Charged with Firing Garage

A young man named Campbell Quinn of Finch, appeared before Police Magistrate Danis of Cornwall last week on a charge of setting fire to his garage in that village on the night of July 8th last. He was remanded until the 20th inst, being allowed out on bail of $4,000, himself in $2,000 and two sureties of $1,000 each. Besides the garage, two double tenement houses and a single dwelling house and three stables were destroyed by the fire. Mr. J. G. Harkness, County Crown Attorney, appeared in the case on behalf of the Crown.

Very Severe Weather

Eastern Ontario during the past week has been in the grip of a very severe cold spell. Last Friday here at seven in the morning the mercury had shrunken to thirty degrees below zero again reaching that point Tuesday morning with only once in between getting above the zero mark. As the cold moderated slightly on Tuesday afternoon a blinding snow storm developed being the first large quantity of snow for the season.

Hon. E. C. Drury to run in Halton

Hon. E. C. Drury and Hon. Manning Doherty will be nominated for seats in the Legislature on Monday, Feb. 9, the Prime Minister in Halton, and the Minister of Agriculture in East Kent. A week later Hon. W. E. Raney, Attorney-General, will be nominated, but the seat to be opened for him will not be announced for several days. Writs are being issued immediately.

An announcement to this effect was made yesterday by Hon. R. H. Grant, Minister of Education, who stated that J. F. Ford, U.F.O. member for Halton, and J. B. Clark, U.F.O. member for East Kent, had resigned in order to make way for Hon. Mr. Drury and his colleague. Within a few days, he stated, a third riding would be opened by the resignation of a member-elect to enable the Attorney-General to enter the Legislature.

Chesterville Loses Hard Game

Before a fair crowd of dauntless hockey fans, with the thermometer registering below zero, Chesterville lost a hard game to the Finch club by the score of 1 to 0. The game was a hard one to lose as the home team had the better of the play for three-quarters of the time and that the only thing that kept them from being winners was the superb playing of McMillan in goal for Finch. In fact he was the whole works and must surely have been padded with horseshoes to get away with it all and stop every one of the dozens of shots put at him from close in, far out or any old place. If his play Friday night was a sample of his everyday game he surely is a comer in a class by himself. Kennedy in Chesterville goal also played a good cool game stopping everything with the one exception.

The first period and seventeen minutes of the second had been played before Finch found the nets. After a rush by Chesterville with the defense badly drawn out Bill Ouderkirk broke away and with very little opposition scored the winning goal. Chesterville tried their best to get the game back but could not make it.

In the final period the play was continually in Finch territory and McMillan must have had ten shots to stop to one on the home nets, but he was there with bells on and there was nothing doing.

Taken as a whole the game was not a good exhibition of hockey, although exciting to watch, the players slashed, chopped, tripped and threw their sticks. A few cases were penalized but the referee failed to hold the men in check.

Teach the Children to Save

Habits are acquired early in life. Children, who are taught the value of money and the habit of saving, grow up into good business men and capable women.

The easiest way to teach children to save, is to start a Savings Account for each child ($1.00 each is sufficient). After a child has saved another dollar to make an additional deposit, he or she will have a better appreciation of just what a dollar stands for, and how much work and self-denial it represents.

Forester Night at Chesterville

The annual banquet, election and installation of officers took place on Wednesday night January 14th, and was as usual a great success. This night is always looked on as one of the greatest events of the season. A sumptuous turkey supper, with an abundant supply of good things was served by Mr. Eugene MacMillan. Music was furnished by their own orchestra, and a very pleasant evening was spent. A few Scottish selections were given by Brother Wm. Gillispie and were well received.

After filling the office of Chief Ranger for the past two years Mr. L. Jordan thanked the Brothers for that honor and explained with well-chosen words the high-standing of the Chesterville Court, both socially and financially, leaving 151 members in good standing, he wished to resign in any other Brother's favor chosen.

Water Works for Small Towns

Many of our moderate-sized communities have not availed themselves of the advantages and benefits of a public waterworks system. While some years ago only the larger cities could afford waterworks systems, modern progress has extended this privilege to the smaller towns and villages. The advantages of a common water supply with the convenience of tap water in each house, as against individual supply, need scarcely be pointed out. It is sanitary, convenient, cheaper in the long run, and greatly reduces the fire hazard. This last can be measured in dollars and cents in the reduction on insurance costs and consequent increase in value of property. Added to this, and perhaps of even greater value, is the assurance that the possibility of the entire town being destroyed by a conflagration has bsen immeasurably lessened.

That waterworks installations are not restricted to the large centres is plainly demonstrated in our own country. In our wo larger provinces, Ontario and Quebec there are over 180 public water systems for communities of 2,000 population or less, and nearly one-half of these have a population under 1,000.—L. G. Denis.

Play Safe

The money value of a man includes the cost of his upkeep and education from his birth till he becomes self-supporting. He then becomes an asset instead of a liability.

This demonstrates the economic loss to the community when, through an accident, he is incapacitated and unable to carry on his work. All the cost of bringing him to the earning stage is wasted, and he again becomes a burden on society.

Sage Advice About Hens

A gentleman now living in Ramsay about one mile from Carleton Place was an overseer at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa. One day a tramp of sad and melancholy mien stood gazing over the fence at a flock of fowl he was tending. Just to be friendly the overseer remarked: "What can I do, sir, to get these hens busy laying?" "The fact that they do not lay," observed the wise though wandering Willie, "is proof that they are overfed or underfed." "I perceive," he went on in a solemn and learned manner, "that the ground is strewn with grain. This is proof that the hens have been surfeited, and, it is a well-established scientific fact that a hen with surplus feed lacks the capacity of forming eggs. See that field of clover? Well, you scatter your grain there and compel the hens to scratch. You will find this treatment will work wonders". The suggestion was put into force and in a short time the hens became model birds, producing eggs so abundantly that the management had them to sell. We have seen it estimated that fifty hens properly cared for can produce fifty-two dozen eggs in a month. Sell these at $1.00 a dozen: $52.00; calculate the by-products at $2.00, and the sale of the hens at $2.00 each and you have a revenue of $154 for the month This calculation is based on the supposition that a farmer raises his own grain, alfalfa, meal, bran, etc. He can get grit, oyster shells, or their substitute for a trifle. If anybody says that $1.00 a dozen is too high you can say that $2 00 per hen is rather low. Farmers who allow their hens just to grow up like Topsy are simply letting a good thing go to waste, a fertile source of profit to become an agency of futility. Hereafter when you meet a tramp just get to wondering if he carries a jewel in his head.

A Safe Investment

The other day and old sucesstul farmer was asked what he considered the safest plan by which a man cculd double his money in the shortest time. "Invest your money in brood sows," he answered promptly. "I've never found anything by which I could make money faster in areasonably safe way than by raising hogs. Other animals have helped many a farmer out of tight holes, but no animal has done it oftener than the lowly hog. It has enabled farmers to buy needed machines, comfortable homes, and has sometimes even paid for the farm."

What the old farmer said about hog profits appears gospel truth, when we think around a bit. The money put into brood sows is certainly a pretty safe investment—ninety per cent safer, at least, than an investment in some outside business, even if the promoters are considered honest. The demand for pork has always been good, and the demand for pork has always been good, and the demand is now greater than ever. The breeding stock can be raised in a short time, so that the actual cash invested in the hog business need be only a moderate sum. Of course, the hogs require feed, but as much of what they eat would otherwise go to waste, the pork produced on the farm is largely a by-product. The hogs eat any old slop, sour milk, or vegetable wastes, and if permitted, they take care of the scattered grain in the stubble fields and straw stacks. Moreover they utilize the grain behind the fattening cattle. From the same amount of food consumed, swine produce more saleable meat than any other animals. And they grow fast. They are ready to market in a very short time compared with that required by cattle. Thus money invested in hogs quickly pays a dividend.

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. WOMEN IN CHURCH.

Anglicans In England Are Yielding to Claims.

The British woman after a long period of agitation against the limitations placed on women by the authorities of the Church of England, has won through.

The first conference of the House of Laywomen has just been held at Coventry under the new constitution, the chair being taken by the Bishop of Coventry. There was an attendance of over 200 members.

The chief discussion centred around women's part in ministerial work. The claims put forward favored the ordination of women as priests and their being allowed to give lectures in church on Biblical subjects and their right to read lessons and preach.

The bishop stated that the bishops of the church were to receive from the Dean of Westminster a report on the things which women might be permitted to do. The bishop's attitude was one of sympathy towards such ministrations, and perhaps in a short time he would be able to indicate certain ways (not affecting the regular services) in which women could help in the ministrations.

He should, however, require women to be licensed in the same way that clergymen and lay readers were licensed, and that meant individual character and fitness. He deprecated any hurried action in the direction indicated, and regretted the action of Miss Maude Reydon in acting contrary to the wish of the Bishop of London in speaking at St. Ethelburgh church on Good Friday.

Although the Church of England has hitherto relied on St. Paul's dictum in which he says: "I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence," the British nonconformist churches have not been so straitlaced. Even where they have objected to a woman preaching they have permitted her to give an address which has usually been a sermon without a text except that within a few moments every person in the congregation could have quoted a text to fit the sermon.

The Congregational Church already has several women ministers, and any church in that communion that desires to appoint a woman pastor has only to get the permission of the superintendent of the district.

The Free Church Council, finding that men candidates for the ministry are fewer than of old, and that women pastors are putting new life into the churches, are recommending that women should be admitted to the theological colleges at which they should go through a two years' curriculum preceded or followed by two years' training in social work in a settlement.

Book Famine.

With barely an exception the public libraries of Great Britain are crippled for want of funds. In many places 2,000 to 3,000 volumes are out of circulation because they are too tattered, and there is no money to pay for re-binding. Many libraries have reached the starvation point as regards books.

The cause of the trouble is the limited spending power in the Libraries' Act which passed more than sixty-five years ago. The amount allowed to be raised for this purpose is roughly 20 cents for every $100 of rent paid in the district of the local authority.

In the poorer districts this library rate does not produce enough to provide even the building to house the books, and the greater number of library buildings have been erected by private donations. Two men were answerable for the great majority, Andrew Carnegie and Passmore Edwards.

The war has been answerable for the present situation in a measure. Prices of all publications have risen, re-binding costs have doubled and salaries of staffs have had to be increased.

The local authorities in some districts have already closed down the branch libraries. But the others are now considering an application to Parliament for power to increase their library rate by 200 per cent.

International Switzerland.

It is the peculiar characteristic of Switzerland that, after crossing its frontiers, one never appears to have wholly left the neighboring countries behind. The northern "gates" seem to introduce one to a modified Germany; at Geneva one is still in a French-speaking country; while the impression one receives upon entering from the south of still being upon Italian soil is at first difficult to shake off. The character of the scenery serves only to heighten the illusion. Ethnographically, as well as physically, the soil of Switzerland seems to invite the various peoples of the earth to make of the country a place of rendezvous where international differences can be forgotten. —Family Herald.

A Strange Heirloom.

"Valley Farm" at Morewood

The amateur dramatists of Morewood not only made an addition of $66 to the funds of the Hockey Team, but provided an excellent evening's entertainment for a large number of people when they presented "Valley Farm" last Thursday in the Presbyterian Hall. It would be invidious to make comparisons when the parts were all so well studied and each character so admirably suited to the player. The love making was not very ardent nor intense but we know both young men can do much better when circumstances require. Miss Laura Moffat and Messrs. Frank Casselman and Lyle Laughridge made ideal, innocent old people and Mrs. Faulkner sustained the onlookers interest and sympathy in "Hetty" throughout the four acts. Miss Gladys Feely was equally good as the gossipy neighbor and the haughty Mrs. Rutledge. The unpopular part of the jealous schemer and the uninteresting one of the genial uncle received ample justice at the hands of Miss Greta Faulkner and Mr. Jake Steen. The roars of laughter produced by every appearance of the circumspect and imperturbable "Jennings" testified to the able rendering of the part by Mr. Douglas Hunter and we wonder if he did not study the part in some of the stately homes of England. We must not forget the comic little touches introduced by Miss Isabel York as "Verbena" which completed a very pleasing tout ensemble. The interludes were agreeably filled in with songs and recitations by the Misses Jessie Faulkner, Keitha Laughridge, Ethel Danby and Mr. Colin Armstrong.

Horticultural Society Annual

The annual meeting of the Chesterville Horticultural Society was held in the Town Hall on the evening of Jan. 15th. The interest in the work is steadily growing as shown by the report for 1919. The Secretary's report was as follows:—We had a membership of 96 an increase of 23 over last year. We furnished plants, seeds and bulbs to each member to the full value of their membership fee. We also distributed 150 perennial roots from our nursery at the High School garden.

We had the ground on each side of the front porch at the High School spaded three times, six loads of manure put on and in the fall we planted 200 darwin tulips. We also cleaned up the yard in August, cut the weeds and burned them.

We obtained first class seed of Irish Cobbler potatoes for members in the spring and the finest bulbs of hyacinths, daffodils etc. for fall planting.

A special meeting was held in March addressed by Mr. George Baldwin, F.R.H.S. of Toronto. He gave many fine pointers on gardening and some fine lantern slides of his own garden showing surprising results of careful work on a very small piece of land.

The annual excursion to the C.E.F. was held in June.

Directors—Mrs. W. Saucier, Mrs. James Hughes, Mrs. C. W. Casselman, Mrs. H. McMahon, Mrs. V. Robinson, Miss E. Harrision, R. Harrop, W. Bowen, Mrs. W. H. Casselman, Mr. J. G. Taite.

Sec.-Treas.—Helen Moad.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my dear grandma, Mrs. Amanda Well's, who departed this life on Jan. 26th, 1919, at Aultsville.

But now she sleeps where the daisies nod
And the clover hangs its head,
Where the wild birds come and the wild bees hum
She fought the fight, she kept the faith,
Her fame shines bright and clear
And her memory lives in all our hearts
Which will hold it ever dear.

Inserted by her little grandson GRAHAM WELLS.

MOREWOOD

The very sudden and unexpected death of Mr. Joseph Cox of North Winchester, occurred on Friday evening at St. Luke's Hospital, Ottawa, where he was removed on Thursday afternoon after accidentally receiving some internal injuries. It was thought at first that the operation was going to prove successful but before evening Mrs. Cox received a summons to the city and reached her husband's bedside in time to see him pass peacefully away. The community has lost a kindly and helpful neighbor and a familiar figure will be much missed in the Presbyterian church. The funeral service in the church on Monday was conducted by Rev. K. A. Gollan assisted by Rev. Dr. Philp and at the grave by the L. O. L. of Cannamore of which Mr. Cox was a member of long standing.

On account of the storm and intense cold, all the Sabbath services had to be cancelled.

Our Hockey Team has purchased a new outfit of sweaters and stockings with the old familiar colors of garnet and grey.

We are pleased to report Mrs. Emerson Faulkner's condition much improved the last few days. Satisfactory news has also been received of Mr. Walter Loughridge from Kingston.

A large circle of relatives has been bereaved by the death, on Sabbath evening, of Mr. William Faulkner of Cannamore, at the advanced age of 86. Mr. Faulkner has been ailing for some months but death came so quickly and quietly at the last that his daughters Mrs. Jas. Fetterly and Mrs. Thos. Hepburn could not be summoned in time. The funeral on Tuesday afternoon was largely attended by relatives and neighbors, and Cannamore L. O. L who also sent a floral tribute to this charter member of their lodge. Rev. K. A. Gollan conducted the service and six of Mr. Faulkner's grandsons acted as pall-bearers.

TOY'S HILL

Coughs and colds are the orders of the day.

Mr. Albert Casselman took in the Fat Stock show in Ottawa.

The Misses Aletha Thorpe and May Durant, Mr. Tom Holmes and Mrs. Wm. Webb spent Sunday evening at Mr. Wm. Steele's.

What might have proved a fatal accident happened to Mrs. Stuart Moore Friday night. She got up to put on a fire missed her footing and fell from the top of the stairs down rendering her unconscious. She did not know what had happened thinking she had fallen into some water but when she felt her face she found that it was badly cut up. Mrs. Moore lives alone so she had to go out in the cold to her first neighbors, Mr. Elzie Johnston's, whom she wakened as her strength was nearly gone. Medical aid was called and her wounds dressed. Four stitches were put in the cut above her eye and three stitches in the one on her cheek, her wrist was sprained and she was badly shaken up. All hope for her speedy recovery.

Special services are being held in the Methodist church every evening this week, and next week in the Presbyterian church. Everybody welcome.

Warning to Farmers About Fire by Combustion

Investigation conducted by the Deputy Fire Marshal C. H. Cowan into the Alexander and James A. Macklin fire on January 5th at Lot 25, Con. 4, Scarboro Township, York County, reveals the following startling facts:

"That while W H. Snowball, of Markham, Ont., was threshing clover seed at the above place, white steam or smoke was seen to suddenly issue out of the edge of the adjoining hay mow, some eight feet up from drive floor.

"That this in a few minutes later took fire as Simpson Rennie, who first noticed it from the mow above, went to put it out.

"That a red hot hole of fire, the size of a stove pipe was found perforating the edge of the mow a couple of feet, as this issuing white steam or smoke burst into a blush flame that crept rather than ran up the edge of the mow and in over the mow.

That W. H. Snowball upon going up into the mow a few seconds later to try to check the fire sank down to his waist into a pit of fire, and only escaped from being lost by not having let go the ladder he had ascended.

Mr. Snowball's feet did not touch the bottom, and as he instantly pulled himself up by his hands, a dense cloud of fire and smoke hurled up over him with a roar, enveloping the whole interior of the barn in a few moments.

Most of the fine stock were saved, some hogs, sheep and hens perishing.

Thresher, implements, grain, straw, hay, ensilage were lost, making a total net loss of over $7,000. Thresher carried no insurance. Barns, silos and contents only $4,000.

The mow where the fire originated was 16x20x18 and contained about 12 tons of new hay, 3-4 timothy and 1-4 red and alsike clover.

The hay was cut in July while in ful bloom out in field only two days after cutting, hauled in immediately after cocking up, and taken off with hay fork and not well levelled.

The water tank in the outer edge of this mow had overflowed into the north and west portions of hay that were tight against it. This had occurred off and on from the time the hay entered the barn.

Barn was provided with adequate means of ventilation in sides and gable ends, but ventilators were kept tightly closed.

None of the men had smoked and no smoke or steam had entered the barn from the engine, the wind blowing away from the barn.

Had Mr. Snowball let go his hold of the ladder, he would have perished, as would also Mr. Rennie, had he walked over this pit coming down out of the mow.

Had Mr. Macklin or his helpers walked over this spot they would have fared likewise, as pit must have been ten feet deep.

Hay must sweat in field or barn.

Either cock it up long enough to sweat or salt it liberally in the mow.

Ventilate buildings where farm produce is stored in sides, gable ends and roof and see that ventilation is made use of.

Mr. Macklin, a most careful man in other ways, had neglected to do this, not believing very much in combustion.

For the same reason he had likewise been careless concerning the overflowing of the water tank into the hay mow, by overfilling. This tank stood in a corner of the hay mow.

As he rushed to take the lid off this tank to get water to quench the fire, flames and smoke drove him back, coming apparently from the centre of the mow in which the tank sat, proving beyond doubt that the fire had generated in the centre of the mow.

The heating process could have started from the sweating of fresh hay, overflowing of the water tank, or from a possible leak in the roof, which had some holes, or all three.

Many farmers don't believe combustion is possible, but this occurrence should convince even the most sceptical.

The same self-generating force that carries produce into the heating stage can, and does, carry it to the igniting or firing stage.

This fact has been proved past all further need of doubt during the past three years, all over Ontario, causing tremendous loss, especially in farmers' produce.

Neighborliness

It is not altogether a paradox that the closer a man's neighbors are the less neighborliness there is. The people living in a row of houses in a city block are less dependent on one another than the people who are occupying neighboring farms or ranches. The citiy dwellers have friends in the next street or out in the suburbs with whom they can associate almost as easily as with the neighbor next door. If they are ill or in trouble, it is not a matter of great importance to them whether they are on terms of intimacy with their nearest neighbor, or even whether they are on good terms with him. Moreover, in the city there is no excuse for the neighborly habit of borrowing. In the country exchanges of magazines, books and other articles among neighbors are common and promote the spirit of neighborliness.

The impulse to be neighborly manifests itself in accordance with the need for neighborliness. Where the need exists, the impulse usually arises. The difficulty is to keep the neighborly spirit alive and warm when there is no practical means of demonstrating it. Neighbors whom you are helping or who are helping you are not often the subject of your unkind or caustic criticism. But when the occasion for helpfulness has passed, there is often a temptation to discuss your neighbors with other neighbors, and what begins as discussion ends somewhat as gossip. Neighborhood gossip kills neighborliness. The good neighbor is one, besides helping when he can, keeps locked in his breast the tart or bitter or unfriendly comments that people have confided to him; he will not himself speak unkindly not even of those neighbors whom he does like. He will be more interested in maintaining a spirit of harmony and co-operation in the community than in exhibiting the sharpness of his insight into human nature.

What is true of neighborliness among persons is true to some degree of neighborliness among nations. All the time the mechanical inventions of man are drawing the nations into a closer neighborhood. The harmony of their neighborhood life will depend on the spirit of neighborliness that they show. If the people of one country persist in saying hard things about the people of another country, they are bad neighbors and may get themselves and every one else into serious trouble. Not to criticize or to censure, but to commend when we can and to help when we ought should be our part if we are to be good neighbors, both in the smaller and in the larger neighborhood.

Breaking Horses With Kindness

How Daniel Boyington, a successful horse tamer, in years past proved to Texas cowboys and other doubters that there was a better way of taming and subduing horses than the old brutal way of literally breaking them is told by a writer in the Humane Educational Press Bureau. At first Boyington was hooted and jeered at. The news that Uncle Dan was coming was the signal for the larking cowboys to collect all the "outlaws" and condemned horses for miles round to "do up the old man," or "run him plumb out of the corral."

When they had seen him go into the corral, without whip, rope or hackamore, and had seen him pet, saddle and ride the most vicious horse in the bunch within three or four hours; when they had seen the trembling "outlaw" rub its nose against his shoulder and eat out of his hand—they said it was hypnotism or magic. They accused him of "doping" the horses, and privately offered him big bribes to tell them what charm or medicine he used. Uncle Dan would shake his head and laugh. His answer was always the same: "The only charm I use boys, is the golden rule. Treat a horse as you would like to be treated if you were a horse yourself. There is never any need to beat or abuse a horse; there is no creature living that will be more faithful or loving, if you are only kind and patient with him. Teach him to love and have confidence in you, and give him time to find out what you want him to do; then he will serve you not only willingly, but gladly and proudly. The best charm that man can use in breaking horses is kindness.—Youth's Companion.

Report of the Auditors to the Shareholders of the Union Bank of Canada

In accordance with the provisions of subsections 19 and 20 of Section 56 of the Bank Act, we report to the Shareholders as follows:

We have audited the above Balance Sheet with the books and vouchers at Head Office and with certified returns from the Branches.

We have obtained all the information and explanations that we have required, and are of the opinion that the transactions of the Bank which have come under our notice have been within the powers of the Bank.

In addition to our verification, at the 29th November, we have, during the year, checked the cash and verified the securities representing the investments of the Bank at its chief office and principal branches and found them to be in agreement with the entries in the books of the Bank relating thereto.

In our opinion, the Balance Sheet is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the affairs of the Bank, according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us, and as shown by the books of the Bank.

Took his revenge

The visitor to the lawyer's office stood in amazement.

"I say, old man!" he exclaimed. "Whatever has happened to you? Had a motor smash or what?"

The lawyer shook his head wearily as he gingerly touched his bruised and bandaged face.

"No. You remember that case the other day when I defended a man charged with assault? Well, I made a strong plea for him on the ground that he was a fool, rather than a criminal".

"Yes, but—"

"I did it so well that he was acquitted, and he waited for me outside the court".

Your Voice

If I would know a man as he is, I ask him to talk with me. For I would not only bring into my mind the thoughts that flow from his, but I would listen to his voice. For in the inflections of a voice there is every quality of a man's true character.

There is nothing quite so marvelous as the human voice, especially when it is the expression of worthy thoughts and is backed by solid purpose.

Look a child in the face and, without the least change in facial expression throw harshness into your voice, and the child will cry out—hurt and stunned in its delicate nature.

Speak kindly to a strange dog and he will wag his tail. Even the dumb animals have great intelligence when it comes to weighing character through the sound of the human voice.

There is nothing more fascinating or inspiring about a genuine person than his voice. It is able to attract or repel—to draw or send away. It's the voice that invites and entertains.

I think of the voices of those I love as the choicest music in my memory. I classify each voice—each faintest inflection—and I am inspired by each in turn.

Your voice may be trained. Any one may have a beautiful and pleasant voice. So—

Cultivate a pleasing voice. Speak kindly—but first be kindly, and then you cannot help but speak that way. Talk little, but make that little much.

And do not try deception—for your voice will give you away. It reveals, explains, goes into details as to what you actually are.

Live the thoughts that make up the kindly voice.

Public Fire Alarm System

The extent of any fire in a protected community depends in large measure upon the promptness with which the fire-extinguishing appliances are brought into operation. The fire alarm system of a city or town ought, therefore, to be as nearly perfect as money and skill can make it. A deficient fire alarm system constitutes a general hazard. It may be tolerared when re-construction would involve a heavy outlay, but a community is dealing with the whole question of fire protection from the wrong end when extingulshing apparatus is purchased at the expense of the alarm system. Three minutes after a fire has broken out a pail of water would usually be sufficient to subdue it. With ten minutes' uninterrupted start, a fire may need a quarter of a million dollars worth of apparatus and an army of men before it can be controlled. An obsolete fire alarm system is the vindest form of economy.—J. Grove Smith.

UNION BANK HAS NOTABLE YEAR

Impressive Addition to Total Assets, While the Bank Continued to extend In Canada and Abroad

Significant progress, as one of the leading Banking institutions of the country is revealed in toe fifty-fifth annual statement of the Union Bank of Canada During the twelve month period ended November last total assets have increased from $153,000,000 a year ago to nearly $175,000,000, an increase of $22,000,000 or 14.25 per cent. So striking a gain in the Bank's resources is indicative of the policy pursued in this new era of reconstruction. To this aggregate liquid assets contributed $76,000,000 compared with $72,000,000 and represented almost 50 per cent. of the Bank's total liabilities to the public.

An impressive feature of the report is the addition of $2,000,000 to the Rest Account, whose total has been brought up to $5,600,000 contrasted with $3,600,000 last year. The Rest account was added to by the application of $218,830 from current profits and by the allocation of $1,781,170 premium from the $3,000,000 new capital stock issue. With this addition the Bank's reserves represent 70.28 per cent. of capital.

Total deposits are shown at $153,496,514 as compared with $127,242,698 a year ago. To this grand aggregate interest-bearing deposits which actually represent the public savings, contributed $84,376,709 a gain of $15,939,219 or 23.29 per cent. But for the heavy public participation in the Victory Loan, savings probably would have stood even higher. The total shown however will be accepted as highly satisfactory evidence that the banking campaign for increased economy and thrift, based upon the country's necessity, is accomplishing a very full measure of its design.

From the public viewpoint interest will be found in the the total of the Current Loans which reaches $86,529,156 compared with $74,021,028, an increase of $12,508,127 or 16.89 per cent.

In addition to an expansion of the Bank's system within the Dominion itself, to a total of 390 branches, of which 89 were opened during the year, a working partnership was entered into the National Park Bank of New York by which branches of the Park-Union Foreign Banking Corporation were opened in the Orient. In the Pacific Coast States and in Europe. The arrangement will enable the Union Bank of Canada to take care of its rapidly increasing international business and to provide for Canadian exporters and others doing business abroad.

What's the Matter?

The Fargo Forum asks what's the matter with the country these days. And it proceeds to answer its question in this manner:

Too much decollete and not enough aprons.

Too many consumers and not enough producers.

Too much oil stocks and not enough savings accounts.

Too much envy of the results of hard work and too little desire to emulate it.

Too many desiring short cuts to wealth and too few willing to pay the price.

Too much discontent that vents itself in mere complaining and too little real effort to remedy conditions.

Too much class consciousness and too little common democracy and love of humanity.

The Destruction of Rats on the Farm

(Experimental Farms Note)

The annual losses on Canadian farm homesteads due to the depredation of rats have never been estimated, but they must amount to tens of thousands of dollars. There are few farmers in Eastern Canada who do not suffer from the ravages of this destructive rodent and unfortunately having invaded the prairie provinces this pest is now rapidly spreading westward.

There is nothing eatable, animal or vegetable, that the rat will not attack and it will "destroy by pollution ten times as much as it actually eats". On the farm, grain of all kinds, vegetables and fruits, eggs and poultry, constitute the chief objects of its foraging. It is omniverous, voraceous, destructive and withall very prolific when there is an ample food supply. No one means of destruction is usually successful and recourse must be had to as many of the various agencies of destruction as may be deemed necessary or practicable. We cannot emphasize too strongly the value of persistent effort if the premises are to be rid of rats.

Prevention; This is of the first importance. It is inside the building rather than outside that rats do the most damage; the great object therefore, must be to prevent their entrance. This is best attained by having all foundations and floors of concrete. From every standpoint concrete so used, for barns, stables, piggery, poultry houses, etc., represents a good investment. Old and dilapidated stone foundations may be made rat proof by an inside coating of concrete or, at times, simply by stopping the holes with a mixture of cement and broken glass.

All basement and cellar windows should be screened with stout metal netting; open windows are of the readiest means by which rats effect an entrance.

Limit their food supply as far as may be practicable by keeping grain, meals, garbage, etc., in rat-proof bins or other receptacles, with close-fitting covers. It is impossible to make much headway in keeping under this pest so long as there is an abundance of unprotected food about the buildings.

The usefulness of the larger owls and hawks in the destruction of rats has not fully been recognized: on the whole these birds if kept in check are beneficial.

A well trained dog may be depended on to keep the buildings and yards fairly free from rats. Probably for this purpose there is nothing superior to a thoroughly trained fox terrier.

Traps; Trapping is one of the most effective means of destroying rats. It fails if food is abundant, especially with old rats, which are very cunning. If the rats are numerous a number of traps should be used at once and used persistently.

There are several modern forms of the guillotine trap which are excellent. Cage traps are especially useful in catching young rats, particularly if baited and left open for a night or two and partially concealed as by hay or straw. Large catches may frequently be made by "barrel" and "pit" traps—the baited covers being hinged so as to turn with the weight of a rat. Among excellent baits may be mentioned toasted cheese, bacon, liver, raw meat, grain of various kinds, oatmeal and in winter fresh vegetables.

Poisons: As there is always more or less danger to live stock in the use of poisons. They are the last means to employ. Barium carbonate (precipitated) is the least dangerous: it is comparatively harmless to domestic stocks in the small doses used for killing rats. It is used as a stiff dough, composed of flour or oatmeal and a little sugar with 15 to 20 per cent of the carbonate. The addition of a few drops of oil of aniseed or of caraway makes the bait more attractive. Arsentic is very popular as a rat poison but experience has shown that it is variable in its effect and apparently not always fatal. The bait can be made as already described under carbonate of barium, or the arsenic may be spread or rubbed on buttered bread. Strychnine is also employed and is very rapid in its action. The best plan is to insert a small crystal in raw meat, the pieces of meat being placed in the runs or burrows.

In buildings or yards in which there are poultry or other live stock, a precautionery measure in the use of poisons is the employment of two wooden boxes," the one considerably larger than the other each having two or more holes in the sides large enough to admit rats. The poisoned bait is placed on the bottom and near the middle of the smaller box. By this means danger to live stock is avoided while the rats have free access to the poison.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reached the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed. Deafness is the result. Unless the the inflamation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed for ever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Dure Circulars free.
