Blaze on highway 43

Firefighters were too late to save this white frame house located on highway 43 last Friday afternoon. The house was demolished in a matter of minutes as bystanders watched helplessly. Flames were roaring through the windows when the fire department arrived on the scene. The residence was the home of Douglas and Lise Frame and their family. Record Photo - Riley

House demolished by fire in minutes

(Staff) - A late afternoon fire last Friday demolished a frame house a few kilometres west of Chesterville on highway 43 in a matter of minutes. The blaze, which originated in the back of the house, was out of control when firefighters arrived on the scene shortly after 4;30pm.

Five members of the Douglas Frame family were at home at the time but all escaped from the burning house without injury. A teenage son, Cameron, had to leave without shoes and a nephew, Alain, 20, received minor burns on his face when he ran down the stairs alerting the family the house was on fire. A neighbor, Brenda Hutt, administered first aid for the superficial burns.

The family, Douglas and Lise Frame, their sons Lawrence, 20, Cameron, 16, Shannon, 15 and nephew Alain, 20, are homeless but arranged to stay with Mrs. Frame's relatives in Wakefield on a temporary basis. Mr. Frame is employed with the external affairs department in Ottawa and the family had resided at the property since last June. They have lived abroad on overseas postings for the federal government.

Mr. Frame was on his way home from work in Ottawa at the time the fire broke out and arrived on the scene to find his house burned to the ground with only the chimney remaining.

Although Mrs. Frame indicated at the time the fire may have originated with the removal of some wood stove ashes, Chesterville deputy fire chief said on Monday the cause of the fire had not yet been determined by the department.

"At least we're all safe and we have insurance," she said as the house burned furiously in high winds.

Firefighters told her the blaze was out of control and there was nothing they could do.

"It's gone," she replied, "and there's no use anyone getting hurt."

Alain gave the general alarm to the family, as he yelled "the house is on fire."

"I though of going upstairs and getting my baby pictures," said Mrs. Frame, her face tear-streaked as she watched her home blazing.

"I insisted my husband put in fire detectors all over the house; I knew it was a frame house. They went off when we were outside."

She added her purse and all her cards were in the house, explaining they had left with nothing. "The floor flew open and I just ran out," she said. "My kid doesn't even have shoes on his feet."

Woman killed at crossing

MOOSE CREEK (Staff) - A Moose Creek area resident, Sharon Rombough, was killed last Tuesday afternoon when her car was struck by a VIA Rail passenger train at a crossing here.

Mrs. Rombough, 37, was reportedly seen waiting at the crossing by the train engineer and police said the flashing lights were working at the time of the accident. The two-car train carrying 90 passengers came by at 4:09pm bound from Montreal to Ottawa.

The accident took place at the Tolmies Corners Road crossing half a mile south of county road 15.

A Long Sault police spokesman said Mrs. Rombough was northbound driving a 1984 Plymouth near the Forced Road when she crossed the railway tracks. The front of the train struck the right and rear side of the car which was carried a quarter of a mile down the track in a westerly direction.

The police said at the time of the accident the railway signal lights and a bell were in operation. There is no gate at that particular crossing.

Mrs. Rombough leaves her husband Earl, 34, and a daughter, Brandy, 4. She had been enroute to collect her daughter from the babysitter when the accident happened. Brandy Rombough gained a measure of fame last September when she was photographed running from a crowd to present a bouquet to the Queen during the royal visit to Morrisburg and Prescott. The Rombough home is located half a mile north of the crossing.

Health and education issues stressed

Changes promised as NDP launches campaign

FINCH (Staff) - Vowing to bring change to the riding, the New Democratic Party candidate in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, Rudi Derstroff, launched his election campaign here last Saturday night.

The meeting of NDP supporters was highlighted by a speech from Ottawa Centre MP Michael Cassidy who derided the Tories for their policies in shielding new premier Frank Miller from the public and the press.

"They're low-bridging him (Frank Miller) so low you can't see him," Mr. Cassidy contended.

"We should have had a chance to get to know him, what his priorities are, at a press conference.

"He goes from Tory meeting to Tory tea to Tory lunch to Tory dinner to get to meet the people of Ontario."

Mr. Cassidy also criticised the premier for refusing to meet the other two leaders in a televised debate on the issues.

Campaign chairman Trevor Tolley, explaining the local association's decision to confirm Mr. Derstroff's candidacy despite continuing health problems, said "we were happy to attempt to persuade him to run and although he would have wished to meet people at the shopping centres, their homes and the plant gates, he will be unable to do that."

"But we congratulate Rudi and our association in having such an excellent candidate."

Mr. Derstroff affirmed his will to do his best over the coming weeks in meeting people and campaigning.

In his speech he stressed his party's desire for change. "In SD&G we want change and we want reform."

He cited issues where his party would implement different policies, such as the areas of health and education.

"We would phase out OHIP payments and have them paid through the tax system."

In addition Mr. Derstroff said there was a need to match the offerings of the Ontario education system to current trends in industry. He charged the system was not turning out the type of skilled workers who should be able to fit into the workplace.

He noted his party favors the expansion of the Catholic high schools to grade 13 "but we would work together and build on mutual concerns like shared facilities and buses."

Both Mr. Derstroff and Mr. Cassidy stressed their intention to build their party from strength to strength in order to boost votes. Mr. Cassidy said with the recent death of the Albanian leader, Enver Hoxha, the province of Ontario "has the longest regime of any government anywhere in the world."

Order of Canada awarded Chesterville's Jack Cross

OTTAWA (Staff) - In a moving and dignified ceremony at Rideau Hall last Wednesday evening the Governor General, Madame Jeanne Sauve, awarded the Order of Canada to 76 recipients, among them Chesterville's Jack Cross.

Mr. Cross, for 30 years a public servant, ended his distinguished career as assistant clerk of the Privy Council, working in close conjunction with the members of the cabinet, government and a series of governors-general.

Although Mr. Cross' appointment to the order became official last December 17, the ceremony was held in April and honored Canadian citizens from all walks of life who exemplified high achievement.

Although most persons were at the peaks of their careers or were honored for past achievements several young people were among those inducted into the order. They included Anne Murray, the singer, Marc Garneau, the Canadian astronaut, and three members of the swimming team which represented Canada at the Los Angeles Olympics last summer, Victor Davis, Alex Baumann and Anne Ottenbrite.

Jazz musician Oscar Peterson was also honored. The selections were made last year after several advisory committees considered nominations from all over the country.

Mr. Cross was cited by the governor-general's secretary Esmond Butler, for his outstanding professional service and his scholarly contribution. Mr. Butler referred to a book written by Mr. Cross in his area of endeavor.

Recalling Her Excellency's remarks to him as she presented him with the medal, Mr. Cross said Madame Sauve congratulated him for writing his book, noting that such an undertaking was one "I have been striving for all my life."

In a speech to the recipients and their guests Madame Sauve noted "admission to the Order of Canada carries with it no special privilege or monetary reward. Rather, it serves to distinguish those individuals among us who are most worthy of emulation and praise, those who have gone the extra mile to accomplish something which has in turn reflected positively on this country and our people."

Esmond Butler told The Record earlier in a telephone interview that he held Mr. Cross in high esteem, considering him to be the "epitome of the professional public servant."

Another high-profile colleague of Mr. Cross, former prime minister Pierre Trudeau, conveyed his congratulations. He told The Record Mr. Cross was his first boss, having worked for him in 1948 and 1949 on parliament Hill.

"I hold Jack Cross in very high regard," said Mr. Trudeau. "He is a devoted, talented man, a friend who gave me my first job."

"My admiration for him has never faltered and I convey my sincerest congratulations," said Mr. Trudeau.

Mr. Cross was accompanied at the ceremony by his wife Doris. The hour and a half long investiture from 6pm to 7:30 was followed by a reception for the recipients and their guests. The party of several hundred then proceeded to the dining room for a buffet dinner hosted by the governor-general and her husband, the Hon. Maurice Sauve.

Factory not guilty says CPR Rail

(Staff) - Canadian Pacific Railway authorities have denied charges from local residents in Chesterville which contend the loading procedures at Nestle Division here are blocking the crossing at North Main Street.

A.S. Harris, a CP superintendent based at Smiths Falls, said last week "there is minimal delay to road traffic when trains stop at Chesterville to set off or lift sugar cars."

"Crossing gates are designed to rise to allow road traffic to resume while the diesel units are working at Nestle factory," he added.

A Nestle spokesman indicated comments from local residents indicate the blocking of the railway crossing by stationary rail equipment is the result of shunting and positioning of sugar cars for the factory.

Mr. Harris noted the only delay which might occur in the regular movement of rolling stock "is while the diesel units are actually moving over the crossing going to and from the train and after the train commences to move and occupies the crossing while pulling out."

The railway is currently carrying out a major changeover of railway ties and tracks along several kilometres of the Winchester subdivision. CP officials indicate there will be some delay while the work is being carried out.

Canada quiz participants to compete

IROQUOIS (Staff) - Convening the 1985 version of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Canada quiz is Fran Laflamme, Rothwell-Osnabruck School librarian. Miss Laflamme said all aspects of Canadian life, past and present, are covered by the quiz which involves children from grade four through 13. The younger students are grouped in the first category, from grades four to six, the next group being composed of grade seven and eight, grades nine and 10 in the third and the older students from grades 11 to 13 competing against each other.

In final round of the competition will be held April 25 during 1985 education week in the auditorium of Cornwall Square.

At that time facilities will be made available for spectators and the general public may become involved by trying their skill at answering some typical quiz questions. All correct answers will be entered in a draw for a TRS-80 computer courtesy of Radio Shack and the merchants of Cornwall Square.

Canada quiz is an extension of last year's highly successful bicentennial quiz held in several elementary and secondary schools of the county board of education.

Cinnamon pinwheels a popular item

By Julie van Wylick

Meeting number 7 of the Baking Buddies was held at the WI room at 10 o'clock. Darlene, vice-president, opened the meeting and led in the recital of the 4-H pledge.

Jane, secretary, then proceeded by asking each member which product from our project we would make for our family and why.

Once this was completed the meeting was turned over to our leaders who displayed a set of cinnamon pinwheels for us to judge. Each member rated the biscuits on such characteristics as appearance, texture, crust, and flavor. We were then asked to write our comments on samples 1 and 2. The results were then compared.

At this time the members began to prepare their skit, outlining the responsibilities of each member. As we completed setting out our skit Wendy and Nancy arrived with the pizza. Everyone had a piece and decided to join again next week to put the finishing touches on the skit for achievement night.

Election '85 Ontario

Noble Villeneuve

Tory incumbent not taking riding for granted

MOOSE CREEK (Staff) - Conservative MPP Noble Villeneuve gets into his campaign office at 9:30am, apologising for being late and explains that he has been taking calls at his home since 7am.

A phone call interupts him. He signs a stack of papers while taking the call. There's a lull and then another call. He jots down some meetings in his date book and apologises again for the interuption.

If Noble Villeneuve is the clear favorite to retain the riding he won by 4,000 votes in a 1983 byelection, he's not letting it show. Working up to 18 hours a day on a numbing trail of appearances, campaigning and regular government business, the 47-year-old Moose Creek farmer is running like an underdog.

According to Mr. Villeneuve, the flat-out approach is the only way to win an election.

"That's the way it should be," he says. "We certainly aren't going to take anything for granted."

Supporters would argue that their fluently bilingual candidate sewed up a victory well before the election was called with a conscientious approach to his riding that has seen him as the guest of almost every social group and service club in the area during his 15 months as MPP.

The byelection days when the big question was whether Mr. Villeneuve was related to his late predecessor Osie Villeneuve (he isn't) have long passed. Since making his debut in Provincial politics in early 1984, Noble Villeneuve has earned a reputation at Queen's Park for being a stubborn fighter.

An outspoken critic of government bureaucracy, the real estate appraiser has been known to camp outside the doors of ministers to speed up the paper process. His toughness resulted in his being named to sit on a committee reviewing government procedures and resources development. He was also named in February as parliamentary assitant to Health Minister Allan Pope.

Although one Toronto newspaper recently released a poll showing the Conservatives losing steam to the Liberals, Mr. Villeneuve denies his party is losing ground.

"Certainly the media seems to be playing up that we are losing ground but that's simply not the case," he says. "I'm still looking for 80 seats. I think Mr. (Frank) Miller offers what people are looking for, moving a little bit to the right."

He doesn't deny that unemployment, education and funding for social programs, the staple of opposition platforms, are real issues in the election. But the Conservatives, he adds, have the only sensible solution to the problems.

"I'm not in favor of things like acid rain. Of course not," he says. "But we can't just fix it overnight. We'd lose a lot of jobs.

"Listening to the NDP, they would legislate everything from the cradle to grave and that scares me. It would be bedlam.

You have to look at how things affect individual areas as well as the overall picture."

As for the criticism that the Tories have been in power too long, Mr. Villeneuve says the criticism denies the fact that the party has a new leader and new people running. The party's longevity, he maintains, is not an election issue among voters.

"I don't feel I have to answer those charges," he says. "I feel the people of Ontario have done that nicely."

From his own campaigning, Mr. Villeneuve says the issues in this election are unemployment and farm-related issues. Although he notes that Ontario has one of the lowest unemployment rates among the provinces, he admits that more has to be done.

"Ontario has an unemployment rate of eight per cent, which is still too high, but considerably better than other provinces," he says. "But the government is prepared to do whatever has to be done. There's nothing sacred and any improvements we can make we're ready to listen to."

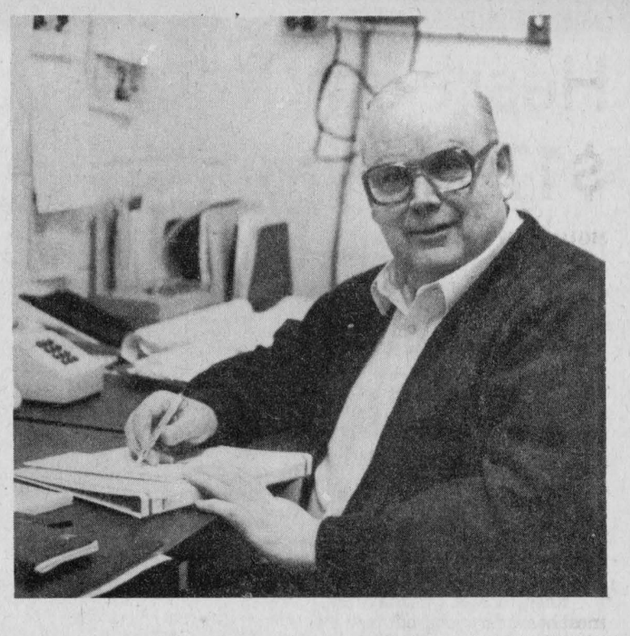
Although he admits government life has been at times frustrating and exhausting, Mr. Villeneuve says he had no doubts at all about running again.

"There is a feeling of satisfaction when you're able to help someone through a problem" he says. "Little things like problems with workmen's compensation or getting a grant for a rural municipality.

"Sometimes it requires playing hardball with the ministers and sometimes there is nothing you can do. But there is satisfaction even then in knowing that you've done all you could."

Bill Dillabough

Municipal experience advantage for Liberal



MORRISBURG (Staff) - It's Saturday afternoon and Liberal candidate Bill Dillabough, sitting at campaign headquarters in the Morrisburg Mall, has allowed himself the luxury of being casually dressed in an open-necked shirt and sweater.

It's one of the few indulgences the 5--year-old Morrisburg reeve has taken since being acclaimed as the party's candidate in SD&G four days earlier. Two weeks behing the Tories and incumbent Noble Villeneuve, Mr. Dillabough is aware that he has ground to pick up.

So he is in his campaign office Saturday afternoon, taking phone calls going over correspondence and making notes. A campaign worker comes over and tells him she has just learned that a newspaper poll shows the Liberals picking up support at the expense of the Conservatives. Mr. Dillabough beams.

Acclaimed as reeve in every municipal election since he was first elected in 1975 and a past warden of the United Counties, Mr. Dillabough is a man who likes to win. The fact that the Liberals have never taken the riding, more than 4,000 votes doesn't bother that some describe as one of the safest Tory seats in the province, and that they lost by more than 4,000 votes in the 1983 byelection, doesn't bother him. He likes a good fight, too.

"Somebody's got to run if you want to keep democracy alive," he says. "I like a good fight if the cause is right. And the cause is right. After 42 years of Conservative government, I think it's time for a change."

Described by one friend as a "bit of a maverick", the Morrisburg businessman says he's mellowed from the days when his outspoken views were routinely stirring up dust in local debates.

It's one reason why he announced, during his nomination acceptance speech, without provocation, that he is firmly pro-life and against any changes to existing abortion laws.

"That's my personal view and I couldn't care less if that's the view of (Ontario Liberal leader) David Peterson," he says. "Even though it's a federal jurisdiction I should be man enough to state my position on an issue people are concerned about. I'd rather lose 5,000 votes over it then feel I hadn't been totally honest with the public."

Mr. Dillabough says he was convinced to run because of the increasingly bleak outlook for young people in the job market and the Tories' apparent inability to deal with the problem.

"No party is going to create jobs overnight, let's not kid ourselves," he says. "But the government, by not adequately funding education and not creating job opportunities, is letting young people down. It's important that we address them because it's their future we are dealing with."

His own interest in the age group has resulted in a core group of workers between the ages of 18 and 27 who now make up a third of the party's working team in the riding. "We're finding out what direction they want us to follow," says Mr. Dillabough, adding he wasn't surprised by their active interest in politics. "They just hadn't been asked for their ideas before."

Despite the reality of past election results, Mr. Dillabough says SD&G Liberals are geared up to win on May 2. The battle strategy is disarmingly simple.

"We lost the byelection by 4,000 votes," Mr. Dillabough says. "That means we have to change 17 votes in each of the riding's 120 polls. That's how we are going to do it. Poll by poll. We know exactly what we have to do and if we do it, she's up for grabs."

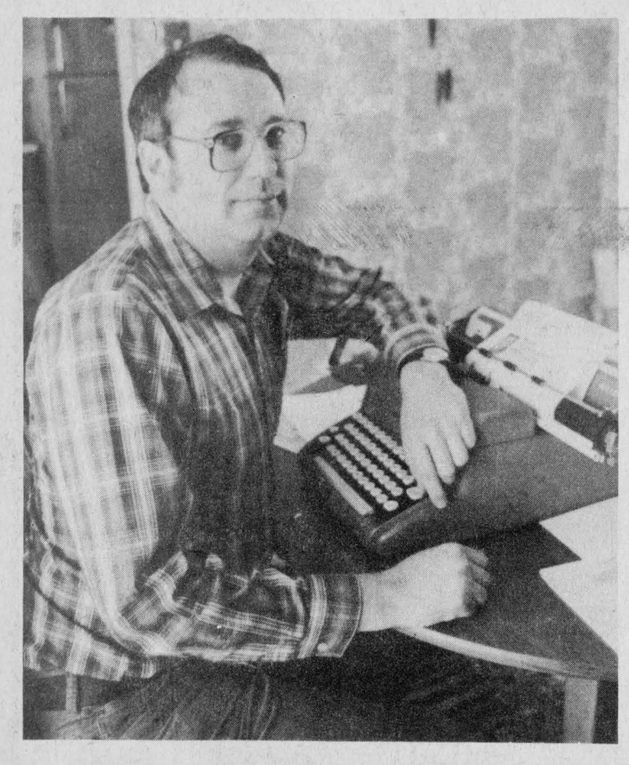
Describing himself as an "ordinary country boy", Mr. Dillabough says his background in municipal politics would be a "breath of fresh air" in a legislature where "we have enough lawyers and professional people".

"I'm not a professional politican. I have no degrees. But I have common sense and I've always put people ahead of politics."

Since the beginning of the campaign, the Liberal candidate has blasted the Conservaties for "misplaced priorities" that have seen plans made for a $90-million domed stadium in Toronto while roads in Eastern Ontario break up and funding for social programs and education is cut away.

Putting 15-hour days on the campaign trail, Mr. Dillabough is driving home the message that not having a government member representing the riding at Queen's Park will work to the benefit of the area.

"Eastern Ontario has definitely been neglected under the Conservaties but they tell the voters that they need a government member at Queen's Park," says Mr. Dillabough. "I guarantee you if I'm given a chance, whether I'm in the government of the opposition, we'll get millions. The Conservaties will pour everything in to try and win the riding back."



Rudi Derstroff

NDP candidate has more than odds to overcome

CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - New Democrat Rudi Derstroff is wondering these days if Lady Luck is a Tory.

First there was the nomination meeting in October where the 36-year-old OC Transpo driver was unanimously endorsed as the party's candidate for the predicted fall provincial election.

After being pounded in the 1983 byelection in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry -- Derstroff, in his debut in provincial politics, picked up less than 700 votes to come in a distant third -- New Democrats in the riding had regrouped with renewed enthusiasm.

Despite the poor results, the Chesterville councillor won plaudits from association members for his aggressiveness in trying to boost the party's image in a riding known for its small-C conservatism. By the October nomination meeting, membership in the riding association had doubled to 60.

Now there were almost daily rumblings that Premier Bill Davis was going to call a November election. Determined to cash in early on election publicity, the association invited the local press to the Sunday nomination meeting. On Monday Bill Davis announced he was retiring. Knocked off front pages by the announcement, association president Trevor Tolley later admitted the impact of the meeting "went up like a lead balloon".

Used to dealing with bad breaks -- ingenious party workers overcame a shortage of campaign buttons during the 1983 byelection by recovering Liberal buttons with their own stickers -- the New Democrats regrouped again. At least they had a candidate ready when the election was finally called.

Then, shortly after the May 2 election was called by Premier Frank Miller, bad luck struck again. Mr. Derstroff, a keen advocate of the NDP battle strategy of almost non-stop door-to-door campaigning and plant-gating, was knocked off his feet by a back problem that made walking difficult and painful.

Despite the obvious blow to a campaign traditionally based in personal contact, executive members underlined Mr. Derstroff's popularity within the association by declaring that they would back him fully, whether he could get out on the hustings or not.

Sitting in the living room of his home Friday, Mr. Derstroff said the association's faith in him has made his back problems, a combination of scoliosis and sciatica, all the more frustrating.

"The back problem really threw me for a loop," he said. "It's something you don't expect. The psychological thing was the worst part. I wanted to honor the committment I made in the byelection to run again but I didn't want to feel obligated that they (the association) had to stick with me."

Although doctors have still not been able to tell him how long he will have to put up with the back pains, Mr. Derstroff said he would have declined his candidacy if he thought the problem was chronic.

Born in Bibelheim, West Germany, Mr. Derstroff came to Canada when he was five and grew up in Ottawa. He cut his political teeth in the Canadian labor Congress, establishing a union newsletter whose editorial targets frequently included the union itself.

Living in Chesterville for the past eight years, Mr. Derstroff joined the local municipal council three years ago.

From union questions on Workers Compensation to dealing with local tax issues, Mr. Derstroff says his guiding principal in politics has always been to put people first.

And his platform, he added, which includes improving education, creating full-time employment in the riding and better social programs, differs in approach to the problems because of that emphasis.

"What's happening is that the political system is being alienated from the people it's supposed to represent. A clique has developed that is out of touch," he said.

"The political process has become something akin to the instructions that come with a plastic model airplane. All your obvious questions are answered, but when you run into problems you're on your own."

Mr. Derstroff, who at one time toyed with the idea of joining the Conservatives but dismissed it when he felt they had no use for men with blue-collar backgrounds, said the Tories have created a fantasy about their representation that even they now believe.

"They want to deal in a dream-like type of atmosphere where they ride in as the shining knight every election," he said. "I differentiate between the image of a shining knight and the reality of a shining knight.

"They have created gaps between society, turned social workers into little more than adminisrators with lack of funding and confused short-term employment programs with full-time jobs. The NDP has to expose them for what they really are."

As the long-shot underdog in the campaign, Mr. Derstroff admitted the fight is sometimes frustrating, particularly when "the people you are fighting for don't want to support you."

But he is philosophical about the difficulty of advancing the NDP cause in SD&G."You can understand the problems attached to it. Often the people that need help the most are the ones who are most vulnerable if they rock the boat.

"But if I didn't think this was worth it, I wouldn't be in it." he said. "With your face on a billboard, you leave yourself very vulnerable to attacks and criticism. But that's the price of democracy.

"The thing is, if everybody stays back they have no chance of winning, then nothing would get done. Everybody's looking to reach goals in life. Just because circumstances dictate that you don't reach them doesn't mean that you have to give up on your goals."

Heart fund gets $17,900 from cnty.

MOUNTAIN (Staff) - Dundas county volunteers have raised a total of $17,904 in this year's heart and Stroke Foundation campaign.

"It takes an enormous effort to raise the kind of money you have raised in this community," said Dr. Wilburn Keon, featured speaker for the Dundas Chapter's annual meeting and banquet Thursday.

The meeting, held at the Mountain community hall, also featured MPP Noble Villeneuve and master of ceremonies Max Keeping of CJOH-TV.

Keon, one of Canada's foremost heart surgeons, outlined the progress made to date in heart disease research. Heart foundations have been operating in Canada for 27 years, he said. During that time, deaths from heart disease have declined by 35 per cent.

Seventy per cent of the money raised by the Heart and Stroke Foundation of Ontario is used to support medical research, Keon added. About 140 scientists across Canada are being supported in research and training by the foundation.

The latest developments include laser therapy to clean out blocked blood vessels and the use of replacement heart valves made from both natural and artificial material. Techniques for operating on newborn babies have also be perfected.

Keon was recently named Ottawa Citizen of the Year and has been awarded the Order of Canada.

Heart and stroke remain the single largest causes of death in Canada, master of ceremonies Max Keeping reminded the audience. "The fight is still not won," he said.

Noble Villeneuve, parliamentary assistant to health minister Alan Pope, brought greetings on behalf of the minister. He added that he doesn't believe that dairy products contribute to heart disease as some have claimed.

"I believe milk is the most perfect food of all," he said.

According to Keon, the best dietary advice is moderation. "If people use a little common sense and eat a balanced diet, their diet doesn't present any hazard to their health," he said.

Entertainment for the banquet was provided by Christy Weagant, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laird Weagant of Morrisburg, who performed a highland dance accompanied on bagpipes by Marilyn Cotton of Winchester. Christy is the granddaughter of Anita Weagant, the Dundas chapter's In Memorial chairperson, and her husband Fred.

Guests at the banquet were also entertained by members of Carolyn's School of Dance, who sang "Put a Little Love in Your Heart." The school raised $2,071 for the Heart and Stroke Foundation through their participation in Dance for Heart, a special event held in November.

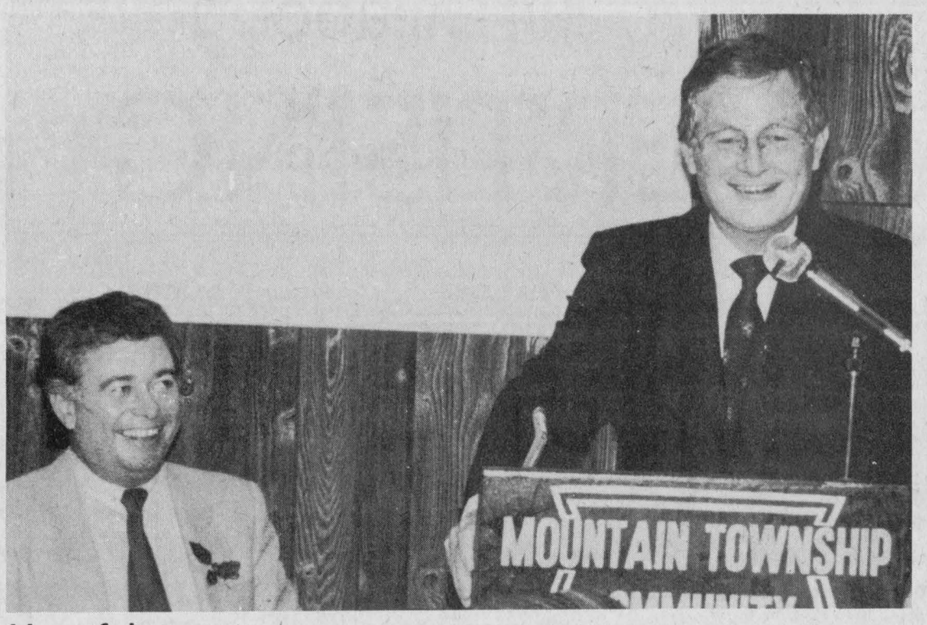
According to chapter campaign chairperson Ivy Coleman, a total of $13,291.99 was raised in residential canvasses during the 1985 campaign.

Special events, which included the Dance for Heart and a CPR marathon, raised $3,358.62.

Donations from local groups totalled $950, and business donations came to $303, for a total of $17,904.11 raised in the county during the campaign.

Outstanding service awards were presented to the Mountain Township Senior Citizens Groups, the Mountain and District Lions Club, the Winchester Legion, the ladies' auxiliary of Legion Branch 434, the Mountain Township Fire Department, the Winchester Fire Department.

Fifteen canvassers also received certificates of appreciation for outstanding service.



Heartfelt message

Dr. Wilburn Keon, introduced by master of ceremonies Max Keeping, left, as one of Canada's foremost heart surgeons, was a featured speaker at the annual banquet of the Dundas chapter of the Heart and Stroke Foundation of Ontario.

In Memoriam

IN MEMORIAM

LOUGHRIDGE — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather Harold (Gus) who passed away April 19, 1979.
God saw you getting tired
When a cure was not to be
So He closed his arms around you,
And whispered "Come to me".
You suffered much in silence
Your spirit did not bend.
You faced your pain with courage
Until the very end.
You tried so hard to stay with us
Your fight was all in vain.
God took you to his loving home,
And freed you from all pain.

Sadly missed and always remembered,
Jean, Sandra and Karey,

De-romanticize family farm

WILLIAMSBURG (Staff) - The popular view of the family farm will have to change if the concept is to survive the 1980s, says Christian Farmers' Federation of Ontario president Tom Oegema.

"We may have to revise, update and de-romanticize our concept of the family farm," Oegema told members of the Dundas chapter of the CFFO at their annual meeting and banquet here Friday.

The family farm of the future may be a corporation or partnership in keeping with the pressures of economic reality, he said.

"Agriculture has become tremendously capital-intensive," Oegema said. The costs of new machinery remain out of reach for many, and major purchasing usually require borrowed money, especially for beginning farmers.

"There is a lot of pressure on troubled farmers to sell out," Oegema said.

All this does not necessarily mean the end of the family farm, he added. Small farms may continue to be the most economical unit of production. Very large operations are feasible to establish, but they are not necessarily economical and cost efficient, he said.

"Corporate farming is not healthy for agriculture as a whole," Oegema said. "Nevertheless I believe there is a place for small family corporations and partnerships, and we should not be afraid of them."

Oegema's own farm near London, a turkey-raising operation, a family corporation. The turkey business is the family's main enterprise, but they also grow a total of 950 acres each year of corn, soybeans and wheat.

Oegema, in his third year as president of the CFFO, reflected on the progress the organization has made in its 30 years of existence.

The organization was founded in the 1950s by Dutch immigrants, and in its early years it reflected this strong ethnic characteristic. All immigrant groups have brought their own traditions and values systems to the new world, Oegema said, but the Dutch remained especially separate by setting up their own churches and schools and by establishing the CFFO.

This separateness, he added, stems from the ract that many of the immigrants felt that their religion required that they give public expression to their beliefs.

"Those immigrants were not easily given over to compromising their basic beliefs," Oegema said. "By calling themselves the Christian Farmers' Federation of Ontario, the founders were immediately saying something about themselves."

The present-day members of the federation must remain true to their roots, he added, but they must also convince others that they "need not fear our ethnic origins and may join with us."

The name of the organization tends to conjure up alarming images in the minds of some observers, Oegema said.

"It is too bad that society has shifted our religion to the realm of our private lives and Sunday services," he said. "It has taken our federation quite a number of years to establish credibility."

However, other farming groups have come to recognize that they share common goals with the CFFO, which promotes long-term development rather than short-term gain. Two of the federation's proposals involve the establishment of a farmer's bank and "debt-set-aside," in which a lender would forego collection of the interest on a loan for a specific period of time.

The CFFO also recognizes the seriousness of soil erosion and the need for preservation of soil quality and quantity, Oegema said. Many of the federations proposals are being seriously considered today.

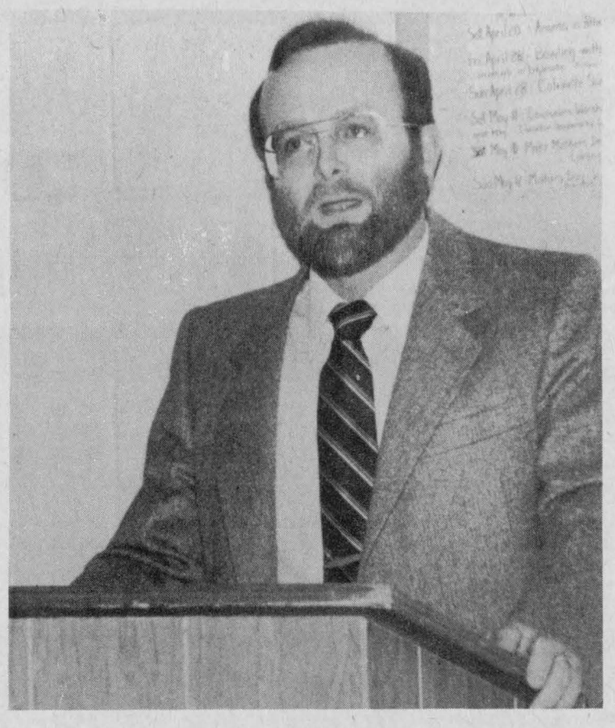
The CFFO's lobbying has helped to get various government agencies involved in studying soil erosion and conservation.

"The farmer is the first and foremost line of defence against soil erosion and degredation," Oegema said.

The federation also promotes targetting aid to the farmers who most need it, and recommends that strict eligibility criteria be established if low-interest loans are to be made available.

A recent Farm Credit Corporation report on farm finances has provided a lot of statistics to show that aid is required. "Statistics are like sausages," Oegema said. "They taste great until you find out what goes into them."

However, he added, the statistics are convincing enough to show that the debt loads of many farmers have increased to dangerous levels.



For the family farm to survive, says Christian Farmers' Federation president Tom Oegema, farmers will have to modernize and "de-romanticize" the concept. Oegema, in his third year as president, addressed members of the Dundas County chapter at their annual meeting Friday. Record Photo - Must

Math excellence a ND tradition

MAPLE RIDGE (Staff) - The tradition of excellence in the North Dundas District High School mathematics department is showing no signs of fading.

For years the students of NDDHS have placed high in mathematics competitions and recently the results of a nationwide contest were released indicating the local adding machines are the best in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry in two of three classes.

The junior classes, Grades 9, 10 and 11, in the Canadian Mathematics Competition wrote the test in February, with the three best results from each grade scoring points for the school. Since 1982, the grades have been separated and NDDHS students have been deemed the best in each class for SD&G.

This year the Grade 10 students slipped to second place but were met in the winner's circle by their teammates from Grades 9 and 11 who again placed first.

Representing the Grade 9 students of NDDHS were Andrew Gruich, Michael Bouck and Richard Stewart. The Grade 10 squad was made up of Lindsay Rodger, Peter Streng and Leanne Ristenbil, while the Grade 11 team consisted of John Wu, Robert Wu and Paul Spencer.

John Wu was named to the Canadian honor roll and is joined by brother Robert on the Ontario honor roll. Honorable mentions go to Caren Wu, Wilma Luimes, Chris Lynch, Shirley Vandenbroek and Doug Newman for making the honor roll in Eastern Ontario.

In total, 47,500 students representing 1,620 schools across the country participated in the contest which was administered by the University of Waterloo. It is designed as a challenge for the brightest students of mathematics and serves also as a guide when universities make selections for scholarships.

The national champions in the Grade 9 division were three students from Zion Heights Junior High School in North York. The Grade 10 champs came from St. George's School in Vancouver while Scarborough's Woburn Collegiate students were named Grade 11 winners.

The best local showing was by Thousand Islands Secondary School in Brockville. The Grade 11 team placed second both in Canada and Ontario.

The NDDHS entries also fared well with other Eastern Ontario schools in a division including 26 teams. The Grade 9 class placed fourth, Grade 10 class ninth, and the Grade 11 students were second only to the Brockville team.

Dillabough assembling Grit team

MORRISBURG (Staff) - Amid red and white ribbons and posters the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Liberal headquarters was officially opened last Friday night. Candidate Bill Dillabough, the reeve of Morrisburg, was feted by supporters and guest of honor reeve John Cleary of Cornwall township.

The first-time candidate, who is no stranger to politics at the municipal, provincial and federal levels, pledged his best effort in the day ahead.

"I'm willing to put in 21 days on the road," Mr. Dillabough told supporters, "but I need your help."

"I will do everything in my power to be elected," he promised.

"We'll put a man in Queens Park and I want to be that guy."

Mr. Dillabough will be assisted by fundraiser Dr. Gerry Rosenquist, himself a former Liberal candidate in the 1981 provincial election. Dr. Rosenquist's wife, Lois, will manage the campaign office.

Other helpers are campaign director John Corbett, currently in hospital recovering from a collapse last week; official agent Alan Bell; advertising manager, Sam Laurin; sign chairman, Ron Crowder; poll organizer, Peter McCooeye; assistant office manager, Liz McCooeye.

Mr. Dillabough indicated he would be addressing several local issues later on in the campaign.

More than 300 people turned out to honor the man known as "Mr. Avonmore" Friday night at the Avonmore Community Centre. Fred Barkley who's run Barkley General Store since 1935, was presented with gifts and praised as "an integral part of the community." Gifts included a special mural depicting the store Mr. Barkley's father began in Avonmore in 1908.

Hundreds honor 'Mr. Avonmore' with Barkley Appreciation Night

AVONMORE (Staff) - During a 50-year career as a small town merchant, Fred Barkley has worn out three hardwood floors and a bevvy of sales clerks.

On Saturday night at the Avonmore Community Centre, residents of this hamlet turned out to let the 71-year-old shop keeper know he has not worn out his welcome.

Joining to celebrate Mr. Barkley's 50th year in business, at the Barkley General Store, a packed audience of more than 300 listened to politicians and friends praise and gently rib the man known affectionately as "Mr. Avonmore".

And it was clear throughout the series of tributes and presentations to the man who outlasted such institutions as the local high school that neither Fred Barkley nor the community was ready to draw the curtain on an era.

"Fred wants to make it quite clear that this is an anniversary party and not a retirement party," said Roxborough Reeve Garnet Robertson.

Sitting with guests that included Stormont-Dundas MP Norm Warner and Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry MPP Noble Villeneuve, Mr. Barkley listened as former employees and friends regaled the audience with stories of his penchant for long hours, and hard work.

Standing in front of a large mural of the red-brick Barkley store, Avonmore postmaster and former Barkley employee Charles Reilly said his employee always amazed him by being able to tell customers where to find a product in a store that had everything from groceries to socks and nails.

"Fred never needed a computer," he said. "He is a computer. When customers couldn't find something, he could tell them, right down to the counter it was on."

Mr. Reilly said the success of Mr. Barkley's store was built on service. "If he doesn't have it," he said, "he'll get it. If he can't get it, it isn't made."

Founded by his father in 1908, the store was taken over by Fred Barkley in 1935 after his father's death. Leaving behind his ambition to become a lawyer, he took on the store at a time when competition was tough and the country was in the gripe of a depression.

During the next 50 years, Fred Barkley never missed a day of work. He took his first holiday four years ago.

Mr. Robertson said Mr. Barkley's legendary 60-hour weeks and his interest in Avonmore made him "an integral part of the community".

MPP Noble Villeneuve, making a special presentation on behalf of the province, called Mr. Barkley "a symbol of continuity who still plays a vital role in this community.

"He is very, very special, not only to this community but to the people who have come and gone."

Lillian Kyle, representing the Avonmore Diamond Club, said Mr. Barkley's success has had as much to do with his attitude as his business savvy. "There is seldom a time," she said, "when you opened the door and Fred doesn't have a smile."

Others noted that Mr. Barkley has always been ready to lend a hand for a cause. Said Mr. Robertson, "Avonmore has never known any better than Fred Barkley."

In an emotional response that received a standing ovation, Mr. Barkley thanked the crowd for "so many things to think over and so many things to think about in the future."

"This really touches me," he said, "but people must be wondering if this person who has almost been drawn into sainthood tonight is the same skinflint they've been dealing with all these years."

Recalling his 50 years of business in Avonmore, Mr. Barkley paid his own tribute to his family, his employees and the community.

"I was twice blessed," he said. "My father was honest, dependable and trustworthy and he would only buy goods he considered good for his customers. His reputation allowed me to get credit any time, any place.

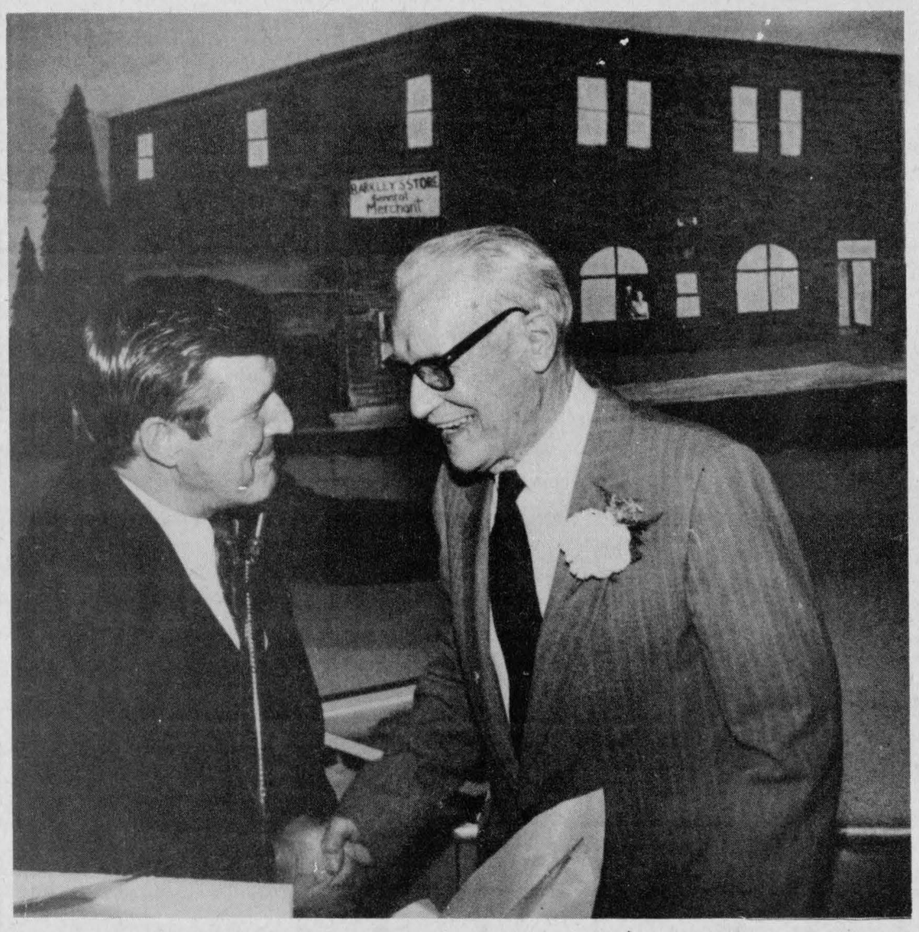
"And I did my best day's work in 1945," he said, referring to his marriage to his wife Florence.

Presenting silver dollars to the fifth generation of children of people he's served in his store, Mr. Barkley paid a special tribute to Avonmore itself.

"I think Avonmore has a special charm," he said. "You see it when you take a walk on a bright sunny afternoon. We have no great mansions. We have good average, well-kept properties."

Thanking the crowd again, Mr. Barkley said it was a night he would always remember.

"As they say in television, thanks to those who made all these things possible, our customers over the years," he said.



Roxborough reeve Garnet Robertson, left, congratulates Avonmore merchant Fred Barkley on his 50th anniversary in business during Fred Barkley Appreciation Night at the Avonmore Community Centre Friday. Mr. Barkley, 71, who took over the Barkley General Store in 1935 after his father died, was praised by politicians and friends for his hard work and dedication to the community.

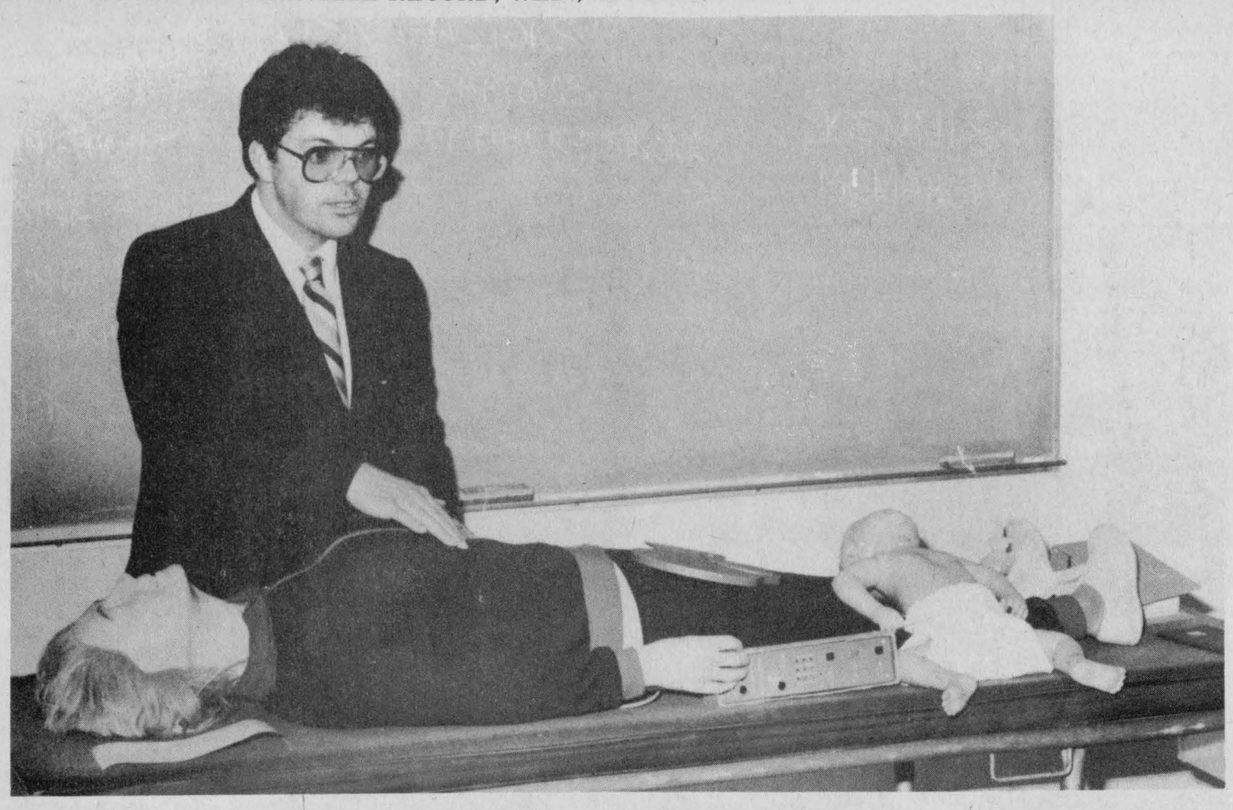
Keep Canada Beautiful...



"Annie" and baby (name unknown) are ready to assist in the course leading to proficiency in cardio pulmonary resuscitation (CPR). With the help of instructor Dennis McMahon, groups and individuals may sign up to learn what they should know about rendering life sustaining aid to victims of heart stoppages.

CPR could save almost half of victims

WINCHESTER (Staff) - Half the deaths in Canada every year are due to heart attacks. And that statistic is something that can be reduced, says Dennis MacMahon, who runs a popular course in cardio-pulmonary resucitation at Winchester District Memorial Hospital.

"Three out of eight people can be saved," Mr. McMahon told a group of people interested in signing up for the courses. "There are 500 deaths in Toronto alone every year that could be prevented."

Mr. McMahon's courses, which require from 8 to 12 hours of instruction, are held at the hospital. To join he should be contacted by telephone at Winchester. Personnel at the Ontario Heart and Stroke Foundation at Prescott and Cornwall will also put interested persons in contact with Mr. McMahon. The next course is scheduled for May 8 and 9 with eight participants maximum.

The courses are always given at the hospital said Mr. McMahon "because we do the course realistically with the victim down on the ground." Mannequins are used for practice and a computer readout accompanies each CPR doll so that students can monitor their own effectiveness. A test is given at the end of the course.

Canada Post failing us

Canada Post is a company failing in its mandate to serve Canadians in a responsible manner. Another adjective which describes that corporation at this particular moment is "insensitive."

On the heels of a threatened mail strike which would have crippled certain parts of the economy, but which, thankfully, was averted at the last moment, comes a press release into the newsrooms of the nation detailing an upcoming increase in rates to be paid by the consumer in June of this year. The news release goes on to list further increases to come into effect in September.

One point that caught our eye immediately in the press release was the information that a six per cent increase for the mailing of Canadian newspapers and periodicals will come into existence in September.

The post office decision makers explain this is all part of an attempt on their part to control costs and limit increases to the inflation rate or below.

When last we heard the current inflation rate was less than six per cent. If claims made by a former postal employee into grossly wasteful practices at Canada Post are found to be substained then the post office has been conducting business in a disgraceful manner, playing fast and loose with the tax money of Canadians. Should there be an outside inquiry into these claims the public will be allowed a fascinating glimpse into some of the management practices of that organization.

Tribute to our Flyers

The hometown team has triumphed and everyone involved, the players, the organizers, managers, friends and supporters are thrilled with well-earned victory.

Plaudits go to others as well. Although the Chesterville Junior C hockey team has come out on top of the heap this year, someone had to register results a little lower on the scale. All the members of the teams involved in Junior C hockey in this area are to be complimented with a fine season.

We realize minor hockey needs a great deal of support both from volunteers who donate a large amount of their free time, and from financial sources that all too often are not sufficient to cover the costs involved.

The Flyers need financial assistance right now and their organization is doing a great job in raising the necessary funds. Let's see they earn our help as well as our congratulations.

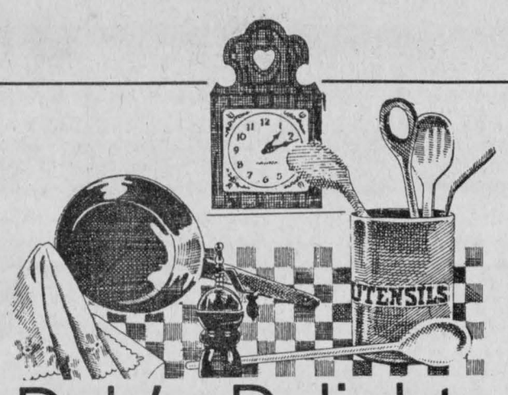
Need clear farm policy

Although an announcement last week by Premier Frank Miller that a new farm credit program would be available to farmers was timed neatly to coincide with some of his campaign jaunts in the farming district of Chatham, farmers will be able to have at their disposal now a wider choice of loan assistance.

The problem, is though, that a great deal of confusion exists about these proposals of Mr. Miller. The existing Ontario Farm Adjustment Assistance Program has been combined with the Operating Loan Assistance Program to form a new mixture to be known as the Farm Operating Credit Assistance Program.

Should there be anyone among the readers who has not instantly memorized this sequence it is quite excusable. What the premier was leading up to was that his government has hauled out an election goody amounting to some $40 million in a three-year farm credit program.

Although everyone with half a brain can recognize politicians wooing the voters there have been few statements from politicians in general during this election campaign regarding agricultural issues. Farmers, when spoken to individually and in groups, can tell listeners for hours on end exactly where their profession is neglected and shortchanged by big government. Let's hear some from the politicians about farming.



Deb's Delights

Here's another recipe from Grace Sproule. It would serve a "big" crowd. She says her family like the meatballs for a change.

SWEET AND SOUR MEATBALLS

1¼ lb. hamburg
1 med. onion, grated
1 egg
8 soda crackers, crushed
½ to ¾ cup water
Salt and pepper to taste
1 cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons margarine
2 cup gingerale
1 cup catsup
½ cup brown sugar

In a large bowl combine beef, onion, egg, soda crackers and enough water to absorb the cracker crumb. Season with salt and pepper and roll in bite-size balls. Brown the meatballs and chopped onion in margarine or oil, drain on paper towels. In a large skillet stir together gingerale, catsup and brown sugar. Add meatballs and onion, and simmer lightly for 50 or 60 minutes until sauce thickens. Stir often to prevent burning.

The Collegiate Institute at Morrisburg was burned to the ground at an early hour Wednesday morning, nothing saved and only twelve thousand dollars of insurance. The positive cause of the fire is unknown, different theories are expressed, one in particular that only Tuesday a quantity of wood alcohol was purhcased for the laboratory and it is thought that perhaps when the purchase became known that some thirsty mortal entered the school to get possession of the alcohol and may have dropped a lighted match which might have been the cause of the conflagration.

45 From The Record, Thursday, April 19, 1945

Friday afternoon between four and five o'clock a garage on the farm of Mac Curran, about four miles from town, was totally destroyed by fire. In a recent high wind a tree had blown down a short distance from the building and when the tree was trimmed the brush was piled a short distance from the garage. When the children came home from school in the afternoon one of them asked if the brush might be burned and receiving consent touched it off. The wind blowing towards the garage carried embers that way and in a few minutes started the fire.

After three years and nine months overseas, Pte. C.M. Baker, husband of Shirley King, returned home last Thursday evening. Pte. Baker enlisted with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders in June, 1940 went overseas in July, 1941. He was in the thick of the fight from D-Day to the battle at Cleve Although he related many close calls he came through without injury.

The Farmer's Wife — by Wyn Thompson

April weather brings rain and sunshine, often both together, and nearly always companioned by door-to-door salesmen.

My first acquaintance with spring salesmen was made so many years ago at the home of my grandparents. I was only a child but I do remember this little old peddler driving his wagon up the long maple-treed laneway. And the fascination of his suitcases.

In the early days the peddlers began their rounds as soon as the roads were clear of snow. They sold everything from pins and needles to pills that would cure all ailments. They sold tea and spices and buttons and thread and lengths of gingham and flannelette.

Be that as it may, the peddler's visit brought joy to many a lonely farm, news and gossip and a breath of urban life. The peddler was a very astute businessman, but seasoned his sales with humor.

In return for the peddler's visit, the country women set up their finest board. The chicken and dumplings smothered in creamy gravy, canned corn, the potatoes mashed with cream and freshly churned butter. The pedller bedded down in the attic over the kitchen.

Up at dawn, the peddler ate a good breakfast of pancakes and sausage, and presented a gift to the woman of the house. For the children, there were humbugs and peppermints. Then off he went, wagon wheels rattling, horse trotting briskly, peddler whistling.

And the farm family waved him out of sight and returned to the humdrum business of making a living. To my question as to why the peddler couldn't stay longer, my Grannie would say not to worry, he'll be back next spring.

A cold spring day has ended. But it is spring, and this cold can't last. And Sam up the hill says the peepers in the swamp across the way have to be frozen in three times, and I should not worry about them.

We pile sticks of fine white birch on the hearth, and say this is the last of the cold.

There is a great sense of life stirring in the bush across the way. I am attempting to train Irish to a lead, following last winter's snowmobile trail through the bush. There is a lot of wild dog in you yet, I tell her.

There is quite a debate over the origin of the different breeds of dogs. I listened to a man on the television recently say that dogs are a mutation of wolves. Others say that is not so.

Cocker spaniels, we do know, are an ancient breed, for many early paintings in the art gallery show small spaniel-type dogs. Shakesspeare, in a comment on dogs, speaks of them "fawning like a spaniel," so I conclude they were loving, even in the Elizabethan era which was not particularly known for its gentle times. Whatever the origin of the breeds, the early dogs bore no resemblance to the champions of today.

The first setters did not look like Irish although they have been traced as far back as the fifteenth century. Generations of breeding have developed the Irish setter of today. As I proceeded along the trail I felt as if I had the wind on a leash.

I read that setters and spaniels are good-natured dogs which serve for 'fowling.' Irish isn't very lucky 'serving for fowling' since we did not train her for hunting. She does her best with groundhogs and squirrels and an occasional skunk.

There is excitement in the air for planting time draws near. I like to get lettuce, rasishes, onions and snow peas in as soon as the ground is workable.

No farm wife from a clay loam farm would bother with our land at all, but Sam's wife and I get a lot of good out of this sand and gravel. Providing we get rain at the right time, of course.

The rich black soil of other areas is beautiful, no doubt about that. "But there is a fine sense of achievement working with this type of soil," states Sam's wife, as I come upon her putting in stakes and chicken wire on which, hopefully, the snow peas will climb upward.

It rained in the night, a strong lashing rain. The spring rains have a purpose, although by mid-April we are so hungry for the sun and warmth that impatience wells up in us at the sight of a cloud in the sky. However, the days of snow are past. So, let it rain.

Spring has a special smell. As the sun dries the trunks and branches after a rain, the bark gives off a clean odor. The pines add a spicy fragrance to the air. Then there is the musty smell of leaves that reaches one's nostrils as we walk through the bush. The earth itself has a damp sweetness.

The heady smell of early spring lacks the sweetness of the flowers of summer, but as I go out in the morning to sit in a sheltered nook with my coffee I draw in a deep breath of pure enjoyment. Irish and Lady run in dizzying circles. Scamp jumps up beside me and settles his arthritic bones in the warmest spot there is.

The fire burns comfortable in the fireplace each night, for it may be seventy at noon but swoops down to thirty-five at dark. On such nights we can be lavish with leisure. We pop some corn, listen to music, watch a program on television, or read old favorites and don't worry that we are not keeping up with the current trends in literature.

My elder grand-daughter keeps trying to interest me in science fiction and I am vainly struggling with that form of reading at the moment. But never for sheer pleasure. For that let me have my old favorites.

April is a time for remembering. I think this is so because the long winter is over and done with, and spring walks down our hill to meet me, while overhead I enjoy the flight of the wild geese.

Ormond WA unit raises $125 with pre-meeting sale

WINCHESTER (Special) - Members of the Ormond Unit of the Hospital Auxiliary held a very successful bake sale prior to the April meeting, realizing approximately $125.00 in less than a half hour and expressed a big thank you to all who patronized it.

Olive Cass, director of volunteers, has sent applications for summer-teen volunteers to all the area high school principals, so watch the school bulletin boards or ask your school principal about them if you are interested.

The Gift Shoppe is urgently in need of persons with some purchasing or bookkeeping experience to help fill the vacancies on their staff. So how about giving some of your time and experience to help a project that turned over $10,000 to the Auxiliary last year?

The Winchester unit predicted a good time for all who attend their Fashion show April 22 at the Winchester Public School auditorium.

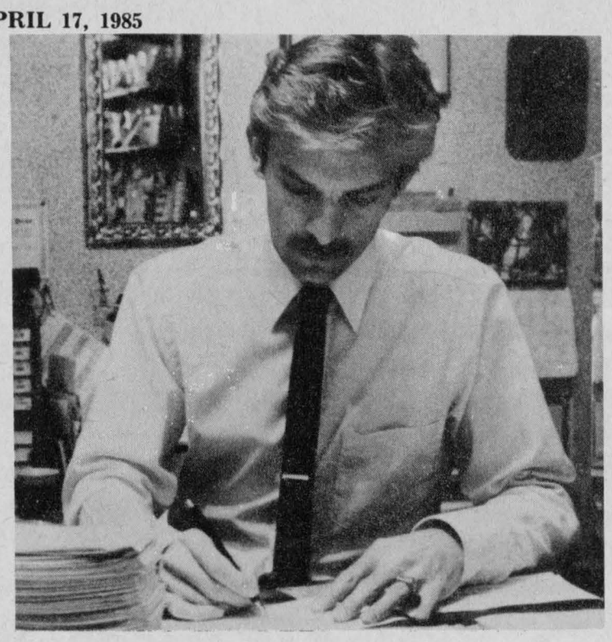
Prizes and tickets are on display in the Hospital Gift Shoppe for the annual Auxiliary dessert and games party April 25. Check the Coming Events in this paper for more details.

Ethelwyn Carkner announced that Gladys MacDonald donated 10 extra-large print song books for the use of patients in 1-east recreation and they are very much appreciated.

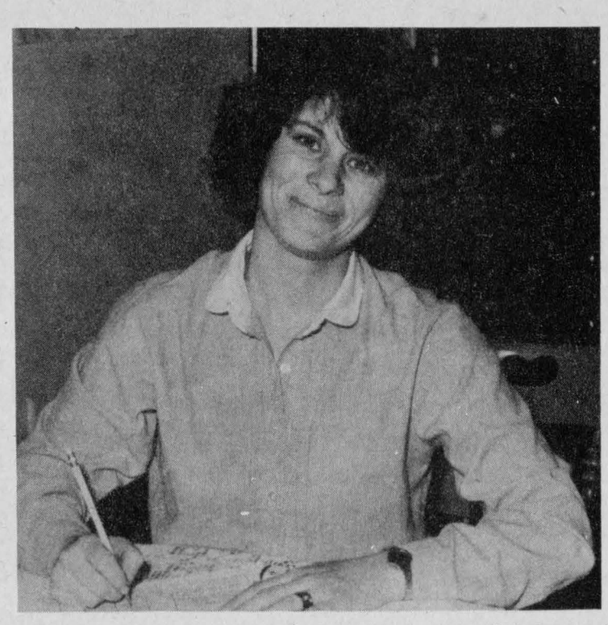
Convenors of standing committees and unit directors are reminded to have written reports ready for the annual meeting on May 9.

Another record was reached when 814 hours of time was given in volunteer service to the auxiliary and patients in the past month.

Mr. Stel announced long service awards will for the first time include the medical staff.



Alan Sharkey, Chesterville, captain of the Canadian Cancer Society checks through receipt books handed in by canvassers, prior to making his reports. Many hours are put in by local volunteers who run several area organizations for no reward other than the satisfaction of a job well done. Record Photo - Hanrahan



There are several 4-H volunteers in the district and Janet Carkner is one of the many who teach home economics. The members of the club are studying basic baking at the moment and everyone is kept busy during the seven weeks the courses are held. 4-H'ers travel to Mrs. Carkner's home every second week to learn the how-to's of cooking and baking.

Volunteers enrich the community with their unselfish use of free time to make things a little bit better for everyone else. Vicki Cook and her daughter Janice, are involved in the local brownie pack, Janice as a member and her mom as Brown Owl, putting in long days preparing for meetings and excursions.

Chesterville hosts UC Thankoffering

MOREWOOD (Special) - On Thursday evening April 4 at 8pm guests from the local churches and Morewood met with members of Chesterville Trinity UCW to share their Easter thankoffering service.

The guests were welcomed by Doris Hitsman who read a poem entitled "Morning Always Comes." Hymn 98 was sung, after which Doris read the scripture Luke 24.

A meditation, "The Burning Heart of Easter," was read by Ruby Miltimore.

Hilda Dillabough and Hilda Olsen received the offering which was dedicated by the president.

At this time a solo entitled "Calvary" was sung by Tracey McMillan accompanied by Elsie Graham as pianist.

Doris Hitsman followed this with prayer after which Doris Cross introduced Rev. and Mrs. Ferguson. Rev. Ferguson chose for his topic "In the Garden" and during his talk Mrs. Ferguson made a beautiful colored illustration of Jesus praying in the garden.

Rev. Ferguson began his talk with prayer and scripture reading and then proceeded to tell us about Jesus and the many times and places where He prayed.

Rev. Ferguson closed the evening by speaking about "The Lord's Prayer". He read a poem entitled "Look, God," and then Rev. and Mrs. Ferguson sang the Easter number "Alone".

They were thanked by Charlotte Craig and presented with potted red roses.

Mrs. de Bruijn thanked the group for the enjoyable evening and a delicious lunch was served by the UCW ladies.

Volunteers keep small community clicking

(Staff) - Volunteers are an unsung and unheralded group of people in any community large or small. This week, national Volunteer Week in Canada, is a short time during the year when their accomplishments and dedication are acknowledged and recognized.

There are scores of volunteers in our midst and the causes and groups they work for are almost numberless. In this feature we have highlighted a handful of people who represent the hundreds of others who work quietly, for no monetary compensation for the betterment of their community and for the welfare of others.

It's not widely known but statistics show almost 25 per cent of the Canadian population works for the benefit of others on a volunteer basis.

Working for the Heart and Stroke Foundation as captain of the Chesterville area, Alan Sharkey, proprietor of the Brookslyn jewellery store, was visited by the Record reporter as he was totalling receipt books handed in by canvassers who blitzed the countryside recently for donations. This is typical of these people, we found. They spend a great deal of time on the cause for which they work, all of it unpaid and most of it unrecognized. But they keep going.

Asked why he became a volunteer Mr. Sharkey said "they're worthwhile causes and I enjoy the personal interaction with other people on the committees. I enjoy setting the objective and meeting it."

Mr. Sharkey has also been involved in volunteer youth work and in work for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in the past.

Thinking the matter over further, he added "I think I feel each individual should have a project that contributes to society, a personal project through which a person can make a contribution."

"Last night I attended a dinner at Mountain held by the Ottawa chapter of the Heart and Stroke Foundation. Max Keeping really moved everybody in that room."

"My efforts are the easiest, though," he said, "because the thirty canvassers do the biggest percentage of the work."

Much as they deny it all the volunteers work extremely hard. Vicki Cook, a brownie leader in Chesterville, says she became involved because her daughters wanted to join the group. But a leader works long hours preparing brownie meetings and Mrs. Cook, whose husband is Chesterville's deputy reeve, Jim Cook, said she likes to make sure the girls are visited by interesting speakers.

"I'm always researching material," she explained, "and sometimes it becomes like a full-time job."

She added, and all the volunteers say this, there are a lot of people like me that people don't know about."

Considering her commitment she said "I think in a small community it's important to bring to the community what is not there." Thus she explains that the girl guide movement adds a measure of enrichment for girls living in a rural area.

What are the rewards? "A big smile," she said immediately. "It's worthwhile then." Mrs. Cook has also volunteered her time for the Meals on Wheels program in the village and for four years was secretary treasurer of the local drama club run by St. Mary's church.

Also working in the youth area is Janet Carkner, who with her husband David, runs a dairy farm four miles south of Chesterville. Mrs. Carkner has been a 4-H volunteer for the past three years. As she was interviewed by The Record she took time out from correcting the scrapbooks compiled by her cooking class members. With a daughter interested in the home economics programs in 4-H Mrs. Carkner was asked to help by being a leader. Since then she has attended leadership workshops regularly both at Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology and at Winchester Agricultural office.

Why does she do it? Like other volunteers her face lights up and she says "the girls' enthusiasm, they really appreciate it and they get a lot out of it."

"When you see them at achievement night and they receive the little bars for their plaques, you're pleased."

She says she'll stay with the program for a few more years yet. And as the interview ended Mrs. Carkner gathered together a pile of material and set off for Winchester. To a 4-H centered errand.

These volunteers in the community put in a tremendous amount of work and uncounted long hours very willingly. They deserve recognition at all times, not simply during national Volunteer Week.

Mrs. M. Dame Finch WI president

FINCH (Special) - The April meeting of Finch branch of Women's Institute met for dinner at the Heritage Restaurant at Long Sault. Twenty-five ladies enjoyed the meal.

President Mrs. Duart MacLean welcomed all and introduced the guest speaker for the day. Mrs. Elmer McDermid, district president for Stormont. She gave a very informative talk. The need to learn by doing was stressed. As we are to give our loyal support to our officers at all levels, then we can continue to have good members. We shouldn't talk about what we have to do, just do it and let our work speak for itself. Time plays an important part in all our lives, so plan your own to have time to enjoy your family. Take time to learn a new hobby.

Two poems were read: A Man's View of the WI and Food for Thought.

A gift was presented by Mrs. M. Dame. A poem was read by Mrs. Edith Waldroff: Old Age Will Never Kill You.

A report on the mini bazaar and tea, 4-H bake sale was given by Miss Vera MacLean. Thanks were given to the leaders and girls for a very successful day. Reports were given by several convenors, to be sent on to the District WI. Birthday congratulations to Elva Sanderson and Catherine MacLean for April.

A resolution is being sent to government officials on capital punishment. A motion was made to plant a flower bed at the library, in memory of the late Mary Campbell, former librarian. The May meeting will be held at the library, May 2, 7:30pm. Visitors welcome. The curator's report was given by Mrs. D. Casselman.

Installation of officers was by Mrs. Elmer McDermid: Past President, Mrs. M. Dame; Pres., Mrs. Duart MacLean; 1st vice: Mrs. A. Dingemans; Sec., Mrs. E. Lang; Treas. Miss V. MacLean; curator, Mrs. D. Casselman; Assistants, Mrs. E. Crawford and Mrs. R. Dillabough.

The engineer's report on the Montgomery branch municipal drain has been accepted by council.

Council has not agreed with the township of Kenyon on the maintenance of the Athol municipal drain and specifically the installation of erosion control devices not included in the engineer's report of Stidwill and Associates Ltd. Council is consequently appealing to the Ontario Drainage Tribunal.

Gov't expands student jobs

(Staff) - Opportunities for summer employment locally will present the usual problems for students – lack of jobs. Officials at the Canada Employment Centre in Cornwall, though, say "we're optimistic because the Ontario Youth Employment Program was reinstated after the February provincial first ministers' conference. This has allowed the federal government more input than in the past."

The student employment section of the facility has sent application to 300 employers in the united counties asking them to join the program. Student jobs are subisidized to the rate of $1.25 an hour. As well there are available this summer several other programs, among them the Ontario Youth Enterprise and SEED program.

Here is a sampling of likely prospects outside the traditional areas of private employment like restaurants and small businesses.

Canada Employment Centre for Students

The address is 102 Sydney Street, Cornwall. The facility will be open full time starting in May. Until then the centre is open afternoons only. Students may register at any time for employment. The telephone number is 933-4300.

Canada Employment Centre

Application forms for summer employment are available here as well as in the guidance departments of local high schools. The address is 111 Water Street, Cornwall. Forms must be left here and students must register here. There is no deadline to apply for employment.

Canada Farm Labor Pool

The location is 173 Queen Street, Chesterville. Telephone 448-2311. Floyd Bradford, a spokesman for the centre, said prospective workers should come in and register. "We can provide the chance of a job interview," he said, pointing out the Farm Labor Pool is not an employer but works to locate labor for farm jobs. Jobs available include haying, stone-picking, relief milking, general farm clean up, maintenance and fencing. Some students have been able to find jobs "from school-out to school-in" as residential summer help on local dairy farms, boarding with family all summer. Farmers can obtain wage subsidies. They should call toll free: 1-800-387-1290 for information and application forms.

Chesterville Village

Recreation director Dave Arnold said he expects to hire a total of 11 students this summer. Of that number five will be responsible for the summer camp day program in the park. Another six students are needed as lifeguards in the pool area. These latter six positions have been advertised and the deadline for applications is April 26.

Chesterville and District Heritage Society

The museum group has applied for two student grants to cover work on the heritage centre over the summer. Word has not yet been received regarding the program availability.

South Nation Conservation Authority

General Manager Jim Windsor said SNRCA has applied for grants for 10 persons. He noted "often we only get half of what we ask for." These positions will be for July and August.

Finch township

Applications will be submitted to the various government ministries. Last year the township employed three students but with the change in many programs this year the number is uncertain at this time.

Williamsburg township

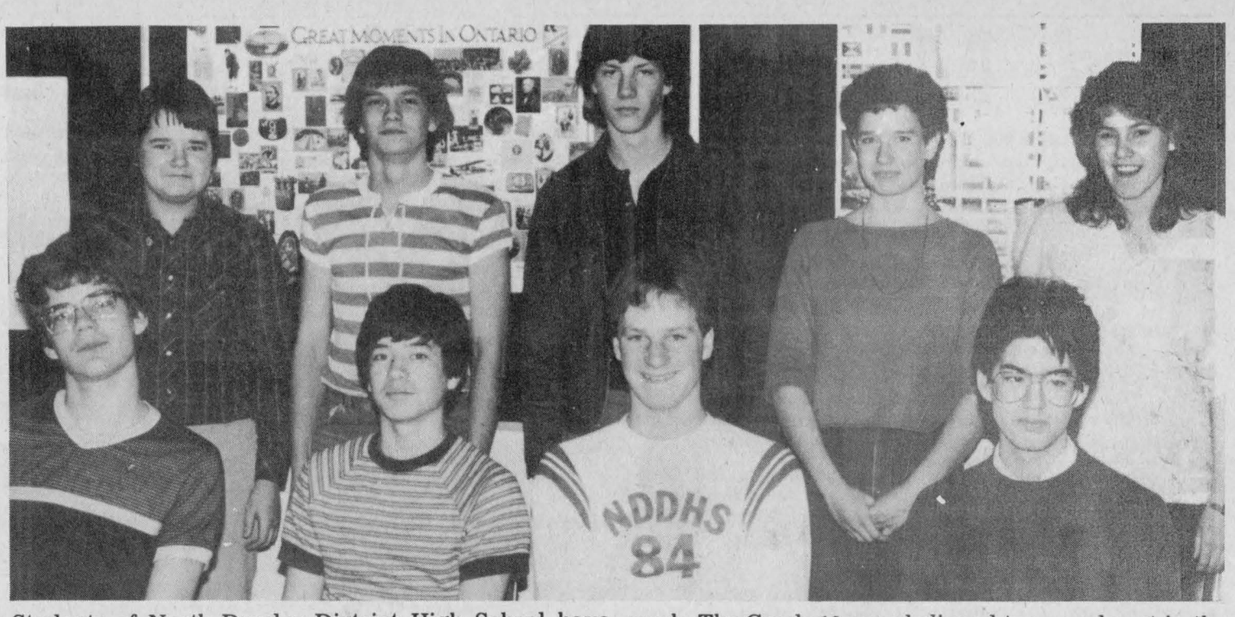
The township has applied for a total of four student positions. Of this total three students will be employed in the summer program for area children. The fourth will be involved with planning since the township is expecting to publish a brochure outlining industrial opportunities in the area.

Ontario Ministry of Food and Agriculture

The major source of summer employment with OMAF is the Agri-Crew program. With four in a crew there should be about 12 students employed in Dundas and the same or more in Stormont county. Application forms are available at the county OMAF offices. Youths between 16 and 24 years of age may join. Agri-Crew jobs include painting, fencing.

Osnabruck township

Marion Avery, recreation director, said she has applied for grants to cover the wages for four playground superintendents and leaders for the day camp program and a further two for positions as swim instructors. "Last year we asked for six and got three," she pointed out.



Students of North Dundas District High School have again emerged as the cream of the SD&G mathematics wizards. Students from across the country took part in the Canadian Mathematics Competition earlier this year and the results, placing the Grade 9 and 11 NDDHS students in first place in SD&G, were released last week. The Grade 10 squad slipped to second spot in the counties. The winners are: back row, left to right, Richard Stewart, Michael Bouck, Peter Streng, Lindsay Rodger and Leanne Ristenbil. Front row, Andrew Gruich, Robert Wu, Paul Spence and John Wu.

North Dundas News

By Caren Wu
and
Danielle Gryspeerdt

There's been a lot of good news. The math department got back their results of the junior math contests. Headed by Mr. Oulahen and an enthusiastic Mrs. Shane, hours of pouring over old math tests paid off.

In Grade 11, with the Fermat contest, the top 2 scorers were John Wu, Robert Wu and Paul Spencer, who placed 1st in SD&G schools, 2nd in eastern Ontario and 31st out of 530 schools in Ontario. Honorable mention goes to Caren Wu, Wilma Luimes, Chris Lunch, Doug Newman and Shirley Vandenbroek for placing on the honor roll for eastern Ontario.

In Grade 10, with the Cayley contest, a team composed of Lindsay Rodger, Peter Streng and Dianne Rystenbil placed North Dundas second in SD&G and ninth in eastern Ontario.

In Grade 9, with the Pascal contest, North Dundas placed first of SD&G schools and fourth in eastern Ontario with top scorers Andrew Gruich, Michael Bouck and Richard Stewart.

Our senior science quiz team composed of Angus Craig, Joel Verdurmen, John Wu and Caren Wu managed to capture 1st place in a tension-filled final against Rothwell-Osnabruck in Cornwall on Saturday. Under the ever-watchful eyes of their beaming coach Mr. King, the team accepted the trophy which has never before been in the possession of North Dundas.

Mr. Chiarot's grade 11's can sigh with relief as their essay vigil is over, but just as their grief ends, another begins anew, this time with the grade 12's. Busily brushing up on their Shakespeare with Miss Newton's traditional essay assignment on the tragedy Macbeth, these students are counting the tomorrows until the due date waiting for inspiration to hit them before apathy does.

Yikes! - look out, here comes Taz, who's going to pull one over on you. The magazine sales are coming with the promise of colorful NDDHS painter caps, and other great prizes. For your benefit, stay tuned to the Athletic Association because your chance is coming soon!

Dyed in the wool

Natural and artificial dyes were the focus of a rug-braiding workshop at the Winchester Community Centre Thursday featuring Maurine Casselman, right. Casselman, a former employee of Upper Canada Village, is doing her thesis for a master's degree in weaving.

Rug braiding gets new twist

WINCHESTER (Staff) - The garment industry has come a long way since the days when our ancestors collected everything from nettles to walnuts to dye their clothes.

But the early days were brought to life at a rug braiding open house at the Winchester community centre Thursday as Maurine Casselman, a former employer of Upper Canada Village, described the time-honored techniques of natural clothing dyes.

In pioneer days, braided rugs were the final stage in the life of a piece of clothing, she said. Pieces of old clothes were kept in a rag bag, and were first made into children's clothes. Smaller pieces of material went into braided rugs to ward off the chill of cold and drafty floors.

One rug was put outside the front door to remind the men to wipe their feet and for the family dog to lie on, Casselman said.

She became interested in natural dyes in the course of her work at Upper Canada Village. "What we were trying to do there was to portray life as it was in the past," she said.

Natural dyes can be made from a surprising variety of sources. Butternuts and walnuts produce a brown dye, while goldenrod and asters produce a gold shade.

Indigo was a natural dye which could be purchased from a store or from a peddlar. Although the raw material was yellow, it gave a permanent blue finish to cloth.

An exotic dye was cochineal, which was derived from an insect and produced a shade of red.

"We don't live in a black and white world," Casselman said. "Color is a gift from our creator."

She noted the many ways in which colors are used in everyday language to express mood. Sometimes people say "I was blue all day," or "I was green with envy."

Most of the dye in plants is in the flower, and most are best used fresh and at the proper time of the growing season. In the case of nettles which produce a pale green dye, the flowers, stems and leaves are used.

Natural dyes have to be set by using a chemical substance as a fixer. Some of the chemicals traditionally used include alum, iron, copper and stannous chloride. Many of these chemicals would be readily available in a pioneer household, Casselman said, because they were needed for use in the home remedies of the day.

The first chemical dyes were invented in the late 19th Century. The very first of these was a chemical which produced a lavendar shade, originally worn by Queen Victoria.

Technology has progressed since then to the point where there is computer software available for use in working out dyeing formulas. The advantage offered by the software is the ability to match shades exactly.

The tie-dye craze of the late 1960s was a revival of an ancient Asian technique, Casselman said. To introduce children to the craft, Kool-Aid can be used as a dye. "You don't have to worry about them even drinking it," Casselman said.

For other types of dyes, more caution is advisable, however. She advised everyone to use gloves and to treat chemicals with care.

"You're not settlers," Casselman said. "I was known as having rainbow hands when I worked at the village, because we didn't use rubber gloves."

Flyers take the pennant!

EMBRUN (Staff) - It took the Chesterville Jr. C Flyers three years to get to the doorstep of the Eastern Ontario Jr. C championship. It took leftwinger Terry Barkley less than seven minutes Tuesday night to open the door.

Barkley scored three times before a packed crowd at the Embrun Community Centre to lead the Flyers to a 6-4 victory over Embrun 72s and clinch the best of seven series in five games.

The victory, the Flyers' fourth straight after losing the series opener 8-6, set off an on-ice celebration of dancing and hugging that continued into the dressing room with champagne showers.

Following the same come-from-behind pattern that had become a Flyers trademark during the playoffs, Chesterville fell behind 3-2 in the first period before capitalizing on powerplay opportunities in the second and third to put away the game.

The 72s outshot the Flyers in the game 47-21.

After placing third, only seven points away from the first place teams, Russell and Embrun, "It was not impossible to do what we did," said Flyers coach Mike Armstrong.

The Flyres biggest break on the road to the championship was taking the semi-final series against the Russell Lions in five games. The shortened series gave the team a week's rest while St. Isidore and Embrun were embroiled in a full-length battle. By the time the 72s were ready for the Flyers, Chesterville had rested up for five days.

The hiatus, which included only short practices, gave Armstrong a chance to get injured players like Darrin Kelly and Kevin Moore back on their feet.

Despite the team's short break to catch it's wind, the 72s looked prepared to blast their way to the pennant, outscoring the Flyers 8-6. Embrun's league-leading scoring line of Alain Lapointe, Brad Spooner and Ivan Clement set the pace with five of the goals.

But the Flyers fought back with three straight wins by shadowing the line so effectively that by Tuesday night's game the three had increased their output by only two more goals.

In the first period of Tuesday's game, Flyers' captain Dale Simms set up the shot for the first goal as Kevin Moore plugged it in at 13:27. Carl Bartholomew wasn't satisfied with just one goal as he finished off a scoring play from teammate Sean O'Connor, giving Chesterville an early 2-0 lead on a power play at 11:49 in the first period.

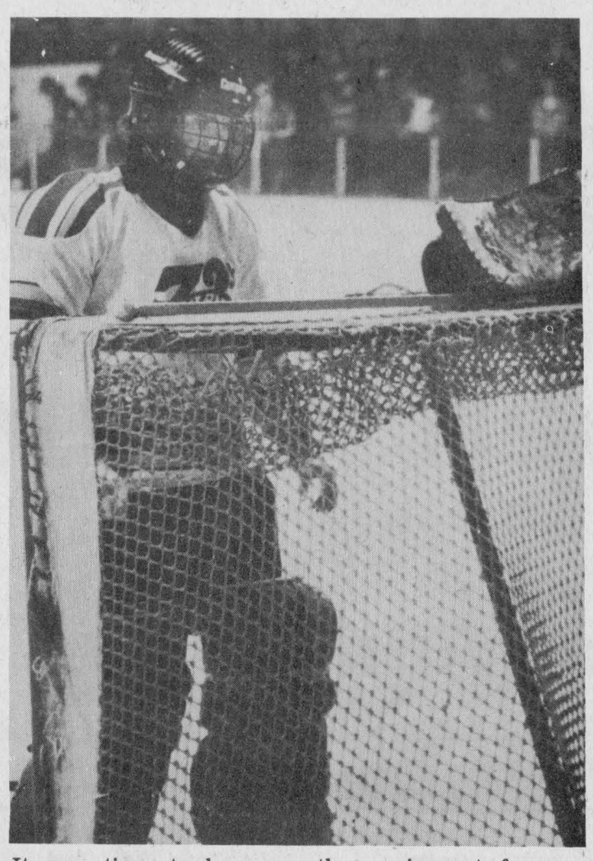
The it was Embrun's turn to shine for their home crowd as Mario Adam banged in a pass coming from Marc Gigniac and Ben Boulerice at 6:54. Embrun captain David Clement made the offensive punch for the team's second goal on a power play with Raymond Lavergne and Adam making the assists, to tie up the match 2-2 at 3:52 in the first period. Then to break away from a tie with a little more than a minute left in the period was Embrun's Gigniac with a power play goal with a lone assist from Brad Spooner.

It was halfway into the second period before anyone scored, as Chesterville's Vince Cousineau shot in a rebound that deflected off Embrun's goalie pads, as Mark Beishem and Mark Guy collected the assists. Terry Barkley started off his hat trick with a goal at 6:54 in the second period as Mark Guy and Cousineau combined on the assist in a scramble in front of the net

Then just as Cousineau came out of the penalty box for a slashing penalty, the 72s capitalized on their scoring chances on a power play goal at 5:36 on the clock in the second period.

With three seconds left in the second period, after fast skating and plenty of body contact the Flyer's Barkley slapped in a power play goal from close range to snap the 4-4 tie.

Chesterville, with the narrow lead after the second period, clinched the game and the series on a third power play goal as Barkley completed his hat-trick.



It was time to hang up the equipment for a distraught Embrun goalie, Pierre Cousineau.

Newington wins title with dramatic finish

FINCH (Staff) - Newington fans chanted "the Ton is number one" and number one they are, after downing Avonmore 6-4 in the final game of the best of seven series Sunday to take the North Stormont Intermediate Hockey League championship.

In the seven game series, a phenomenal 106 goals were scored, averaging to 11 goals per game. If the fans were surprised by the carnage of goals, the players were no less surprised. Even Newinton's player-coach David Bancroft didn't know the reason why things broke loose.

Pregame jitters got the best of Newington as one of the players was physically ill before even going on the ice. "I was confident going into the series," said Bancroft. "In the regular season we played against Avonmore six times and only lost one game. But obviously some of Newington's players were not as confident.

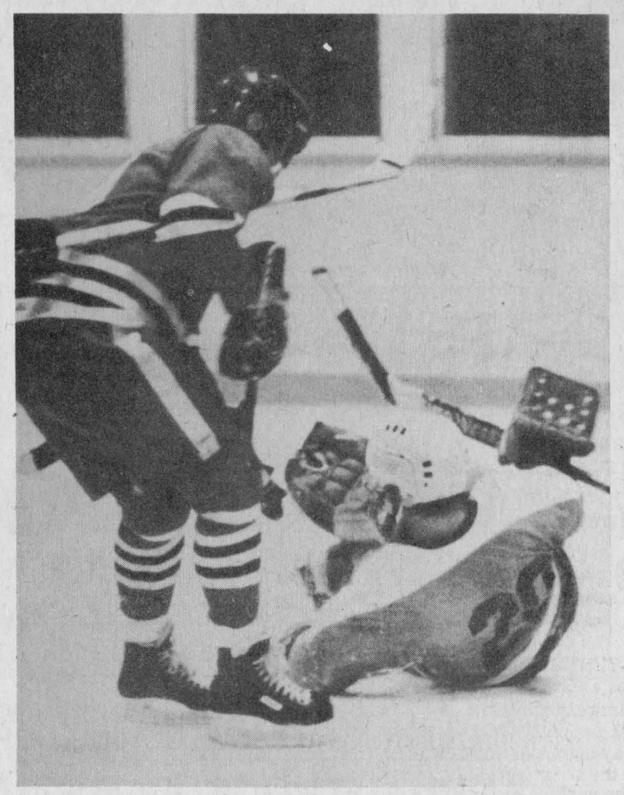
The series went out on a limb as Avonmore came back in game six of the series defeating Newington 10-3. But after the seventh and final game Newington wrapped up the victory in the last dying moments of the third period.

Newington opened the scoring with the two former Winchester Hawks players, Grant Simpson and Daryll Shelp, powering together for the goal at 7:50 in the first period.

Avonmore's Jeff Johnston and Rick Lalonde assisted on the tying goal at 6:11 as Miles Amelotte plugged the puck into the net, leaving the score tied 1-1 after first period action.

In the second period both teams took a breather with no goals scored, to lead into the fast moving third period.

Ed Gove scored unassisted at 17:49 to lift Newington to a 2-1 lead, with a wrist shot between the legs of Avonmore's goalie, Blake Henderson. Newington's Shelp blasted through the defense for the teams third goal as he deked the last defenseman and banged in a goal at 13:18 in the third period.



Newington's goalie Bruce Quail played in Sunday's game despite his injured shoulder from a previous game, making the needed saves for the 6-4 championship victory over Avonmore.

Avonmore charged back at 10:32 as Rick Lalonde took a slapshot from the top of the circle and found a hole in the top corner of the net with a screened shot.

Teammate Randy McRae took over the puck, which seemed to have eyes as it managed to get in between the post and the goalie from a shot behind the net, to bring the score to a 3-3 tie.

Then at 9:16 Avonmore took the lead as Dave Rumer took a centering pass from Johnston and banged in the tie-breaking goal for a 4-3 lead.

With the 4-3 lead an Avonmore fan yelled "blow your horn now Newington," pointing to the scoreboard, and blow their horn they did with a three-goal comeback.

Ed Gove flipped in a rebound on a deflection of the nets' post for the 4-4 tying goal at 8:13.

Then Simpson received a pass in front of the net from Terry Gove and swished it between Henderson's legs to power Newington to a one goal lead at 2:21.

With a minute and a half left in the period, Avonmore pulled their goalie. Newington's Shelp then took the puck for the last goal of the season and shot it in at 1:06 in the third frame, lifting Newington to a 6-4 championship victory.

Osnabruck defeats Finch

FINCH (Staff) - Osnabruck Senior girls narrowly defeated Finch on Thursday as they took a 3-2 championship victory.

Osnabruck started off the scoring with a goal shot in by Kristie Fetterly at 11:28 in the first period, assisted by teammate Robin Flegg. Then Osnabruck widened their lead as Melinda Witteveen scored unassisted, giving Osnabruck an early 2-0 lead in the first period.

Finch started to make their comeback in the second period as Tammy Rainey finished off a scoring play set up by Kelly Shaver. Wendy Shaver then made the tying goal at 2:56 in the second as Kelly Shaver made the pass for the assist.

The score remained tied 2-2 so overtime was played. No goals were scored in the three minute overtime, advancing the game into sudden-death overtime.

Osnabruck's Carol Prieur scored the overtime goal after two minutes gone, to lift the Osnabruck team to a 3-2 sudden-death overtime championship victory.

Hauch honored by province

TORONTO (Staff) - Commonwealth Games bronze medalist Rose Marie Hauch was awarded an athletic achievement honor at the 18th annual Provincial Sports Award Banquet here April 12.

The 25-year-old Chesterville shot putter was joined by Olympic gold medalist Alex Baumann of Sudbury (swimming) and Larry Cain of Oakville (rowing) and 400 other athletes from across Ontario.

The awards are presented to amateur athletes in the province who win individual or team sport titles in national and international competition.

Hauch, the current national champion in women's shot put, narrowly missed out on being included on the Canadian team for the Los Angeles Olympics. She won the bronze medal in the event at the Commonwealth Games in Brisbane, Australia

Rose Marie Hauch

Living in Toronto for the last two years to devote her time to training. Hauch was a gold medal athlete at North Dundas District High School and an All-American at the University of Tennessee.

Tourism and Recreation minister Claude Bennett praised the athletes for their determination and sacrifice and described them as "individuals dedicated to sports excellence and good citizenship."

Bennett added that Ontario's achievements in amateur sports during 1984 were outstanding. Athletes from the province made up more than 50 per cent of Canada's winter and summer Olympic Games teams.

Late-season additions turned team's slow start around

CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - The Chesterville Jr. C Flyers' regular season was a long and winding road up until defenceman Vince Cousineau, leftwinger Terry Barkley and centre Jerrold Boulanger were added to the players list shortly before the January signing date.

The three players, who formerly belonged to a Jr. B team, instantly became the team navigators with some needed offensive punch.

For the Flyers, a three-year-three-year-old franchise that had been molded and worked from beginning by coach Mike Armstrong, the first half of the season was a roller coaster ride that had fans wondering whether they had a contender or a pretender on their hands.

The Flyers started off on the wrong skating foot in the early matches of the season, but then shortly picked up the pace. By Nov. 14 they were tied for second place.

Then there was another lull. A month later they were in fourth place among the league's seven teams, still in contention but falling behind league-leading Russell.

Then Cousineau, Boulanger and Barkley came on the scene.

With the addition of three proven scorers, to the team's already firm defence, the Flyers mounted an attack on the league with a winning streak that boosted them up to third place by the end of the regular season.

Using a tough, hard-hitting game plan, Chesterville entered the semi-finals against the former champion Russell Lions Russell, who went into the series sharing the regular season lead with Embrun, lost the best-of-five match 3-1.

The series victory was more than a confidence builder for the Flyers. It was a needed breather for a team hit by injuries. While St. Isidore was taking Embrun the full length of their series, the Flyers got five days to rest up.

Chesterville stayed with their game plan against Embrun in the finals despite an opening 8-6 loss. Stressing aggressive play around the boards and at the blue line, Armstrong came back in the second game with a shadow line against Embrun's top scorers and added goalie Grant Groves to take away the 72s' game.

Despite consistently outshooting the Flyers, Embrun never came close again to their first game output. The Flyers took the pennant with four straight victories.

High costs may force Jr. C registration fees

(Staff) - Hockey clubs within the Eastern Ontario Jr. C hockey league are being forced to spend as much as $24,000 a year to keep teams on the ice and league president Alex Ferguson says financing is reaching a breaking point.

With soaring costs in equipment and ice time, Ferguson said it has become impossible to raise enough gate revenue from the teams' 17 home games to cover debts.

Unlike minor hockey league systems, where registration fees are levied to defer costs, Jr. C executives have to try to come up with the money themselves through fundraisers.

According to Ferguson, fairly hefty fees will have to be introduced in the next few years "or the league is done".

"We haven't really talked about the financial problems. Some teams are hesitant to talk about it. But we know they are there when you're looking at costs of $300 a game."

According to Mike Armstrong, coach of the Chesterville Jr. C Flyers, the expense in a single season can be staggering.

Players are responsible for providing their own transportation, paying $5 for hockey sticks and providing their equipment, not including sweaters, hockey pants and socks. The team's executive picks up the rest of the costs.

Ice time is the biggest expense. At $45 an hour, a home game chews up more than $100. Practices come on top of that.

Referees charge $25 a game and linesmen receive $18 each. In addition, they receive 18 cents a kilometre for travelling to and from the rink.

Sticks, at $160 a dozen, are subsidized by management. Practice pucks cost 49 cents each and the Flyers go through between 10 and 15 dozen a year.

Add to this rolls of black tape ($4.25 a roll), sweaters, pants and socks.

"Running a team is like running a business," says Armstrong. "I'd like to win the championship or break even for my effort."

To raise money, the team management routinely meets to find sponsors to help absorb the cost. Dances are organized throughout the year and fundraisers like 50-50 draws have become a staple of home games as a complement to the gate receipts.

This year, even the combination of fundraisers wasn't enough to make ends meet. The team is hoping to make up the shortfall with a draw on a trip worth $1,500.

Red wins overtime

(Staff) - In Town League Hockey played on Friday night Blue edged Red Army in a 3-2 overtime victory leaving the team, feeling anything but like their name.

Last Wednesday's game left the series tied with five points each in the best of seven series.

Don Fawcett and Jim Tuttle were the marksmen for Red Army with one goal and one assist each. Red Army doubled Blue 4-2 bringing the series down the wire for the seventh and final game.

The first period opener was scored by Blue's Lyle Servage with a goal at 9:24 with an assist from Doug Coleman.

The game continued with no goals scored until 3:47 in the second when Dave Coleman banged in Blues second and final goal as teammates Pat Moran and Doug Coleman set up the shot.

Red Army's Kevin Lefebvre retaliated at 2:26 in the second frame as he notched their first goal with Bill Moran and Dan Kelly combined for the assist.

Then in the third period Jim Tuttle broke through the defensive barrier to tie up the match 2-2 at 9:14 on the clock. Bill Moran scored the tie-breaking goal for Red Army one minute later as Tuttle passed the goal-making assist, giving Red Army a 3-2 lead. Terry Kittner added an insurance goal to lift Red Army to a 4-2 victory over Blue.

In Thursday's game the story reversed in favor of Blue as they turned on the red light for an overtime win to take the championship.

Blue started off the scoring in the first period as Greg Beckstead posted the first goal with the assists coming from Servage and Pat Imrie.

Then at 9:42 Red Army poured on the offense with Curtis McMillan plugging in their first goal to tie up the match 1-1.

In the second frame Red Army took the lead with a goal at 12:31 as Mike Guy and Bill Moran set up the shot.

Red Army had the lead 2-1 until halfway into the third frame. Then Blue bounced back as Rick Grisel led the squad to a 2-2 tie.

The game remained tied after the third period so the game advanced to overtime.

Blue came out victorious as Servage plugged in the winning goal a third of the way into overtime as Imrie passed the winning puck for Blue.

Blue won the 1985 Town League Championship as they defeated Red Army in the seventh and final game on Thursday night. Packers stave off elimination CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - Winchester Cheese 'Packers' staved off elimination in their six-point playoff series against Hydro on Monday night, shocking them 4-3 to set the series at 5-3 for Hydro.

The winning goal came with just 30 seconds left in the last period when Bill Mullins scored on a play set up by Peter Nooyen and Mike Armstrong.

Mullins had tied the score at 3-3 less than a minute earlier when he combined with Steve Plummer and Paul Nooyen for the equalizer.

The game was a see-saw battle right from the opening whistle, with Hydro fighting to end the series and claim the championship and the Packers battling hard to bet back into the series and force extra games.

Doug Wilson opened the scoring for Hydro early into the first period with Dean McIntosh earning the assist. This 1-0 lead held until the 12-minute mark of the second period when Danny Lecours put the Packers on the scoreboard on a goal set up by Mick McMillan.

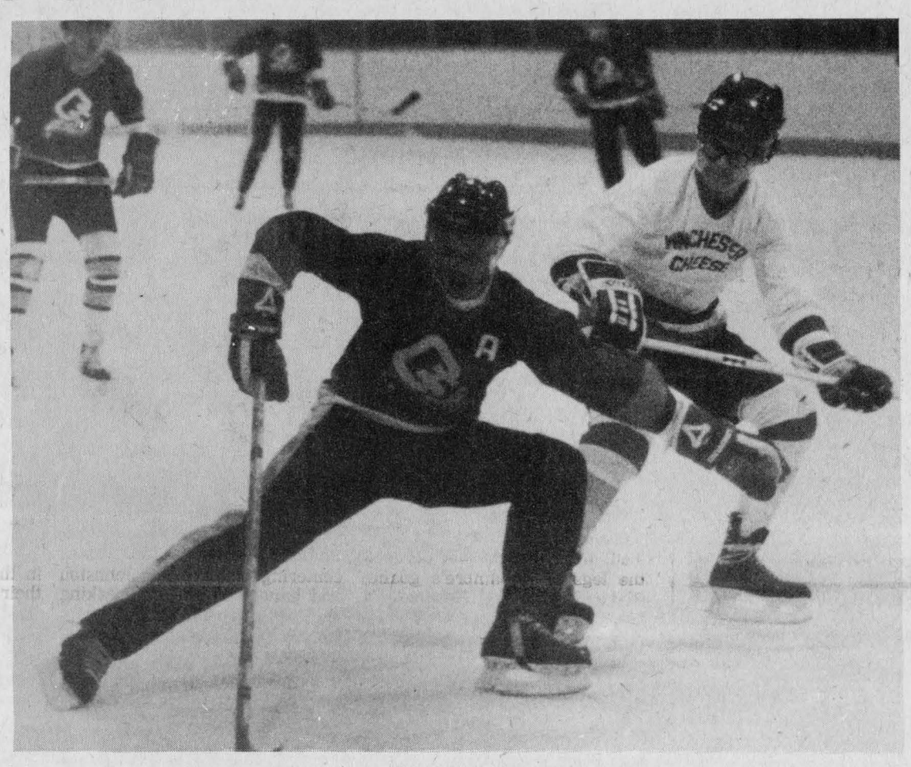
The score remained tied until the midway mark of the final period when Peter Nooyen put the Packers ahead 2-1 on an unassisted effort.

Hydro made it 2-2 with just 3:57 left in regular time when Dean McIntosh snapped in a shot off a pass from Doug Wikson. Then with only 1:39 left on the clock Hydro took a 3-2 lead on a goal by Terry Kittner with assists going to Dean McIntosh and Dave Tait.

Just 26 seconds later, and with 1:13 left in the game, Mullins scored the first of his two final-minute goals to tie the score and then notch the winner.

It was a hard-skating, clean-fought contest throughout, with only eight penalties, four to each team, being called.

The fifth game of the series was played Tuesday night (last night) at the Chesterville arena.



Hydro's Keith McRoberts tries to sweep around Winchester Cheese' defenceman Don Crowder in tight-checking action in last week's game which ended in a 1-1 tie.

Two goals by Smith lead Berwick to title

FINCH (Staff) - The captain of the Berwick Ladies Broomball team, Lorna Smith earned her title with a two-goal-effort in overtime in Wednesday's game, played at the Finch Arena, as she led her team to a 2-1 victory over Finch to clinch the Ladies Broomball Championship for their third year in a row.

Berwick pulled ahead in the best of seven series with 3 games under their belt and Finch with only two. Then within a games reach of the championship the Berwick squad won the series four games to two.

All through the game the ball went from one end of the ice to the other but no shots on the net managed to penetrate either of the goalies reach in regular game time.

The game went into overtime with four players on each team and no goalies.

In the three minute overtime Finch's Sharon MacLeod finished off a scoring play set up by Shelly Brisebois after one minute of overtime play, giving Finch a 1-0 lead.

Berwick Ladies continued to chip away at the ball until 44 seconds were left on the clock. Smith, assisted by Kathleen Wheeler managed to slam the ball into the net for a 1-1 tie in a scramble in front of the net.

Ten seconds later Smith was carrying the ball again as she brought the ball within close range of the net and hammered in the winning goal, to lift the Berwick team to a 2-1 victory over Finch.
