Challenge issued: Fitweek ready to roll

Liz Edwards
Press Staff Reporter

WINCHESTER — For those who need a push into physical fitness, there will be some incentive on May 30, Winchester's Family Fitness Day.

The Eastern Ontario Health Unit in conjuction with a community volunteer group is encouraging everyone to live more actively as part of Canada's Fitness Week.

The chance to raise your heart rate will actually begin a day early with a five-kilometre fun run for both Winchester and Chesterville residents starting at 9pm, May 29 at North Dundas District High School. Chesterville's Fitweek activities will run the same day.

The program for Winchester will begin with bed races at 12:30pm. Teams of five people will race from Howard St. to the Winchester Arena. Medallions will be given out for first, second and third place winners as well as a prize for the best dressed bed. Anyone interested in participating should contact Nancy Williams at 774-2800 from 8:30am to 4:30pm.

Local bagpiper Bill Stewart will help village Reeve Bruce Kerr officially open the day at 1pm at the arena. Different activities will begin every half hour, starting with a presentation on healthy lifestyles with Ottawa Senators hockey team spokesperson Lisa Brazeau, followed by aerobics with Donna McBean, Thai Chi, line dancing, Tai Kwan Do, a jazz band, and a western riding demonstration.

The day will end with a baseball game between Winchester and Chesterville firemen at 4:30pm. Winchester won the challenge between the villages' merchants last year.

The day will include numerous ongoing activities and displays. A family walk, parachute games, gardening presentation and a roller blade demonstration are only a few.

Residents can update themselves on health and safety tips at the Heart and Stroke blood pressure clinic and education stand, the computerized wellness check and the Ontario Provincial Police seat belt demonstration.

Anyone who participates in 20 minutes of continuous physical activity on the day can fill out a ballot for the annual fitness challenge between Winchester and Chesterville. Whichever village collects the most ballots wins.

If ballots are brought to the arena on either May 29 or May 30, the participant is eligible for a t- shirt draw, otherwise participants can call Gale Real Estate in Winchester at 774-2881 or Chesterville Recreation at 448-3285 to have their ballots recorded.

Winchester's Family Fitness Day will take place Sun., May 30 with activities for all ages. Wearing the Fitness Week T-shirts are some of the organizers. In front holding the Fitness Week flag are Donna McBean and Jane Sachs. Behind are Nancy Williams, Bonnie Castle, John Ralko and Leila Helmer. Absent are Bob Porteous, Tom Trumper, Judy Peddle, Dave Harris and Butch Oldford.

Fit fair focuses on feeling fine

METCALFE— Osgoode Township Home Support program, the Health Connection program and a committee of local seniors combined to successfully pull off the township's first health fair.

The May 12 event, held at the Metcalfe Community Centre from 1pm - 7pm, featured a wide variety of displays and an array of stage presentations with something of interest for every age group.

CJOH-TV news anchor and goodwill ambassador Max Keeping was on hand with Mayor Albert Bouwers for the opening ceremonies. Three young step dancers, dressed as cowgirls, provided some 'fancy dancin' to the delight of the audience.

Dorothy Rodney, one of the seniors on the organizing committee, said, "It's been a long process preparing for this day and it's been a long day.

"I've been here since about 9am today but we have all been so excited about the fair, since we started to plan it back in January, that we haven't had time to think about being tired."

The massive size of the fair, the countless details and long hours spent organizing the event, are making organizers leery of trying to repeat their success.

Carol Halstead, the township's home support administrator admitted, "This has been a long, arduous process and I don't think that such an ambitious venture is about to become an annual event."

SOUR NOTE

The only sour note of the day came from a contingent of Osgoode Township High School students who attended. Some students didn't do a lot to endear themselves to organizers and exhibitors when they dismantled some of hall's decorations, taking down helium-filled balloons from throughout the arena, and dancing during the playing of 'O Canada'.

The organizing committee had arranged for provision of juice, coffee, yogourt, fruit and veggie trays and plenty of cheese and crackers. All of these thoughtful touches, as well as plenty of seating and rest areas, went a long way towards encouraging people to stay around and enjoy the fair.

Displays were set up all around the arena floor featuring the township fire department, the OPP, Heart and Stroke Foundation, Lung Association, a blood pressure clinic, pharmacy services, food for health and its preparation, the CNIB and a display promoting the psychological and exercise values of gardening and the benefits of worm composting.

Stage demonstrations throughout the afternoon showcased safe exercises geared for seniors. As well a discussion on healthy food preparation was presented by Betty's Kitchen. And a fashion show of clothing designed for seniors and featuring local seniors as models was part of the afternoon's entertainment.

The Canadian Guide Dogs for the Blind sent along a couple of trainers and three dogs to demonstrate what the animals are capable of in their assistance of sight-impaired individuals. The crowd was encouraged to participate by asking plenty of questions concerning this successful program.

Several local businesses and corporate groups provided door prizes for draws during the day and a lot of happy winners were announced as the afternoon went on.

The Greely Grasshoppers, a precision skipping team, rounded out the successful afternoon of activity with an action-packed show; enough to leave one breathless just watching them.

Wilkinson briefs government on CFA's agri-food concerns

OTTAWA — It is essential that the government take a holistic approach to developing its agri-food policy, says Canadian Federation of Agriculture President Jack Wilkinson.

"Programs such as transportation, marketing, safety nets and farm finances are being developed in what seems to be a piecemeal approach and not integrated to represent a comprehensive package," said Wilkinson, in Ottawa to present a brief to the Standing Committee on Agriculture.

"The CFA believes they (programs) can not be viewed as individual programs, but as part of a national agricultural policy," he added.

While the government has made a conscientious effort to consult with the industry, the CFA is concerned that often the consultations occur too late to have any meaningful impact on the policy development, Wilkinson said.

Jack Wilkinson

"We seem to be put in a position to react to a situation, as opposed to being part of the development process," he explained.

The presentation by Wilkinson outlined the CFA's policy on a variety of agricultural concerns, and gave an opportunity for standing committee members to review and discuss these issues.

Some of the issues presented included developing the infrastructure for a healthy industry and community and clarifying the trading environment.

Wilkinson commented on the budget cuts and regulatory reforms that are ongoing, and said he is concerned about the government's long term vision of agriculture.

"We don't want to be in a position of saying 10 years down the road — "What happened to the agri-food sector?" Canada is a net exporter of food and CFA members want their children and their children's children to be able to continue to supply quality food products around the world. We can only do that if we have a long-term vision, a "big picture", and an integrated approach to farming policy," he said.

Fields aflame

Local fire departments have been kept busy over the past couple of weeks by reports of field fires. Dundas County Ag Rep Phyllis MacMaster says a number of local farmers are opting to burn off fields of corn which were not harvested last fall. While some farmers chop the stalks or combine the remaining corn still standing MacMaster says burning the stalk is a less costly method. However, care must be taken so the fire doesn't get out of hand, and farmers should check with their township to ensure it meets with fire regulations, she added.

Import proposal

OTTAWA — Agriculture Canada has developed a proposal for public consideration which would allow growers to import designated pesticides for their own use.

The proposed pesticide own-use import program — which would require an amendment to the pest control products regulations — is in response to a key recommendation of the pesticide registration review. It suggested Canadian agricultural producers be given access to competitively priced pesticides without compromising public safety.

Under the program — proposed May 1, 1993 in the Canada Gazette — only products equivalent to those registered in Canada could be imported. The proposal would require that Canadian health, safety and environmental standards be met. As well, provincial and federal legislation governing the sale, use and storage of pesticides would be strictly adhered to.

Interested parties are encouraged to offer their input on the proposal. Comments will be accepted for a 60-day period ending June 29, 1993.

Pasture production has greater potential

Raising livestock on pasture was the original method of feeding cattle for the benefit of mankind.

While there have been tremendous advances in virtually every area of livestock husbandry over the centuries, the management of our pastures to increase cattle productivity does not approach its potential. There are five main areas of pasture management that deserve your attention.

Fencing: Advances in electric fencing systems have made the process of intensive pasture management much easier than our forefathers ever imagined possible. While perimeter fences are still usually constructed of page wire, electric fencing is ideal for subdividing large fields into paddocks for rotational grazing.

Grenville ag report
by Stuart Leyenaar, P.Ag., Grenville County Ag Rep.

Research in Ontario has demonstrated that the maximum time cattle should graze in one paddock is seven days. For example, by grazing six paddocks in rotation, each paddock would have about five weeks to regenerate.

Fertilizing: Pastures should be soil tested to determine the fertility level and pH of the soil. Applications of fertilizer or manure should be made early in the spring or at the conclusion of a grazing period.

Chain harrowing is recommended to break up manure clumps and increase the effectiveness of the manure's fertility. Nitrogen is usually the most essential fertilizer nutrient required on pastures. An application rate of 50 lbs. per acre several times throughout the growing season is much more effective than larger, less frequent applications.

Pasture species and weed control: Large areas of Ontario's permanent pastures consists of a variety of grasses, legumes and weeds. While grasses and legumes are easily defined, the standard definition of a weed doesn't apply directly to pastures. For example native grasses and dandelions are weeds in grain or corn fields, but are quite palatable and nutritious pasture plants.

However, poisonous plants, thistles and milkweed should be considered weeds which need to be controlled in pastures. Long term weed control is best achieved by promoting the growth of preferred species through improved fertility and grazing management. The legumes and grasses included in your list of preferred species can be re-established through pasture renovation and reseeding.

Water management: Adequate fresh clean water is one of the main requirements of cattle on pasture. From an environmental perspective, cattle should be fenced away from streams and ponds to prevent shoreline erosion, water contamination, and footrot.

A variety of pasture pumps, hydraulic rams, solar-powered pumps and windmills are now available to remove water from a stream, pond or well to fill a stock tank.

Stocking density: With improved pasture management you will find that your acreage can support more cattle. Conversely, less pasture acres will be needed and more land will be available for hay or other crops for your present herd size.

The stocking rate per acre will depend on productivity of your pasture during various months in pasture season. For example, paddocks should be smaller and more frequently rotated in the spring when growth is most rapid.

During the dry periods of July and August paddocks could be larger. Supplementary feed such as hay harvested from surplus paddocks will help provide adequate feed for your cattle.

The objective of pasture management should be to have a carpet of fresh grass legumes, from six inches to 15 inches in height, available to your cattle each week of the pasture season. That means your pastures will be continuously rotated so that they are neither overgrazed nor overmature.

OMAF's publication #19 "Pasture Production" is available upon request to provide more information on each of these five pasture topics.

Promoting safety

Barley support levels calculated

OTTAWA — The Honorable Michael Wilson, minister of industry, science and technology and minister for international trade and the Honorable Charles Mayer, minister of agriculture, announced last week that Canada and the United States have reached agreement on the calculation of support levels for barley in each country.

Under Article 705 of the Canada-U.S. Free Trade Agreement, each year Canada and the U.S. determine their respective government support for barley producers for the preceding crop years. The support level, expressed as a percentage, is comprised of both direct and indirect support. Article 705 states that Canada must remove its import licence requirement on U.S. barley and barley products when the Canadian level of support is equal to or greater than that of the U.S.

Calculations done by the two countries indicate that the level of government support for barley remains higher in the U.S. than in Canada. Therefore, import licences will continue to be required for U.S. barley and barley products entering Canada.

The levels of government support for barley are as follows: Barley, Canada, 24.88 per cent; U.S., 47.4 per cent.

No payments

OTTAWA — Calculations under the National Tripartite Stabilization Program (NTSP) show no first quarter stabilization payments were triggered for producers of slaughter and feeder cattle and hogs. No fourth quarter payments will be made for lambs, according to the calculations announced today.

Producers and both levels of government contribute equally to the stabilization plans.

OMAF renews 4-H agreement

TORONTO— The Ministry of Agriculture and Food has signed a new three-year agreement with the Ontario 4-H Council in support of the volunteer youth organization's activities in rural Ontario.

"This agreement reinforces our strong commitment to work with the Ontario 4-H council toward the personal development of rural youth across the province," Minister Elmer Buchanan said in a meeting with the council.

With the agreement, the Ministry of Agriculture and Food (OMAF) continues to be a partner with the Ontario 4-H Council and its local associations in the delivery of 4-H programs. The programs offered to rural youth include livestock and crop production, financial management, food preparation, nutrition, recreational activities and career development.

The ministry assists local associations through its field office staff. In consultation with the council, OMAF also provides resource materials, leadership training and recognition awards.

MacDonald Feed Mill has been in business since September 1977, and for the first eight years was located in South Mountain. In December 1985, we purchased the former H.E. Saunders & Sons mill at Inkerman and in 1986 the South Mountain mill was closed and all of the company's operations moved to Inkerman.

Since 1977 we have been associated with New Life Mills Limited, a feed company with three major mills in Western Ontario and another in Nova Scotia. This association provides us with nutritional services and enables us to keep abreast of new developments in feeds and feeding.

MacDonald Feed Mill offers a complete line of feeds to Eastern Ontario dairy, poultry and hog producers. These feeds are available both in bags and in bulk. We also offer forage analysis and dairy ration balancing services.

If you purchase feed for livestock and/or poultry in large or small amounts, we are anxious to serve you. Come in to the office in Inkerman or call us at 989-2003.

Moose Creek Mall

Celebrates Its 14th Anniversary

After many years of dreaming of having her own clothing store, Thérèse Théoret began her ladies clothing boutique from her home and began building a solid reputation throughout eastern Ontario.

In 1977 the local elementary school closed and within 2 years the renovated school building became home to Chez Thérèse and several other stores. The 9,000 sq. ft. building that once housed school children is now the Moose Creek Mall at 5,000 sq. ft. employing 27 people.

Daughter Ginette Lemieux has worked with her mother for eighteen years and now co-manages the ladies' boutique. She also opened Salon Alliance Bridal Boutique in the fall of 1991.

Gerry Théoret, Thérèse's husband, manages the Mall and the Blue Lantern Restaurant which offers full-course meals and a well-known Sunday Brunch!!

Son Michel runs Vimi Shoes, which carries hard-to-find sizes for ladies' (4 to 12) and men (7 to 15).

Son Richard operates Richard's Men's Wear, clothing for men and young men. Sizes 36 to 54.

Even the Théoret's grandchildren help keep the Moose Creek Mall successful, working after school and Saturdays.

The Moose Creek Mall has become a "Place of Fashion" in eastern Ontario. The assortment and sizes of quality merchandise goes far beyond ordinary stores. You can even shop at this Mall and purchase complete wedding attire. Bridal gowns, bridesmaid, mother's and flower girl dresses, men's formal wear, and satin shoes and handbags expertly dyed to match your wedding outfit.

All under one roof!! It's worth the short drive for great service, savings and quality merchandise.

Ormond craft club forms

by Lilli Dietrich

Needlepoint, wreath-making, Christmas stockings - what do these three things have in common? That's right! They are all crafts. This was the subject matter on Mon., May 10 at 7pm at the home of Betty-Jean Mark, as the first meeting of the Ormond Viewing of Beautiful Crafts was held.

This club will focus on making all sorts of different crafts such as Christmas decorations.

Because this was the first meeting, the election of officers was held with the following results: president, Tara Poole; vice-president, Crystal Merkley; secretary (roving), Sara Howse; treasurer, Monique St.Pierre; press reporter, Lilli Dietrich; achievement day Co-ordinator, Rhonda Carruthers, Daniel and Andrew Carkner; and youth leader, Rhonda Carruthers.

After the election of officers, the members were introduced to the art of needlepoint by listening to the instructions of leader Rhonda Mark. The members were given the option of making either a cow, a rabbit, or a monogram needlepoint sample. It was emphasized that the key point to making crafts was creativity.

To close off the meeting, it was decided that the club meet again at Betty-Jean Mark's on May 31, 1993 at 7pm for their second Viewing of Beautiful Crafts.

4-H jackets still available

WINCHESTER — Last fall a group of 4-H participants ordered 4-H jackets in dark green and white. So far there are nine names on a list for re-order. There must be 10 people interested to order again.

The jackets are made of a product called Tactel, a nylon fabric. They are water and wind resistant "light, durable and easy care". The jackets are from Avon Sportswear and are Canadian-made. They are green with white trim, with the 4-H crest on the sleeve.

The total cost, including taxes is $65.10 for youth sizes and $65.95 for adult sizes. You may wish to have your name added on the sleeve for an extra charge of $2.00 plus tax. If there is enough interest an order night will be held. Call today, 774-2313, if you are interested.

Volunteer screening procedures

WINCHESTER — A draft set of guidelines was presented at the last 4-H Leaders Association Meeting.

The target timeline is as follows:

By June 30, 1993; have a 4-H Volunteer Application Committee formed.

By July 1, 1993; have the procedure in place for new 4-H volunteer applicants; and by December 31, 1993 have all current volunteers complete the procedure. With some minor adjustments, the guidelines will be presented for approval at the June 2 meeting.

Heifers eligible for Queen's Guineas

TORONTO — The Queen's Guineas Competition at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair has expanded to include market heifers as well as steers.

Nominated animals must be ear-tagged and nose-printed before June 1 to be eligible.

Contact your 4-H leaders or Jean Sullivan for details.

4-H showing and judging clinic

NEPEAN — A 4-H Showing and Judging Clinic, hosted by the Carleton 4-H Association will be held on June 12, at Four Island Farms (just east of Dwyer Hill Rd. (Regional Road #3) on the Franktown Rd. (Regional Road #10)

Registration is 9:30 am. Clinic is from 10am - 3pm.

Hot dogs, cold drinks and dessert will be available to purchase.

Experts will offer discussion, demonstrations and hands-on learning that will give you the opportunity to improve your skills and knowledge in beef showmanship, hay judging, horse showmanship, dairy judging, sheep judging, rabbit judging and dairy showmanship.

Registration is due Friday, June 4, 1993. Forms are available from the OMAF office.

Award sewn up

Quilter, Vicky Van der Linden, and her award- winning creation.

Kerrie Whitehurst
Special to the Press

RUSSELL—Local quilting artist Vicky Van der Linden recently picked up an Honorable Mention award at a Canada-wide quilting contest.

The event, held last month and sponsored by Coates/Patons Co., invited quilters from across the country to design original patterns and submit the final products for judging.

There was a great deal of leeway given to the artists, explains Van der Linden. The contest stipulated only that the entry somehow tie into the category title "Generations".

Van der Linden's quilt was singled out from 65 entries. Her creation, entitled "Seasons & Cycles", drew on Van der Linden's personal interest in what she refers to as the "cyclical nature of things".

"I love designs with circles," she says. "To me it's a symbol of the unending cycle of life, which passes down from generation to generation." The stars in the pattern, she explains, were inspired by the night sky.

Van der Linden's winning quilt will receive national exposure this spring when it will be shown as part of an exhibit touring the country.

The quilt will also be shown during the Creative Sewing and Needlework Festival at Lansdowne Park, May 29-30.

Van der Linden is well-known to local quilt buffs. In addition to designing and sewing her own creations, Van der Linden teaches quilting through Russell's Millstream Crafts store and she is also a member of the Russell Artists' Co-operative.

President Reaney hosts Metcalfe Institute

by Jean Boland

METCALFE — The Metcalfe WI May meeting was held at the home of the president, Jean Reaney.

The roll call "name a store you like to shop at" was answered by eight members and four visitors. After a short discussion the meeting was turned over to the convenor, Cheryl Bunda, who introduced our speaker, Daphne Gee, president of the farmers' market to be held at the Metcalfe Fairgrounds, beginning the last week of June, running through till the last Saturday in Spetember, 8am-10pm. There is a $10 fee to reserve a space to display your merchandise. Anyone interested can call Daphne Gee. This program sounds interesting. Cheryl thanked Daphne and presented her with a gift.

The president then introduced Marjorie Robinson who spoke to us on home support, what they are promoting to help keep the elderly in their own homes, and spoke on the health fair held May 12 in the community centre.

The hostess gift was won by Irene Wallace.

Our annual meeting was held in April at Ruth Reaney's and our new slate of officers are: president, Jean Reaney; second vice-president, Cheryl Bunda; third vice-president, Mrs. Earl Quinn; secretary-treasurer, Peggy Scharf; assistant secretary, Irene Wallace; public relations and program co-ordinator, Jean Boland; branch director, Irene Wallace; auditors, Ann Van Berlo, Cheryl Bunda; convenors, agriculture and Canadian industries, Cheryl Bunda and Darlene Scharf; education, Mrs. Gordon Kelly; family and consumer affairs, Irene Wallace.

The meeting closed with a delicious lunch prepared and served by the hostess, Jean Reaney.

METCALFE— The Osgoode Township Care Centre held a craft and bake sale last Saturday and once more enjoyed the continuing support of the local community.

Activity Director Deborah Nixon said, "We depend so much on volunteers and local support and, thankfully, they always come out for us and lend that much needed assistance."

Volunteer Joan Dow, at the bake table, said, "When we started at 10am this table was heaped with baking and goodies of all sorts. Now (at noon) we are almost sold out and we still have two hours to go."

Harriet Lemoyne and Beatrice Sullivan were having a very successful day selling raffle tickets on a quilt and a beautiful floral arrangement. Boxes were bulging with ticket stubs, an indication that sales were brisk.

A final tally wasn't available but all indications were that the event was a highly successful one.
