeting will be remembered as each Board member spoke with dedication and fervour in the interest of what they called their school, outlining their participation in the organizing and building and equipping the school so that as they felt and some stated that it was the best school in the district. One Board member even stated that he thought it was the best school in the Dominion of Canada. Their deep concern seemed to be that they would hope that this interest would be continued. They were concerned with the urgency of retaining the standards of education that presently exists and to guarantee proper stewardship for the future.

Mr Frank Casselman spoke on behalf of the Board and thanked them for their co-operation and support and their dedication at all times.

Mr Lorne Thompson thanked the Board for inviting him to the meeting and stated that even though he was one member out of 16, he would do everything he could to urther the interests of this area.

The question of some liaison between the new County Board and the area residents was introduced and discussed. There was an unanimous feeling that the Province should go ahead and organize to this end. Therefore as soon as possible in January, a Home and School Parent

Thos. Lapierre hears world news

Thomas Lapierre, Albert Street, believes in hearing the news firsthand. A short wave radio enthusiast, he picked up the Apollo 8 broadcasts direct from the moon orbit. He and his sister, Miss Ethel Lapierre, heard the astronauts loud and clear.

This isn't the first time that Mr Lapierre has heard the astronauts broadcasting from space. He jotted down their frequency and now gets first-hand knowledge of the events as they occur. The receiver he uses the most is a Hallicrafters S107.

Taking a keen interest in world affairs, Mr Lapierre listens to the various world capitals and hears the news in the making. He is often amused at the propaganda broadcasts from China and Russia. He reports these government owned stations (broadcasting in English at certain times of the day) spend as much time attacking each other as they do the western world.

Avonmore A.O.T.S. hear guest speaker hold Ladies' Night

Guest speaker at the annual Ladies Night dinner, sponsored by the A.O.T.S. Men's Club of St. James United Church, Avonmore, was Reginald Norby, first secretary of the Norwegian Embassy at Ottawa.

In recent years Santa Claus is replacing Father Christmas's popularity. The Christmas festivities extend over a period of twelve days.

The guest speaker was introduced by Maldwyn Watkins and thanked by James Begg. Alex Gilbert, assistant to the Hon. L. Lamoureux, Speaker of the House of Commons, who arranged for Mr Norby's visit to Avonmore brought season's greetings from Mr Lamoureux. Mr Begg presented Mr Norby and Mr Gilbert with small gifts as tokens of apreciation.

CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

The season for New Year's resolutions is almost past. Here we are at the Castle and hardly anything has been done in that regard. While we would be the first to admit hardly anything need be done, others in the menage seem to feel otherwise.

First on the list is a cleaning program in the cellars of the rockpile. It seems our delightful habit of walking away from a discarded tool, bottle or firearm disturbs the vice president. She has offered several solutions to the matter. Perhaps this ancient Crumb had better make a resolution before one or two of the solutions take more tangible form. One needs to remember the nights are still cold and a companion on the family couch is welcome. Hardly worth risking the loss of, due to a lack of neatness in the nether regions.

Out on the wider horizons, we were chagrined to find the local municipal affairs got along just dandy. We nourished the evil hope that things would just go to pot when our ten-year-old attitudes were torn away from the council chambers. But things went along and went along, as in the fairy tale, and the heavens had no intention of falling. We subsided with a surly grumble and finally realized a new set of brooms need not sweep out all the bricks along with the loose dust.

We must hasten to assure a number of thirsty souls we have not forgotten them. The family mead has become a standby to such an extent we have been overwhelmed with a demand for the recipe. To those who are still waiting thirstily in the wings, we plan to check with the Winchester Press and see if they will print the recipe of the mead delight in their housekeeping columns. It is understood there is an underground movement up there to stay within the law but enjoy it too.

We must admit with a tinge of sadness to a large decline in our discipline, come the end of last year. For years we had declaimed about the soporific values of good old black and white television. Who needed colour to send one to sleep? Guess what? By the time Santa had made his rounds, the Castle was spouting colour from the west alcove and we still think we should have stood in bed. At the moment, we have looked at the parade out in Californy, stayed awake through half a hockey match and enjoyed every minute of the trampling the Colts gave the Vikings. One look at Judy LaMarsh spoiled an otherwise pleasant evening. She rounds out even more in colour than old b & w. Bonanza is still a mystery to the Castle. Back in other years, we looked at the Westerns in colour through the peephole in John Maxwell's projection room. One would hate to lose that pleasant memory, especially as John never did charge us to share his long evenings.

Colour TV does have certain built-in advantages. Late in the evening when the interest has flagged a bit in a roomful of people, turn on the TV. The immediate parade of experts to the magic eye to correct the colour is better than the program. Amazing what a twist here, a turn there and another dollop of pale people's potion can do to an actor's colour scheme. But we are old fashioned here at the Castle. We like a view of King Arthur's fortress in colour and a visit over Great Britain from end to end the other night almost made the device worthwhile. There is little doubt this land of ours comes through with overwhelming grandeur when the colour cameras are handled by experts.

This is a little late but: Happy New Year.

Maturity of attitude is the quality most needed to make a youngster into a good driver, says the Ontario Safety League in a recent release.

OPINIONS . . .
OURS AND OTHERS

Complex issue

The dairy industry in Ontario seems to have an incurable tendency to become more complex as time goes on. For instance, says the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder, there is now a deep controversy between two factions which outsiders and even most peope inside the industry find difficult to understand.

Not in the hope of clarifying the situation, but rather to make some mention of the problems involved in re-organizing the dairy industry, which is the foundation of agriculture in this part of the country, we make reference to it.

When the Ontario Milk Marketing Board was formed, several years ago, it was widely hoped that some of the problems of the industry would be solved, and some rather radical measures were taken. Milk is or will soon be, bought and sold only by the board; milk is to be pooled, quotas are to be, or have been, set and adjusted.

This point involves a question which may not have been foreseen or, if it was, not properly dealt with early in the story. The approach of the OMMB is essentially the approach that milk is milk.

But over a period of years, at their own expense and enterprise, a group of dairymen favouring the Jerseys and Guernseys formed a tighter and apparently more successful organization than dairymen in general have ever been able to do. They promoted such products as Jersey and Guernsey milk with considerable success, and it is probably accurate to say that the Channel Island breed protagonists have done rather better in the dairy industry than breeders with the more usual breeds of dairy cow.

This created a situation of conflict. If the OMMB position that milk is milk is accepted, then the work of the Channel Island men over a period of years is largely nullified. Since people's livings are at stake, and in many cases considerable investment — even by city standards — are involved, it is not surprising that the Channel Island people are protesting vigorously and taking their case before the courts.

It is possible the two positions will prove irreconcilable and one or the other will have to give way. The majority of dairymen will regret the outcome of years of effort the OMMB has put into its program to reform the industry flounders on this rock. But it has to be admitted that more attention to this problem, given sooner, might well have resulted in a workable compromise.

Studded tires no cure-all

Suppose you are driving along at 20 miles an hour and find yourself on ice. You put on the brakes. How far will your vehicle slide?

Here are the answers, according to Bus & Truck Transport Magazine:

About 170 feet, if you have typical tires all around. And just about the same distance if you have regular snow tires on the driving wheels.

About 140 feet if you have studded snow tires on two wheels; and about 115 if you have studded snow tires on all four wheels — a skid reduction of 33 per cent or about three car lengths.

But there's a "but." These figures apply only to skids on ice close to 32 degrees Fahrenheit.

Research shows that of the half-dozen or so factors which bear on the relative effectiveness of studded tires, the temperature of the ice is at the top of th list.

Studs exert their greatest stopping power on ice near the melting point (where, incidentally, the ski hazard is greatest). As the ice temperature falls, the studs lose their effectiveness. At 10 degrees below zero, they're no better than snow tires.

Adding more lines of studs around the tire increases braking power, up to 260 studs. But simply adding studs in the same number of lines doesn't do any good to speak of.

Effectiveness of studded tires could be increased if new tire treads were designed, particularly by adding more lines for studs.

Braking on bare pavement, wet or dry, is hardly improved (one per cent) by up to 100 studs; up to four per cent, at most, with 144 studs.

Official piracy

Retaliation should always bear some relation to provocation. Israel has been provoked by the Arab hijacking of an Israeli airliner over Algeria last July and by the attack by two Arab commandoes on an Israeli airliner in Athens Thursday. But those acts were not manifestly government acts, states the Ottawa Journal. The raid by Israel on Beirut International Airport damaging $40,000,000 worth of aircraft and humiliating the largest airport in the Middle East, is more than retaliation. It is official piracy by government forces; it is criminally offensive destruction.

The UN may not be able to prevent the Arab-Israeli depravities that continually affront the civilization both peoples represent, but it can surely not evade finding the Israeli government flagrantly guilty in this instance of breaching the principles of UN and of civilized behaviour. If this act is "passed over" as just another Arab-Israeli incident, the escalation of these attacks is certain to be grim.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Something ugly and tragic has happened and I need your advice. My husband's young sister (only 23) was badly injured in a motel fire a few days ago. The doctors say she may never walk again. Unfortunately, she was sharing a room with a married man who was also injured, but not seriously.

The man, it happens, is a prominent member of the community and the publicity is ruining him and hurting his family. Our children, 10 and 13, read the story and saw the pictures in the papers and have asked us a million questions. We are trying to protect Aunt Nora (whom they adore) and it is not easy.

My husband's mother has interpreted this tragedy as a personal insult. She has told the children that Aunt Nora sinned and God punished her by burning her in a fire.

I feel it is terrible to put such ideas into the heads of children. My husband says, "Keep quiet; there is already enough trouble in the family." What do you say? — Heartache in L.A.

Dear L.A.: I say speak up at once and set your children straight. They should not be taught that God punishes sinners by visiting misfortune on them.

Explain to your children that you believe Grandma is wrong. Tell them good people as well as bad people have trouble in their lives and trouble has nothing to do with how we stand in the eyes of God. Unearned guilt can be a cruel burden.

* * * *

Dear Ann: Is it the wife's job to physically drag her husband out of bed in the morning so he won't be late for work?

Murray sets two alarm clocks and I know he hears them because he turns them off. But does he get up? No. He flops over and sleeps some more. I've tried everything under the sun to get him out of the sack, including waving a plate of bacon and eggs under his nose. Nothing helps.

Murray and I have been married four years and this is our biggest problem. He always leaves the house mad, yelling "You should have made me get up. It's your fault that I'm late. Is it, Ann Landers? I'll leave it to you.—Whipping Girl.

Dear Girl: I'll bet Murray's Mom dragged him out of bed all through school and now he expects you to do it. Tell your overgrown adolescent that he is responsible for getting himself to work on time and you will have no part of it. Once he gets it through his head that he can no longer depend on you (and then blame you for his lack of self-discipline) he'll haul his freight out of bed when the alarm goes off.

Confidential to Closet Full of Rags: Stop making excuses for yourself. Your lack of friends is in no way related to your "limited wardrobe." Of all the things you wear, the expression on your face is most important.

To illustrate how average speeds are increasing, the Ontario Safety League reports that in 1961 16 percent of cars using highway 401 drove above the limit of 60 mph, whereas in 1966 the figure had risen to 52 percent.

Higher speeds have a serious effect on tread life expectancy of tires. George F. Plummer, president of the Rubber Association of Canada says that, without qualification, the tire made 10 years ago if placed on a medern high-powered automobile, would not perform nearly as satisfactorily as a tire built today. The number of tire failures in Canada, due to manufacturing defect or accidental damage, has declined by 35% since 1958.

THE SOLITARY WOODLOT

In 1914 the last stick of firewood was hauled into the city of Ottawa from a solitary woodlot located at the corner of Albion and Lester Roads. By 1918 the barren area had produced a dense crop of young elms growing rapidly in the rich soil.

Over the years the city grew, houses ribboned in all directions along the roadways and firewood went out of style. The solitary woodlot was spared. In the late 1950's a Greenbelt was established around Ottawa, the urban sprawl was halted and the woodlot was left to develop into a stand of tall straight trees. In 1961 the Department of Lands and Forests entered into an agreement with the National Capital Commission for the management of forest lands in the Greenbelt. The solitary woodlot was assured of the best of care.

In 1966 and 1967 the dreaded Dutch Elm Disease, prevalent in Southern Ontario particularly in the Ottawa area for many years, suddenly made spectacular advances into areas not previously affected. The solitary woodlot was one of these. Beginning at the perimeters it invaded individual trees in the interior. By creating suitable breeding material in the form of dying trees it accelerated. The close growing elms were grafted together at the root hence the dead and dying would kill the living attached to them. In about five years the woodlot would be completely ravaged.

To make use of the wood while it is still usable a decision was made to clearcut the area and replant it to species of trees not susceptible to diseases of this type.

Again the solitary woodlot would be harvested. Its wood will not heat the homes of Ottawa but instead become part of a wall panel, a piece of furniture or some paper product. It will have served its purpose and start anew.

THE BIBLE TODAY . . .

A missionary in Uruguay paid a return visit to a town where he had previously distributed copies of an illuminated Scripture Selection, containing the parable of the Prodigal Son, to children who had gathered round his van. On the second visit he asked if just one child could come to the microphone and tell the story of "the boy who was lost." A forest of hands shot up; and whenever a child faltered in the story there were plenty of others to prompt him. The Scripture Selection had obviously been read and re-read during that week.

Yet . . . it was almost not printed at all! A Venezuelan artist had drawn a set of brightly coloured, modern illustrations for the Parable of the Prodigal Son. Although many pastors and Church committees were of the opinion that the drawings were unsuitable for the Word of God, the artist persisted and finally persuaded her Church to accept them. An edition of the Selection was published; the Bible Society in Venezuela took 100,0000 copies and sent samples to all Bible Society secretaries in Latin America. Their response was such that further editions of the Selection were quickly produced and already 1½ million copies have been distributed in the continent.

Here's a tip from the Ontario Safety League that may help the next time you get stuck in snow or mud. If one rear wheel is spinning, try applying slight pressure from the parking brake. This pressure applies power to the driving wheel, removes it from the wheel that is spinning, and may allow you to drvie out. But a shovel in the trunk is good insurance!

During 1968, Ontario Hydro was launched into the largest expansion program in its history at an unprecedented cost of $2 billion. In the next 10 years, nine power stations, seven of which are under construction, will more than double the generating capacity of Hydro's existing 73 stations. Because Ontario has ample supplies of uranium, but no coal, nuclear generation is preferred economically. End shields (lower right) and other reactor parts were delivered to Pickering, a nuclear power station east of Toronto. Even though most fuel must be imported, operating flexibility requires coal-fired stations. A giant bucket wheel (centre) provides the "teeth" of a computerized conveyor system which will deliver up to 2000 tons of coal an hour at the two-million-kilowatt Lambton station, near Sarnia. Aubrey Falls (lower left), a hydraulic plant on the Mississagi River, begins operation in 1969. During 1968, Hydro pioneered a technique of tightening live transmission lines to enable them to carry more power (upper right). The procedure saved building a new line. The year's prize for ingenuity, however, goes to two Hydro employees who used a mouse with a string attached to its tail to help thread a cable through an inaccessible duct at Douglas Point nuclear station. Ontario Hydro Photos

Crop Improvement meet slated for mid-January

The 1969 Soil and Crop Improvement conference will be held on Wednesday and Thursday, January 15 and 16, at the Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology, Kemptville, Ontario. This occasion will be the 21st annual meeting of the Eastern Ontario Associations and will attract over 800 agriculturalists, including delegates, farmers, agribusiness people and Department of Agriculture personnel, from the 11 Eastern Counties of Ontario.

The theme of the conference this year is "Corn: Managing Your Marketing." This theme was established due to the increase in interest of the corn crop, both for silage and grain. Production practices in growing corn have advanced rapidly in recent years. Eastern Ontario corn growers are now concerned about what they can do with this crop, once it is mature in the fall. The conference program suggests choices available to a corn grower and has speakers experienced in the uses of the corn crop who will address the conference.

Other topics covered during the conference are "Credit for Farm Operations," "The Price of and Marketing of Corn," as well as "Custom Harvesting of the Corn Crop." A panel discussion on each afternoon will allow audience participation and certainly attract interest in the program.

A further highlight of the conference will be the presentation of the H. Harris McNish Award on the afternoon of the second day. This award is given annually to the farmer giving most outstanding leadership in Eastern Ontario agriculture.

Closed circuit TV will be used to facilitate easier communication between the speakers and the large audience.

Conference programs will be available in advance of the conference from each county agricultural representative.

Local Hospital Auxiliary discusses canvass hold regular meeting

Mrs E. Casselman chaired a meeting of the Chesterville Memorial Hospital Auxiliary Executive on Dec. 4th at 8 p.m. to discuss the recent canvass of Chesterville and District which proved to be quite successful. Canvass convenor, Miss M. Casselman, reported 205 members and donations of more than $200. The support given to the Auxiliary was much appreciated and the canvassers were commended for their untiring efforts.

The main project of the Auxiliary of the hospital in Winchester last year was supplying the equipment for the physiotherapy department, amounting to over $8000. This is a credit to the hospital and has been beneficial to many patients. It is encouraging to know the district has a start towards another worthwhile project. The Auxiliary will also begin volunteer service for long-term patients in 1969.

Besides the canvass, the euchre and bridge Fall marathons were a social and financial success. They were held in the homes of auxiliary members and some members played or supplied in both groups. Mrs G. Johnston hosted the last euchre party with six tables. Mr F. Edgerton and Mrs L. Marcellus held the high score of 39 points. Close runners up were Mrs Johnston and Mrs G. Crawford. The profit for the euchre parties was $70.51. Several donations were given by players and non-players.

A pot-luck supper was the finale of the bridge marathon, held in the home of Mrs H. F. Shaver. Prize winners were Mrs J. Fulton, Mrs A. Butcher, Mrs A. Gillard and Mrs F. Edgerton. Proceeds from this group amounted to $64. Both groups will begin another marathon in mid-January. The winner of the Barbie doll draw at the hospital was Sonja Baldwin, Ottawa. Proceeds for this draw were $322.

The show case convener, Mrs F. Edgerton reported she had several hand-made articles on hand, donated by auxiliary members.

The interest shown in hospital work is greatly apreciated by Mrs Casselman and her executive and it is hoped that it will continue through 1969.

The 1971 Games will represent the third in the Canada Games series which began with the First Winter Games in Quebec City in 1967 and are being followed by the First Summer Games in Halifax and Dartmouth next August.

The Canadian Amateur Sports Federation, representative of the majority of national amateur sports governing bodies, is responsible for seeking bids from prospective host cities. John J. Hunnias, Montreal, President of the C.A.S.F. will be extending an open invitation to all cities through the provincial premiers within the next few weeks.

The Canada Games concept was estabished to provide a major multiple-sport event in Canada in the off-year between the Olympics, Pan-American and Commonwealth Games. In making the announcement, Mr Munro noted that in its short history the Canada Games have already stimulated the growth and development of several sports in Canada and have done much to encourage the continued training o four best young athletes.

"Another major benefit is that the Games leave the host area a legacy of excellent facilities which will serve amateur sports programs for many years to come,,' the Minister said. The costs of organizing, promoting and staging these games are met through cco-operative arrangements between the federal, provincial and municipal government with the federal government assuming the major share of operating costs and assisting in the development of facilities.

In order to further develop the policies, procedures, rules and regulations which govern the staging of all future Canada Games, both summer and winter, a joint committee has been established. The committee consists of representatives of the National Advisory Council on Fitness and Amateur Sport, Canadian Amateur Sports Federation, the national Fitness and Amateur Sport Directorate and the provincial directors of fitness and amateur sport This committee will be in a position to provide definite guidelines to cities hosting all future Canada Games.

Hold Christmas weddings

A wedding of interest during Christmas week saw the marriage of Mr and Mrs Arden Marcellus. The bride is the former Lynn Johnston, daughter of Mr and Mrs M. E. Johnston, Chesterville. The groom is the son of Mr and Mrs Lorne Marcellus, also of Chesterville.—Photo by LaSalle.

The United Church manse, Chesterville, was the scene recently of the wedding that united Nancy Joan Cross and John Allen Edgerton. The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Willis Cross, Chesterville. The groom is the son of Mr and Mrs Carl Edgerton, Chesterville.—Photo by LaSalle.

Doering - Presley

Simplicity was the theme of a wedding ceremony that united Marilyn Susan, R.N., daughter of Mr and Mrs Clarence Presley of Kemptville, to Ronald Lawrence, B.A., son of Mr and Mrs Jack Doering of Chesterville. The marriage took place on Saturday evening, December 28, in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church with Rev Mr Greene officiating.

The bride's dress was a floor-length gown of Danish lace over a caged silhouette of peau de soie extending in back to a cathedral train. The gown had an empire waistline of scalloped lace and lace sleeves ending in points over the hand. She carried a bouquet of pink gladiolus.

The bridesmaid, Miss Peggy Tighe, R.N., of Ottawa, wore a moss green floor-length gown of peau de soie and she carried a bouquet of yellow gladiolus.

Mr Peter MacGregor of Ottawa was best man.

The dinner and reception was held in the Kemptville Legion.

The bride's mother wore an emerald green silk dress with silver accessories and a corsage of yellow 'mums. The groom's mother wore a turquoise wool dress with brown and gold accessories and a corsage of bronze 'mums.

Mr and Mrs Doering will reside in Ottawa at 1171 Wellington Street where Mrs Doering will continue on the staff of the Ottawa Civic Hospital. Mr Doering teaches at North Dundas District High School, Chesterville.

when the pullets reach maturity so that the artificial light period will coincide closely with natural daylight at the end of the growing period.

Speaking of raising pullets, I recently saw some figures showing how one experimenter reduced the cost per dozen of eggs by careful pullet management. And he did it by spending money.

Using two lots of similar pullets, reared under the same conditions, he made only one difference in the treatment of the two flocks. In one case he spent extra time and money on an extra careful scrubbing and clean-up of the pens.

As a result he had lower rearing costs to 18 weeks, lower laying house mortality, much higher production per hen housed, and consequently, his cost per dozen eggs produced was almost four and a half cents a dozen lower. A nice profit.

With the one flock he obtained 213 eggs per hen hen housed at a cost of 35.9 cents per dozen based on the cost figures he was using. By comparison, the other flock produced 242 eggs per bird housed at a cost of 31.5 cents per dozen. Be sure your pens are clean. ***

PROFITABLE PULLETS

Fall and winter hatched pullets normally lay more small sized eggs than do pullets hatched in the spring and early summer period. Careful light control will overcome this disadvantage and it is well worth the trouble.

Pullets hatched fro mAugust to March will be growing and maturing in the period of lengthening days between December and late June. This lengthening day period tends to induce more rapid maturity and results in larger numbers of small eggs.

On the other hand, pullets hatched in the April to July period will be growing and maturing in the months of decreasing light, which will tend to delay maturity slightly.

Careful use of the artificial lights will provide fall and winter hatched pullets with gradually shortening day periods regardless of the calendar. The trick is to start with plenty of artificial light, shortening the period 5 minutes each week for a period of 24 weeks. This means that at the end of the time, the pullets will be on a day that is six hours shorter than at the beginning.

In order to get the lights set right, calculate how long the daylight period will be when the pullets are 24 weeks old, and then add enough artificial light to start out six hours longer. It is important to calculate fairly carefully how long the days will be

Your Legislature Report...

Fred M. Cass, Q.C., M.P.P.

The Ontario Legislature adjourned on December 20th till early in the new year after sitting for five weeks. The last few days of the week were busy with the Members endeavouring to complete the Throne Speech Debate and pass the new Expropriations Bill. The latter, after debate in Committee of the Whole House and several divisions, was finally passed and will provide much needed help for those whose property is being eyed by public bodies. The Throne Speech Debate is carried over into the new year.

There was also some considerable debate on present discussions in Ottawa on fiscal matters between Federal and Provincial Ministers; all parties seemed agreed that the Federal fiscal attitudes were not conducive to Canadian unity but disagreed on the action which should be taken by Ontario.

During the first five weeks of this Session the daily period of oral questions of Ministers before the Orders of the Day has provided a good deal of excitement, argument and noise. Some five hundred such questions have been so placed and answered and thereby Members and the public at large given a great deal of information on Government policies and actions.

The week also found the personnel of the various departments having their annual Christmas get-togethers which give the workers in the many offices of each department the opportunity to be better acquainted. Mr Speaker and Mrs Cass held a Christmas party for the twenty-two boys from all over Ontario who serve the House as Legislative Pages. Among these is young Kenton Peterson of Prescott, from our riding, who has upheld the reputation of Grenville-Dundas and is a credit to our local school students.

It is anticipated that the Ontario House will resume its present Session early in February at which time I shall again hope to meet you in the columns of this newspaper.

Ontario Hydro's new nuclear station

Ontario Hydro has announced the construction of a three million kilowatt nuclear power station half way between Port Elgin and Kincardine in Bruce Township. The new station will be built on a 2,300 acre site adjacent to the operating 200,000-kilowatt Douglas Point nuclear power station.

Electricity will be fed into the Southern Ontario high voltage network at 500,000 volts from four 750,000 net kilowatt generating units. First power is scheduled for 1976.

The station is estimated to cost $760 million and will be laid out in a line along the shore of Lake Huron with two units at eachside of a central control and service area. The steam generating (nuclear) part of the station will be designated by Atomic Energy of Canada. Ontario Hydro will own, construct and operate the plant in addition to designating the remainder of the station.

The majority of the equipment will be housed in a single powerhouse complex. Each of the four reactors which produces heat by nuclear fission, the reactor shields, and the equipment which transports the heat to the boilers is located in a separate rectangular reinforced concrete room which will be inaccessible when the reactor is operating. The heat is transferred to boilers located in rooms directly above to produce dry and saturated steam at a guage pressure of 600 lbs per square inch. The powerhouse complex includes a single turbine generator hall which houses four turbine-generator sets arranged in line. The turbine hall will be approximately 1,638 feet long, 240 feet wide and 150 feet high. Service, administration and control areas located in the centre beween units 2 and 3 form part of the powerhouse complex.

Although each reactor will generate 1½ times as much heat as the Pickering units, they will be the same length and only slightly larger in diameter. Each reactor will be pierced by 480 horizontal pressure tubes to contain 5760 fuel bundles. Each bundle, four inches in diameter and made up of 28 pencils containing natural uranium dioxide, will last from two to three years depending on its location in the reactor. Twin fuelling machines will be used to insert or remove fuel from either end of the reactor. One kilo gram (2.2lbs) of fuel which costs approximately $45, willproduce 65,000 net kilowatt-hours of electricity. Spent fuel will be held in a storage bay until shipped out for precessing.

Initial loading will be 143 tons for each reactor with annual requirements running at 96 tons.

The net fuelling unit energy cost is estimiated to be less than 0.5 mills per kilowatt-hour, considerably less than any other nuclear concept in the world. This low fuelling cost is to be compared with 3.0 mills per kilowatt-hour for fossil fuel. However, because of the relatively high capital cost, nuclear plants are most competitive for base load application.

Like NPD, Douglas Point and Pickering, the moderator and heat transport system will employ heavy water. Each unit will require approximately 400 tons of heavy water for the moderator which slows down the neutrons in the fission process and about 220 tons in the circuit which transports the heat from each reactor to the boilers.

One turbine - generator set provided for each unit will operate at 1800 rpm. The tandem compound turbine with one double flow high pressure cylinder and three double flow low pressure cylinders will drive one generator rated at 940 mva and 85 per cent power factor.

The gross output of each generator will be 800 Mw to produce a net unit output of 750 Mw. The over-all unit efficiency of 29.8 per cent is a slight improvement over Pickering G.S.

Control will be exercised from a four-unit control centre in the central service area and each unit will be operated and controlled independenty using on-line type computers.

STY IN THE EYE

Unsightly and sometimes painful, a sty is something we can all do without. This common pest is caused by a bacterial infection of the small glands at the edge of the eyelid. What causes the infection?

Dirty hands rubbing the eyes, according to "Today's Health." Some people believe eye strain is the culprit — but the experts believe dirt is the more frequent cause.

Noting that a sty can last from a few days to as long as four weeks, it notes that the duration of the infection "can be reduced materially by medical intervention, in which the small abcess is surgically opened, drained and allowed to heal."

DESSERTS WITH CITRUS FRUITS

THE FRESH PEACHES AND BERRIES and melons have gone and we have to use something different for dessert. It is a good time to think of the good desserts that can be made from oranges and lemons.

Orange Ice Cream

1 cup milk
2 egg yolks
1 tbsp. cornstarch
2 tbsps. water
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup sugar
1 cup orange juice
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 cup whipped cream

Heat milk in top of double boiler. Blend cornstarch and cold water; add to hot milk. Stir and cook until thick. Blend egg yolks, salt and sugar; add to thickened milk and cook two minutes. Cool thoroughly. Fold in whipped cream. Add fruit juices slowly. Turn into freezing tray and allow to freeze for one hour. Remove to a chilled bowl, beat thoroughly, return to refrigerator to finish freezing.

You can use the left-over egg whites to make coconut or cornflake macaroons which will go well with the orange ice cream.

Lemon Snow

¾ cup sugar
¼ tsp. grated lemon rind
1¾ cups boiling water
3 tbsps. cornstarch
2 tbsps. cold water
2 tbsps. lemon juice
2 egg whites

Make a syrup of sugar, water and lemon rind; boil three minutes. Mix cornstarch with cold water, add gradually to syrup, stir until thick; cook slowly until there is no taste of raw starch. Cool slightly. Add lemon juice and egg whites beaten stiff. Turn into moistened moulds and chill or pile in serving dish.

Orange Bavarian Cream

Use a pudding or pile in graham cracker crust, and serve as a chiffon pie.

1 enevelope unflavoured gelatine
¾ cup cold water
½ cup hot water
1 cup orange juice
2 tbsps. lemon juice
¾ cup sugar
1 cup whipped cream

Soften gelatine in cold water; dissolve in hot water. Add fruit juice and sugar. When jelly is partly set beat to a stiff froth; fold in whipped cream. Pile in serving dish; garnish with maraschino cherries, or use as a filling for chiffon pie.

Lemon Torte

4 egg whites
1 cup sugar
1 tsp. vinegar
Salt

Beat egg whites stiff and dry; add sugar, salt and vinegar. Grease a layer cake tin and line with egg white mixture. Bake one hour at 300 degrees. Leave in oven 20 minutes after heat is turned off.

Juice of 1 lemon plus water to make ½ cup
Salt
1 cup whipped cream

Late Meeting

A little past midnight councillor Harry Allison changed the calendar to read "Jan. 7" and the last clock was wound and cat put out at 12.40 a.m. Council will again meeting at 7.30 p.m. Thursday, tonight, to clear up more unfinished business.

Mr Gordon LaRose as chairman of the Property Committee pointed out rather dramatically that he wished the public to know that a completed running track on the school athletic field, was by and large a Community Centre and he strongly recommended some plans in the spring to dedicate the new field.

The Board approved the appointment of Miss Wilma Smith as secretary to the school librarian. Mrs Jessie McPherson's resignation due to health reasons was accepted with regret, and a replacement will be arranged.

The meeting was brought to a close with good wishes to each and to all.
