Morrisburg Council at odds with legislation

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG—Councillors here aren't happy with the new conflict of interest guidelines, proposed by the provincial government.

When tabled in the Legislature, Municipal Affairs Minister Dave Cooke announced the current Conflict of Interest Act was unfair to both politicians and the people they serve. And according to a provincial committee report, the new stricter rules would ensure people in public office didn't benefit personally from their position.

The new rules would require municipal councillors, school board trustees and public utility commissioners to disclose their sources of income, assets and liabilities upon assuming office.

However, the value of income, assets and liabilities would not have to be disclosed. Current legislation requires councillors to declare their interests on an issue by issue basis only.

Under new rules, there would be a wider range of penalties for breach of the rules, and a commission would be responsible for enforcement rather than the public. Thus an investigation could be launched after a single written complaint to the commission.

Under current legislation, members of the public have to go to court if they feel a councillor has broken the rules.

The new rules would not permit councillors or board members to accept employment with the council or board on which they served for the first six months after leaving office.

Council hasn't yet been officially notified of the draft legislation: however, the information has received wide publicity through the media. Municipal councillors reviewed the proposals at a recent ROMA convention.

Deputy reeve Dirk Testerink said that municipal councils are expected to comment by the end of March.

"It's a devastating thing. If passed, they want complete disclosure by all municipal councillors and committees of sources of earnings—yours, your spouse and children," said Testerink.

"What it could do is cause a lot of good people to leave office or choose not to run for office," said reeve Gord McGregor.

"If it passes, it will cause that to happen," added Coun. Jack Notman.

Schnurr pointed out that the legislation may effectively exclude business people or lawyers from participating in municipal politics, because the only people who would be willing to disclose their sources would be salaried workers.

Coun. Larry Schnurr was concerned the new legislation could annoy "volunteers, businessmen who volunteer their services, those who do it just out of the goodness of their hearts."

However, Ministry of Municipal Affairs spokesperson James Wood said the new rules on disclosure of assets would only apply to elected officials like councillors, school board trustees, and public utility commissioners, and not to volunteers.

However, the rest of the Act applies to volunteers who are appointed to committees by council and persons appointed to advisory bodies. Such volunteers will be required to disclose a conflict of interest prior to the discussion of any issue on which conflict exists.

At long last

Gigantes opens Senior Support Centre

C.THOMPSON

WILLIAMSBURG—The sun shined auspiciously at the official opening of the extension to Park Drive Villa senior apartments here Saturday.

Minister of Housing Evelyn Gigantes and Art Lacroix, manager of the Ottawa Branch of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation performed a ribbon-cutting ceremony in front of a large crowd.

Gigantes recalled the project's conception as an idea 20 years old, when people recognized a need for support services "to help people live their lives the way they want to live."

Several officials commented on the sense of cooperation between the Ministry of Housing and the Ministry of Community and Social Services, and the local community which helped bring about the completion of the four-unit extension.

Gigantes stated that in her experience, "governments don't move until people make them move. And to bring together two ministries and make them work together, to bring together all levels of local and provincial government doesn't happen by magic."

"It comes because people in the community set their goal, know what they want to do and just keep pushing," she added.

Lacroix congratulated the community on their achievement. "CMHC as an agency of the federal government has a responsibility to see that all Canadians no matter where they live in Canada, have an equal opportunity to be well-housed."

"We're very proud to say this new addition reflects that commitment,"Lacroix said.

"We appreciate that two ministries could work together," stated Williamsburg reeve Johnny Whitteker.

He added this wasn't always the case on the South Nation Conservation Authority, of which he is a member. "It seems that when you get the Ministries of Agriculture and Natural Resources involved, one will back off, and let the other one go ahead."

He noted the Williamsburg Non-Profit Corporation, and the outreach committee of County Council had also joined in cooperating to bring about results.

Williamsburg and area

The outreach services centre is to cover a wide geographic area, and provide a variety of assistance. One purpose is to help seniors to retain their independence by remaining in their own homes.

"Some need a little bit of help at this point in time, some need a lot for a little while. Some need a little for a long while. That's what this combination offers in a little bit of residential facility and a lot of variety in terms of outreach services," Gigantes explained.

The addition is a pilot project for Community Residential Alternatives for seniors. It consists of a large kitchen, a dining room, a craft room, and an office for visiting professionals.

A two-bedroom apartment is a special feature, where the elderly may receive respite care from visiting professionals for short periods, thus offering regular caregivers some relief.

The extension was developed under the Federal/Provincial Non-Profit Housing Program and is sponsored by the Township of Williamsburg Non-Profit Corporation.

A grant of $33,000 is provided to finance the project by the federal government through Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation, and $22,000 by the Ontario Ministry of Housing.

A private lender has provided a $327,000 mortgage loan, insured by CMHC. Additional funding for programming and dining facilities is supplied by the Ministry of Consumer and Social Services and the United Counties.

Architect for the project was James A. Colizza,and the contractor was Dale Coleman Construction and the consultant was the Starr Group.

WINCHESTER—The 1992 Jr. B Lions are an even better Gill Cup favorite after a 5-3 upset over the Winchester Hawks Monday night in front of a packed house of supporters.

The Lions rallied in the third period on a winning goal from Yvon Besner to claim the E.O.J.B.H.L. St. Lawrence division title.

Morrisburg ended its scheduled season on a seven-game winning streak and 52 points on 25 wins, seven losses and two ties.

Winchester placed second with 50 points: 25 wins and 9 losses.

In third place for the St. Lawrence division are the Alexandria Glens (20-15), and Kemptville claimed the number four spot with 36 points.

In the first round of playoff action, Morrisburg will host Kemptville Friday night in a best of seven series.

Coach, Doug Casselman assures supporters that the team is now "going for the big one."

St. Lawrence Parks holds Winter Carnival

MORRISBURG—Organizers are gearing up for the Parks of the St. Lawrence first annual Winter Carnival on February 22 and 23.

"We are planning a community winter event," said Astrid Le Maitre, Visitor Services Officer, "and participants do not have to be super athletes to compete in our many fun activities."

Invitations have already gone out to local schools, businesses and organizations to join the "Winter Challenge" on February 23.

Teams of five are wanted to do battle against each other and the clock, proving their abilities to beat the Eastern Ontario winter.

The Challenge involves a 500-meter relay race on snowshoes and other outdoor skills such as fire lighting and tree identification.

The winners will be known as the fastest, toughest, most skillful "winter beaters" throughout this part of the country.

Intrepid bikers can either bring their own mountain bikes or borrow one for the Mountain Bike Obstacle Course on February 22 at 3.00 p.m.

People may want to just drop in on that day or register with Dennis Nowack from Kairim Sports in Cornwall at 937-4488.

Snowmobilers will have their chance to participate in the Snowmobile Tag-A-Long, organized by the Riverside Snowmobile Club. Mrs. Jean MacDougall will take registrations at 543-3055.

The Ice Sculpture Contest is looking for creative individuals to add their artistic touch to the Carnival. Snow mounds will be ready to sculpture by February 15.

An array of spectator and participation activities, such as sled and pack dog demonstrations, skating to music and games of snow snake, parachute and tug-of-war will be featured at the Winter Carnival.

Those people who wish to enter the "Winter Challenge" or the Ice Sculpture Contest may call Astrid Le Maitre at 543-3704 for registration forms.

Seaway High opens new communications center

C. THOMPSON

IROQUOIS—Seaway High School has just taken a giant step towards proving learning is not only useful, it can also be fun.

The school is setting up a new communications technology laboratory which will enable students to learn the elements of desktop printing, black and white photography, and how to run a TV studio and production control room.

The center will include desktop printers, a dark room, a TV studio,a production control room, and an editing room.

Interviewed last Thursday, some Communications Technology students were quite enthusiastic.

O.A.C. student Wendy Lalonde has worked at Upper Canada Playhouse in productions of "The Wind in the Willows" and "The Hobbit," and said: "Now we'll be able to edit our own film, and see what it is like to work behind the scenes of a TV studio.

We'll have an opportunity to visit the CBC and check out what they do, so that we can have more of an insight."

Julianne Grenkie, a Grade 11 student stated, "You learn a lot about cameras and lighting, and technology because you learn about T.V. It's giving me a chance to learn about whatever I might want to do."

David Waddell, also in Grade 11 added, "When you watch TV at home, you're thinking how would they have done this with the cameras.

It's not just that we're watching a show. We understand how they're working."

During an open house last Friday, some students enacted an interview, while others experimented with the cameras to produce a film.

"Eventually we'll be able to edit that, and write our names on it," Julianne explained.

Julie Bylsma is thinking of Communications Technology as a possible career, and stated, "It's great. I'm not bored at all."

Their teacher Nick Gruich hopes the project will help students stay in school longer by providing interesting activity.

Problem-solvers needed

"In a course like this, they will pick up on skills that will make us more competitive in a global market," he said.

"I firmly believe that its not enough today to have reading, writing and arithmetic because industry wants people who are team members," he added.

"If they don't practise team work in here, nothing is going to be produced. Industry wants problem solvers. You'll have all kinds of problems in here to overcome and to succeed."

Gruich believes opportunity may come knocking in the form of classroom assignments for public service. "Students could do videos for various organizations, for the Village of Iroquois or if someting is going on in Morrisburg."

Project Estimated at $250,000

A price tag of $250,000 has been estimated on the project, but vocational consultant Shelagh Peever says the total costs won't be known for a couple of months.

The project is funded by $200,000 from the Ministry of Education which has paid 80 per cent for the equipment. The School Board is financing renovations to the rooms which previously housed a refrigeration air-conditioning classroom.

Over $12,500 in materials and consultation has been donated by area businesses. Ross Video has given switchers and free in-house training for Nick Gruich. Thomson Consumer Electronics of Prescott has given colored monitors.

The majority of the television equipment was purchased from Panasonic. Some used lighting equipment was bought from a lighting rental outfit in Montreal.

Desktop publishing equipment will come from AKRAN in Ottawa.

Not all the equipment has arrived yet, although basics for the T.V. studio and production control room are there. Students are still waiting for photography equipment and furniture for the dark room, and equipment for the editing room.

So far, the classroom is unique to this board, but a similar facility is to be set up in six months at Char-Lan HIgh School focussing on satellite usage, computer conferencing, and some graphics.

A third communications laboratory with a print base is intended for St. Lawrence High School. Photography, graphic arts and print will be the areas of interest.

Moving paper mountains

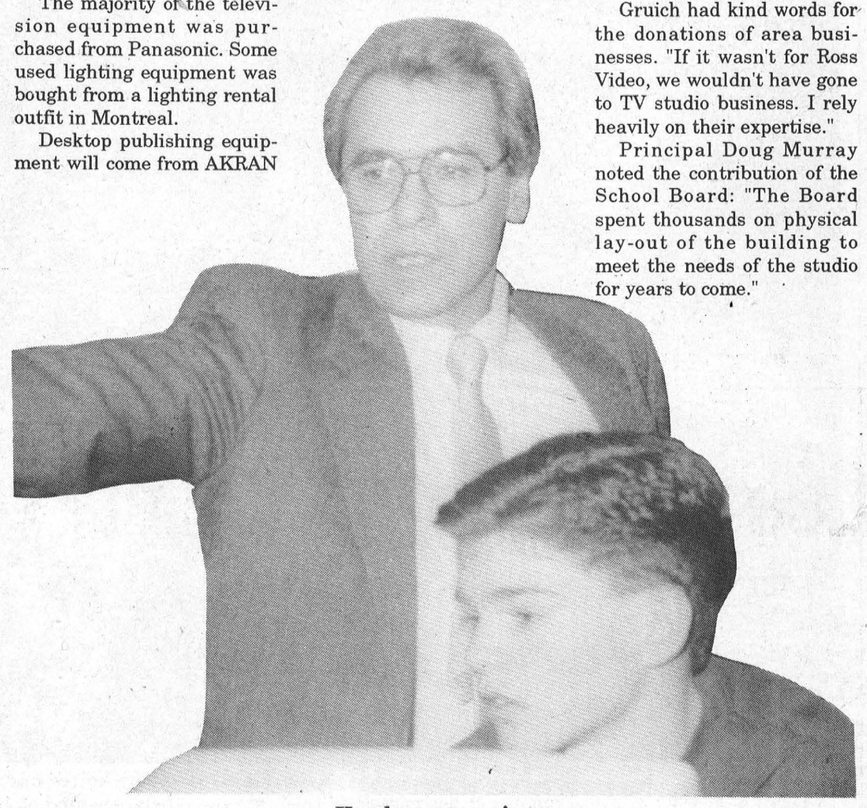
Peever had high praise for the educators who lobbied for and worked on the proposals.

"We have strong tech department heads in this board who worked very hard. It's been a couple of years and a mountain of paper to move through the bureaucracy.

We pushed with three approved last year, and three we got approval for this week," she added.

Gruich had kind words for the donations of area businesses. "If it wasn't for Ross Video, we wouldn't have gone to TV studio business. I rely heavily on their expertise."

Principal Doug Murray noted the contribution of the School Board: "The Board spent thousands on physical lay-out of the building to meet the needs of the studio for years to come."



Hands-on experience
Ross Video representative Fernando Paulino is training student Stephen Morrow on television production equipment at the new communications laboratory. When complete, the new center will feature a TV studio, production room, editing room, dark room for black and white photography, and a desktop publishing room.

"And now you're on camera. . "

Official opening

The ribbon cutting ceremony sparked the official opening of the new Communications Office for the Ontario Provincial Police at Ingleside last week. Members of Osnabruck Township council were on hand as well as Police officials. Pictured are Councillors Heine Bruining, Oscar Ooderkirk, Dep. Reeve Doug Leighton, O.P.P. New OPP communications office opened in Ingleside

INGLESIDE—Ingleside residents were told not to rely on the newly opened O.P.P. communications' office here as Constable Roy McGragh, the Community Base Police Officer in charge of the office, will be splitting his duties between the village and the Ottawa base.

"I don't expect to be here (Ingleside) full time for a few weeks anyway," he said.

The new communications office is one of 14 in the district and this one in particular will be serving the residents of Osnabruck Township, with hopes to expand to the outlying areas in the future.

Reeve Gordon Ross was on hand to help with the ribbon cutting ceremonies at 15 Dickenson Drive along with the council members and other police officers.

"This project has been ongoing in the previous council and in the newly elected council for the past four months," he said. "And of all the residents I've spoken to personally regarding the project, there was never a bad word said against it."

Residents are still urged to call the 800 number if an emergency arises, which is 1-800-COP-COPS.

Constitutional forum results

Local residents nix distinct society clause

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

OTTAWA-Constituents of Stormont Dundas don't see eye to eye with the major political parties on the proposal to grant Quebec constitutional status as a distinct society.

In recent discussions of the constitution hosted by Stormont Dundas MP Bob Kilger, participants examined the 28 constitutional proposals put forward by the government.

Results of the constitutional forum questionnaires are now out, and Kilger said naturally there were some issues where the constituents took a stance different from government views or those of the Liberal party.

"The people were there to tell me their views," he explained."We were not surprised at some of the things."

Thirty of the respondents voted against the entrenchment of Quebec as a distinct society in the constitution, compared to 17 in favor, and two undecided. He added the constituents are at variance on this issue with his party, the government, and also with the NDP.

In an interview January 14 with the Ottawa Citizen, Liberal leader Jean Chretien said that he supported the federal government's current constitutional proposal to grant Quebec distinct society status.

The government now proposes to define distinct society as including Quebec's French-speaking majority, its unique culture and civil law tradition. It would recognize Quebec's responsibility to promote its distinctiveness in the charter and in a "Canada" clause.

"I feel comfortable with our party position on that," Kilger stated.

Strong federalists

As for the sharing of federal and provincial powers, constituents favored a strong federal government on many issues.

In response to questions, 30 said the Canadian government should have exclusive authority to make laws in areas where deemed necessary to efficient functioning of the economic union. Seven said no, and 12 were undecided.

On immigration, 38 said the provinces should not have individual agreements in the constitution, whereas eight said provinces should have agreements, and three didn't know.

Twenty-nine said the federal government should not delegate to the provinces national powers or powers related to handling emergencies. Twelve said the government should delegate, and eight were undecided.

Twenty-nine said more federal power should not be shifted to the provinces in the field of forestry, and mining. Thirteen said power should be shifted to the provinces, and seven said no.

The majority believed the federal government should delegate powers to the provinces in the interests of lowering costs in these areas—wildlife conservation and protection, soil and water conservation, and inspection programs.

But most respondents thought federal powers should not be delegated to the provinces in drug prosecutions, transportation of dangerous goods, ferry services, small craft harbours, bankruptcy law, and some aspects of unfair trade practises.

Thirty-one felt that the provinces should not be permitted to opt out of shared-cost programs, and allowed to obtain compensation. Only six said they should be allowed to opt out, and 12 were undecided.

Only two thought there should be another advisory government body which would need agreement by the federal government and 50 per cent of the population of seven provinces, for approval of its decisions. Thirty-six voted no to this suggestion, and 11 weren't sure.

"It was interesting to hear the consensus of people's attachment to the federal government," stated Kilger.

"It's enlightening to see people attached so strongly to the Federal government," Kilger said.

"It's encouraging to us federal politicians despite the generally negative climate. I hope we can rise to be more deserving of their respect," Kilger added.

Some were Reformers

Interestingly. a majority of constituents leaned towards the Reform Party position on three key issues of democracy.

There were 41 who favored more free votes for MPs. Only five said no to this question, and three said maybe.

A total of 41 thought the Senate should be elected, but six didn't believe in an elected Senate, and two were undecided.

There were 20 who felt there should be an equal number of Senators from all of Canada's regions, 19 didn't think so, and 10 didn't know.

Kilger was enthusiastic about the over-all results. "It was very beneficial for me to meet and discuss with my constituents the government's constitutional proposals".

"The forums will assist me in representing the views of my constituents in Ottawa. They also provided the constituents with an opportunity to voice their opinions on the proposals and the issue of constitutional reform in general," he said.

"We are discussing the future of Canada, it is therefore vital for Canadians to have avenues open to them so that they may participate in an open and non-partisan process where their voices can be heard," he added.

John Milne will speak to environmental group

MORRISBURG—A colorful and controversial speaker will address the Dundas Environmental Awareness Group at Nationview Public School on February 19 at 7:45 p.m.

John Milne, chairman of the Cornwall Environmental Resource Center will speak at the annual meeting of D.E.A.G. following a brief business meeting, in which a slate of nominees for the Board of Directors will be considered.

Milne was instrumental in establishing the Cornwall resource facility, and he is actively pursuing the proposed St. Lawrence Institute of Environmental Sciences.

D.E.A.G. was formed in February, 1990, of residents with an active interest in local land and water resources, and their wise management.

In the past two years, D.E.A.G. focussed primarily on waste management issues. This year the group plans to expand into the fields of water and soil management.

D.E.A.G. recently started columns in weekly newspapers dealing with environmental subjects. Topics include "garbage-free lunches", diapers, alternative products, hazardous waste, composting, and water quality.

When invited to speaking engagements at schools and other organizations, they regularly use "speaker's kits" made up of environmental facts and figures.

By the end of January, kits and display material on composting, hazardous wastes, alternative products and office recycling should be availble.

The environmental awareness group may give presentations in County schools during Education Week in April and Environment Week in June.

A 1992 membership drive is now underway, with rates that are the same as in 1990. The fee entitles members to quarterly newsletters, free access to programs and meetings, and the opportunity to play a pro-active role is the management of local natural resources.

Can Lyn lead to victory?

It was early on last Sunday morning, when Lyn McLeod, a former cabinet minister in the government of David Peterson, became the first woman ever to lead an Ontario political party. Her selection over Murray Elston came only after a 12-hour session, with five ballots, and her majority was only 9 votes.

Serving immediate notice on Ontario Premier Bob Rae that she and her party intend to hold him accountable to the people of this province, she promised to present an alternative program to the NDP's sagging economic performance.

With cabinet experience in the cabinet portfolios of colleges, energy and natural resources, the new leader already knows the requirements for a successful operation.

In the normal course of affairs, it could be up to three years before she has a chance to challenge the present premier at the polls. But these times are far from normal. The financial straits of the province, and indeed of the whole country, have been the occasion of grave concern. A more serious financial crunch could precipitate a provincial election before a full term is up - or indeed, at any time. And Lyn McLeod has already announced that when the time comes, she will be ready.

Beautiful gardens by mail

Everyone, who has even the smallest plot of ground adjoining his home, is at this time of year, the recipient of welcome mailings from the purveyors of garden products by mail. Those beautifully-printed and colorful seed catalogues have already been received by millions of potential customers, who are sick of winter, and cold and snow, and who need very little urging to turn their thoughts eagerly to the beautiful lawns and gardens they will have this summer.

In their mind's eye, they can already see the luscious melons, the yard-long snap beans and even longer cucumbers, the crisp lettuce, beautiful red tomatoes and other makings for delicious salads. Yep, they can almost smell the gorgeous, multi-colored and delicately-formed flowers which will grace their festive boards, as they enjoy nature's bounty to the fullest.

But unfortunately, it seems that a lot of unforseen circumstances interfere between those Utopian dreams and their culmination. What seems so promising and certain during those long winter months quite often becomes an impossible mirage by harvest time.

We are regularly informed by government officialdom that we should accept some of the claims made for mail-order merchandise with one or more grains of salt. While most of the companies which mail you seed catalogs are old and reputable firms who will stand behind their product, some may over-exaggerate just a bit. "Don't fall for extravagant claims", one official said recently, "when ordering garden products by mail. Consumers order these products expecting they will produce 100-pound melons, but let's be realistic: they're not going to grow quite that large in most regions of Ontario".

St. Valentine's Day

St. Valentine's Day, long associated with lovers, recalls one, or possibly two Christian martyrs.

Valentine was a priest and physician in Rome in the 3rd century. At that time, the rounding up and murdering of Christians was regarded as good sport. During a purge in 273 A.D., Valentine helped some Christians to flee from Rome, and for that he was captured, tortured and beheaded on February 14th of that year.

The second Valentine is believed to have been the Bishop of Terni, who was also martyred in Rome, on the same day, a fact which leads some authorities to believe that they were one and the same. A memorial to Valentine was erected along the Flamian Way near Rome in the 6th century.

The association of Valentine with love and lovers may be accidental. The Romans marked the fertility feast on February 15th, and during their occupation of Britain, when many people converted to Christianity, the pagan and Christian festivals merged to some extent. The lovers' tradition may also have come out of the ancient belief that the birds began to mate on February 14th. The feast was celebrated as early as the seventh century, but by the 14th century, its religious significance had become overshadowed.

The first valentine greeting card as we know it, was produced in 1669, and the custom of sending them increased in popularity until the early part of this century. It has since enjoyed a considerable revival, and now fuels a major Canadian industry.

What it will cost us

(THE CANADIAN GLEANER, HUNTINGDON, QUE., JAN. 20, 1865)

Many worthy persons, leaving in the background the fact that Confederation means to the English-speaking people of Lower Canada (Quebec) simply political annihilation, object strongly to the the proposed Union of the Provinces from the fact that it will add considerably to our burdens, in the shape of increased taxation. That there is much force in this objection to Confederation, no man who investigates the subject will deny. Confederation will add to the burdens of the people in three ways: 1st, by doubling the expenses of Legislation, from having local and general governments; 2nd, By building the International Railroad; 3rd, By requiring the organization and maintenance of an army and navy....Our readers will thus see that by Confederation, our legislative machinery will not only be made cumbrous and intricate, but also outrageously expensive.

This Week In Morrisburg's History

Compiled from The Leader's fyles by Laurie Day

1982

Members of the Morrisburg Hydro Commission voted to abolish their establishment, and the final fate of the 40-year-old commission was put on the shoulders of the village council. In a surprising close to a regular meeting commissioner, Willard Steinburg moved a motion to get rid of the commission and leave council wielding the last axe. Ex-officio member William Dillabough seconded the motion and the vote held even though chairman John Allison said not enough information was available for him to take a position on the situation. He voted against the proposal.

Initial agreement was reached between Williamsburg Township and the Ministry of Transportation and Communications in regards to coinciding work on the expansion of Highway 31 through the police village of Williamsburg and its $1.4 million sewer project. The agreement meant the township would save both time and money although the township consultant Brian Boyd of A.J. Graham consultants from Ottawa, said exact figures were not available. MTC also agreed to hold off the construction on the highway until 1983, the date the township hoped to begin the installation.

Representatives from the Morrisburg Minor Hockey Association and the Morrisburg Figure Skating Club said they were upset and disturbed with comments make by Morrisburg and District Lions Club President John Phillips. Phillips slammed the two local groups for what he termed, a lack of participation in Winter Carnival activities, and called them ungrateful for the assistance they received from the Lions Club. MMHA fundraising committee chairperson, Sandra Bailey, and MFSC president Sue Strader, both said the remarks by Phillips were both unfounded and undiplomatic.

Nineteen-year-old Vicki Van Allen was crowned the Queen of the Morrisburg Winter Carnival. Princesses of Carnival Week were Penny Dillabough 16, Henny Vanderheide 19, Karen Heagle 17, and all were pictured on the front page of The Leader.

The Morrisburg Loyalists captured the Seaway Valley Intermediate Hockey League pennant and were scheduled to meet Alexandria in the best of seven finals for the league championship. The winner went on to meet the best of the Lanark League.

Laurie Brown and David Tucker, two Grade 8 students from Iroquois Public School, accompanied by their teacher Mrs. Gail Telford, visited Huntley Jamaica for an education adventure with their twinned school.

Letters to the Editor

Editor, The Morrisburg Leader,
Morrisburg, Ontario

Dear Editor — Our community is agriculturally based, and it faces an uncertain future because of world GATT (General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade) talks, free trade with the U.S., and proposed free trade with the U.S. and Mexico.

The key question now is what else our government is going to give away in pursuit of its aims.

Our own local communities are strongly linked to the supply-managed sector, but all sectors throughout the country are interdependent. Thousands of jobs across the country have already been lost, and the numbers continue to rise.

These supply-managed sectors consume a tremendous volume of inputs such as corn, soya and feed grains. General suppliers across the whole spectrum from machinery dealers to grocers are integrated into the system and all will suffer. Likewise, a flood of cheap poultry products would damage an already-suffering beef and pork sector. Western transportation, crop insurance and stabilization programs will have to be changed if the government goes ahead with its present plans.

Already, the end of the two-price wheat system has cut wheat growers' returns in half, but didn't lower bread prices one bit.

Algeria had a credible farm sector till it was abandoned in the 1970s when high oil prices brought great wealth. Now oil prices have dropped drastically and Algeria can't feed itself.

A country that neglects its agriculture endangers its sovereignty.

It's not usually this cold in Jamaica
Actors Marshall Button (seated) and Mark Morton broke the February chill with a theatre brunch held at the Best Western Parkway in Cornwall Sunday. They are pictured here as television stars on Jamaicatime, Upper Canada Cablevision.

Revue pokes fun at local issues

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

CORNWALL—Two well-known actors and "gentlemen of Morrisburg" were up to their old comic tricks at a theatre brunch held here last Sunday.

Helped by supporting players Ron Flaro, Andrie Nel and Kate Van Doninck, Upper Canada Playhouse artistic director Marshall Button and Playhouse Young Company director Mark Morton held a satiric 90-minute revue of local institutions and personages all along the Seaway from Iroquois to the City of Cornwall.

After a delicious buffet brunch at the Best Western Parkway Inn, the pair started on a hilarious barrage and left few stones unturned as they examined both local and national issues.

Canada Customs and cross-border shopping, Quebec as a distinct society, marijuana usage, beauty pageants, politicians, folk singers, winter holidays in the Maritimes, even the Long Sault Parkway and the Canada Goose became the subjects of comedy.

Although the cast was small, the players were versatile and easily adapted from role to role by a simple costume switch.

Button played a number of characters from country singer, Upper Canada Cable television announcer, to operator of a 1-800-sex-line.

In addition to pairing up with Button in scenes, Morton appeared as formerly well-known folk singers, a Jamaican television announcer, and a man in a mock suicide attempt.

In one scene, the pair enacted a couple of unemployed Maritimers who blame their joblessness on language skills, or lack thereof in a hilarious patois.

In other words, it's not that they don't know "the two langues officielles," it's because they speak two at the same time, that there's a problem!

The 'Miss Seaway' Beauty Pageant was the target of satire, as a pageant judge described the contestants desired qualities. "We are looking for contestants who are independent, moral, witty, (etc)."

But these high faluting qualities proved to be just a cover as the judge frankly admitted the basis of all beauty contests is good looks, and the girl with the best physical assets will naturally win.

Local figures found their way into improvised fun as Osnabruck councillor Fran Laflamme and Morrisburg businessman Andy Bowers were immortalized in a song about the Morrisburg "Tubie" race.

Musical parody focussed mainly on songs of the 1970's. The familiar titles "New York, New York!" "Do you know the way to San Jose!" and "I'm going to Houston!" took on a new twist with the addition of Button's memorable one-liners.

Depicting well-known 70's singer "Neil not so Young," Morton set the Lost Villages theme "The wreck of the little lost villages, " to the music of "The Wreck of the Edmond Fitzgerald".

As a finale, politicians like MPPs John Cleary, Noble Villeneuve and MP Bob Kilger and national leaders, Brian Mulroney and Jean Chretien came in for their share of ribbing during a take-off of "The Night Before Christmas." But instead of Christmas and old Saint Nick as subject, this time it's Canada with an independent Quebec.

The show was somewhat reminiscent of previous productions 'Greater Tuna,' a play where Morton and Button joined as a team, and 'Lucien,' but had many new elements.

Button said they're planning to add a scene from Shakespeare's "Two Gentlemen from Verona" to the next Sunday brunch theatre, February 16 at 12.30 p.m. here at the Best Western Parkway Inn.

Dear Editor — Teaching in the remote Alaska interior is rewarding, if I could overcome the feeling of isolation. I would be most grateful if you would kindly print the following penpal request, either in your Letters to the Editor, or as a short human interest story. Thank you!

Alaska is very beautiful, but it is vast and can be lonely for one person. I am seeking a bright lady penpal, single, aged 25-40, interested in travel, adventure, the outdoors, classical music, and clean lifestyle. Exchange photos and thoughts.

I am a busy music professor, a prolific published author on anthropological subjects, an ex-navy officer, and once lived two years with a remote African tribe, the Shangana-Tsonga of Mozambique. I live in a three-storey log home in a silver birch forest, where moose roam through. It is two-hours drive from America's highest peak, Mt. McKinley (20,300 feet).

Limit School Boards

Council wants low tax hike

MORRISBURG—At a regular meeting Monday, council agreed with a resolution of the Township of Winchester-requesting the SD & G Boards of Education to limit their money requisitions.

According to the letter, money requisitions should be limited to "not more than the inflation rate or as recommended by the Ministry of Municipal Affairs in a letter dated January 10, 1992."

According to the Ministry, a two-year freeze should be placed on salaries for MPPs, and a similar freeze on compensation to municipal councillors and staff.

The resolution was accepted after some discussion, and reeve Gord McGregor reiterated commitment that council keep their own municipal tax increase to a minimum.

The majority of councillors agreed with Premier Bob Rae's statement to limit municipal expense increases to one to two per cent.

Councillors noted that the municipality uses only about 30 per cent of taxation, and that the school boards and counties account for the remainder. But if taxes go up, the public blames the municipal council.

Coun. Larry Schnurr pointed out that a letter outlining the situation should be sent to PC leader Mike Harris. "If they send us a letter saying we should keep the school board levy down and the schools negotiate a five or six per cent increase, we know what will happen to the one per cent.

If they have a bee in their bonnet, maybe they can do something at a level we can't," Schnurr stated.

The resolution has been circulated to the School Boards, all SD & G municipalities, and MPP Noble Villeneuve.

Morrisburg S.P.I.R.I.T.

In the interest of keeping taxation increases to a minimum, council is considering a proposal to use the talents of people living in the Village for the good of the community.

Coun. Jack Notman read from a prepared statement: "We are investigating the registering of a 'Special Pool of Interested Residents and Taxpayers' to expand the existing Morrisburg Spirit and enlist Spirit volunteers under the banner of 'Morrisburg S.P.I.R.I.T. volunteers."

"It is obvious to us that we live in a community of talented people—craftsmen, business people, engineers, artists, etc. who may be interested in advising the community as we occasionally need a qualified opinion, or some roll-up-your- sleeves assistance," Notman stated.

Council agreed with the proposal in principle, and will consider ways and means of implementation over the next couple of months.

"This will help a positive spirit in the community instead of negative all the time," said one councillor.

"It'll also help keep the taxes down,"McGregor added.

At the January meeting, council gave the go-ahead to permit volunteer labor in converting an old boiler room in the Civic Center into a training and meeting room for firemen. On Monday, it was noted that work had already begun.

Among a number of by-laws, council passed a by-law establishing a South Dundas Recreation Council.

The Council is to operate within the framework of the joint recreation master plan which allows for the appointment of a recreation coordinator, and the sharing of associated costs among the municipalities.

In 1992, the cost to the Village of Morrisburg will be $10,000.

Coun. Larry Schnurr noted that the recreation council may only recommend plans for utilizing municipal property to municipal councils, and is not permitted to make binding decisions.

Of concern is the predominance of recreational facilities in the Village of Morrisburg, used by outsiders. "We have more to offer from the recreational view—such as the arena, curling, swimming and so on," Schnurr stated.

"The difficulty is that taxpayers foot the bill and outsiders pay much smaller than pro-rated portions," said Schnurr.

The Village hopes to undo this inequity by sharing recreational costs with other municipalities.

The meeting started with the introduction of recreation coordinator Paul McAllister to council. McAllister is becoming familiar with his new responsibilities to entail coordination of recreation within the four municipalities of South Dundas.

"We're coming to grips with long-term plans for financing," said McAllister.

A budget for joint recreation is under review by the Recreation Council and will be presented to the finance committee. Some items should be available for grant funding.

Winter survival

MORRISBURG—Everyone who has had to battle the elements during a winter storm will appreciate the basic precautions offered in the Parks of the St. Lawrence Winter Survival Clinic on Saturday, February 15, from 1.00 to 3.00 p.m.

Setting out from the Upper Canada Migratory Bird Sanctuary parking lot, participants will find out how to prepare for a safe and fun winter outing. Winter activities can be very rewarding for outdoor and sport enthusiasts but also carry a certain element of risk.

The Clinic will offer many helpful hints to beat the odds of a day-long winter excursion and make it even more enjoyable. Several topics, such as clothing, general common sense tips, first signs of frostbite and recommended equipment and food will be explored in the introductory talk.

Participants will strike out in groups to learn practical winter skills in the outdoor wood setting. Knowing how to start a fire and build a shelter may prove an important lifesaver in case of an emergency.

The Winter Survival Clinic is one of many free programs featured by the Parks of the St. Lawrence this winter. A guided Moonlight Cross-Country Ski Tour is slated for February 16 at 9.00 p.m. at the Crysler Park Maple Sugar Bush and the first annual Winter Carnival will take place on February 22 and 23.

Students share science projects with family

LAURIE DAY
Leader staff

DIXON'S CORNERS—The exhibits at this year's "science share" at Dixon's Corners Public School ranged from floating eggs to mousetrap cars, and every pit stop in between.

The students in this Jr. Kindergarten to Grade 6 school had been preparing for a few weeks, and according to principal Brooke Leightizer the flurry was fast and furious to get set up in time for the Wednesday evening showing.

Parents crammed the gymnasium anxious to see what their children had created, ready to boast to an interested neighbor, "that's my child."

And the students were pretty pleased with their works of science, and even nature themes or social studies, as some called it.

Each grade has a different level of difficulty in creating a science project.

Whether it's from the newly learned functions of language arts and vocabulary skills of the Kindergarten students, or the organization and researching skills learned by the older grades, it gives the children a chance to develop their scientific skills.

"We've had great parental feedback," said Leightizer. "It gives the parents a chance to test their children's understanding of their creations."

For Sarah Markell, a Grade 4 student and Shelly Fawcett of Grade 5, their project waded through the T.V. commercials regarding laundry detergent. "We wanted to see which one really worked best," informed Markell.

Of the three detergents chosen to work with, Cheer was found to be the worst at getting out such stains as mustard and soil, ABC was in the middle, and Tide was the best.

"But my mom already new that," Fawcett said.

The girls did their experiment at school, as did each of the 188 students who took part in the "science share".

"We called it a share this year, because that is what the students are doing. They are sharing their findings with their parents and their friends' parents," Leightizer said.

And what science exhibition would be complete without the demonstration of the school's computer system.

Amy Markell, Grade 4 student and Grade 3's Robert Scott, paired up to display their project entitled, "Order of Pairs."

These students were able to draw pictures on the computer by using sequences of pairs of numbers; one from the X axis and one from the Y axis, to plot a diagram and later "connect the dots" for the finished results.

"You can do this on the computer or you can do it by hand," said Markell.

"But the teacher gave us the pairs of numbers to use," informed Scott.

For a demonstration of a volcanic reaction, one could amble around the gymnasium to Grade 6 student, Danielle Mellon's table where she masterfully portrayed a volcano using papier mâché.

Jamie Long's project was concerning the human body and what to do, or not do to keep it healthy.

"We only have one, and we have to take care of it," she said.

Long had parents check their heart rates with a stethoscope before and after exercising to see how elevated each individual's rate became after a little exertion.

On the nature side of things, there was Gordon Casselman with his snowy owl display.

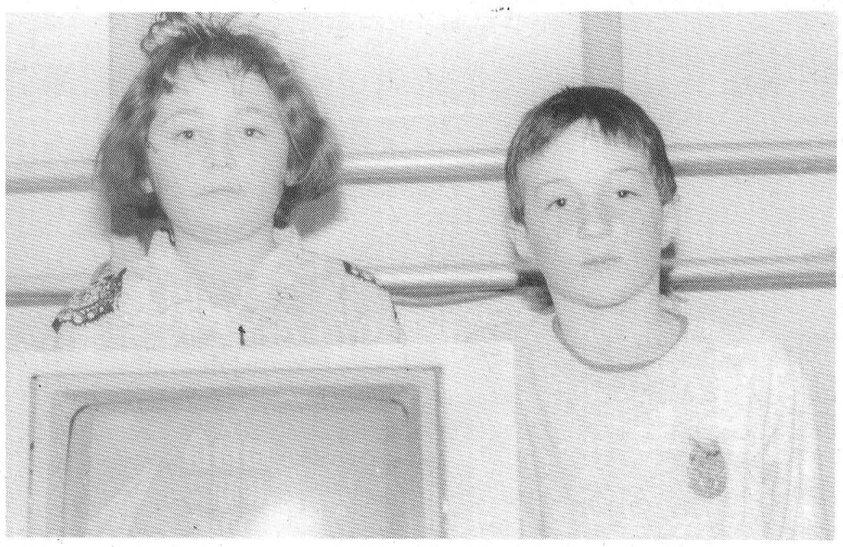
Casselman informed parents that he had seen a snowy owl on his property east of Dixon's Corners recently and that prompted him to create his project on the bird.

More and more snowy owls are being spotted because of a lack of food in the Arctic they are flying farther south than they normally would.

But Casselman believed that they would soon be flying north again once the weather became too warm here.

In the younger grades, research on different birds was displayed on large bulletin boards at the entrance to the gymnasium. Each student was given the task of writing two or three sentences about one bird as well as coloring a drawing of it.

"It's a chance where students can share projects with people they care about and it gives then a great sense of accomplishment," said Leightizer. And by the reactions of both the parents and the students, the main goal was reached.



Computer smart
Amy Markell, and Robert Scott joined forces to display their science project entitled "Order of Pairs"

Which one is best?
Sarah Markell and Shelly Fawcett did research concerning laundry detergents. The girls learned tested three different brands and discovered something that their mother's already knew. Day photos

Open for business

A new auto repair business has opened in Iroquois north of Highway 2, and west of the Esso station. Bob Sprague started the business last week after a lot of hard thought.

Opens new business

Local man takes the plunge

C. THOMPSON

IROQUOIS—Morrisburg resident Bob Sprague never really planned on setting up his own business, but circumstances or "fate" decreed otherwise.

"I didn't really want to set up my own business, it's a long hard road."

"But you get to the point you believe things will work out in a certain way, and you have to make the opportunity to do it," he said Monday.

Last week Bob opened Iroquois Auto Repair, located on the north of Highway 2, next to Bob Bedard's car wash business, and west of the Esso station.

in mid-stream, but continues in the same line of work that he was trained in.

Starting out as a Class A general mechanic in his early 20's, Bob went into the selling end of the business. At first, he was employed at Petric Ford in Vernon, then became business manager of Campbell Ford, and eventually was general manager of Dan Mann Nisson of Ottawa.

After a brief two-year stint as regional collections manager for the Bank of Commerce, where he repossessed cars sold in previous dealerships, he viewed his life from a different perspective. At this point, he decided to reenter the trade as a mechanic.

"It was time for a major change in the car business. It's a tough business demanding long hours and sacrifices," he explained.

Considering the new advances in technology with electronic ignition, computerized ignition systems etc. Bob felt retraining was necessary. He entered the apprenticeship program for the second time at Algonquin College in Ottawa, and served a four-year apprenticeship at Sterling Ford.

Then he took the plunge, moving to Morrisburg and settled on a nice place to live on Carraway Crescent. "I always wanted to move here but circumstances prevented me until now," he stated.

"There are a lot of reasons I wanted to invest some money in the area—one reason being that we're in a recession and unless everyone pitches in there won't be anything for anybody.

And if you can't find a job, it's time to make a job," he added. "That's what we're trying to do."

Bob doesn't envision a large business at this point, and for a while, it will remain a one-man operation.

"We'll create a little business where we can see if things will work as we think they can work," he said.

Basically the Iroquois Auto Repair will be general repair on cars and light trucks, with a focus on electronic ignition and fuel injection.

Bob stated he would like to develop a clientele of customers whose cars he is familiar with. "Then we can deal with them and take more interest in them individually and in their cars and do extra service for them. It makes for a different atmosphere."

"It's just old-fashioned service. I'm into that, doing a really good job and enjoying every day's work," he said.

Besner baffles birds

LAURIE DAY

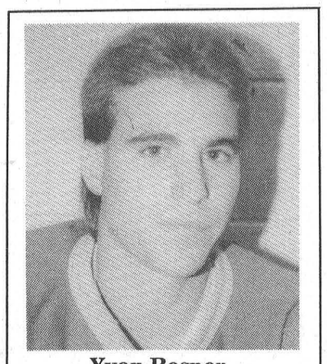
WINCHESTER—In front of a standing-room-only crowd, the Morrisburg Jr. B Lions used the momentum from their loyal fans to post a 5-3 St. Lawrence division pennant victory over the Winchester Hawkes Monday night of the E.O.J.B.H.L.

Coach, Doug Casselman breathed a sigh of relief in the third period after an effective two-man powerplay kill.

"They kept their discipline, and I think that was the turning point in the game," he said. "But I held my breath until that final buzzer went."

Morrisburg was down 2-0 at the first period break, but kept true to form as they came back to tie the game at three apiece in the second.

Yvon Besner was the leading scorer for the Lions as he sunk a natural hat trick, his third goal was the winner just four minutes into the final period.



Yvon Besner

Rob Domanko added the insurance at 13:09 unassisted on a breakaway.

Newcomer Pat Fisher had the opening powerplay goal in the second period to get the Lions on the board at 16:12. He was assisted by Shawn Hummel.

Other Morrisburg assists were credited to both Randy Mullin and Rob Casselman with three apiece.

Winchester's Domenic Menard and Dennis Dodd scored in the first period, and it was Kevin Tallman who got by Hopkins in the second.

"Jeff (Hopkins) played an outstanding game," said Casselman. "He made some key saves on a few breakaways."

Hopkins' goaltending and the team's powerplay were two main factors that helped to bring the pennant back to Morrisburg. The team's first three goals scored were while Winchester was short handed.

"The crowd support has been great this year," Casselman said. "And that bunch who follow us around and do 'the chant' has meant more than a few goals for us. We just want to tell them all we appreciate them for their support."

Morrisburg will host Kemptville in the first round of playoff action on Friday night.

"Last night (Monday) was just a little consolation for us," he said. "Now we're going for the 'big one'."

Morrisburg Mutters

The Lions showed CharLan no mercy as they bounced them 13-2 Friday in Morrisburg.

The team lead 6-0 after the first period.

In the second frame, CharLan came back with a pair of goals from Safford Hazen and Dan Brisson, but Morrisburg dumped in another three to counteract.

In the final period, Morrisburg dusted another four counters past Jim Kenny for the big finish.

Yvon Besner led the attack with four goals and four assists, while both Randy Mullin and Craig Villeneuve added three goals each.

Rob Domanko picked up a pair in the contest and a single was added by J.D. Hunter.

Down for the save

Winchester net man, Dale Wilson saved this attempt by Morrisburg's Mike McAllister but the home team was dubbed by the pesky Lions in a 5-3 battle for the number one spot Monday in Winchester. Day photo

McNairn pots four for win

LAURIE DAY

MORRISBURG—Allen McNairn dumped in four back-to-back goals to propel the F-Team to a 7-2 decision over the Blues in town league action Thursday night.

That win was enough to roll over Parker's in the standings by one point and the team is now in third place.

McNairn dominated the second half of the game after a 3-1 break in the F-Team's favor.

Robin Adair potted a pair of counters in the first half and Peter Bronsman added a single.

F-Team assists were credited to Mitch Hutt with four, Bronsman and McNairn with three, Terry Pitt with a pair and Gary McInnis with a single.

Scoring for the Blues were Robert Jordan with the opening goal in the first and Andy Lee at 14:04 of the second.

It's now a race at the bottom of the standings to see who will end up in the basement between the Blues and the Carpets who lost to the second place Flyers in the second game of the night.

Greg Stubbings claimed a hat trick in the 10-2 assault.

The Flyers had all but eliminated the House of Carpets in the first period 5-0, but Allan Black scored a pair in the second to spoil Darren Mullin's shutout.

Donald Black fired a pair of counters in the winning effort, and Brad Sloan, Dale Baldwin, Frank Hummell, Fred Osler and Reg Gilmer rounded out the scoring in the winning effort.

Hummell also collected five assists, and both Osler and Gilmer claimed a pair of helpers each.

In the final game, league leading Charlie's Sport shop stopped Parkers from getting on the scoreboard in a 4-0 contest.

Novices looking like Jr. Bs in win

LAURIE DAY
Leader staff

MORRISBURG—The Novice A Lions hosted the Casselman Braves in an exhibition contest Saturday and after a slow start, turned a 1-0 deficit after the first period into a 12-1 skate-away.

Both Jason Denio and Matt Collins scored four goals apiece in what looked like a Jr. B game as the team came from behind to win the show down.

Mathieu Piquette was the shutout spoiler as he scored on Mike McCann at 4:32 of the first period assisted by Eric Mainville.

Scott Barkley fired his first of a hat trick in the second period with 7:50 remaining.

Collins counted at 4:23 and with less than 1:39 to go, the Lions combined for three more to end the period.

This time it was Denio with a pair and Collins with a single.

In the final frame, Barkley potted a pair at 7:41 and 6:31, then Robert Annable scored just eight seconds later.

The assault continued with Denio's third goal at 4:14, and Collins' final two of the game in the next minute of play.

Denio ended the humiliation game with 1:08 left to play.

Morrisburg assists were credited to Collins (5), Denio (3), Barkley (3), Parker Locke (3), Nick Hall, and Craig LeClair.

With just a few weeks left in the league schedule, coach Barry Van Allen is hopeful that the team can still clinch first place.

"That last game we played (against Casselman) proved that the boys are ready for the playoffs. We just have to stay motivated," he said.

In a regulation game last Tuesday the Lions hosted Brockville but were held to just one goal in the 2-1 upset.

Brockville came up with a pair of goals in the first period to spark an early lead and held off Morrisburg long enough for the win.

Morrisburg's goal in the second period came with just 30 seconds left as Barkley scored assisted by Collins, but the team's wings were clipped in the third period as Brockville's defence held on to the slim lead.

Daniel Board and Ryan Ballentyne scored for Brockville and Brad Patter picked up an assist on the winning goal.

Seaway upsets fellow schools in curl classic

MORRISBURG—The Curling Club hosted the SD and G Curling Shield Thursday, and Morrisburg claimed first place in each of the two divisions played, but will be sending three teams to Hawksbury.

Heading to E.O.S.S.A. for the February 24 and 25 competition will be the men's team of Ed Morrell, Nilesh Chande, Jon Ball and Joey McCooeye.

Morrell claimed victories over both Tagwi and St. Joseph's rinks, but it will be Tagwi who will join Seaway as the E.O.S.S.A. alternate after losing to Seaway in the final round.

For the Seaway rink of Jeff Casselman, Jennifer Torres, Spencer Cooper and Stacey Weagant, a two game sweep put them into E.O.S.S.A. competition as well, as they beat St. Joseph's in their final game.

For the ladies team of Marianne Grenki, Julianne Grenki, Amy Cooper and Sylvia Lehmann, it was relatively easy as there were no other ladies teams from S D and G in the competition.

Other curling news

Over the weekend, the Morrisburg curlers were actively involved with out-of-town bonspiels.

Two teams were in the Prescott men's bonspiel and each finished with one win and one loss.

Ian McGillis, Lorne Casselman, Ken Gillespie and Bert Turner lost their first game to Brockville but they defeated Prescott in their second game.

The rink of Graham Houze, Danny Cassell, Bob Bedingfield and Robert Houze lost to Prescott, but claimed their win over Annadale.

In Gananoque, the team of Tom Tindal, Larry Cooper, Chris Barkley and Rob Robichaud beat the host club in their opener, but lost in the semi finals to Cornwall in Colt's Competition.

Last Saturday, the Groundhog bonspiel was held in Morrisburg and it was Mahlon Locke and his rink of Margaret Robertson, Gord Dillabough and Lorna Francis who took first place honors.

Brad Bradford, Clare Dunbar, David Hess and Wilf Gibbons took second and Gerald Adams, Lyle Hess, James Jones and Jo Rosenquist finished third.

Heart and Stroke Funspiel is back

MORRISBURG—This Sunday marks the annual Funspiel for the Heart and Stroke Foundation at the Morrisburg Curling Club.

All spots are now filled for the day's events which has teams from area companies such as Odonto (where there are two teams signed up), Rohm and Haas, Beavers Dental, and C.S. Brooks Caldwell.

There will also be a young man of approximately 11 years of age who will skip his grandparents in the funspiel according to Robin Lane, coordinator of the event.

Other teams involved are from Winchester Springs, and Morrisburg along with the sponsor team from Seaway Valley Pharmacy.

Area businesses have donated prizes so that all involved will receive one, and as a little incentive, extra points will be given to new curlers in this six-end competition.

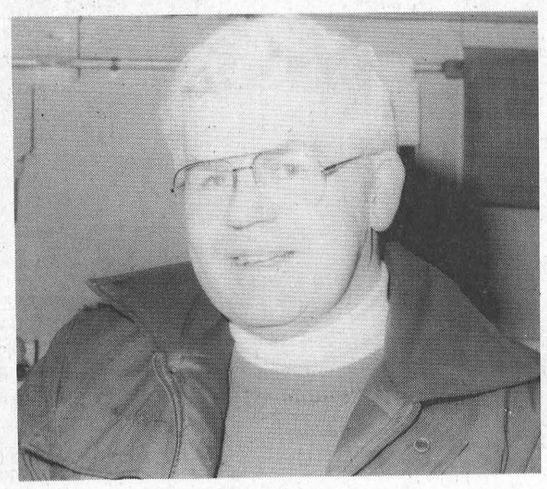
The Heart and Stroke Foundation will be providing home-made soup and sandwiches for the participants who curl up an appetite.

The ever-popular dart board will be at the curling club for those dart players who care to try their luck at hitting a balloon for a prize.

According to Lane, the Dart for Heart held at Iroquois last weekend raised approximately $900, and there were 90 dart players in attendance.

Last year's total of $1,000 raised at the Funspiel is the goal set for this year as well, and all proceeds from the day will be donated to the Heart and Stroke Foundation.

M.D.M.H.A. Coaches' Corner



JOHN WILSON
Bantam III Coach

John has been a Bantam III coach in Morrisburg for the previous two years. Prior to his stint in the village, he coached for two years in the Cardinal-Iroquois area, and has attained a level 1 coaching certificate. As a Bantam III coach, he is directing his 15-year-old son, Chris, this year, and according to John, Chris wasn't too crazy about the idea a year ago. "He really didn't want me to chach, but now he doesn't mind," he says. John's main goal as a coach is to strive for team work as there are members of his team who come from three or four different schools in the area. The Bantam IIIs have an approximate win/loss record of 50/50, and John says that the boys are always in the game as they are never outscored by too many goals. Besides Chris, John and his wife Diane have two other sons, Ian, 20, who is in a university phys-ed program, and Simon, 18, who has given up hockey and refereeing (of which he was a level 2), for skiing. John is a science teacher at the North Dundas District High School and he and his family reside in the Iroquois area. Day photo

Newcomer service proposed here

CORNWALL—Imagine yourself a newcomer in a strange country, unfamiliar with its customs and not knowing the language.

Few can depict the truly terrifying scenario that many immigrants face when they first arrive in Canada.

Many elemental facts about life in Canada are unknown to a newcomer, such as knowledge of the law, how to set up a bank account, find a place to live, etc.

In Cornwall and the surrounding district of the United Counties, there are few services to help immigrants overcome the first waves of culture shock, and adjust to a new life style.

In fact, the teachers of English as a Second Language in Cornwall, Alexandria and Winchester frequently find themselves trying to act as counsellors when they are actually being paid to teach.

There were 19 students enrolled in ESL classes in Alexandria and Winchester, offered through the T.R. Leger Alternative School, while the Alternative School in Cornwall had 119 enrollments, and St. Lawrence College had 28.

These numbers reflect only about 1/3 to 1/2 of the newcomers who could potentially benefit from this course, and from settlement and integration services if available.

On the average, 174 immigrants arrive in Cornwall and area every year.

In a study done by Tamas Consulting Inc for the Cornwall and District Multicultural Council, a number of newcomer needs were uncovered. They include settlement counselling and outreach, referral and cultural interpretation.

According to the study, Cornwall should be looking at establishing basic settlement and immigration services for newcomers arriving in this community.

"Helping newcomers become full participants in their communities and fostering the harmonious development of a diverse and equitable society are challenges of local, national and international proportions," said Andy Tamas.

The Cornwall and District Multicultural Council decided to undertake the study after concluding that services for newcomers were not sufficient to meet the needs being expressed.

With the financial assistance of the Ontario Ministry of Citizenship, and the federal Secretary of State, the Council hired Tamas to determine what needs existed and what alternatives could be looked at in order to best respond.

Rather than a traditional settlement agency such as those in larger centres, Tamas recommends that settlement counselling and outreach services be housed within existing educational facilities such as the ESL program.

A newcomer counsellor could be placed in Cornwall on a referral basis from the ESL program, and supported by a number of other related agencies such Employment and Immigration, the Ministry of Citizenship, and the Ministry of Social Services.

"We know that immigrants are a net plus to the community. They generate more employment than they take," said Tamas.

"We get the movers and shakers of populations of other parts of the world. It's a very energetic group. In addition, with our declining birth rate, we require immigration to sustain our economy."

"If we don't replace ourselves, we won't have the markets to sustain the business. We're doing it not because we're nice. If we don't, it will be worse for all of us," he added.

The Multi-Cultural Council is to meet with members of the community to receive their input on this proposal. If they support the idea, agencies will be approached to see if they also react favorably.

If so, job descriptions and an operating plan to obtain funding will be made out.

Four youths charged after 20-mile chase

JOHNSTOWN—Four young offenders were chased by Morrisburg O.P.P. Constable Fred Langlotz for over 20 miles Sunday and finally stopped down a dead end street in Johnstown.

Langlotz first clocked the vehicle, a 1986 Honda Civic owned by John Sheahan of Kingston, Ontario, eastbound on Highway 401 near Carmen Road at Iroquois.

The driver of the car, a 17-year-old youth from Kingston, then drove to the Morrisburg exit where headed south on Highway 31 to Highway 2.

Once at Highway 2, Langlotz followed the vehicle westbound back to Johnstown where the chase finally ended on Sophia Street, which was a dead end.

Charged with possession of stolen property were three male young offenders who cannot be identified under the Young Offenders Act, and one female young offender. All four youths range in age from 14-17 years and are residents of the Kingston area.

Two of the males and the female were also charged with breach of probation, while the driver faces charges of dangerous driving and failing to stop for police.

The two older offenders will appear in Cornwall court on February 19, and the two younger juveniles will appear in Morrisburg court on February 18.

Prescott O.P.P. were called upon to assist Langtotz in the incident.

Widowed support group meets in Chesterville

CHESTERVILLE—The Widowed Support Group of Stormont Dundas held its first meeting of the year at St. Mary's School, Chesterville, on Jan 20.

The guest speaker was public health nurse Margery Trille, who gave an excellent presentation on shopping and cooking for one, which included a video on nutrition.

She suggested cooking in larger quantities, then dividing these and freezing portions. This was followed by a lively discussion. Gloria thanked Margery on behalf of all present.

A letter of thanks was received from the Naomi Family Resource Centre for the donation of Christmas gifts. Discussions were held on small groups, group activities, crafts, future trips, etc.

The next meeting will be held on Monday, February 17, at 7.30 p.m. at St. Mary's School, Chesterville. The guest speaker will be Boris Andrusko, a social worker from Ottawa who specializes in bereavement and trauma counselling.

This meeting is open to all, not just to widows and widowers, but anyone having a difficult time accepting the loss of a loved one. Members are urged to attend this important meeting.
