Jack Canuck Comes to Chesterville

Implement and buggy salesmen have had their worries keeping up to Larry Jordan, now he is going to give the fast horse brigade a chase. This week he has bought that well-known race horse Jack Canuck and says if the streets are not sprinkled or oiled soon the rest of the bunch will surely be lost in the dust.

Pte. Horace Webb Killed in Action

Mrs. Ernest Webb of this place was advised on Tuesday of the death of her son Horace in action on April 22nd. When war broke out Horace Webb was in Western Canada but immediately crossed to England and enlisted with the forces there which accounts for the long time in the information reaching his home here. His father and brother are both now in France having gone overseas with the 154th Battalion.

Pte. Harvey Barkley Wounded

Monday's casualty list contained the name of Pte. H. H. Barkley among the wounded. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Barkley of town and went across with 154th Battalion last fall. Another name, that of Lance-Corp. C. J. Allen was given as from Chesterville, but it is believed to have been an error. Pte. J. L. Allen son of Geo. Allan was also a member of the 154th, but there has been no advice from the Militia Department of any casualty to him.

Pte. Emmit Fyke Goes to Scotland

Mr. and Mrs. John Latta have just received a very interesting letter from the latter's son, Pte. Emmit Fyke, who went overseas with the 154th Battalion but who with Ptes. Johnnie Hall, Reynold Hill and Orrie Harper are the only three left in England, the rest of the battalion having gone to France with the 156th. The three mentioned now belong to the Sixth Reserves and are attached to a Forestry Battalion and expected to leave in a few days for the North of Scotland to work in the forests. Emmit says he has received the boxes sent to him and that the taste of Canadian cooking is much more to his liking than what they get overseas. He mentions just having got out of quarantine but does not say what the trouble was.

Memorial Service at Morewood

Last Sunday a special service was held in the Presbyterian Church, Morewood, in memory of the late Gunner Bernice Shaver of the 22nd Howitzer Battery, C.F.A. who died of wounds on Sunday, May 6th "Somewhere in France." Morewood Lodge, I. O. O. F., 285 paraded to the church in honor of their much esteemed departed brother. A very large concourse of people also were in attendance to show their affection and respect for our brave hero and their very sincere sympathy for his parents and brothers and sisters. Rev. K. A. Gollan preached a most impressive sermon from the text. "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends," which were the parting words of this noble soldier to his mother. The late Bern Shaver was at one time a member of this church and also of their choir. With schoolmates, teachers and employers he was a great favorite and though he died an honorable death for his country, there yet prevails a general feeling of deep regret that a life, so full of promise, should be thus early cut off.

Among those from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Darling of Nation Valley, Mrs. Scott, Winchester, Mr. and Mrs. and the Misses Marcellus of Russell.

READ! READ!! READ!!!

"Where can I be most useful?" asked a Red Cross nurse.
"Go to the RAILWAY STATION" said the British Consul at Dunkirk.

—Here is what she says—in part—

"The conditions there were horrible, THREE DOCTORS and SEVEN DRESSERS were working on four-hour shifts. When the hospital trains drew in, the wounded were lifted out, and placed on the Stone floors of the platform. ..... .The station was frightfully cold—no heat of any sort, and the first two nights there was No Water. Many were dead when taken out of the trains, and many others died on the platform. As fast as a man died, they took his body away, and brought in another wounded man. .....We had no surgical dressings, but we had some iodine. The odors were fearful!..... In many cases THE WOUNDS were GREEN through lack of attention.....The first night we had ELEVEN HUNDRED cases; the second, NINE HUNDRED; the third, SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY; the fourth TWO THOUSAND and the fifth FIFTEEN HUNDRED. I kept no account after the fifth night."

Picture the horrors of the situation—try to place Your Own Son on that stone floor on the station platform.

This was in the first year of the war. Conditions are now less terrible, thanks to that sacred badge,

The Red Badge of Mercy

Symbol of sacrifice and of suffering, symbol of mercy and deliverance—the Sacred Cross.

The figure of the Saviour of the world has become very real to all in the past terrible months. And, direct descendant of the cross of the christian faith is the Red Cross.

THE WOUNDED SOLDIER'S LAST DEFENCE, which carries to every battlefield the words of the Man of Peace, "Blessed are the merciful for they shall obtain mercy."

In this war whatever may have failed The Red Cross as a Symbol of Service has never failed.

Will you enrol yourself under this Banner of the Red Cross—the flag which stands between the wounded soldier and death? You can do so by giving liberal support to the funds of the Red Cross. You cannot yourself go to the battlefields, to hospitals in Europe, but, by contributing money to purchase supplies you send that which can comfort and save.

Perhaps your contribution may save the life of a neighbor's, a friend's son; it will at least, give comfort and blessing to somebody's son.

Help Conserve the Dominion's Food Supply.

The conservation of food requires the harvesting and storage of every crop, so that in times of overproduction and plenty, the surplus food may be stored up for a time of scarcity and want.

With the flush of the season's milk supply at hand, it behoves us to save every pound of milk for the winter to come.

When you deliver your milk to the Condensery, you place it where it will be preserved and canned, so that it may be transported unlimited distances and consumed months later, in whatever part of the world the need is greatest.

Why He Ran.

The bombing sergeant was accused of cowardice, but he was acquitted without a slur when he had told his story: here it is

"I am the bombing instructor, sir, and have always taught my men to count one, two, three, before throwing their bombs. During this particular engagement I pressed a young fellow into service, handed him a bomb and told him to count three after pulling the pin. He drew it and started to count, wu-wu-wu'—and I ran, sir."

OBITUARY

Mr. William Nash, Morrisburg.

Mr. William A. Nash, a highly esteemed, and one of the oldest residents of the village, died at the residence of his son, Mr. Percy Nash, on Saturday, May 5th, 1917, after a lingering illness of several months, aged 83 years.

Deceased was a son of the late Wm. Nash Sr., who was one of the pioneer settlers of this historical county. He was born in Morrisburg in 1834 where he spent all his life. In 1861 he married Miss Jane E Patterson of Waddington, N. Y., who predeceased him about eleven years ago. For a number of years he successfully carried on business in Morrisburg, and for the last seven years, he had been engaged in the local ship yards. He was a man of quiet disposition and sterling character who enjoyed the warm regard of a host of friends. He took a keen interest in the present war, to which he contributed one of his sons, Mr. Fred Nash, who enlisted with the Grenadier Guards and is now actively engaged in France. His loving devotion to his son and deep interest in the war caused him to anxiously look for the arrival of mail boats from the war zone. One of the last expressions being that it would have been his greatest desire to live to see the war to a successful finish.

He is survived by three sons and three daughters all of whom were at the funeral to pay their last respect to their father except Fred. Those present were: Mr. W. J. Nash, Chesterville; Mr Percy Nash, Toronto; Mrs. Thos. S. Greene, Milwaukee, Wis.; Misses Muriel and Theo Nash, New York.

The funeral took place on Monday. Services were conducted at the house by Rev. W. E. Reynolds after which the remains were interred in Fairview cemetery,

The pall-bearers were Messrs. J. P. Gormley, H. Winstanley, J. Dillen, Geo. Meikle, Chas. Whittaker and Dr. Gorrell. —The Leader.

Cheese Offerings Again Held Over.

Cornwall, May 11.—The offerings on the Cornwall Cheese Board today were: 312 white, and 806 colored, a total of 1,118 which, with last week's holdover of 1,241, brought the total boarding for the two weeks up to 2,350.

President Denny explained that conditions were still the same as the week previous. In order to obtain the latest information, Mr. Denny called Mr. Ruddick by phone and was informed that the Commission referred to was solely a purchasing Commission, and had nothing to do with arranging the price, which would be controlled by the British Board of Trade. The Commission was only a medium between the producer and the British Board of Trade.

He could not tell when the deadlock would be broken, as the Commission was waiting for word from the old country for a solution of the problem. It was unfortunate that the people throughout the country were misconstruing the matter, as the work of the proposed Commission should not have affected the market, as it apparently had done. The British Commission had been in Canada for some time, and had reported conditions to the Home Government and the matter was in abeyance until word was received.

It was decided to again hold the offerings for another week, as it was expected that by that by that time, something definite would be available.

Government's Dairy Regulations.

New regulations have been put into force by order-in-council to deal more strictly with the question of tuberculosis, and to prevent the spread of that disease. The new regulations provide that dairies in which milk or cream are produced for sale shall be licensed, and no licence shall be issued unless the diary shall conform to the required standard.

The standard requires that the stable shall have an ample amount of air space, and at least two square feet of glass for each cow, and shall be well ventilated, drained and kept clean and sanitary. Two years from the date of the first test of the cattle of a dairy, the sale within the city or town of unpasteurized milk or cream from that dairy shall be prohibited unless the veterinary inspector can certify that the herd contains no reactor, and in his opinion is free of tuberculosis. The inspectors are to use the tuberculin test and carefully examine the cows.

Compensation is to be paid to owners of cows slaughtered, at the rate of one-half of the appraised value, if destroyed for open tuberculosis, and two-thirds if destroyed as a reactor at the request of the owner, and valuation is to be made by the veterinary inspector. Milk or cream from a herd containing reactors shall not be sold except pasteurized.

Whenever in the opinion of the veterinary director-general the work of eliminating tuberculosis from the herd supplying a municipality has reached a satisfactory point, the municipality will be expected to maintain the standard reached.

Western Potatoes Good For Seeding

C. F. Bailey, Assistant Deputy Minister of Agriculture, has issued a contradiction to a current report which is to the effect that Western potatoes are not suited to seeding purposes. Mr. Bailey states that the Department of Agriculture has carried on extensive experiments with Eastern and Western potatoes and has found that the Western product is equally as good, if not better, than the Eastern potato for seeding. It has also been ascertained that there is no great danger of diseased crops from Western potatoes.

Eggs a Dollar a Dozen

Many who profess to know, believe that eggs next winter will sell for one dollar a dozen. Many put enough away when they are plentiful preserved in water glass.

To preserve eggs in water glass, secure absolutely fresh and if possible infertile eggs. The eggs must be very fresh to keep well. Mix a ten per cent. solution of water glass—soluble sodium silicate—by purchasing the liquid water glass and adding one part of this liquid to nine parts of boiled rain water which has been cooled. Place eggs in open glazed jars or earthenware crocks and pour on the solution until there is at least two inches above the top layer of eggs. It is a good plan to place the eggs in the solution with the large ends up, so the air cells will be at the top. Eggs may be preserved in this manner for six months, but they should not be sold without being marked how they have been preserved.

Munition Explosion Destroyed deep Well

During the driest part of last summer Milton Van Duyne had a well drilled through nearly 200 feet of solid rock on his farm near the eastern brow of Heck Mountain, below Pine Brook, N. J. An apparently inexhaustible stream of water was struck by the drills. The water rose through the pipes to within twenty feet of the surface of the ground and was not lowered by continual pumping.

The water continued clear and plentiful until the exposion in January at the Haskell N. J. plant of the du Pont powder works, about eight miles away. The next day the water showed plainly the effects of some internal disturbance and almost immediately it began to recede. This continued gradually until the past week, when the well dried up and no water at all can be obtained. The shock of the explosion was so great that it shook houses and broke windows on the mountain, and Mr. Van Duyne believes that it diverted the stream which supplied his well into another channel.

Keeping the Lawn Green in Hot Dry Weather.

Who does not delight in seeing a fresh green sward? It is a work of great foresight and energy to keep it green, however, in the hot days during July and August. In the case of a new lawn do not mow too closely, a sharp scythe is sometimes best for the first few cuttings, especially where the ground is inclined to be loose. When this is the case the lawn should be well rolled with a heavy roller. Some people are of the opinion that a new lawn should be let grow as it pleases the first summer. This is not right; when the grass is about four or five inches high is the right time to commence to mow the first time. Where the grass seed has been sown late in the previous fall or early in the spring a lawn should be mown five or six times during the first season. Do not mow too closely. Mowing helps to improve the thickness of the grass and keeps down the weeds which are always prevalent in a new lawn, dandelions and plantains are hardest to eradicate. All other weeds with a less persistent root system, cannot survive two cuttings with the mower. Always be sure the mower is sharp whether cutting an old lawn or new as a dull mower does not improve the appearance of the lawn as does a sharp, clean cut of the sward. In watering the lawn, instead of watering it a little every evening, soak it thoroughly once or twice a week in dry weather. If the weather be unusually dry, water it as often as possible.

Sprinkling a lawn is a bad practice as the water does not get deep enough into the soil to reach the roots, and instead of benefiting, it causes the surface to bake in the form of a crust, which is fatal to healthy growth. Moreover, owing to the low capilarity, far more water is lost by evaporation the next day than was added by the sprinkling.

Dandelions are becoming an awful nuisance in most lawns. Several different spray methods have been tried, but as yet none have been found to be effectual without injuring the grass also. Sulphate of iron has been found by some to be an effectual means of eradication. In one instance where a 25 per cent. solution was applied six times at intervals of two weeks it killed the dandelions, but not the plantains. In some cases the only means of getting rid of these pests is by means of hand spudding.

A Westchester County man took his numerous progeny to a county fair. As they moved about the grounds the father felt his fifth born tugging at his coat-tail. He turned and the youngster begged him to buy some candy.

"Buy it yourself," said the father. "Where's the dime I gave you a little while ago?"

"It's down my neck."

"Well, shake it out."

"But dad, I can't. It was in my mouth when it went down."

Save Much Grain Using Roller Flour.

St. Thomas, May 14.—Ex-Mayor R. N. Price, who is president of the Empire Flour Mills, declares that Canada can save 2,000,000 bushels of wheat a year by the Government making the regulation that the use of roller flour, containing 78 per cent. of the flour, be permitted until the end of the war.

Mr. Price claims this flour, which costs $1 per barrel less than the present high grade of flour used, makes bread just as palatable as, and more wholesome than white bread.

Mr. Price made his suggestion at a public meeting called to instruct delegates named to attend the "Win the War" convention in Montreal, May 23 to 25.

Yesterday's casualty list had the name of Pte. A. Robertson of Winchester as wounded and Pte. N. Gregory of Morewood as severely wounded.

This is Ascension Day when it is popularly supposed if it rains there will be rain, more or less, for forty days. He would be a nervy prophet who predicts rain for today this morning.

A peculiar accident occurred to an auto on Tuesday morning. A car was going slowly towards Grantley and was followed quite closely by a horse drawn rig. Evidently the autoist got mixed in his levers as suddenly the car stopped and then proceeded quickly backwards running into the other outfit and smashing the auto top which was down.

On Tuesday at high noon, at the bride's home, in the presence of a small company of friends, the marriage of Jennie V. Stephenson of Morewood and Robert Sutherland of Ottawa was solemnized by Rev. K. A. Gollan. The bride wore a pretty dress of white silk and carried a lovely bouquet of tea roses and ferns. After the ceremony the guests proceeded to the dining-room to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Gollan and partook of a sumptuous luncheon. About five o'clock the happy couple left for Ottawa, the bride wearing a suit of navy serge of military style with white panama hat. Among the many beautiful and useful wedding gifts were a handsome case of community silver from Mr. Sutherland's office friends and a cut glass bowl from the pastor and choir of Morewood Presbyterian Church.

Took Wheel off Buggy.

What might have proved a serious accident was narrowly averted Sunday morning, when church goers were returning from service. Just east of Pitcher's Corner, Stanley Fetterly in his auto was following a buggy driver by Mr. Eli Lefebvre of The Boyne, with whom was his wife and child, and wishing to pass the rig Mr. Fetterly when quite close attempted to pull out of the rut, when his car slewed in the mud and struck the buggy taking a wheel off and injuring the auto but very little. None of the occupants of the buggy were hurt.

Big Bonus to Regular Patrons.

When the Maple Leaf Condensing Company was ready to start business last fall, they announced that they would pay those patrons who brought their milk continuously from that time until the first of May a bonus of five cents per hundred pounds on all milk delivered. This week Mr. G. H. Baker received a cheque, as a bonus, for the sum of $34.38 being the agreed rate per hundred on sixty-eight thousand nine hundred and seventy-one pounds of milk. Mr. Baker's cheque for milk delivered to the condensery in the month of April also amounted to the handsome sum of $302.02. $2.25 per hundred was paid during April but we understand the present price is $2.50.

End of the War is not in Sight.

London, Friday, May 11.—We are drawing near the close of the third year of the struggle. There are no conclusive military reasons why the war should soon end. Marshal Joffre, constantly pestered with the common question on this subject, referred the enquirer one day to his chauffeur for an answer. No great power, no great army or navy have been struck down on land or sea. Great losses of life, treasure, ships and war material have occurred, and the economical pressure is intense. But people will find the wherewithal to nourish themselves, fresh contingents of recruits are still found to fight, the bane of a new invention is usually succeeded by an antidote, while so long as nations strike off paper and accept each scrap as a thousand pounds, marks, francs or roubles without demur financial liquidation can be postponed till peace comes. If we, the allies, are stronger than our enemies, and we are much stronger potentially now that the new world is with us, we also have our difficulties, such as the loss of authority and discipline entailed upon Russia by the revolution. In general, our superiority is not such as to guarantee the immediate or even an early crushing of the enemy's armies by military means. His spirits also are still unsubdued. This situation will continue until affirmation of military superiority on the field or a revolution.

Though the still unused resources of the allies are greatly superior to those of Germany and her dupes, though it is inherently probable on this account that Germany will be beaten, we have not yet established the field superiority of military force necessary to a decisive victory, while the economic pressure upon the enemy, though severe, affords no certain grounds of anticipating an early cessation of hostilities. The conclusion is inevitable that the war may continue long. Our business is to prepare for a long war and legislate for it.

The only obstacle to the defeat of the enemy in the field is the failure of the allies to amass in the western theatre of the war all the military resources they possess, and in our case to ultilize the full resources of our manhood. Both these difficulties can be overcome by good-will for the concentration of our existing forces in the French theatre is perfectly practicable, while a few amendments to our service acts will give us the men we need. There are no able-bodied cilivians of military age in France. There should be none in England. Considering all the advantages that belong to defence, we must nave a great superiority of force to overcome the enemy. The war is being prolonged because we have not drawn for this purpose upon our available manhood as France has done. With about a million and a half of persons engaged in munition works in both countries, with nearly the same output, France has only 250,000 fit soldiers lent to the work engaged upon munitions, while 800,000 civilians from 18 to 41 are similarly engaged in Britain. Probably many other trades and occupations, agriculture, for example, would show even greater difference, all arising from the fact that in France there are no civilians of military age except the unfit, whereas with us there are between three and four millions, or nearer five millions if we include men up to 50 years of age.

If, therefore, we are to keep up our armies with drafts and supply additional divisions and guns so much needed it is indispensable that we no longer delay throwing all our might in the balance. It is not fair to our heroes in France and to our Allies that we should fail to do all in our power. France, our wonderful, faithful ally, has excelled herself. The steadiness of her people and the gallantry of her armies is still the wonder of the world. This people is absolutely determined to go through with the war to the end. There is no difference between the sentiments in any part of the country, but the French people, like ours, act best when they act with a knowledge that they are told the truth.

The Best Way to Turn the City Boys' Thoughts to the Farm.

The last kind of person to be considered for use on a farm is the six, eight or ten-hour-a-day worker who attaches great importance to quitting time and the chance to devote himself to some other occupation rather than the main one in which he is engaged, whether his attenuative interest be pleasure or business.

Farming is a man's job in that it requires attention during the whole period of any farming undertaking whether it be crop growing, stock raising or milk production, and the man conceived must be willing to turn in and work whenever occasion demands. Despite this apparent domineering habit of farming, there are many attractive points in its favor, among them the pleasant surroundings provided for the worker, and the frequent occurrence of short rest periods such as are unheard of in connection with most city work. The frequent changes of work that occur on the farm are also a great attraction to the farm worker.

For a person who has had any considerable experience of the hardest part of town or city life, the joys of farming will overbalance its discomforts, which, after all, can be easily overcome by a person of large mind and some determination. In this regard it may be said that the advice to keep the young farm people on the farm is mistaken, as a forced experience of the city in their case will send them back to the farm, ready to stay their of their own account and better fitted to enjoy the life than if they had never left it; that is if they are worth anything and are given a fair chance to make use of the knowledge that they have picked up in the outside world.

In order to get the young city boy of the best sort to take a proper interest in farming, the work should be presented to him as a sporting proposition. He will never refuse to do his bit if he is put in competition with some other youth of his own age, and the speed with which he will catch up to the more experienced country boy will be a surprise to any farmer who will try this method. This willingness to compete for honors should not be taken too much advantage of, however, and as in the training a colt, extra care and feeding is provided, the same should be done with the boy.

The last thing to hold out as an inducement to the city boy, farming in his holidays, are nearness of trolley lines, towns, villages, etc. Let him take his pleasure in the real country and help him do so even if he has to be provided with a light rifle and fishing tools. Let him go after rabbits or ride a horse in his spare time, but keep him interested in country life rather than the pursuit of the dollar to be spent in the city for amusement. When the boy begins to save up his earnings to buy a new rod or gun rather than to spend on ice cream or baseball matches played by other people, he will begin to work while in the country, and soon his interest will turn toward the purchase of a colt and later a calf or a pig.

Hatch Light Breeds Until 15th of June.

There never was a time when an increase in poultry production was as necessary as it is at present. The demand was never as good, and prospects indicate that this demand will continue for some time to come. With the scarcity of meat Canadians are eating more eggs, and Great Britain needs all the eggs we can supply.

As a business proposition increased production of poultry products has much to commend it. In normal times Great Britain eats a million eggs a day. Present consumption is less than this owing to the war having cut off many sources of supply. Canadian eggs are good eggs and are at a premium in England. Several cents a dozen more are paid for them than for eggs from some other countries.

For two years Canada has been producing a small surplus, and there is no reason why the surplus for 1917 should not be from five to ten times what it was in 1916. We have the climate, we have the feed, and though labor for other lines of work is scarce there is plenty of labor suitable for poultry-keeping.

Unfortunately efforts to increase production will not affect the supply of eggs until the early pullets start to lay next Fall. To help the egg supply in the meantime, make sure that laying hens are well fed; give them exercise and fresh air; market all weaklings and non producers. Use vigorous males; have the fertility strong; have as few infertiles as possible; make every egg count. Aim to have hatching done by May 25, for general purpose breeds, and for light breeds, not later than June 15. Give special attention to rearing the chicks.

Casey—Can your wife cook as good as yure mother used to, Pat?

Mulligan—She cannot; but Oi never mintion it. She can throw considerable betther.

Canadians Build Railways Behind Front in France

London. May 11.—Early this week I had the privilege of travelling over one of several light railways put down in Northern France by Canadian railway construction corps. When we civilians are able to take our eyes off the boys in the front line and those behind the guns, we shall have a breathing space adequately to recognize how those working at the "back of the front" have helped towards the success of our arms. The railway workers of Canada in their battalion under General Stewart and Lieut.-Col. Angus Macdonnell, are putting the motor lorry out of business in many an area. One train can take 100 motor lorry loads. The railways are put down on different parts of the front, General Stewart's men, of course, keeping right on the job wherever their enterprise is most needed.

During the journey I started from a certain much-battered town. Frankly it was not Pullman travelling, for the train bumped and jolted just like on the line from one Canadian place to another—you know where I mean. The further this line went the nearer we approached the enemy. We did not go right to the terminus, as it is not healthy to do so in daylight. We went as far as one advanced dressing station, where a colonel of the Medicals and his staff awaited the grim array of patients which would surely come along by train after nightfall.

Material and supplies by day, maimed men by night make up the freight of Canadian railways in France. Imagine going five miles in the dark in an open truck nursing a shrapnel wound and with the possibility of being blown into space on the way. Nevertheless, I am told our wounded prefer travelling thus than by the ambulance as the journey is covered so much more quickly, and in other ways it is less harrowing.

Extensions and additions to these tracks are being carried out unceasingly as the men with the rifles and the big guns behind them force the "Boche" back 1,000 yards or so. Straightway comes along the Canadian railway man, who smooths out the narrow ribbon of ground lately pulverized by shells and brings along track in sections. In a few hours his trains are going back and forth along the new line. There is nothing spectacular about this work, but it is helping to win the war and carries the same risks as are endured by the infantry and the artillery.

Crop Prospects best in Years

Senator William Sharp, who is the owner of one of the largest and one of the best farms in Western Canada, arrived in Ottawa yesterday for the remainder of the season. He reports that the crop situation as far as Manitoba is concerned is the best for years. On his own farm the wheat is up several inches.

He states that the weather conditions, contrary to general report, have been ideal for seeding. The month of April was cold, keeping the moisture in the ground, and turned warm early in May when the farmers got on the land. The result was the best possible seed bed for rapid growth. The acreage in Manitoba, he thought, would show a considerable increase.

Senator Sharp could only speak for his own province, but he understood that in Saskatchewan, conditions were not so good, the season having been later.

He stated that there had been no labor shortage, the farm help secured from the States having supplied the deficiency due to enlistment. Some five hundred students from American Agricultural colleges also came north to assit the Canadian farmers to sow their crop.

Sir Robert Borden Reaches Canada Safely

Quebec, Que., May 14.—Right Hon. Sir Robert Borden, Premier of Canada, Right Hon. Sir Edward Morris, Prime Minister of Newfoundland, and two members of the Ottawa Cabinet, Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Work, and Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who have been absent from Canada for three months, attending the Imperial War Cabinet conference in England, returned to Canada today on an ocean liner arriving at this port.

Spoken to just after his arrival, Sir Robert stated that he regretted that he would not be able to make any statement concerning the Imperial War Conference until he reached Ottawa. Although only a short while in Quebec before taking a special train over the Intercolonial Railway for the capital. Sir Robert said that while in France he saw the Canadians rehearsing just opposite Vimy Ridge, preparatory to the attack and glorious victory in that section.

During the voyage across, which passengers declared was an ideal one in every respect, the Prime Minister in addressing the four hundred odd returning soldiers at a concert one evening, spoke about the causes and significanes of the war. He also touched on the development in constitutional relations brought about by the Imperial Cabinet.

While in England Hon. Mr. Rogers who was greatly interested in the work of the Red Cross Society in delivering packages for Canadians overseas, inspected the methods employed. Referring to the congestion in delivery of parcels, etc. to the soldiers the Minister of Public Works stated that the difficulty had been all regulated, and now parcels were being delivered twice a week to the Canadian prisoners' of war in Germany. This assurance was given to the Hon. Mr. Rogers by Lord Derby head of the British War Department.

Touching on his visit to the trenches in France the returning Minister of Public Works said that he had had the pleasure of meeting Canadians along the firing lines. "They are covering themselves with glory," he said. "They are doing magnificent work which is gaining them the admiration of every one."

BIG WORKS DONE BY OUR ENGINEERS

Canadian Army Headquarters, May 12.--The proposal to send engineers from the United States to aid in working out engineering problems of the allied nations arouses great interest here where the extraordinarily difficult conditions of transportation of men, munitions and supplies have been overcome under the direction of Canadian engineers.

Engineers from allied countries, who have visited Vimy ridge and the region behind, express profound admiration and amazement at the magnitude of the work done in a few months, which vitally influenced the strategy of the allies on the western front this year.

The battle of Arras would have been impossible without carrying Vimy ridge as part of the first phase. The Germans knew this and counted on preventing the development of General Haig's plans for his great offensive on both sides of the Scarpe river, by holding Vimy ridge at all costs.

When the capture of the position was assigned to the Canadians a decision probably influenced much by their aptitude for and experience in the construction of transportation systems.

For months before the assault men in thousands were building the waterworks plant and roads without which it is now admitted, the conquest of the ridge and the holding of it after its capture would have been impossible.

The railway system begun by the French during the campaign of 1915 was reconstructed and brought into general use and served the vital purpose in feeding both men and guns, without disclosing information of value to the enemy who had his system of tunnels, subterranean and accommodation of all sorts for men and material. It may be said that under the direction of Canadian engineers in many places galleries were constructed as quarters for troops and dressing stations for wounded. There were water pipes which fed taps at which the men could fill their water bottles or secure supplies for cooking or washing. There were also storage places for food and ammunition.

A water supply for over a hundred thousand men and almost fifty thousand horses in a circumscribed area was another great problem. Streams miles back an abandoned coal shaft and a spring on Vimy Ridge, almost under the Bosche lines, were the chief sources of supply. Forty-five miles of four inch pipe were laid sufficiently deep to protect them against shell-fire.

It has been already told in despatches of the tremendous labour involved in the construction and maintenance of roads and light railways.

Some of the troubles were unique. Tiers of wood near the front were cut down to provide material for plank roads but were found to be full of splinters. Shrapnel and bullets have played havoc with the teeth of the saws in a portable sawmill, and as no saws with individual teeth could be got saws had to be filed by hand after every break.

The plank roads and light railways were the only possible means of getting supplies up to Vimy Ridge after our artillery had destroyed the German road system.

Shortly before his death, Colonel Britton reported the gallantry of a driver of a petrol engine, who when his cars, laden with shells, and charges of cordite took fire, hauled the burning explosives at imminent risk to his life, to a point where he could water from a shell hole and with the aid of some soldiers to whom he set the example by filling his helmet with water and throwing it on the flames, put out the fire. Many breaks occur in the railway in a single night, but sections are ready in an instant to repair them. The result is an accumulation at the front of many thousands of pounds of projectiles before the day of an attack.

During a single 24-hour period 457 tons of explosives were carried up this railway. This is believed to be a record on a battlefield where the enemy from his commanding position could see by day every movement for miles behind the front.

The result of all these engineering devices was a decisive victory which forced von Hindenburg to throw in deserves which he had hoped to use elsewhere in an offensive, enabling him to regain the initiative, and tied the Germans down to a defensive war in the west, involving terrific losses from the superior allied artillery fire.

All the prisoners coming in speak of great losses from shell fire. Half the enemy reserve divisions, numbering forty-four at the opening of the campaign are believed now to be in the front line. The work of the Canadian engineers has helped materially to bring about the result.

Using Gas Shells Against Our Boys

Canadian Army Headquarters, May 14.—The increase in the strength of the enemy on this front, especially in artillery continues. His use of gas shells is prodigal. On one small area of trenches held by the Canadians, north of Arleux, over five thousand gas shells fell yesterday and the men holding the line were under the necessity of wearing their gas masks continuously.

Despite these conditions ground is gained. Yesterday morning, in the region of the wood of the Swallows, south of Souchez river, an important sector of the enemy's trench was taken in a surprise attack from a point of vantage.

The assaulting forces attacked with grenades and bayonets. The enemy put up a strong resistance but the element of surprise placed him at a disadvantage. In a very short time three hundred and fifty yards of his front line trenches and support trenches were in our hands. They have now been incorporated in our lines, which by these bites into the German defence, are creeping nearer Lens.

A few prisoners were captured and from them it was learned that the Germans on this part of the front should have been relieved several days ago, but were told they would be given no period of rest in billets till they recovered the trench taken from them early this week. Several spoke of our artillery fire as unendurable.

The Canadians recently in action around Arleux and Fresnoy were reviewed this morning by the corps commander who, afterwards, expressed his admiration for their disciplined valor aud urged the newcomers in the ranks to remember that not by courage alone could battles be won.

The wastage of the last few weeks is rapidly being made up by drafts.

"When a man has sworn off drinking he is usually pretty grumpy for some time afterwards."

"Yes; after swearing off things he usually indulges in a lot of swearing at things."

He—I know it, I once asked him to let me marry his daughter.

Mrs. Tawkins—Do you believe in heredity, John?

Her Husband—Hardly! Your grandmother was deaf and dumb.

"Your Uncle Henry writes that he would like to have me spend a month with them on the farm, Dorothy," announced mother smilingly.

"Really? Is there any society in the neighborhood?" questioned Dorothy, dubiously.

"I've heard him speak of the Holsteins and the Guernseys. I'm sure they must be nice people."

"Is your husband much of a provider, Malindy?"

"He jes' ain't nothin' else, ma'am. He gwine to get some new furniture providin' he gits the money; he gwine to git the money providin' he go to work; he go to work providin' de job suits him. I never see such of a providin' man in all mah days."

Mrs. McLap was about to pull off a social for she benefit of the Civic Club.

"Are you going to invite Mrs. Nexdore?" asked her niece.

"I should say not," answered the old lady. "I entertained her once and she never recuperated."

Preparedness Wins.

The pacifist and the preparedness people are, respectively, like Willie and Johnny. Willie and Johnny had been very naughty, and were sent to bed by their mother. As they lay side by side footsteps were heard—it was now evening—and the two culprits realized that their father was mounting the stairs. They turned pale. "I'm goin' to fold my hands as if I'd been prayin'," said Pacifist Willie, "and then I'll pretend to be asleep when he comes in." But Preparedness Johnny was already bustling swiftly about the room. "I'm goin' to put on my pants," he said' "and line 'em with a newspaper."

Chesterville High School

In addition to those previously announced as having passed the farm option examinations, Vincent Masterson will be allowed his Lower School certificate on completing the required three months of farm work. Word to this effect was received from the Education Department on Tuesday.

Hildred Durant and Rose Moran have decided to leave school until September. This reduces the number in attendance to thirty-six. Before Easter the number was eighty-eight.

The staff wishes it understood by those who expect promotion on the plea of farm work, that this promotion will not be granted unless full and satisfactory proof is furnished that their help was absolutely necessary in the production of food. There are at least two of the students of Form I to whom this will apply. In September it will be necessary to furnish an exact statement of the number of days spent in planting, cultivating and harvesting the crops. This, of course, applies to those who did not write on the farm option examination for departmental or matriculation certificates. Those who wrote have their printed forms to fill out for the Department.

OBITUARY

Edward McLean

On Thursday last a highly respected resident of this section passed away when death laid his hand on Edward McLean, who had attained the advanced age of almost seventy-seven years, and was one of the oldest settlers of this section. Born in Annam, Dunfreshire, Scotland, in 1840 he was brought with his parents when but four years old to this country where they settled in Williamsburg township afterwards moving to the farm on the Nation River where the deceased passed the remainder of his life. Early in life he took as his partner Jane Ann Rae, who survives her husband, and to the union was born a family of eleven children all of whom are living, namely—Mrs. Sterling Coons of Toyes Hill, Edward of Canton, N. Y., Mrs. Edward Gillard of Chesterville, John at home, Mrs. Thomas McQuigg of Winchester Springs, Miss Bertha of Winnipeg, William and James of Chicago, Harry of Brockton, Mass., and Daisy and Ella at home. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon at the Presbyterian Church, where he had been a life long member, and after service by the Rev. T. B. McCorkindale interment was made in Maple Ridge Cemetery.

When to Build a Silo

More silos are built in the latter part of August and the first part of September than at any other time of the year. The desire to see how the corn crop will turn out is largely responsible for the very short time that elapses between the time silos are built and the time they are filled.

But a serious risk is involved in building too late in the season. Silos built of concrete or tile should always stand empty at least two weeks before filling the first time. Tile silos are guaranteed only when this time elapses in order to allow the mortar joints to thoroughly harden. Besides, silo masons are so busy in the fall that many farmers are obliged to wait their turn, and by the time the silo is finally filled the corn has lost its succulent properties.

"The best time for erecting such a silo," says one expert, "is just after corn planting, though it is a good plan to get the material on the ground in the early spring while sledding is good and when the farmer can haul the material on hard roads and at a time when he has most leisure."

Monolithic concrete silos may be built at any season of the year, but the best time is spring or summer, so they will have ample time to harden.

Metal silos may be built at any time of year. Stave silos are best put in the fall, as the hot weather of summer causes the wood to shrink when the silo is empty. But in all cases decide on the size of the silo and make the concrete foundation for it early in the season, so there will be no delay on that account.

Hero—Relative? Oh, no! But he owes me $200.

EVERYBODY Wants Profits

It isn't the amount of the premium but the amount of the dividend that fixes the cost of an insurance policy.

This is particularly true in a Mutual company where all surplus earnings are credited solely to policyholders.

The profits may be drawn in cash, used to reduce the premiums or to increase the amount of the insurance.

Less expensive policies are issued without profits, but in a prosperous company such as the Mutual of Canada the policies with profits soon become the cheaper.

One could not do a wiser thing than take out a life, limited payment life, or endowment policy in the Mutnal of Canada, for it is among the most liberal dividend payers in America.

For example: twenty years ago a young man, age 25, took out a policy for $4,000 on the 20-year endowment plan. He paid a single premium of $2,036. Last month the Company paid him $5374.-16. This was a return of $263.96 for each $100 invested in addition to the protection of $4,000 for 20 years.
