One thing about a miser, he makes a close friend.

CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

The colonel and this writer went on a jag the other day. He had just returned from an exhausting schedule of army guff at Arnprior and we had awakened to the fact we should have stayed at home the night before. So we loaded the three-dimensional phonograph with opera and other such loud stuff and relaxed. It made an interesting morning with no less than nine speakers roaring at moderate volume in the closed quarters of the west keep of the Castle. Unfortunately when Callas finally got up steam and let off a top-note screech, some of mother's precious crystal fell off the chair and spilled the contents.

It seems to this occasional music lover things have progressed a mite in the phonograph field in the last few decades. From the day we all crowded around the marvellous Victrola with the big outside horn to the present-day electronic marvel, a lot of water has flowed under the bridge. Originally the machine we remember best belonged to the family of the next-door neighbour just east on the Finch Road. Thar she sat in the parlour, a real, honest-to-goodness Edison phonygraf, cylinder records and all. When the coast was clear and Auntie allowed, we all crowded around and listened to Uncle Josh get into the most amazing messes any person ever got into. Some of the opery records were remarkable in their hoots and hollers, but what could be finer than the State of Caroliner when the Four Barbershop Boys let out?

About 1920 Father came home one fine winter afternoon with a large hunk of furniture on the back of the sleigh, covered with the buffalo rug. He had been to Marshall Merkley's and brought home a Victrola to try out. The first record we heard, and it still sounds a note, was Galli Curchi in the "Bell Song." The machine never left the house. It finally became a music cabinet, but the old relic always had a warm spot in the family's affection. Many a time on winter nights did we run through a selection of hooters and screechers that would curl the hair of a modern child. To us, then, it was just wonderful. We certainly didn't understand it, but the idea of canned music was a marvellous thing.

Radio came with a rush. The poor old phonograph suddenly went out of fashion. The last of the records disappeared into the war machine, when the call went out for varnish products. And all during the war and for a while after, phonographs were just not very interesting. Then the trend began to change. Mr Crosby and a couple of other crooners became so popular on the radio the public just had to hear more of them. Records started to sell again, machines developed to deliver good , clear sounds and suddenly we were right back to 1917, crowding around canned sounds.

Now though, one must have the big sound. Not just the little, ordinary one speaker, monophonic run-of-the-mill thing. At least three speakers are needed to listen to the singer's breathing. It is even better to have enough speakers to hear the poor slob's stomach noises and that calls for tiers of speakers with all sorts of electronic gadgets to control, distort, distend and shrink the output. It is necessary to be able to make the curtains wiggle with the bass notes and tinkle the glassware with the treble. The ultimate is to be able to drive the v.p. out of the house closely followed by the child while Miss Price tears the liver out of "La Traviata."

The world of music has much to offer. The trouble nowadays is that it can't come to us as just ordinary music. It has to be dressed up in frills of percussion, tinkled over with marimbas and shussed over with skins. From this spot in our progression through time, Uncle Josh wasn't quite so bad. Neither was the "Bell Song." It is doubtful if we will remember Belafonte in another forty years.

For Chesterville--

New high school approved word from OMB received

Chesterville's long-awaited approval to build a high school has come through. Just last week, the word came from the Ontario Municipal Board that the village council would be allowed to proceed with the necessary steps that would lead to the calling of tenders. The approval was immediately sent forward to the board of North Dundas High School District and its attitude is eagerly awaited.

The plan to build two high schools for the villages in the school district evolved from a set of circumstances. Over a period of time it was found almost impossible to reach unanimous agreement on a central site.. When costs were examined very closely, th two-school figures were so close to a single school, it was felt transportation saved would alone more than pay the added decimal point in increased mill rate. The district board consulted the six municipalities involved and this time was given a unanimous verdict to build two high schools, one here and one in Winchester. Accordingly on June 12 this local council made application to spend the necessary $332,610. It has now been approved by OMB. Nothing has been received yet from the district board on the matter, although it is assumed that group will take action in the near future.

This newspaper has not been able to learn whether the Winchester approval has been received. That town is also involved in building an addition to their public school, a matter that will soon have to be considered here.

Santa coming Dec. 9

Chesterville Chamber of Commerce and others have organized a do for the reception if Santa Clause into the village on December 9 in the afternoon.

It is planned to have a big parade of floats starting at the Legion Hall led by Chesterville High School Band. Prizes will be awarded for the best floats.

The Chamber this year is taking over the lighting and decoration contest of private homes in the village. The First Prize Cass award will go to the best lighted and best decorated home, judged between December 13 and 20.

Children will greet Santa either in the village theatre or just outside, depending on the weather.

Parents with children unable to be out are asked to notify his messengers at either Moriarty's Store or Laflamme's Store. Arrangements are being made for special visits of Santa to shut-ins.

Nominations normal present council stays

Chesterville village had less fuss and feathers than some of her neighbouring municipalities in the matter of nominations. When the wind of speeches had quieted down, the same council and the same reeve were back in office. One councillor, Keith Graham, took a little longer to be led to the fold, but after Carl McMillan withdrew his nomination, Saturday morning, he qualified.

Nominations for reeve found only the present incumbent on the list. Councillors included the present council and newcomers Carl McMillan and Gordon Lannin. Mr Lannin withdrew immediately. The chairman was clerk Lorne Marcellus.

Public school trustees nominated and in by acclamation were Lorne Thompson, Archie Black and Stuart Allan, all sitting members.

Community Centre Board under way for winter season with new members

Chesterville Community Centre Board met Tuesday night in its new form. Following the resignation of long-time chairman Eric Casselman, member T. D. Ross and secretary - treasurer Keith Graham, new names were presented for village council's approval. They were approved as follows: Paul Monast, Joe Pringle, James Moran, John Blum and Gary Price. Reeve Carl Merkley and councillor Harold Sharkey formed the nucleus of experienced members.

Paul Monast was appointed as chairman of the Board. He will be assisted by Joe Pringle as secretary-treasurer.

One of the first decisions the board made was to advertise for a caretaker for the rink for the coming winter season. Another decision, and a new one for the Board, was to charge admission to the rink this year. Fees of ten cents in the afternoon and 15 cents at night were set. No final cost has yet been set on season tickets.

Schools this year will be asked to pay $25 for the afternoon use of the ice sheet. In other years contributions were received from some of the boards.

Another meeting will be held next Thursday to consider caretaker applications.

OPINIONS . . .
OURS AND OTHERS

An interesting development in school sites

Chesterville council felt considerable satisfaction last week. The village finally received permission to call for tenders to build a high school in the municipality. This came about after a delay of six months, while waiting for Ontario Municipal Board approval of the original request.

Back in early June North Dundas High School District Board made the official request that Chesterville receive OMB permission to raise the necessary $332,610 and build a school on village property. It would be a matching unit to one that would also be applied for by Winchester village. The matter was taken care of at once and now the approval has arrived.

Mixed feelings have greeted the news in the area. During the late summer and fall, school matters have been in a moderately upset state. New plans and ideas have been flooding in until school boards and council members are just a little confused. So much so that right now, the fate of the building program for single schools for the towns is a large unknown. The village council cannot go ahead on its own, even though the original request is valid from NDDHS board to seek permission to build. All during the present haggle, this local group has cried it cannot act other than on the original recommendation from the school board. It still holds to that decision, as far as this newspaper can determine.

Chesterville council members are nearly at the end of their patience in the high school matter. We gather that a couple of more "new" plans for solving the district school question is apt to see them kick over the traces. Alternatives are being heard now in the event the present building approval is not followed as the original request outlined. The most extreme of these is to pack up and leave the district at the first possible release date.

We pray it does not happen. The withdrawal of the second largest assessment from the district will not necessarily help educational facilities. But then neither does senseless see-sawing over possible school sites and facilities.

A small apology from the editor

It is not too often this editor writes in the first person as a character called "I." For a moment, I would like to appear in that role in the editorial columns of the "Record."

I have had the honour and pleasure of helping with your reeve and councillors for the past three years. This year it was my firm and stated opinion I would not be a candidate if enough other names appeared on the lists to fill the slate.

Last Friday night, enough names were at hand to do just that, and I publicly stated I would not cause an election and thus would leave the field clear to Mr McMillan, who had expressed his intention to consider the matter. However by Saturday, Carl had made up his mind not to run this year and the situation took another twist, one I had not expected.

Unexpectedly I am back with the present council members, and seem to have another year lined up to be one of your appointed representatives. Be assured that my desire to leave the field for a time was not through any lack of interest in this community's affairs. Rather, it was my hope some new blood might serve the town with a fresh point of view.

My thanks here are to those many persons who went out of their way to offer me their reasons why I should continuue to be a member of council. You have been most kind and especially must I publicly note the pleasure and satisfaction it is to work with reeve Carl Merkley and the horts and cohorts around the Wednesday hot-stove league.

I can assure the people of Chesterville the only weekly paper of the town and the editor will continue to serve in public office to the extent of my ability and to the extent of your patience.

Heave-ho for Dr Chaput

It was an interesting exercise in bureaucratic procedures, that suspension of Dr Marcel Chaput of the Defence Research Board. The good doctor was waving a lively flag of separatist hue and he just figured it would be nice to take a few days off with pay to get things stirred up a mite more between us English and us French.

Trouble was Dr Chaput touched a raw nerve somewhere along the chain of command. When the pinch was felt, reaction was rapid and the rabble rouser is suddenly short of folding green from the Defence Research Board and slightly short of a job.

Up and down this chunk of real estate we call Canada, we have wads and wads of crackpots, dopes and separatists. Some are tolerated by their employers, because their activities are limited to home and the slightly overworked wife. Others stand up on their hind legs at public meetings and bore small crowds. Still others expound at union meetings and eventually run foul of the shop stewards and end up on the end of the UEI line. Occasionally some work for the big man at Ottawa and feel they have a right to yap and get away with it.

We are pleased to see that someone had enough guts to give the loud little man the heave-ho. Not for the subject of his sour complaint, mind you. This is still a free country in matters of legitimate expression of opinion. But the idea of a public servant, or any other employee for that matter telling his employer he was off for a few days on his own, would expect his job and full pay when he got around to returning, is enough to make a mare bite her colt.

It would seem the mare did just that.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

By Lillian Allison

It was quite a surprise when I read a little aricle in Time magazine last week. The title was "The High Cost of Peeling." I expected to see something about the price of admission to the burlesque shows. Instead it was about potatoes.

It seems in the good old U.S.A. they have a convenience food called Home Fries. They're potatoes in a box. There is no peeling, no cutting. You just read the directions on the box. "Put them in a pan, cover them with boiling water and cook. Then brown them and serve them." First they had to be cooked, then browned, then served. The only step missing was the peeling. Potatoes in their skins cost 5 cents a pound there. The convenient Home Fries figure out to 60 cents a pound. This means it costs .55 cents a pound to have someone peel the potatoes.

This little bit of information set me thinking about our convenience foods. There are shelves of them. Instant potatoes — which our cooking expert on Page 7 doesn't like — are indeed a convenience food. Cake mixes are another. Ready-to-eat cereals, cooked meats, canned soups, sliced and grated cheese, brown and serve rolls, bake and serve cookies and almost everything in the supermarket freezer is a convenience food.

These items are advertized on T.V. as ideal time-savers. And some are. If you need only two servings of soup, for instance it is very easy to add water and heat a tiny can. The chicken and turkey pies would take hours to prepare.

But what about some of the others? In this day of pre-sifted flour and one-bowl electric mixer cake recipes how much time does a cake mix really save? We usually have to add the eggs and water anyway. I'm old-fashioned enough to think that the cake I make from scratch tastes better too.

With quick-cooking cereals how much time does it really take to make hot porridge for breakfast? The pan isn't as hard to wash as it used to be when oatmeal was cooked for an hour. Besides there's a considerable difference in food value. Since I heard Dr. Elizabeth Chant Robertson compare the value of oatmeal and cornflakes last week we've had porridge every morning convenient or not.

Haven't we housewives become more or less the victims of high pressure salemanship? They keep harping at us to save time. Well how much is the time we save really worth? What great things can we do with the four minutes we save by using pre-peeled potatoes?

And we must consider the cost of convenience.

One lady with a large family told me that while she worked away from home for two months last fall the cost of groceries at her home rose so much she doubted if she was really making any profit from her job. When she bought cookies and bread and convenience foods for the family she realized how much she had saved by cooking and baking herself.

How many rolls could we make for the price of a dozen done up in plastic? It would take three little cans of soup for a family of six. The cost would be between .59 cents and .73 cents. How much soup of the home-made variety couldn't we make for that money? And just compare the price of cooked ham with home-roasted fresh ham. It would be nearly double. A roll of slice and bake cookies doesn't cost too much but how many cookies will it make? They're quite expensive per cookie.

Then in my book there's no comparision with the flavour of the foods we buy ready-to-eat and the ones we make ourselves. The manufacturers of these convenience foods know that too. They stress the point that dehydrated soups taste better because you cook them yourself. The refrigerator cookies and rolls taste better, they say, because you bake them yourself. There's no doubt that's the advertising pitch behind those Home Fried potatoes too.

Now, of course, if our grocery money is unlimited we have no reason to figure time saved against added cost. Who cares? Again if we are cooking for one or two, large roasts, big batches of buns, dozens of doughnuts or large recipes of cookies may be false economy. Most of us however find it good common sense to feed our families the best possible food with the lowest possible grocery bill. We must compare prices and shop to our own advantage. Very few can afford to pay the high cost of peeling.

A HELP ON ICE

Here's an idea from the Ontario Department of Agriculture that will help you get out of those icy spots this winter: Carry a 50-pound bag of chick grits in the trunk of your car. The grits are quite cheap (80c a bag) and don't freeze as sand frequently does. Grits are easy to clean up if some get spilled in the trunk and because of their sharpness, allow better traction on ice.

Ontario Legislature Report

by Hon. F. M. Cass, Q.C.

Wednesday, November 22nd last marked the beginning of a new era in Ontario provincial politics and government. For the first time in more than twelve years the Ontario Legislature opened its Session without Leslie M. Frost in command. In his accustomed place was the Honourable John P. Robarts the new Prime Minister who had been elected last month to succeed the Honourable Mr Frost as Leader of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party and who early this month, with his new Cabinet, had been sworn in as Her Majesty's Government. The efficiency displayed by the new Prime Minister during the opening days of the Session attested to the smooth transformation of government from the Frost Administration to the Robarts Administration.

The Speech from the Throne indicated that Mr. Robarts was prepared to build carefully and well on the foundation so well laid by Mr Frost. And the mixture of experienced Ministers with younger Ministers ensures that the new Executive Council will give aggressive yet seasoned leadership to our great Province. Among the changes in Cabinet Portfolios was that of your Member for Grenville-Dundas from Highways to Municipal Affairs, succeeding there the Honourable W. K. Warrender who became Minister of Labour. These Portfolios are considered to be two of the most difficult in the government and the moving of two seasoned Ministers to fill them would seem to indicate the new government's concern in these areas.

While the House sat only three days during the first week of the Session, its organization for the Session was well under way. A new Deputy Speaker, Mr Keith Brown, M.P.P. for Peterborough was elected and the Committees of the House were struck with expriened Members as Chairmen. A few bills were introduced and our legaslative machinery began slowly to turn on its long sessional grind.

As usual, the opening of the Legislature was most colourful and the Lieutenant Governor and his most charming lady carried out their vice-regal duties in their usual cordial but efficient manner. The Governor's reception after the opening gave everyone an opportunity to meet the new Prime Minister and Mrs Robarts and was one of the largest (and longest) in recent memory.

All of us who have served the people of Ontario under the leadership of Mr. Frost experiencd a most nostalgic, even sad, feeling as we participated in these events without the Frosts. During his long period of leadership both Mr Frost and Mrs Frost had endeared themselves to all of us; the growth and

Regional Tourist Council to serve four-county area

Several months of controversy ended last week with the formation of the Regional Tourist Council at Civic Centre here.

Amalgamation of the St. Lawrence Valley Tourist Association and Seaway Valley Travel Council means the Seaway Valley will benefit from matching grants offered by the provincial government for tourist promotion to organized groups.

Guy Moore, Deputy Minister of the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity, in Cornwall last September, had told the two associations that amalgamation, or some form of unification, would be necessary before the area could receive a $5,000 matching grant offered by the department.

Ald. M. M. Kastner, of Cornwall; head of the Seaway Valley Travel Council since its inception, was elected president of the new group.

Contacted recently Ald. Kastner said: "In line with instructions of the chairman, Peter Manley, we have already contacted the Department of Travel and Publicity and hope to have a meeting of our entire directorship on Nov. 30, at 8 p.m., in Morrisburg.

"The agenda will include a proposed constitution, various appointments and the concept of each area of the region so that we may be able to make immediate progress."

"I was extremely pleased," continued Ald. Kastner, "to see representation over the four counties so well distributed."

Representatives were present from the counties of Stormont, Dundas, Glengarry and Grenville.

Peter Manley, MPP Stormont and chairman of the meeting, expressed the wish to see the organization begin functioning immediately. He advised the organization to make speedy application for the grants because of the detailed work involved in getting grants of this kind. He suggested all bodies called on to supply a financial statement for this purpose do so immediately.

"I am most anxious to see this important industry succeed," he added.

Board of Trade vice president Dr. W. G. Bowen, told the chairman, and the 21 delegates present at the meeting, he felt all groups present would be more than happy to co-operate after this election and that all support requested would be forthcoming.

The association is designed to promote tourism in the four counties concerned.

Stuart Markell of Ingleside was elected vice - president. Three directors were appointed County G. B. Miller of Prescott; John Robertson of Cardinal; Carmin Coudillo of North Grenville; Dundas County, Kenneth Kirkby of Iroquois, Leslie Presley of Morrisburg, Raymond McIntosh of Williamsburg Township.

Stormont County — J. H. Maginnis of Osnabruck, B. E. Comrie of Cornwall, and Stuart Begg of Crysler.

Glengarry County — Clarence L. McGregor of Maxville, Mayor George Simon of Alexandria and Adrien Gadbois of Charlottenburg.

SOVIET AGRICULTURISTS CORDIAL TO CANADIAN

Hospitality beyond the ordinary sense and also in the sharing of agricultural scientific knowledge was reported by Dr. D. G. Hamilton of the Canada Department of Agriculture on his recent return from the Soviet Union.

The director of program (crops) in the Research Branch, spent a month visiting agricultural institutions and farms in various parts of Russia.

In addition to the liaison built up with Soviet officials through previous seed exchanges between Canada and Russia, Dr. Hamilton experienced the feeling of a common bond in agriculture and found his hosts anxious to show all. He travelled widely and met those in charge of farm operations and also those doing research work.

He expects that the already substantial exchange of seeds between the two countries will take on greater proportions now that "we know exactly what the other has to offer." He learned about valuable breeding stocks of sunflowers, apricots, wheat and vegetables which he hopes will soon be introduced to this country.

Prior to his visit Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Yugoslavia and Rumania in company with S. J. Chagnon, Assitant Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and Dr. E. E. Carlson of Regina, CDA district veterinarian.

In these countries, said Dr. Hamilton, it was clear that every agriculturist is concerned primarily with meat — through better varieties and animals,, more fertilizers, harder work and mechanization. Farms are very large and, on some, mechanization and organization are at the point where the farms are literally "food factories." The greatest specialization to date seems to be with hog raising and it is quite easy to locate farms with an annual production of 20,000 to 30,000 pigs. However, meat production — especially beef — seems to be much less than desired. That is true for milk too. It is expected that when more roads are built farms can specialize more and food can be moved more easily to markets.

Dr. Hamilton noted that excellent research had been done in corn breeding, large areas being seeded to high-producing hybrids. Corn will play a big roll in the increased animal production which is desired in these counries. It has also become a very important crop in the Ukraine which is still a large producer of winter wheat.

Much of the spring wheat production has moved east, especially to the new lands of Kazakhstan where 45 million acres have been put into wheat, oats and barley since 1954-55. The Soviet's newest variety of hard red spring wheat is undoubtedly of very high quality.

Sunflowers give 65 per cent of Russia's oil from seeds. Breeding at the All-Union Institute for Oil Crops in Krasnodor has steadily increased the oil content of sunflowers during the past 40 years, to the point where the average commercial crop yields about 40 per cent oils (Canadian average is about 30 per cent). This is increasing as more acreage is planted to new varieties containing about 48 per cent oil. The seed yield in Russia is about 2,000 pounds per acre, which is at least one third more than a Canadian crop yield.

As in many countries, biological scientists seem to be struggling for facilities and attention compared to more prominent areas of science. One sees the usual range of competence in research in Russia but the great demand is for new varieties and techniques to raise production. In one or two areas of work it was evident that there is not the close tie-up between scientific workers from different specialties as there is in Canada, say between plant breeders and plant pathologists. Scientists in all the countries visited want very close contact with their opposite numbers in Canada and an active exchange of materials and information.

LITTLE EXTRA FEED COST

Shelters built out of bales of straw proved satisfactory winter housing for pigs in an experiment conducted by the Canada Department of Agriculture at Fort Vermilion in northern Alberta.

C. H. Anderson reported that the feed cost per pig was only $1.12 more than for pigs finished in a heated barn. He emphasized that it was important to keep the baled-straw shelter clean and dry and to provide an adequate ration at all times.

The experiment involved three kinds of shelters: a heated barn, a straw-covered A-cabin with a feeding platform 100 yards away, and a baled-straw shelter with an adjacent feeding platform. In mid-November 1960, 20 weanling Yorkshires were put in each and self-fed. Water was constantly available to the group in the heated barn; those in the shelters were supplied once daily with warm water.

The barn-housed group matured in 192 days and consumed 732 pounds of feed, costing about $15.83 per pig; the A-cabin group, which had to walk 100 yards to feed, matured in 225 days and consumed 820 pounds of feed, costing about $17.80 per pig; the bale-shelter group matured in 223 days and consumed 778 pounds of feed, costing about $16.95 per pig.

The A-cabin on the bale shelter were provided with ventilation and were cleaned out and bedded frequently. Temperatures within the shelter averaged about 30F. higher than outdoors during January. The pigs appeared healthy at all times and their coats were a little rougher than those of the barn-housed groups.

When you are painting screening, keep a toothpick handy to unclog holes before the paint has a chance to set.

Elma Fruit Cups hold meeting

The third meeting of the Elma Fruit Cups 4-H group was held on Saturday, October 21st at 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs Donald Dillabough.

The meeting was opened by repeating the 4-H pledge which was followed by the minutes of the last meeting. Seven members answered the roll call.

It was decided that Miss Reid should be invited to visit the club at the November meeting.

The topics of study included canned fruits, frozen fruits and dried fruits.

WILD WATERFOWL ON YOUR FARM

Whether you farm for a living or live in the city and own a farm, you may be interested in establishing a habitat on your land for wild waterfowl.

Professor A. T. Cringan, wildlife specialist with the Ontario Department of Agriculture, offers six suggestions. He cautions, however, that these are rule-of-thumb ideas and that it might be best to first contact local conservation officers or extension engineers with the Ontario Department of Agriculture before putting them into practice.

Maintain (avoid draining) potholes and marshes larger than one acre and more than five inches deep. Best depth: 18" - 24".

Place loafing sites (rock piles, bales of hay or straw, floating logs or rafts) in shallow water, or potholes, ponds, dugouts and other water areas, at the rate of four or five per acre.

Establish and maintain a strip of grasses and legumes up to 100 yards out from the shoreline of potholes ponds and dugouts. Protect from over-grazing.

On potholes and marshes overgrown with aquatic vegetation use fire, herbicides, mowing, dynamite or other methods to open strips two rods wide at intervals of two rods. This will make them more attractive to breeding ducks as well as to those with broods.

Erect nesting boxes for wood ducks and hooded mergansers. Install devices to reduce disturbance by racoons. Inspect boxes regurlarly in spring and destroy starling nests. Preserve den trees along streams and around ponds and lakes. Recently, various nesting baskets and other artificial devices for mallards and black ducks have been used successfully.

WATERFRONT WAR BREWING ?

Canadians may be in for a bitter, perhaps, bloody, waterfront war, reports Norton Anderson in The Financial Post. It's a battle over union membership on Canadian inland freighters.

The antagonists squared off recently in what may become a civil war in organized labor on the Great Lakes. Major ship owners say they are worried. Nevertheless, some of them claim they intend to maintain "strictly a hands-off position". A new union has been born in Montreal — the Canadian Maritime Union, set up by the Canadian Labor Congress to fight the Seafarers' International Union for representation of Canadian seamen.

Planting plants such as wild rice and pondweed, and upland food plants like sorghum and millet, may be worthwhile.

Multimillion dollar industry

Canada's multimillion dollar Christmas tree decoration business has already begun and throughout the vast forest areas and on the plantations of southern Ontario, the big search for Christmas trees is on. Hundreds of rural families have, of course already selected the tree which will be cut and hauled into the living room with due ceremony when the time comes.

But that is nothing compared with the wholesale purchase and subsequent re-sale of Christmas trees, in many cases from submarginal land on which owners of the past with a view to the future planted their crops years ago.

Most of the trees to be sold in Ontario this Christmas — and to be exported to the United States, one of the world's major markets — were provided by Ontario's Department of Lands and Forests through its system of tree nurseries. From these nurseries each year are shipped over thirty million small trees, some of which will ultimately grace the living-room at Christmas time.

Research carried on by the Department of Lands and Forests indicates that even before the Christian era, trees and boughs were used for ceremonials. Egyptians, observing the winter solstice, brought green date palms into their homes as a symbol of life triumphant over death. Romans raised evergreen boughs to celebrate the feast of Saturn; early Scandinavians believed sprigs of evergreen brought in to the house signified eternal life; Norsemen thought they symbolized the rivival of the sun god, Balder. Even more recently many superstitious people believed branches of evergreen placed over the door would keep out witches ghosts and evil spirits.

Still more recently has grown the custom of decorating the Christmas tree — a custom which has now become an unevitable ritual to be followed by fathers and mothers for their families. There are few Canadian homes in which the Christmas tree is not decorated before the arrival of the happy day. Many still wait until Christmas eve, after the children have gone to bed. Many more, however, believe Christmas trees should be brought into the house on the weekend before Christmas, providing a constant source of delight and amusement for the children who help do the decorating. The custom of leaving the trees in place until the week-end after New Years', has also grown.

Objections are still raised about cutting evergreens for Christmas trees, but opinions are divided. It is true the living trees have helped preserve water supplies; provided cover for game and birds; helped beautify the countryside.

Foresters, however, firmly believe that forest crops can be improved by thinning. Every gardener knows that a row of carrots is improved by thinning out; the same applies to a forest crop. By careful selection of trees to be cut, it is possible to obtain evergreen trees without harming the forest, often indeed with positive benefit to it. By the same token, it is possible to thin out stands for fuel and obtain faster growth and greater returns in saw timber from the remaining trees.

In any event, hundreds of Canadians are now working in the search for and selection of suitable trees for export, for delivered to Canadian homes. Thousands, even millions of those trees were raised in provincial tree nurseries, sold for reforestation purposes at about one cent per tree, carefully cultivated and nurtured by private and commercial organizations alike and are now destined to make Christmas the happy time it is.

MILK TRANSPORTERS FINED

Failure to observe regulations under the Milk Industry Act has resulted in the conviction of two milk transporters on charges laid by the Milk Industry Board. One transporter was fined for transporting milk in a vehicle without a covered van body, without rigid walls, and an insulated roof, and the other for loading cans without the use of decking boards which would provide the required clearance for containers in each deck.

SKIM MILK SALES TRIPLE

Skim milk powder sales have tripled in the last five years and are still increasing as homemakers learn to appreciate the convenience and economy of this food. Women have seen in skim milk powder a subtle means of adding food value to recipes without changing the form or increasing the calories.

In the preparation of the bulletin, "Skim Milk Powder," the Consumer Section tested all brands of instant skim milk powder on the market and developed recipes for soups, sauces, baked goods, main course dishes and desserts in which any brand can be used successfully.

The results of their testing have been compiled into an illustrated 22-page booklet called "Skim Milk Powder" which is now available free of charge, from Information Division, Canada, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

To the Electors of Winchester Township:

Having served as your councillor with the interest of the ratepayers as my first duty, I therefore solocit your support as councillor on the December 4th election.

Garfield Baker.

To the Electors of Williamsburg Township:

Having qualified to stand for reeve of our municipality for 1962, I would like to ask for your support. It will be impossible for me to contact all of you personally, because of Counties Council and our own council sitting this week. May I again thank you for your past favours and ask for your continued support on Monday, December 4.

Don Kyle.

To the Electors of Williamsburg Township:

I have been nominated for the office of reeve for this municipality and if chosen to that position I shall endeavour to perform the duties of reeve in the best interest of all concerned, rural or urban. If elected, I shall make every effort to see that Williamsburg Township becomes one of the most attractive and progressive areas for home or industry in these United Counties. Your support is humbly solicited.

Mason O. Robinson.

To the Electors of Winchester Township:

Having been requested to run as councillor, I have decided to let my name stand on the Monday, December 4, ballot.

With a number of years experience in municipal affairs, I will endeavour to give my best and equal service to all if elected. I would appreciate your support.

J. V. Fetterly.

TO THE ELECTORS OF WINCHESTER TOWNSHIP:

Having been requested by several ratepayers of Winchester Township, I have decided to seek election as councillor. I solicit your support. If elected I promise to do my best to give you honest and efficient administration.

John G. Barrett.

TO THE ELECTORS OF WINCHESTER TOWNSHIP:

The election campaign is on. My name stands among the list of those contesting the office of councillor. Two years ago, by my intention and your loyal support, for which I am very grateful, I was given the opportunity to serve you as a new member of the council.

As before, I can make no promises other than my co-operation with those who are obliged to serve you. I have intentions some of which, elected or not, I will mention in my thank-you note in next week's issue. As we mark our ballots on December 4, my wish is that we mark them wisely .For the remainder of this year 1961 I remain your servant.

Councillor Willis Robinson.

TO THE ELECTORS OF WINCHESTER TOWNSHIP:

I would solicit your support on the ballot December 4 as councillor. I have been a ratepayer in the township for many years, and feel I can be of service if elected to the council.

Edwin A. Forward.

To the Electors of Winchester Township:

Having been requested to run as councillor, I have decided to let my name stand on the Monday, December 4, ballot.

With a number of years experience in municipal affairs, I will endeavour to give my best and equal service to all if elected. I would appreciate your support.

J. V. Fetterly.

To the Electors of Winchester Township:

Having decided to stand as a candidate for reeve on December 4, I will greatly appreciate your support based on my past record. I have had eight years experience in municipal affairs, three as councillor and five years in Counties Council, and I trust that my experience will give the confidence in my efforts to again serve all concerned in our Township.

If I am successful in representing you again as reeve, I shall follow through to the best of my ability as I am keenly interested in the welfare of our municipality. I consider this a personal appeal, as it will be impossible to contact everyone between now and election day. Thanking you for your past support.

Albert E. Smith.

To the Electors of Winchester Township:

I have been persuaded to allow my name to appear on the election ballots for the reeveship for Winchester Township. It is an honour, and I feel a duty, for me to make myself available for council work if you see fit to elect me. The only promise I can make is to work in the interests of the township and give fair and honest decisions to every problem. Words are idle things if they are not followed by hard work. I believe that my past record of 12 years on council, seven of which were spent as reeve and deputy-reeve, can tell you more of my work than a lot of talk.

At the present time we have good men elected and running for deputy-reeve and council. However, I firmly believe that a council needs leadership from the reeve to get things done. Good experience is an asset to any council and I believe I have that experience to offer to you ratepayers. Since leaving council three years ago, I can see very little advance in the condition of the roads in our township. I believe the Ormond-Marionville road should be completed from where it was started during my term of office. I believe there are other roads too numerous to mention that need attention. Taxes in Winchester Township are too high for the work being accomplished.

As I can't call on every voter, I wish to take this opportunity of soliciting your support if you feel we need a man of action and experience to head our council. Idle promises achieve little benefit. Think the situation over carefully before you vote and then mark X beside Dawley for reeve.

I wish the best Christmas ever for everyone and a happy and prosperous New Year.

Basil Dawley.

To the Electors of Winchester Township:

Once again, with a feeling of deep responsibility and humility may I appeal for your support at the polls on December 4th for the office of reeve of Winchester Township.

Two years ago, in my appeal to you, I pledged a motto of honesty, square-dealing and co-operation in acquitting the duties of administration of all municipal affairs, both local and county. This pledge I have followed diligently in my term of office.

Our road construction program in the past two years has exceeded any previous year.

In 1960 our finances showed a surplus of over $7,000, the first surplus in at least four years.

The experience I have attained as reeve and in preceding years as deputy-reeve and councillor will prove invaluable to me, on your behalf, if it is the wish of the majority of the ratepayers that I be the head of the council of this, our banner township.

I hope you may see fit to mark your ballot for reeve in my favour on Monday, December 4.

Gerald C. Holmes.

To The Electors of the Township of Winchester

I feel that my five years serving you on Winchester Township Council has given me sufficient experience to qualify as your reeve. My name will be on the ballot on December 4.

I would solicit your support and, if elected, will promise to act for you to the best of my ability and for the good of the Township.

Sentences given to Cummings thieves apprehended by OPP, Sarnia

OPP constable Herb Myers of the Morrisburg detachment deserves much credit for the apprehension and sentencing of a couple of thieves.

Last month, on Oct. 18, Esden Cummings, retired Mountain farmer was held up in his farmyard and robbed of his wallet containing $26. He also lost two watches from his house. The thieves, driving a car with a Nova Scotia license, then made the farmer enter the car at gun point. On the Kemptville road near Hallville, they forced him from the car, made him remove the laces from his shoes and tied him to a tree after gagging him.

He managed to release himself and call the police. With an excellent description from Cummings, police across the province were alerted and the next day two men were apprehended at Sarnia, again in the act of an armed hold-up.

Investigation and subsequent trial proved the men the same ones involved in the Mountain hold-up. Richard and John Dodge, of Petrolia, are now serving time in penitentiary, the first for two terms of five years to run concurrently and the other two three-year terms, also concurrent.

Constable Myers in talking to the "Record" was emphatic in his praise of Mr Cummings' accurate description of the hold-up men. He says that had a lot to do with the final arrest and sentencing of the young thugs.

Mrs Sarah Whittaker

Friends and relatives were saddened by the news of the sudden death of Sarah Victoria Whittaker in her 83rd year. Mrs Whittaker passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs Kenneth Barkley, at Morrisburg on Wednesday, November 22nd.

She was born on January 23, 1879, the daughter of the late William Casselman and Mary Coulthart. Her husband, Henry C. Whittaker, whom she wed in 1898, predeceased her on February 19, 1923.

Left to mourn her passing are: one brother, James W. Casselman, the Ninth; six sons, William, Toronto; John, Ottawa; Lloyd Yellowknife, N. W. T.; Bruce, Ingleside; Thomas, Brockville; Bert, Chesterville. two daughters; Edna (Mrs Eric Barclay), the Ninth; Florence (Mrs Kenneth Barkley). Morrisburg. Many grandchildren and great grandchildren.

The body rested at the home of her son, Bert, where Mrs Whittaker had lived. The funwas held from Morewood United Church on Friday at 2.30 p.m., conducted by the Rev. D. L. Gordon. Mrs Archie Coulthart sang, "Near to the Heart of God". Burial was in the family plot, Maple Ridge cemetery.

Pall bearers were, George Beckstead, Garnet Crump, Russell Marsellus, Dwayne Irven, Ed. Lefebvre and Carl Crump.

The many floral tributes and messages of sympathy indicated the high esteem in which she was held.

TIPS ON FIREPROOFINGG CHRISTMAS TREES

Two ways to make Christmas safer are to dispose of all paper and ribbons after presents are opened, and to fireproof Christmas trees.

One of the handiest ways to fireproof a tree is to soak the butt in water; it prevents the tree from becoming tinder-dry, according to Ontario Department of Agriculture safety specialist H. E. Wright. To assist the tree in absorbing water, make a fresh cut diagonally across the butt end of the tree before the end is immersed.

prosperity of Ontario during the period of the Frost government will remain one of the bright spots of our provincial history, and Mr Frost's vision and leadership has set a mark indeed by which all his successors can and will undoubtedly be judged.

It will be my endeavour again during the course of this Session of the Ontario Legislature to bring you, through the kindness of your editor, as in the past, weekly reports on the highlights of the Legislature. These I do trust will in some measure allow you each to participate in our Legislature's activities.

GET AT THE CAUSE OF WET BASEMENT

Sometimes it takes a top-notch expert to figure out why the walls of a basement leak and an even better expert to figure out the cure but often enough the cause and the cure can be effected by anyone who will use a little common sense.

For example, a flooded basement is caused by nothing more than a poorly hung gutter that allows water during a heavy rain to spill over the side and fall into an improperly drained areaway. An areaway, by the way, is that little well they make around basement windows when the basement window is below grade level. If you fill an areaway up with water and don't provide for drainage the chances are it's going to find a small crack in the basement wall and flow into the basement. On the other hand, if you fix the gutter and clean out the areaway so the water getting into it will flow away from the house, your tronubles should be over.

Another cause for wet basements are low spots in the grounds around the outside of the basement walls. These low spots act as reservoirs catching a large amount of water which sits around and eventually flows into the basement. Filling in these low spots is all that's necessary.

Basement floor drains can be the cause of a flooded celler because during very heavy rains a storm sewer will often back up and water will come pouring into the basement through the floor drain. If you have a condition of this nature, you can get a cap which will seal the floor drain opening but which can be easily opened when there is water on the floor that you want drained off.

FARMING HINT

If you haven't got around to it yet, clean out the fertilizer from your grain drill. Fertilizer has the power of drawing moisture and this means that rust will form on many of the castings. Some of the moving parts have been known to seize and by seeding time next year, they couldn't be moved.

The BIBLE TODAY . . .

The preparation of a new edition of the Kuoyo Bible for Hong Kong and China has been printed in simplified form. Former editions ran the columns of ideographs up and down the complete length of the page. The new setting has the page divided across the middle and the sectional headings previously printed at the top of the page are now set on separate lines dividing the sacred page into duly titled sections.

The Book of Psalms has been completed i nKuoyo Braille, to be added to the New Testament produced some years ago. A strange situation arises. In the Kuoyo script the Chinese characters themselves convey the meaning and may be pronounced differently in different dialects. Chinese Braille, however, is based on sounds. Each Braille letter represents a different sound. So a Cantonese Christian can read and understand the Kuyo Bible if he has sight, but if he is blind he cannot understand the Braille letters which represent the Kuoyo sounds. So a further Braille Testament will be needed with the Braille letters representing the Cantonese sounds. The Braille Scriptures production is being done in Taiwan where translation work in the Sediq, Paiwan, Bunan, Amis and Taiyal languages for the people of the Highlands is also being done.

BUYING ITCH IS CATCHING

The Canadian consumer today is more optimistic than he has been for some time. But he is somewhat hesitant in his actual spending plans, writes Gene Fleet in The Financial Post. Last winter's unemployment and the setback in labor income seem to have made him — or her — more careful in planning to make a major purchase.

Although the economy has regained lost ground since the recovery got underway, many consumers need a little more reassurance that they personally will find an improvement in the next few months before deciding on bigger spending. This seems to be the general mood of consumers from the latest survey of consumer buying intentions, undertaken for MacLean-Hunter by Gruneau Research Ltd.

Some 2,000 persons across Canada were interviewed during the survey in mid-September. Questioned about advisability of buying a house, or making major purchase, more people thought now was a good time to do so. Compared with a year ago, fewer thought that the timing was bad, but still a large number were reluctant to answer. More optimistic were the consumers interviewed in Ontario and Quebec; the middle income groups felt that the prospects had improved more than others, and the younger people had a brighter outlook than those in the older age brackets.

IN MEMORIAM

MUNRO—In fond and loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs Calvin S. Munro, who passed away December 2, 1956.
We watched you suffer, we heard you sigh,
But all we could do was just stand by,
For when the time came, we sufsuffered too,
For you never deserved what you went through.
God took your hand, and we had to part,
He eased your pain, but broke our hearts;
Although we smile, and seem carefree,
Nobody misses you more than we.
Husband and Family.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to take this opportunity to express our heartfelt thanks and gratitude to all those who helped in any way during our recent bereavement of our mother. Special thanks to Rev Mr Gordon, the organist, choir and soloist.
