Bits and Pieces

"Reach for the Top" Team wins 1st round

Early this year a group of ten to fifteen students from NDDHS tried out for the "Reach for the Top" team. They were tested by Carl Ward on questions from past programs. Those students scoring highest in both speed and accuracy were chosen. Last week the team consisting of Rob Moffat, Doug Stel, Steve Allan and Lorna Stewart won their first game against North Grenville District High School.

They were awarded book prizes for the school and will be competing some time in January.

Butterflies in November?

J. L. (Jamie) Masterson, a former area resident, who now lives in Deep River, informed the Record last week, he was hunting deer in his home area and while tramping through two inches of snow in the bush, saw a butterfly.

Mr Masterson wondered if the butterfly had his antifreeze in for the winter . . . by the way the veteran hunter didn't get any venison either.

Pays visit to Ingleside Church

The Very Rev. T. E. Downey, Dean of Christ Church Cathedral, Ottawa, visited St. Peter's Church, Ingleside, last week. Rev. Downey started his career 25 years ago in the parish of Aultsville, which at that time included St. George's Church, Gallingertown and St. Peter's Church, Osnabruck Centre.

Many of the parishioners enjoyed meeting Mr Downey again.

Host successful euchre, bingo, bazaar

Mrs Cyril Cryderman of Osnabruck Centre was the winner of the door prize at the euchre, bingo and bazaar sponsored by the Osnabruck Centre W. I., held in the Osnabruck Township Hall.

Prizes for euchre were won by Mr and Mrs Feek of Avonmore, Mac Otto of Newington and Mrs John Gallinger of Ingleside.

Winner of the turkey draw was Mrs Johnston of Greely and winner of the quilt draw was Mrs Frank MacAndrews of Ingleside.

A novel idea

The Scout Ladies Auxiliary and the Boy Scouts have come up with a novel idea for making cash for themselves and you.

They're holding an exchange sale on wintertime equipment, like skates, skiis, snowmobile outfits and hockey equipment. You bring your unwanted articles to the Community Hall this Saturday morning with your name and the price wanted, clearly marked. In the afternoon the sale begins. If someone buys your article they pay your price along with another 25c for the scouts.

You are asked to return to the hall before 4:30 to either pick up your money or unsold item.

"Mood Food"

We see where workmen have been busy stringing the seasonal lights along village streets and we've watched as other men have been arranging the handsome decorations which adorn the side of the community hall. Our classifieds now offer Christmas trees for sale; Chesterville Chamber of Commerce is organizing the annual Santa Claus Parade; a small skiff of snow falls now and then — one can no longer ignore the fact — The Yuletide Season is almost here.

300 at Warden's dinner

CORNWALL — Sir Peter Telford Hayman, British High Commissioner to Canada, was guest speaker at the Warden's Banquet held here at the Torch Room last Friday night.

Sir Hayman told the 300 guests that Canada, with current economci problems with the United States, should expand and diversify trading activities in the European market, using Britain and France as a springboard to increase trade, while maintaining good tarde relations south of the border.

The speaker said that the countries should not forget about the U.S., as it is the richest country in the world. He emphasized that Canada and Britain are extraordinarily similar, and in spite of which government runs this country there is no

Ingleside CNR station getting axe

INGLESIDE — Demolition work has started on the four-year-old C.N. station here, which has been boarded up and idle for several years.

The railway station was constructed in 1967 when the new town of Ingleside had the makings of a prosperous corporation.

But Ingleside did not boom as expected and the need for the station gradually declined.

Faced with increasing costs and the necessity of reducing expenditures, the company closed many of the smaller stations.

Ruptured water lines cause drain on Osna. Twp. council coffers

INGLESIDE — Osnabruck Township Council has come up with the idea of installing a flow control valve on the water system here in an attempt to stop the repeated occurances of broken water mains.

The control valve, at a cost of $7,000 appears to be the best economic solution at the present time, although a recommendation by the Water Advisory Council of installing a mile of new water line is probably the ultimate solution. Council estimates run as high as $35,000 for this installation.

The water pipes in Ingleside have ruptured four times in the past year and as they become older, their resistance to pressure lessens.

The fault, according to consultant engineers and township officials, lies primarily in the fact that the system, when installed, left something to be desired.

The pumping station here, pumps water from the river through the community mains and the surplus goes to the 200,000 gallon water tower.

However, when the pumps start up, there is a resultant surge through the lines. This surge, which in efect is a magnified water hammer, proves to be too much for the pipes.

A burst water main costs anywhere from $500 to $3,000 to repair, depending on the location or size of the break.

A conservative estimate would put $5,000 as the cost of repair lines to date.

The flow control valve would gradually open as the pressures build and minimize the damaging surge.

The Advisory Committee's suggestion was to install a new line which would pipe water directly from the river to the tower and then supply the community from the tower.

Editorial Comment . . .

Warped Guidelines

There are a lot of things you hear that you don't necessarily agree with and there was one comment made recently, within our earshot, which we felt needed to be commented on.

Somebody came out with the statement: "that so and so Trudeau, look at the fine shape he's got this country in!!"

We acknowledge the fact that Pierre Elliot Trudeau is the Liberal Prime Minister of these ten provinces (four of which have conservative governments) But we question where the fault lies in regard to the poor economic state of the nation.

If you really think about it, Trudeau doesn't have that much to say about the actual running of the country. He is surrounded by ministers and deputy ministers and provincial prime ministers and their deputy ministers who are really bosses of their own area.

And we're not going to push the blame off onto them. We feel that the biggest problem with the country is the society and more specifically the people.

PM Trudeau is in the position where he is responsible for a body which governs 21 million people And no doubt there are many times when he goes home to his wife and says "Marg, you're damned if you do and damned if you don't."

And if he decided to lay down the law and said "you'll do it this way and no other," he would be pegged as a dictator or a communist.

You might just ask yourself what you would do if you were named Prime Minister tomorrow. Would you know all the answers? Not likely — no one does.

So what's wrong with the society? Seeing that we only have a 10-page paper this week we'll have to keep our comments short.

We're not trying to sound like bible-pushers but we think the crux of the problem with this country and probably the whole world is that people have grown too far away from the church, religion and the Bible philopsophy.

If we could just re-assess our whole philosophy of life and find other meanings besides using alcohol and drugs as crutches and our lust for the "all mighty dollar" we might be better off.

This past week-end we were talking to a couple who had just returned from a few weeks in Cyprus. They came back to Canada after living closely with people who had a completely different outlook on life.

Nobody was in a hurry in Cyprus. They didn't have a lot of money, yet they were happy and contented people. They placed more value on human events and experiences than they did on personal gain and monetary value.

And where does the child learn a philosophy of life? It should be in the home where the parents are supposed to set the example. But with our system where both parents work the child has to turn elsewhere.

The school would be the next logical place but unfortunately the system seems unable to bring any more to the student than an abstract dream world of what life is supposed to be.

And you can't necessarily blame the teachers. Recently we talked with two teachers, one who had been an educator for 50 years.

Education as it stands today, according to the two teachers, is so far removed from the humdrum of everyday living, that any philosophy picked up in the system would not apply to society, when the student leaves school.

One meaning of philosophy as defined by the dictionary reads: "the study of ultimate realities and general principals, a system of theories on the nature of things or of the rules for the conduct of life".

And as we close this off and get back to our gross capitalistic and green-back chasing society we wish to stress we are anything but recognized philosophers.

Time to be Positive

Some Canadians might wonder a bit at Prime Minister Trudeau's very positive declarations about Canada in Quebec City last week at a time when so much is so uncertain in the country and in the province.

The PM reminded Quebecers that we live in "one of the most favoured countries in the world." He emphasized that Canada's gross national product "has doubled in 10 years" and that "our resources belong to all Canadians."

Many in Quebec, however, will have been delighted, that someone of the PM's status has begun to take the offensive for the positive in that province. One of the main causes of the swelling of radical forces in Quebec is the steady stream of unanswered hyperbole from radical and would-be revolutionary leaders.

After a while, the unemployed, the people on welfare and in low-paying jobs apparently really begin to believe in the absurd notion that they are "white niggers of America", forever doomed to be "exploited" by a rigid, rigged "system".

If the barrage continues unanswered, many French-speaking Canadians will plainly be less able or willing to reflect that, unlike the blacks in America, they have for more than a century effectively possessed the franchise, possessed land, dominated a province, run their own regional government and had an influential say in running the country as a whole.

In addition their "system", if far from being right, has changed far more rapidly in the past 10 years than most systems do in half a century

Surely it is high time that responsible leaders in all walks of life in Quebec follow Trudeau's lead and oppose the new demagogues and extremists. Why abandon Quebec, to the professionals of alienation?

Letter To The Editor

Chesterville, Ont.
November 19, 1971.

The Editors,
Chesterville Record Ltd.,
Chesterville, Ont.

Dear Sirs:

Cheers for Mr Westbrook! He has brought up a topic that has concerned me since returning home two years ago.

After working many years in industrial areas, I appreciated returning to our pretty little village, whose main atrraction for me is the river. Too bad more of our people are not more concerned about the deplorable condition which does exist exactly as stated by Mr Westbrook.

Surely there must be some method by which this littering can be controlled.

Madge Campderros

Ann Landers . . .

Dear Ann Landers: I married into a very peculiar family. My husband is the only sane one in the bunch and sometimes I'm not too sure about him. It's his aunt that bothers me the most. This woman has a habit of licking the corners of her mouth just before she speaks. Her tongue is abnormally long and when she does that little licking bit it drives me up the wall. I try not to look at her but it seems like she waits now until my eyes are on her before she does it.

Please don't suggest that I ask her to quit it. I have done so but it hasn't helped. Last night when I brought it to her attention again she said, "If it bothers you so much maybe you shouldn't be in my company." That's no solution. If I stayed away from her I'd be alone a lot because the social life of this entire group in centered around relatives. Any advice? — Creepy Louise

Dear Louise: Your best bet is to try not to look at her, or when she licks the corners of her mouth, lick the corners of yours — sort of in retaliation. She may or may not notice, but I'll bet it will make you feel better.

Dear Ann Landers: A little advice, please. I was recently divorced and shortly after started to date Lee, a divorcee who works in my office. She is attractive and has a small child. You might say our friendship blossomed into something more and I am afraid she took a few things for granted, such as my intentions. Lee broke off with another man who wanted to marry her, which put me in a spot I wasn't counting on.

Please tell me what to do, Ann. I am reluctant to end the relationship because Lee is a warm, wonderful person and I like her very much. At the same time, I feel I should be honest with her and tell her what is going on in my mind. Please understand I don't want to stop seeing her altogether. I just want our relationship to be less confining. — Undecided

Dear Un: Your situation — minus the banana oil — is as follows: You're not ready to settle down. You'd like to keep Lee on the back burner but you don't know if she'll go for it — particularly since she turned down an offer of marriage because of you. My advice is to stop playing both ends against the middle and tell her the truth. If she's smart she'll tell you to take a long walk on a short dock and when she'll go look up that oth

Dear Ann Landers: Ou... ister's wife is a nice person but sometimes I think she gets herself confused with her husband. She likes to counsel and "help" even when people don't ask for it.

Yesterday, Mrs Minister dropped by and volunteered some advice. She told me to stop buying my husband's clothes for him, that I should let John select his own wearing apparel. She also told me to stop taking the car in for repairs because that was my husband's job and I should not rob him of his masculinity. When she left I just sat there dumbfounded. I didn't realize I was "smothering" John, as Mrs Minister put it.

My husband hates to shop for clothes and seems to like everything I buy. As for the car, if I didn't take it in for servicing it would fall apart. John doesn't have the time.

Can it be that she is right and I don't want to face the truth? Please tell me. — Rapped In Rye

Dear Rapped: You'll have to decide whether John appreciates these things or not. Talk it out with him and make sure you're on solid ground. Then if Mrs Minister brings up the subject again, tell her thanks for the help, but you're getting along fine.

Teachers ... VIEW

Professional Development Day: Is It Enough?

Every year both secondary and elementary school teachers program one entire day with activities that will increase their effectiveness in helping students to learn and grow. In this rapidly changing world, teachers need to maintain a high interest in education if they are to improve their services to the students and to society.

Is this one day enough to examine all new developments in education and to settle all problems that have arisen? Definitely not! Business and industry send their staff on seminars and up-dating courses, sometimes lasting weeks, and still feel they have difficulty in keeping up with the developments within their field. It is difficult for teachers department heads, or principals to take this length of time from their duties. The regular teacher timetable also prevents professional development on a significant sca... place in regular school ...

At no time during the da... all teachers teaching the ... subject or the same grade ... or are all department hea... or in open period togethe... ter class, and a full day o... ching, it is difficult to pu... that extra reserve for ano... hour or two to study devel... ments or problems to the be... of one's ability. It was to resolve this problem that the S.D. & G. County Board of Education has set up this past month a working policy for professional development (in-service education) activities. This includes up to two short days per month per school and two and a half days per teacher per year. (A short day at CCVS is a special schedule which allows all classes to be taught except that the period of time is shortened.) With this system, teachers and administrators as well as parents and students may meet partially

Bell Canada rates may increase

If Bell Canada is successful in its bid for higher rates, Chesterville residents could find themselves paying 40 cents more for individual residence service rates.

The company says its costs have gone up and expenses have outstripped revenues under its present rate schedule.

Bell subscribers are charged according to the number of telephones they can reach without paying a long distance charge and in relation to distance between associated exchanges.

The proposed increase means Chesterville residents would be paying $4.45 instead of the present $4.05, while Winchester would be paying $4.70 instead of $4.30 and Ottawa $6.35 instead of $5.50.

The company will pin a great deal of its case on inflation, when it appears before the Canadian Transport Commission to justify its appeal for an increase in telephone rates.

Bell says it will show during the CTC hearings that it has done all it could to help fight inflation but that it just had to have additional revenues to meet the current and projected needs of its subscribers.

In total, Bell is seeking $78.1 million spread out over 6,200,000 telephones.

The company said in a press release the amount is large when looked at in isolation; but not when viewed in relation to the job it has to do in providing two thirds of the country's telecommunications needs.

The telephone company applied for the general rate increase in 1968 - its first such application in a decade - asking for what would have amounted to a total of $83.6 million.

The Canadian Transport Commission allowed the company $27.5 million and limited increases to long distance, a variety of service charges and an increase in the charge for an unlisted number.

The company returned to the CTC in 1970, asking for $30 million to help offset rising costs and was granted $22.5 million applicable to all categories of service.

The increase ranged from 15 cents a month for residential service in small towns to 70 cents for business telephones in some suburbs of Toronto and Montreal.

Best Ways We Know to tie up CHRISTMAS

At 93 years still drives a Buick

Although Jack Durant, a native of the Boyne, and a resident of Cobourg, is 93-years-old, he drives a Buick.

Durant was honoured by his friends at a party held recently at the home of his niece, Dr. and Mrs James Whitney.

The son of the late Mr and Mrs John Durant, he left home at the age of 17 and apprenticed as a tool and die maker. During his life, he served as superintendant of N. D. Anderson Tool and Die Works, Cobourg.

Still enjoying good health, he shared a large birthday cake with his neighbours.

Ross Oliver Durant of Winchester is the only other living member of the family.

Ross Walker, I.C.A. fund raising chairman, said advance ticket sales had gone well, indicating a successful project.

Mrs Jean Jaecle, social committee chairman, has resigned from her position due to ill health. Mrs Helen Graham will resume the Welcome Wagon duties and social convenors will be appointed as the need arises.

Vandalism in Ingleside was discussed but no action to curb the occurences was taken.

Around The Schools

N. S. D. H. S.
N. D. D. H. S.

N. S. D. H. S.

Last week was a tremendously busy one at North Stormont District High School. Wednesday, November 10, we held a short Remembrance Day ceremony. Then Friday, November 12, before morning classes, we received our school photos.

Saturday night was a big affair with Commencement ceremonies at Avonmore Public School followed by a dance at the High School.

This past week, activities around the school have been almost nil. No happenings of real importance, with the exception of the starting of a few new clubs; the art, sewing, drama, chess, record, and gymnastics clubs. This is only the start; more will follow.

N. D. D. H. S.

All the teachers, students and staff have been busy at work these first two months. Many clubs and organizations have been formed and as the year progresses we will keep you informed about many of their activities.

On the sports scene, N.D.D.H.S. is doing quite well this year There are so many games going on each week that it would take an entire column just to tell you about them all. Two highlights of the past week in sports were the Junior football total point play-off games which we lost to Thousand Islands. The girls' basketball team won their last game against Seaway. Congratulations girls!

The Band is working very hard this year in preparation for their spring tour. We hope all you people who enjoy music will attend some of our concerts. The Christmas concert should be especially enjoyable.

Mainly About People

Several Chesterville and Dunbar people accompanied the Reverend and Mrs E. Earle Eaton to Morewood to patronize the Morewood Presbyterian Aid Society's annual tea and bazaar last Saturday afternoon.

Several Chesterville people attended a church supper and bazaar at Williamsburg last Thursday evening, including the Reverend and Mrs E. Earle Eaton, and their house guests, the Reverend and Mrs Enos Brubacher.

school time and partially on their own time to discuss educational activities, policies and innovations. The professional development day now takes on a new significance.

It is no longer a one day affair. It now can take the role of a stimulator of ideas, concepts, innovations and of philosiphies. The short days can now be used for further discussion, analyses, and recommendations for an improved educational environment on the local as well as district level. The half days can be used by subject teachers from across the three counties to meet at least twice each year to come up with unified programmes and policies, perhaps gained from ideas at the Professional Development day.

This year's Professional Development Day was planned with these considerations in mind. The theme of the day is "Education for the 70's". The morning session will consider the "Problems of Education in the 70's". It is started by a panel of noted educators, and then teachers will be divided in seminar groups (each school having at least one representative in each group). Beside these educators, resource people from industry, business, Ontario College of Education, Department of Education, as well as a panel of parents and students will lead the groups. They will indicate the problems of education as they see them and suggest a philosophy of education that could solve some of them. A period will be left for questions and suggestions from the teachers.

The afternoon session will examine "The Innovation in Secondary Schools, Student Administration and Curriculum." A short auditorium session with guest speaker Mr J. Krar from Centennial High School in Welland discussing "The Philosophy of the Structure of the School and Evaluation" will be suceeded by the same type of seminar groups. Along with Mr Krar, the resource group leaders will be principals, and students from fourteen of the most innovative schools in Ontario and Quebec. Teachers will be able to examine these innovations and discuss how and if they meet the challenge of Education for the 70's.

It is hoped that the information gained by teachers in these groups will be recorded and brought back to their schools. In their subsequent reports all teachers of the school would obtain the pertinent facts from each group. Within the structure discussed previously teachers and administrators could, after consultation, accept ideas or innovations they feel would improve their educational environment.

KITCHEN CORNER

Christmas Cakes

The aging of fruit cakes seems to put mellow deliciousness into them that no art can imitate. All rich fruit cakes should be prepared long enough ahead for them to ripen in moist, spicy flavour. The richer the cake is in fruits, the longer the time required for ripening.

The actual labour of making Christmas cakes will seem lighter if the fruit and nuts are prepared the day before. Fruit should never be stale or dry. Dredge fruit lightly with flour so that the pieces will not stick together.

Bake fruit cakes in a slow oven for recommended time. Always place a pan of hot water in the oven during baking. This prevents cake from drying.

Cool cake thoroughly. Wrap tightly and store in an air tight container in a cool place.

Dark Fruit Cake

- 1 lb. butter
- 1 lb. granulated sugar
- 10 eggs, beaten separately
- 1 cup molasses
- 1 cup cream
- 1 lb. dates
- 3 lbs. raisins
- 3 lbs. currants
- 1½ lb. mixed peel
- ½ lb. almonds
- ½ lb. walnuts
- 1 small bottle maraschino cherries including juice
- 1 4-oz pkg. glazed pineapple
- 1 orange, juice and rind
- 1 lemon, juice and rind
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1 tsp. lemon extract
- ½ tsp. cloves
- ½ tsp. allspice
- 1 tsp. cinammon
- 3 tsp. baking powder
- ½ tsp. salt
- 4 cups flour

Prepare friut and nuts, dredge with ¼ cup flour. Sift, remaining flour with spices. Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg yolk and beat well. Add molasses and cream, mix well, and blend in remaining flavourings. Fold in dry ingredients and stiffly beaten egg whites. Fill prepared pans 2/3 full. Bake in slow oven approximately 3½ hours, varying according to pan size. Place pan of water in oven. Cool cake; wrap and store.

Gum Drop Cake

- 1 lb. raisins
- 2 cups sweetened applesauce
- 1 lb. large gum drops, chopped
- 1 cup white sugar
- 1 cup shortening
- 2 eggs
- 1 tsp. salt
- 2 tsp. baking powder
- 2½ cups flour

Cut gum drops and mix with raisins. Sprinkle with flour sift flour, salt, and baking powder. Cream shortening and sugar. Add eggs and beat until light and fluffy. Add applesauce and dry ingredients alternately. Mix well. Fold in fruit. Bake in slow oven 2¼ hours. Time will vary according to size of pan. Cool. Wrap and store at least a week before using.

Holiday Fruit Loaf

- 3/4 cup all purpose flour
- ¼ tsp. baking powder
- ½ tsp. salt
- 3 cups whole brazil nuts
- 1 lb. whole, pitted dates
- 1 cup maraschino cherries, well drained
- 3 eggs
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1 tsp. vanilla

Sift flour and spices together. Add brazil nuts, cherries and dates and mix until well coated. Beat eggs and sugar together until foamy. Add vanilla. Combine the egg mixture and the fruit mixture. Mix well. Turn into greased and lined loaf pan. Bake in slow oven (325 degrees F) 1½ to 2 hours. Cool in pan. When cool, wrap in heavy foil and store in refrigerator.
