The new style plates are expected to last five years and will have three letters and three numerals in blue on a white background with the name Ontario above and the slogan "Keep it Beautiful" below.

Women's Institute Hears Talk on Rare China

The Morrisburg Women's Institute met Nov. 9th in the Senior Citizens Room with their president, Mrs. Bessie Beckstead in the chair. After the business was conducted, Mrs. Thos. Fraser gave an interesting account of the recent district convention held at Hawkesbury. The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. Gordon Mulholland, the convenor. She read an appropriate poem entitled "Why wear a Poppy".

The speaker of the evening, Mr. Maurice Gagnon, of Ingleside, was then introduced by Mrs. Mulholland. He had taught school for many years and following his retirement in 1966 has been on the staff at the Upper Canada Village. Mr. Gagnon has an interesting hobby, that of collecting clocks and china. So he based his talk on china — giving the history of the Willow china. He told an interesting tale about the various items shown on a willow plate he showed us. He also had a beautiful Mary Gregory water goblet, so told us something about that type of china. Mary Gregory was said to have been a china decorator employed at the Sandwich Cape Cod glass factory around 1870. She was very interested in children, so showed her love of them by decorating glass with figures of them.

Mrs. Isobel York in her usual delightful manner thanked Mr. Gagnor for his talk, presenting him with a small gift as a token of our appreciation to him.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Smyth favored the group with two duets "The Church in the Wildwood" and "How Great Thou Art", accompanied by Mrs. Bell, and they were thanked for their kindness in singing for us.

A social time followed during which Mrs. Mulholland and her committee served a dainty lunch.

Editorial . . .

Your Vote is your greatest Privelege

The greatest privelege possessed by the common man in a democratic society is his right to vote periodically for the candidates of his choice for public office, whether that vote be at the federal, provincial or municipal level. In a recent talk, Morrisburg Reeve Carlton McInnis stressed the importance and the accessability of the municipal level of government.

In a very few days, you will have the opportunity to cast your ballot for the people whom you wish to conduct your civic affairs for the next two years, and this is an opportunity that no citizen should ignore. It is a right dearly bought and stoutly defended for many centuries. Millions of people have died to defend their right to vote. Countless wars have been waged in all parts of the world, by tyrants who would take that right from the common man. But how much do we value it today. In many, many elections, voters stay at home in droves. Others still will cast aspersions on this or that candidate for "causing the expense of an election". The people who "cause an election" are all our ancestors who believed n a democratic ideal; who held that belief strongly enough to leave their homes and families, to move into uncharted wilderness, to fight and to die, to uphold it.

Your vote is not an expense; it is a privilege; it is the least expensive item you ever bought. Today, right here in Canada, there are those who are bent on chipping away at our right to conduct our own civic affairs. Have you ever thought how many inroads have been made, how many decisions have been taken away from our municipal governments in the past few years? An informed and aroused populace just wouldn't allow it to happen. Your vote DOES make a difference. Make sure that you express your opinion on election day.

Goodbye to Summer

Soft are my footsteps on the forest floor,
A twig snaps underfoot in silence velvet deep,
The sweet air's filled with autumn's swift decay,
So soon these peaceful woods shall be asleep.

Red gold leaves fall gently one by one,
To join the rest on mossy path below;
It's but eternal nature's law of rest,
With promise all shall live again and grow.

Brown squirrel sits and stares with bulging jaw,
Wee mousie rustles in the leaves so deep,
And spider rests on web of dewy beads,
Lone bee drones by — late rendevous to keep.

Black crow caws overhead, and clricket clicks away,
The great winged flocks have flown to warmer clime,
Pale sunbeams fan through naked arms of trees,
At noon still warm, through melting frosty rime.

Yet, this earth's turmoil is so near,
Youth's strength a'wasting with unnatural ways,
Man's Eden fast losing all that's precious, dear,
"My brother's keeper" now an empty phrase.

When spring shall burst again in tender green,
And bud and flower lift head to gentle shower,
May man's heart be cleansed, and love abound,
To share and give, and leave his Ivory Tower.

I walk the mossy path again,
I hear the Meadow Lark chirp and trill,
Tender jade green leaves are putting forth,
Old Mother Nature's here to greet us still.

May we in turn, well cherish all she gives,
Protect from the ingrate who shows no concern,
Give thanks to our Maker whose patience still lives,
Before it's too late and chastisement we earn.

Millions of souls share this tiny Earth,
To their Maker each life has same equal worth,
For every race needs a small place in the Sun,
Let us all work and strive until this goal is won.

Weekly Report

In order to achieve maximum benefits from the woodlot it must be carefully cared for and all cutting must be properly planned. Many woodlot owners take advantage of high forest product prices and strip their woodlots, leaving no good quality trees on the area at all, while other owners skim off the best logs from their bush which bring larger immediate profits but in the long run reduce the value of their woodlot considerably.

Some rules to follow to attain the best results and the m o s t profit from the woodlot over a long term period are as follows:

—Do not over-cut your woodlot, since successful forest management depends on tree growth, and tree growth can be increased through good management, which means no overcutting.

—Remove most poorly-formed, diseased and over-mature trees in the first cutting, but leave a few for bird nesting purposes.

—Do not open up the woodlot too much as this encourages undesirable shrub growth.

—Do not let cattle graze heavily in the woodlot because the animals will damage and ultimately kill young forest trees by tramping and also by eating the tender terminal shoots.

—Plant most barren areas in the woodlot with the tree species best suited to the area, but leave some openings, as these are beneficial for wildlife.

—Cut in such a way so as to obtain a woodlot containing trees of all ages, since a stand such as this produces more growth over a long period of time and suffers less from loss through insect and disease epidemics. It is also good management to leave some nut producing trees for wildlife food

—Keep well informed of the local market possibilities for the sale of the various forest products which may be produced from the woodlot.

—Keep in touch with your local Ministry of Natural Resources foresters who are available to offer advice to you on all phases of woodlot management.

Regional Conference Held by Canadian Cancer Society

The Fall Regional Conference was held at the Four Seasons Hotel in Belleville. Mr. Don Insley was the speaker on Education: The following excerpts from his address.

Thirty years ago no one could talk about Cancer Education because there was no Cancer Society and also thirty years ago no one talked about Cancer and when they did it was a shame to the families of those who had it. It shared the dread company of leprosy in the middle age. It bore with it the aura of leprosy and the cry — unclean. We must never lose sight of the reasons why we can talk Cancer Education to-day. Some thirty years ago the Medical profession asked lay people to create an organization w h i c h would go between them and the public to talk about the existence of Cancer and the need to learn, and the ways in which Cancer may be avoided, the ways in which we know to-day — Cancer Can Be Beaten. Because of the request and the action which followed, people not only discuss Cancer to day with a sense of proportion, but the public is eager to learn the facts which we have to offer them.

It has been thirty odd years of trial and error and of change and progress. It is a story of a Society which has adapted itself to the Cancer message which is not static but which changes with each new insight on the part of science and medicine.

Change in context and in form —that has been the history of Cancer Society education — since the medical profession issued their formidable challenge to the Society.

It was made to one—or two or maybe a score of people the details are unknown to me. But what I do know is that they were amateurs in dealing with the public— They had to begin with nothing and learn as they went. So you might imagine that beginning. I'm sure somebody said—thirty some years ago. "Will we know this and this about Cancer, let's put those facts down — they may not be facts to-day — but they wrote them down and called the results a pamphlet — and began to pass it out to people who until then had been afraid — not just of Cancer, but of talking about Cancer — of recognizing publicily that there was such a thing as Cancer.

Then, they learned more — put that down and it was another pamphlet — and we wound up with a whole library of pamphlets And because the idea of Cancer education and the idea of movies — pictures that moved and talked this could tell the story to the masses and now thirty-three hard slugging years later we have a library of films. And so it has gone, with one educational tool after another. In our division, we use mechanical figures in the schools — smoking machines — which illustrates to young people the actual effect on the body of smoking cigarettes — in hope that we can persuade them to stop smoking — or better still, not to start. We have transparencies for overhead projectors. We have sections mounted in plaster of a healthy lung and a diseased lung. We use displays at Fairs, Conventions and Exhibitions. We have the services of speakers, in combination with films to tell our story. We make educational commercials, for radio and television and cable system which they run the year round — hopefully as a free service to the Society. And there are ramifications of our education program — special events — seminars for the nursing profession — involvement of hundreds of student nurses in our Miss Hope Campaign.

KEEP PILLS IN GLASS CONTAINERS

Heart patients who take nitroglycerin tablets are warned the pills may lose potency unless they are kept stored in glass containers and the containers kept tightly closed.

The warning, issued to doctors to pass on to their patients, is included in this month's issue of Rx Bulletin, a publication of the federal health department.

The article said American studies on nitroglycerin stored in plastic containers showed the drug lost 50 per cent of its potency in one day. After three days the drug had lost up to 80 per cent potency.

Nitroglycerin stored in foil-polyethylene packages and polystyrene boxes also lost potency, the article said. Tablets stored in glass bottles are not affected.

A health department survey showed that only glass containers are being used by manufacturers in Canada.

YOURS SINCERELY

BY MRS. WELLWOOD ADAM

Have you ever experienced a sudden feeling of "standstill" after hearing upsetting news? I did, last week. A neighbour told me of the most unexpected passing of one whom I had learned to love and respect. Although I have only been living in Morrisburg for a year or so . . . and it is not easy to get to know everybody in this little community in this short time . . . I have been able to enjoy the kindness and the fellowship from a few. And she was, indeed, one of them.

As a matter of fact, I was actually in the process of looking forward to seeing her again on that very day, the day she died. So it seemed a double shock to realise I will not hear her pleasant voice over the phone, much less enjoy the continuance of the many thoughtful chats we have had, from time to time.

It is sobering to think that none of us, the world over, can escape from the passing of those around us, whether close in the family, or close in friendship ties, or whether near at hand, or away over-seas.

Also, there is nothing we can do when these things happen, except give a little comforting word to each other or failing that, just a handclasp of wordless understanding. I think the greatest comfort we can all have, is the actual knowing where the loved one is, in spirit.

This particular dear friend of mine a woman of high principles, and she endeavoured to live and be the kind of woman God would have her be. Not easy in this very sophisticated world to-day, but not impossible, either. Only a few of the young people under her care, really accepted what she stood for and upheld. The rest, I am afraid, considered she was not "with it" at all. Which is a pity, as the greater group of her one-time pupils, now matured, know, in their hearts.

At the time of writing, we are approaching the great Remembrance Day of November 11th, and I know that it will be past and gone by the time this is in print. However, on that day, I will have added her name to the unending list of great heroes and heroines, and shall never forget what a great soul she was.

We are all involved in this matter of life, and death, and its mysteries, aren't we? I remember reading some very meaningful lines written by someone whose second name is Donne, and they left their work on my own understanding: "Any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in mankind. Therefore, never send to know for whom the bell tolls; it tolls for three . . ."

As I once again recall t h e words, I am left, once again, thinking. Perhaps you are, too?

In Memoriam

McNEELY—In fond and loving memory of our Beloved Son, Colvin McNeely, who passed away November 17th, 1963.

Nine years have passed
Sinee God opened the Gate
Through which you went alone;
And there is a light we cannot see,
Our Father claimed you for His own.
Beyond the Gate our loved one
Finds happiness and rest,
But there is comfort in the thought
That a loving God knows best.

ACCIDENT PREVENTION IN ONTARIO

Medical treatment, cash benefits and vocational rehabilitation assistance immediately available to anyone injured on the job, provide Ontario's work force with protection which in extent and quality of treatment is recognized around the world as one of the best furnished under any Workmen's Compensation system.

Prime objective, is to have an accident affect the normal routine of the workman and his family as little as possible — to permit him, as early as feasible, to carry on as if the accident had not occurred.

". . . as if the accident had not occurred:"

Obviously this would represent the ultimate achievement in handling any given case. Striving for such a goal leads logically to the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board's long term, vigorous commitment to programs of accident prevention and safe practice promotion. These safety education activities are expertly conducted by Safety Associations formed under the Compensation Act, and represent every industry throughout the province.

These associations are: Construction Safety Association of Ontario; Electrical Utilities Safety Association of Ontario; Farm Safety Association of Ontario; Forest Products Accident Prevention Association; Hospital Accident Prevention Department; Industrial Accident Prevention Association Mines Accident Prevention Association; Ontario Pulp and Paper Makers' Safety Association; Transportation Safety Association.

These nine associations responsible for development and implementation of accident prevention and safe practice programs tailored to guarding against potential hazards in the specific working conditions encountered in related industries are financed out of Board funds. Funds the Board emphasizes, which are derived from a levy on industry and represent no direct drain on taxpayers.

The Ontario Workmen's Compensation system in effect not only furnishes the province's workers with protection in the event they are injured, it also endeavours to ensure that the conditions under which they work are as safe and hazard free as modern accident prevention techniques and protective equipment can make them.

To this end the Board's Safety Department works in close co-operation with the Ontario Ministry of Labour, and other government departments which have the responsibility of enforcing safety codes applicable to various job situations, as well as with accident prevention associations, each of which deals exclusively with accident prevention and safe practice in their particular field.

DUNDAS FARM NEWS

The Versatile Rutabago

In fall and winter, especially, many of us like to serve rutabaga in our meals. Today's rutabaga has come a long way from the first rutabagas cultivated 400 yrs. ago in Asia. It has a milder, sweeter flavour, and a finer texture than earlier varieties. A rutabaga is the Laurentian variety of the yellow table turnip.

When shopping, look for a smooth, firm, well-rounded rutabaga which is heavy for its size. Fresh rutabagas are available from late August until early May. Rutabagas offer good shopping value: 1 lb. rutabaga, diced and cooked, will yield 2 - 2½ cups of vegetable or 4 generous servings.

Rutabagas also offer good food value; and are a must for the weight watcher. ½ cup rutabaga only has 40 calories; and it contains 36 mg. of Vitamin C. This is a good source for Vitamin C, which is required daily in the diet.

Always cook rutabaga quickly in a small amount of water. This will retain the maximum amount of vitamins and flavor. Boiling and mashing is not the only way to cook and serve rutabaga. Try some different ways to add variety to your meals. For main courses, rutabaga may be diced, creamed, glazed, french-fried, pickled, or made into croquettes and deep fat fried. Rutabaga may be combined with other vegetables and fruit, too. For example, try combining it with apples, peas and carrots, or onions; or add cheese or sour cream. Of course, do not forget that rutabaga makes a good addition to relish trays.

Have you ever served rutagaba for dessert? There are several dessert recipes available which use rutabaga. For example, it may be combined with spices, and evaporated milk to make rutabaga pie; or with nuts, dates and orange juice to make Rutabaga Nut Bread. There are good cake recipes using rutabaga, too, such as Rutabaga Spice Cake and Glazed Pineapple and Rutabaga Cake.

The local Agricultural Office has a booklet "Ontario Rutabagas" which will give you more ideas for using rutabagas; or you may get other recipes idea from the Ontario Rutabaga Council in Oakville. Try some new ways of serving rutabaga and see how versatile it is.

OPEN MEETING TO DISCUSS MUZAK ON MONDAY

On Monday, November 20th 1972 a general meeting of the Morrisburg Chamber of Commerce will be held in the Council Chambers of the Civic Centre at 8:00 p.m. This will be an open meeting and all citizens of Morrisburg and the general public are cordially invited.

Dr. Donald Crober, recently returned from Uganda, will be guest speaker. He will relate some of his experiences in that country and give us an insight into some of the problems facing the people.

Of special interest to the merchants of Morrisburg will be a presentation by the board of directors and a representative of the Associated Broadcasting Corporation Limited of Ottawa, who are specialists in music by Muzak. Discussions have recently taken place relating to the possibility of installing Muzak facilities in the Morrisburg shopping area in the next few weeks. Studies of this type of music have proven that customers stay longer in an area where Muzak is being used, which means to the retailers a greater exposure time of products which results in increased profits.

Coffee will be served following the meeting.

O.P.P. REPORT

Pedestrian Highway Safety

For one reason or another 46 persons were on foot alongside Ontario Highways during the first half of this year when they were struck and killed by a moving vehicle. Last year 140 pedestrians were killed and another 800 were injured.

Persons who must walk along a highway for any reason should stay well away from the travelled portion.

The Ontario Provincial Police Force reminds all citizens that large portions of controlled-access highways are prohibited to pedestrians and that persons convicted of contravening provisions of the Highway Traffic Act regulations may be subject to a fine of not less than $20 and not more than $100.

As winter approaches, bad weather creating slippery walking and driving conditions, poor visibility caused by snow, road slush and dirt on windshields, will combine with the elements and early darkness to make all walking and driving more hazardous. In addition to a general increased alertness, pedestrians should wear suitable clothing that will make themselves as visible as possible. Motorists with disabled vehicles who suddenly become pedestrians should exercise more concern about their personal safety than the fact that their car has stopped running.

Recent Ministry of Transportation and Communications figures show that about one in every four persons killed and one in ten injured in traffic is a pedestrian.

Remember -- walk defensively!

COUGHS, SNEEZES, AND TB

Today, TB can be controlled and cured. If the disease is detected.

The trouble is that anyone can have TB without knowing it. And anyone with live TB germs in his or her sputum can spread the disease by coughing and sneezing.

In the early stages of the disease, there may not be any symptoms. Common symptoms that come later are coughing a lot, feeling tired all the time, spitting up blood, and losing weigh one or all of the symptoms can mean TB. Only a doctor can tell for sure, by giving tests to determine whether or not TB germs are active in the body.

Once the diagnosed, effective drug treatment can begin. For some patients short hospital stays may be necessary. More and more TB patients are now treated in general hospitals. One of the first things patients learn is how to avoid spreading germs: by covering their coughs and sneezes with disposable paper tissues and putting them in paper bags to be burned. Fast-working drugs make TB patients non-infectious to others in a matter of weeks.

Not so long ago, TB patients went to sanitoriums and spent interminable years in isolation. stays in hospitals. In fact, most Today, there is no need for long patients do not have to go to hospitals at all for treatment of TB. They can be treated with drugs in outpatient clinics or doctors' offices.

Today's drugs can cure — even prevent—TB. And Christmas Seals help fight TB, emphysema, and air pollution. Answer your Christmas Seal letter right away. It's a matter of life and breath.

MEASLES VACCINE PROGRAM FOR ONTARIO CHILDREN

A measules-rubella vaccination program for the protection of children between the ages of one year through the first year of school entry has been instituted by the Ontario Ministry of Health.

In announcing the program, Health Minister Richard T. Potter, M.D., said that all areas of the province have been stocked with vaccine. All practising physicians have been notified of sources of vaccine supplies and have received a recommended immunization schedule.

"It is important that all such children receive their vaccination as soon as possible after their first birthday to ensure protection during the entire pre-school and school period. This calls for a co-operative effort by parents and practising physicians."

The combined vaccine will be free. It will provide protection against both measles (red) and rubella (German measles) in a single injection. Infants under the age of 12 months should not be given the vaccine because the presence of maternal antibodies may interfere with the immunizing response.

Complications often develop in a child who contracts measles. These include pneumonia, convulsions, middle ear infection and inflammation of the brain.

Rubella vaccination of young children will also reduce the risk of infection among women in child-bearing years who have not had the disease. Rubella contracted by a woman during the early months of pregnancy can result in the birth of a baby with serious congenital abnormalities. The earlier in pregnancy the fetus is infected, the more severe the handicaps may be.

Marcel Marceau . . . on radio??? Yes, back by popular demand, An Evening With Marcel Marceau will be repeated three times on one weekend — on CBC-AM, Friday, Nov. 24 and on CBC-FM, Sat. Nov. 25 and Sunday, Nov. 26. This two-hour nonsense special was first aired in August, a cleverly edited mixture of words, music and madness by Walter Pidgeon, The Goons, Gracie and W. C. Fields, Mike Nichols, The Beatles, Elso Lanchester and other greats too numerous to mention. Not to forget M. Marceau himself, who makes a rare appearance in one of his greatest mime acts. It's a program that has to be heard to be believed.

A record - breaking crowd of 12,000 cheered wildly when bluesman Ray Charles performed at Toronto's Ontario Place this summer. Singer, pianist, composer and arranger, Charles displays all his talents in the broadcast of that memorable concert on Showcase '72, Sunday, Nov. 19.

Political economist, author and communicator, Harold Innis headed the department of political economy, University of Toronto, from 1937 until his death in 1952. During his active career as a scholar, Innis influenced such men as communications expert Marshall McLuhan and historian Donald Creighton. Ottawa broadcaster Elspeth Chisholm has prepared a portrait of Innis for CBC Tuesday Night, November 21.

CBC plans a major recording venture with the Toronto Symphony under the direction of Karel Ancerl. In honor of the symphony recent 50th anniversary, CBC Radio has arranged to record Smetana's great cycle of six tone poems, Ma Vlast (My Country). In making the announcement, John Roberts, head of CBC Radio's Music and Variety Department, called the project "the most ambitious ever undertaken by a Canadian orchestra." The recording will be released as a two-disc album by RCA and will be compatible with stereo and quadrophonic reproduction systems.

Between Ourselves, Monday, Nov. 20 and ... is an account of the re-tracing of the route taken by Simon Fraser and Alexander Mackenzie up the Mackenzie River. Producer Imbert Orchard of CBC Vancouver gives his impressions of the trip in which he accompanied 22 scouts, and compares it with those of the early explorers.

The Teachers Viewpoint

This column, to those of you who may be unfamiliar with it, began during the school year 1970-71. Since then it has been considered by teachers, members of the Ontario Secondary School Teacher's Federation, District 21, as an excellent opportunity to communicate to the reader questions and opinions they feel are important to today's educational scene. By means of your local paper, teachers employed by the S.D. & G. Board of Education, will throughout this school year write a variety of articles in which they will express professional concern over issues that too often do not reach the public.

It is the desire of the communications committee of the district branch of O.S.S.T.F. that the reader will be made more aware of what is happening in education, especially at the secondary level. The articles that appear in this column could therefore deal with topics such as student-teacher ratio; student field trips — their educational value; the educational philosophy of the ...stry of Education as expressed in its circular H.S.I., which a number of teachers feel is too relaxed, new trends in education such as the semester system for secondary schools; the Reville Report, a document that would not only affect teachers but more seriously quality teaching for which this Federation branch and many others have been fighting for years, in the interest of the students.

It should be noted however that the articles that you will read are the opinions of the individual teacher author and not the official position of O.S.S.T.F. District 21. Yet if a particular topic interests you as a parent and taxpayer, and you wish more information, simply write to the editor of this paper who will forward your letter to our committee. We will then do our best to answer the questions you may ask. We feel that as professionals it is our duty to offer you this service.

I can only hope that your readings will contribute to a better understanding of education in general and education at the secondary level in particular.

Sincerely,
Gilles E. Lacelle, chairman
Communications Committee
O.S.S.T.F. District 21

BY HELEN ALLEN

THE TORONTO SUN SYNDICATE

Harold, who is now living in a farm foster home, relishes everything about country living. He likes sharing in the farm work or, in weather of the day the picture was taken, just sitting contemplating nature.

French-Canadian in descent, Harold is a slim lad, a bit small for his 12 years. He has brown eyes, reddish-blonde hair and fair skin with a few freckles. You'd guess from his expression that he has a pleasant personality, and he has.

Harold is polite and friendly, quite mature in his thinking. He is rather a quiet boy but not to the point of being aloof and he enjoys being with other children. He is very fond of adult company and they find him interesting and agreeable.

Harold is an average student in Grade seven. His first language is French and he attends a French school but he speaks some English. His great interest is art. It is his favorite subject in school and he spends much of his spare time drawing.

Harold will be happiest in a French-speaking family and he would like to live in the country. He needs warm, loving parents, especially a father who likes to share interests and activities with a son.

To inquire about adopting Harold, please write to Today's Child, Box 888, Station K, Toronto. For general adoption information, please contact your local Children's Aid Society.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO OWN THE FARM

TO BE A SUCCESSFUL FARMER
- - AND HAVE GOOD LIFE

BUT YOU NEED TRAINING

Farming is big business today.

On large Ontario farms there's a constant need for agricultural workers. But it's not the old-fashioned "Hired Hand" life anymore. It's a well-paying lifetime career with rich benefits for the person who enjoys working with livestock, crops and machinery. And it's a healthy life —— especially for a growing family who can count on accomodation, food and a less frustrating pace of life.

To train for this career, a ten week course to upgrade agricultural knowledge and skills is being offered at the

KEMPTVILLE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURAL TECHNOLOGY
BEGINNING JANUARY 8, 1973

To qualify you must be at least 18 years of age; 1 year out of school with a functional Grade 8 education, and be approved by a selection committee.

ADELAIDE DANIELS SAYS

LET'S GET STARTED

Well let's get started — now! Put down that piece of cake you're eating. Now means this very minute and your diet will continue every minute of every day, weekend, holiday or workday, until you get to your Ideal-Weight.

There can be no tomorrow in dieting. How many times have you said to yourself; "I'll start my diet tomorrow," and what happened?

The right diet should be designed to work for you, whether you are eating at home or in somebody else's home; it should work equally well in your kitchen or your relative's kitchen. The meal plan should follow you to restaurants, luncheons, delicatessens or discotheques. It should work while you're on the job or going to school. It should go with you to weddings and funerals, parties and religious festivals — and on holidays!

And right from the start there is one word you should stop using: "try". All too many overweight people have tried, tried and tried again. So forget the word try and substitute "do"! Anyone who has ever been on a diet knows the difference between the two.

Also remember the only time you get into trouble on a diet is when you cheat a second time. And the only way you can avoid cheating a second time is by not cheating a first time. A simple concept but very true. It is much more difficult to stop after the first peanut than before.

It is essential that your diet be nutritionally sound as well as adjustable to your social, business and home needs. Since you will be learning new and sensible eating habits, some may feel strange at first. Parts of certain diet requirements may even seem to give you too much to eat. Parts will seem just right for you.

You will also find that some of the food items permitted are both familiar and delightful. At times you will feel quite full; other times only partially satisfied but never will you be dissatisfied.

And if you do become hungry occasionally, remember your motivation!

Also, every detail counts . . . nothing is unimportant. For example, sampling is not allowed — no matter how small the taste. When a meal plan permits half a grapefruit, that doesn't include the maraschino cherry.

So on your mark, get set and go . . . you can be slim, you just need the right motivation.

Your questions are invited.

The 2nd FORTY

Flirting Husband

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

My husband and I have been married 25 years and are both 46 years of age. We have three children — all married — one grandson, and two more on the way. My husband has been a flirt as long as we've been married. I've been patient with him as long as I could, but he has embarrassed me too many times in front of my girl friends. (He's always been that way whether we've gone out with friends or not. Then we'd always have an argument about it.) Now we don't go anywhere anymore and I've stopped seeing all my friends. I don't like staying home in solitude, seclusion and loneliness, rarely having visitors, because I like people and I like talking with my friends. I don't know what to do. I love my husband very much and have told him so over and over. The idea of divorce terrifies me. My husband doesn't want a separation or divorce either. He wants to have his cake and eat it. Although he acts so independent, he doesn't want me to be that way. Sometimes I'm sorry I married this man. I've tried to have confidence in him, but the only result is confusion and conflict. What am I doing wrong? How can he do all those things and still say he loves me? What kind of approach would be better for me? C.W.

Dear C.W:

For one thing, you might stop telling your husband over and over that you love him. This probably makes him so sure of you that he thinks he can do anything and still have you accept him. However, a man who's been flirting for all those years isn't likely to change. Perhaps the flirting indicates he's really unsure of himself and always trying to prove he can be attractive to every women he meets. But he evidentally doesn't want his freedom; he wants to stay married to you. Perhaps he feels most comfortable with you, because you provide the stability he needs. As far as you're concerned though, withdrawing from the world is no answer. You should think about getting sociable again. Why not call your woman friends, and go see them on occasion, perhaps without your husband. That kind of independence on your part might do you both some good.

Irregular and Embarrassed

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

I'm 48 and have never had any signs of the change. But recently I've become very irregural in my periods and am not sure what this means. I don't have any other symptoms and am too embarrassed to ask my doctor about it.

Dear M.S.:

Since you're in the right age group, the irregularity of your periods might indicate you're going into the menopause. Doctors see women with such symptoms every day. After a checkup, the physician might find that one woman has a hormone deficiency requiring estrogen replacement, — while another requires another form of treatment and a third perhaps needs no treatment at all. In any case, this is the kind of condition a woman should never ignore. So why not pick up the phone and call your doctor for an appointment?

As a school boy in Medicine Hat, Alta., Al Cherny studied classical violin and played in the school orchestra. Then, one day he heard some "old time fiddling". From then on he was hooked on old time fiddling, performing on CHAT Radio in Medicine Hat, then on CKNX, Wingham, Ont., and the International Old Time Fiddling Contest in Shelburne where he twice captured both the old time and novelty classes during two successive years. Now he's seen each Friday night at nine on CBC-TV's The Tommy Hunter Show.

Hints for Irregular Brushers

Regular brushing is the best way to keep tooth decay at bay and the teeth good looking, but there are many that just can't keep up a good schedule.

In our busy work-a-day world, many of us are too rushed to brush after every meal and snack, or else it is impractical. Although no dentist would excuse you for understand your plight.

inadequate health care, he does

Most of us are near a drinking fountain, so the next best thing to brushing would be to swish and swirl water through spaces between your teeth to remove food particles. Chewing a firm apple also helps to loosen trapped particles.

Salesmen and others who do much talking in their jobs, frequently find their breath going sour. The bad breath may not be due to a serious disorder, but may be caused by the membranes of the mouth drying out too much. Small sips of water periodically ers stain on your teeth is not to smoke. But if you can't k i c k the habit, at least remember that the last third of a cigarette is collecting about 50 per cent of the tar.

The best way to prevent smok- can help the situation.

Instant coffee seems to stain teeth more than the regularly prepared variety. Black tea may also stain. Stubborn stains may need help from your dentist who can clean them off without injuring teeth or gums. Girls can keep lipstick smears off their teeth by carefully blotting toward the inner surface of their lips after applying fresh lipstick.

Knowing you have stain problems, you should make a greater effort to do more brushing. That way you can drink your instant coffee or black tea without worry. But do try to kick the cigarette habit.

A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
