Chesterville Man President

Mr. F. E. Price, manager of the local branch of Molsons Bank, skip of the Chesterville bowlers competing in the Eastern Bowling tournament in Ottawa last week, was signally honored at the annual meeting of the Eastern Association by being unanimously elected President for the ensuing year. Let Chesterville enthusiasts get behind the new President and provide greens worthy of the bowlers.

Chesterville Public School

Sr. III to Jr. IV—Kathleen Bogart, Addie Campderros x, Ramon Campderros x, Bruce Harper x, Mabel Henderson x.

Note—Of the above, those with an x following the name, will be granted certificates upon showing their ability to continue in the work of the class to which they have been promoted. The remainder will receive their certificates when school re-opens in September.

Chesterville Bowlers Rank High

At the Eastern Lawn Bowling tournment finished in Ottawa last week the rink of Chesterville bowlers had the distinction of being the only rink outside of the city to reach the finals in any match. Altogether there were fifty-four rinks competing including entries from Montreal and many of the surrounding towns. The Chesterville representatives took third place when it became necessary for them to default on the deciding contest, on account of members of the rink being unable to remain over until the following day to continue play. In accepting third place prizes of cut glass butter dishes fell to the lot of players.

Following are the total scores in the games played:—

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Price | 15 | Shore | 13 |
| Price | 14 | Bethune | 6 |
| Hurd | 18 | Price | 14 |
| Price | 17 | Shore | 15 |
| Price | 19 | Couger | 5 |
| Smith | 15 | Price | 12 |
| Price | 11 | Stevens | 10 |
| Price | 21 | Torry | 13 |
| Dr. Milne | 17 | Price | 12 |

The Chesterville rink was made up of W. O. Dixon, Geo. Barker, Dr. Hutt. F. E. Price, skip.

Without practice it is some achievement to go so far among the best bowlers of Eastern Ontario, and shows with a little more interest in the game in Chesterville great things might be achieved.

The greens that have been in use here since the inception of the game have not been of the best on account of the lack of proper soil and means of watering to keep them in the proper condition.

Some time ago the Masonic and Oddfellows lodges passed resolutions granting the use of the ground at the rear of their fine building on North Main street for making a first class green, but it has not yet been taken advantage of.

The suggestion is now made that these societies take a hold of the matter and have the greens put in proper shape this fall for next spring and continue the care and up-keep of them for their members, allowing non-members of the orders the privileges on payment of an annual fee. It is felt that this plan would ensure the continuity of the game in Chesterville and at the same time provide many hours amusement for the members who are in the habit of arriving early at their lodge rooms during the summer months.

CARD OF THANKS

Through the medium of the Record I desire to extend to the Monarch Fire Insurance Company my sincere thanks for their very satisfactory adjustment and payment of my claim through Mr. Clement, for the loss of my two horses which were killed by lightning during the thunderstorm last month. The Government's Conversion Scheme

The attention of the holders of the five and a half per cent war loan bonds maturing December 1st 1922, is directed to the offer of the Minister of Finance to renew the loan on favorable terms. The last Canadian loan was placed in New York at a satisfactory price. The Minister is making his present financial operation entirely a domestic one by offering to exchange the maturing bonds for new bonds bearing the same rate of interest, running for either five years or ten years as the bondholder may prefer. A further inducement to the investor is that he receives a bonus of one month's interest. The terms offered are decidedly favourable to the investor and it is probable that a large part of the maturing loan will be renewed. Arrangements for the exchange of the bonds can be made at any branch of the chartered banks. Holders who do not wish to reinvest will be paid in cash on the 1st December.

Ontario to Have Bumper Fruit Crop

Fruit and vegetable crop prospects throughout Canada appear bright according to the report of the fruit branch of the Department of Agriculture for August. This report, which covers all the provinces of the Dominion, shows that the apple crop in Ontario will probably be thirty per cent larger than that of last year, while pears, peaches and plums will all yield a considerably larger orop thau in 1921 For peaches and plums a full crop, forty percent larger than that of last year, is forcast. The apple crop iu Quebec will probably be 75 per cent in excess of that for 1921, while a good crop of potatoes is expected from 235,000 acres sown to this vegetable. New Brunswick expects a crop of apples 25 per cent larger than that of last year, while Prince Edward Island reports that the early potato acreage is considerably increased over that of last vear. The apple crop of Nova Scotia will probably be only 75 per cent of last years crop, but the fruit is sizing well and is generally clean. The oondition of potatoes in this province is reported as being excellent.

The Purpose of Punishment

Brantford Expositor—A railway mail clerk has beeu sentenced at Calgary to three years in the penitentiary for opening a letter aud stealing 50 cents. In the olden days a man who was sentenced to death for stealing a horse complained to the judge; "It's very hard my lord, to hang a man for stealing a horse," to which the judge replied; You are not to be hanged for stealing a horse but in order that horses may not be stolen." The sanctity of His Majesty's mails must be kept inviolate at all costs.

Oily Rags Cause of Fire Which Destroyed Church

Deputy Fire Marshal William Poyton has investigated the fire that almost totally destroyed St. Martin's Church, in Ennismore, a week ago, and found that the cause was combustion of oily rags, left in the vestry. Persons cleaning the church left rags soaked in raw linseed oil used in polishing the woodwork and furnishings in a pile, and combustion took place, the fire marshal found. The loss is placed at over $50,000. The church was fifty years old and of brick construction.

Boy Scouts Save Property In Novel Way at Fire

Practical and spectacular results were not long in following the breaking up of the Gillwell Scoutmasters' Training Course for Ontario, conducted in Ottawa a few weeks ago by Mr. Rodney Wood, of England, famous scout and big game hunter. Those present at the camp in which the training was given represented practically every scouting centre in Ontario, and among them was Scoutmaster Bert Bell, of London, Ont. On his return to his own troop in London, Mr. Bell assisted by Troop Leader Rodds, arranged a hike through the country surrouuding London for his boys. On this hike while encamped near a large barn they were overtaken by a heavy electrical thunderstorm, a bolt of which struck the barn, and burnt to the ground. The barn was filled with valuable farm machinery at the time which the scouts immediately set about removing from danger Before the, fire gained complete mastery of the building, they were able to save a large part of the machinery but it soon became so hot that none could enter the barn. Mr. Bell then remembered at the training camp in Ottawa, the art of throwing the lariat. Standing in comparative safety he was able to lasso equipment which the scouts dragged to safety. In this way all the machinery in the barn was saved to the owner.

In the opinion of scouting authorities this is but one incident proving the value of the instruction given by Mr. Wood to the men who were fortunate enongh to receive it. Mr. Wood on leaving Ottawa, went to the maritime Provinces where he conducted a similar series of training camps. He is at present in Manitoba, engaged in his work, after which he will go to Sasketchewan, Alberta and British Columbia

County Editor Has Bigger Audience Than Rural Preacher

Everybody has written about the trials and tribulations of the country editor, but a few have written about his joys, says the Elizabethtown (N. J.) News.

He stands ahead of the preacher, the lawyer and the public speakers because he never talks to empty benches, but speaks in all the homes where his paper goes. He never makes impromptu speeches which generally disgust the audience, but writes with deliberation and premeditation. The preachers influence for good seldom reaches farther than his congregation, while the editor's field for good reaches all the congregation's in the county.

The lawyer makes a great speech in the court house and only one or two hundred persons hear him, but when the editor writes a good editorial it is copied in various papers in the state.

The editor distributes more flowers than a florist, and he asks nothing in return for them but thanks. The editor has an opportunity to do the individual citizen a service and he never hesitates to do it if consistent with his obligations to the public. The editor has the greatest opportunity to convert men and women to his way of thinking on public questions. As the lighthouse on the shore warns the ships from the rock the editor can warn the public from frauds and fakers.

The editor has the greatest opportunity to protect society from evil by standing for the law and creating public sentiment for it.

The editor never tires of boosting his town and county, and if both do not grow it is not his fault. He helps the deserving young men with words of commendation and restrains the old by words of warning.

His field of usefulness is broader than anyone else in the community, for his efforts for settlement he has a sufficient reward in seeing things get better.

He rejoices in his opportunity for service to his fellow man, his town and his country, and goes on his way rejoicing whether or not he gets any returns for it.

Tuberculous Glands

In a former article we said that no part of the body is immune from the attacks of tuberculosis. Many of the swellings that appear in the glands, especially in the glands of the neck, and that form an abscess are of tuberculous origin. That however, is not true of all of them; enlarged glands in the neck and in the jaw are common in children and when they appear it is most important that the cause should be discovered early and that medical advice should be sought without delay. The trouble may possibly come from a decayed tooth or from a diseased ear or from a diseased tonsil.

An unhealthy tonsil or tooth with an abscess at the root of it will serve as a trap for germs and will allow them to accumulate until they overflow and break out in some adjacent spot. A healthy tonsil acts as a filter for germs, but when it becomes diseased it is unable to do the work properly, and the germs invade other parts.

The glands themselves also act as filters, but if they are given too much work to do they become diseased. The glands in the neck should take care of the mouth and the pharynx, but evil germs gain access to those parts, and for that reason the seeds of tuberculosis often sow themselves in the glands. In scarlet fever and diphtheria the glands of the neck are often enlarged, and sometimes chronic swelling follows.

Usually an untreated glandular swelling slowly gathers and bursts, and if it is of tuberculous origin it discharges a thin matter with curdy lumps in it. When it is apparent that a glandular swelling is going to form an abscess it is better to have a surgeon treat it; then there will be much less scarring and deformity then there would be if the abscess were allowed to break of itself. After an abscess is broken it must be kept surgically clean with antiseptic dressings, the need for which often persists for a long time. Of course the first thing to do in the case of glandular trouble is to find out the cause of it and then, if the cause should prove to be connected with the teeth, the ears or the tonsils, remove it. If it should prove to be tuberculosis, fight it.

Just what can happen when a car is cranked with the clutch left in was shown in the business district of Ingersoll Tuesday afternoon. Joseph Wilson, from Folden's Corners, cranked up his car on King street west. It plunged ahead and did not stop until it bumped into the windows of A. Taylor's clothing store on Thames street, over 100 yards away. At the corner of King and Thames, the runaway car knocked down and passed over little Ralph McKillan, who was later taken to Alexander Hospital suffering from serious cuts about the head Wilson who was running backwards in front of the car in an effort to stop it, tripped over the Thames street curb and was also passed over by the car. He was still under it when it bumped the window casings and stopped. He was not seriously hurt.

Who Do You Tell?

Newspaper advertising is the greatest business getter there is. This is acknowledged by men who have tried it and know. People read advertisments in newspapers. They have been educated to do it.

We asked one of our business men the other day how his business was. "Very poor," he told us. "Have you a good stock?" we inquired. "I'll tell the world I have," he said. But he doesn't tell the world. He doesn't even tell the people here in his own home town, Consequently they read of the other fellow's goods and prices, and there they go and buy. The other tells the world in the proper way.

You can't all be Wanamakers, but you can advertise in proportion to your business. And the results will be sure if you advertise honestly and give service. A newspaper can bring people to your store, but it can't make the people buy your goods. Your clerks have that job, for a great deal depends on the service you give.

What is being done in the big cities can be done right in this town, if you will show the pep, give the service and advertise. Make the business good. You can do it by using printer's ink and that's what (to use a slang phrase) we hain't got nothing else but.

Drury Looking To Towns and Cities

The Globe Tuesday morning carried the following on its front page:

"Despite frequent denials of the Globe's stories Premier E. C. Drury has apparently at last definitely decided to drop the distinctive farmer character of the political movement which placed him in power at Queen's Park, and form a third party—a progressive party along the line of the two old parties, with town and city people taking a definite part.

"The first definite move toward 'broadening out' was taken secretely by the premier a month ago, and has only now become known. Premier Drury, it is stated, at that time, July 13, sent to practically every U.F.O. member, with one or two interesting exceptions, a communication practically suggesting the calling of a provincial Progressive convention, which, presumably, would organize a new party and draft a new platform.

"The Premier's letter to his member followers was worded as follows:

"Sir,—A proposal has come to me from friends of the Progressive party in the city of Toronto and in some other cities, looking toward the calling at some time in the not too distant future of a Progressive conventiou for the province of Ontario.

"It is recognized the strength of the Progressive party of Ontario is found in all the rural districts, but there are many in the villages, towns and cities who think as we do politically, and who will be willing and eager to aid us, when the time comes for a test of our strength in the province.

"With a view of enlisting the active aid of these urban friends, it has been proposed that a general convention should be called, which these would be invited to attend.

"First, however, it has been suggested that it would be well to get in touch with these urban friends and gnd out their views on the matter. With that end in view, I am writing you, asking you to send me, in confidence, a list of urban friends of the Progressive cause in your riding or in anv adjacent riding with which you may be acquainted, and which is not at present represented by a Progressive member.

"Your co-operation in this matter would be greatly appreciated, and will greatly I am sure, contribute to the success and strength of Progressivism in the Province of Ontario. Any list of urban friends you may send me will be treated as confidential, and I would ask you that you treat this letter in the same manner.

"And the reception which greeted the letter is said to be not so enthusiastic as the Premier had hoped for. The rank and file of the farmers are said to have become distrustful of the trend of events and see in the formation of a new party the eventual disappearance of the movement they fought so hard to get under way."

Courage

A distinction is often drawn, and usually with some unfairness, between moral courage and physical courage. Sometimes perhaps a person is so unimaginative or insensitive as not to be aware of any particular risk or danger to himself in the brave act that he performs and there may be some reason for makeing a distinction between moral courage and physical courage, though there might be even more reason for argueing that the act did not really reveal courage at all. But the degree to which people are imaginative or sensitive can never be determined; and when a man tries to stop a rnnaway horse or goes into a burning building to rescue a child or plunges into a deep and swift current to save a drowning person, it is reasonable to assume that he has some conception of the hazards of the undertaking. And it is hard to see why such an act or any other act that requires physical courage does not imply moral courage as well. For what is moral courage if it is not the fullfillment of the teaching that a man must sacrifice himself, his own interests, in defense of what he instinctively feels to be right?

It is true that there are instances of men who have shown great personal heroism in risking their lives for others and who yet have dishonored themselves by stealing or cheating or in other ways. The moral courage that enabled them to meet successfully the sudden test was not of the fibre that could withstand disintegrating processes, such as continuous hardship or temptation. On the other hand, persons credited rightly enough with moral courage because of their resolution and steadfastness under severe trial have sometimes shrunk from enterprises that carried the risk of physical injury or suffering and that they would otherwise have entered upon.

Perhaps there are not many people whose courage is equally good in respond ing to the quick sharp call and the long hard haul. It takes all kinds of brave people to make a world.

Canada's Unequalled Cheese

Several people in the English town of Dover were recently brought to a state of severe illness, the cause of which was suspected to be some Canadian cheese they had eaten. In that suspicion few people shared, for the reputation is in the hands of British consumers, by whose sustained demand of the last forty years the main external market for our cheese has been built up. In the last fiscal year Canada exported 133,050,760 pounds of cheese of a total value of $25,440,822. Of this the United Kingdom took 125,942,940 pounds valued at $24,007,726.

These British imports of Canadian cheese are a satisfactory certificate to the purity and wholesomeness of Canada's principal dairy product. Canada cannot prize too highly or guard too carefully the good name of her cheese. That good name is of great market worth, as the above quoted figures show, and it is precious for its national advertising value. Not only does it help to swell into still greater volume the demand for Canadian cheese in the United Kingdom and in other countries, but on the tables of British consumers is an ever present advocate of the merits of Canada as an agricultural country. We doubt not that some of the people of English birth who are now prospering as farmers farmers on Canadian land had their thoughts turned to this country by the excellent cheese they bought at British provision counters. Old country people are better and more appreciative judges of good cheese than the majority of the people of Canada, whence the best cheese comes. As a rule the Old Country people have more opportunities of getting Canadian cheese when it is at its best than we in Canada, for it is usually well matured by the time it comes to British tables. Old country people visiting Canada sometimes express disappointment with the cheese they get here for the reason that it does not seem to them to come up to the standard of the Canadian cheese they get at home. The only point of difference is that the Canadian cheese consumed here is very commonly less matured than that consumed in Britain.

Very promptly, we are glad to say, the notion that Canadian cheese was responsible for the Dover illness was sifted. It was found that the persons affected had bought their cheese in the same retail store. The Canadian cheese stocked by this particular retail firm was but a small part of a large shipment made by a certain Canadian factory, against whose product not a complaining word has come from any other part of the United Kingdom. The supposition is that the individual parcel of cheese from which the sickened customers were served had come in contact with poisonous substance after landing in Britain. The British Ministry of Health is by no means sure that the cause of the illness is at all connected with the eating of cheese. There is all the more reason to believe that the illness is otherwise to be accounted for, since the analyst to whom the particular cheese suspected was referred has reported after careful examination that there was no trace of arsenic, lead, zinc or other poison in the cheese complained of. He ate some of it himself and suffered no ill-effects. Thus, Canadian cheese has been cleared of the small cloud of doubt cast upon it by a few people trying to account for an illness they got after eating some of our cheese. The British people would be very sorry to let a word of injustice be said against our cheese, first, because they relish that commodity and know it to be of the best, and second, because they would not want to wrong us again as we were wronged for a long time by the British imputatiou of contagion to our cattle.

Why An Electric Bulb Gives Off Light

To the modern generation the turning of a switch or the pressing of a button which leads to the flashing of an electric light is regarded as a commonplace event of ordinary everyday life. But to those who recall the days before electricity came into general use, the instantaneous action of the electric bulb still savors somewhat of the miraculous. The action of the bulb, however, is due to entirely natural causes, controlled in a natural way.

The usual type of incandescent lamp used to-day consists of a glass bulb, from which the air has been extracted; a tiny filament of tungsten metal and a wire which carries the electric current to the filament. The latter makes such a high resistance to the passage of the current that, practically instantly, it glows and gives off light on account of the high temperature to which it is subjected. In short, electric light is analogus to that which is given off by a poker when heated white-hot, save for the fact that the heating process is accomplished without appreciable loss of time. The reason for the removing of the air from the bulb is in order to prevent the filament from burning up, which would occur if oxygen were present.

A Spectulator's Lucky Buy

A speculator on the stock exchange was sitting in a friend's office, and during the conversation which was mostly about stocks and bonds, he informed his friend that he had picked up a cheap thing during the winter

"It stood at thirty-three then, and yesterday it touched eighty-four!" he said.

"You are lucky! What is it?" asked his friend.

"A thermometer," was the reply.

Caught By a Salmon

Fishing for salmon is always exciting sport. Many are the thrilling stories of adventures along a salmon stream, of long fights with the hooked fish tugging at the line, and of the high fellows pulled from a favorite pool. On rare occasions, however, the tables are turned, and the fish becomes the angler. That is exactly what happened to Mr. J. Duncan one day while he and his wife were fishing near the mouth of Cowichan River in British Columbia. In the Wild World Magazie he declares his experience.

As usual, he says, I was using a hand line the end of which I had tied around my leg, so that as I rowed the boat I could tell as soon as the fish was hooked. We had caught several small fish when I hooked a fine "tyee" or great salmon. I saw him as he leaped from the water, and I should say that he weighed easily sixty pounds.

In the excitement I got my feet tangled in the line round my leg. Standing up to free myself, I slipped on some of the fish that were lying in the bottom of the boat, and before I could realize what had happened I was overboard. On coming to the surface I struck out quickly for the boat, but I had swam scarcely three strokes when with a jerk that made me feel as if my leg had been pulled off I was drawn toward the bottom. Striking out with both arms and my free leg, I tried to regain the surface, but I might as well have tried to tow a battleship. Down, down I went until the line suddenly slackened, and I shot to the surface; if I had been held under much longer my lungs would have burst.

The rowboat was almost fifty yards away, and my wife was at the oars. As soon as she saw me she pulled toward me with all her might. The boat could not have been more than twenty yards away when the line round my legs suddenly became taut again, and with a wrench that almost broke my ankle the fish pulled me beneath the surface a second time. Struggling with all my might I tried to release my leg from the tangled line but I could not do it.

All at once I felt something slimy brush against my face, and I realized that the fish was taking me toward the weed beds, where I should probably become entangled and die a horrible death! No swimmer could hope to free himself from their clinging embrace. Redoulbing my efforts, I tried to reach the surface again I saw my wife rowing frantically not more than twenty paces away. Nearer and nearer came the boat, but just as I thought it was going to reach me the line round my leg jerked, and I was beneath the surface again. I was under for only a few seconds. When I rose once more I saw the boat a few yards away. At the same time I noticed that I was moving rapidly through the water; apparently the fish had lost strength and was unable to pull me under until he had time to rest.

After what seemed a long time the boat came alongside, and I was able to grab hold of the stern. With a slash of my hunting knife, which I had left lying in the bottom of the boat, my wife soon severed the line and dragged me in. For some time I lay on the bottom thoroughly shaken and exhausted. Had it not been for my wife's pluck, I should not be alive today, for she had rescued me directly over the deadly eelgrass beds!

From Minneapolis to Ottawa on Gasoline "Scooter"

Travelling over 1,500 miles and using 24 gallons of gasoline on the journey is the feat accomplished by Franklin James who came from Minneapolis to Ottawa to visit his relatives. The machine on which the trip was undertaken is known as a "scooter". It is a two wheeled motor resembling in appearance a girl's bicycle. The power of the machine is two and one-half horse-power, and is capable of a speed of 25 miles an hour. The wheels are 20 inches by two inches and the weight of the vehicle, including the spare gasoline, oil and equipment of the driver, was 25 pounds.

Lose a Minute; Save a Life

Liudsay Post—A very sensible law is being enforced in New Jersey in regard to railway crossings. Every motor has been ordered to come to a full stop at all grade crossings in the State to ascertain if it may cross the track safely. Failure to observe this rule will be considered as sufficient cause for the withdrawal of the license to operate a motor car. But why restrict this order to business? The enforcement of such a regulation over the entire continent would mean the end of all crossing accidents. Under the present freedom from such restrictions we shall continue to have human beings flung into eternity because some speed-crazed driver is blind and deaf to all danger. Here is something that might be done at once in the way of prohibitive legislation. The loss of time in stopping will be more than made up for the mad motorist will not be allowed to cut the time and the lives of other people short by his carelessness.

When Children Break Loose.

Toronto Star—Half a dozen children, under the age of ten years, got into a house in this city the other day in the absence of the family, and proceeded to wreck the place from cellar to garret. They used the garden hose to flood each floor, smashed pictures, dishes, glass jars of fruit, smeared the wall, in fact wrecked the place much after the manner adopted by the Huns on their advance into France and Belgium.

When the story of the damage to the contents of this residence first appeared one instantly suspected that it had been the work of lunatics. The deed seemed otherwise inexplicable. It was felt that even the hate of a criminal would express itself more logically than in this purposelese and laborious way. But it proved to have been the work of children.

People are everywhere saying that the children they know, and the children they themselves were at one time, could not by the utmost stretch of the imagination be thought capable of a deed like this. The demolition of the interior of that house by a group of small children was a grotesque outbreak.

Yet the case ought to serve as a reminder to all adults of the hidden forces that reside in children. If one boy is a ringleader, if he gets leadership by his energy and inventiveness, he may carry others who admire him into almost any sort of adventure.

It may be that the children who demolished the contents of this house had heard war stories indiscreetly told of similar acts of vandalism. Or they may have seen movies in which the use of the hose in drawing rooms, and the demolition of nicely furnished rooms by comedians produced gales of laughter from crowded houses. The adults in the audience knew funny extravaganza when they saw it, but the child who sees how neately a framed picture can be blown off the wall by a stream from a hose may feel a strong desire to try it. He tires of his tops; he wants to go in for the hugely funny, such as the grand-masters of mirth resort to when they convulse large audiences with laughter.

The question is worth considering, whether in course of time it be not possible to somewhat step-down and moderate the tone and manner of those screaming farces which so largely furnish the evening amusement of city families. Only last night there was produced in one of the theatres an "educational film" in which monkeys dogs and mules performed for school children. The school master and other adults were ludicrous persons. A boy and girl played hookey entered a house in the absence of its owner. The boy played Indian pretended the girl was a settler,s wife,tied her to a chair with a rope, went out; a cat upset a lamp set the place on fire, and there was a terrible time, until the heroism of a mule, a donkey and a dog saved the girl. But the house was a total loss, and the ludicrous excitement of its owner was one of the funniest things fifty boys in the audieuce ever saw.

Does anybody really suppose that any small boy who sees such shows can have as sane a view of this world as he may have had before he saw them?

Farmers Through With the Province

The Toronto Telegram Monday featured the following: It is stated to the Telegram, on the best of authority, that E. C. Drury wants to go to Ottawa along with N. W. Rowell, K. C. the latter slated as the new Minister of Justice in the King Cabinet.

The new leader of the people's party was discussed at the caucus last week. the members present told the Premier that the U. F. clubs were not going into another electino, and that J. J. Morrison would lead the farmers' political forces at the next election, when only certain constituencies would be contested.

J. J. Morrison has sent out the word that he does not any longer want a U. F. O. Government in Queen's Park, and the club—the rural political organization has fallen in line.

Merkley—In loving memory of little Doris Merkley who died Aug. 17th 1921.

We know He loved her better than His life who died to save.
And yet with breaking hearts we yielded her to him who gave
Lord, fill the void thus made with more of thee and may we feel
Thy presence e'er in Sunshine or in shade in woe or weal.
We would not miss the lesson her sweet life was meant to be,
Nor yet the deeper lesson, when we gave her back to thee.
We thank thee for the gift, though brief the joy, and praise thee
Still our loss adds one more jewel to Thy crown.
