Village share up 1.5%

Iroquois tax bill up $34

Louanne Tindal
Leader Staff

IROQUOIS — Public school supporters in the village of Iroquois with a residential assessment of $4,000 will pay $34 more than last year on their 1986 tax bill.

Village clerk Betty Marlin tabled her 1986 budget at a special meeting here Monday and will recommend to council it be accepted at next month's regular meeting.

While the municipality collects taxes for counties and education purposes, the municipal share constitutes only 34 per cent, or $823,445, of the $1.4 million total levy.

This year taxpayers will be asked to raise $297,718 for municipal purposes, up 1.5 per cent from last year. This represents about $5 on the average $4,000 assessment.

Education consumes 58 per cent of the total tax bill. This year public school ratepayers will be called on to raise $258,224, a 7.72 per cent increase over last year's $237,500.

Secondary school supporters will be levied $221,923, up 2.02 per cent from the $216,770 collected in 1985.

The remaining portion of the total tax bill, about nine per cent, will go to county purposes. This year Iroquois taxpayers will be asked to raise $67,780, 7.7 per cent more than the $64,493 collected last year.

Transportation costs up

In total, public school supporters with an average $4,000 assessment will be hit with a $888.12 tax bill, four per cent above last year's levy.

Again this year, transportation services will eat up the greatest portion of the municipal levy. Bridges, ditching, catch basins, snow clearing and road paving will cost an estimated $200,030, or $8,000 more than last year.

The village's general budget, which includes council costs, administration, wages, heat and hydro, is set at $152,851.

Protection of persons and property, which covers fire, police and bylaw enforcement, will cost the village $48,200 this year, down $76 from 1985.

The village's environmental services budget, which covers sanitary sewers, garbage collection, dump fees and water, will run taxpayers an estimated $286,931.

Recreation and culture will cost taxpayers here $101,933 this year. Included in this are the Carman House Museum, the summer festival, minor ball and hockey, figure skating, park maintenance and the library. Last year the same services cost the village $83,237, and clerk Betty Marlin attributes the 1986 increase to increased park maintenance costs.

Health services will set the village back another $6,000 and $27,500 will be put toward planning and development. The bulk of this amount — $25,000 — will go to the Business Improvement Association to upgrade the mini-mall.

Compromise reached over cost of phone at dock

MORRISBURG — Months of lobbying has assured local boaters a telephone at the waterfront dock. But the man who pushed so hard to get it there will have to make the mounted enclosure booth — the one thing Bell Canada requires and the one thing village council refuses to pay for — himself.

At a planning board meeting here last Wednesday council agreed to cough up the $89.25 installation fee for a semi-public pay phone to be mounted on the change-room walls. It will also guarantee Bell a daily 53 cent flat fee and pay for the installation of a light above the phone.

But the estimated $1,000 to $2,000 pricetag for an enclosure booth Bell says is necessary to deter vandalism won't come from council's pocket.

Following a meeting here last Tuesday between Bell representative C.M. Wilson, councillor Al Belanger and Jim Langabeer, who instigated the drive for the pay phone, the latter has offered to make the booth.

"When I looked at what they (Bell) wanted and where they wanted it located, I felt it was assinine to install something that expensive."

With plexiglas supplied by Rohm and Haas Canada Inc., Langabeer says he can make the booth with Bell's grace for next to nothing. It should be ready and installed within three weeks, he said.

Council conceded to the boating community's demand for a phone a few weeks ago to avoid being de-listed by the federal government as a designated call-in station. The Canada Customs Act requires all boaters returning to Canada from U.S. waters to report their return. Failure to do so can result in fines up to $400 or seizure of the boat.

The government was poised to scratch Morrisburg from its brochures because it didn't have the necessary phone, leaving the Iroquois Locks or Crysler Marina the nearest call-in stations.

In a more realistic vein council also admitted that for safety factors, a phone at the waterfront was a fait accompli once the ball diamonds swing into activity.

Langabeer says he's satisfied with the compromise reached with council. "One thing the whole exercise has proven is that letter writing can sometimes bog down an issue. I was being given one price by Bell and council was getting another. When we finally all sat down together we were able to sort things out."

Impaired charges up

MORRISBURG — Police at area OPP detachments agree the scare over drinking and driving is wearing off.

The number of charges laid following breathalizer tests administered at the Morrisburg detachment from New Year's Day to April 21, 1986 has climbed to 20. This is already one more charge than recorded last year from Jan. 1 to April 30.

The Long Sault detachment, which covers the whole of Stormont County, reports its drinking and driving statistics up significantly for the first four months of 1986 — 56 charges have been laid as of last Monday, compared with 47 for the same period in 1985.

This jump comes despite the tougher legislation introduced last December increasing the penalty for driving drunk to a one-year licence suspension from the previous three-month penalty and a minimum $300 fine.

"During Christmas, with all the publicity, there was a real scare on. Everyone was talking about it. But now the scare is off and people are forgetting about it," says Cst. Bernie Gadbois, of the Long Sault OPP.

"But we're still out there, and we're picking them up," he adds.

Across Dundas County, impaired charges laid between January and April 15 of this year totalled 55. Another 38 12-hour licence suspensions were also handed out during this period. This is down slightly from last year's figures of 59 impaired charges and 30 12-hour suspensions.

Statistics compiled by Winchester OPP Cst. Al Lummiss show one in every eight accidents in Dundas County last year involved alcohol "to some extent". Of these two were fatal accidents, 32 involved injuries and 31 mishaps caused more than $700 in property damage.

Triple-grading fears quelled

MORRISBURG — Parents of children attending Morrisburg Public School shouldn't worry the growing popularity of Iroquois Public's French immersion program will eventually force triple grading here.

So says Ken MacLennan, an education superintendent with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry County Board of Education.

"Based on past experience, Morrisburg is not at risk (for triple grading) for some time," he said Monday. He was responding to a letter sent to the board last week by the Morrisburg Public School committee.

It is concerned that as parent interest in the Late French Immersion (LFI) program grows over the next two years, it could mean a sharp drop in the Morrisburg school's enrolment. The letter requests the board consider the probem "before it reaches the stage of triple grading at our higher (grade) levels".

"We feel parents might be upset if next year they find out that the following year, they are to get triple grading," says committee chairperson Billie Donaldson.

A February survey among parents of children in grades 5 and 6 indicated 37 per cent (10 students) would take the Iroquois (LFI) program and 55 per cent (15 students) would take LFI if offered in Morrisburg. Only 7.5 per cent (2 students) said they won't enroll their child in LFI.

Projected enrolment figures for next year show 25 students in grade 6, approximately nine students in grade 7 and 13 in grade 8. As the the grade 7 and 8 split class gets progressivley smaller, parents could be faced with a grade 6-7-8 class, says Donaldson.

Not necessarily counters superintendent MacLennan. Assuming at least 50 per cent of students now moving up through the school eventually opt for the LFI program, there might well be a drop in the grade 7 class size for a few years. But the "dip" should level out again when this year's large kindergarten class reaches the higher grades.

"The board might be able to live with classes of 17-18 students for a year or two."

He said the only far-ranging solution — "and it isn't easy" — would be to let one school in the area offer LFI exclusively. Other schools could then enlarge their grade 7 and 8 classrooms with non-LFI students from that one school.

The board's program committee will review the local committee's concerns and report to a full board meeting May 27, MacLennan said.

This situation is not particular to Morrisburg. At Iroquois Public School next year, those students not taking LFI in either grades 7 or 8 will be grouped together half days for an enviable class size of 11 students.

But when the grade 7 students join their LFI counterparts for math, English or science, the non-LFI grade 8 students will have to join the regular grade 6 class, said principal Brooke Leightizer.

OPP "running block"

Two cruisers smashed in chase

Alexis Mantell
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG — Motorists looking to outrun the Morrisburg OPP take heed. Officers here will stop you, even if it means wrecking a couple of cruisers to do it.

For the second time in as many months, members of the detachment Saturday night tried the now infamous "running block" to stop a speeding car. This time they racked up $5,200 in repair bills for two crumpled cruisers.

Cst. Joe Roach said he was eastbound on Hwy. 401 at the Carman Road overpass around 10:20 p.m. Saturday when he noticed a 1974 Cadillac with no tail lights. He soon switched on the red roof lights and pursued the car at speeds of 120 kph. There was no other traffic on the highway.

The Cadillac blocked the cruiser's attempt to pass, and Roach radioed the detachment for back-up cruisers. Cst. Peter Meilleur inched his cruiser along the highway by Muttonville Road and waited for the car to approach.

Blocked by Meilleur's car the Cadillac first swerved to the right then to the left to avoid a camper travelling slowly in the driving lane. It veered to the right once again, ramming Meilleur's cruiser to try to slip past him.

Meilleur then returned the favor, smashing his cruiser into the side of the car to edge it into the south ditch.

The Cadillac braked heavily, and careened back towards the median. Roach rammed his cruiser into the rear of the car, and Meilleur bashed the passenger door to bring the chase to an abrupt halt.

No one was injured in the episode.

Terry Chase, 23 of Brockville, has been charged with dangerous driving, failing to stop for police, and driving without insurance. When police finally stopped him they discovered he also had no car licence and no driver's licence. Chase indicated he was on his way to Ingleside to have some body work done on the Cadillac, and hoped to sneak down Hwy. 401 under cover of darkness. darkness.

Cst. Roach said the crunched

In provincial court here yesterday, Chase, who admitted to having a troubled background with time spent in the Brockville Psychiatric Hospital, was handed a nine-month jail sentence for his driving spree. It was also recommended by judge Bruce Hunter he seek psychiatric help while in prison.

cruisers are not of the three cars to come out of the garage a few weeks ago. They were crippled in a similar "running block" tactic performed late last month. The cost to stop the driver of a stolen car, Richard Gladwin, 24, also of Brockville, was around $3,500.

Cruickshank low bid

MORRISBURG — Cruickshank Construction Ltd. of Morrisburg has been awarded the lucrative contract to construct the village's sanitary trunk sewer system.

At $1,408,650, Cruickshank's bid was the lowest of seven tenders received. Ram-Bolger Construction of Morrisburg came in second lowest, at $1,433,118, and Duntree Construction of Oshawa was high bidder at $2,036,900.

The project involves supplying the materials and the construction of approximately 2,400 metres of sanitary sewer, varying in diameter from 825 metres to 300 metres, including manholes and ancilliary connections.

Seventy per cent of the cost of the $1.6 million project will be funded by the ministry of environment. Village ratepayers will be asked to pick up almost $350,000 and the remaining $200,000 will be financed equally from the village's reserve fund and an upfront contribution by the developers of land north of Hwy. 2.

The system is desperately needed to alleviate overflow problems caused by the antiquated sewer system in the village's west end and to allow for future residential growth north of Hwy. 2.

Work is slated to begin just past the Hwy. 2-31 intersection and move south along Ottawa Street to the waterfront park and across the golf course to the Allison Street water plant.

The tenders were opened by village council April 16 and awarded at a planning board meeting here last Wednesday.

Cruickshank Construction Ltd. has stipulated a finishing date of Nov. 15. No starting date was called for in the contract.

"For sale" sign a familiar sight on motel row

Alexis Mantell
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG — Just before another tourist season gets underway, there's a mad rush of buying and selling going on along the motel "strip" from Riverside Heights to Upper Canada Village.

Virtually every motel along the eight-kilometre stretch of Hwy. 2 east of Morrisburg is for sale, has recently been sold, or is about to go on the market.

Most of the five motels, the Upper Canada, the Surrey, the Parkway, the Riverside, Crysler and Paquin Park have been in business since the days of the St. Lawrence Seaway construction in the late 1950s. When the old town was flooded, Ontario Hydro offered existing motel owners the chance to relocate along the new Hwy. 2, next to that tourist mecca, Upper Canada Village.

Some motels, like the Parkway, have only had three owners since it was built in 1960. Others, like the Riverside Motel, have had three owners in as many years.

So why are these "ma and pa" businesses up for sale all at the sale time? It's just part of the cycle, says Don Vincent, a Markham, Ont. broker specializing in hotels and motels. For a couple running a small 20-unit motel, it's gruelling seven-days-a-week work. For this reason, he says, small hotels tend to change hands every three to five years.

"They get fed up and want a break. But six months later they may be back looking for another place."

The veterans of the local hotel biz, Pat and Dick Richardson of the Surrey Motel, are selling after 26 years to retire. "We enjoyed it. We like meeting people. But as a living it's not that easy — it depends on what you're willing to put into it," says Pat.

Asked why others along the strip might be moving out, the answer is simple, she says.

"There's no profit in it. You'd get a better return by investing."

A poor return is the reason Bob and Lucy Duval of the Riverside Motel are pulling out after only a year. As of Thursday, the Montreal couple will be replaced by James and Edna Anderson of Huntington, Que. While Lucy Duval admits they have enjoyed their time here, they were hoping to make the Riverside a stepping stone to their dream — their own country inn.

"We had hoped to start small and save money to buy an inn. But there's no way." The Duvals plan to return to private life for a while, out of earshot of the beck and call of tourists.

Yet all is not doom and gloom. Jim Martin, owner of the eight-unit Parkway Motel for the last two years, has no intention of selling. "I could have sold six times so far," he boasts. The key, he says, is a willingness to work hard when you're younger — year round if necessary — and to cultivate repeat business. Then when you get older, you can change your requirements. "Then six months is plenty."

Got the price

Vera and Merlin Burke, who last September sold the Upper Canada Motel after two years in the business, confide they had no trouble selling the 18-unit motel. A $16 classified ad was all it took to get the price they wanted, "to the dollar".

"The place was just a little too big for me. We had two fairly big mortgages and I'm a 'what if' type of person," says Vera.

Since they moved to a house in Iroquois, Merlin Burke has been out scouting the Ottawa Valley for another operation to buy.

Jack Saver says his motel, the Paquin, is not on the market just now, but his business is "always" for sale — for the right offer. Most operators arrive, do a bit of cosmetic work, then move on after a couple of years, says the former owner of the Iroquois Motor Motel. "It's the great Canadian dream to settle in a motel."

What is needed here, he says, is some attraction to "pull them in" overnight. Pat Richardson of the Surrey agrees. When the Seaway project began, she and her husband had just finished paying off the mortgage on their riverfront operation — eight cabins, a store and gas pumps. "Now there's nothing here for people to see but Upper Canada Village really. Then we had a movie theatre, a bowling alley, — we had a little town with something in it. There was a lot (Ontario) Hydro didn't replace."

Richardson is still bitter about the way Hydro resettled the motel owners near UCV. The land offered for purchase by Hydro was often swampy, she says. And when trees south of Hwy. 2 grew too large, the Richardsons had to take the phrase "a view of the St. Lawrence" out of their brochure.

"I think we could have pushed for land south of Hwy. 2. But no one stuck to together enough. We lost 600 feet of riverfront for nothing."

$25,000 facelift

IROQUOIS — The village's dilapidated "mini-mall" will get a welcome facelift thanks to a $25,000, three-year commitment by council to the Business Improvement Area.

Following a meeting with provincial representatives here last Tuesday — a meeting which failed to yield any government funding for the project — council agreed to give the BIA $15,000 for 1986 and $5,000 for each of the next two years. The money will be used to replace the deteriorating concrete tiles, buy a few benches and trees and improve some street lighting in the area.

"It's our downtown area and we do have to improve it. It's been here 30 years and there's been very little done," said reeve Frank Rooney following an in-camera meeting of council.

Council had hoped to secure funding under the Ontario Neighborhood Improvement Program (ONIP) scheme, which provides grants of up to 50 per cent for improvements to residential areas. But the ministry of municipal affairs last week told council the mini-mall would not be eligible for ONIP funding since it's located in a designated commercial area.

Village council has also promised to pay one-third of the $1,750 cost of a core study of suggested improvements to the shopping centre commissioned by the BIA last fall. Rooney said the village, which would have had to hire a professional consultant to come up with plans for improving the shopping centre regardless of who undertook the work, should foot some of the bill.

And in a final burp of goodwill the village has agreed to pump out the Iroquois golf club's holding tank for $30 a pump-out. The club now pays a private hauler $55 for each twice-weekly flushing, but had asked the village to consider doing it for $25.

Because of the facility's small septic system and flourishing membership, the golf club is planning to connect into the municipal sewer line this fall at a cost of $30,000.

Rooney asks ministry to bend on funding for plaza improvements

Louanne Tindal
Leader Staff

IROQUOIS — The village of Iroquois is an "exception to the rule" and reeve Frank Rooney is having a hard time understanding why the province won't bend a little.

Rooney was directing his remarks to representatives from the ministry of municipal affairs, here last week to discuss funding improvements to the 30-year-old shopping centre.

The reeve had hoped to snare some Ontario Neighborhood Improvement Program (ONIP) funding — which provides grants of up to 50 per cent for improvements to residential neighborhoods — to spruce up the aging mini-mall. The deteriorating concrete slabs need replacing and benches and trees would be added to dress up the area.

But Dainora Juozapauicious, a senior planner with the ministry, burst Rooney's bubble. Since the repairs are slated for strictly commercial property, she said, funding would fall under the auspices of the Commercial Area Improvement Program.

The village is leery of pursuing CAIP since it provides only one sixth of the cost of promotion and beautification projects, as well as some hard services like roads, sewers and lighting, on municipal property in a designated business improvement area.

The BIA board of management has already shied away from CAIP, since it applies only to municipal property and most of the plaza, except for the mini mall and parking lot, is owned by the merchants.

Besides, the earliest the BIA could expect CAIP funding, if applied for now, would be the spring of 1987. And Rooney wants the mini-mall repaired immediately.

Bend the rules

Jouzapauicious said the village could possibly get ONIP funding to update antiquated street lighting around the shopping centre if Beech and Dundas Streets, which border the commercial area, were included in the improvement area. The ministry requires at least 50 per cent of the area to be residential before considering it for ONIP funding. The village has used ONIP funding in the past to upgrade its sewer services.

Rooney, however, says the province should be willing to make a few concessions this time around.

"You go to Cardinal, Prescott, Brockville and they're able to get funding for main street lighting because they have apartments on their main street. They can meet that 50 per cent residential designation."

Iroquois' main street, says Rooney, is a shopping plaza courtesy of Ontario Hydro and there are no apartments on the mall.

"I'd hoped we'd get some extra consideration," he told Juozapauicious. "We deserve it. They (ministry) don't deviate in other areas because they don't have to but here Iroquois is a special case."

Jouzapauicious assured Rooney she'd try to get the ministry to bend its rules but was not guaranteeing any results.

She also promised to go to bat for council to see if ONIP funding was available to extend water and sewer lines to the Iroquois Golf Club.

The club is looking at $30,000 worth of work to connect the clubhouse to the municipal sewer line since its present system is too small to handle the club's swelling membership.

Plan for Waterfront Park

Three-phased park plan gets council's okay

Louanne Tindal
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG — Village council has approved in principle a three-phased concept plan of the waterfront park, the first of which could be substantially completed this summer.

Drawn up by St. Lawrence Parks Commission planners John Cottrill and Dan Weagant, and presented to council by the Parks Management Board last Wednesday, the plan identifies the park's existing services and facilities, then illustrates a series of stages in which additional features can be added as need and cost dictate.

Each stage provides a blend of both active and passive use items, such as fitness trails, tree planting, baseball diamonds and barbecue pits.

The plan takes into consideration parking requirements, walkways, lighting, wind breaks and a washroom-changeroom building at the beach.

It also looks at repairing and improving playground and picnic facilities, as well as berms, excavating a pond area and improving the stage and bandshell area already there.

While similar to a plan presented to council at a public meeting here over a year ago, this one is far more definite about the future direction of the waterfront park, both in terms of implementation and feasibility.

"This is more specific. We're talking about where exactly the active areas are (south of Riverside Drive). It's more specific about the trail systems, there's more definite parking areas — it provides an overall concept of what the park can become in the future," says Cottrill.

The plan suggests work be carried out over a number of years and lays the groundwork for its implementation in sequential order.

No pricetag set

Parks board chairman Karen Gorrell says no pricetag on the work has been established. The board has about $17,000 set aside in its budget for park development and beautification. In January, council approved a further $5,000 for park upkeep.

The plan not only gives the general public an idea of where the 16-acre site is headed but having a "statement of intent", says Cottrill, will help the board when it begins its major fundraising drive and starts to seek donations or provincial grants.

Gorrell says she's delighted with the plan — the first concete step in the park's overall development. A public meeting will be held later in the spring to gauge public reaction to the plan "before a great deal of money is spent", she says.

Several ideas outlined in the plan's first phase have already or will be carried out this year, she says. A second ball diamond should be completed this year and the groundwork for a soccer and sports field laid out.

The parks board will continue its tree-planting program — 12 maples were planted this spring — and dead or damaged trees will be replaced. Two of a possible four barbecue pits could be in place this summer and the west-end parking lot enlarged.

Fitness trail

Fitness stations — a leg stretch-vault bar, balance beam and tire trot — could be installed at intervals along a proposed fitness trail and the initial underground services for a washroom building near the beach started.

"If we go ahead with the trunk sewer this fall, now's the time to install the sanitary connections to the main sewer line," says Gorrell.

As well, construction of berms — slight hills or elevations to provide some diversity in the flat landscape — could be started using the material dug up during the sewer excavation and construction.

"It's critical we get a head start now while the park's being dug up so we don't have to start tearing it up all over again two years down the road," she says.

The parks board sees the waterfront as the village's greatest asset and the plan, says Cottrill, attempts to improve on what's already there.

The sooner the community begins to see signs of activity taking place, he says, the sooner it will start to generate more interest, ideas and financial support.

Councillor Peter McCooeye, who also sits on the parks board, says council is keen to see the idea worked through.

When first broached last year, he said, it sent some villagers scurrying for their life jackets, concerned by the thought of children playing near the proposed ponds.

"People picked up on the water thing and couldn't think of anything else. That killed it. Now we'll have to sell the public on the idea but I don't think it will be too hard. It's a good plan."

Corner lot rezoning stalled, neighbors, council hesitant

Louanne Tindal
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG — The fate of the vacant lot at the corner of Church and Maud Streets is momentarily in the hands of the village solicitor.

And until council here gets the draft bylaw to put the matter of amending the property's zoning to a vote, the land will remain the centre of some controversy.

Docksteader Bros. Ltd. of Winchester wants the village to change the zoning in order to build a house on it. Last summer they moved the existing house on that lot further back to make room for a second house.

The property is now zoned residential second density. The amendment would reduce the lot area to 505 square metes from 742 metres and the lot frontage to 15 metres from 21.

But a petition signed by 42 area residents opposing the lot reduction on the grounds it would devalue surrounding properties, and can't support two homes, as well as concerns by council the placement of the house on a significantly smaller lot would reduce its "daylight corner", is dragging out the normally routine amendment procedure.

Current zoning requirements stipulate a minimum eight metres of visibility on corner lots so motorists approaching the intersection can see either way. The proposed amendment would cut that visibility to three metres, leaving motorists travelling east on Maud Street with possible difficulties viewing oncoming traffic.

At a recent planning board meeting the property-owners came armed with a revised plot plan showing the house in a different location on the lot to try and ease some of council's concerns. The lot dimensions, however, remained the same.

Reeve Bill Dillabough has suggested if council does approve the bylaw when it's finally put to a vote, it must be spelled out than only a single family home be built there. The proposed amendment allows for a triplex, providing the proper setback requirements are met.

Should council oppose the bylaw the property-owners have the option of going to the Ontario Municipal Board for a ruling. The OMB however, rarely grants anything not first sanctioned at the municipal level.

If, on the other hand, council passes the bylaw, objectors will be given 21 days in which to file appeals. They will be forwarded to the ministry of municipal affairs and the matter set for a public hearing before the OMB. The provincial board can then approve the ruling regardless of the number of objections.

Eliminate illiteracy

This is Education Week, and it is distressing to note that, in spite of ever-increasing expenditures in this field, and the vast improvements in equipment and facilities, not only is a great proportion of our population deficient in education, but many, far too many, are functionally illiterate. It is certainly an anomaly that in such an advanced country as Canada, such a situation can exist.

It has been a common practice in the past to point a disparaging finger at parents, teachers, governments, the environment and television. But isn't it better, instead of attempting to fix blame, to take a more positive approach; and none can be more positive than in teaching and encouraging your children to read. A few suggestions that may help with such stimulation of children who are beginning to read, or are at the age where they should be beginning to read, are:

Talk with your children; listen to them and answer their questions. Take time to encourage them to discuss what they can do and how they feel. Your genuine interest will develop your children's ability to use language, and will also help establish a sense of self-esteem.

Praise your children's accomplishments. This will help them establish positive self-images, build confidence and feel free to express themselves. When your kids do something well, don't be reluctant to tell them so.

If your children are pre-school age, read to them every day. Take time to read a rhyme, a poem or a simple story to them, and then discuss what you have read. Help them to realize that reading can be fun as well as educational.

Go places with your children. A trip to the library, a zoo, circus, park, or wildlife preserve can be a most meaningful experience, and help them with real background knowledge, to augment what they have read, or will be reading.

You can also show by example, the importance of reading. Books, newspapers and magazines should be highly visible throughout your home. If your children come to know that reading is important to you, it will become important to them as well.

Show an interest in your children's school programs and progress. Take a sincere interest in the school papers they bring home, and don't fail to praise their efforts and their accomplishments.

Some children read well, but seem not to particularly enjoy it. Try setting aside a regular time and place for reading and homework. Provide a simple dictionary and encourage correct spelling and grammar in all written work. Encourage the use of encyclopediae or other books for researching information. Remember, the key word here is "encourage" — not "nag".

Support your children and their schools by having a positive attitude. Communicate with the schools and co-operate with the school functions.

Give your children definite responsibilities that contribute to the well-being of the entire family. And make it a point to know about the special facilities that may be offered in your community or your area, such as sports, concerts, plays, museums. Encourage your children to become involved with as many of them as possible.

Most of all, avoid applying pressure — just let your children know that you are concerned about their education, their total development, their future. They will want to read and to learn everything about it too.

Reading remains the key to survival in the world today; it can also be a lot of fun. And every parent owes it to his child and to his community to aid in making illiteracy not only unusual, but non-existent in Canada.

Want to buy a book?

Probably of particular interest to sportsmen and bird-watchers, a new book is presently being offered by Ducks Unlimited, as a fund-raising effort for the only private group dedicated solely to the improvement and developmet of wetlands habitat. This great organization, which has some 55,000 Canadian contributors and about 550,000 contributors in the U.S., will mark its golden anniversary in 1988, and has been largely instrumental in saving many species from complete extinction.

In their fund-raising activities, they have often turned to the wildlife art community, but their latest and most ambitious project will encompass a new criterion for lovers of wildlife, and particularly of North American waterfowl.

The new art folio is entitled Waterfowl of North America, and will feature the works of 30 different artists — 19 American, 7 Canadian, 3 British and 1 Australian. Their works are presented in a large 18" x 24" format in full color, and also include preliminary design sketches, along with a biographical outline and portrait photo.

Foreword for this 272-page collectors' item has been written by the Duke of Edinburgh, and production has been limited to just 1,250 copies. Each art panel will be on 80-pound Korma bright white stock, used extensively for fine quality art reproduction, and the individual panel pages are separated by parchskin interleaves. The whole is bound in genuine leather, and emanates quality in every dimension.

Just in case you need one or more copies of this unique opus for a truly unique gift, you can place orders with Ducks Unlimited Canada, at 1190 Waverly Street, Winnipeg, Manitoba. Furthermore, if you order before the end of June, you get the bargain price of "only" $1,550 Cdn. After that date, the price will rise to $2,050 Cdn. But before you choke on that quotation, consider the previous work which inspired the current offering. That was the large "double elephant" folio produced for the famous American naruralist, James Audubon. Compiled more than 150 years ago, in the 1830s, that folio sold for $1,000, and a copy today (if you can find one) is worth an estimated $1.3 million.

Veggies from the forest

Every year from mid-April to late May, thousands of Canadians from Nova Scotia to British Columbia scour the countryside in search of the wild delicacy known as "fiddleheads".

The fiddlehead, or baby ostrich fern, can be found in the fertile flood plains along just about any river in Canada, once the spring flood waters recede, and the fern's tightly-curled fronds, which look like the tuning head of a violin, sprout up at an astonishing rate. The young ferns can actually grow from seven to ten centimetres in just 24 hours.

And if you've found one fiddlehead, you've found a bunch, as each plant will shoot up five to ten heads from its dark green crown. Although fiddlehead lovers might find it difficult, it's wise to leave two or three fronds unpicked in each clump, to ensure reproduction. After all, you want to enjoy eating the fiddleheads next spring, too.

Although they can be eaten raw, these toothsome greens are at their mouth-watering best when boiled for 5 minutes, drained, and slathered with fresh butter.

This Week In Morrisburg's History

Compiled from The Leader's fyles by Bonnie McNairn

1966

The April 29th, 1966 issue of The Leader reported the Canadian National Electric Company, having obtained large contracts for the production of nuclear energy, was beginning research on large sections of the St. Lawrence Lake and River. The Morrisburg Industrial Committee had presented an application and volunteered to provide any information required. The company was attempting to locate water of sufficient density to provide the heavy water needed in energy production. Not all water is suitable for providing heavy water.

Miss Mary McGillis, a spry little lady at Glen-Stor-Dun lodge celebrated her 95th birthday.

Sunday May 1st was to mark the 92nd anniversary of the founding of Knox Presbyterian Church, Iroquois and the establishing of the congregation in this area.

At the Dominion, Dominion Cola was seven quart bottles for $1 and three, 18 ounce packages of Nabisco Shredded Wheat, were $1.

Sunoco proudly announced the appointment of Marcellus Motor Sales Ltd. as the Morrisburg area dealer.

Headlines in the May 4th, 1956 issue of The Leader read, When is a Town Hall not a Town Hall? Ontario Hydro showed two plans for what they termed a Town Hall at a joint meeting of the Planning Board and Morrisburg council. Some disapproval was expressed because they did not include a public meeting place of an appreciable size, as had been requested. The plans showed a one-storey brick building which would house a courtroom, council chamber, library, clerk's office and a fire hall. Connected to the main building was another with a police garage and works department space.

John R. Bradfield, a native of Morrisburg, had been appointed president of Noranda Mines.

Lorne Brown at the Schell Service Station was selling new Scott-Atwater 3.6 H.P. outboard motors for $110.

H.E. Biccum, Winchester had a centrally located three-bedroom brick home in Winchester, with a modern kitchen and bathroom, forced air oil heating and air conditioning selling for $7,000.

It was reported in the May 3rd, 1946 issue of The Leader that in spite of poor co-operation from the weather man, necessitating layoffs for a few days, work on the new factory of Pyramid Paper Products was progressing favourably. The new industry, located on Main Street, East, was to have a first factory building employing between 30 and 40 people. In the meantime another smaller industry was locating here, with the decision of Mr. Wallace Guay formerly of Morrisburg, to build a plant to manufacture cement building blocks, tile and other concrete products. Mr. Guay's establishment was to be located on Maple Street and employ a maximum of eight workers. Another small industry with a future building up in Morrisburg was the cold storage and freezing lockers being constructed, by Chesley Cougler, Williamsburg, on Main Street. Mr. Couglar planned to install 200 lockers with a capacity for 200 more.

At. R.H. Bradfield and Company lawn seed was 50 cents a pound and good quality all-steel garden trowels were 25 cents each.

At Williamsburg, George K. Casselman had sold his residence known as "The Nurse's Home", built by the late Jeremiah Lane, to Mr. John F. Casselman.

The May 1st, 1936 edition of The Leader reported Mr. and Mrs. H. Roy Schell of Williamsburg Township had observed their silver wedding anniversary.

Mr. M.J. Casselman, native of the township of Matilda, an outstanding citizen of Morrisburg and one of the best known men in the United Counties died at his home at the age of 88. He was the son of the late John W. Casselman and his wife Nancy Garlough, of U.E. Loyalist descent, who were among the earliest settlers in the Township of Matilda. Interested in local politics he was first elected to Counties Council in 1899 representing Williamsburg township and in 1903 he was chosen Warden. After several years of farming he took up residence in Morrisburg where he became engaged in the hardware and grocery business under the firm name of Hunter and Casselman. Shortly after becoming a resident of Morrisburg he was elected Reeve.

Mr. J.J. McDonald, former manager of Locksley Hall, Williamsburg announced he had leased the Regent Grill on Main Street West. "The best coffee in town" was featured on the Regent Grill's Menu.

Sam Agulnik and Son better known as "the Old Reliable" were making preparations to move into their new premises, recently occupied by Mullin Brothers and centrally located on Main Street. The premises had been completely renovated.

Officials of Locketon Lodge, Williamsburg Hotel, must have thought they had the cow that jumped over the moon when they discovered a cow occupying an upstairs parlor. 'Apparently the cow had escaped from Stanley Casselman as he was driving it through the village and made its way into the hotel and up the stairs to the second storey.

At Barkley's Meat Market seedless grapefruit were six for 25 cents and radishes were six bunches for 25 cents.

the Kitchen Garden

V.A. Hughes

We moved the Hostas last weekend. Early in the morning we jumped out of bed, pulled on our heavy clothes and with the perennial mug of coffee in hand, headed out to the garden. It's early in the season for Hostas to be showing any sign of life. We were counting on finding last summer's flower stalks to point out the location. All we could see were dead Fern fronds and the nubby beginnings of this year's Fiddleheads. A tangle of red Dogwood stems filled in the gaps, clearly a plot to be thinned — is that the opposite of "the plot thickens"? This bed was a dead loss.

Remembering we had planted Hostas by the front door (their varigated white and green foliage catches the light at night, like strips of reflective tape) that's where we found them. A job like this needs a series of tools. Our number one favorite is the spading fork. The broad tines will pierce even the rocky soil between the porch and the driveway. Digging a Hostas is not a job for the faint-hearted. They create a massive root system in very little time and although these plants have only been here for two years one plant would easily fill a garbage can lid. Dig, ugh - lift, ugh. We circle each plant, first with the fork then with a long-handled spade. The handle length is critical when you want to lever the root ball out of the ground. With much grubbing and scrambling we finally got the first one out of the ground. Only two plants here, but from the size of them we found we could divide them in four to five pieces each, more than enough to go around the base of the Crabapple tree.

We actually got the plants dug and re-planted in two days, a record for us. Working with plants like the Hostas, that are still dormant, gives you a little extra time. Plants that are in leaf must be handled carefully. The raspberry patch was our next target, but knowing their tendency to wilt we moved only a few at a time, keeping them wrapped in wet newspaper while in transit. Once in the ground we gave them a good drink and mulched around the roots — the bed they have moved into is poor soil and drains rapidly. Liberal side-dressing of bunny manure and peat moss over the summer should help the berry bushes along. We're staying away from the chicken litter. It scorched things last season, because it needs a longer ripening time — will use it in between layers in the compost heap that can stand heating up.

Two new rows of raspberries in and it's looking better already. This small city garden is barely 23 feet wide. It used to be a parking lot for dump trucks. Two years ago we spent the summer digging up the layers of asphalt and replaced it with soil. We seeded in the fall and again last spring and now it looks ready to take on a lawnmower. The actual garden, food-stuff, is going in the big barrels that we were filling last week. Parsley, Chives and the French Tarragon are up. The Sage took a beating but we hope it will come through. Growing herbs above ground keeps them out of the way of dogs and marauding chickens.

Despite the warm weather — don't be fooled into planting tomatoes, peppers, or basil. It isn't warm enough for these heat-loving veggies. Great for peas though. The flowering sweet ones too. Young onions can go in. We're clipping the tips off the climbing onions for a salad of Sorrel, Parsley and lettuce. A great way to start the season.

Triple grading feasible with small class sizes

Alexis Mantell
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG — Declining enrolment and fewer staffing dollars are making talk of triple-grading a reality in the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry County Board of Education schools.

Riverside Heights Public School will no doubt see a 1-2-3 and a 4-5-6 class next fall. Parents there have accepted multiple grading as an alternative to closing the community school.

Iroquois Public School principal Brooke Leightizer hopes to stave off triple-grading there next fall by combining grade 7 and 8 students not in French Immersion with a regular grade 6 class.

The Morrisburg Public School committee fears the growing drain of grade 7 and 8 students to Iroquois for its Late French Immersion (LFI) program will force a grade 6-7-8 class as early as two years from now.

Is the grouping of three levels in one classroom workable? Can the students receive adequate attention from their teacher?

According to SD&G board vice-chairman Roy Hastings, multiple grading is a "viable and preferable" method of education.

Responding to the Morrisburg committee's fears last week, Hastings said there would be no harm to students in such a setting. They learn to work independently and develop a spirit of co-operation, he said.

"It's a difficult topic to cover," says Morrisburg principal Earle Jeacle. "There are so many variables that it is difficult to say how successful — or unsuccessfully — triple grading can work."

Success depends on size

It's success, he says, depends on keeping the class size down to a "managable" 20 students. It also depends on the capabilities of the particular students in the classroom.

Obviously teaching students at three levels requires more organization on the part of the teacher. A 30-minute class must be planned down to the last minute if lessons are to be covered for each level, he says. For core subjects, such as math or reading, where the learning process is sequential, triple-grading means a teacher must give a 10 minute "lesson" to one level while the other two do "seatwork" says Jeacle, himself a product of a one-room schoolhouse in Metcalfe.

"Students learn to work on their own. But what about the one who can't learn on his own — what is he doing for that 20 minutes?"

A teacher at Morrisburg Public who preferred not to be named, agrees triple-grading may be best suited for the average student. He said it might be the low grade 6 or the high-functioning grade 8 student who suffers in a multiple grade setting.

John Milnes, chairman of the political action committee of the Ontario Public School Teachers Federation, says as a throwback to the old one-room schoolhouse, triple-grading may be beneficial to children raised in an age of the single-parent family. But today's education system does not have the stricter discipline, the narrow curriculum, or the teaching help expected of older students, that was part and parcel of the old system.

He said if smaller class sizes are not maintained, the teacher will face increasing frustration knowing he or she can't give a student the attention he needed.

Without a hitch

But at Sydney Street Public School in Cornwall, where a grade 2-3-4 class was introduced this year, the changeover has gone without a hitch, says the school's principal Dwayne MacKinnon.

"It was a case of 'here are the staffing allocations and let's be creative with it and keep the school going'," he says. The better the school's non-core opportunities — such as music or art classes — the easier it is to avoid a full three-level situation in the classroom. For example, the timetable allows the grades 3-4 group to leave for French to give the teacher time alone with the grade 2 students.

Riverside Heights will likely follow this path next fall, says principal Doug Anderson.

This solution might not be so simple, warns the Morrisburg teacher, if his school is faced with a grade 6-7-8 class. For instance, the grade 6 students take a "social studies" curriculum, while the higher grades take the more defined subjects of history and geography, and each at a different level.

To make multi-grading work, Jeacle admits, will also take a shift in education philosophy. Teachers, and more importantly parents, must move away from the traditional emphasis on "content" or facts to a belief in the "process" of learning. By teaching the process, such as how to observe and analyze the facts he says, non-core subjects such as geography might lend themselves well to a triple-grading format.

"This is where parents tend to get uptight. But with triple-grading all the curriculum won't be covered — it's not physically or humanly possible. There will have to be some combining of material." he said.

"To say triple-grading won't work is wrong. It can — if the environment is a good one. The same thing happened when the board first introduced full-day kindergarten to save on transportation. It works. It's just not as preferable as the old half-day everyday program."

Residents force council to reconsider 12-lot plan

OSNABRUCK CENTRE—Osnabruck Township council is reconsidering its plans to turn seven acres of vacant land in Ingleside's west end into a 12-lot subdivision.

Residents on Piercy made it clear to council recently they wanted to see the land parcel, known as "Kilarney Street North" or "the strip lands", because of its location between Piercy and Pine Streets, remain exclusively parkland.

At a meeting here recently council passed a motion to ask abutting landowners if they are willing to buy chunks of the land, effectively extending their back yards and swallowing the southern portion of the strip. Approximately two acres at the strip's northern end would become parkland.

Deputy-clerk Bart Whitton will contact the property owners to gauge interest in purchasing the extra land before a full survey is commissioned.

But as one councillor after another pointed out Wednesday, it is an all-or-nothing proposition. If all the landowners concerned do not agree to buy the lot extensions, the plan falls flat.

Councillors opted for the lot extension proposal over one that would have seen the creation of six single-family lots at the southerly end, with the two-acre park to the north. Township engineer Derek Wilson pointed out the six lots would not be economically viable and councillors conceded Piercy Street residents would still be unhappy with the thought of housing lots behind them.

Councillors also moved to set aside up to $10,000 in the 1986 budget to "clean up" the long-neglected strip lands and to correct the poor drainage along Pine Street South.

Wilson reiterated the existing right-of-way running the westerly length of the strip lands must be maintained for the installation of future storm and sanitary sewers to service any development to the north.

Hydro wants larger, more private office

MORRISBURG—Cramped conditions at the clerk's office are forcing the Morrisburg Hydro Commission to seek bigger and more private office space.

"People come in to discuss their bills and there are people at the counter paying other bills. There's not even a private place to talk to customers about disconnections," hydro chairman Bruce MacDonald told council members at a meeting here recently.

Hydro pays $100 a month rent to share front office space with the municipal office staff. Its five-year lease expires in 1987.

"We're asking what kind of space increase you can allow us. If not, the commission should be looking around for some place else."

Ideally, said MacDonald, hydro wants to remain in the civic building or move to the shopping centre. Before locating in the civic building, the hydro office was housed in a 400-square foot office on the mall that it wants to sell. The lack of space there, said MacDonald, forced the move to the civic building and now it needs enough space for a counter, desk and an inner-outer office.

Councillor Peter McCooeye said the current arrangement is convenient for bill payers, since both water and hydro bills can be paid in the same place. He said he'd like to see the hydro office remain there.

Reeve Bill Dillabough said there's no extra office space in the civic centre for the commission to move into right now.

The only possible solution, added clerk Lloyd Barkley, would be to move to the old high school, but then customers would have to climb stairs.

The two will discuss the situation further.

Education week offers something for everyone

MORRISBURG — Whether it's book fairs and dancerise demonstrations, music recitals or science displays, all area schools have planned something a little special for Education Week, April 28 to May 2. The events are open to parents and the public.

Today (Wednesday) students at St Mary's School in Morrisburg will participate in a dancercise class and special "parachute" games with Ingleside instructor Doris Rose, beginning at 1 p.m. The public speaking finals for students in grades 5 through 8 also get underway today at Rothwell-Osnabruck K-13 school in Ingleside.

At Iroquois Public School, a music festival preview will be featured from 2:10 p.m. to 2:40 p.m. Included will be selected students and groups participating in the Kinsmen Music Festival in Cornwall next week.

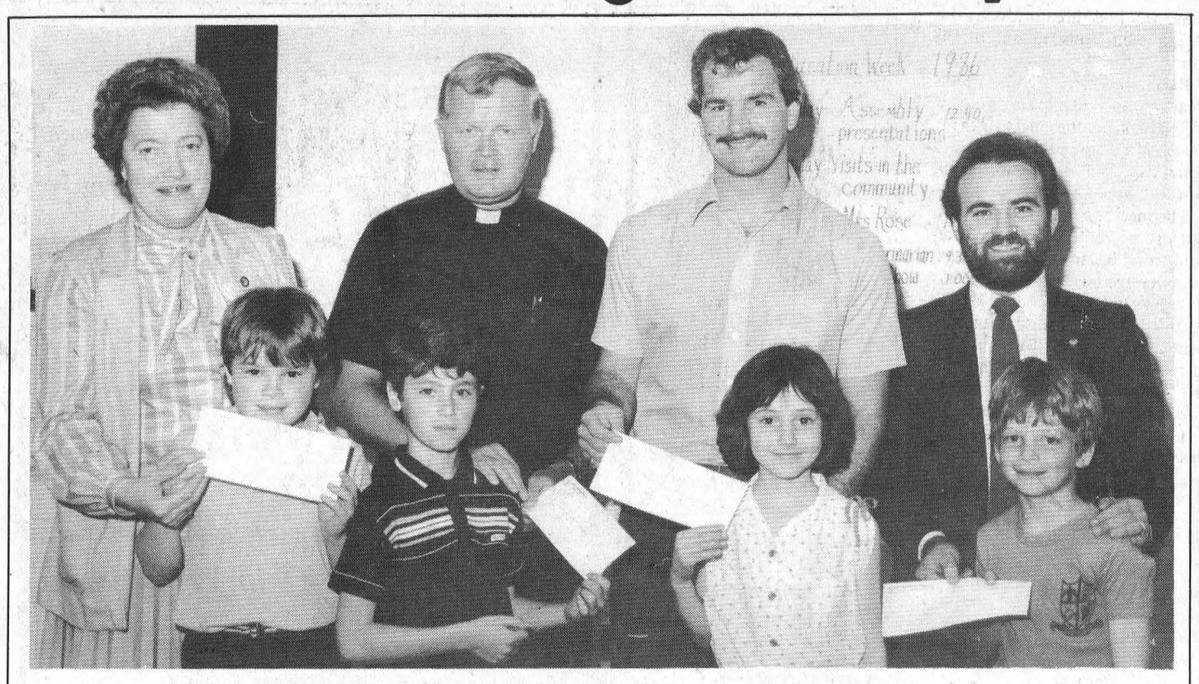
At St. Cecilia's in Iroquois Danny Rice will offer a talk at 1 p.m. on the Morrisburg Hydro Commission. At Seaway District High School, the first-ever Health Fair will wrap up Wednesday with aerobics classes and a demonstration at 1 p.m. of the extrication equipment used by the Morrisburg volunteer fire department to free accident victims from their cars.

On Thursday May 1, Iroquois Public will feature two gymnastic displays at 9:30 a.m. and 10:40 a.m. A meeting of the Iroquois school committee begins at 7:30 p.m.

At St. Mary's School, Thursday has been set aside for displays of students' hobbies and science projects. Rothwell-Osnabruck will present an Open House beginning at 7 p.m., featuring art and hands-on computer dispays. Beginning at 8:15, a selection of music will be performed by students in the intrumental music room. In the Osnabruck school gym at 8:45 p.m., there will be a staff-versus-students Canada Quiz challenge.

For those looking for an "old world flair" the Riverside Heights Public school learning disabilities class is holding a "Medieval Feast", Thursday May 1 at 11:30 a.m. There will be fingerfood, toasts and mock-jousting featured.

Earlier in the week, R-O students in grades 5 through 8 were asked to bring their favorite "collections" — be it bubblegum cards, dolls, or shells — to the library for display. St. Mary students spent the day visiting several Morrisburg businesses and industries.



"Love Cup" project a success

Following their "Love Cup" Lenten project, students at St. Mary's Separate School raised $250 for worthwhile projects. Left to right, grade 4 student Julie Croteau presents a cheque to Peter McCooeye for the Morrisburg Lions Easter Seals campaign, and Joey Sicurella, grade 3, hands a cheque to Father Jim MacGillivray for an area needy family. Stephanie Cassell, grade 2, offers a contribution to the Canadian Cystic Fibrosis Foundation to Jack Notman, as Stephen Lunn, grade 1, presents the school's gift to the Canadian Cancer Society to Karen Gorrell. —Mantell photo

Repair job in order as leak detected

MORRISBURG — Talk about "faulty towers" in your own backyard.

The village works crew has discovered what amounts to a small leak in the water tower — and a major repair job is imminent.

"It's not as if there's water trickling out of it," said village clerk Lloyd Barkley. "It's more like a sweaty type of leak. But it indicates there's something wrong there, that something will have to be repaired."

The 30-year-old water tower holds about 308,000 gallons of water, says Barkley. Repairs will be carried out just as soon as the equipment becomes available.

Needed is a boom to hoist a welder up the side of the tower to do the necessary patchwork. Barkley estimates the cost of the repair job at $100 an hour for a welder, for about two days' work. Equipment costs will run about the same, he says, bringing the total bill to between $3,500 and $5,000.

Police reports

MORRISBURG — Charges are pending against Dennis Wylie of R.R. 2 Brinston following an accident early Sunday morning on Conc. 5-6 in Matilda Township.

Wylie was eastbound on the concession road just west of County Road 2 in a 1977 Chrysler when he failed to see a 1976 Datsun owned by Iroquois resident Earl Merkley parked unattended on the shoulder. Wylie's car slammed into the rear of the Merkley vehicle and then left the scene, police say.

Damage has been estimated at $2,000 to the Merkley vehicle and $500 to the Wylie car.

In provincial court here yesterday Wylie was charged $128 for failing to remain at the scene of an accident and $500 for driving a vehicle without insurance. A third charge of careless driving was withdrawn.

LONG SAULT — OPP here report a quiet weekend in Stormont County with no major accidents reported in the Ingleside area. Police charged two motorists with impaired driving, handed out four 12-hour suspensions, and laid five charges under the Liquor Licence Act.

Seaway girls' team scores rare first at Memorial track meet

IROQUOIS — Thousand Islands Secondary School may have walked away with the annual David Stevens Memorial Relay meet here Thursday but its runners weren't the only ones to be celebrating.

Seaway students were thrilled with the run made by Debbie Cooper, Robin Bouck, Cindy Warren and Lydia Paulino in the junior girls 2000 metre — a run which scored them an easy first over their competitors.

Cooper opened the lead in the first leg of the race and her teammnates held the pace as Seaway athletes gathered at the finish line for the rare first place finish.

Coach Keith McIsaac was extremely pleased with the girls' finish. "We hardly ever win at this meet because the schools participating are twice our size," he said. "Basically we are outclassed because of size."

The win gave the 37 member Seaway team - one of the biggest teams ever entered in the meet - 10 points and helped them to land in 13th place overall out of 17 schools.

T.I.S.S. was the easy winner, taking home the Great Shakes trophy with 207 points based on 13 firsts, six seconds, three thirds, two fourths, one fifth and one sixth. Finishing in second, but way back of the champs, were the Brockville Collegiate Institute runners with 116 points. They were followed by South Carlton 108, Sydenham 95, La Citadelle 79, St. Lawrence 72 and Cornwall Collegiate Vocational School 56.

Other top six finishes for Seaway came in the junior girls 1600 metre relay when Paulino, Warren, Cooper and Brigette Duvall claimed a third.

Kim Bucking, Tanya Mabo, Kathy Byvelds and Laura Dawley placed fourth in the midget girls 4 x 100 and Bucking, Dawley, Mabo and Lisa Warren were fifth in the midget girls 4 x 200.

The midget boys team of Randy Mullin, Jamie Whitteker, Elkar Fisher and Jeff Ferguson placed sixth in the 4 x 100 and Troy Suddard, Robbie Whittaker, Warren Robertson and Jim Bennis finished sixth in the junior boys 4 x 200.

Other runners competing for Seaway were Lisa VanHoof, Katherine Shaw, Tanya Dunning, Tracy Hart, Krista Casselman, Jeff Burgess, Jason Smith, Scott Fields, Gerry Mabo, Barry Degray, Steven Kenward, Dwayne Backes, Mike Byvelds, Dan Noakes, Billy Hutt, Andrew Adams, Brad Turner and Mike Domanko.

The Keith McIsaac trophy went to the co-ed coaches team from Sydenham. Grenville Christian was second and St. Lawrence finished third.

Seaway had three teams in this category but finished out of the top six.

Race organizer Don Fairweather and his team of race officials kept the meet moving along at a good pace. "It was a good day and the weather was perfect" he said.

The meet was not well attended last year, only seven schools competing because of an increased entry fee charged in an effort to raise funds to be used in the renovations of the deteriorating Seaway track. This was not done last week and as a result most of the 12 schools which were not present in 1985 were back.

La Citadelle won the meet last year due largely to the absence of many of the larger schools, particularly T.I.S.S. which had retained the championship for three consecutive years.

Morrisburg curling club

Executive back for another season

MORRISBURG — Members of the curling club here will be under the direction of the same executive next year since all officers were returned to their positions in the elections held Tuesday night.

Back as president is Peter Brunt with Grahaem Doig first vice and Alan Brunt second. Lauren Locke was returned as secretary-treasurer and Gerald Adams resumed chairmanship of the membership committee.

Following the election of the executive and the closing of the meeting a second election was held to name directors to the Granites - the club's incorporated owners of which all club members, in good standing, belong.

Elected to the Granites were Alan Brunt, Doug Brunt, Grahaem Doig, Charlie Crober, Donna Moore, Robin Lane and Jack Parnell. The Granites were directed to determine the duration of their terms which vary from one to three years.

After the various committee reports, meeting chairman Jack Parnell outlined possible expenditures facing the club. An estimate of more than $20,000 was received to repair the building's roof and repairs to the floor were projected at between $10 and $20,000. Also mentioned were repairs in the kitchen, improvements to the windows overlooking the ice, an inspection for tile drainage and alterations necessary for the storage of the ice machine.

It was decided the senior men's club would go ahead with the final item and as for the rest there was general agreement, that before anything was done, members would have to decide on their priorities.

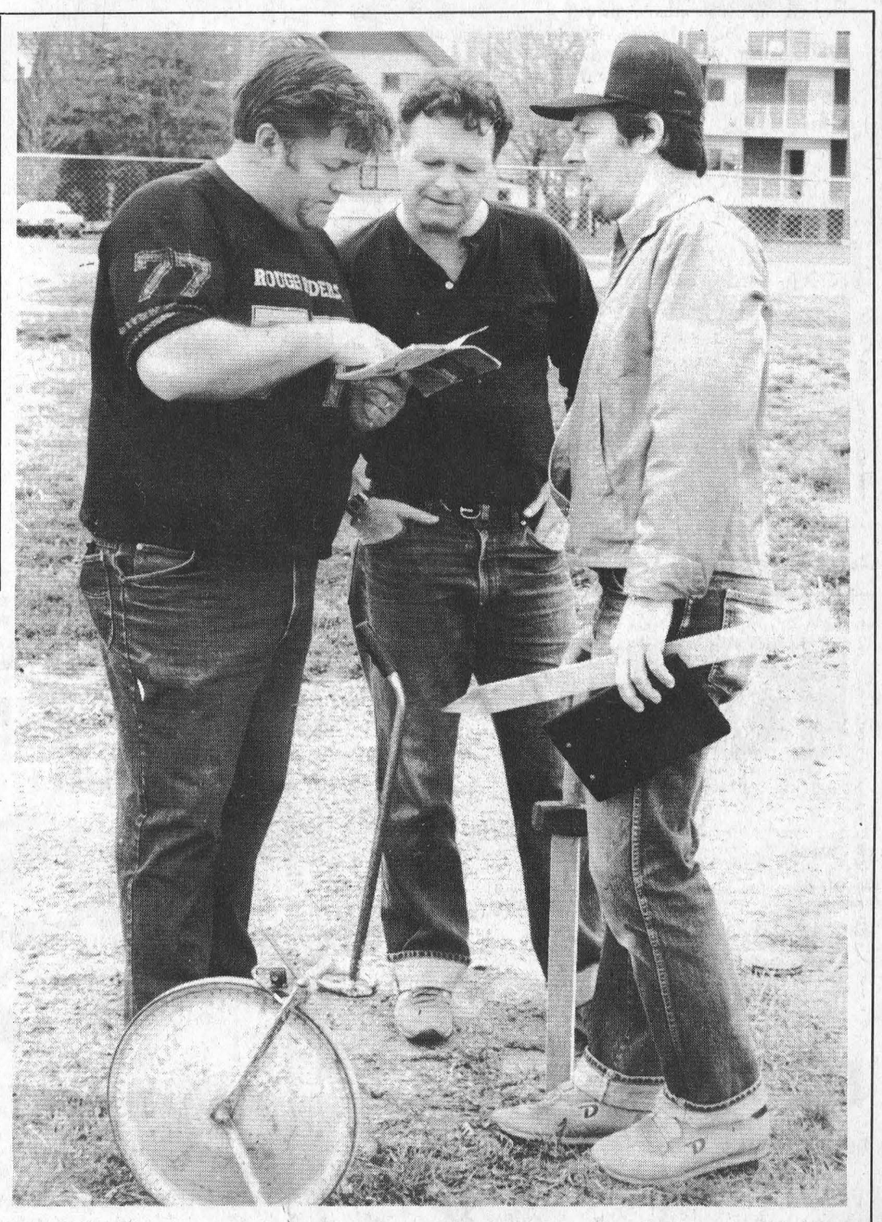
"We have to have ice to curl on," said John Wilson. "It's embarrassing to have outside rinks come in and refuse to play on it. We need to determine what our priority is, the roof or the ice."

"Some of us are concerned about the ice surface," agreed Grahaem Doig. "It's embarrassing to say the least."

Doug Brunt admitted the executive was trying to look at everything and go from there. "This (the roof estimate) is just the start."

The final item of the meeting was the setting of fees for 1986-87. Pointing out the increase in insurance premiums, fire doubling and liability expected to triple, it was decided there was no choice but to raise the memberships. The result was a $15 increase across the board.

Men's rates went to $125, senior men's $115, ladies $105, senior ladies $95, student associate $35. Associate fees remained at $20 and senior associates at $15.



Who's on first?

Ted Smith (left), Jim Scott and Ray Gibeault discuss the yardage from first to second base after pounding the official stake at first Saturday morning. Play on new diamond this year is possible

MORRISBURG — Work has begun on the new waterfront ball diamond but whether it will be playable this year is still a question.

Morrisburg councillor, Peter McCooeye, who is handling the remedial work necessary to correct construction mistakes made when the project was started last summer, says he can see play on the diamond this year but maybe not under lights.

"Basically what we are doing now, is starting over," said McCooeye. "Ted Smith volunteered to stake the diamond properly and we are going from there."

According to McCooeye the outfield fence is in its proper place but the outfield poles and the poles on the first baseline all have to be moved. The only minor problem that could be caused by moving the poles would be the shortage of electric wiring. The wiring was done last fall. Also to be moved is the backstop which is slightly out of line.

McCooeye is working with the minor ball association which has presented a list of problems with the diamond. Don Smithson is supervising the work.

Last week the field was cleaned up, and the infield, of stone dust and sand, was levelled. off. The outfield still needs landscaping but McCooeye says that will wait until August when topsoil will be brought in and seeded. "There's no sense doing it now because the kids will probably be on it all summer," says McCooeye.

Saturday morning Ted Smith, Jim Scott, Raymond Gibeault and Rick Stanczak staked the diamond. Monday the light poles were taken down.

Four players, Steve Norton, Peter Holmes, Bobby Jack Hart and Terry Carkner were voted to the league all-star team and Norton was the league's most valuable player and batting champion.

Holding spots in this year's lineup are Norton, Hart, Holmes Terry Carkner, Brent Carkner, Kerry Cahill, Mike Cavan, Ron Sloan, Eric Mussell, Ric Boyd, Doug MacEachern, Chris Guy, Mike Veltkamp and Derek Hyndman who is still midget age. The team is coached by Guy Hart.

Springs trap and skeet club makes changes

WINCHESTER SPRINGS — The Winchester Springs Trap and Skeet Club held its annual election on April 22 and elected a new executive to serve for the 1986-87 shooting season. The newly elected officers are President Jake Geertsma, Vice-President Willard Holtz, Secretary Nick Gruich and Treasurer Lawrence Holmes.

The club members unanimously passed a motion to affiliate the club with the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters. This affiliation will automatically provide the club with extensive liability insurance, the amount of the coverage increasing as the club membership increases. In addition, each individual club member will receive one million dollars of personal liability insurance from the OFAH which will cover any shooting, or boating accident.

The annual club membership fee had to be raised from $5 to $20 to cover the extra cost of OFAH affiliation, but this rate will be lower for members under 18, senior citizens, and an economical family rate is available as well. Nineteen members have joined the club to date.

Also approved at the meeting was a more formal approach to the shooting activities. All future shooting events, whether practice or competition, will require the presence of a range officer before shooting is permitted. In addition to the range officer, an adjudicator will be apointed to all future competitions to settle any dispute between the contestant and the scorekeeper.

While the club is basically for trap and skeet shooters, a 100 yard target range, complete with bench rest is available to members to sight in their rifles prior to the hunting season.

In addition to the existing shooting facilities offered to members, the club is considering the possibility of expanding into more shooting activities such as metallic silhouette shooting, air rifle competitions, a handgun range, muzzleloading, and a multi-station archery range. Further expansion will depend on demand and support from Dundas county residents.

Events chairman Steve Barkley has established the summer shooting schedule to include the first and third Tuesday of each month from May to August, commencing at 7:00 p.m. Steve is also working on a calendar of competitive events that will be open to club members and members of the public who can show evidence of adequate personal liability insurance.

Legion playoff darts

MORRISBURG — The Legion Mixed Dart League playoffs got off to a roaring start here Tuesday night with two teams, the Duds and the Lucky Ladies, finishing tied for first on six wins.

The playoff setup calls for a two-night round robin affair, the team with the most wins taking the playoff championship.

It was a real turn-around for the Lucky Ladies who finished the regular season in the basement. Elva Baker, Elsie Guindon and Carl Schwerdtfeger all contributed to the cause with two wins.

Brian McNairn had the hot hand for the Duds hitting for four outs and he was backed by singles from Alice Tinker and Floyd Elliot.

Following closely on the leaders' heels are the Six Shooters with five wins. Carol Ann Shields was the top Six Shooters thrower with three wins and Terry Laurin added a pair.

A real traffic jam resulted in the middle of the standings - the Misfits, Daredevils and Hustlers all tied with four wins. Mary Ann Whittaker and Gerry Roberts had two outs each for the Hustlers and Hartley Graham produced four for the regular season championship Daredevils Team. Randy Markell hit twice for the Misfits and Lyndon Casselman and Gail Kelly each had one.

Standing alone with three wins are the Hustlers and the Outlaws and Flukes finished with two each.

Ted Jarvis, Judy Laurin and John Rice had the Sailor wins and Irene Chapman and George Baker did the work for the Outlaws. Pat Filiou produced the Fluke wins.

News from Seaway

by Wendy Laurin

Is there anyone else out there who's ever felt like they've been run over by a truck? I swear I have bruises everywhere on my body from soccer last weekend. I've worked out my philosophy Mrs. Wagemans. Never argue over a soccer ball with someone one foot taller and wider than yourself. Enough moaning. There will be more next weekend.

Monday brought the official opening of the Health Fair being held at Seaway this week. The students and their teachers attended an assembly at 2:00 p.m. Monday. Norm Warner, Noble Villeneuve, Mrs. Susan Adams and Dr. Andrew Pipe spoke to the students about the Fair and health related subjects.

Smoking of course was put down. Seems that second hand smoke can be almost as bad as puffing yourself. So next time don't complain when I tell you not to blow smoke in my face Mom. It's a major case of fog whenever we go anywhere in the car.

Dr. Pipe is a cardiac surgeon at the Ottawa Civic. He showed us pictures of all the little doodads he puts in people. The heart valve looked like a flower to me. Someone else thought it looked like Q-tips stuck together.

Dr. Pipe also stated doctors don't always know all they let on they do. Ack! I knew there was a reason I dislike visiting the Clinic.

By the way Dr. Pipe, Shelley and I liked your jokes even if everyone else moaned and groaned.

A filmstrip showed various athletes (including Ronda's Wayne!) for exercise and against smoking as well as the various little instruments and gadgets the good Dr. uses. The tissue near the heart looked like worms. Yuck. I knew I didn't start smoking for a reason. After the filmstrip, Norm Warner and Noble Villeneuve released two bunches of balloons to signify the commencement of the Health Fair in lieu of a ribbon cutting ceremony. And the Health Fair began.

Tuesday and today students from Seaway and all the little guys from the public school visited the fair. The public took a peek at all the healthy stuff Tuesday from 6-9 p.m.

Last Thursday the Annual David Steven's Memorial Relay Meet was held at Seaway. TISS captured first prize while Seaway didn't obviously. Seaway's Junior Girls 2000 medley team — Cindy Warren, Robin Bouck, Lydia Paulino and Debbie Cooper — took first place for that race though. You looked really professional crossing the finish line first Lydia. It was a nice day to get a sunburn and check out the student bodies anyway. Not that I myself would do such a thing.

Congratulations to Martin Noakes for placing first with 82% in an Accounting test at our rival school North Dundas. Eldon Horner captured second, Steven Horner (must run in the family) and Markus Staebler each received 70% in the Junior division. We might not be so good in giving up our blood (referring to North Dundas' win of the Corpusle Cup) but we can dish out the brainy students.

By the way the new Corpusle Cup challenge between Seaway and North Dundas is Friday May 2nd.

No grant money for Seaway High's track

IROQUOIS — News that Seaway District High School was turned down by the Ministry of Tourism and Recreation on its grant request to help offset the repairs to the school's rapidly deteriorating track has not dampened the enthusiasm of fundraisers here but it certainly causes a slight setback.

"We were told by the ministry the request was not a high enough priority," said Don Fairweather, a physical education teacher at Seaway who has spearheaded the drive to restore the track. "We were however, invited to re-submit next year."

Fairweather says fundraising efforts have netted about $16,000 of the estimated $38,000 needed to restore the track. "It's a figure we certainly can't sneeze at especially considering the part time effort we've put into the fundraising."

"The refusal of our grant request just means there'll have to be more effort on our part to raise the money."

A bike-a-thon is planned for June and other fundraising efforts will continue. According to Fairweather there is still an outside chance the work on the track can be done in late summer or early this fall.

Built in the early 1970s the six lane track, made of an asphalt base and synthetic rubber surface has not held up under weather conditions. Basically the base is alright, but the rubber top is peeling.

The initial campaign to build the track at the south side of the school was launched by a group of interested students and teachers who raised the money through local fundraising.

9. CHARGES FOR NET LONG TERM LIABILITIES

Total charges for the year for net long term liabilities which are reported on the "Consolidated Statement of Operations" are as follows:

	1985	1984
Principal payment	$3,238	$2,970
Interest	4,441	4,709
	$7,679	$7,679

The charges for long term liabilities assumed by the non-consolidated entities are not reflected in these statements.

10. CONTINGENT LIABILITIES

The municipality is contingently liable for long term liabilities with respect to those for which the responsibility for the payment of principal and interest has been assumed by unconsolidated municipal utilities. The amount outstanding as at December 31, 1985 is $11,000 (1984 - $13,200) and is not recorded on the "Consolidated Balance Sheet."

11. NONACCRUAL OF INTEREST ON LONG TERM LIABILITIES

No provision has been made in these financial statements for the accrual of interest on the net long term liabilities. Had this provision been made the municipal fund balances as at December 31, 1985 would have been decreased by $ 340 (1984 - $ 364).

12. ANALYSIS OF CAPITAL OPERATIONS

"Unapplied capital receipts (or capital operations not yet financed)" represents the "net" position of all capital projects which is the summation of the following two types of projects:

i) those where incurred costs are greater than financing, and
ii) those where the financing is greater than incurred costs or those where financing has not to date been assigned to a project.

13. RESERVE FUNDS

Effective January 1st, 1985, amendments to regulations require that the Ontario Home Renewal Program funds be accounted for as a trust fund and no longer as a reserve fund. This transfer of the fund balance has reduced the total opening reserve fund balances by $136,618, and is not reflected in the Consolidated Statement of Operations. The 1985 transactions for this Program are reflected in the financial statements for the trust funds of the municipality.

Dundas townships get MTC grants

CORNWALL — Dundas County municipalities were not ignored last weekend when Ontario transport minister Ed Fulton handed out $1.4 million in grants to 33 Eastern Ontario municipalities.

Five Dundas County municipalities netted $220,000 in supplementary funding — grants given out over and above the regular yearly allocations — for everything from a relocation of a bridge to street reconstruction.

Williamsburg and Winchester townships were the big winners. They each nabbed $62,500 towards new equipment purchases. Williamsburg Township will get a new snow plow truck and Winchester Township a new grader.

Winchester village was promised $35,000 for the reconstruction of just under a half kilometre of Main Street, west of Ottawa Street. Chesterville managed $40,000 for repairs to Victoria and Mill Streets to the Nation River.

The Timmins bridge, located on lot 18 Conc. 2 in Mountain Township, will benefit from the $20,000 contribution awarded that township towards the cost of its relocation, engineering, design and property acquisiton costs.

Odd-man-out in the supplementary funding game this time around were the village of Morrisburg and Iroquois and Matilda Township.

However United Counties administrator Raymond Lapointe noted the grants announced last Sunday may not be the final list. "The minister (Ed Fulton) said other requests are being considered."

Osnabruck Township council was awarded $30,000 towards the cost of repairs to the township garage.

Across S.D.&G. 13 municipal projects received a total of $584,000 in financing. Kenyon Township in Glengarry County topped the big money list, receiving $100,000 for bridge replacement and road work.

Wmsb. fireman burned in weekend house fire

DUNBAR — A Williamsburg Township firefighter suffered burns to his face after an explosion inside a blazing house spewed fire out of a lower window.

Andre Buter of Williamsburg was treated at Winchester District Memorial Hospital Sunday following a fire at the home of Gabriel Martell at lot 19, Conc. 7 Williamsburg Township.

An investigator with the Ontario Fire Marshal's office has been called to determine the cause of the fire, which destroyed the upper storey of the 140-year-old stone house and caused severe smoke and water damage to the main floor.

Williamsburg fire chief Lyal Kehoe said 12 firefighters battled the blaze for five hours, after receiving a call from Martell's neighbor around 6:15 p.m.

Martell and his family were not at home when the fire began. They had begun to move to a new home in Chesterville, and Kehoe said most but not all the belongings had already been removed from the house when the fire began.

Leaf burning a no-no

IROQUOIS — If some council members here have their way, it will be against the law to burn leaves within village limits.

Iroquois council has agreed to resurrect a bylaw that was drafted two years ago, but never passed, making it illegal to burn leaves.

"I smelled them all weekend and it wasn't pleasant," said councillor Lorraine Fader at last week's regular meeting. "It was windy and there was a pile of leaves burning that was taller than me, from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m."

Reeve Frank Rooney told his council the bylaw was axed several years back after council members of the day claimed they liked the smell of burning leaves wafting through the village.

"I think it can be pretty annoying myself, it just filters into everything, especially if you've just hung a big wash on the line and someone starts burning leaves," he said.

Councillor John Haldane admitted he didn't think it much of a problem, since most people are still under the dated misconception they need the fire department's permission to burn leaves on their property. That ruling was done away with in 1968.

Council agreed there's nothing wrong with bagging the leaves and leaving them for garbage pick-up. Members will discuss the proposed bylaw at their next meeting.

Unique auction

MORRISBURG — Looking for a unique find at an unusual auction? Something a little different than used garden tools, lawn furniture or the insides of someone's home. Something more along the lines of, say, a babysitter, a piano lesson, theatre tickets, or someone to do odd jobs.

It's definitely not your average, run-of-the-mill sale, but the congregation at Knox Presbyterian Church here is hoping its talent auction will prove a winner.

On Friday, May 9 villagers will get the chance to bid on just about anything the church and its 80 families is prepared to put on the auction block. The proceeds will be used to pay for a new roof on the church and the manse.

The brainchild of member Margaret Reynolds, there'll be hand-knitted articles, Icelandic sweaters, homemade preserves and wood carvings auctioned off. There'll also be transportation to and from the Perth and Lanark clothing outlets, shopping trips to Cornwall and Brockville, dinner and theatre ticket packages, guitar, tennis and organ lessons, sewing and alterations, tutoring, use of a truck and persons for odd jobs, a disc jockey and babysitting services, to name just a few.

"You just bid on each item as you would at a regular auction," says Reynolds, who suggested the idea as a fundraiser after hearing of a similar, successful venture held at a small country church near Orillia.

Most of the congregation is contributing something to the auction, be it a handmade article or service, she says.

Starting bids will vary because of the diverse nature of the items to be auctioned.

Weather permitting, the sale will get underway on the church grounds at 6:30 p.m.

Club holds bikeathon

INGLESIDE — The Ingleside-Osnabruck Rotary Club is hoping cycling enthusiasts are "gearing up" for the annual fundraising bike-a-thon along the Long Sault Parkway, to be held May 10.

This year one-quarter of the 10-to-40 kilometre bike-a-thon will go towards capital improvements to Camp Kagama at Morrison Island west of Ingleside. The remainder of the money raised will go to other Rotary-sponsored community projects.

The bike-a-thon course will consist of four-10 km laps, each one the length of the Long Sault Parkway. Sponsor sheets are available at the Rothwell-Osnabruck K-13 School or from Melvin Waldroff of Newington, Dalton Cleary in Lunenburg or Lefebvre's M & M store in Ingleside.

All riders (except Rotarians) who turn in their pledge sheets by May 24, are eligible to win a bicycle. A contestant will receive one draw ticket for every $10 pledged. The draw will be made May 31 at 11 a.m. at Stewart's Home Hardware in Ingleside. The bike is the prize and no money will be given.

Also up for grabs are five mini-pizzas to be awarded the day of the event, courtesy of Old Pals Restaurant, west of Ingleside.

Receipts for donations of $10 or more will be issued by Camp Kagama.

The money raised for camp will go towards purchasing materials needed to bring it up to current ministry of health guidelines. The Rotarians will supply the labor.

For more information on the bike-a-thon, contact Pat English at 534-2178, or Roger Crites at 537-2737.

Township moves on offer to purchase

BRINSTON — It's the first real flicker of interest shown in more than two years and Matilda Township is not about to let it go.

On the heels of a $2,800 offer for the Broken Second property known as the Marshall Estate, council here has rebounded with a $3,200 counter-offer.

The township took possession of the land after the original owners failed to pay a mounting tax bill. Council now is hoping to recoup some of that $2,000 of lost revenue.

"It used to be a brushy, swampy looking area but now that it's cleaned out it looks like a lot. If we can retrieve some of the costs against the property ..." suggested reeve Lorne Mellan at a council meeting here last week.

Councillor Norm Tinkler suggested the township would be better off to accept the $2,800 offer than hang onto "dead-weight" for another two years.

After some discussion members agreed to make realtor John Allison the $3,200 counter-offer, preferring instead to pick up the legal fees.

Dundas Red Cross names new executive

The Dundas County Branch of the Canadian Red Cross held its annual meeting April 22 at the Morrisburg Civic Centre. Along with the election of officers and reports from the standing committees was a film presentation by O.P.P. Constable Al Lumis of Winchester detachment.

Volunteer members elected to the branch executive for the coming year are President, Don Hill, Morrisburg; Past President, Gordon Thom, Morrisburg; Secretary, Tom Savary, Morewood; Treasurer, George Suffel, Inkerman; the Sickroom Loan Service, Mrs. Liz Gummeson of Morrisburg and Mrs. Kay Brown of Iroquois; the Emergency Service, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Thompson of Williamsburg.

Although stepping down from the office of president Gordon Thom still intends to remain active in the branch. Mr. Thom has been connected with the Red Cross in this area for over three decades and has served as president for many years.

Mrs. Gummeson noted a steady use of the variety of sickroom equipment which is available without charge for care of patients at home and may be arranged by calling 543-3151. Elaine MacKinnon, Red Cross homemaker service supervisor, Cornwall, noted that there are now 45 homemakers in Dundas County. The homemaker service, under the supervision of Nancy Gibson, provides help in the home for individuals and families. Inquires for this service should be directed to the Cornwall office at 932-3412.

The film presented by Constable Lumis was on Major Rail and Tank Explosions. The Long Sault rail accident brings to mind the potential for a Mississauga type disaster closer to home. Although the role of the Red Cross in an emergency situation is primarily a secondary one, in helping to provide food, clothing and shelter, the film pointed out a need to be prepared. Emergency services chairman Ed Thompson is currently developing a plan to better integrate the Red Cross with other emergency organizations in the county.

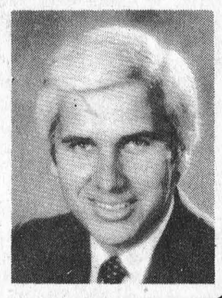
REPORT FROM

PARLIAMENT HILL

BY NORM WARNER, M.P.



In the recent budget the Conservative government introduced a 700 million loan program for farmers. The Commodity Based Loan is intended to reduce the number of f m failures among FCC clients y correlating loan payments wit commodity price fluctuations. his loan will be offered to lower equity FCC borrowers whose farm businesses have been weakened by economic conditions.

With coventional debt instruments, payments go up and down in response to interest rate changes. This means that loan payments may remain steady or go up while commodity prices and consequently incomes, are falling. The result is intense financial pressure. The commodity-based mortgage solves this problem by linking repayment with changes in commodity prices.

This two-year introductory program is aimed only at current FCC borrowers. The reason for this is that the Farm Credit Corporation serves the higher risk portion of the long-term farm credit market. Another reason is that farmers with bank loans have access to small business bonds to reduce interest rates.

The new program will provide full and partial indexing of the loan principal. For a fully indexed loan, the interest rate will be six per cent. Prior to the installment due date the remaining principal will be increased or decreased by the percentage increase or decrease in commodity prices from the previous year. The actual index for each commodity will be supplied by Agriculture Canada and Statistics Canada.

For a partially indexed loan, the interest rate will be six per cent plus half the difference between six per cent and the 10 year term rate at the time the loan is approved. Prior to the installment due date, the principal not due will be increased or decreased by half the percentage increase or decrease in commodity prices. For example, if the commodity prices increase by five per cent, the principal would increase by 2½ per cent.

Full or partial indexing is available to Farm Credit Corporation borrowers with 40 per cent equity or less in their farms. Those with more than 40 per cent and up to 55 per cent equity in their farms are eligible for partial indexing.

An example previously cited by the government shows that a farmer's payments on a $100,000 loan could vary from a low of $6,639 in a year when commodity prices are low to a high of $12,850 in a year when the market is at a peak. In comparison a conventional $100,000 mortgage at 12 per cent would carry with it payments of $13,691 every year. It is expected that the net effect of this program will be to smooth out the highs and lows in farm income and cash flow over time.

The objective of the Commodity Based Loan Program is to reduce the number of farm failures by providing farmers with debt obligations and payments which vary according to the ability of the farm business to pay under conditions of variable commodity prices.

This objective is realistic, achievable and within our control. It is realistic in that it deals with the major issue of high rates of farm failure under current economic conditions. It is achievable in that, since we control the program design and implementation, we can design and offer a viable alternative to some farmers facing or likely to face financial distress and thereby prevent some of these farmers from experiencing financial failure. Finally, it is the FCC's responsibility to design and implement the program and therefore, exercise control over who is eligible to ensure that the program is directed to those who have the best chance for long term success.

FOR THE LOVE OF GOD. GIVE.

The uniform is like a beacon on the street. It signals help. Compassion. Caring.

But not many people know how much it takes to be a soldier in the Salvation Army. The inhuman hours. The incredible patience. The brutal situations.

Taking responsibility for those whom society is unable to take responsibility for.

Providing help, and then hope, for the people who need it most.

But they know.

Anyone whose life the Salvation Army has touched knows.

And we ask for them, that you give.

As much as you can.

For the love of God.
