Williamsburg Fire Claims Three Lives Wednesday Morning

Fire swept through a Williamsburg home yesterday, Wednesday morning, and the raging flames claimed three lives. Dead are Mrs Weldon Beckstead, 47, and two of her children, Donna, 12, and John, 8 years. Two other children, daughters, Marna, 15, and Betty, 17, escaped by leaping from the second storey windows. Mr Beckstead was at the farm at the time and the fire was raging when he rushed home. Marna and Betty are in Winchester District Memorial Hospital suffering from burns and shock but their condition is not serious.

The chain of events that led to the tragic accident started shortly before six a.m. when Mr Beckstead rose early, as was his habit, to do the farm chores at the barn some distance from the village.

He checked the stoves carefully, there were three used to heat the large frame house, and around six o'clock left the building with his family still asleep to do the farm chores.

The first warning came when a neighbour next door to the west noticed smoke and flame in the chimney area of the roof. An alarm was immediately sounded and the Morrisburg and Chesterville Brigades summoned. Burrill Beckstead, a brother of Weldon, arrived at approximately 6.30 and by then the house was a mass of flames.

The two older girls had awakened and managed to get out an upstairs window and reach safety. They both suffered burns about the hands and Betty received burns about the neck. Their small brother and sister and mother were evidently overcome by the roaring flames almost at once. Firemen recovered the charred bodies of the small children still in the remains of their beds.

Mr Beckstead lived formerly south of Elma on the farm now owned by Gerald McMillan. It was over ten years ago that he moved his family to the village of Williamsburg and he started operating the farm there. The home is situated in the village just across from the United Church and was a large frame building, two storeys, with a large garage and workshop adjoining. The family car was also destroyed in the fire.

Mrs Beckstead was the former Gladys O'Shaughnessy. After the flames had died down, Mr Beckstead was overcome with shock and had to be removed to Winchester Hospital.

Mother and Two Children Perish in Early-morning Fire

TRAGEDY STRUCK in the small village of Williamsburg early yesterday morning when fire destroyed the home of Mr and Mrs Weldon Beckstead and Mrs Beckstead and two of her children perished in the flames. The house was situated east of Highway 31 on the county road, just across the road from the United Church. Those dead in the fire are Mrs Beckstead, the former Gladys O'Shaughnessy, 47, and her two small children, Donna, 12, and John, eight. Two other children escaped the flames from the upper windows of the burning building.—Photo courtesy Standard Freeholder.

Life-Saving Certificates Received by Students Of Finch High School

Two Finch High School students received life saving certificates from the Canadian Humane Society when members of Finch Board of Trade visited the school recently. Quick thinking by Donald Vollrath and Jim Rombough saved the life of fellow student "Bud" G. MacDonald on the Payne River last summer.

Rev H. M. Beach, of Chalmer's United Church, made the presentation of framed certificates from the Society, at which time he congratulated them and stated the value of these would be to look back on such a memento in years to come. The award read "For heroic action and presence of mind in the rescue of G. MacDonald from drowning on June 19, 1955."

The boys, both 14 years old, were commended by Mr Beach for an equally brave but unsuccessful effort to save another boy, James Hayes.

"I hope it will be an inspiration to them to maintain such a high standard of conduct in the years that are ahead as the day they merited these certificates.

Hugh Middleton, president of the Board of Trade, pointed out that never before in the history of Finch High School has an occasion occurred that two of its students be so honoured.

"It was very heroic of the boys that in such an emergency they showed such presence of mind," he said.

Mr Middleton called Donald Vollrath, who was presented with the award. Owing to illness, Jim Rombough was not able to be present to receive his certificate. T. B. Higginson expressed his pleasure that two of his students should be thus honoured.

MOREWOOD UNITED SERVICE

Impressive Tribute Paid Late Charles B. Jamieson

The residents of the surrounding districts were severely shocked to learn that Mr Charles B. Jamieson passed away around 5 a.m. Christmas morning in Winchester Memorial Hospital, having returned from the General Hospital, Montreal. Mr Jamieson was in his 75th year.

Death is no respecter of persons, when the Grim Reaper took from our midst a person whose removal is not only regretted, but whose place in the community will be hard to fill; but we thank God for the example and inspiration of his life.

The deceased, who was in poor health the past few months, was of a quiet and unassuming nature but possessed a pleasing personality.

He was highly regarded for his sterling qualities and his friendship was prized by all who had the privilege of his acquaintance.

He was the son of the late William John Jamieson and his wife, Sarah Rae, of two pioneer families of Dundas County. The deceased never married. In religion a Presbyterian, he was a staunch Conservative and held many offices in the Association. He spent the early part of his life in Montreal and Regina. He returned to the homestead in 1921 and was a successful breeder of Ayrshire cattle, winning first place in Canada.

He leaves to mourn the loss of a dearly-loved brother two sisters, Misses Agnes and Helen Jamieson, Winchester; three brothers, John A. Jamieson, Drinkwater, Sask.; James Jamieson, Portland, Ont.; David Jamieson, Montreal; two nephews and seven nieces, and a host of relatives, friends and neighbours who mourn his passing.

The funeral was held from his residence Wednesday, December 28. The service was conducted by the former minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Mr Fred Miller, who spoke comforting words from the text "In My Father's House are Many Mansions." He was assisted by Mr Douglas Fry, St. Andrew's Church, Chesterville.

A duet, "Face to Face," was sung by Mrs Cross and Mr Geo. Crawford and the St. Andrew's choir sang "Rock of Ages" and "Forever with the Lord."

The pall bearers were Messrs Bruce Rae, Murray Rae, Wilfred McKercher, Willis McKercher. At the conclusion of the service entombment was in Maple Ridge Vault.

OPINIONS . . .

Ours and Others

Horrible Death by Fire

According to a Canadian Press survey, in less than a week over the Christmas holiday 26 persons were burned to death in Canada in the destruction by fire of their homes, says the Ottawa Journal. Another startling statistic is given by Fire Chief Foote, of Ottawa. In six weeks, he says, 16 persons have died of fire in the Ottawa area alone, and the shocking details—a mother and her four children dead in one fire, mother and child in another—are fresh in all our minds. And Wednesday morning's holocaust at Williamsburg adds three more victims to the list.

Fire Chief Foote makes the obviously-appropriate comment that we in Canada are not "fire conscious," that too many of us are careless about fire hazards, that we do not co-operate to the best advantage with the authorities concerned with preventing fires, and that the law is weak and lax in these matters.

Mr Foote emphasized the point made earlier by officials of Ontario Hydro and others—that the law is practically helpless in the face of conditions in private homes which can lead to disaster. Ontario Hydro has a few inspectors of electrical wiring, but if they find the wiring of a house inadequate or defective to the point of danger to its occupants they can do nothing other than deprive the place of electric power. That is a step they would be most reluctant to take in our Winters, it is clear. They can advise the owner to renew or repair his wiring, but they cannot make an order, and if a fire occurs, and lives are lost, there is no punishment provided by law for anybody.

"There is nothing we can get our teeth into" says Chief Foote, "to compel people to eliminate danger points." Surely that is a condition demanding action by our law-makers. Surely the law should warrant a charge of at least criminal negligence against any who can be proved to have set off a fatal fire by careless disposal of a burning cigarette! Surely authority should rest in some government agency (perhaps Hydro in this province) to order a house rewired, if its wiring is definitely a hazard, and charge it against the property as taxes are charged!

And the development of a fire-consciousness by householders themselves is of course the most important factor of all in preventing these hideous tragedies. Furnaces, heaters, smoke pipes and heat pipes, the proper use of fuse plugs in the electrical system, regard for safety in the loading of services and appliances on the power wires, safe disposal of ashes if coal is burned—all these and other things are neglected at the risk of human life.

Chief Foote spoke of Christmas trees, too, as a menace when they dry out. They dry out quickly in the warm atmosphere of a house, and it is a mistake to let them stand until after New Year's.

We hold no particular brief for mail-order buying, says the Christian Scence Monitor and we heartily agree. In fact if pressed we would probably answer: Stretch a point to buy from the man around the corner, letting him who serves you best serve you most. Nevertheless, we must admit that there are no better consumer guides than catalogues of the big American mail-order houses. Price-wise, that is. About how much should one pay for items x, y, or z? Look them up in the catalogue. Then work from there.

But the mail-order catalogue, we learn, has other virtues: one as a weapon to counter Communist propaganda and claims. An official of the United States Chamber of Commerce just returned from abroad says that when American mail-order catalogues are displayed in Berlin, just across the street, so to speak, from the Iron Curtain, they have had to be chained to the tables.

There it isn't so much a matter of comparative price on available items. Probably most of the items aren't available—at least not across the Iron Curtain in response to an order form. It's a matter of such fabulous thousands of such fabulous articles just exising—a matter of there being lands where people are invited to step up and take their pick, of the implication that that's exactly what millions of people actually do.

Yes. The mail-order catalogue is a weapon all right. It's a weapon even in its native land against husbands getting at doing the things they know ought to be done around the house. Our warning is: Unless you have time on your hands, don't start looking at a mail-order catalogue.

What They've Said About Us

Some famous quotations about Canada and Canadians have been collected by the current affairs bureau of the Defence Department and passed along to the armed forces in the bureau's bi-monthly pamphlet.

They cover nearly 450 years of Canadian history.

Here are some of them:

Jacques Cartier in 1534: "I am rather inclined to believe that this is the land God gave to Cain."

Voltaire in 1759: "You know that these two nations (France and England) are at war for a few acres of snow, and that they are spending for this fine war more than all Canada is worth."

The poet Bliss Carmen wrote in 1894: "The scarlet of the maples can shake me like a cry,
Of bugles going by."

Sir William Van Horne in 1895: "Since we can't export the scenery, we shall have to import the tourists."

Lord Carnavon in the House of Lords, 1867: "We are laying the foundation of a great state—perhaps one which at a future day may even overshadow this country."

Anonymous Edmonton citizen, many years ago, to American visitor: "Edmonton is as big as Chicago but it isn't all built up yet."

Lord Bacon, about 1608: "The Newfoundland fisheries are more valuable than all the mines of Peru."

Lord Ashburton to John Quincy Adams, U.S. ambassador to London, 1816: "I wish the British government would give you Canada at once. It is fit for nothing but to breed quarrels."

Sir Robert Borden, 1929: "The political instinct of the race is practical rather than logical, and one observes an invariable tendency to avoid change until it is manifest.

Sir John A. Macdonald, 1865: "Instead of looking upon us as a merely dependent colony, England will have in us a friendly nation."

Sir Wilfred Laurier 1897: "Canada is free, and freedim is its nationality."

George M. Wrong, 1939: "Democracy implies liberty, something of which Canadians are so sure that they never mention it."

CANADIAN PLOWMEN ABROAD

by WILL C. BARRIE, Manager
1955
CANADIAN PLOWING TEAM

W. C. Barrie

ABOARD EMPRESS OF SCOTLAND—The last day of our Swedish visit was the only wet day we had. We were very lucky to see so much of Sweden in fine weather, as we were told that it was unusual to have such a long stretch of good weather so late in the year.

Ivan McLaughlin

While checking our baggage for the plane, we were told that our bags, which went over all right, were now 160 lbs. overweight and we had to pay $35 extra. We had purchased a lot more souvenirs than we thought.

At London were were met by the Esso representatives and heartily received, and all were pleased that the Golden Plow, having been won by a Northern Irelander, was to stay on British soil for another year. (Ivan McLaughlin of our team came second, and our other team member, Joe Tran, finished fourth out of 24 plowmen from 12 nations.)

Joe Tran

On the following morning Ivan, Mrs McLaughlin and Joe Tran accepted an invitation extended by the manager of the British team, Willie Dick, to drive by car up to his home in Scotland. Mrs Barrie and I left by train for Edinburgh so as to have as much time as possible with friends and relatives in the land of the heather.

During the train trip to Edinburgh we saw many large herds of cattle and sheep. Plenty of pasture was to be seen everywhere, and the only evidence of a dry summer was the small amount of plowing done. The British farmers seem to raise far more livestock than the Swedish farmers. On our trip through Sweden we saw no beef cattle and the herds were confined to the Swedish red and white dairy cattle.

As we drew nearer the border of Scotland there was a decided change in the appearance of the countryside. Instead of well-trimmed hedges and red brick houses with red tiled roofs, so familiar to England, we saw grey stone houses and stone walls. More hills and valleys appeared and the flocks of sheep were larger.

As we entered Edinburgh we were most impressed with our view of the long bridges spanning the river, and the narrow streets with grey stone buildings.

On the following morning we went on a conducted tour of the city, and saw a few highlights of that old and historic city: Edinburgh Castle, Princess Street, Scott's Monument, Holyrood Castle, and St. Giles' Cathedral.

We were taken along the Queen's Drive and as we drove up the winding mountain the guide pointed to a village at the far side below us and said it was the most famous watering place in Scotland. Then, with a chuckle, he said it had six breweries!

From Glasfow we went to visit cousins in nearby Barrhead. Although our grandparents had come from Ayrshire 135 years before, we thought we understood the dialect. To be greeted at the door by "Come awa ben the hoose" was worth going a long way to hear. The hospitality we received in Scotland was far beyond anything we had hoped for.

While driving through Ayr to visit Burns' cottage, I stopped at the newspaper office for a paper. I mentioned that we came from near Ayr, Ont. That really started something. The publisher asked for an interview and had several pictures taken. We were shown through the printing office and loaded down with newspapers and booklets referring to the 750th anniversary of the city of Ayr, which was celebrated there three years ago.

To this anniversary the village of Ayr in Canada had flown a bouquet of flowers inscribed "To Ayr by air from Ayr." Ayr is a lovely seaport made famous by Burns' cottage, the Burns Museum, the Brig-O-Doon and the monuments to Robbie Burns and William Wallace.

Meanwhile, the rest of our party, Mrs McLaughlin, Ivan and Joe, were visiting on the farm of Willie Dick.

Mr Dick is a striking example of a successful farmer, and after hearing about his farm operations,

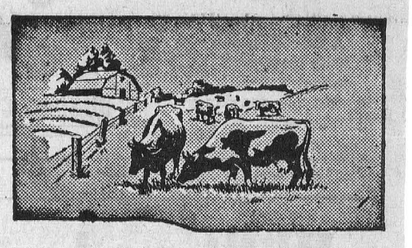
FRENDLEE FARM CHATS



By Lillian Allison

"Every night after supper Johnnie goes down to the basement. The lathe whirs, the saw whines and the sawdust rolls up through every crack and crevice. We nearly have to pry him away to get him off to bed," his mother told me. Then with parental pride seeping in around the edges she went on to describe the Christmas gifts Johnnie had made for the family. It seems he has just completed a bookshelf head-board for his own bed too. And Ithought what a lucky boy to have found a creative hobby so early in life. For Johnnie in only fourteen.

If there's anything we nail-chewing, knuckle-cracking, toe-tapping, nerve-wracked humans need these days it's a good hobby. For a bobby is an absorbing interest in something other than the job which we really have to do. It's the thing we do because we like to do it—not because we have to do it—and it's good for us.

Now some of you may connect the word hobby with superfluous wealth and think of the millionaire whose hobbies consist of collecting original paintings, antique furniture, $10,000 stamps and the like. You may even call to mind some of the big names to the south whose hobby apparently is to collect ex-wives or ex-husbands. But hundreds of thousands aren't necessary to cultivate an absorbing interest in something besides the daily grind.

It doesn't cost anything to have reading for a hobby for instance. As long as the public libraries operate, at least. And happy is the person who can crawl into an easy chair, put his feet on the dog and bed too. And I thought what a another day, another world. He can climb Mt. Everest with the Britbe carried away to another land, and leagues under the sea with a French writer; he can cross the Pacific on a raft; or shiver over the Canadian North with the explorers. Seven league boots are really his as he dashes frome pole to pole.

And there is the person whose hobby is spectator sports. He'd go through fire and water to see a hockey game on TV. And he'd know the life history of every player right down to the kind of cereal he eats. He follows every sport in its season by newspaper, radio, TV and paid admittance when possible. Sport is an absorbing interest that rewards him with countless hours of unmatched pleasure.

It wouldn't do to neglect those who are interested in participating sports either. The swimmer, the skater, the curler, the bowler who lives for the night or the afternoon when he can get into sport togs and throw himself into the game that is his chief interest or hobby.

There are people too whose hobby is showing kindness. They hurry through their work so they can phone a friend. They plan to visit a shut-in or someone in hospital at every opportunity. They write notes, send cards or little gifts to people who are lonely or ill. Countless women make it their habit to send a few cookies, a bowl of soup, a salad or a pie to someone who is in trouble or not feeling well. Those people wouldn't admit that kindness was their hobby but since it provides them with an absorbing interest outside their daily work many good souls make it so.

Photography is becoming one of the major hobbies of the present day. Now, granted, it requires a little of the green folding stuff that isn't always lying around. But for those who can scare up a few extra dollars it's very satisfying to take and collect pictures.

I think of a man who has made coloured slides of all the family relatives in Eastern Ontario. Then when we went on a trip to the west coast he took pictures of t relatives there. It was a sort of public service to both sets of friends but it was part of a big slide collecting project for him. The same project takes him to the hills in autumn, to the capital in tulip time and to countless parks and gardens all summer long in search of beautiful pictures to add to the hundreds he already owns. Photographing one'sgrowing family can be equally absorbing. But before you begin have a little talk with your banker. It costs money.

Now I haven't even mentioned yet the best possible hobbies—the creative ones. The interests that compel us to make things. We'll discuss them next week.

In the meantime remember that too many people are spending their time so busily engaged in what they call making a living that they have lost sight of the more important task of making life. Hobbies help us to make life worth living. So think about them, will you?

Light Along The Way

January sixth is traditionally the day upon which the deity of Christ was revealed and, on that day, Epiphany, the Wise Men were believed to have found Him and offered unto Him their gifts. These gifts of myrrh, gold and frankincense were not in themselves important; we never hear of them again, and may safely assume that they hardly enriched the material life of our Lord, but they were important in the symbolism that was attached to them. We read that they were gifts associated with the Wise Men's worship of the Babe, so that they were an outward acknowledgement of the belief that this Babe was, in truth, the Messiah, the One who was to come.

As Dr W. Russell Bowie says: "Salvation is the whole process of God's saving mercy, . . . but the evidences of it must begin here and now, in plain, practical things. . . . Christian people let salvation show itself in those everyday morals which give salt and savour to life." As Paul so aptly points out, Christians are law-abiding citizens who tell the truth, do not cheat nor go into debt. Christian virtues, he claims, do not grow by accident, but by men's diligent and faithful seeking to let Pod's grace flow into their hearts.

The wonder and majesty of Christ's coming, then, has importance for life only insofar as we seek to make it important in the daily course of our lives. It is quite true that few men become leaders of men, and that the pages of history are not filled with the unremembered multitude of bygone days. Yet it is the sincerity of this multitude in pursuing a worthy end, in acknowledging the Christ in the daily offering of their lives, that spells the course of history.

Some years ago Eleanor Roosevelt addressed the Department of United Church Women (U.S.A.). She said: "Everything we do in our own communities either strengthens or weakens our moral and spiritual leadership as a nation. . . What is important is how we actually live and how we stand for the things we believe in. The final decisions on human rights will be made by the people, and probably by the people of this country. . ."

The greatest gift we can bring the Christ is sincerity of heart and singleness of purpose. Some years ago an elaborate religious display took place in London, and a leading newspaper followed it with an editorial on the danger of window dressing in church life. Our gifts, like those of the Wise Men of old, have no value unless they show forth a heart which truly loves the Christ, and is willing to abandon all to the long, earnest search of those values which are eternal.

The Christmas season has almost come to a close, but the need to offer "gifts most rare" presses upon us each day of our lives. If we will seek to bring such to the Christ, we too will go our way rejoicing with those who have found Him, and finding Him have everything.

"Now, girls," said the restaurant manager, "I want you to look your best today. Add a little dab of powder to your cheeks and take a bit more care with your hair."

"Something special on?" asked the head waitress.

"No, the beef's tough."

Goldfield Community Cemetery Officials, Plotholders Hear of Improvements Made and Plans for Future

A meeting of officials, plotholders and all interested parties of Goldfield Comunity Cemetery was held in Goldfield Public School recently. This meeting, which was called by the board of management to bring everyone up-to-date on the financial standing and recent activities, was well attended. Miss Martha Nephew, chairman, presided.

The minutes of the annual meeting were read by the secretary-treasurer, as well as a thorough report on the summarization story of the erection of the fences, from the beginning of erection on September 5 to the completion of the project on October 12.

The following costs were involved: Total labour, $121.70; cement gravel, $27; cement, $30; fencing, $300.

The secretary's report expressed appreciation for the co-operation and assistance of Messrs John D. Dunbar, Keith Droppo, Alfred Dunbar, Stuart Duff, Claire Nugent and John Bogart.

The board of management particularly appreciated the interest of Mr Silas Farrell in obtaining a satisfactory erection job at a reasonable and reduced price.

The report concluded that plans are already underway for a memorial service this coming summer.

The only discussion on the report was that a single strand of barbed wire had not been placed across the top of the page wire fence due to the fact that the 30-rod roll had not been received. It was decided that this should be put on at the convenience of the board.

Miss Nephew expressed her thanks and appreciation for the co-operation af all who had participated in the improvement project.

A vote of thanks was moved by Mr Silas Farrell to Mrs Duart MacLean for a newcomer's interest, and time and energy spent in the community improvement project and for her thorough secretarial reports made up in the absence of her husband. Mr Farrell also moved that the report on the erection of the fence, as given at the meeting, be included in the annual mimeographed report which is being sent out each year following the meeting. This motion was seconded by Mr Geo. Smith and carried.

After all bills had been paid there was a bank credit balance of $64.61, plus $1.65 cash on hand. During the evening two further donations were received of $10 each from Mrs S. M. MacLean and family and Mr John Bogart. respectively, plus the pledge of several more donations.

This credit balance plus the donations and pledges proved ample for the purchase of a lawn mower. It was decided to by a 21-inch mower.

The lawn mower is to be stored at the Goldfield Store and insured against fire and theft.

Two special donations of $25 each were received from Mrs Olive M. Northwood and Mr Duart A. MacLean toward ornamental trees for the cemetery. These cheques were ear-marked and held pending consideration of the meeting. Some information as to the prices and kinds of trees best suited to the cemetery soil was presented by the secretary and more information would be obtained from other nurseries. All were in favour of accepting the donations for ornamental trees to beautfiy the cemetery.

As the improvements to the cemetery will be practically completed once the lawn mower and trees have been purchased, the next item to be considered was the annual maintenance of plots. It was decided that a tax of $3 per annum per plot holder be levied and that notice of these dues be included in the notice of the annual meeting of the cemetery.

"'I am sorry but a fee of 150 yen (41 cents) will be charged.'

"When the money was paid each guest received in return a lunch box, a paper napkin and a small bottle of beer and was led upstairs."

HOPE TO MAKE DETERGENT FROM SUGAR

The University of Ottawa is participating in research on one of the greatest "wash-day" developments since the discovery of soap detergents.

New York laboratory researchers have discovered they can produce a cheap, extremely mild, non-irritating detergent through the combination of sugar and fat.

As a result, the University of Ottawa has been selected by the Sugar Research Foundation Inc. to work on this project by expanding research on sugar as a chemical raw material.

Pro. R. Lemieux will conduct the scientific study. It is not known when the product will be ready for the consumer market.

BRITISH BRIGADIER DOES UNDERCOVER WORK

Once there was a brigadier in the administrative section of the British war office who found the answer for what to do with official papers that baffled him.

He hid them under the carpet in his office.

Lord Windlesham, a former Grenadier Guards officer, told the story recently during a debate in the House of Lords.

Without naming the brigadier, Lord Windlesham told what happened after the officer left the army (before the last war):

"The War Office decided the office should be spring cleaned and what was more—and something which probably had not happened before at the War Office—they took up the carpet.

"Underneath the carpet they found dozens of files. The brigadier had been in the habit of putting them there. Whenever an issue came to him he could not answer, did not want to answer, or could not find anyone to pass it on to, he put the files under the carpet and nailed it down.

"He went through his career full of years and honours."

It is a good idea to change our mind sometimes, to see if it works better.

DAIRYMEN

More Cow! More Calf! More Milk!

GET—Extra cow condition health and weight—up to 2,000 lbs. extra milk next lactation fromeach 100 lb. body weight put on—bigger, stronger calves.

HELP KEEP DOWN—Calving, slow cleaning and udder troubles—weak calves more liable to disease and infection. Many hundreds of dairymen in our area are achieving the above results by feeding PURINA Dry and Freshening Chow (or if you have grain PURINA Dry and Freshening Mixer and oats 50-50). 60 days before freshening until 130 days after.

PURINA NURSING CHOW—the complete milk replacement, fed with Calf Startena will save you many milk dollars and help hold your winter quota. I bag raises a Holstein calf from 3days to 1 month old at usually below what cheese or surplus milk would cost. Most dairymen report they are getting better calves on this programme than on whole milk feeding and with virtually no scours because of an antibiotic additive. Calves actually like it better than milk. If you are a dairyman unfamiliar to these highly proven programmes we invite you to discuss their profit value in your dairy barn.

WE SINCERELY BELIEVE WE CAN SAVE YOU DOLLARS AND TROUBLES

Baking Soda For Extinguishing Fires

If cooking is part of your job, it's quite likely that fire in the frying pan will break the smooth monotony of your days. And you can't hold a fire in a frying pan. It has to be conquered and killed or it will gobble up your home with all its cherished treasures.

The prevention, of course, is not to let the frying pan catch fire in the first place. Your answer is apt to be that you don't go kindling those flames. It's just that sometimes you're called away while fat is frizzling in the broiler, griddle or skillet. The little errand takes a whole minute instead of 60 seconds, you smell smoke and there's fire.

Maybe there's a telephone on your kitchen wall. Maybe there isn't. Anyway, a quick emergency measure is sometimes the only solution, and not every home is equipped with a commercial fire extinguisher, or this equipment isn't kept in the kitchen. Perhaps it hasn't been charged within the given time and is therefore powerless against a fire.

But can you put your hand quickly on the package of baking soda in your kitchen cupboard? It's an effective fire fighter, according to the National Board of Fire Underwriters. Dump straight on the flames. Always keep it in a cannister, boldly labelled and in plain sight.

Water treatment for this type of fire may end in disaster, since it will spread the fire because the boiling point of water is lower than that of grease. Only baking powder will quench it for it acts as a smothering agent. It is also effective against fires which involve burning liquids such as oils, varnishes and paints.

A young man from the hills, walking along a city street, stopped in front of the fire station and looked in.

"D'ye have many fires in town?"

"Yes, we have them pretty often," replied the fireman.

"Ever try to see how quick you can get out?"

EVERYBODY EATS-- TRY THESE!

ONE DISH DINNERS

A BIG ADVANTAGE of one dish dinners is the saving in time and fuel. You have less dishes to wash afterwards and you can cook everything in one pot over one burner or in a casserole in the oven—and still have room in the oven to bake a dessert or a cake.

Canadian Goulash

2 lbs. lean stewing beef or round steak
½ cup flour
2 cups cubed potatoes
1 cup cubed carrots
½ cup cubed parsnips
1 chopped onion
2 cups canned tomatoes
2 cups canned peas
1 can kidney beans
2 tsps. sugar
Salt and pepper to taste

Cut the meat in cubes with kitchen shears. Shake in a paper bag with the flour. Cook slowly in heavy pan over low heat for two hours with one cup water to prevent burning or cook in pressure pan with ½ cup water for 15 minutes. Add vegetables and seasoning and cook till vegetables are tender.

Boiled Ham Shanks with Vegetables

1 3-lb. ham shank
2 cups water
1 tsp. salt
1 small turnip, sliced
1 small cabbage, quartered
3 large carrots, cubed
6 medium onions, quartered

Cook ham shank in water till tender, several hours or in a pressure pan 35 minutes. Reduce pressure quickly. Remove meat to a hot platter. Cook vegetables in broth till tender or under pressure for five minutes.

Boiled Pig's Feet with Sauerkraut and Dumplings

6 pigs' feet
2 cups water
1 tsp. salt
6 potatoes
2 cups sauerkraut
2 cups biscuit mix
2-3 cup water

As pigs' feet take so long to cook this recipe makes use of a pressure pan. Cook pigs' feet in pressure pan with 2 cups water for 35 minutes. Reduce pressure quickly. Add potatoes. Cook 5 minutes under pressure. Reduce pressure quickly. Add sauerkraut and drop dumplings on top of sauerkraut; cook 15 minutes with lid on tightly but with pressure weight off. Reduce pressure quickly and serve. If desired the broth may be thickened slightly before adding dumplings.

Hamburger Pie

1 medium onion, chopped
1 lb. ground beef
Salt and pepper
2 cups green beans, cooked
1 can condensed tomato soup
5 medium-sized cooked potatoes
½ cup warm milk
1 egg, beaten
Salt and pepper

Brown onion slightly in small amount of hot fat; add meat and seasonings; brown. Add drained cooked beans and soup; pour into greased casserole. Mash potatoes; add milk, egg and seasonings. Arrange in mounds over meat. Bake in moderate oven 30 minutes.

PLOWMEN ABROAD—

we began to think we were living in the wrong country. His wheat yields are from 70 to 80 bushels per acre, and barley 80 to 100. He has nine tractors and eight balers, and all of this on 300 acres. He keeps just one cow and there are no fences on his farm.

After uneventful journeys to Liverpool, our party of five was reunited, and we boarded the Empress of Scotland, bound for Montreal.

The previous trip made by the Empress was reported to be a very smooth one, but we can't say that about this one. Ever since this voyage began, we have been tossed about and a goodly number are on the sick list, including some of our party.

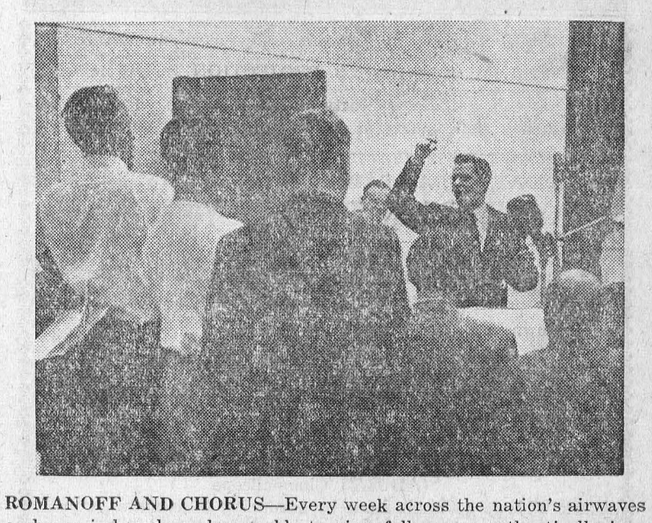
This morning we were fortunate in being shown through the engine room by the chief engineer, and only then realized the amount of power it takes to propel a ship of this size. One hundred and ninety tons of fuel oil are consumed daily and 17 men are required for each of the three shifts. The fuel oil which looks like molasses is loaded in Canada for the round trip. It is amazing to think that it takes a crew of 460 to man this ship, which is carrying only 450 passengers.

This evening Joe mentioned it was his 35th birthday, so the ladies got in touch with the headwaiter, who had the chef bake a large fruit cake covered with thick icing and topped with a model of a tractor and plow. Ivan's silver cup was in the centre of the table and the Captain insisted on filling it with champagne. When the pianist played "Happy Birthday to You," all of the diningroom guests joined in the singing and Joe, who was taken completely by surprise, seemed more nervous than he did during the two days of plowing in Sweden!

On the last day aboard ship, the weather was perfect and the upper decks were lined all day with passengers taking in the sights.

We saw a great many impressive things during our wonderful trip abroad, but we found there was nothing to match the thrill of stepping onto Canadian soil and knowing we would soon be home once again.

This is the last of six articles covering the recent International Plowing Match which have appeared in the Record.



ROMANOFF AND CHORUS—Every week across the nation's airwaves a chorus is heard; a chorus able to sing folk songs authentically in a dozen voices. They turn up on CBC radio's "Songs of My People," a programme devoted each week to the music of many nations and designed to bring to New Canadians memories of the land they left. In fact, the chorus, led by Ivan Romanoff, consists only of a handful of singers; top-notch ones who, for the most part, don't speak anything but their native English. Good coaching and thorough rehearsals, however, have caused listeners to believe that the choir has almost as many people and languages as the United Nations.

THE COLOUR COUNTS

In planning the interior decoration of your home, it is well to keep in mind that different colours do different things to your rooms—and to you.

Blues, greens and blue-greens are cool and restful. They are generally considered receding colours that "push" the walls back, making rooms appear to be larger.

Warm colours like red, red-orange, yelolw-orange and yellow are cheerful and warm. They are considered advancing colours that can make your walls seem closer and rooms appear smaller.

TO DRILL A HOLE IN GLASS

You can often drill a hole through glass by using the point of a hot soldering iron. The point of the iron will melt the glass and make the opening. Use a heavy duty iron and figure it's going to take several minutes to do the job.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express our thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and floral offerings received in our recent breavement on the loss of a beloved brother and uncle.

The Jamieson Family.

IN MEMORIAM

McCONNELL—In loving remembrance of a dear husband, Thomas D. McConnell, who passed away December 29, 1953.

There is someone who misses you sadly,
Finds the time hard since you went;
There is someone who thinks of you daily
But tdies hard to be brave and content.

Wife.

CARD OF THANKS

My sincere thanks are due my many friends who were so kind to remember me in so many thoughtful ways while I was ill in Winchester Memorial Hospital. All your remembrances and good wishes are most appreciated.

Marlene Droppo.

CARD OF THANKS

To all my friends who sent me cards, treats and called on me during my recent illness I wish to say "Thank you." Special thanks to Dr MacMillan and Miss Linda MacGillvray.

Humphrey Bogart and Gene Tierney head the stellar cast for "The Left Hand of God," Twentieth Century-Fox's CinemaScope de luxe colour production, which will have its premiere on Thursday, January 12, at the Community Theatre, Chesterville. The picture, based on a best-selling novel by William E. Barrett, tells the story of an American who, in order to escape from the service of a Chinese warlord, profanes the cloth he wears. Forced by circumstances into maintaining a masquerade, he encounters further personal and emotional problems when he falls in love with a mission nurse.

Bogart has the role of the priest and Miss Tierney portrays the nurse in this unorthodox story, which combines adventure with its delicate love story. Lee J. Cobb plays the Chinese warlord and other members o the cast include Agnes Moorehead, E. G. Marshall, Jean Porter, Carl Benton Reid, Victor Sen Yung, Philip Ahn and Benson Fong.

Because the story is set in a remote province in China, in what in now behind the Communist "Bamboo Curtain," the picture quite obviously could not be filmed in its original locale. So, produced Buddy Adler had a Chinese mission and village recreated on the Twentieth Century-Fox ranch near Malibu, California. A seven-acre compound, high-walled and including a church, hospital, a rectory, school and other buildings, the whole surrounded by rice paddies and quiet streams, was built. Also constructed was a complete village square, where much of the action takes place.

In addition to the huge cast, thousands of Chinese extras populated the picture and animals and birds, from water buffalos to pigeons, were used to give realistic colour to the sttings which look exactly like a transplanted section of China.

Edward Dmytryk, whose latest pictures, "The Caine Mutiny," "Broken Lance" and "The End of the Affair" all were hits, directed "The Left Hand of God" from a screen play by Alfred Hayes, noted author of "The Girl on the Via Flaminia." The picture was photographed by Franz Planer, A.S.C. A musical score has been written by Victor Young.

ONTARIO MILK BOTTLES TO HAVE NEW LOOK

Milk bottles in Ontario will eventually have a new look.

O. E. Sinclair, retiring president of the Ontario Milk Distributors' Association, told the group's annual convention that consumers are demanding a sanitary, hooded cap for milk bottles. Since the common wide-mouth milk bottle doesn't adapt itself to this kind of a cap, a slimmer milk bottle will be introduced.

He said the thinner-necked bottle should be standard in two years.
