UCV hosts shearing days

MORRISBURG — Here a sheep, there a sheep, everywhere a sheep, sheep! No, its not ole MacDonald's farm, but Loucks' Farm for Sheep Shearing Days at Upper Canada Village on June 5, 6, 7 and 8.

During the event, village sheep will be relieved of their winter coats and visitors will have a chance to see and participate in all steps of 1860's wool processing.

Leicester sheep, a popular breed in the 1860s known for its long wool, will be sheared during sheep shearing days at the main barn of the Village's Loucks' Farm.

The delicate process of shearing to relieve the sheep of their heavy winter coats takes about 20 minutes per animal. Modern children and adults alike will be fascinated by watching this traditional task at close range.

"Mr. Loucks" will also deliver the unwashed fleece to the woollen mill and visitors will be delighted to eavesdrop on his encounter and bartering with the mill owner, "Mr. Asselstine".

The water powered woollen mill will then take the wool through all processing steps, from the washing in the scouring tanks to the dying, picking, carding, spinning and weaving.

Village women at Loucks' Farm and the McDiarmid House will be kept quite busy with knitting, spinning and weaving. Visiting children are welcome to take a whirl at the spinning wheel as well.

Admission to Upper Canada Village is $9 for adults, $5.50 for senior citizens, $6 for students, $3.75 for children six to 12 years of age and children five years of age and under are admitted free.

Upper Canada Village is located 11 km east of Morrisburg off Hwy. 2 (exit 758 off Hwy. 401) and is open from 9:30am to 5pm daily.

Farm update

Good results reported from planting sorghum sudangrass

by Paul Sullivan
Crops Advisor

Winterkill has depleted forage supplies on many farms during the last four years. A few farmers have reported good results from planting a sorghum sudangrass hybrid when caught with a shortage of roughage.

The following points outline some suggestions for growing the crop.

Planting date: Requires a warm seedbed to germinate (18 C). This would be the last week of May to June 1. Could be planted after a first cut of hay is harvested where winterkill has thinned a stand to the extent it is not worth keeping.

Seeding: At the time of seeding, dry soil conditions may delay germination. Seeding depth should be at one to one and one-half inches. Most are using a grain drill set to drill box seeding charts. Seeding rates of around 20 lbs. per acre are recommended. Seed costs run about $20 per acre.

Fertility: Nitrogen is the main nutrient of concern. Fertility requirements are similar to those for corn. Some are putting on 100 lbs. per acre of nitrogen preplant or splitting nitrogen 60 lbs. per acre preplant and 50 lbs. per acre after first cut. Manure application and legume plowdown credits may reduce fertilizer needed for a good crop.

Weed control: I don't know that anything is registered. In most situations no herbicide is needed. The dense canopy and cutting will take care of weeds. Sorghum sudangrass will tolerate atrazine residue.

Seasonal growth: Planted by June 1, the crop should grow to a height of four feet by July 15 — with good growing conditions. After this stage, growth becomes very rapid and the plants will get very rank.

Cutting management: First cut should take place before heads are visible on the plants. At this stage quality of the forage will still be high and the material will be easier to physically handle. First cut should be ready by the last week of July. The second cut will be ready to cut after Sept. 10. Two cuts will not maximize yield but will provide quality forage to feed heifers or dry cows.

Yields: Work done at KCAT in the early 1980s with seven different varieties produced dry matter yields of 5,500 lbs. per acre on first cut and 6,100 lbs. per acre on second. This equates to an equivalent total silage yield of 13 tons per acre (40 per cent dry matter) over the two cuts. This was compared to about 10 tons per acre of silage with only one cut. A two-cut sorghum sudan crop will yield two-thirds to three-quarters of a crop of corn silage.

Quality: Many farm reports are suggesting protein levels around 16 per cent and energy levels equivalent to corn silage. This is achievable but only with good management. Protein levels can range from seven to 18 per cent. Similar to barley or oats, quality drops dramatically after heading. The crop should be ensiled around 65 per cent moisture for proper fermentation. Forage material will need to be wilted to this moisture level. Some farmers taking only one cut have left the sorghum dry in a windrow and made round bales. In most cases this material is very coarse in texture.

Concerns: The main concern with sorghum sudangrass is the production of prussic acid that will poison cattle. This is concentrated in young plants, regrowth and also in crops under stress, e.g. extreme drought or frosted material. The ensiling process will deteriorate prussic acid and this is not as much of a concern as feeding fresh forage.

Harvest management is of upmost inportance. Adhering to strict cutting of first cut is important to maintaining quality.

Seeing as research suggests lower yields than corn silage, does the quality difference offset the yield disadvantage?

Dairy Club holds second meeting

by Steve Bossel

MOUNTAIN — The second West Dundas Dairy Club meeting was held Mon., April 26 at 7:30pm on the Velthius farm.

Our president, Kelly Fawcett, called the meeting to order and we recited the 4-H pledge.

She turned the meeting over to secretary Amber Mooney.

We proceeded to the barn and the roll call was made. The question posed: Name one thing that is needed in the house of a healthy dairy calf. We continued with the minutes. There were no errors or omissions.

The meeting was turned over to our leader, Cathy. We then moved along with the club program. The issue discussed was ventilation. It was then we introduced our guest speaker, Rita Velthius.

She talked about the ventilation in their barn and the different types of ventilation available. Cathy gave out flyers on ventilation and Robert Velthius gave a brief report on calf hutches and their ventilation systems, problems, advantages and disadvantages.

In the second part of the program we discussed the pros and cons of tie-stall and free-stall barns and were asked the question if we were to buy a farm today with 100 cows what would you have, a tie-stall or free-stall?

We were given Purina growth charts and tape measures to record the growth of our calf.

The meeting was turned back over to Kelly who thanked the Velthuis family. She then adjourned the meeting. Refreshments and other goodies were offered at the house.

Alfalfa crops benefit from manure applications.

Study indicates value of preplant manure application

by Phyllis MacMaster
Agricultural Representative
Dundas County

The University of Minnesota has been conducting a study to assess preplant application of manure prior to direct seeding of alfalfa. Up to 1,200 gallons of swine or dairy manure were broadcast prior to planting. These applications of manure were compared to plots that had commercial fertilizer applied to give equivalent N, P and K amounts. A control site was also included at all sites.

In all areas treatments with manure or fertilizer gave significantly higher yields than the control area (no fertilizer or manure). The manured plots gave on average up to 10 per cent higher yield than the corresponding fertilizer plots. This indicates that some other nutrient (other than N, P or K) or property in manure was beneficial to forage yield. It should be noted that weed pressures were greater in manure treated plots until after the first cutting.

Soil nitrate concentrations were greater for the treated plots (manure and fertilizer). For manure applications of 6,000 gallons per acre the soil nitrate concentrations declined rapidly and the effect was minimal after five months. At the 12,000 gallon per acre rate the effect of soil nitrate had minimized by 12 to 17 months after application.

Manure can be a valuable farm resource. OMAF offers a manure analysis at a cost of $30 per sample. Sample kits are available at the OMAF office in Winchester.

Caution advised when making ration changes

by Dr. Rob Tremblay, D.V.M.
OMAF, Kemptville

Dairy producers should be cautious if they plan to implement nutritional changes aimed at lowering their herd fat test and increasing protein test.

Many recommendations suggest changing ration components and feeding practices. Dairy cows are healthier and most productive when their diet and eating habits are maintained as constant as possible.

Abrupt changes can lead to impaired productivity and also lead to health problems. Ketosis, laminitis, acidosis, displaced abomasum (twisted stomach) and indigestion are more common following sudden changes in the ration or feeding programs.

If you are considering making changes to lower fat test, consult with your veterinarian before making the changes and plan ahead so the changes can be made as gradually as possible.

Osgoode Legion donations acknowledged

by Garnet Quail
News Correspondent

METCALFE— Members of Royal Canadian Legion Branch 589, Osgoode were on hand at the Township of Osgoode Care Centre recently, to take part in a ceremony acknowledging purchases made with a $6,000 Legion donation.

Legion branch President Ron Dutfield, Service Officer Jim Johnston and Membership Chairperson Joan Kelly represented the Legion branch as they showed off the equipment purchased with the monetary gift.

The most expensive of the acquisitions was a unit known as a Dextra lift. It is used to help manage the movement of incapacitated individuals.

This piece of machinery carries a price tag of more than $4,600. Two shower chairs, a geriatrics chair, a wedge and a glucometre were also acquired with the money.

According to Care Centre Adminstrator Sandra Hollington, "We have already made great use of the Dextra lift. A training program into its proper use has been instituted and the machine is certainly making life easier for staff and residents alike.

"It is the thoughtful assistance of groups like the Royal Canadian Legion which makes our job here easier."

In another presentation on Tues., May 18, the three legion members made a separate, but equally well received, donation to the ongoing efforts of Osgoode Township Home Support.

The program's administrator, Carol Halstead and volunteer Marjorie Robinson accepted a cheque in the amount of $2,000 to support that organization.

The Home Support program coordinates such programs as Meals on Wheels, seniors shopping excursions and activities throughout the township aimed at enhancing seniors' lifestyles.

The Osgoode Legion representatives made a donation to the Township of Osgoode Care Centre recently. From the left are Service Officer Jim Johnston, Membership Chairperson Joan Kelly and Legion President Ron Dutfield presenting $6,000 worth of equipment to TOCC Board President Lloyd Scarth and Administrator Sandra Hollington.

"Lost Villages" story to be told

MORRISBURG — Until the waters came, the land upon which the "Lost Villages" lay was originally Loyalist country.

The area known as Upper Canada was home to several small communities until the flood waters came creeping up.

To preserve the story of the "Lost Villages", the Lost Villages Society and the Save Ontario Shipwrecks (S.O.S.) diving club, along with the Parks of the St. Lawrence, is inviting the public to the unveiling of the "Lost Villages" display located on the west end of MacDonell Island on the Long Sault Parkway on Sun., June 6 at 2pm.

The exhibition depicts the story of the Lost Villages through descriptions and a series of pictures that will take visitors back to the 1950s to the days before and after the flooding of the St. Lawrence.

Visitors may witness how entire towns, homes and even graveyards were relocated and how this changed the shape of the Eastern Ontario map.

The Lost Villages display is a three-year co- operative effort between the Lost Villages Society and the Parks of the St. Lawrence.

This joint effort was initiated to help immortalize the heritage of what was Upper Canada and to tell the tale of a river - the mighty St. Lawrence - and how it was tamed in order to provide power, as well as maintain its original purpose of transportation and recreational use.

During the ceremony, members of the society and local officials will be on hand to take part. Admission to the Long Sault Parkway is $6 per car.

MacDonell Island on the Long Sault Parkway is located approximately 3 km from the Long Sault (east) entrance off Highway No. 2 (Exit 778 off Highway No. 401).

Please call 613-543-3704 for more information on summer events and programs happening at the Parks of the St. Lawrence.

But not the same, since we lost you.
— Edith and family

You will never be forgotten.
— Always in our hearts, Allen and family

Students must be realistic

Elizabeth Moreau
Special to the Press

CORNWALL — Students in the United Counties looking for summer jobs will have to set realistic goals if they expect to find work, says the supervisor of the Canada Employment Centre for Students.

The centre wants to place 1,000 students over the summer. It has already found work for about 100, and has another 600 more on file waiting for jobs. But much of the available work is temporary, and involves doing odd jobs like yard work and general maintenance. One woman called the centre to hire students to move old railroad ties off her property.

But Carolyn Sayyeau says many students who register at the centre, especially those in college and university, want to work in their field of study.

"A lot of the problem is that many of the students are being a little bit fussy....There are a lot of things they just won't do."

About three-quarters of the students placed by the centre have found full-time work for the summer. But requests from employers looking for people to hire are down from last year, Sayyeau adds.

"We haven't had that many job orders," she says. "It's so difficult. We call everyone we know, call the ones from last year, and pound the pavement. But a lot of people are suffering."

Sayyeau says the calibre of students on the job market is "excellent," and that many are educated, experienced and skilled. But they cannot expect to find high-paying summer jobs.

"The big office jobs at $15 an hour don't exist for the full-time employees, so they certainly don't exist for students," she says.

Sayyeau says students should "be realistic about what is out there. If they really want to go back to school so badly, which is what they all tell us, then they should say, 'maybe this summer I'll just have to do a job to make some money.'"

Some of the highest paying jobs available, Sayyeau notes, are on farms.

The Cornwall centre serves students and employers throughout Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, and Sayyeau says many students have been placed outside the city of Cornwall.

She says success in the job market will depend largely upon students' attitude.

"The ones who are really getting jobs are the ones who are really trying."

Golden Years celebrates 20 years

Liz Edwards
Press Staff Reporter

WINCHESTER — Since 1978, Myrna Cinnamon has been busy the third Thursday of almost every month.

It's the time the Golden Years Society — Winchester's social club for seniors — meets with its members. Cinnamon, 79, joined the club in 1978. With numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren, Cinnamon has few problems keeping herself occupied but she says she welcomes the opportunity to get together with the club.

"I think it helps to keep people young and it gives you a chance to get to know your neighbors. It's the fellowship, I think is the main thing. I've enjoyed it," she says.

And this month on June 10, the group will be celebrating its 20th anniversary at the Lions Hall starting at 1:30pm. The program will includes musical entertainment, door prizes and a recitation of the club's history by Cinnamon. The society has invited 10 other seniors groups from around the area as well. A luncheon will be served around 4pm.

A group of about 35 residents formed the local club in 1973. Several other villages already had their own societies. Two years later the membership was more than double with 90 seniors and one time soared to 180. Now about 100 seniors are currently members. The group meets in the Winchester Lions Hall every month except for July and August.

"I think they started because seniors wanted something to do though our seniors say they've never been so busy in their lives as now," says Cinnamon. "Just being a senior citizen, there's everything going on for seniors."

The group has an official purpose written into its constitution which includes such aims as benefiting all seniors in the area, serving the community and speaking with one voice to government bodies at all levels.

The group's purpose is mainly entertainment. Card games, day trips and music nights are some of the activities the group arranges. The members have also occassionally raised money for a few causes.

"We don't do much because the club doesn't have much money, but we do give some," says Cinnamon.

The group charges $1 for each member for its monthly potluck lunch where a committee of six to eight members meets once a month for lunch to plan activities. A yearly membership costs $5 with $1 donated to the United Senior Citizen Group of Ontario which works with the government to address seniors concerns.
