Winchester Twp. Council Appoints Donald Christie Road Superintendent

The council of the Township of Winchester held a meeting in the Town Hall, Winchester, on Thursday night, April 26, to open applications for the position of road suprenintendent and to transact other unfinished business. The members were all present with the reeve, Basil Dawley, in the chair.

On the application of the trustees of the Police Village of Morewood the council finally passed By-law No. 872, of the Township of Winchester, which prohibits dogs running at large within the said village between April 15 and September 30 in any year, and the penalty for each contravention of this by-law shall be not less than $2 and not more than $10 for each offence, to be recovered under the Summary Convicitions Act. Any duly appointed constable for the Police Village of Morewood, and any other duly appointed constable, shall be a constable to enforce the provisions of said by-law.

There were ten applications in the clerk's hands for the position of road superintendent for the township and, after much consideration, Donald Christie, of Winchester, was appointed at a salary of $185 per month, and By-law No. 873 was finally passed confirming the appointment, subject to the approval of the Department of Highways.

By-law No. 871, a by-law authorizing the reeve to borrow money from the Bank of Nova Scotia at 5% interest, if and when required, was finally passed, signed and sealed.

There were several accounts before council which were passed and paid, with the exception of one concerning a former employee's vacation pay which caused considerable discussion and was laid over for further consideration.

Cheese Warehouse To Be Opened May 9 At Winchester

The Ontario Cheese Producers Marketing Board has completed their second cheese curing and storage warehouse at Winchester. The official opening ceremonies will be on Wednesday afternoon, May 9.

Several delegates from both Federal and Provincial Departments of Agriculture are expected to be on hand, along with other governmental officials and leaders in the Ontario cheese industry. Invitations are being extended to all associated with the cheese business of Ontario, especially those living in the eastern part of the province.

This warehouse was erected to provide additional storage space to enable the Cheese Marketing Board to more effectively market cheese. Since the Producers built the storage at Belleville, they have on several occasions found it necessary to transport cheese long distances, and in 1952 were forced to store Eastern Ontario cheese as far away as St. Thomas.

The Association considered it advisable to have storage facilities not only to cure cheese, but to have additional space to hold their product when marketing conditions were unfavourable.

The Winchester warehouse is a one-storey building, 200 by 150 feet, constructed of reinforced concrete and containing six rooms. Five of the rooms can be operated at different temperatures simultaneously. The plant is capable of storing nearly six million pounds of cheese and is 20 percent larger than storage at Belleville. The two will accommodate more than 10,000,000 pounds of cheese.

Tea was poured at a beautifully arranged table centred with a lovely floral centre of daffodils and tulips and tall, yellow tapers at each end. Pouring tea were Mrs J. G. MacLeod and Mrs J. D. Shaver.

The housekeepers' table was in charge of Mrs D. D. Sutherland, Mrs Alex MacDougall and Mrs Harold Ouderkirk.

TV and Radio Aids to Everyday Religious Life Discussed at May Meeting of United Evening Auxiliary

Mrs F. M. Cass, president, presided at the May meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of Trinity United Church which was held in the dining hall on Tuesday evening. She was assisted by the secretary, Mrs Mansel Brownlee. Mrs Hugh Marcellus was pianist.

Arrangements were made for several members to attend the Presbyterial meeting of the Dundas-Grenville W.M.S. to be held at Spencerville May 4.

Mrs Cass announced that the Explorers are planning a scavanger hunt for May 14 and that they will call on church members to collect small boxes, felt hats, feathers, spools, bits of cloth, ribbon—articles they can use in their project work.

A committee consisting of Mrs Eric Casselman, Mrs Harry Allison, Mrs Graham Smith, Mrs Fay Shaver, Mrs Carl Merkley, Mrs Lloyd Smith, Mrs Keith Graham, Mrs Douglas Hitsman, Mrs Jack Fulton and Mrs Allison Graham was chosen to make arrangements for catering for the C.G.I.T. Mother and Daughter Banquet to be held on May 9.

Mrs Hilda Belsher announced that Mrs Fay Shaver, Mrs E. Johnston, Mrs A. E. Jarvis, Mrs Hilton Reid and Mrs Frank Arnold would be in charge of the June meeting.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs Lloyd Smith, assisted by Mrs Dalton Casselman and Mrs Hilda Belsher.

The theme of the meeting was "Through Closed Doors." The purpose was to discuss the potentialities of radio and TV in the field of religious education. Mrs Harry Allison and Mrs Gordon Lannin explained the various religious programmes available in this area on radio and TV and told of the possibilities of reaching those who never enter church doors by means of these modern media.

Mrs Belsher summarized the discussions and suggested that the corresponding secretary, Mrs A. Butcher, prepare letters before the next meeting to be sent to local radio and TV stations commending them for their efforts in the religious field and urging them to continue their present programmes. These will be signed by the members at the June meeting.

Mrs Allison presented a film strip and recording entitled "I Found a New World." It was most interesting and told of the work of Christian missions in Africa and India.

Refreshments were served by Mrs Allison, Mrs Belsher, Mrs Lannin, Mrs Lloyd Smith and Mrs Dalton Casselman.—L.R.A.

Crysler to Be Site of International Plowing Match Official Approval Given for 1958 Event This Week

A large tract of land southeast of Crysler was selected this week as the site of the 1958 International Plowing Match.

The choice was made by a large party of officials from the Ontario Plowmen's Association who also inspected a proposed match site near Alexandria in Glengarry.

Armand Clouthier granted his permission to use a 35-acre field between the Eight and Ninth Concessions of Finch Township as the "tented city" and most of the plowing contests will be held nearby. Farms owned by Bernard, Raymond and Ralph Beehler, all well known plowmen in international match circles, are close by. They reside in the Crysler area.

D. A. Macdonald, Q.C., showed the group over the Alexandria site on behalf of the Alexandria Board of Trade. Although the location inspected was extremely attractive, the larger areas of level land and slightly more accessible location at Crysler won preference for the Stormont site.

At a luncheon in the Crysler Hotel given the group by Crysler Chamber of Commerce, F. A. Lashley, of Toronto, secretary-manager of the OPA, said "The site looks good to us." Mr Lashley thanked the local group of plowmen, led by Aden Casselman, committee chairman, and Bernard Beehler, head of the site committee, for organizing the day's tour.

Mr Lashley was introduced by S. L. Begg, of the Crysler Chamber of Commerce. Harvey Hawkey, of Kingston, president of the OPA, thanked the Chamber for its attention to the committee. Mr Lashley was assisted by his associate, Alex McTaggart, of the Ontario Horticultural Society.

In addition to Mr Hawkey the OPA was represented by Hulbert Avery, of Brockville; Clark Young, secretary-treasurer, and Alex McKinney, Brampton, chairman of the lands committee.

Past president of OPA, Roy Shaver, of Finch, Mr Casselman, Mr Beehler and Kenzie McGillivray, reeve of Finch Township, represented the local group.

Preliminary arrangements for traffic control was discussed by Inspector J. W. Reavley and Constable Eric Code, of District 11, Ontario Provincial Police.

R .R. Crozier, of Stormont, Don Rutherford, of Dundas, and Jim Humphries, of Alexandria, represented the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Ontario Hydro was represented by Al Birdsall, of Winchester.

S. W. Major, manager of the Bell Telephone Company's Cornwall territory, discussed the elaborate arrangements needed to provide telephone connections throughout the match.

New Press Arrives

A week ago a transport-trailer arrived at our back door with 12½ tons of press in hundreds of pieces. By that night the pieces were strewn over the floor of our new addition in seeming utter confusion.

This week our forty-three by fifty-six inch press is rapidly nearing its original state under the patient hands of erector Claude Grainger, of Montreal. We hope to report the press in operation next week.

One Killed, Two Injured In Head-on Collision North of Aultsville

One man was killed and two others injured when two vehicles collided head-on on County Road 11, one-half mile north of Aultsville Saturday night.

Killed instantly in the crash was LAC Harold McBride, 20, of Northfield Station, who was stationed at St. Hubert, Que., with the RCAF.

In Cornwall General Hospital with injuries suffered in the accident are Clifford Neill, 49, and John MacDonald, 47, both of Gallingertown. Their condition is described as "satisfactory."

The accident occurred about 8 p.m., Saturday, when a pick-up truck, driven by MacDonald, was reported to have attempted to pass another auto, driven by Ross Dafoe, of Aultsville, while travelling south.

McBride's car was travelling in the opposite direction. Just as MacDonald swung out past Dafoe, the two vehicles slammed head-on with such force that the truck bounced backwards into the oncoming Dafoe auto.

Extensive damage was done to both the MacDonald and McBride vehicles, police said. Dafoe's car sustained minor damages.

Dafoe escaped the crash uninjured.

Police said it is likely an inquest will be held into the incident. It was investigated by Csts. W. J. Campbell and M. E. Shultz, OPP, Cornwall.

Mrs Isaiah Coughlar Passes in 105th Year

Mrs Isaiah Coughlar, who observed her birthday last October 14, died at Cornwall General Hospital at noon on Sunday. Despite her great age, she was fairly smart and active up to ten days ago, when she suffered a fracture of her hip at the home of one of her sons, William Coughlar, at Harrison's Corners, with whom she had been making her home. She was conveyed to hospital but failed to make the hoped for response to treatment and passed away on Sunday.

Born at Dunbar, Ont., she was the former Miss Jane Froats, a daughter of the late Mr and Mrs Philip Froats. Most of her long and useful life was spent in the Winchester district. Over the years, wherever she resided, she was held in the warmest regard and her death will be a matter of regret to her friends.

Her husband died October 16, 1930. She is survived by three sons and four daughters—William Coughlar, Harrison's Corners; Hercules Colghlar, Mrs A. R. Gates and Mrs George Price, all in Cornwall; Andrew Coughlar, Morrisburg; Mrs Herman Lewis, Almonte; Mrs Chas. Price, Aultsville. Another son, Stanley Coughlar, died at his home near Chesterville last October 26.

She also leaves one brother, Philip Froats, Farran's Point.

The body rested at the Meldrum Funeral Home, Cornwall, where the service was held at 2 p.m. Wednesday, May 2, and was conducted by Mr J. F. Reid, of Lunenburg United Church. Interment was made at Maple Ridge Cemetery.

OPINIONS . . .
Ours and Others

Ugh!

We see by the paper they may take a vote, over in Buncombe County, on fluoridation of the public water supply. The purpose, of course, is to get fluoride into the drinking water of all the children, so they'll have better teeth.

Fluoridation, usually the subject of bitter controversy, is a subject on which we've found it hard to get worked up—either way. For our guess is the results won't be so miraculous as to put all the dentists out of business; they apparently don't think so either, because most of them are for it. Nor, on the other hand, do we anticipate all the dire consequences some opponents predict.

Our chief reaction is to wonder about the waste of fluoride. If the sole purpose is to get fluoride into the children, why not just prescribe it for the children? Why put it into all the water used for industrial purposes? into all the water used for washing clothes and dishes? into all the water used for bathing? Why, in fact, waste fluoride on adults, whose teeth already are formed? And why, in the name of all that is sensible, give it to the thousands with false teeth?

Wouldn't it make equally good sense to put the children's cod liver oil into the public water supply?

Yes, sir, it would make just as good sense. And since it would, it seems reasonable to conclude that if we ever fluoridate the public water supply, sometime we might get around to cod liver oiling it.

That thought convinces us we do take sides in this controversy after all. Fluoridation? We're ag'in it!

Cod liver oil in drinking water! Ugh!

Where She Bulges

Amateur astronomers and their home-made telescopes will play an important part in the earth satellite programme of the 1957-58 international geophysical year.

As each rocket-powered, manmade moon is launched, the "hams" will be enlisted to help the professionals plot and clock its flight. The more observers there are scattered around the globe, taking accurate bearings and reporting them promptly, the more we'll be able to learn from such flights.

Fred L. Whipple, of Harvard, told a New York science meeting recently that amateurs in each area will work under a group captain. Each amateur will fix his telescope or binoculars on a known star. When the sattelite passes overhead, he will tell his captain at what time it passed, and where it was in relation to the star. Radio "hams" can help relay this information to centres where the sattelite's orbit will be computed.

One thing is certain about the flight of such "birds." They won't show up exactly when and where they're supposed to in theory. That's because earth isn't a true sphere. She bulges at her equatorial waistline and flattens at the poles.

Exactly how much bulge? Nobody knows yet, for sure, but that's one of the things amateurs can help professionals find out.

Once the bulge is measured, experts can correct their map distances between points on the earth's surface—and that's one of the reasons the artificial satellite project has been made a part of the world-wide programme of the international geophysical year.

All This and Quiet, Too

The proposition that motorists should be seen and not heard has apparently taken the Parisian fancy. While New Yorkers take their fist lessons in the art of driving instead of blowing their way through traffic, Parisians are moving on to the finer points in this department of the art of living.

Paris has felt the truly Elysian charms of honkless motoring for many months now. Indeed, the town has got so quiet that you can now hear the pop-pop-pop of motorcycles and other vehicles with noisy motors. Traffic authorities are seeking to persuade Parisian commuters—the 300,000 of them who provide their own transportation—to attach inexpensive silencers to their machines, and the success of the earlier phases of the anti-noise campaign at least promises some success for this new drive.

After all, one does not encounter the argument that muffling a motor may cause accidents. But some folk declare that restricting the use of horns will do this. Already, however, the Paris accident total has contracted significantly since French drivers have learned to depend more on their brakes than on their horns. All this and quiet, too.

Light Along The Way

Have you not often wondered what life is all about? The Universe is such a tremendous thing, and man such a little, insignificant part of it; has he, really, any importance?

The nature of life, its insistant demand for progress, its recognition of those who have reached the "top," its impatience with the past and, especially, with those standards and restraints which the past has insisted upon, very often obscures the only real and lasting things that man is capable of. A good deal is said, nowadays, about "incentive" and "initiative;" and many have fallen into the error of thinking that man can only attain his best if a sufficient reward is offered him. So, he is often lured in to pour out his life for treasures "which moth and rust do corrupt", and rewards which bring little satisfaction.

Man, because of his very nature, must be about doing something. There are very few human beings who are content to do nothing. Moreover, man wants to do something worth while. He has a real fear of extinction, of having come upon the world's stage and so played his part that nothing of importance issues from it. This fear, if such it is, drives him on; and some of the greatest contributions that have come have come from this motive. The sincere devotion of dedicated lives has resulted in the alleviation of sickness, the enrichment of life and the unveiling of truth for multitudes. The few who have thus given themselves have not been lured by the treasures of the world, but by a much higher motive.

It is not possible for us all to be "great," but it is possible for us all to do "great" things. This is the Good News of the Son of God. Any man, with few exceptions, can relate his life to the eternal treasures that the Son revealed. He can be honest and trustworthy, he can turn aside from evil, seek good and pursue it. Life will ultimately hinge upon these things. If men cast them aside for more glittering temptations, if they are willing to lose their souls in order to gain the world, they will find nothing but sorrow and disillusionment. If, on the other hand, they seek these things first, they will find what Jesus described as the Kingdom of God.

Jesus was not a "success" after the world's standard of success. Yet no one has more successfully used life than Him. He insisted that only those who, likewise, sought to do right would find life a "successful" experience. For them life will be good, it will have meaning, and it will bring a satisfying reward. Those who do the will of God, no matter what the world may do or say, will be successful in the sight of God; and what greater reward can life bring than this?

Horseback Basketball in Argentina

For 65 years basketball has fascinated North Americans, but the organization of a "pato" league in Argentina introduces a new twist. The Argentines play their basketball on horses.

Originated by the Indians, and enthusiastically adopted by the hard-riding gauchos of the pampas, the game of pato has been called the roughest of them all.

Pato means duck in Spanish. The name is an apt one for the original "ball" was a dead duck sewn into a leather bag. The duck's head was allowed to stick out, and two other handles were attached.

Pato's object is to throw the duck into a basketlike net at each ned of a polo-sized field about 230 yards long and 90 yards wide. The catch is that each player holding the ball must "offer" it at all times, holding the pato at arm's length so that opposing players can grasp it.

With hard riders and swift, sure ponies this can lead to what a sports writer has described as "a combination of lacrosse, ice hockey, polo, dueling and going over Niagara Falls with nothing but water wings."

The dead duck has long since been replaced by an official ball with six leather handles. Safety rules are rigidly enforced. But the game retains enough action to excite the most jaded spectator.

The pato is free much of the time. The referee ends any tugging match between players within half a minute if neither has relinquished his hold or been pulled from the saddle. The scramble for the free ball is fast and furious. Ponies are trained to seek the pato and block out other riders.

The player must, of course, retrieve the ball from the saddle and usually at a fast clip. This is probably the most dangerous part of the game. With eight riders, four to a side, all circling the pato, anything can happen.

Penalties are more severe than in most sports. The worst allows one free goal and a free throw at the basket from ten yards. It is given for deliberate obstruction such as crossing in front of a charging rider. Failure to offer the ball brings a free throw from the referee to the leader of the opposing team. Coming to a dead stop over a grounded pato also means a loss of the ball to the other side.

The match begins with the players lined up on their respective goal lines. The pato is thrown by the referee into the middle of the field, whereupon all riders begin a headlong dash.

The goals are nets resembling airfield wind socks, mounted on padded poles some 20 feet high. As in polo, players are given goal ratings, but there are no 10-goal men. The highest-rated rider in league competition is a nine-goal man, who is rated a phenomenal player.

SAY DRIED FISH MAY BECOME CHICKEN FOOD

Federal agricultural experts are experimenting with dried fish as food for chickens.

So far the fowl at the Mount Pearl experimental station, Newfoundland, seem to be thriving, but they are getting some grain with the fish since a straight fish diet would be too much for them.

The idea behind the scheme is that dried fish might be an acceptable substitute for more costly feed grains. Another application of this theory has already had good results with mink. Mink ranching has greatly increased in Newfoundland since the discovery that mink were thriving on a diet built largely around whale meat.

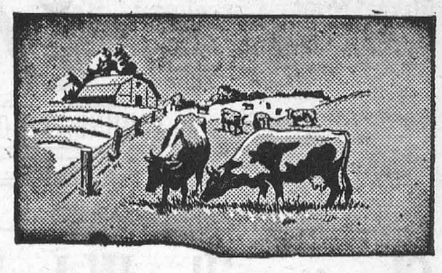
The chicken experiment is being conducted with two groups of Barred Rock hens. One group is getting commercial-grade growing ration and the other is pecking away at a combination of coarse grains and dried fish.

The Mount Pearl experts hope the birds 'growth and mortality rates will furnish the answer.

The test with chickens is only one of several currently being carried out at Mount Pearl.

There are a million more Canadians with jobs today than ten years ago.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS



By Lillian Allison

I'd have had this "Chat" done by now if it hadn't been for the martins. They're home again—arrived last Friday. Their show was so good tonight I hadn't the willpower to leave my balcony seat and go to work.

I think I told you last spring about the 8-room house Dad built for the martins. He set it on a post directly in front of our east kitchen window. And the entertainment those perky, little birds provided was unbelievable.

We had eight couples move in early last spring and by the time they left for their winter quarters we counted almost twenty. They certainly had a profitable summer.

Well we realized that if all those martins returned to us this spring there would certainly be a housing shortage. So in order to alleviate the situation Dad built two little two-room cottages and set them on the same pole slightly below the original house. That made twelve apartments available for summer occupancy.

About the first of March the sparrows moved into the big house. They must have liked the accomodation for immediately they started to set up housekeeping. They lugged in grass and sticks and feathers and worked like little beavers.

Everything was getting quite comfortable for the sparrows when suddenly last Friday we noticed several birds swooping around overhead. "The martins are back, the martins are back," someone announced with childlike glee. And we all rushed to the window.

They circled the bird house as if to make sure they were in the right place. They dipped and dived around it several times. Then some of the braver souls settled on the aerial wire to have a better look. All at once they were gone and they stayed away for some time. Perhaps they were looking for better housing conditions.

After a while they'd wheel in again. Some of them would land on the house and poke their heads into the unoccupied apartments. And all the time the sparrows, pulled up to their full height, stood guard at their doors. It was comical.

Well this programme continued with slight variations over the weekend. Sometimes the martins would stand under their verandas while the rain poured down overhead. And sometimes they would be nowhere in sight. The sparrows seemed to sense that eviction day was near and some decided to move of their own accord into the new, little cottages. Two brave couples held their ground however in the lower rooms on the west side.

But tonight just at dusk things began to happen. And I got a seat by the window.

Suddenly the place seemed alive with martins. They swooped and dipped. They landed on the house and flicked their tails as martins do. I counted ten but I'm sure there were more. They claimed rooms on the south and north ends and took up posts at the doors. They looked from various angles at the rooms held by the sparrows and tried to figure out how to put them out. But the east side seemed to hold the most attraction. They swarmed around there.

As they got braver they undertook to evict the sparrows. A martin would fly in, give the sparrow a peck and he'd fly away. But he'd come back as soon as the martin turned his back. Sparrows are no cowards but we cheered for the martins.

Finally when the sparrows took off on some secret mission the martins moved into both apartments. It was a clever move.

Then bedlam broke out on the east side and the martins staged a free-for-all among themselves. They pecked each other on the head; they grabbed each other by the backs and tails; they chased each other to the ground. It was a real life and death battle—well worth the price of admission.

Eventually the defeated couples moved into the rooms in the south cottage. It looked as if the martins had captured the entire stronghold except the north cottage where two sparrows still stood guard. Otherwise martins manned every doorway.

But when I looked just at dark there wasn't a martin in sight. Maybe someone rang the curfew and they'd all gone to bed.

I don't know why you don't build a house for the martins too. They are far more fun than a canary.

Civil Defence and the New Weapons

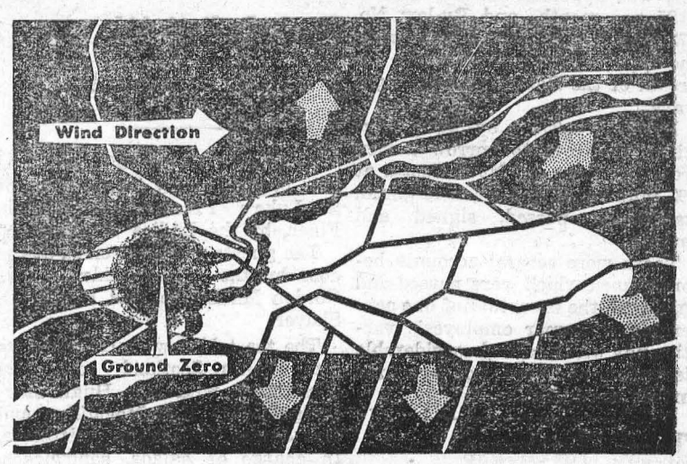
The evolution of weapons with greater and greater powers of devastation has made civil defence as vital to the small community as it is to the large city. Basically, the danger threatened by war is the same as ever: destruction, deat h and injury. But, says F. F. Worthington, federal civil defence co-ordinator:

"While the over-all effects of a mass saturation raid such as took place in the summe r of 1943 on Hamburg was tremendous, the atomic bomb is capable of creating the same degree of destruction from one bomber and one bomb in a matter of a few minutes. In consequence, our danger is very much greater."

So civil defence today is different in many ways from that which was used during the Second World War. It has had to change as the threats of new weapons changed.

The single atomic bomb that fell on Hiroshima in August, 1945, destroyed 62,000 of 90,000 buildings and damaged 6,000 more beyond repair. As the result of the bomb, 80,000 of the city's population died. The first H-bomb tested destroyed everything within three miles, severely damaged everything within seven miles and lightly damaged as far as 10 miles. More powerful bombs have since been tested.

It became apparent, says the federal co-ordinator, that civil defence planning had to be revised. Emphasis was shifted from a policy of "duck and cover" to one of "evacuation" where time permits.



That's where the smaller communities come in. They must be prepared to offer assistance to stricken cities.

But what really brought the small community into the changing civil defence picture was the aftermath of atomic bombs—nuclear radiation. When the fireball of an atomic blast touches the ground, it pulverizes everything—brick, steel, stone, earth—in its path.

Iroquois Villagers Disapprove Plans For New Waterfront

Plans for Iroquois' new waterfront were explained to village ratepayers by Ontario Hydro vice-chairman Ross Strike at a meeting in Iroquois Town Hall.

Planned for the new village being built to replace the to-be-flooded-out Iroquois, is a park with a golf course, swimming beach and possibly a baseball diamond.

The small representation of taxpayers at the meeting voiced dissention with Hydro's new proposal, sharply contrasting what they said had been promised them when plans for the village were formulated over a year ago.

The waterline, they said, was to be near their new homes and they disliked the park plan.

Hydro's proposed plan shows a park rising from 1,000 to 1,600 feet in depth, extending between the new townsite and the St. Lawrence River. The Hydro Commission proposes to fill the old town site with earth taken from Point Three and Point Iroquois, work site of the seaway canal and lock.

Hydro vice-chairman Strike estimated it would cost $1,500,000 to provide a new waterfront with a five-foot depth of water, but to fill in the area would cost only half a million dollars, he said.

Heavy curtains drawn over window panes at dusk will save some loss of heat during the night. Heat can be lost up an open chimney unless a brisk hearthfire is burning. The chimney damper should be closed at night. Weather-stripping can be put at the bottom of a door or against the crack to keep the breezes out. Padding under carpets or rugs often helps keep floors warm.

IN THE HOME

Today's Living is measured in Kilowatt-hours

"50 YEARS OF PROGRESS"

In this year, 1956, Ontario Hydro's Golden Jubilee, the modern home is not only light-conditioned, but work-conditioned by electricity. Electrical servants, many of them fully automatic, have made possible a higher, more comfortable standard of living for all. They cook; refrigerate; wash; dry; iron; polish and clean. It is difficult to name a routine household task where electricity cannot, in some way, be of assistance.

Truly, today's living is measured in kilowatt-hours . . . and these are servant-hours. No matter where we look, electricity is at work making life easier and more enjoyable. Hydro will continue to provide an adequate supply of electricity to meet the power requirements of the province . . . power that means better living for all in Ontario.

THE HYDRO FAMILY ASSURES YOUR ELECTRICAL FUTURE

TOO GOOD —SO FINED $50

Miss Willie Mae Vereen, Buffalo, N.Y., is a very careful driver —even the police admitted that— but her caution cost her $50 the other day in traffic court.

Miss Vereen, 37, stopped her automobile at an intersection, yielding the right of way to another car waiting in a side street.

The other car was a police cruiser.

Patrolman Francis Berthiaume told the judge ',she was too good to be true, so we stopped her."

Miss Vereen was charged with driving without a licence.

CORNERED PUTTY NOW ON MARKET

Latest convenience for the handyman, believe it or not, is three-cornered putty. Yes, it's already on the market—included in a do-it-yourself kit assembled for the householder who has a pane or two of glass to set.

The putty—it's actually glazing compound—is packed in a metal tube with a triangular outlet. When the tube is squeezed, the compound comes out in just the right shape to fit the angle formed by the frame and the glass, thus eliminating the messy job of digging putty out of a can and rolling it by hand.

In addition to the glazing compound—150 inches of it in each tube—the glazing kit contains a putty knife of spring steel and a packet of extra-sharp glazier's points. The tubes of compound may be bought separately, according to the manufacturer's announcement.

LEAVES TRADEMARK

Ray Scarborough, of Buxton, N.C., found the sword of a swordfish in a piece of eight-inch piling and thereby lent some credence to an ancient legend.

The legend has it that wooden ships sailing into the harbour used to be attacked by swordfish. Sailors would exhibit holes and sometimes bits of the sword to prove their story.

The part of the fish left in the piling, Scarborough found, is about eight inches long.

A GNASHING OF TEETH

One of the competitors in the second International Game Fish Tournament at San Juan, P.R., lost his upper plate in the Atlantic Ocean. "I'm lucky, though," he said. "I have another set at the hotel."

When he took his spare teeth out of a case. he dropped them on the rug. "Lucky they didn't hit the solid floor," he said. As he reached down to pick up the spare set he stumbled and stepped on them. They were shattered.

Rubber Gum Drops Not Employed in Valley Against Play Money

A fast-moving organization of the junior cereal set is hitting Ottawa candy counters with play money. Rumours that reprisals will be made with rubber gumdrops were denied by a spokesman for the dealers.

The worthless money, from other countries, is being distributed by a cereal manufacturer. Most of it cannot be confused with Canadian currency but a few conis are nearly dime-sized. They have been used in pop purchases and already a slight decrease is shown in lollipop profits.

Dealers hastened to point out that passers of play money still form a tiny minority of customers. All of the regulars are known to be living within their allowances. No evidence has been found to indicate the ring is working from the suburbs.

Reports from other Valley towns reveal that the loosely-knit organization is spreading. However, there is no evidence of co-ordination by any headquarters group.

A sweeping plan of counter-action began with an appeal to parents to investigate all instances of sticky fingerprints on the furniture. Also termed warning signals were refusals to eat lunch and complaints of a mild tummyache.

A sugestion that character checks be made at the time of purchase has been protested by a group known a s the goody-goodies. One seven-year-old, who prefers ice cream, and needed a haircut, said:

"Our relations with most Ottawa candy outlets have always been good. While there is little chance of a general goodies boycott, we should not be held responsible for the actions of a few."

FOUND LOST APARTMENT —BUT TOO LATE

A Chicago machinist who lost his apartment found it after a 5½-week search. Now he's hunting another one.

James McDononugh, 32, drove from Dayton, Ohio, and spotted a ,'for rent" sign in a Chicago apartment building. He agreed to take the place and paid a week's rent in advance.

McDonough moved his possessions into the apartment, then went out to buy food. Returning from the grocery, he was kept by heavy traffic from making a necessary left turn. He became hopelessly lost.

He searched for the apartment ever since.

Sunday, after his story appeared in the newspapers, the landlady of the apartment house got in touch with McDonough and returned his belongings. The building was only a few blocks from his hotel but several miles from the area where he had been looking.

He can't move back. The landlady had rented the apartment to another tenant.

PAYS FOR RIDE 40 YEARS LATE

The Minneapolis and St. Louis Railway office, Minneapolis, received a $3 cheque from a Port Townsend, Wash., man who said his conscience has bothered him for more than 40 years.

The man said in an accompanying letter that he took a trip from Watertown, S.D., in 1909 or 1910.

He explained that he lost his ticket and promised the conductor to mail him the money but never did.

"As near as I can remember," the letter said, "the fare was $2.54. This however may not be correct, so I am enclosing $3."

RUST-PROOF MACHINERY LURIBCATION ESSENTIAL

An agricultural engineer says the useful life and service of farm machinery is shortened through the lack of proper protection and storage.

G. L. Byers, of Ontario Agricultural College, made the following suggestions for lengthening the service of farm machinery.

1. Rust-proofing compounds should be applied to the machines with a brush, spray or rag.
2. Seedbed preparation machines should have all dirt removed and the polished surfaces coated with rust-proofing compounds.
3. Grain drills should have all seeds and fertilizer removed moisture and result in corrosion of metal and rotting of wood.
4. Knotters or other mechanisms in harvesters should be protected.
5. Canvas conveyers should be dried, cleaned and stored.

Finally, Mr Byers pointed out, that even though a machine is cleaned, reconditioned and lubricated when placed in storage, these operations should be repeated when the machine is returned to service.

Use Light Bulb To Find Reason For Fuse Failure

Changing a fuse can be a perfectly safe operation, or it can be fraught with danger. The common fuse for home circuits is 15 amperes. When one of them blows, it should be replaced by the same capacity fuse, not by pennies or wire.

Always turn off the master switch when a fuse blows.

Your problem may be a short circuit, or it may be an overloaded circuit. To find out, you insert a 25-watt bulb in the socket from which you removed the bad fuse.

If the bulb burns dimly, you have an overloaded circuit and should disconnect some appliances. If it burns brightly, there's a short circuit in the house, and another fuse inserted under those conditions will blow out instantly.

To find the appliance with the short circuit, unplug your appliances one at a time and check the brightness of the test light, when the light dims, you have found the trouble maker.

If you have made both these checks and the fuse still blows, your trouble is more serious. Call an electrician. The problem may be inside the walls.

Don't try to change fuses in the dark. Keep a flashlight near the fuse box.

TV AUTO MECHANIC PINPOINTS TROUBLE

A new television auto mechanic demonstrated recently in New York tells almost instantly what's wrong with your engine.

This electronic device throws wavy patterns of light on to a TV-type screen. Variations from the normal pattern point to such things as shorted sparkplugs, defective coils, burned distributor points.

Named the Du Mont TV-type engine analyzer, it is connected to the ignition system of the engine by two clip-on leads. A car can be road-tested and the screen watched to learn why the engine is acting up or losing pep.

"It will go a long way toward taking the guesswork out of motor repair work by enabling motorists to pinpoint the source of trouble accurately in a matter of seconds," said E. Eugene Eckland, of Allen B. Du Mont Laboratories.

About the size of a suitcase, the 60-pound analyzer gives simultaneous pictures of the behaviour of each cylinder in the engine. There is a separate wavy line for each cylinder. Ecklund said it can detect nearly all ignition troubles, including fouled, misfiring or shorted plugs, defective wiring and switches, coils and condensers, worn distributor, cam and shaft bearings. The TV eye checks igtake and exhaust valves, pre-ignition timing and operation of innition faults caused by vibration, knock or noise.

The device was developed by Du Mont in co-operation with the Socony Oil Company.

CIVIL DEFENCE—

These highly radioactive particles are sucked into the air as high as 80,000 feet. Air currents catch them up and carry them until they slowly drift to the ground as "fall-out." This fall-out may cover an area 150 miles long and 40 miles wide, depending upon air currents. The danger it presents also varies depending on the length of time it has drifted in the sky. Animal life touched by fall-out radiation may die or become severely ill.

But this threat is far from hopeless. The radioactivity of fall-out decays rapidly and danger has largely disappeared, usually, within 48 hours. A community could escape the danger if it were prepared. Firt it must have means of learning when and where the fall-out may appear. Then it must be prepared to take adequate shelter, quickly, for at least 48 hours. A community would then need to know when it was safe to come out.

It is because of these new dangers to even the small, out-of-the-way community that civil defence planning has been extended to include the towns and the villages and the farms as well.

Is the solution hopeless? Civil defence says "no."

Self-protection measures become even more important since many more people are likely to be affected. Community organization is more essential than ever, to take care of larger numbers of casulties and evacuees and cope with a greater amout of destruction than heretofore had been anticipated.

A SOLUTION

Chief Max Graham, Decatur, Michigan, volunteer fire department has come up with an affable solution to that bane of firefiighters—the crowds of curious spectators at fires.

He's organized the older members of the volunteers into a traffic squad. They go along on calls to direct spectators to vantage points where they can watch the goings-on without hampering the firemen.

"Have you seen Edna's new bathing suit?" Jane asked her mother.

"No," she replied. What's it like?"

"In many places it's just like Edna."

Pipe Scheme

To make a buck in wintertime, a Missouri farmer turned his hand to carving out corncob pipes. He took the lot to a pipe seller in St. Louis and offered them for sale. The pipe seller said he'd pay half in cash and the rest in merchandise. The farmer agreed and so he was asked what merchandise he'd care to take.

"I'll take it in pipes," said the farmer. "I know just what they cost you."

RICE DISHES

USE RICE IN PUDDINGS for dessert, in casseroles for the main dish at luncheon or supper, in soups or as a substitute for potatoes at dinner time.

There are several good methods of preparing rice, but the beginner should always remember that one cup of uncooked rice will make three cups of cooked rice.

You can use instant rice that requires very little time to cook or the more familiar variety that requires longer cooking. You may decide that the long cooking variety has the better flavour, but it is handy to keep a package of the other variety on the pantry shelf for emergencies.

How to Cook Rice

Method No. 1—Put one cup uncooked rice, 2 cups cold water and ½ tsp. salt in a saucepan. Bring to a boil; then turn heat as low as possible and continue cooking for about fifteen minutes. Turn off heat, cover tightly and allow to steam for 5 minutes. This makes three cups cooked rice.

Method No. 2—Put rice water and salt in top part of double boiler. Cook slowly until rice is tender. Do not stir while cooking.

Method No. 3 (Pressure Pan Method):

1 cup rice
1¼ cups water
½ tsp. salt

Place rice in any dish that will fit into the cooker. Add the required amount of water and salt. Place 1 cup water in bottom of cooker with rack. Cover dish with wax paper or aluminum foil and place on rack. Cook 10 minutes at 15 lbs. pressure. Cool cooker by placing in pan of cold water or hold under cold water tap. Remove indicator and place cooker back on heat for a few minutes to dry the rice.

Bavarian Rice

2½ cups milk
½ tsp. salt
½ cup sugar
1 cup whipping cream
1 tsp. vanilla

Wash rice; cook with milk in double boiler until tender; add salt and sugar; chill. Fold in whipped cream and vanilla.

Variations to the above may be made by adding one of the following: crushed pineapple, peaches, apricots, marshmallows or maple sugar.

Hamburg Rice Pie

1 lb. hamburg
½ cup dry bread crumbs
2 tbspsp. chopped onion
2 tbsps. chopped green pepper
1½ tsps. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
2 cups tomato juice
3 cups cooked rice
¾ cup grated cheese

Combine hamburg, crumbs, onion, green pepper, seasonings and ½ cup of tomato sauce. Pat mixture onto bottom and sides of pie plate. Combine rice with the remaining tomato sauce and cheese. Pour on meat and bake in moderate oven 25 minutes. If desired grated cheese may be sprinkled on top five minutes before baking is complete.

Spanish Rice

Use your pressure pan and cook ten minutes or cook in tightly covered heavy frying pan for 50 minutes.

4 slices bacon
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
2 cans condensed tomato soup or 2½ cups tomatoes
½ cup water
½ cup uncooked rice

Cut bacon in small pieces, partially fry; add green pepper and onion; fry till onion is golden and bacon crisp. Add rice soup or tomatoes and water.

We are what we Wear!

THE old jingle that goes "I know he is a sailor, 'cause he wears a sailor suit," is more of truth than poetry. A turkey feather can make a "wild Indian," mother's old finery a "lady." Freshly and carefully cleaned clothes can set us out happily and with assurance, with chin up and an improved ego.... Try it.

To help bring out the best in any of us...

DON'T STICK OUT TONGUE —IT'S A WASTE OF TIME

Dr Irvine Loudon, of London, has told the medical profession that doctors are wasting their time by asking patients to stick out their tongues.

Writing in the British Medical Journal, he says he examined 700 patients with coated tongues and discovered:

Almost all heavy smokers have furred tongues.

Many non-smokers with upset stomachs do not have coated tongues.

Some perfectly healthy people can have a furred tongue even if they do not smoke.
